FLOWER AND TREE.

Powdered sulphur applied daily is a good remedy for mildew on rosebushes. Plants may be grown in comparatively small pots by applying a weak solution of guano.

Oregon is said to have a white flower which grows wild in some localities in the valleys of the Blue mountains.

Cress is the quickest growing of plants. Under perfect conditions it will flower and seed within eight days of planting.

A northern aspect for the orchard gives a colder and later soil and retards the blossoming until a later period, thus lessening the danger from spring frosts.

If for no other reason than its habit of late blooming, the salvia deserves a place in every garden. Nothing can be more splendid than a well grown bed of salvia in early autumn.

The finest house plants grow where the temperature does not get above 70 degrees nor lower than 60 degrees. But most of us would think we were freezing to death in rooms of the best temperature for plants, 55 degrees.

Gracefully Turned.

Disraeli's resourceful wit enabled him to play the courtier at all times and to give—as in an instance which the London Daily Chronicle recalls—a complimentary turn even to satire.

Soon after he had received his title and had become the Earl of Beaconsfield an old peer greeted the new peer one day and asked him how he felt. Beaconsfield was just walking away from the house of lords, but his thought seems to have been in the house of commons, for he said:

"I feel as if I were dead and buried." The old peer looked agast.

"And," Beaconsfield continued, with scarcely a pause, "and in the land of the blessed."

The old peer smiled again and loved Beaconsfield forever after.

Colors of Children's Eyes.

It has been conclusively proved that women have a larger proportion of brown eyes than men. If in parents the mother has brown eyes and the father blue, the chances are eighty-eight to twelve that the girls of the family will be brown eyed, the percentage in favor of the boys having blue eyes being seventy-two to twenty-eight. If the parents have eyes of like color, the chances in favor of the children, both male and female, having eyes of the same color are ninety-two to eight.

BEET SUGAR.

It Was Born of France's Isolation During the Napoleonic Wars.

Sugar as an article of food was not known to the ancients. Mankind had always exhibited the greatest fondness for sweets, and from the earliest times the demand was supplied by honey.

The royal palmist sets up honey and the honeycomb as the highest standard of material sweetness. A land flowing with milk and honey was the picture drawn by the most ancient poets to describe an earthly paradise. Romans of the last days of the republic, and subsequently of the time of the empire, who were at the same time the most luxurious epicures and the grossest feeders the world ever knew and spared neither money nor exertion to secure every delicacy possible for their tables, had no knowledge of sugar, but robbed the bees to obtain sweets for their famous honey cakes and other confectionery.

Sugar was made in India and Arabia in the earliest times, but it was not brought into Europe until the invasions of the Mohammedans into the countries around the Mediterranean sea, in the seventeenth century. The Moors cultivated the cane in the countries of north Africa, and they introduced it into Spain. The Spaniards, about 1510, planted sugar canes in their West Indian possessions, whence it spread through Spanish America and into the French province of Louisiana.

The cane was the original source of sugar, and so remained up to the time of the Napoleonic wars in Europe. The ports of France were so closely blockaded by the British fleet that it was impossible to secure sugar from any tropical countries, and Napoleon assembled the chemists in France and commissioned them to discover some means of making sugar out of material found in the country, at the same time offering a large reward. This proceeding resulted in the production of sugar from the beet.—New Orleans Picayune.

DAVID GARRICK.

The Great Actor's Art and His Wife's Refined Feelings.

Mrs. Garrick's admiration of her husband's dramatic talents was intense, and on his great nights she would hang over her box, next the stage, in rapturous delight. The one flaw in her idol, she claimed, was a taste for low life, for which she blamed him greatly. Insisting that he loved better to play Scrup to a low lived audience than one of his superior characters before an audience of taste.

On one particular occasion she was in her box in the theater when Garrick's impersonation of Richard III. was applauded to the echo. In that day a farce followed the tragedy of the evening, and as Mrs. Garrick rose to leave before her husband came to the box to say he had some business in the greenroom which would detain him, so most unwillingly the lady was obliged to acquiesce and remain through the closing entertainment.

This proved to be a comical series of blundering adventures which had befallen a countryman who had left his farm to see London and on his return gave his neighbors an account of the wonders he had met.

This characterization was received with such pleas of applause that Mrs. Garrick, ever zealous of her husband's fame, began to think it rivalled those lately lavished on Richard III. Her feelings were nearly worked up to fever heat when she was attracted by the frantic efforts of her little spaniel dog to overleap the balcony that separated him from the stage, when she immediately became aware of the truth that the actor was Garrick and exclaimed, "Strange that a dog should know his master when the woman who loved him best in the world could not pierce his disguise."

Went In Lapland.

What the buffalo was to the Indian reindeer is to the Lapps. At the present day the wealth of a Lapp is calculated in reindeer. Thus, when the people speak of a man's estate they say, "He is worth so many deer." Those who have only fifty or sixty head are poor servants, and their deer are put with those of their "betters." To have any kind of social standing in Lapland one should possess at least 500 of these animals. A Lapp is considered well off when he is the happy owner of not less than 1,000 reindeer.

A Couple of Bulls.

In General Moore's command was an Irish soldier who, having been asked if the Hollanders were hospitable people, immediately replied: "They are that; too much so. O! was in the hospital all the time O! was there."

This criticism is quite on a par with that of the Englishman who objected to the French because he said the stupid idiots couldn't understand their own language when he spoke it to them.

Trans Mercy.

"Prisoner," said the judge, "you are convicted of bigamy, of having married two wives. Have you any plea for mercy before the sentence of the court is imposed on you?"

"Yes, judge," said the prisoner. "Give me as big a sentence in jail as you can."

POINTS ABOUT TURTLES.

They Are Not So Much Like One Another as Many People Think.

In moist places in the fields and meadows may be found the wood tortoise, a smaller sort of turtle of a brown or reddish brown color above, the shell having a ridge in its middle along the back, says Nature Study. Each plate of the shell underneath has a black blotch.

In mud holes and in small ponds, often resting on a log or stone above the water, one may almost always find the painted turtle, which has the margin of the shell marked red, while the shell underneath is yellow. These turtles are not so easily captured as the wood turtles, for they are rather timid and often slip into the water when approached, but with patience and ingenuity they can be outwitted at last and one secured for examination.

It will be rare good fortune to find a turtle at a meal and see him hold his food, sometimes with one fore foot, sometimes with the other, but never with both at once, as cats and dogs often do.

After watching him for awhile try to find whether he always draws his tail in on the same side of his box house. Experiment with the same turtle over and over; then sometimes try other turtles in the same way and find out for yourself whether turtles vary in this matter of hiding away their tails. This is more important than you can imagine. If all the animals and plants of the same sort were always the same there would never be any change in the living world.

Count the toes on the fore feet and on the hind feet, noticing whether there are the same number all around. As you find other turtles, particularly in different parts of the country, if you travel about, or in such museums as you can visit, see what differences you can find in this matter of the number and arrangement of turtles' toes. It is not so silly as it may appear to some people. Notice also that some turtles have webbed feet, to enable them to swim better.

Manage in some way to open the turtle's mouth and find whether it has teeth, or only hard and rather sharp cutting edges along the jaws. Touch the eyes gently with a small stick and see the turtle draw a thin skin over them. This is the third eyelid, the same as in hens, pigeons and birds generally. Notice that the feet and tail are covered with scales; then some time examine the foot of a hen or pigeon and see that they are scaly also. In this matter of the third eyelid and the scales the birds and the turtles have features in common. Perhaps some time you will learn how it happened and will find it a very interesting story.—New York Tribune.

Appropriating a Crest.

There is a restaurant keeper with a new and spacious place on the upper west side about whom a story is going the rounds. This "mine host" makes no secret of the fact that when he arrived in America as a youth he had more fingers and toes than dollars and that it is due to his own industry that he now can command his little array of cooks, waiters and other help. When he opened an addition to his rooms recently, his friends were surprised to see a crest emblazoned conspicuously on various parts of the wall. The glassware also bears the crest.

"I say, Pat," said a friend recently, "where did you get that crest?"
"That belonged to a king of my name in Ireland," was the reply.
"And I suppose you were one of the royal family?"
"Well, I don't know," was the confident reply. "I looked it up in the Astor library. There were several hundred years to account for, but I thought I'd take a chance."—New York Times.

Finding More Material.

"How large is your Mammoth cave?" asked the foreign tourist.
"Nobody knows exactly," said the native. "It is so large, though, and people get lost in it so easily, that when a man is about to explore it he makes his will and wishes his weeping friends goodbye."

"Most astonishing! I never heard that before!"
"Oh, well, of course, it isn't quite so bad as that. I was only joking."

HOW HUSBANDS SHOP.

A Blouse That It Was Certain Would Not Please the Lady.

"The pleasures of shopping are as rigorously denied to 'wrest man' as are the advantages of 'mixing to fair woman. The decree, being nature's own, is universal and the attempts made to contravene it are few and unsuccessful. An exception, more apparent than real, was made a few days ago by an uxorious Berlin husband intent on presenting his better half with a new blouse. He hurriedly entered one of the first shops in the capital and confided his intention to the graceful young lady assistant. 'I want a blouse—a good one. You understand. It must be silk—the best silk.'

"May I ask what color you prefer?" inquired the superior young saleswoman, with a smile.

"Oh, I'm not particular about the color, but I may say that it may cost from 30 to 40 marks."

"And the cut?"

"The cut? Well, I really don't much care. After all, it comes to the same thing."

"May I ask about the lady for whom it is destined?"

"Why, she is my wife, of course! Whom else did you?"

"I beg your pardon. What I meant was what is her size, at least approximately?"

"It doesn't matter in the least. Please show me some blouses, one blouse, any blouse, and let me go, for I am in a hurry to catch a train."

"With pleasure, sir, but if you cannot give me an idea of the color, cut or size or anything else to guide me how can I hope to suit you?"

"Give me any blouse you like so long as the price is between 30 and 40 marks. It doesn't matter a straw what cut or color or size I choose, for in any case it is certain to be London. I told you it is for a lady!"—London Telegraph.

SHOPS IN JAPAN.

The Floors Are the Counters and Squatting Places of Buyers.

To start a Japanese shop is the simplest thing in the world. You take the front of your house and arrange your worldly possessions on the floor. Japanese floors are raised off the street, though nothing is raised off them. The transient customer sits on the edge of the floor siddeside. A real shopper who means to do the thing properly climbs up on the floor, which is also the counter, and squats on his heels.

Real Japanese shops have no doors or windows or counters. Shop windows in England do not leave much wall in the frontage, but even an English shop window does not take the whole front of the house.

The Japanese have not many regular shops. There are very few streets of shops even in Tokyo, which is as large as Berlin. Foreigners never buy anything but curbs. If they are fools, they deal with shops kept by Europeans; if they want bargains, they deal with Chinamen.

There are many Chinese shops in treaty ports. The Chinaman is cheaper and more reliable than the Japanese. European shopkeepers do not set up in Japan for philanthropic reasons. Japanese shopkeepers are the lowest class of population except the outcasts. Servants and laborers take precedence of them in society, and precedence is the hobby of the Japanese.

You have a different law and a different salutation for a man who is below you or your equal, and several for the people above you. You have even a different language for each, and Japanese writing wriggles like carving on their temples.—London Standard.

Didn't Bother Him.

A German clergyman who was traveling stopped at a hotel much frequented by wags and jokers. The host, not being used to having a clergyman at his table, looked at him with surprise. The guests used all their rallery of wit upon him without eliciting a remark. The clergyman ate his dinner quietly, apparently without observing the gibes and sneers of his neighbors. One of them, at last, in despair at his forbearance, said to him: "Well, I wonder at your patience. Have you not heard all that has been said to you?"

"Oh, yes; but I am used to it. Do you know who I am?" "No, sir." "Well, I will inform you. I am chaplain of a lunatic asylum. Such remarks have no effect upon me."

A Russian Banknote.

The 100 ruble note of Russia is barred from top to bottom with all the colors of the rainbow, blended as when shown through a prism. In the center in bold relief stands a large, finely executed vignette of the Empress Catherine I. This is in black. The other engraving is not at all intricate or elaborate, but is well done in dark and light brown and black inks.

MINERS MAKE GAINS

The report of the Anthracite Coal strike Commission, made public last Saturday recommends:

- 1. Increase in wages of miners at an average of 10 per cent., dating from November 1 last.
2. A sliding scale of wages and a minimum wage rate.
3. That no person shall be discriminated against in the matter of employment by reason of membership or non-membership in any labor organization.
4. Decrease of time of working from 10 to 9 hours per day, with the 10 hour wage scale.
5. That the laws restricting child labor in the mines be more rigidly enforced.
6. That the awards of the commission shall remain operative until March 31, 1906.

Upon the general propositions demanded by the miners the latter according to the report, have won in the contention for an increase in wages and against the employment of child labor.

An important contention of the miners, however, that the United Mine Workers be recognized as an organization by the operators, is lost. The commission declines to make any recommendations of a specific character as to whether the labor organization shall be recognized. It treats of the subject in a general way, but refrains from recommending that the United Mine Workers' organization be recognized or not.

A recapitulation of the awards of the commission is as follows:

That an increase of ten per cent. in wages be paid to all contract miners.

Engineers employed in hoisting water shall have an increase of 10 per cent. on their earnings November 1, 1903, and April 1, 1903. Other engineers and pumpmen shall have an increase of 10 per cent. on their earnings covering the same period.

Firemen shall have an increase of 10 per cent. for the same period. All employes or company men other than those for whom special awards were made shall have an increase of 10 per cent. for the period named.

During the life of the award the present methods of payment shall be adhered to unless changed by mutual agreement. Any difficulty or disagreement arising out of the award which cannot be adjusted by the superintendents of the mines and the miners shall be referred for settlement to a permanent joint committee.

No suspension of work shall take place pending the settlement of the differences.

Whenever requested by a majority of the contract miners, check weighmen or check docking bosses, or both, shall be employed.

Mine cars shall be distributed among the miners as uniformly and equitably as possible, and there be no concerted effort on the part of miners to limit the coal output. In all cases where the miners are paid by the car, an increase of wages is to be based upon the cars in use.

FIRE PANIC IN PITTSBURG

Pittsburg, Pa., March 24.—Fire broke out in the large eight-story brick building on the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Cecil alley, occupied by the McElveen Furniture Company, about 10 o'clock today, and before the flames were controlled the three upper floors were gutted and the stock on the lower floors were badly damaged by water. The fire started in the packing department, on the fifth floor, and spread so rapidly that for a time it was feared the entire structure would be destroyed as well as the adjoining building, occupied by Surprise Clothing Company.

On the upper floors of the latter building many girls and women were employed in the manufacture of clothing, and a panic ensued, but all reached the street in safety. Two firemen—Daniel Jackson and Harry Sheekler—were overcome by smoke and were carried out of the McElveen building unconscious, but it is thought they will recover.

The loss is estimated at $150,000 fully covered by insurance.

Judge Kohlsaat, in the United States Court at Chicago, issued a preliminary injunction restraining the Indiana coal companies from continuing their combination in Chicago.

Two railroad car floats collided on the North River, New York, owing to the fog. Thomas S. Carlin of Brooklyn, was killed, and four cars were wrecked.

ONE OR TWO IMPRESSIONS OF CALIFORNIA

On the 9th and 10th of August last we went to see Menlo Park Seminary, near San Francisco, the grand and beautiful foundation of Archbishop Riordan, and by the courtesy of the rector, Father Vinber, S. S., were enabled to visit in his company the Lehigh Standford University. Though yet incomplete, the buildings of this institution display much of that unique elegance which will distinguish it among the schools of America. The long and graceful porticos are a wonder of freedom and architectural beauty; of freedom in their seemingly limitless extent, of beauty in the classic lines of their design. The buildings are of but one story, so that no force is wasted in climbing stairs, the sky is immediately above each room, the sun beats directly upon its tiles, and no foul air is borrowed from apartments below, nor noise from others overhead. To what will we compare this structure? Except the New York Archdiocesan Seminary we know of no other building that has made any attempt at porticos or cloisters, the climate of California favoring this style and the wealth and taste of the Stanford making it practicable. But it is worth crossing the continent to see. Catholics could not help feeling sad at noticing how the glorious chapel, with its wealth of sculpture, in which are copies of the great statues of the Apostles in the Lateran Basilica, and the finest procurable one of Our Lord, is dedicated to some vague, uncertain, unreal phantom of Christianity. It reminded us of the altar seen by St. Paul at Athens inscribed 'To The Unknown God.' What a pity that some eyes are not able to see the Incarnation of the Son still perpetuated in His Church, and that the treasures of Eternal Truth are not always united to the acquisitions of scientific research!

The Catholic Seminary is a noble building in a large and rich park, well calculated to help in developing gentlemanly instincts in the candidate for the ministry; he will enjoy the society and instructions of the 'Gentlemen' of St. Sulpice. There is no similar institution in the country that for grandeur of edifice, extent of grounds, salubrity of climate and educational advantages will excel this one, especially situated, as it is, within an easy walk of one of the best endowed universities, where all that money can command in the way of literary and scientific achievement will be accessible to the Catholic seminarian, who in turn will doubtless influence their neighbors favorably toward seeking and finding the truths of salvation.

One of the professors we met today at the park was a Corsican, and though he claimed no relationship to Napoleon, his stature, gait and manner were so like what we find in the traditional portraits of that great genius that the resemblance was most striking. Doubtless there is little immigration to the island, and the type is quite distinct and pure.

Next day found us at Monterey, where Fra. Giunipero Serra, a Franciscan friar, formed a mission June 3rd, 1770. He established many other stations, including San Francisco (Oct. 8th, 1776) and died August 8th, 1784. A noble statue of the monk stands on a height near the town, and all his torians and romancers, not only Catholic, but Protestant, are lost in admiration of the type of follower of Christ and lover of His kind which Fra. Giunipero represents. The Old Mission church stands humbly apart from the noisy, busy part of the town and is very lovely in its simple, beautiful old age. Very much to our regret, however, it was closed, and a 'Notice' informed us that by applying to some one we could obtain admission and also see 'old vestments,' etc. This was disappointing, and as we had to catch a train, we were obliged to forego a visit that is full of edification and aesthetic delight. However, we had visited similar churches at Los Angeles and San Francisco, but if you have not done so, register a vow to see the 'Old Missions' before they disappear forever.

By the way, when we reached Santa Cruz, where those same pioneers of civilization had also established a 'Mission,' even the extreme beauty of the place, with its caves and natural bridges hollowed out by the never resting waves of the Pacific, could not console us for the destruction of the old Franciscan church. Alas for the taste or, as we thought, the lack of taste that torn down the simple, beautiful structure to erect in its stead what Ruskin would probably call a Gothic monstrosity. So it struck us. For our part we thought that while a stone rested on a stone we would have left it there, a monument to the holy zeal of the Sons of St. Francis, a 'sermon in stones,' more eloquent than any that could fall from human lips, unless at least heroic sanctity spoke through these as it did through these stones, and still does where they are still in evidence. 'Te sax loquuntur.' O beate Juniper! What amazed us still more was to hear that Protestants seem to appreciate the exquisite architecture of these old mission buildings rather than Catholics. However, we thought it was not a question of religious creed, but of education and culture. It may be said, too, with some show of reason, that the priest (God rest his soul) needed the land on which the Old Mission stood. It was not large enough for his congregation and he could not afford to buy more space. Perhaps. We do not know. We simply set down the impression produced on us. It is not strange that the people who subscribed for the memorial arch in front of the Catholic Church did not try to save the Old Mission, which would have made the charm of the park on which it fronted, the chief glory of their beautiful town and a magnet attracting visitors thereunto? Alas for the low materialistic spirit of the times, destructive not of religious instinct alone, but of the idea of beauty too. There was a rumor also we heard, that the Old Mission Dolores in San Francisco was to be torn down. Think of the people allowing this for the sake of twenty or thirty thousand dollars! Could not the city of San Francisco buy it for an antique? Or can it be that not one of the multi-millionaires has thought of saving this thing of beauty, so charmingly associated with the history of the Golden Gate? Talking of the materialistic spirit, and how it effects Catholic travelers who know from history and historic remains how absent it was from the thought and from the conduct of the early missionaries of California, what we saw within seven miles of beautiful Santa Cruz simply revolted us. There is a grove of 'Big Trees' in a wild ravine northwest of the town, and we went out to visit them. There they stood in hoary majesty, the ancient monarchs of the forest. Captivated by their vast and symmetrical size, we wandered about admiring the wondrous scene, when to our great surprise and disgust we found that a fence of unplanned boards about twenty feet in height ran for several rods across from the river to the railroad track. It contrasted so utterly with the natural rugged freedom and beauty of the place and of the trees, that its ugliness was intensified. We glanced along and beheld a gateway blocked by a great unvarnished table of rough planks, which stood a very matter-of-fact looking individual with probably a revolver on his hip, and over his head in enormous black letters on a strip of linen: 'The Biggest Trees of All. Admission 25 cents!' Next to the money changers in the Temple, to our mind was this money seeker, with his horrid fence and his ugly cypress side-show sign. We had seen the like by the ocean shores by Coney Island, where the thoughtless multitudes of Gotham are amused by spectacles of every conceivable oddity, but we admit that in the lone woods of Santa Cruz we felt the thing a special outrage on good taste and an almost sacrilegious desecration of God's original temple, 'the Forest Primeval.'

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local application as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

MISSISSIPPI LEVEES CAVING

Vicksburg, Miss., March 22.—Officers of the steamer City of St. Joseph, which reached here this afternoon from Greenville, report a critical state of affairs along the Issaquena county front. The water is almost level with the crown of the levees and at several points it is slopping over. New work is slopping badly and at Fidler's a great cave has appeared on the old levee. Into this cavity 2,000 sacks filled with sand have been dumped without perceptible effect.

Inspector Dalany, who is in charge of the work there, has about decided to cut the old levee at half a dozen places, as a sudden break would be disastrous to the new levee further back. This is vigorously opposed by people living between the levees and feeling is said to be running high.

At Davals and from Brunswick to Chotaro there is eminent danger at several points. Large forces are working day and night. The steamer City of St. Joseph brought in more than a hundred refugees and will go back for others.

Four hundred head of stock have been concentrated on the high places at Australia awaiting removal, but it is feared that most of them will be swept away before a boat can be secured to bring them out. On the Louisiana side, about Pitches Point, it is feared that it will be impossible to hold the line much longer.

The gauge here tonight registered 50.6 and rising, and the lower section of the city, embracing the wholesale district, the railroad shops and compresses, is well covered with water.

BLOODHOUND HIS ACCUSER

Indianapolis, March 22.—Mrs. Willard Catt and her two sisters were playing the piano and singing in their home in Pike county Friday night, when someone fired through the window, and Mrs. Catt sank to the floor, dying, with a bullet in her brain.

Searching parties were organized this morning, and one of the parties, headed by Marshal Sumpter, of Howell, was accompanied by a bloodhound. Suspicion rested upon Willard Catt, the woman's divorced husband, but he and his father joined in the search.

When the bloodhound was taken to the scene of the shooting he started on a trial leading to Willard Catt's home. When this was reached the dog turned in another direction and led the party until it came upon the searchers who were led by Willard Catt.

The dog immediately stopped and made an attempt to leap upon Mr. Catt when Marshal Sumpter held him back. The two parties started to continue the search, but the dog would trail no farther. It circled around Mr. Catt and again tried to jump at him.

Mr. Catt was arrested and charged with the crime. He refused to make any statement.—Sun.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Hearing Of The Freshman-Fraleigh Shooting Case

Leroy Freshman, who shot and wounded Henry Fraleigh for assaulting his sister with a club at Catoctin Furnace on the night of March 15, was taken to Thurmont Monday and given a hearing before Justice John Jones. After hearing the testimony of several witnesses, among whom was Fraleigh's attending physician, Dr. Birely, who stated that he was satisfied his patient would now recover, the Justice released Freshman in $200 bail. To accommodate the large crowd present the Justice held the hearing in the Town Hall. John E. R. Wood, Freshman's counsel, wanted him released without bail. It was shown the assault upon Freshman's sister by Fraleigh was aggravated, and it was claimed the young man was justified in shooting him. Dr. Kefauver stated the wound in Miss Freshman's head, inflicted by Fraleigh, was 2 1/2 inches long.—Sun.

QUICK WORK OF A GRAND JURY.

The grand jury for the March term of the Circuit Court in Montgomery county after a brief session, adjourned March 25. It returned 23 new bills, of which two were for murder and 21 for local option violations.

Judge Henderson in thanking the jury, said it was reported that the proprietors of certain resorts contemplated renewal of illegal business in liquor after the adjournment of this term, and if this proved true the grand and petit jurors would be recalled and the illegal traffic suppressed, if the juries have to be kept in Rockville all summer. In referring to the suggestion of the grand jury for improvements to the jail and courthouse, Judge Henderson stated that heretofore suggestions of this sort had had no more effect upon the County Commissioners than water would have upon a duck's back. He added, however, that as the condition of the courthouse, at least, had become abhorrent, it was possible the recommendations of this jury would be heeded.

A BIG SALE

Mr. Charles N. Hargett's public sale of horses, cattle, farming machinery, etc., on the farm on which he resides, adjoining the fair grounds at Frederick Md., March 18, was one of the largest and most successful ever held in Frederick county. Good prices were realized and the proceeds amounted to about $6,300. There was a large crowd present, including buyers from adjoining counties and the cities of Baltimore and Washington.

Ten head of horses brought an average of $207 each, including one which sold for $77 on account of having a silver tube in its throat. The highest price was brought by a three-year-old Percheron, which sold for $325. The pair of gray horses which the standing committee of the Junior Fire Company had been thinking of purchasing for drawing the company's engine brought $565 and were purchased by a representative of Littlefield, Alvord & Co., of Baltimore, who bought a number of other horses. Yearling colts brought from $50 to $90 each. Twenty-one head of horses and colts were sold.

The cattle including 18 registered Jerseys, 1 Guernsey bull and 17 head of shorthorn cattle, among which was a registered bull, also brought good prices. Forty-five head of sheep, 50 head of hogs and a great quantity of machinery, implements, harness, etc., were also sold.

HARRY C. KEEFER SUFFERING FROM CANCEROUS TUMOR.

Mr. Harry C. Keefer of Frederick, who was operated upon by Dr. Van Lennep, a noted surgeon, at the Hahnemann Hospital in Philadelphia Monday, is in a very serious condition. The operation revealed the fact that Mr. Keefer was suffering from a cancerous tumor on his bladder, which was so imbedded in the walls of the organ that an attempt to remove it would have been instantly fatal. The incision was therefore closed. Mr. Keefer was successfully revived after the operation and a telegram stated that he was doing as well as could be expected.

In a few days, if Mr. Keefer recovers sufficiently from the effects of the operation to stand further treatment, an effort will be made to dissolve the tumor by the use of the Roentgen, or X-ray, and the Finzen ray, a method of treatment which in recent years has been successfully in a number of cases of cancer and tumor.

SWALLOWED A WATCH

Peter Gray, of Hagerstown, is wearing a large watch that was recently eaten by a horse. He was feeding the horse and accidentally dropped the watch in the manger. The animal swallowed the watch with a mouthful of feed. Three days later Mr. Gray recovered the watch, which still keeps good time, little injured by its singular experience. In fact, the only injury to it is a dent in the case. The watch was slow and the horse did not make fast time.

Mrs. Lydia Woodrow, of Leeds, Cecil county, will be 100 years of age if she lives to see April 23. She is still in good health.

TROLLEY CAR AND TRAIN COLLIDE

A serious collision between one of the cars of the Hagerstown Street Railway Company and Cumberland Valley passenger train No. 2, which leaves Hagerstown at 6.50 A. M., occurred last Friday morning at the Washington street crossing, in Hagerstown.

The only person injured was Motor-man W. J. Krotzer, who although he knew he was powerless to prevent a collision, remained at his post and prevented a more serious smashup. Conductor Melvin Over, when he saw a collision could not be prevented, jumped and escaped injury. The controller, against which he was leaning a moment before, was knocked about half-way through the car. The five passengers—Mrs. William Smith, Chas. Tritch, John Kuhn, J. Irvin Bitner and Wm. Mobley—remained on the car until after the crash and escaped injury.

The front of the car was crushed and all of the windows were broken. The engine of the passenger train was slightly damaged.

Danger of Colds and Grip

The greatest danger from colds and grip is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that disease. It will cure a cold or an attack of the grip in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman.

MOTHER SAW HER CHILD RUN OVER BY CARRIAGE

The horror of seeing her infant mannege beneath the wheels of a carriage was witnessed at 2.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Hester Goldstein, of 425 North Exeter street, Baltimore. At 3 o'clock the child died in its mother's arms. As the result of the accident Henry Johnson, colored, a coachman, aged 35 years, residing in the 1300 block Montrose street, Baltimore, was arrested by Sergeant Kelly and Patrolman Culom and locked up at the Central district. When the evidence was heard Johnson was dismissed from custody, as it appeared that the affair was purely accidental.

About ten minutes after the disposition of the case, however, Sergeant Kelly and Hiram Goldstein, the father of the child, whose name was Minnie, and who was three years of age, entered the police station and announced that the little one had died notwithstanding the efforts of Dr. Samuel J. Belt, of 314 North Exeter street, to save her life. Sergeant Kelly was then instructed to arrest Johnson a second time and the latter was committed for the action of the coroner's jury on the charge of assaulting and causing the death of the child. The carriage which ran over the little girl was a closed one and contained Mrs. August Pfeil and Mrs. W. L. Orr, the wives of Messrs. A. Pfeil and W. L. Orr, of the firm of A. Pfeil & Co., lumber dealers, both of whom reside at 1532 Hollis street. Both the ladies were summoned to give testimony at the hearing of Johnson, but each stated that she did not see the accident on account of the carriage being closed. The ladies were much affected when they learned of the child's death.

Johnson's defense, in which he was supported by Mr. Robert Price, a letter carrier, residing at 626 North Calvert street, Baltimore, was that the child, in attempting to cross the street, ran in front of the horses before he could stop them. The accident occurred directly in front of the Goldstein home.

MURPHY IS ARRESTED AFTER A FOOT RACE

James Murphy, colored, of Harrisburg, Pa., was committed to jail Tuesday afternoon by Justice Moore, of Westminster, in default of $100 bail for the action of the grand jury on the charge of having stolen a mackintosh coat from Leo Hatton, the colored porter of the Union Bridge Hotel, Union Bridge.

Murphy is the husband of the woman arrested last summer for stealing the suit case and dress suit of Governor Murphy at Gettysburg, Pa. He is charged with having stolen the coat several months ago, when he left the county and went to Hagerstown. Tuesday he returned to Union Bridge, and Mr. Charles F. Stell, the proprietor of the hotel at which the alleged theft was committed, attempted to hold him until an officer could be summoned, but he broke away just as Bailiff Ogle appeared and fled down the railroad track, followed by the bailiff and a number of other persons who joined in the pursuit. Several shots were fired to arrest his flight, but he paid no heed to the bullets and continued his race with the fleetness of a deer, soon distancing his pursuers. Tuesday morning he was found sleeping in a barn at Uniontown and was taken into custody.—Herald.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." T. E. Zimmerman.

SMOKE WITHOUT FIRE

Sunday evening, March 15, a remarkable sight was witnessed in and about Cambridge, where there are many cedar trees, all of which, between 4 and 4.30 o'clock, appeared to be enveloped in smoke and yet not on fire at all. Your correspondent saw the phenomenon but hesitated to make any mention of the unusual occurrence, until he found out it had been noticed by others and had also assured himself that his spectacles were clear. He was soon convinced that nothing was the matter with his glasses. His Honor the Mayor, Mr. Robert G. Henry and many other equally intelligent citizens said they had noticed the peculiar effect and were curious to account for it.

About 4 p. m., each and all saw every cedar tree in view emitting a dense smoke. All at first thought fire caused it, though fire under such conditions would be surprising and unaccountable. Then they saw that there was no fire, only smoke. The afternoon was clear, but a strong north east wind was blowing and some speculated that the breeze having dislodged the pollen of the cedars caused it, in the sunshine, to look like smoke. Others thought that the very warm atmosphere of the several previous days had been retained by the thick foliage of the trees and that when this stiff northeastern breeze, always cold, arose it opened the branches of the trees and expelled the warm air, caloric, which, being warmer and lighter than the surrounding atmosphere, made it visible and assume the appearance of smoke as it arose—precisely for the reason that warm air from a chimney is called "smoke."

Any how it is true that many hundreds of cedar trees within 10 miles of Cambridge, on this particular evening, put on the appearance of emitting a dense smoke to the wonderment of all beholders, whether tutored or untutored. Not within the memory of the oldest inhabitant has the phenomenon ever been seen there before.

(The phenomenon is a very interesting one. It is simply the discharge of pollen from the buds to fructify the berries or seeds. It is common to all trees and flowers. Perhaps the most interesting is that to be observed in the Osage, or cut-leaf mulberry trees.—Baltimore Sun.

WOMAN CHARGES MURDER

It is now charged that Charles Dyson colored, who was supposed to have been killed by a Baltimore and Ohio train near Rockville on the night of July 4 last, was killed by Upton Claggett, colored, who has been arrested on another charge. Ella Bowen, colored, was suspected of possessing knowledge that Dyson had met with foul play, last Thursday afternoon she was questioned by State's Attorney Talbot. She said that while at a picnic near Rockville on the night in question Claggett became displeased because Dyson paid her some attention and threatened to fix him. Shortly after Dyson started towards town. Claggett and the girl followed. Near Rockville, and not far from the Baltimore and Ohio tracks, she charges that Claggett struck Dyson on the head with a fence rail and kept striking him until he was apparently dead. He then dragged the victim to the car tracks and during the night he was run over by a train, thus giving the impression that he was killed by the cars. After telling her story to Mr. Talbot the girl went before the grand jury and swore to the same. The jury promptly found an indictment, charging Claggett with murder. Claggett was already in jail, where he was lodged about two weeks ago for shooting a colored man in the chest in a difficulty over the same woman. The murder case against him will be tried at the term of court now in session.

BANQUET JULIEE

Five hundred men sat at the banquet of the Young Men's Christian Association in their gymnasium in Cumberland Thursday night. It was the greatest affair of the kind in the history of Cumberland and was the culmination of the membership contest which added 888 names to the membership roll, making a total of 1,150 members, a better record than that of any other association in proportion to population in the United States. The net result was a gain of 300 members over last year. The contest was between the "Maroons" and the "Whites." The latter secured the greater number of members, and as a penalty of being defeated the "Maroons" wearing white aprons, served as waiters at the banquet. Robert R. Henderson, president of the association, presided. In his address he reviewed the history and splendid achievement of the association during the past ten years. Addresses were also delivered by William H. Mavis, of Baltimore; George F. Tibbitts, of Washington, and State's Attorney John G. Wilson.

These judgments were entered upon agreements between the plaintiff and the defendants, whereby the bank consents to receive, in full payment thereof, 75 per cent. of the amounts, principal and interest, and one-half the costs of suit, provided they be settled within thirty days from this date. About thirty-five cases of this nature against other Carroll county parties, on the docket of the court, have been entered paid and satisfied, without judgments, upon the same basis. All are what are known as "milk note" cases and grew out of notes given by dairy farmers to the now defunct United Milk Producers' Association of Baltimore city, which were assigned to the bank as collateral on loans.—Morning Herald.
