MAN AND MARRIAGE.

Sage Advice About Methods Before and After the Ceremony.

In "Her Royal Highness Woman" Max O'Rell gives some very sage advice to men as to what they should and should not do both before and after marriage. The following extracts will be of interest to readers:

Never marry a woman richer than you, one taller than you or one older than you. Be always gently superior to her in size and in age, so that in every possible way she may appeal to you for help or protection, either through your purse, your strength or your experience in life. Marry her at an age that will always enable you to play with her all the different characteristic parts of a husband—a chum, a lover, an adviser, a protector and just a tiny suspicion of a father.

However ill you may speak or think of women, you will always find a woman able to do it better than you.

Never let your ladylove see you without a collar—no, not even the very wife of your bosom. A man's head without a collar is like a bouquet without a holder.

Never let her see you asleep. Maybe you sleep with your mouth open. If you are married, let your wife sleep first. When you are quite sure she is off, let yourself go, and be careful to wake up first in the morning.

Bismarck on Champagne.
Years ago, when Baron Hengelmüller was assistant secretary of the Austrian embassy at Berlin, Bismarck gave a dinner to which the baron was invited. All the guests except Von Hengelmüller drank champagne, and Bismarck, noting the young man's abstinence, asked the reason therefor.

"I have not yet earned the right so to indulge," was the reply.

"Ah, that will not do," remarked Bismarck; "it is allotted to every able-bodied man in this world to consume in his lifetime 10,000 bottles of champagne. So you should begin now lest you fail to secure your just portion."

"If 10,000 bottles be the allotment for the ordinary man," responded the young diplomatist, bowing to the Iron Chancellor, "your excellency, being an extraordinary man, should have double allowance, and I therefore take great pleasure in awarding my share to you."

"I thank you," Bismarck replied, "but permit me to inform you that without waiting for your grand reclamation I have already passed the 20,000 mark."—Saturday Evening Post.

She'll Sing Hereafter.
A charming young lady of Kensington who glories in the possession of a wealth of bright auburn colored hair is the teacher of a Sunday school class. On a recent Sabbath the rector made the announcement of a hymn to be sung and, rising, waved his hands, and the organ pealed forth.

"Now," said he, "ready—sing."

A small and precocious youth in the young woman's class said:

"Why don't you sing, Miss Frisbee?"

"Me? Oh, I never sing," replied the teacher, smilingly.

"But," exclaimed the boy, "the minister says you must. Didn't he just say 'Now, Reddy, sing?'"

Smelling salts and numerous other restoratives had to be used to bring the teacher out of her faint.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Choleric Versus Quiet Natures.

Clarendon, says The Schoolmaster, made careful observation when he wrote: "Angry and choleric men are as ungrateful and unsober as thunder and lightning, being in themselves all storm and tempest; but quiet and easy natures are like air weather, welcome to all and acceptable to all men; they gather together what the others disperse and reconcile all whom the others incense; as they have the good will and the good wishes of all other men, so they have the full possession of themselves, have all their own thoughts at peace and enjoy quiet and ease in their own fortune, how strait soever it may be."

Honest Praise.

An honest compliment was that paid to M. de Vendome, who, while commanding the French army in Italy, dispatched a young nobleman to announce to his master the victory which he had gained at Suzzara. The latter, while attempting to describe the battle, became several times much confused in his narrative, when, although the king preserved his gravity, the Duchess of Burgundy, who was present, laughed so heartily that at last the young gentleman said, "Sire, it is easier for M. de Vendome to win a battle than for me to describe it."

Our Fears.

It is not what a thing is, but what we think it is, that frightens us. A man walks within an inch of death without knowing it and therefore without trembling, and then his hair stands on end at some empty noise as harmless as the buzzing of a fly.

MAN BEFORE BREAKFAST.

More Ill Nutured Than Woman, Says an Observant Restaurateur.

"Of course," said an avenue restaurant keeper, "I think my business gives me the best opportunities in the world for judging human nature. My observations have led me to the conclusion that women, as nervous as they are supposed to be, are more good natured than men. The test for this trait comes at breakfast time. Now, I suppose that my customers are about as chery a lot as frequent any restaurant in the city. A good many of them are newspaper men, who, as a usual thing, take life as it comes without much complaint. If you take them in the evening or late at night, you will find them the most companionable lot imaginable. But let me tell you there is a difference in the morning.

"As friendly as I am with most of the men who come in here, there is not one whom I would care to provoke before he gets his breakfast. Most of the 'kicks' are made concerning the first meal of the day. The waiter is too slow; the steak is too rare; the steak is too well done; the eggs are not fried properly or are boiled too little or too much. But by the time the average man has had a good meal and a cup of hot coffee 'Richard is himself again.' 'Now, with women it is different. I don't know whether it is because they wake up less hungry than men or whether an empty stomach affects their nerves to a less degree, but those who get their breakfast here seldom annoy us with complaints.'—Washington Post.

Don'ts For Literary Beginners.

Don't tell the editor what your family or friends or literary acquaintances say of your manuscript.

Don't urge the editor to buy your manuscript because you need the money to help you in contributing to the support of your family or in making your way through college.

Don't assume a jaunty, sarcastic or insistent tone with the editor. Don't cooly ask him to "permit this literary dove to nest in your olive tree or else return it to the ark at the above address."

Don't try to temper the severity of his judgment by sending him pressed flowers with your manuscript or to impress him with your literary power and experience by telling him that you "write on the spur of the moment and never correct."

Bear in mind, in short, that the best way to submit a manuscript is simply to submit it and let it speak for itself.—Franklin B. Wiley in Ladies' Home Journal.

Snow in Venice.

"I saw Venice once under unusual circumstances," said a traveler. "At the time of which I speak that sunny, smiling land was wrapped in snow. Our folks were a bit surprised, but the natives were amazed. To the real Venetians snow is a thing they do not know how to deal with. Many persons remain all day in bed indulging in hot drinks and pass their time in doing nothing. The children, to their extreme satisfaction, are not sent to school, as the streets and squares are covered with snow. These courageous persons who venture abroad only walk at the slowest pace. To cross a bridge is considered hazardous, if not foolhardy. St. Mark's square is entirely deserted. Even the pigeons are invisible."

Mizpah.

How many people know that the monument that Laban and Jacob set up near the borders of Canaan and called "Mizpah," or a lookout, was erected in suspicion rather than love? The literal meaning was this: "The Lord watch between thee and me when we are absent one from the other, and see that you are not up to some new trick as soon as my back is turned."

So when it is inscribed in an engagement ring it might mean, "The Lord watch and see that you do not flirt when we are absent one from the other."

Those who use the text are sometimes wiser than they know.

Strong Even in Death.

A few trees almost destitute of branches or bark grows abundantly in the Caucasus to a height of from fifty to sixty feet and a diameter of a little over two feet. It grows slowly, but its timber is almost indestructible except by fire. It is considered superior in durability, appearance and toughness to mahogany, which it otherwise resembles. In some large forests of this tree it is very difficult to distinguish the live trees from the dead ones, the latter being very numerous and said to stand for 100 years after death without exhibiting decay.

Division of Labor.

Helene—How long did you stay in Paris on your trip to France?

Emma—Oh, a week altogether.

Helene—But surely you could not take in everything in such a short time!

Emma—But we did, all the same. You see, there were three of us. Mamma took in the picture galleries, I studied the shops and things, and papa examined the local color in the cafes.—Exchange.

Plump Birdie.

She (after the service)—You dreadful fellow! Why did you smile during the effort?

He—I couldn't help it. There was Miss Addie Pose singing "Had I the wings of a dove." The mental picture of a 200 pounder trying to fly with a pair of four inch wings was too much for me.

When the first baby howls at night

CULINARY HINTS.

Old-Time Dishes That Deserve Popular Revival.

For the average housewife it is particularly difficult to make her weekly allowance reach around so that the usual supply of suitable nourishing food may be provided for the family table. Beef must be almost a rarity at the table, while spring lamb and spring chickens are too expensive to even mention.

There are many delicious dishes that might at this time be restored to favor which were in the olden days considered wholesome and worthy of honorable mention.

A delicious dinner may be planned as follows: Get a sea bass, fresh and firm, and boil it until tender, allowing from 12 to 15 minutes to the pound. Make for it a dressing of drawn butter, and garnish it with one or two hard-boiled eggs, nicely sliced and alternating with slices of lemon. Serve with it new potatoes, fresh peas and sliced cucumbers. This dinner may be served for five persons at a reasonable cost.

The bass costs 15 cents a pound, new potatoes 20 cents a quarter peck, peas 15 cents a quarter, and the cucumbers from five to seven cents each. The entire cost for the meal would be about $1.

When supper is served at night the much despised sturgeon, which has at the present time been given just recognition and has grown in favor with the epicures, may be served in several ways. It may be simply boiled and served cold cut into dainty slices, which in themselves are a great temptation, for is there anything daintier than these delicate yellow and white stripes with the pink fat dotted here and there?

With this serve whole white bread, some red radishes on a bed of cracked ice, some stewed rhubarb and believe me, you will certainly have many requests from the lords of creation to repeat the dainty supper. This you can do for about 85 cents for a family of five.

The sturgeon is selling at 16 cents a pound, and a piece weighing about four pounds will boil well and leave enough for the next days lunch. Sturgeon is also most delicious spiced or pickled, and makes a particularly nice dish for Sunday night.

Smoked sturgeon may be purchased at the fine grocers, and when broiled is, I assure you, a dish not to be despised.

The fresh spring vegetables should be served freely—especially asparagus and spinach.

Less meat and more vegetables will cool the blood, and in consequence one will not suffer from the summer heat as when the blood is heated with a superabundance of red meats. Try this plan.—Philadelphia Record.

"What do you do with a man that steals a horse out here?" asked the tourist on the coach.

"String him up," blarneyed Amber Pete, in forcible tones.

"And the man that steals an automobile?"

"Give him a purse for ridding the country of a nuisance."—Chicago News.

"I heard you tell a man the other day, observed the caller, 'that a confirmed bunion was practically incurable. Yet you are working away at mine as if you expected to cure it.'"

"I'm trying to make a corn of it," exclaimed the chiropodist. "I can knock out any corn that ever happened."—Chicago Tribune.

HISTORIC ERUPTIONS.

Volcanic and seismic phenomena are still to be classified among the mysteries. No scientific theory has yet been evolved that will account for the various manifestations of subterranean energy. The relation, if any, between earthquakes and eruptions has not been satisfactorily explained. Volcanoes are supposed to mark lines of structural weakness in the earth's crust, and these lines, together with the several regions of volcanic activity, have been more or less accurately determined. Geologists have called them "circles of fire." But earthquakes of appalling destructiveness may occur in non-volcanic regions, as witness the destruction of Lisbon, Portugal, in the latter half of the Eighteenth Century, and the more recent disaster at Charleston, S. C. Eruptions, too, differ greatly in character. There are the comparatively harmless or rather beneficent eruptions (beneficent because they give vent to the pent-up gases and lava beneath); on the other hand, there are sudden and overwhelming outbreaks when mountains blow their heads off.

The more active volcanoes are not always the more dangerous. Vesuvius had lain dormant for centuries when in A. D. 79 it broke out without warning and buried Herculaneum and Pompeii under a flood of molten rock. On the contrary, one of the mightiest overflows of lava from ever active Mauna Loa in Hawaii "brimmed over the crater as noiselessly as the rising of the moon. The Lesser Antilles lie within a volcanic fire circle, but the volcanoes of that region are normally so inactive that the tropical rains are gathered within their central craters, forming lakes. Their true character is nevertheless revealed by columns of smoke constantly emitted from minor openings and by occasional showers of ashes and frequent mutterings. When these seemingly tamed firebelchers become roused to action, however, their destructive energy is titanic. In March, 1812, Mont St. Vincent, suddenly burst out with inconceivable fury, hurling a cloud of shattered rocks and dust of inky blackness 16,000 feet into the air. The roar of the explosion was heard in Venezuela, and in the island of Barbados, one hundred miles away, day was turned into night by the sooty pall which overspread the sky. The havoc wrought in St. Vincent beggared description. Everything within a circuit of four miles was destroyed.

Among the other authenticated explosions of mountains that of Asama, near Tokyo, in Japan, in 1783, was one of the most frightful. Nobody knows how many were killed. The volcano suddenly threw up a river of boiling mud from five to ten miles broad which overwhelmed forty-two villages. One of the masses of rock blown off the mountain at the time fell into a stream and formed an island. According to the record the mud "did not cease boiling for twenty-four days. Two rivers were sucked up into the torrent of lava, and their places taken by dry land; the noise was like a thousand thunders; the lakes were poisoned, the fish sickened and the streams were full of dead dogs, deer and monkeys with hair singed from their bodies."

The eruption of Bandaisan, in 1888, was less destructive of life, but as an instance of the gigantic power of the elemental forces of Nature the outbreak rivals that of Krakatoa. Bandaisan had been quiescent for a thousand years. Its sides were covered with gardens and villas. Without previous notice it blew its beautiful green head off and sent sixteen hundred million cubic feet of rock into the valley beneath. Simultaneously it belched forth a river of "moya," an agglomerate of stone and mud, as wide as the valley, which flowed down at the rate of a mile a minute, and in twenty minutes had spread itself to a depth of one hundred feet over a region fifteen miles long and seven wide. Says Professor Milne, following the description of his friend Professor Burton, who was the first scientific visitor to arrive at the scene of the disaster: "Only 401 persons lost their lives because only 401 persons were there to lose them. When a river of 'moya' as deep as a church rolls down a valley with the speed of an express train it is needless to say that Death rides on the wave for a quick garnering. That valley would have taken in the greater part of New York, and if that or some equally populous city had been there two million mortals would have sent their last breaths bubbling up through mud."

It is quite clear that our confidence in the firmness of the earth's crust is mistaken. The cases cited show the subterranean forces to retain all of their primeval immensity. There is no reason to believe that the eruptions of the tertiary or even earlier geological periods of the life of our planet were more terrific than have been those whereof we have authentic record. Mother Earth is still in her juvenile youth, and eons upon eons will pass before any abatement of her energies will become noticeable and she will enter upon her decline to the condition of a burnt-out cinder like the moon.—Philadelphia Record.

WON'T FOLLOW ADVICE AFTER PAYING FOR IT.

In a recent article a prominent physician says, "It is next to impossible for the physician to get his patients to carry out any prescribed course of hygiene or diet to the smallest extent; he has but one resort left, namely, the drug treatment." When medicines are used for chronic constipation, the most mild and gentle obtainable, such as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, should be employed. Their use is not followed by constipation as they leave the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., druggists.

CALAMITIES ARE COMING.
Death, disaster and terror, say stars, will continue to surround the world this year, according to L. G. Key, an astrologer in the Masonic Temple, Chicago. The disasters of the next few months will be appalling. Seldom has the world experienced such a series of calamities as are said to be in store.

"The months of June and July," said Mr. Key, "will be filled with calamities. There are to be terrific storms and many lives will be sacrificed. Saturn is in his own sign and disaster is bound to scatter over the earth. Disturbances in the earth like the eruption of the West Indian volcanoes were predicted by astrologers two years ago. At that time it was pointed out that the world would be startled before the end of two years by terrific earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. These will continue for a time and then the disturbances will be in the atmosphere. Storms will follow and lives are endangered."

Not only are lives and property imperiled, but governments will be disturbed. According to the astrologer the stars point to serious trouble in the United States Congress and the nation is to have fresh trouble of threatening nature in the Philippines.

"There is sure to be an outbreak of the natives near Manila and the nation will have trouble," said Mr. Key. "The signs of the stars indicate this very clearly. I think it will be only a short time before there is an alarming outbreak there and the government would better keep a good lookout on the condition existing."

DON'T START WRONG

Don't start the summer with a lingering cough or cold. We all know what a "summer cold" is. It's the hardest kind to cure. Often it "hangs on" through the entire season. Take it in hand right now. A few doses of One Minute Cough Cure will set you right. Sure cure for coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. Absolutely safe. Acts at once. Children like it. "One Minute Cough Cure is the best cough medicine I ever used," says J. H. Bowles, Groverton, N. H. I never found anything else that acted so safely and quickly." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

AFLOAT IN A BOAT FOR NEAR A WEEK

Toronto, Ont., May 29.—Harry Stewart, Bert Stewart, George Johnson and Eddie McBride, young boys from Port Credit, were picked up yesterday on Lake Ontario by the steamer Chicora. They had been afloat in a small boat since Monday of last week.

When the Chicora first sighted the boat it was thought to be empty, but with the glass it was seen that the boys were huddled in the bottom unconscious. A heavy sea was running, and it was with difficulty a boat was lowered from the steamer and the drifting boat with the half-frozen boys was taken on board. They were brought to Toronto by the Chicora last night. It is believed they will recover.

SCROFULA is a bad thing to inherit or acquire, but there is this about it—Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cures even the worst cases.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

KANSAS FARMERS AND MILLERS TO COMBINE

Walter Vrooman, of the Western co-operative movement, has closed contracts for the purchase of six of the largest wheat elevators in the Kansas wheat belt and two of the largest flouring mills. The price paid is said to have been $750,000, and Mr. Vrooman, who has left for New York to complete the financial end of the plan, says the present purchase is but the beginning of a movement to center the farmers of Kansas in a co-operative branch of the Vrooman Co-operative Company.

The concern will be known as the Wheat and flour Western Co-operative Company. The farmers are to be taken into the scheme upon the payment of $100 each, for which they are to receive the market value for their wheat sold to the company, and, in addition, will receive one-half of the profit derived the other half going to co-operative stores through which the wheat and flour will be handled.

"The plan," said Mr. Vrooman, "is to eliminate wheat speculators and the middlemen. The farmers are in earnest sympathy with the movement. It is the only way to head off the talked of flour trust that is forming in New York."

It is intended to ship to Great Britain to be sold among the co-operative members there, the surplus product not disposed of in Kansas and Missouri.

TRAVELING IS DANGEROUS.

Constant motion jars the kidneys which are kept in place in the body by delicate attachments. This is the reason that travelers, trainmen, street car men, teamsters and all who drive very much suffer from kidney disease in some form. Foley's Kidney Cure strengthens the kidneys and cures all forms of kidney and bladder disease. Geo. H. Haugan, locomotive engineer, Lima, O., writes, "Constant vibration of the engine caused me a great deal of trouble with my kidneys, and I got no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Cure." Sold by T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

CATERPILLARS ABOUT.

The caterpillars, which wrought such great destruction to trees of all kinds last year, have already commenced their work this year, and if not checked the ruin wrought will far surpass that of last year. The only way to save the trees is to check the caterpillars in time, and that can only be done by burning them off whenever possible. It must, however, be done in time. It is too late when once the caterpillars have spun their cocoons all over the tree and choked out its life. Get a long pole, tie a petroleum soaked rag around it, set it on fire and sizzle the caterpillars.

Another plan is to use machine oil in place of petroleum and stir the rag soaked with oil around the nest. This plan seems to meet with good results. Still another scheme is to fasten a can of kerosene at the end of a long, slender pole and by a spray attachment spray the trees thoroughly with the kerosene. In this way a whole orchard of fruit can be saved at very little expense or time or labor.

NECK BROKEN, BUT ENJOYS A SMOKE

Walter Duryea, who broke his neck while diving at Glen Cove, L. I., four years ago, and who is now living at the Hotel Margaret, Brooklyn, has astonished his friends by smoking a cigar. He is paralyzed from the armpits down, but says that he thinks he is improving. "I believe I am going to get well, now," said Mr. Duryea. "I can talk and eat without difficulty, move my head easily, and I either imagine or actually feel some suggestion of sensation in my body. If it can be done I hope before I die to take another swim at Glen Cove."

LIQUOR LICENSE CASES.

A score of indictments have been found in Washington county against liquor dealers, mostly for selling without license. The indictments were the result of efforts on the part of H. McK. Zeller, secretary for a temperance organization. Before the term of court began he went over the saloonkeepers petitions for licenses. The petitions must be signed by 12 respectable property-owners living within the district. In many cases the signers were not freeholders, and others did not reside in the district in which the saloon was located. In all these cases, even where they were 11 lawful signers, indictments were brought for selling without license.

The car had to be repaired by jackscrews to remove the body.

An Invention By Dr. Zimmerman.

Dr. John Zimmerman, of Frederick, has invented an electric carriage for conveying mail. The carriage, which is cigar shaped, is to run through the air suspended from a wire and will travel at great speed. At stations on the route, Dr. Zimmerman states, the carriage will be stopped by automatically switching off on a non-conductive wire. Some minor details of the invention are yet to be perfected, but Dr. Zimmerman has had a drawing of the carriage made and is negotiating for the construction of a model. When the latter is completed he will apply for a patent.

Gertrude Snyder, aged about 20 years, swallowed a bottle of laudanum Wednesday night of last week as she was walking along the street in Cumberland. In a few minutes she was overcome, and was saved by heroic methods at the office of Justice Humbird. She was later taken to the Western Maryland Hospital, and is now out of danger. She said she was walking with Frank Wade, when they were followed by two men, one of whom threatened to arrest her, and in her fright she swallowed the laudanum. Her companion was taken into custody, but released. It is said her home is on Mapleside.

LAUDANUM AND CLOTHING.

The local authorities are investigating a find in a strip of woods in the upper part of Stearn's precinct Harford county, by a colored boy named Williams of a lot of women's clothing, including a black alpaca skirt and waist, calico skirt, gray woolen undershirt, two shirtwaists, a complete suit of underclothing, a pair of shoes, a pair of black cotton gloves and a pink fascinator. A bottle partly filled with laudanum was near the clothing, and bore a label of a firm of Philadelphia druggists. State's Attorney James W. McNabb has made an investigation, and reports that there is no clue as to the ownership of the articles.

THE SEVENTEEN-YEAR LOCUST.

State Entomologist, A. L. Quaintance, College Park, Md., has information on the occurrence of the present brood of the Periodical Cicada in the various parts of the State. This is one of the largest of all broods of this insect, and its distribution, date of appearance, and the extent of injury inflicted should be determined as accurately as possible. From this data it will be possible to indicate quite accurately their probable occurrence and injury, in the future. If the cicada is heard or seen in your neighborhood, write Prof. Quaintance to that effect, giving as much other data in reference to their occurrence as you may be able to determine.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Mr. Frank D. Sanford fell from a scaffold at the First National Bank in West-minster Monday morning to the pavement 30 feet below and was fatally injured. He suffered a compound fracture of the right elbow and concussion of the brain. He was a painter and had just gone out on the scaffold when it slipped, throwing him to the ground. Grant Lippy, his assistant, was on the scaffold at the same time. He grasped the rain spouting and climbed upon the roof, where he remained until a long ladder could be brought to his assistance. Mr. Sanford served in the Civil War as a soldier of the Second Maryland Regiment. He fought at Antietam, Fredericksburg and other important battles.

MURDER TRIAL.

Caroline Brown, colored, aged 70 years, who is alleged to have murdered Annie Booze, 10 years old, near Waldorf, in Charles county, on the night of March 13 last, was tried before Judge Briscoe, Crane and Merrick in La Plata on Thursday of last week. State's Attorney L. A. Wilmer conducted the prosecution. James F. Matthews and Adrian Posey were counsel for the defendant. After the examination of the witnesses, which lasted two hours, the case was submitted to the court without being argued by either side. The testimony as to the most brutal treatment of the girl by the woman was produced. The evidence showed that the girl was taken upstairs after the others were asleep, a rope tied around her neck, while her hands were tied behind her, and then beaten until unconscious. Two pieces of rope, a broomstick, a large bunch of switches and a piece of tongs were produced in court. There were several scars and contusion about the skull and the wrists and neck of the girl. The verdict of the court was not announced.

YOUNG LADY PINNED DOWN.

Miss Mary Rouse, 22 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rouse, 314 South Smallwood street, Baltimore, was hastening along Wilkens avenue during the storm Sunday, and when near Bentall street a large tree, the trunk of which was equal in circumference to a flour barrel, was uprooted by the wind and fell so that it branched itself to the ground. The violence of the blow, together with the shock, rendered Miss Rouse insensible.

Some men, passing at the time, witnessed the accident and rushed to her aid. With difficulty they dragged her from her perilous position and removed her to the home of Mr. Geo. Snyder, 2219 Christian street, Baltimore, where Dr. Theodore Heldrick attended her. While painfully bruised about the shoulders and body, it was found that she was not seriously injured, and after being resuscitated was removed to her home.

M LINWOOD LOWREY DROWNED.

Mr. M. Linwood Lowrey, a saloon keeper of Havre de Grace, Md., was accidentally drowned Wednesday morning by falling overboard from a fishing scow. Mr. Lowrey left Havre de Grace Tuesday with Captain Wilson, who has been running fish for the gillers this spring, and while coming up the bay Wednesday morning had an epileptic attack and fell over the side. The small boat was lowered, but before it could reach him he sank and did not come to the surface again. Mr. Wilson hurried to Havre de Grace and notified the man's family and returned immediately to recover the body. Mr. Lowrey leaves a widow and two children, one of whom is a student at Delaware College at Newark, and the other resides in Chester, Pa.

Whooping Cough.

A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—JESSIE PINKEY, HALL, Springville, Ala. This Remedy is for sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., Druggists.

FIRE IN CUMBERLAND.

Fire originating in Charles S. Wickard's grocery on North Center street, Cumberland, gained such headway in a short time owing to lack of wind that the building, a three story brick structure, was destroyed. The upper floors were occupied by Franklin T. Kelly as a boarding house. Mr. Kelly's family and the boarders had barely time to escape and could save only the clothing they wore and two trunks belonging to Miss Grace Kelly. Miss Kelly and Miss May Gilchrist had as their guests Misses Allie Gilchrist and Lena Wolf, of Bedford, Pa. The young ladies occupied the room on the rear of the second floor and were awakened by the flames bursting through the window. They were almost suffocated before they could escape. The following who were boarders lost everything: Clarence Fletcher, John J. Derr, Harry Hendrickson, Frank Bartley, John Nave, Frank Young, Gerald Zembower, and J. C. Dye.

The damaged condition of the safe in Wickard's store indicates that it might have been tampered with and the explosives used may have set the building on fire, as an oil tank was near the safe. Mr. Wickard was in his store at 11 o'clock Sunday night. In the afternoon he saw two men sneaking up behind his store. They had a sack and asked to be sold some tobacco and upon Mr. Wickard's refusal they were abusive. The combination and hinges were knocked off the safe and a hole was found near the combination. The building is insured for $4,800.

Mr. Kelly's loss is over $2,000. He had just placed in a new $400 piano. His insurance is $700. The properties belong to the estate of the late Daniel Long and the loss is placed at $7,000.

Mr. Wickard's loss on stock is $2,000, with $1,200 insurance.

SHOOTING CASE.

Raffi De Stefano, who shot Antonio Bonivento on Christmas Day at Sykesville, was tried before the Carroll County Court Wednesday and found guilty of assault with attempt to kill. Antonio Bonivento and his brother, Francisco, were employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. Antonio was wounded by De Stefano and Francisco was wounded by Reddo, who escaped.

Antonio testified that he offered De Stefano $30, which he had in his pocket to let him go, but he refused, saying, "I am going to kill you." Antonio turned to run and was shot in the back. Francisco, his brother, was shot in the stomach by Reddo. The brothers were taken to the University Hospital, Baltimore, and after their recovery, Francisco, who was unable to give bail for his appearance as a witness, was committed to jail. He testified that while in jail De Stefano had attempted to bribe him and had offered him $100 not to testify against him. De Stefano, while on the witness stand, said that he had been offered $100 by his brother in law to kill the Bonivento brothers, but who his brother in law is could not be ascertained. Neither he, Francisco, nor the accused could speak English, and the testimony was taken through an interpreter.

The Eclectic Magazine for June opens with an important article by Sidney Lee on "Shakespeare in Local Tradition," which, while it is not directly related to the latest phases of the Shakespeare Bacon controversy, has an indirect bearing upon the subject, through its interesting grouping of early personal traditions of the great dramatist. Other articles of striking literary interest are "Fletcher and his Critics," reprinted from the Quarterly Review, and some agreeable reflections "On Religious Novels" by Miss Findlater. In the same category belongs also a paper on "Alliteration's Artful Aid," there is a fresh and timely article by Michael MacDonogh on "The King: His Pre-rogatives and Disabilities," Louise Creighton contributes some Reminiscences of J. R. Green; under the title "The Romance of a Scots Family" Hugh Glasse tells, in his graphic way, the story of the colonizing adventures of George Ross; and there is another installment of the clever "Londoner's Log-Book" Arthur Christopher Benson, Owen Seaman and A. D. Godley are among the poets represented in this number. The Living Age Company, publishers.

A LIVELY TIME.

During the last ten days Gettysburg has been quite lively. On Saturday, the 17th inst., the National Geographical Society numbering 400 spent the day here, some day and night, and on excursion arrived and remained over Sunday; Wednesday morning an excursion train of eleven cars bearing German Baptists from Harrisburg arrived here, and during the remainder of the week all the trains east on the Reading road brought numerous visitors. On Thursday the scholars and instructors of Notre Dame Female College, of Maryland, visited the battlefield. The party numbered 67 and were conveyed over the field by Holtzworth Bros., with Capt. Minnigh as guide. They took dinner at the Eagle.

Monday Pawnee Bill's show brought a large crowd to town, the streets being crowded with men, women and children. —Gettysburg Compiler.

TWO PERSONS KILLED.

Mr. Thomas Booker and Mrs. Ella Summers, both of Winchester, Queen Anne's county, were killed late Monday afternoon by an extra freight train at Queen Anne Station, on the Queen Anne's railroad. They were walking across the railroad bridge which spans the Tuckahoe river at that point. A boy and a girl were with them. They were run over and crushed to death instantly. The children jumped off the bridge into the marshy shallow and saved their lives. The boy and girl were rescued and cared for by Engineer Scott and Conductor Gines. The remains of Mr. Booker and Mrs. Summers were taken in charge for an inquest. Mrs. Ella Summers and Thomas Booker were employed as berry-pickers by William A. Wilson, who lives near Ridgely, in Caroline county.

ONE OF NATURE'S LAWS.

Action and Reaction That Produce a Fit of the Blues.

Probably in two cases out of three the blues are caused by one's physical state. If a man has overworked or has been under any unusual strain or excitement or has worried a great deal or has been for a while in a state of joy and elation—all of which require an expenditure of energy—he is very likely to have the blues and to be in low spirits in a way of reaction.

The body is a machine which can do a certain amount of work and no more. If it does a great deal today, it must for tomorrow and thereby make up for today's extravagance. If a man takes one glass of whisky, the slight stimulus that he feels will be followed, as night follows day, by an exactly equivalent sinking of the spirits. If he has been thoroughly and gaily drunk, his recovery will be attended by corresponding melancholia and misery.

When a man has the blues, he ought to consider that he is merely an exponent of one of nature's laws and that he has no right to harass others with complaints. Some men are not pleased unless they communicate their unpleasant moods to all about them. They become sulky and cross with their wives and children, and they throw a gloom over their household. Such conduct is very selfish.

A man in the blues ought to take some pills and a good long walk all alone or with some companion of steadfast cheerfulness. Lucky it is for him if he has a wife who will not be downcast and who can restore him to cheerfulness without spoiling him.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Funny Signs of the Times.

Some persons find as much fun in reading signboards as others do in reading the comic papers. There are a few oddities reported by observing travelers, the first of which evidently was displayed in front of a butcher's shop:

"I kill myself every Tuesday and Friday."

"Take note when this board is out of site the river is dangerous."

"Widow with large family wants washing by the week."

"Ladies and gents sold and healed."

"This is the old shop just come from above."

"A large stock of ladies' hose, pure cashmere, to be cleared 25 cents the pair. They won't last long at this price."

"Abominable belts made to order."

"Closed for the day owing to funeral of proprietor's wife and who will carry on as usual tomorrow morning."—New York Press.

Saved in Installments.

A couple of Scottish ferrymen rowing a somewhat dilapidated Englishman out to a steamer at one of the Clyde water-ways places saw to their consternation the man tumble over the gunwale of the boat into the water.

The foremost ferryman dropped his oar and made a grab at the man as he rose to the surface, catching him by the wig, which came away in his hand.

Throwing this into the boat impatiently, he made a second grab, catching the collar of his shirt, when the collar and front came away in his hands.

Casting these away from him in great disgust, he cried, "Man, don't come here quick and help's to save a muckle o' this man as ye can, for he's comin' awa' in bits!"

Chinese Women Menders.

In nearly every city in China women are to be found sitting in the streets busily mending their trade as menders of clothing. Their knowledge of needlecraft is generally limited to what is called "running," and therefore they are not much patronized by English or American travelers. They are, however, never without patrons among Chinese tradesmen, who are often natives of other districts and have no one else in the city to mend a rent for them, their wives and children being left at home. For this class of customers the skill of the itinerant sewing woman is sufficient, and to them it is a great convenience to have the necessary repairs rapidly made while they stand by and wait.

Knocked into a Coked Hat.

The expression "knocked into a coked hat" is familiar to every one, but perhaps its origin is not so generally known. Coked hats was a variety of the game of bowls in which only three pins were used, set up at the angles of a triangle. When, in bowling tenpins, all were knocked down except the three at the corners, the set was said to be "knocked into a coked hat," whence the popular expression for depriving anything of its main body, character or purpose.

Praise of Work Well Done.

Perhaps there is nothing else so productive of cheerful and helpful service as the expression of approval or praise of work well done, and yet there is nothing so grudgingly, so meagerly given by employers. Many of them seem to think that commendation is demoralizing and that the voicing of appreciation will lead to listlessness and the withdrawal of energy and interest. This evinces but a poor knowledge of human nature, which is always hungering for approbation. But how mistaken such views are is shown by the loyal and unstinted service given to those large-minded men who treat their employees as members of a family committed to their care.—Success.

Her Consolation.

At a confirmation at Strassburg the bishop asked of a pretty sourette the usual question of the Heidelberg catechism:

"What is your only consolation in life and death?"

The neophyte blushed and hesitated. The first question was repeated, and then she stammered out:

"The young shoemaker in the next street."—London Tit-Bits.

FARM-FIELD AND GARDEN

CORN AND SOY BEANS.

A Desirable Forage Crop For Late Summer-Suitable Varieties.

A mixture of corn and soy beans is recommended by the Hatch station of Massachusetts as a most desirable fodder crop for the last ten days of August and the first two or three weeks in September. A medium early corn is preferred. Some of the sweet varieties are excellent. The Canada or Long-fellow is also desirable. The medium green soy bean is the most suitable variety. This Japanese bean is now so well known that a description is hardly necessary. The seed can be purchased of all large dealers. It grows three to three and one-half feet high, needs no support and is thickly studded with leaves.

For several years we have sown the corn with a corn planter in rows three and one-half feet apart and then planted the beans with a hand corn planter in the same rows with the corn, one lot of beans being placed every few inches. It is considered preferable, however, to mix the corn and beans together in the proportion of about ten quarts of corn to seven quarts of beans.

CORN AND SOY BEANS.

This mixture can be planted with planter so regulated that the kernels will be about two inches apart in the row. It will, of course, be impossible to maintain this regularity, but it will be sufficient for the purpose. The crop is to be cultivated and harvested in the same manner as corn.

The first seeding should be made May 15 and a second June 5. One-half acre is ample for ten cows two weeks. The first sowing will be ready to cut about Aug. 20 and the second the first week in September. When cutting begins, the corn will have many well formed ears, and the beans will have begun to form seed. The yield to the acre will be in the vicinity of twelve tons, equal to two and three-quarters of dry matter containing 3,000 pounds of actual digestible material. If corn is grown extensively upon the farm, one planting of corn and beans may be sufficient, the farmer preferring to feed from his field corn after the first week in September. Fodder corn without the beans also makes an excellent green food.

Varieties of Cowpeas For the North.

As to the varieties of cowpeas best for the north The Rural New Yorker says: It depends on what you want them for. If for seed, the early varieties, like Early Black, New Era and Mount Olive, should be used. These will usually produce seed as far north as central New York, but we doubt whether seed growing will pay. The chief value of the crop to the northern farmer will be in the vine, to be used as pasture or for plowing under. For these purposes we advise the later varieties, such as Whippoorwill, Wonderful, Clay and Unknown. These will make large vines, but are not likely to mature seeds, although we have grown seeds of all except Unknown in northern New Jersey. We think it will pay the northern farmer to buy seed of these later varieties from the south rather than to try to grow seed of the earlier varieties on his own farm. The cowpea looks much like a bean, though it is unlike any true bean in cultivation except that it is very tender and must not be planted until the ground is warm enough for corn.

Dry Matter and Protein in Alfalfa.

It is claimed that the yield of dry matter per acre in alfalfa far exceeds that of any of the other crops, while the yield of protein, with the exception of red clover, is more than five times that of any other crop included, besides possessing the further advantage that it requires less labor to produce it, the expense after the first year being limited to cost of manures and harvesting; also that a ton of alfalfa hay, when carefully handled, contains more dry matter and protein than red clover, timothy or oat and pea hay, although that in the red clover hay is nearly equal.

Eastern Versus Western Muskmelons.

The western muskmelons are well graded and usually uniform in quality. These points of excellence have greatly assisted their popularity. If melons approaching in flavor those of the Arkansas valley can be provided in the east without irrigation, surely proximity to market should so influence freight rates as to place the home grower on even footing with the western producer. Especially is nearness to market an important factor in the case of a tender fleshed, delicate flavored fruit like the muskmelon.

"Well, he started in as a bootblack, you know."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A RIVER OF LAND.

Astonishing Amount of Earth That Flows Down the Mississippi.

"The capacity of the Mississippi for filling up canals and old channels is something awful," says John Swain in Albion's. "Government engineers have found that the amount of solid matter annually carried past Vicksburg in suspension is enough to make a block of earth 300 feet high and a mile square. Fifty feet off the top of this spread around on the valley between here and the sea, and the rest goes out into the Gulf of Mexico to build up more land."

"Think what that means. Instead of a river of water this is a river of land. It would make a solid stream of earth five feet deep and nine feet wide, flowing night and day as fast as a man can walk, four miles an hour, all sliding down off the northern half of the country toward the sea. Year in, year out, that endless line of earth goes on. It would take a force of more than 50,000 men working in eight hour shifts to throw the dirt into the stream, supposing the river bed were rigid and an inexhaustible supply of dirt on the bank. It would make 25,000,000 wagon loads every year."

"But here—what are the use of such figures? Below Vicksburg—and above it, too, to an extent—we have the earth itself to speak for it. Except for the occasional fragments of the line of bluffs along the eastern edge below here which bob up at Fort Adams, at Natchez, at Grand Gulf, at Baton Rouge, at Port Hudson, there is nothing about the level of the high water river except the artificial levees. These are in places miles back, great earthen banks, sometimes thirty feet high or more, sodded and free from trees, which protect the wonderfully fertile region behind them."

"And all this level country which the river overflows and fertilizes is constantly increased by this river of dirt which the Mississippi brings down from the inner region, gathered all the way from the Rockies to the Alleghenies. Sometimes the river starts to eat away this land that it has made. In a single summer, if it will, it eats away half a mile of it out of some bend. It cuts it out sometimes an acre at a bite and takes with it forests, houses, levees and all else."

"The river is not a uniformly moving stream. One side or the middle moves swiftly; the other parts are still or sluggish. Sometimes even these run up stream. The swift part is the channel current and runs in the deepest water. It makes crossings whenever driven off shore by a promontory. These crossings are dumping places for the surplus earth the river has picked up in the bend it is eating."

One of Field's Crazy Jokes.

In his biography of Eugene Field Slason Thompson says that shortly after the humorist's arrival in Chicago it occurred to him one bleak day in December that it was time the people knew there was a stranger in town.

So he arrayed himself in a long linen duster, buttoned up from knees to collar, put an old straw hat on his head, and, taking a shabby book under his arm and a pair of fan in his hand, he marched all the way down Clark street, past the city hall, to the office. Every where along the route he was greeted with jeers or pitying words, as his appearance excited the mirth or commiseration of the passersby.

When he reached the entrance to The Daily News office, he was followed by a motley crowd of noisy urchins, whom he dismissed with a grimace and the cabalistic gesture with which Nicholas Koonan perplexed and repulsed Antony van Corlear from the battlement of the fortress on Rensselaer street. Then, closing the door in their astonished faces, he mounted the two flights of stairs to the editorial rooms, where he recounted, with the glee of the boy he was in such things, the success of his joke.

George Washington's Sobriquets.

Washington was called by many sobriquets. He was first of all "Father of His Country." "Providence left him children that his country might call him father," Stourmeur calls him "The Patriotic Child." Justice Marshall, the "American Fabius." Lord Byron the "American Napoleon." For having a new world on his shoulders he was called the "Atlas of America." The English soldiery called him by the sarcastic nickname of "Lovely Georgius." Red Jacket, the Seneca Indian chief, called him the "Flower of the Forest." The Italian poet Vittorio Alfieri called him "Deliverer of America." In The Gazette of the United States he was called the "Savior of His Country." His bitter opponents sarcastically called him the "Stepfather of His Country" during his presidency.

Dangers of Procrastination.

Landlady—I s'pose you noticed that long whiskered old gentleman who sat opposite you at dinner today? That is Professor Dribbles, and you can have his room, as he is going west on a scientific exploration—strange thing you ever heard.

New Boarder—What is?

Landlady—The object of his tour. He has been told that a prehistoric cave has been discovered out west, and in it set ten skeletons around a petrified table.

New Boarder—Well, well! Why didn't the fools change their boarding house sooner?

Ten in the Time of Buddha.

At the time of Buddha China was enjoying a large foreign commerce in tea. It was carried by her junk to Japan, Korea, Tonquin, Annam, Cochinchina, Burma, Siam, India, Ceylon, Persia and Arabia. According to one record, it was sent to a great black river country west of Arabia, from which it was separated by a long and very torrid sea, which must have been Egypt. It was carried by caravans to Manchuria, Mongolia, Kuldja, Tartary, Tibet, Persia and northern India.

A Boy's Definition of Peace.

"Can you tell me the meaning of the word peace?"

"I asked Miss Gray of a little boy who had just recited a patriotic poem in which the word occurred."

"Peace means when you ain't got no children," answered the child.

"How is that?" asked Miss Gray.

"When my mother has washed and dressed her six children for school in the morning, she says, 'Now I'll have peace.'"—Chicago Tribune.

A BANANA TREE.

The Fruit Grows Small End Up and Is Cut While Unripe.

Contrary to popular belief, bananas do not grow on the tree as they hang in the grocery, but with the small end of the fruit pointing upward to all appearances upside down.

There is probably no other fruit of such universal consumption about which so little is known to the average person as the banana. Something like 100,000,000 bunches are annually eaten in this country alone, but scarcely one man in a thousand is connected with the business knows what a banana tree looks like.

The fruit is never allowed to ripen on the tree, but is cut half or three-quarters "full"—that is, half to three-quarters developed—according to the distance it is to be shipped, and comes to maturity by feeding from the stalk, which contains a large amount of sap. Bananas cut in this way attain practically the same size as if allowed to remain on the tree, in which case each bunch becomes too much of a burden for its support and either falls or breaks the tree and ripens on the ground.

After the cutting the plantation is "cleaned," which merely consists of severing the standing trunks within a few feet of the ground, and a new tree comes forth from the remains of its predecessor, so that the fruit in all stages of growth is to be found at the same time and the yield is continuous.

An Anecdote of Wordsworth.

A contributor to the London Spectator thus writes to that journal:

Your interesting article on "Fastness and Isolation" recalls to my mind Wordsworth's own interpretation of the lines—

These obstinate questionings
Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings;

as reported to me by the late Professor Bonamy Price. One day as he was walking with the poet in the hills he asked him what he meant precisely by the words "fallings from us, vanishings." Wordsworth's answer was to this effect: "Sometimes I find myself in a mood in which the whole material universe seems to fall away. The sense of outward things is lost. Nothing remains but an immaterial self, detached from all physical conditions. In order to get back into the known world of consciousness I have to clutch at something—so." Here he grasped the bar of the gate on which they were leaning at the moment. I was much struck by the story at the time and made a note of it.

A Matter of Ears.

"You should get your ears lopped," O'Brien said a "smart" tourist to an Irish peasant whom he was quizzing, and taking a shabby book under his arm and a pair of fan in his hand, he marched all the way down Clark street, past the city hall, to the office. Every where along the route he was greeted with jeers or pitying words, as his appearance excited the mirth or commiseration of the passersby.
