THE CANNIBAL TREE.

A Wonderful Plant Found In the Forests of Australia.

One of the most wonderful forest trees in the world is the "cannibal tree" of Australia, which grows up in the shape of a huge pineapple and seldom attains a height of more than eleven feet. It has a series of broad, soardlike leaves, growing in a fringe at the apex, which reminds one of a gigantic Central American agave. When standing erect, these broad, thick leaves hide a curious looking arrangement, which appears to perform the same functions as those of the pistils in flowers. Naturally these boardlike leaves, which are from ten to twelve feet long in the smaller specimens and from fifteen to twenty in the larger, hang to the ground and are strong enough to bear a man's weight

In old aboriginal times in the antipodean wilds the natives worshiped the cannibal tree under the name of the "devil tree," the chief part of the ceremony consisting of driving one of their number up the leaves of the tree to the apex. The instant the victim would touch the so called "pistils" of the monster, the leaves would instantly My together like a trap, squeezing the life out of the intruder. Early travelers declared that the tree held its vfctim until every particle of flesh disappeared. On this account it is called the "cannibal tree."

Misquotations.

In a letter to the Boston Transcript on the subject of misquetations a correspondent says: "I have in my scrapbook three notable examples from the Thanksgiving proclamations of the governors of different states. Governor Bell of Texas began his with, 'Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer, in the words of Holy Writ.'

"I once attended a funeral in the country where the clergyman's opening remark was: 'My bereaved friends. you have loved and lost the demised. It has been truly said: "It is impossible to solve the biography of death." That is, my bereaved friends, the only way for us to look at ft."

"An acquaintance of mine tells me that Cyrus Burleigh, one of the well known writers of fifty years ago, told her that he had just come from a Quaker meeting where he saw a woman speaker rise and with a 'Quaker tone' say: "A hoss, a hoss, my kingdom for a hoss." Doubtless, my friends, the inspired psalmist, when he penned these words, meant a spiritwal hoss. That was all she said, and the solemnly resumed her place on the high sonts." HOW AN INFANT SLOWLY LEARNS

What a difference there is between the dull eye of the newborn infant and The proposal was not at all agreeable the sharp vision of the young chick, which is able to pick up with precision a grain of corn or even snap up a fly while the eggshell may be still sticking to its back! The eye of the infant, however, is developed very gradually, and during infancy and childhood it learns how to see. In the first few days it notices the difference between light and darkness when the light is very intense, and it may even knit its brow in sleep if a bright light be brought close to its face.

In all these cases, however, the infant follows the object by turning its head and not by the movement of the

The eyelids open and shut from birth, but they are not always moved at the same time with the movements of the eyeballs until the infant has reached the second or third month. Under two or three months of age infants do not wink when the hand or an object is waved before the face, because they do not see the hand distinctly.

One of the remarkable points of interest in the development of the infant's power of vision is the way in which it learns to appreciate the objects seen. It has to learn to discover the distance of objects, their shape, size, character, etc., and this it does with the assistance of the sense of

After he had recovered the use of both eyes he began to find out that everything was not flat, but that many things had a certain thickness as well as length and breadth, and in this way he began to see solid objects.

But even for a year or two after complete recovery he was unable to decide whether a certain figure was a flat surface, as in a painting, or a solid body. He was also obliged to learn the different animals and objects, not knowing the difference between a cat and a dog until he had touched them.

We all go through just the same process of learning how to see in infancy. The child may be two or three years, or even older, before it has control over its eyes and can judge of the distance of objects in the room, etc.

The care of the eye is a question of great importance for mothers and nurses. The eyes of newborn infants should be carefully washed with fresh. clear water, and if anything unusual is noticed the physician should be seen. The infant's eyes are specially to be the carriage while the bright sun is pouring into the child's eyes. This does net argue against taking infants into

How Gray's "Elegy" Made Its First Public Appearance.

One of the most celebrated of eighteenth century poems, Gray's "Elegy," made its first public appearance in the shape of a hurriedly printed pamphlet, which was sold for sixpence. This pub-Meation was the result of a curious race for priority. Gray completed the poem some time in 1750, but had no immediate intention of publishing it. awake. A copy, however, found its way into the hands of a Mr. Owen, the publisher and proprietor of the Magazine of opment blind, while in many of the Magazines, a recently established periodical, and he wrote to the poet stating his intention of printing it in his magazine, and asking his co-operation. to Gray, but, seeing that publication was inevitable, he wrote at once to Horace Walpole explaining the circumstance and asking him to get Dodsley to print takes the hint where brain fag sets in theater. The scene painters had been as it immediately, but without the author's name. Walpole handed the poem to Dodsley on Feb. 12, 1751, and on the 20th a copy was in Gray's hands at Cambridge, so that it was probably published in London on the 18th or 19th. The Magazine of Magazines for February, according to the then cus-On the same principle a striking the month, and may have come out on more than the noonday meal, for the temple I had presence of mind enough the same day. The rival editions must have appeared, it is pretty safe to say, within a few hours of each other. The action of the magazine editor was hardly justifiable, but it laid the reading world under a debt of obligation by foreing the poem into print. Several original copies of the "Elegy" in the poet's writing are in existence. One, which was sold for $1,150 at Sotheby's in 1875, was especially interesting from the number of corrections and erasures made by the author's hand. In this manuscript Gray had substituted "Cromwell" and "Milton" for "Cæsar and "Tully" as he had originally written. His friend Mason is said to have suggested this alteration as well as the title of the poem,

About Volcances.

Few persons have any idea of the prodigious quantity of lava and hot ashes which a volcano in a state of eruption can vonil in a few hours. The matter which was discharged in 1669 from Mount Etna and which threatened to overwhelm Catania forms a mass the extent of which has been estimated as being not less than 1,000,-000,000 cubic yards.

From the immense crater of Kilauet in Hawaii, there was vomited in 1840 during a single eruption a mass of lava equivalent to fifty times the volume of earth which it was necessary to remove fn order to form the Suez canal. In 1873 the Skaptar-Jokull, one of the most redoubtable volcanoes in Iceland, sent forth two rivers of fire, one of which ran along a valley for eighty miles, its depth along the entire distance being thirty yards. Finally, it is estimated that from the mass of stones and ashes which were discharged in 1883 from Krakatoa could be formed a mountain higher and wider than Mont

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat. No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional-alterative and tonic. "I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Houd's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease.

The Oriental and His Rugs. A recent writer on oriental rugs says that there is no arbitrary test by which an inexperienced person can tell a gennine rug from a bogus one. Knots and the "That's one on you" of the victim's strands mean nothing except in connection with other important elements. Shades and spots are imitated. Washing the rug to discover if it has been painted over with brush and water color frequently leads only to the disgovery of a bad spot in an otherwise fine rug. Smallest People In the World. The inhabitants of the Andaman islands are the smallest race of people in the world. The average height of a full grown Andaman is 4 feet 5 inches, and few weigh over seventy-six pounds. They are marvelously swift of foot and as they smear themselves over with a mixture of oil and red ocher present a very strange appearance. Few travelers care to encounter any of these bellicose little people, for their skill in throwing the spear and in using the bow is only equaled by their readiness to attack strangers.

England's Oldest Afchouse. The oldest licensed village alchouse in England is claimed to be the George inn, in North St. Philip. The license dates from 1397. Each story of the picturesque old structure overhangs that beneath. The front is broken by bay windows, a porch and a flight of stone steps leading to a doorway in the while in the yard still remains part of the old gallery found in so many hostelries of the middle ages. Most of the front is timbered, and a curious chimney surmounts each gable. The upper floor inside is of plaster.

The Blenheim Spaniel.

It is a traditionary custom in the Marlborough family for each duke to present a Blenheim spaniel to the duchess when she enters Blenheim palace for the first time as its mistress. The story from which this custom had its origin is that during the battle of Blenorigin is that during the battle of Blenheim a spaniel followed at the heels of the great duke throughout the day, never leaving him until victory was assured, and the duchess, the famous Sarah Churchill, in memory of the incident forthwith adopted the spaniel as her favorite dog.

"An ideal match," they say, judicating the newly married couple. "Eminently suited to each other," they continue.

Here they pause and watch the happy pair. "Seems like a made to order meeting of affinities," they conclude. "He is a vegetarian, and she is a grass widow."
