UNLUCKY OPAL RING.

In a cell at the Central Police Station is a well-dressed, gentlemanly young fellow who has confessed to a series of thefts in this city within the past three months. His name is Charles Reynolds, alias Charles Clark, alias Charles Reaber, and his story is a strange one.

In Reynolds the police think they have the man who has been committing a series of bold thefts here recently. Numerous reports of house robberies have been made where some member of the family has met on the stairway or in the hall a well-dressed young man who made some civil excuse of having mistaken the number and politely bowing himself out, not empty handed. Reynolds is thought to be the man.

Yesterday afternoon Reynolds was discovered by Detectives McMillan and Stanton on Ontario street. Under his arm was a package, and, in spite of his neat dress and quiet manner, the suspicions of the officers were aroused. Following him, they saw him enter a pawnshop on Ontario street, where he tried to dispose of a gold watch. He was taken into custody and brought to the Central Station, where he was searched.

The search was a revelation. In the package was a roll of several yards of fine silk. From the man's pockets came two gold watches, a gold locket, several fine handkerchiefs, a tortoise shell comb, a pair of pearl-mounted opera glasses and several packages of sachet powder. Two valuable scarf pins were found upon his clothing, and an opal and a ruby ring were removed from his fingers. Three skeleton keys appeared among the plunder.

"The opal turned your luck," said Detective Stanton.

"I admit it," said Reynolds. "I'm undone this time."

The story of his life as told by Reynolds to the police last night, is a strange one. He is 19 years of age, handsome and gentlemanly. There is nothing of the common thief in his appearance. When he was an infant he was stolen away from his home, he says, before the memory of home and parents became fixed in his mind. Whether they are living or dead or whether he has kin in the world, he does not know. His first recollection is of a cool, shady plantation in Kentucky, and of a white-haired negro and his wife, who were proud of their little changeling, and brought him up tenderly. They sent him to school and gave him the best opportunities for education in their power, but they never told him the secret of his birth.

At last the old man, whose name was Myers died. As he felt his strength ebbing away and knew that the end was at hand, he called Reynolds to his bedside and gave him an opal ring. This ring, Reynolds declares, was the one found upon his finger by the detectives.

After the death of the old man the boy left the pleasant Southern plantation and drifted to Louisville. There fate seemed to turn against him. For sometime he secured employment about the hotels of the city. It was there, he says, that he stole the opal ring, found in his possession yesterday. From Louisville he came to Cincinnati, where he picked up a precarious living selling papers and doing such things as came to hand. He admits stealing several things there.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WATER CURE FOR CHRONIC CONSTIPATION.

Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of out door exercise—walk, ride, drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of any medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

A SMART BOY.

How He Beat A Dishonest Grocer At His Own Game.

There was once a provision dealer who was minding his shop while his assistant was away at dinner. A nice-looking boy came in with a basket on his head and said: "I saw a boy snatch up this ere basket from the door and run away, but I ran after him and made him give it up. Here it is." "My lad, you are an honest boy." "Yes, sir." "And you look like a good boy." "Yes, sir." "And good boys should be encouraged. In a box in the back room there are eight dozen eggs; you may take them home to your mother and keep the basket.

The shopkeeper had been saving those eggs, one at a time for weeks and months to reward some one. In rewarding a good boy he also got eight dozen bad eggs carried out of the neighborhood free of cost, and he chuckled a little chuckle as he walked home to dinner.

The morning after, as he returned, wearing a very complacent smile, in addition to his other clothes, his eyes caught a basket of eight dozen clean, fresh-looking eggs. "Been buying eggs?" he added to the shopman. "They look nice." "Yes," the shopman replied. "I got them from a farmer's boy." "A lame boy, with a blue cap?" said the proprietor. "Yes," answered his assistant. "Two teeth out?" "Yes," said the man.

The shopkeeper sat down and examined the eggs. The shells had been washed clean, but they were the same eggs the boy had carried home to his mother the day before, and now his shopman had bought them for cash.—Baltimore Sun.

ARE YOU TICKLISH?

"Why is it that one person is ticklish and another isn't?" asked a man who is fond of the unusual thing. "I have often wondered why men were differently constituted in this way and have never seen any satisfactory answer up to this time. Some men cannot stand to be touched on the knees. They 'steal sugar,' according to the nursery legend, and will simply have a fit if you should scrape your fingers over their knees. The bottom of the foot or the palm of the hand is a tender place with other people. On the other hand, there are men that are not at all ticklish. I have seen tests made with straws about the ears and without any sort of disturbance. The subjects, too, were reasonably sensitive. I cannot say that they were not thinskinned to some extent, for I know many of them were. But they were not ticklish. As a rule the man whose skin is thin is the ticklish man, but there are the usual exceptions to this rule. I suppose it is a matter involving the nervous constitution, and if persons are unusually ticklish I guess it is due to the fact that the sense of touch is more keenly developed at the particular parts of the body which are peculiarly sensitive. I can account for the vast difference in persons in this respect in no other way. It is developed sense of touch."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Yes, says one, I feel as old as Methuselah. Think of it, a youth with no energy or enthusiasm! But misery always has plenty of company, for hundreds—yes tens of thousands—old and young, from April to September are so tired that they can scarcely get out of bed in the morning. Overwork? True with some but not in your case. A torpid liver makes you sluggish, half work, half eat, and half sleep. You don't need a "week off" half so much as you need a bottle of VICTOR LIVER SYRUP, the hundred year famed cathartic and tonic that guarantees cure for all Liver and Blood Diseases and Kindred Ailments as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Headache, Constipation, Rheumatism, Malaria, Jaundice, Female Troubles, etc.

MILLIONS FOR RURAL ROUTES.

Postoffice Department Will Ask For $12,000,000.

Postmaster-General Payne will ask Congress at the coming session to appropriate $12,000,000 for rural free delivery.

For the fiscal year 1901 the sum of $1,750,000 was made available for the purpose. For the fiscal year 1902 those figures were more than doubled. The postal officials have available for the present year $7,500,000. This will not cover the expenses of the services, as from present indications there will be a deficit of about $300,000.

On July 1, 1903, 14,000 rural routes will be in operation in the United States. It is estimated that it will take $9,000,000 to maintain the service next year. In addition to this funds will be necessary to make the extensions demanded, and for this purpose $3,000,000 additional will be asked by Postmaster-General Payne, making the total $12,000,000. On July 1, last there were nearly 9,500 routes in operation; on September 15 the number had increased to 10,678, and as stated above the total by the end of the fiscal year will reach at least 14,000.

These figures have excited alarm among those who believe that rural free delivery will eventually become so ponderous as to swamp the service. Those who were immediately in charge of it view the future with complacency. "Rural free delivery appropriations are higher now than ever," said an official today, "and they will continue to grow for some time to come. Those who claim that rural free delivery has grown to rapidly should consider in connection with the large appropriations of this service that the Postoffice Department will this year come very near a solvent showing; in fact, the deficit will be smaller than it has been for years. It is true that this result is due in large part to the changed classification of second class mail matter. In time rural free delivery will be put on such a basis, however, that it will come as near being a paying investment as any other branch of the service. It supersedes fourth class offices, star routes and mail messenger service, and it our belief that eventually it will come so near paying that no more complaints will be heard."

The popularity of ping pong is bringing forward many experts at the game, and in one city in the East there is a child barely two years old that shows a marvelous fondness for it. On being questioned as to the manner in which the child's talents were developed, the proud father explained:

"Yes, Willie is a good ping pong player but he ought to be. Why, he cut his teeth on a ping pong ball, and we always spanked him with a racket."—What to Eat.

IT WORRIED HIM.

The man was becoming nervous. "I fear," he said to his companion, "that we have got into a high-priced restaurant."

"What makes you think so?" "It takes so long to get an order."

Then, in truth, was the other worried, also, for well he knew that a long wait betokened a swell and costly place.—Chicago Post.

AN AUTHOR'S WORKSHOP.

The Place Where Bulwer-Lytton Could Write at Ease.

When Charles Mackay was visiting Lord Lytton at Knebworth, he was impressed, he says in his "Recollections," with the beauty of the library. He remarked to the novelist that in such a cheerful room among so many books any author could get through a vast amount of labor.

"I cannot write so well in the library," replied Lord Lytton, "as in another place. Take a stroll with me, and I will show you my favorite study."

They went for a considerable distance to the shore of an artificial lake in Knebworth park, and there stood a boathouse. A small boat was drawn up on one side of it, and on the other, near a small window, stood a chair and a common deal table, on which was a pewter inkstand.

Pulling open the drawer, Lord Lytton showed his guest a good supply of paper, pens and a blotting book. "I can write more freely here," he said, "than in the grand library. I will tell you how the habit grew. When I was a small boy, I was very ambitious to write and wrote an immense amount of trash. My mother thought that the occupation of so much time in writing would be injurious to my health and prohibited my writing in the library. "I then had recourse to my bedroom, but it was in due time banished from that and deprived of pen and ink. The more imperatively I was forbidden to write the more I indulged in the prohibited joy. I took refuge in the boathouse and wrote for hours with a lead pencil, using the seat of the boat for my writing table. So I learned to write here, and I can do better work here than anywhere else."—Youth's Companion.

Prospects For a Straggling Life.

A well dressed lad, the son of wealthy parents, thought it would be quite manly to earn a few coppers for himself by selling daily papers, says the Chicago Journal. He stopped a tattered newsboy in the street and said to him:

"Do you think I should be able to earn money as you do if I bought some papers and came to this corner to sell them?" "Why do you want to sell papers?" "I'm tired of being idle."

"Well," said the philosophic little newsboy, with a serene air, "if you think you can hold thirty-six papers in one hand, lick three or four boys bigger'n yerself with the other hand, while yer keeps two more off with yer feet and yells 'Evenin' paper' all the time?"

"No-o, I don't," replied the well dressed boy.

"Then yer are no good in the newsboy biz," replied the tattered philosopher. "Ye'd better git yer people to 'prentice yer to somethin' light."

Condition of Cane and Rice. In every important sugar cane producing state except Texas the average condition of sugar cane on Aug. 1 was considerably below that of a year ago, and also below the mean of the August averages for the past ten years. Texas reports a condition eighteen points above the ten year average, while all other states contributing to the cane sugar crop report conditions ranging from two to eight points below such average.

The condition of rice is below that of Aug. 1, 1901, and also below the mean of the August averages for the past eight years in every important rice producing state except Texas, in which state the condition on Aug. 1 was thirteen points higher than at the corresponding date last year, and agreed exactly with the mean of the August averages for the past eight years.—August Crop Reporter.

DOESN'T TRUST HORSES.

Part Maniac and Part Idiot Is What One Man Calls Them.

I have spent much of a long life in the observation of horses. I have reared them, broken them, trained them, ridden them, driven them in every form from the plow to four-in-hand. The result of these years of study is summed up in one sentence—I believe the horse to be part maniac and part idiot. Every horse at some time in his life develops into a homicidal maniac. I believe any man who trusts himself or his family to the power of a horse stronger than himself to be lacking in common sense and wholly devoid of ordinary prudence, writes a Kentuckian to Harper's Weekly. I have driven one commonplace horse every other day for six years over the same road and then had him go crazy and try to kill himself and me because a leaf fluttered down in front of him. I have known scores of horses, apparently trustworthy, apparently creatures of routine, go wild and insane over equally regular and recurring phenomena. No amount of observation can tell when the brute will break out. One mare took two generations of children to school over the same quiet road and then in her nineteenth year went crazy because a rooster crowed alongside the road. She killed two of the children. If any one can tell me of one good reason why man should trust a horse, I should be glad to know.

The Value of Singing.

From the medical standpoint singing is a most important exercise both by virtue of its influence on the emotions, on the respiratory movements and on the development of the lungs. Nothing better shows the beneficial effect of singing in developing the chest and warding off the lung diseases than the great pulmonary development and freedom from pulmonary disease among professional singers. Their general health, moreover, is exceptionally good, and this is probably in a large measure attributable to the mere exercise of the calling. It is especially useful in defective chest development and in chronic heart disease. Provided the patient can sing with comfort there is no condition in which singing is contraindicated unless it be a tendency to tuberculosis or aneurismal hemoptysis. It is scarcely necessary to say that the singer should be so clad as to allow absolute freedom of the chest movements, there should be no constriction of the neck or waist, the collar should be low and ample and the stays, if worn, simple and loose.

Mixed Metaphors.

A German lady in a town in Ventura county had a daughter who was her mother's pride. The mamma bears somewhat of a reputation as a Mrs. Malaprop and is also a prosperous merchant. On one occasion the daughter, who assists her mother in the store, was by dint of hard work among relatives and friends chosen as queen of a street carnival to be held in the town. Maternal pride ran riot in the elder woman's breast. To a friend she burst forth in this ecstatic strain: "Oh, mein Mollie! She was so beautiful as never was! Dere was no gerral so beautiful as mein Mollie! Und she was sooch a good cook—mein gerral, she was sooch a good cook! Und she was sooch a good tressmaker! Oh, dere was no gerral like mein Mollie! Und she was de best clerk vat I ever had in mein shozel! Und she was a good musicianer! Oh, mein Mollie was de greatest gerral vat ever vas! She was just a jack of all rabbits!"—Los Angeles Herald.

Rocky Autograph Album.

Probably the oddest and most precious autograph album that has ever existed lies in an almost unknown corner of western New Mexico.

More than two centuries before our Saxon forefathers penetrated the desert of the southwest the Spanish pioneers, wandering through those lonely wilds, found a rock so noble and so remarkable, even in a country of wonderful stone monuments, that they called it "El Morro" (The Castle).

Wishing to leave some record for future generations, they traced with the points of their swords their names upon its rough surface. These names are there, with dates of their inscription—in nearly every instance the early part of the seventeenth century.

Paper of the Ancients.

The interior bark of trees was formerly used to write upon, and its Latin name (liber, a bark) seems to indicate that its use was as ancient as the art of writing itself. As one respect the bark was superior to the leaf. It could be rolled into a volume while the leaf would crack if subjected to such a process.

BODY OF A DEFECTIVE FOUND

BREWTON, ALA., SEPT. 24.—The dead body of James W. Story, a detective, was found yesterday in a brush pile near the camps of the Alger-Sullivan Lumber Company 18 miles northwest of Plomation.

The discovery was made by a searching party, which had missed the detective since early Sunday evening, and feared that he had met with foul play.

For the past two or three weeks Story had been employed by Sheriff Saley and United States Marshal Ball to work up a case for illegal selling of liquor in the western portion of this county.

POWER FROM FALLS

Reports reach Washington to the effect that an English syndicate, represented by J. F. McLaughlin, of Toronto, Canada, is contemplating the utilization of the power from the falls of the Potomac river for industrial purposes, first in Washington, and later in Baltimore.

It is said one of the largest power plants in the world will be built and operated by turbine wheels and electrical energy will be supplied to a wide area. The plans which, it is reported, will be in active operation in about two years, are credited to Ernest Terah Hooley, the English promoter whose plunging several years ago led to complications. With him, besides Mr. McLaughlin, it is said, are associated J. Carlin Kelly, of Bradfordshire, England, and Gen. Russell Thayer, a well-known civil engineer and superintendent of Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

The first plant, it is said, will be erected near the first Potomac falls, five miles distant from Capitol Hill. In the course of one mile at that point the river falls sixty feet, which fall will furnish motive power for heavy dynamos. The report alleges the syndicate has acquired land on both sides of the river from tidewater to Great Falls.

The plan of development on involves a capital of $5,000,000, and work, it is said, is to begin within a month. More than 1,000 men will be employed at the beginning. It is expected that within two years 25,000 horse-power will be ready for use, while a still greater amount will be insured by the erection of other plants.

According to the report, lines will gradually be extended in all directions, reaching Baltimore in time.

A friend of the Crosby-Lieb syndicate, which has extensive plans for the development of Great Falls, said there is no connection between Mr. McLaughlin's scheme and theirs. He asserted the belief that the English syndicate will not be a serious competitor of the Crosby-Lieb syndicate.

Mr. McLaughlin and his friends have been in Washington on several occasions, but it is said there is much question as to their having obtained valid rights to any of the water powers of the river.—Sun

A PATRETIC STORY

HINTON, W. VA., SEPT. 18.—Filled with an overpowering desire to see his sick mother again before she died Edward H. Williams broke out of the county jail here Sunday night, and after successfully working his way over the mountain to her home, at Princeton, Mercer county, and bidding a pathetic farewell, he voluntarily surrendered to Sheriff Ewart. Last week Williams was convicted of killing his former friend, George Vandergriff, and he was soon to be taken to the penitentiary to serve his sentence. There were unfortunate circumstances connected with the tragedy and the young man's act in giving himself deliberately up after he visited his dying mother's bedside has aroused considerable sympathy, which is to assume the form of a petition to the Governor for a pardon.

JOSH WESTHAFFER, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralysis. It is for sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

THE BIGGEST TREE IN THE WORLD

Just outside the borders of the General Grant National Park, the home of California's tree aristocracy and barely within the boundaries of the United States forest reserve, there was discovered the other day the largest known tree in the world. While on a recent surveying expedition in the Sierra Nevada Mountains the attention of A. H. Koebig, a civil engineer of Los Angeles, was attracted to the great size of the tree, and he immediately sent word to Prof. John Muir, the scientist, explorer and writer, expressing a desire that Mr. Muir would visit and officially measure the new found giant.

At one foot above the ground the circumference is 108 feet; at four feet above the ground 98 feet; at six feet above the ground the girth is 93 feet. The massive fluted trunk, straight and strong as a granite pillar is covered with rice, cinnamon brown bark, almost two feet thick, and is free from limbs to a height of 175 feet, where it is estimated to be 11 feet in diameter.

Many years' agitation for the removal of the cobblestones, with which for generations the streets of Frederick have been paved, resulted last winter in the enactment by the legislature of a law requiring the city, upon the application of propertyowners owning a majority of front feet on any street, to have the street paved with modern material. Propertyowners on East Church street were the first to take advantage of this act, and a contract for paving two blocks of the street with vitrified brick was recently awarded to J. U. Fritchie, of Lancaster, Pa. Half the cost of the paving will be paid by the propertyowners and half by the city.

The Frederick County Grand Jury was discharged last Thursday, having made 72 presentments. In the report the jury says: We find it next to impossible to present persons for selling liquor on Sundays and to minors, as perjury in most cases is used to shield both the saloonkeepers and patrons. Rawlings, a young married man lately employed by the Cumberland Steel Company, attempted to commit suicide along the Queen City pavement in Cumberland early Tuesday morning by throwing himself on the railroad track in front of an approaching train. He was pulled off uninjured by W. D. Evans, but the cars grazed his body. Before this took place, at Hammersmith's lunch room Rawlings wept because he said he was out of work and had no money, while his child was sick at home. He threw his watch on the floor and wrote a note, which he handed to Sebastian Hammersmith to deliver to his wife, telling her good-by and that she would see him soon. Right afterward he jumped in front of the train. He was locked up by the police.

A LARGE SAWMILL PARTIALLY BURNED.

Fire Monday morning partially destroyed the large sawmill belonging to J. P. Bridges, located about two miles west of Hancock, together with over 10,000 feet of lumber. The fire started in a pile of sawdust near the engine-room, and is supposed to have been caused by sparks from the engine, in which a fire had been left burning. Henry Strine, who happened to be driving past the mill at the time, discovered the fire and gave the alarm. Neighbors quickly formed a bucket brigade and succeeded in saving part of the building. The lumber, which was stored on the outside, was entirely consumed. The loss is placed at between $800 and $1,000.

CANNING FACTORY OF JOHN ROOT & SON DESTROYED.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have caught from a spark passing engine on the Western Maryland Railroad, as the factory is situated near the railroad and the fire started at the west end, where there was no fire used at all. When discovered, the fire had made such headway that it was impossible to save the building or any of its contents. A big crowd gathered and watched the conflagration. The factory's season was about closed and the ware room contained all of this season's canned goods, all of which were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $10,000, about half of which is covered by insurance.

John B. Runkles, a hardware merchant of Mount Airy, was robbed a few nights ago at his home. Mr. Runkles is in the habit of taking his money box containing cash received after banking hours to his bedroom and keeping it there during the night. On the occasion of the robbery he had placed it on a table near a window in which was a screen. The window opens on the upper porch of Mr. Runkles residence. A lamp was left burning on the table when Mr. Runkles retired, and he placed his trousers on a chair within reach of his hand. When he awoke in the morning and reached for his garment it was missing. His watch and money box had also disappeared. The screen was out of the window and on the porch, and the lamp was still burning. The money box, which contained upward of $30 in cash and a lot of checks, notes, etc., was found on the porch emptied of its contents.

CONVICTED OF ASSAULT.

In the Circuit Court, at Frederick, James M. Keogh, aged 60 years, an itinerant clock mender, charged with assaulting Miss Estella Poffenberger, aged 17 years, on April 8, was found guilty by a jury Tuesday evening. On account of his advanced age he was recommended to the mercy of the court. The case was taken up before a full bench and jury Tuesday morning and given to the jury at 6 o'clock. The verdict was returned after an hour's deliberation. The girl's testimony was taken in the private chamber of the court. Her evidence was given in a straightforward manner and the cross-examination did not weaken it. Keogh denied the charge and said the girl was mistaken as to his identity, and that he was not near the scene when the crime was committed, but he contradicted himself in several instances. Keogh served a term in the penitentiary several years ago for larceny.

MIDDLETOWN'S GROWTH.

Middletown has surely grown since the electric road touched it. Twenty-three buildings have been erected and a new chapel is being built for the Reformed congregation. A railroad freight station and three lumber and coal yards have gone up. Old buildings are remodeled and a new street cut through in the east end. The Lutheran church has been beautifully remodeled and important improvements are now going on at the United Brethren church. The new residences of Messrs. James O. Bussard and Wm. L. Gardner are practically completed. The new dwellings for Mr. Emory L. Coblenz and the Misses Routsahn are nearing completion. Mr. Edward Toms has the excavation for his new house on East Main street nearly completed.

FIRE IN GETTYSBURG.

This Wednesday morning at 2:45 o'clock fire was discovered in the stable in the rear of Huber's Drug Store, in Gettysburg, and an alarm was turned. The firemen responded promptly but the flames had gained considerable headway and the stable and store house, in which there were a considerable amount of drugs, were destroyed. The flames spread to the fine brick stable of Dr. H. L. Diehl, the upper portion of which was greatly damaged, owing to the firemen being unable to get at the fire.

The fire was discovered, about the same time, by Mrs. Harry C. Sanders and night Watchman Noel. The latter immediately turned in an alarm and in a very few minutes the Company had a stream playing on the flames.—Star and Sentinel.

CHILD IS A HEROINE. Helen, the 8-year-old daughter of Mr. George McMullen of Hagerstown, is proclaimed a heroine by the clever manner in which she frightened a burglar out of the house and saved the family valuables. Mr. and Mrs. McMullen left Helen and her younger sister at home while they went to church, and the former, hearing a noise downstairs and thinking it was a burglar, went down the steps and called out:

A man ran and leaped through the dining-room window and escaped. The child entered the room to find all the silverware and cut glass in a pile. She had frightened the burglar away in the act of leaving with the booty. He has not been apprehended.

FINE MONUMENT

Equestrian Bronze Statue of General Slocum Dedicated.

A fine equestrian statue of Maj.-Gen. Henry Warner Slocum, a tribute to his memory from New York State, was unveiled on Culp's Hill, Gettysburg, last Friday where his line was stationed during the battle of Gettysburg. Governors Odell, of New York; Murphy, of New Jersey, and Stone, of Pennsylvania, the Seventh Regiment of the New York National Guard, which acted as escort; a troop of Cavalry from Fort Meyer, and veteran infantrymen and artillerymen who served under General Slocum attended the impressive ceremonies of dedication and unveiling. General Slocum commanded the Twelfth and Twentieth Corps of the Union Army, and won special distinctions in command of the right wing of the Army of the Potomac. There were only two New York officers commanding corps, and the other was General Slocum. General Slocum lost his leg in the action.

The statue is of colossal size. The pedestal is of granite, and from the base to the top of the monument the distance is 31 feet. The statue is 15 feet 6 inches high, it weighs 7,500 pounds, and was cast in bronze by the Gorham Company. The model was executed by Sculptor E. C. Potter.

Among those who arrived on the special train bearing Governor Odell, his staff and the New York Monument Commission to attend the dedication ceremonies was Chas. Sonnenberg, a member of the Legislative Assembly of Cape Town, who, with his wife, traveled 10,000 miles from South Africa to be present at the ceremonies. Mr. Sonnenberg, although a native of Germany, and for 40 years a resident of South Africa, fought under the Union flag during the Civil War under General Slocum. It was at the latter's urgent invitation that he made the long journey to greet his old commander and to shake hands with his old comrades.

The dedication ceremonies were largely attended. They opened with music by the Seventh Regiment Band and prayer by Rev. W. T. Pray, after which General Slocum made introductory remarks. The monument was unveiled by Governor Odell amid the firing of a major-general's salute by the Fourth United States Field Battery. Addresses by Gen. James C. Rogers, of Sandy Hill, and Col. A. E. Baxter, of Elmira, followed. After that General Slocum introduced Governors Odell, Stone and Murphy, each of whom made brief addresses. Mayor Seth Low, of New York city, spoke at a public meeting Thursday night.

HOTEL PROPRIETOR ANSWERS MANY CHARGES.

William H. Bobinger, proprietor of Cabin John Hotel on the Conduit road, Montgomery county, and Thomas Noonan, Frank Michaels and Herbert Ogle, who are said to be interested along the same thoroughfare, appeared before Justice of the Peace Joseph Reading, at Rockville Monday morning to answer an aggregate of twenty charges of violating the local option and anti-gambling laws.

The warrants were issued several weeks ago at the instance of Frank Boswell a young man who resides in the lower section of the county. Because of irregularities in the warrants several of the cases were abandoned, and in the remaining cases the accused waived preliminary hearing and were required to furnish security in the sum of $100 each case for their appearance at the November term of court.—American.

SAMUEL STREAKER DEAD.

Samuel Streaker, a veteran of the civil war, died at his home, in Gamber, Carroll county, Monday afternoon, at the age of 70 years. His death was caused by a cancerous growth in the stomach. He served as a private in Company E, Fourth Regiment, Maryland Volunteer Infantry, from August 12, 1862, till July 1, 1864, when he was transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps, in which he remained until after the close of the war. He then engaged in farming until a few years ago, when he retired, and has since been living in the village of Gamber. He was a member of Picket Post No. 17, G. A. R., at Warfield, which buried him with the rites of the order and the honors of war. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters—Thomas and Clinton Streaker; of Baltimore; Mrs. Clara Harry, of Union Bridge; Mrs. Ida Barnes and Miss Katie Streaker, of Gamber.

A SAD DISAPPOINTMENT.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. De Witt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. T. E. FIRE AT EAST BERLIN.

A fire in East Berlin Wednesday night Sept. 17, destroyed a bakery belonging to Stephen Straley and occupied by Charles M. Wolf, and the implement warehouse of Amos Jacobs. The fire started in the bakery and is supposed to have been of incendiary origin. It was discovered about 2 o'clock and was so far advanced in the two buildings that neither could be saved. The firemen responded quickly and saved the adjoining buildings which were several times afire.

The two buildings were burned to the ground, together with most of the contents. Mr. Wolf's loss on the contents of the bakery will be about $500. Four hundred dollars will cover the loss on the implements house and contents.

WIRELESS SYSTEM HAS MANY WIRES

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 22.—Otto Schaeffer and Frank Kayser, representing the Allgemeine Elektricitats-Gesellschaft, of Berlin, Germany, are at work at the Naval Academy installing the Slaby-Aro system of wireless telegraphy, or as they call their system, "spark telegraphy." They use nearly as much wire as an ordinary telegraph company would in going from Annapolis to Washington, D. C., where a similar system is being installed at the navy yard. These men seem to know their business and feel confident they will shortly establish communication between the two points.

The bureau of navigation at Washington detailed Lieutenant Hudgins to go aboard and buy several systems for experiments, which he did. He brought back and tried in succession the Rochford, the Decretet and the Braun, but while with all he labored diligently he was unable to send a message or receive one between the two stations—Annapolis and Washington.

While the distance between the two stations is only thirty-six miles it is thought the physical nature of the land between the two points may operate against success in these initial experiments. The most prominent difference between the Slaby-Aro system and the ones formerly installed are the numerous wires running from the station in the chemical laboratory to the 180 foot mast, there being two cages in place of one and three additional wires. There is about the same voltage generated through the secondary coil, that of 7000 volts.—Herald.

YORK COUNTY FARMER KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Alfred D. Strickler, one of the best-known farmers in York county, was struck and instantly killed by a train on the Frederick division of the Pennsylvania Railroad Sunday afternoon. The accident occurred near Strickler's Station and Wrightsville. The farmer was on his way to visit a neighbor, and as there are no regular trains on the Frederick division on Sunday, he selected the railway track as a perfectly safe highway. His hearing being defective, he did not hear the approach of the second section of the special train which was conveying United States troops from Gettysburg to Philadelphia.

The engineer, upon seeing Mr. Strickler, sounded the whistle, but the man did not heed until it was too late. When the train was almost upon him he glanced about quickly, only to meet his horrible fate.

Mr. Strickler was 59 years of age, and was the owner of one of the finest farms in Hellam township, where he was born and reared. He is survived by three children—C. R. Strickler, of Columbia; Edward Strickler, of Hellam; and Mrs. Susan Strickler-Gipe, wife of Morgan S. Gipe, of the firm of Strawinski & Gipe, of York city.

BUYING MARYLAND LAND

Mr. Franz Russ, who arrived in Baltimore in company with Secretary Badenhop, of the State Bureau of Immigration, on the steamer Maine a few days ago, has purchased a farm of 294 acres in Prince George's county, near Governor's Bridge, on the Patuxent river. He says he is delighted with the climate and soil of Maryland, and is satisfied that he will be able to bring a number of families to this State to settle.

Mr. H. H. Huntman and Mr. Rudolph Kluge, both German farmers, who settled in Nebraska, have purchased farms in Talbot county, near Bordova.

Mr. John P. Snude, a Norwegian, has purchased a tract of 2,745 acres in Somerset county. He visited the bureau Monday and expressed surprise that so many persons looking for good homes and mild climate should go West rather than settle in Maryland. "I do not propose," he said, "to utilize all the land I have bought at present. I will hold it, believing that through the efforts of the State Bureau there will be a great number of my countrymen come here, and as they desire small tracts of land, I will be able to form a small colony."

ATTACKED BY HOGS.

John J. Dillo, aged 60 years, a farmer living near Harper's Ferry, was lacerated by hogs that set upon him in his barnyard. One of a litter of pigs became fastened in the fence and he attempted to extricate it when the mother and some large hogs in the yard set upon him, knocking him down and tearing his clothes, biting off a thumb and so lacerating his body that he was insensible for two hours afterward. The women folk, seeing his predicament, rescued him.

GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Cardinal Gibbons Presided at the Ceremonies on Wednesday.

The fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the Lazarist Fathers at Emmitsburg was observed in St. Joseph's Church Wednesday. The occasion was marked by the presence of distinguished members of the hierarchy and a large number of visiting priests. Solemn pontifical mass was celebrated by Bishop Edward P. Allen, of Mobile, Ala., formerly president of Mount St. Mary's College. Cardinal Gibbons assisted in the sanctuary. Father Maloy officiated as archpriest at the mass. Rev. Edward F. X. McSweeney and Rev. J. J. Tierney, of Mount St. Mary's College, were deacons of honor to the Cardinal. The deacon of the mass was Rev. J. H. Cassidy, of Westminster; subdeacon, Rev. B. J. Lennon, of Taneytown; master of ceremonies, Rev. Thomas J. Eaton, of Mobile, Ala.; assistant master of ceremonies, Mr. James J. Kearney, Brooklyn, N. Y.; thurifer, Mr. Edward M. Shea, Mobile, Ala.; acolytes, Mr. James H. Gilmore, Pittsburg, Pa., and Mr. James J. Gill, Philadelphia.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Flynn, of Mount St. College, delivered the sermon. An excellent musical programme was rendered.

The parish of St. Joseph's was founded in 1793. In 1852 the church was taken in charge by the Lazarist Fathers, an order instituted by St. Vincent de Paul. In 1831 Father Hickey enlarged this venerable edifice, and in 1841, finding the congregation still increasing, determined to erect a more fitting temple in which to worship God. On the very day the old church was torn down, Fr. Hickey was transferred to Baltimore, to the lasting regret of his flock, and the labor of erecting the new church devolved upon Rev. John McCaffrey, of Mount St. Mary's College, who entered upon it with zeal and energy. It was finished in 1842 (Mr. Teban, of Frederick, architect), and dedicated on the Feast of St. Michael, that year, by Most Rev. Archbishop Eccleston, the sermon was preached by Rev. Father Ryder, of the Society of Jesus. This church was crowned in 1899 by a handsome steeple, the design of which was furnished by the late Father Burlando, and erected by Messrs. Tyson & Linsinger. It may be worth mentioning that the original title of this church was St. Mary's until 1808, Bishop Dubois having given that name to his mountain sanctuary, the church in this place was placed under the patronage of St. Joseph, and has ever since retained the name of that patriarch.

Impressive services were held in the church yesterday morning, which brought to a close the ceremonies connected with the Golden Jubilee.

He is president of the Commercial and Farmers' National Bank of Baltimore, and has been an active and leading spirit in banking affairs in both Baltimore and the State. He was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain as a testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the association. The annual banquet was held last Friday night, and on Saturday the bankers visited the Gettysburg battlefield.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial. It causes bunces in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." Mrs. K. T. STYDER, Troy, Ohio.

The Eclectic Magazine for October opens with Mr. Swinburne's striking but somewhat over-veiled paper on Charles Dickens, reprinted from The Quarterly Review, where it enjoyed the distinction of being the first signed article ever printed in that review. Mr. Swinburne is also represented by a poem on The Centenary of Alexandre Dumas, which is in his earlier manner, and shows that he has not lost the art of musical versification. Other noticeable literary features of the number include a review of Mr. Stephen's recent monograph on George Eliot by Herbert Paul, who, rather oddly, is the author of the volume in the English Men of Letters series, on Matthew Arnold, which immediately followed Mr. Stephen's book on George Eliot; a review of Novels of Irish Peasant Life from The Church Quarterly Review; a keen paper on Shakespeare as a Man of Science, a "study in the higher criticism" by Professor Edward Dowden; an interesting discussion of "Ancient Rome in Fiction"; and a characteristic article on Bibliomania by Andrew Lang. An instalment of The Londoner's Log-Book, a very clever short story, one or two out-door papers, and poems by Swinburne, Henry Newbolt and others add to the interest and variety of the table of contents. The Living Age Company, publishers.

"In dealing with man, remember that a spoonful of oil will go farther than a gallon of vinegar." The same may be said of children. There is nothing so good for children as the old-fashioned castor oil. However much they may abhor it, it is their best medicine for disorders of the bowels. SUICIDE OF CHARLES L. STEM.

Charles L. Stem of Hagerstown, committed suicide Wednesday night of last week about 7:30 o'clock at his home by shooting two bullets into his head. His body was not found by the family until 2 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mrs. Stem, who, with her 16-year-old daughter Clara, had taken her deaf-and-dumb son Harvey to the School for the Deaf and Dumb at Frederick Wednesday returned home on the 8:40 P. M. Baltimore and Ohio train. Her husband did not meet her, and, on not finding him at home, she lay down to await his coming. She fell asleep, but awoke at 2 o'clock. She searched the house and found the body of Mr. Stem in bed in a spare room with two bullets through his head and the pistol still grasped in his hand. He had been dead over six hours.

The deceased was about 40 years old. He went to Hagerstown about 20 years ago from Westminster. He was a cigarmaker. For 15 years he conducted a saloon and restaurant on North Jonathan street. He sold it a year ago, since which time he has been tending bar at the Hotel Hamilton.

Lately he was very melancholy, caused by ill health. He leaves a widow and four children, the youngest being 7 months old. He was a brother of John A. Stem, proprietor of the Hotel Albion, Westminster, and has a sister in Baltimore.

A FISHERMAN'S LUNCH.

How the True Angler Boils Trout For His Spicy Meal.

In the deep shade of the tree the baskets are laid, and now a fire is started nearby, one of Van Dyke's little "friendship fires," which shall also cook a few trout.

The trout, a sliver of bacon in each, are placed on one stone, first well dusted of its ashes, and the other stone is laid upon them. Now the hot embers are raked about and over the stones, and the lunch is spread on the big rock near the spring.

White Men in Slavery. Slavery is so connected in the popular mind with the dusky hue of the African that it seems hard to believe that only about 100 years ago white men could be sold into slavery in New York.

To Match His Match. An Englishman was in a smoking compartment of a city train a little while back and at a certain station a German entered the carriage and took his seat opposite him.

A Severe Critic. A self-conscious and egotistical young clergyman was "supplying" the pulpit of a country church. After the service, says the New York Evening Post, he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain spoken man, what he thought of "his morning's effort."

A Woman Depositor. "The Got Her Money, and Got It Too, the Way She Wanted It." "One day during the busy season, when every moment was precious, said a bank teller, "a woman presented her passbook and asked to have her money, which amounted to $600."

Crushing me with one disdainful look, she replied: "I wish the money." "The money was only handed out in ten dollar bills," after spending some fifteen anxious minutes in her efforts to count the money, all the while licking her fingers regularly, she handed it back to me, all mixed up, with the remark: "I wish to leave this with you again; I just wanted to see if it was all here."

The Motion Prevailed. An old world official of the city of Macon, Ga., says in short stories that during the night of the earthquake disturbances of 1886 the city council was in session.

FARM AND GARDEN

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Early Growth For Late Autumn, Early Winter and Spring. "There are many people having suitable accommodation who never think of producing their favorite vegetable at a season of the year when it is most valuable, being under the impression that special means are necessary. This may be true of midwinter, but for late autumn and early winter and again in the spring there are many—even those having only a small glass house and who keep it comfortably warm for its usual occupants—who can have more or less of a supply of fine flavored fruit. This can be grown without taking up any extra room except what is necessary to stand the pots or boxes on, because the plants can be trained on wire under the roof, being set about twelve or fifteen inches from the glass," suggests a writer in an exchange.

To this may be added that the Lorillard is a favorite tomato for growing under glass, and the cut shows a handsome cluster thus produced. The fruit is smooth, firm, of good texture, and a beautiful, bright red color. The usual temperature for forcing tomatoes is about 70 degrees for day and 65 by night, and single stem training is popular. According to some growers each flower must be pollinated by hand to insure fruit in winter.

SUGAR BEET SEEDING.

An Accidental Autumn Development of Great Possibility.

The Michigan station reports an accidental development in sugar beet growing. It is of special interest because it may lead to a new and improved method of procedure and therefore prove of great value to sugar beet farmers. A test of it would be in order this fall.

In the year 1900 a few sugar beet seeds were grown at the station, with a view to studying the question of home production of seed. This experiment met with fair success, a small crop of seed being produced that year and the same planted in the spring of 1901. The beets from this planting are to be replanted the coming season. The results thus far demonstrate the possibility of growing sugar beet seed in that locality. The development of this branch of the industry will require years of careful work, but it suggests a line of experiment that calls for further and particular attention.

Handy Device For Shocking Corn.

The accompanying illustration shows a handy device for putting up corn shocks for those who have not confidence in their ability to build a firm one about a brace of hills or do not wish to take time to make the arch. Any one having a saw, hammer and an auger can make the device without directions, says Farm, Field and Fireside.

Good Winter Celery.

Glant Solid is a large growing variety of winter celery with broad, solid stems. It is called one of the best for keeping purposes, has a good flavor, blanches clean and white, and is a desirable variety for winter use. Evans' Triumph grows to a medium height; the stems are broad at the base and it blanches well. It has a splendid flavor, is a good keeper, and is suitable for late winter use.

Removing Temptation.

Mother—Gracious! Stop that noise up there. Willie, didn't I tell you not to pull that cat's tail again? Willie—I ain't pullin' it, ma. Mother—You must be, or the cat wouldn't scream so. Willie—No, I ain't. I'm jest cuttin' his tail off short so I can't pull it any more.—Philadelphia Press.

CORN FODDER.

Shred It and Make Beef—The Day of Cheap Cattle Has Passed.

Shredded corn fodder is the most economical material that can be used in the manufacture of beef. The demand for beef at the present time seems almost unlimited, so that we can save this great wasted crop and feed it into beef without any fear of overloading the market. The census reports show that the population of our cities, the market for beef, increased 55.3 per cent from 1890 to 1900, but the number of cattle killed for beef increased only 2 per cent. The export demand for dressed beef gained ground in the ten years to take the entire increase in our production, so that we had the same supply in 1900 as in 1890, although the beef eating population had grown 36.8 per cent. Receipts for this year to date have shown a considerable falling off as compared with 1901, so that we have today about the same supply as in 1890 to feed 40 per cent more people, causing the gain in city population to date.

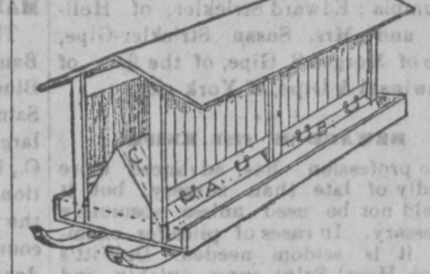

In 1910, only eight years off, we shall have 55 per cent more people in our cities than in 1890 if the growth of the last ten years continues. Twelve years have passed since 1890, and we have made no progress toward supplying this gain of 85 per cent in the demand which should be met within eight years in 1910. We cannot meet it with the methods of farming that have been followed heretofore. The good farm lands of the west have all been settled, and the ranges have been running down in the scale of beef production because of the destruction of grasses by overpasturing. We have reached a permanent level of high prices of beef—so high, in fact, at the present time that perhaps a million people or more who would like to eat beef are now compelled to go without it or to content themselves with a nibble instead of a full plate.

A good corn crop this fall will relieve the situation somewhat from the standpoint of the consumer, but the day of cheap cattle has passed forever. With high prices and a practically unlimited demand good business policy demands that the farmer should bend every effort to increase his output of beef. There is little danger of overdoing it. The only way in which a really considerable increase can now be made in the supply of cattle is by saving the enormous corn fodder crop of the west and shredding it.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

A PORTABLE SELF FEEDER.

Well Planned For Feeding and Easily Hauled to Any Place.

The sketch of a portable feeder used for cattle on grass was sent to the Ohio Farmer by a correspondent. The feeder is 12 feet long, 5 feet wide and 6 feet high. The bottom or floor (C) consists of two inclined planes, carrying the corn, etc., down to the openings (A B) and into the troughs outside. The slides are made to slide up and down a few inches, so that the feed can be adjusted to suit the space (A B) can be adjusted to deliver the grain in small or liberal quantities. A board roof keeps the grain dry. Sled runners under this feeder enable it to be hauled around to any point desired. In the illustration the end is left open to show the construction. It must be boarded up tight. A part of the roof or all of one side can be hinged so as to throw back for putting in the grain.

A SELF FEEDER ON SLED RUNNERS.

The head in beef cattle shows a "good feeder." Observation and experience show a good feeding head to be broad and well filled between the eyes, with a good, roomy brain box, tapering nicely, and short from the eyes to the muzzle, which should be wide and clean cut, with large, well open nostrils. A large mouth usually is the first indication of good digestive capacity, and large, open nostrils go with good lung power and a strong constitution. The whole head is clean cut, with no superfluous flesh on the jaws. The horns, if present, are of medium size and not coarse; ears of medium size, gracefully and actively carried. The eyes are large, full, bright, clear and placid. The neck of many animals of extreme beef type is reduced to the shortest degree possible with usefulness. It is moderately full, with clean cut throat, large, well defined windpipe and little or no dewlap. The neck joins the shoulder in full, even lines, swelling into the shoulders, as it were.

Reasonable Items.

"Sweet corn stalks do not make the best silage, but do make excellent fodder," says Hoard's Dairyman.

"Not more than one part soy beans to two parts of corn in the silo," is the general rule for this combination.

The use of skim milk hastened the gains in hog feeding at the Tennessee station.

By corn stover is meant corn fodder less the ears; that is, the stalks with tassels, leaves and husks; the ears only having been removed.

A case of blood in cattle, supposed to be caused by eating sundowner weeds, is reported from Colorado.

Soil for spinach for winter and early spring use can hardly be made too rich.

Superstitions About Bees. The superstitions which connect bees with the death or sickness of the members of the particular family in which they are kept are interesting. In Scotland and Ireland the entrance of a bee into a cottage, more particularly if it be a bumblebee, is looked upon as a certain sign of the death of some one residing there. In other localities if bees in swarming settle upon dead wood it is regarded as equally ominous.

CASTORIA.

The Kind You Have Always Bought. BEARS THE SIGNATURE OF DR. J. C. WATSON.

A Hartford lawyer is of the opinion that the term "lot" as applied to a parcel of land is an American product, not derived from any other uses of the word. He says: "I have been reading up some of the old histories of my state, of Long Island and other colonial sections recently, and I find that the term 'a lot of land' was originated in the colonies; that it is today considered an Americanism and stands apart from other uses of the word. It originated from the custom of dividing grants for townships, etc., into parcels of land and then numbering each parcel, putting the numbers into a hat or whatever was used and then having them drawn out by those who were to parcel the land. Each man took the parcel corresponding to his number, so his land came by lot literally, and hence the use of the term. This, I presume, is ancient history, but perhaps ancient enough to have been forgotten by most 'real estate dealers and other people who deal in land and not language.'"

Lightning and Watches.

"An electrical storm seems to have a peculiar effect on some timepieces," remarked the junior partner of a big downtown jewelry firm. "Every time lightning and thunder get active in this vicinity one of the results is that our watch repairing department is overworked for several days thereafter. The damage wrought chiefly consists of broken mainsprings. 'When business gets dull with us,' added the jeweler jokingly, 'we require all our employees to pray for a thunderstorm. Failure to comply with this order is considered sufficient cause for discharge. I am unable to make clear the why and wherefore, but it is an established fact that after the lightning has frolicked a while in company with mainsprings wrecked.'—Washington Star.

Wanted: Rainwater.

"Boy, bring me a large pitcher of rainwater and a small pitcher of well water," said the woman from the country who just had been assigned to a room in one of the fashionable uptown hotels. "Yes'm," said the boy, with an air of "Now, what kind of a drink's that? It's a new one on me." At the bar they turned him down. "It's no mineral water she wants. Just draw two pitchers of Croton from the faucets and pass 'em up to her. Rainwater! I ain't heard of it since I was a boy and lived in the country," said the bartender. "You couldn't use it if you could find it in New York!"—New York Press.

Society's Right to Confiscate.

What shall become of a man's property after he is dead is a question for society to determine. If it seems inexpedient to allow a rich man to leave a child reared in luxury without means of support or to leave a quarrel on the hands of his heirs, it is entirely within society's right to restrict his license in that particular. The whims of testators are a good deal of a nuisance and are too much respected by law, though not by courts.—Life.
