ZESTFUL FRANKNESS.

"Why, I'm One of the Cowardly Nincompoops Myself!"

Unexpected frankness now and then gives a special zest to the humor of a situation in congress. When Gabe Bouck was the representative from the Oshkosh district of Wisconsin, a pension bill came before the house, to his great vexation of spirit, for, while his personal convictions were directly opposed to it, his political interests were strong enough to whip him into line. On the day the bill came up for final disposal a fellow member met Bouck in the space behind the last row of seats walking back and forth and gesticulating excitedly, bringing his clenched right fist down into the hollow of his left hand to the accompaniment of expletives which would hardly look well in print.

"What's the trouble, Gabe?" inquired his friend. "Why all this excitement?"

"Trouble!" snorted the irate lawmaker. "Trouble enough! That pension bill is up, and all the cowardly nincompoops in the house are going to vote for it! It's sure to pass—sure to pass!"

"But why don't you get the floor and speak against it—try to stop it?" suggested the other.

"Try to stop it?" echoed Bouck. "Try to stop it? Why, I'm one of the cowardly nincompoops myself!"—Franklin E. Leupp in Century.

A Maternal Collie.

"The collie," said a man who knows them, "is the most intelligent of dogs. Permit me to tell you a true collie story. There was a Scottish shepherd whose dog gave birth to a litter of pups. All but one of them died, and the mother devoted herself so thoroughly to this sole remaining child that her master's work was quite neglected. The sheep were not looked after at all. The man, enraged at this state of affairs, took the pup and drowned it in a bucket before its mother's eyes. Then he went off to the town for the day. In the evening, on his return, the drowned pup was missing. The shepherd said to his collie, pointing to the bucket, 'What did you do with your pup, Bess?' The collie gave a low, mournful howl and set off, looking backward often to signify to her master that he should follow. She led him to a knoll and paused, moaning, beside a spot where the earth had a fresh look. The shepherd turned up the soil, and there beneath it the drowned puppy lay. Its mother had taken it out of the bucket and given it decent burial."—Philadelphia Record.

Troubles and Joys.

The trouble with most of us is that our joys seem to sink out of sight in some inner quagmire, and our pains seem to take root on the thinnest soil and flourish like the proverbial green bay tree. What is the matter with us that a little irritation today can wipe out in a moment all the recollection of yesterday's glory?

"Practical" Arithmetic.

A teacher who was trying to instruct her class about the mysteries of addition and subtraction explained that one could not subtract or add unless the numbers were of the same denomination when a little girl said:

FREEZING CAVERNS.

Subterranean Caves That Are Lined With Crystalline Ice.

There are deep cavities and tunneled recesses in the earth far away from sunlight and held in the tight embrace of rocky strata where secret hoards of glittering ice find habitation all the year round. Yet down in these queer places the ice is as pure and crystalline as any that nature maintains in the open air; moreover, it occurs on a truly grand and massive scale.

Imagine thick underground ice walls and floors and craftily fissured columns beautiful in shape and color streaming from roof to floor of lofty rock chambers! And under the slow drip, drip, drip of percolating water this same ice learns to fashion itself into cave adornments—frozen water drops, curling slopes, stalactites and stalagmites of fantastic shape and rainbow hues.

Subterranean cold waves, or "glaciers," as they are frequently called, crop up in some 300 scattered localities in Europe, Asia and America, but all, with rare exceptions, whether true ice caverns or grottoes and deep hollows, are confined to the north temperate regions of these continents—that is, to places where there is a sufficiently low temperature at some portion of the year to reach freezing point and render snowfall possible.—Pearson's Magazine.

Mythical Creatures of Japan.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among them are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as a tiger which is said to live to be a thousand years old and to turn as white as a polar bear. They also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished mainly by their monstrous size or by the multiplication of their members.

Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears, fishes with ten heads attached to one body, the flesh of which is a cure for boils. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has reached the age of 600 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

Costly Drags.

Unless you are a druggist you have no idea of the value represented by a little shelf in the prescription department of a big drugstore. It is one of the wonders of the world that drugstores do not furnish the same temptation as banks to knights of the chisel. A pound jar of hyoscinine is worth just $2.240 the world over. Jaborine is a little less presumptuous as to price; it costs $1,500 a pound and is used to cause perspiration. Ergotine crystals cost the druggist the trifling sum of $5,600 a pound. They are made from tubers of the Narcissine root and ergotine crystals one better and costs $6,800 a pound. It is used as an expectorant in bronchial troubles and as an emetic.

Moan Superstitions.

Almost any old time farmer will tell you a worm fence built in the light of the moon and ascending node will worm around and finally fall down. If you want potatoes during similar phases, they will all go to tops and the tubers will be small and watery. This is the time, however, to plant cucumbers, especially when the sign is in the arms.

The carpenter of former times would not think of putting a shingle ridge roof on a building in the dark of the moon, because the shingles would curl up, pull out the nails and soon leak like a sieve. Neither would he cut timbers for a house nor would he paint it until the sign was right.

Judge Fined Himself.

An English judge, Gwilym Williams, was a great stickler for form in his court, and especially that robes should be worn by solicitors. He was so insistent upon this that one day recently, when he ascended the bench without being duly robed, all in the courtroom knew that he must have been unusually engaged to cause him to neglect the matter. When the judge noticed the lack of his robes, he stopped the court proceedings, made a speech to the solicitors on the absence of his gown and wig and fined himself 10 shillings, which sum he immediately paid into the poor box.—Glasgow Times.

Greatest Battles of History.

Burke in his letter on "Natural Society" says that Sylla destroyed 300,000 men in each of three battles, one being at Cheronia. The Persians are said to have lost 230,000 men at Plataea. If Chronicles XIII, 17, records 500,000 slain on one side, which, however, may not have been in a single battle. I Kings XX, 26, tells of 100,000 men being killed on one side in a single day.

Fatal Repentance.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who was always distressed for money, was one day hacking his face with a dull razor when he turned to his eldest son and said:

"Tom, if you open any more oysters, with my razor I'll cut you off with a shilling."

"Very well, father," said Tom, "but where will you get the shilling?"

A Full House.

Lady Guest—Your father is such a hospitable gentleman! He dearly loves a full house, doesn't he?

Jack—Well, yes—if it happens to be on his side of the table.—Kansas City Journal.

Throughout every part of my career I have felt pinched and hampered by my own ignorance.—Sir Walter Scott.

SAILOR AND HORSE.

How the Retired Sea Captain Made a Purchase.

In "Horses Nine" Sewall Ford tells how a retired sea captain bought a horse. The story runs: As one who inspects an unfamiliar object Captain Bean looked dazedly at Barnacles. At the same time Barnacles inspected the captain. With head lowered to knee level, with ears cocked forward, nostrils sniffing and under lip twitching almost as if he meant to laugh, Barnacles eyed his prospective owner.

Captain Bean squirmed under the gaze of Barnacles' big, calm eye for a moment, and then shifted his position.

"What in time does he want any, Jed?" demanded the captain.

"Wants to get acquainted, that's all, cap'n. Mighty knowin' boss, he is. Now, some horses don't take notice of anything. They're just naturally dumb. Then ag'in you'll find horses that seem to know every blessed word you say. Them's the kind of horses that's worth havin'."

"S'pose he knows all the ropes, Jed?"

"I should say he did, cap'n. If there's anything that boss ain't done in his day, I don't know what 'tis. Near's I can find out he's tried every kind of work, in or out of traces, that you could think of."

"Must be some old by your tell," suggested the captain. "Sure his timbers are all sound?"

"Dunno 'bout his timbers, cap'n, but as for 'wind an' limb you won't find a sounder loss of his age in this country. Course I'm not sellin' him for a four-year-old."

Again Captain Bean tried to look critically at the white horse, but once more he met that calm, curious gaze, and the attempt was hardly a success. However, the captain squinted solemnly over Barnacles' withers and remarked:

"Yes, he has got some good lines, as you say, though you wouldn't hardly call him clipper built. Not much sheer for'ard an' a little too much aft, eh?"

At this criticism Jed snorted mirthfully.

"Oh, I s'pose he's all right," quickly added the captain. "Fact is I ain't never paid much attention to horses, bein' on the water so much. You're sure he'll mind his helm, Jed?"

"Oh, he'll go where you p'int him."

"Won't drag anchor, will he?"

"Stand all day if you'll let him."

"Well, Jed, I'm ready to sign articles, I guess."

ORIGIN OF OLD SAYINGS.

The Honeymoon.—For thirty days after a wedding the ancient Teutons had a custom of drinking a mead made of honey.

The Bridegroom.—In primitive times the newly wedded man had to wait upon his bride and the guests on his wedding day. He was their groom.

Sirloin of Beef.—King Charles I., being greatly pleased with a roast loin of beef set before him, declared it "good enough to be knighted." It has ever since been called Sir Loin.

A Spinster.—Women were prohibited from marrying in olden times until they had spun a full set of bed furnishings on the spinning wheel; hence, till married, they were spinsters.

Calal.—This word was coined in Charles II.'s reign and applied to his cabinet council. It was made out of the initials of their names, which were: Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, Lauderdale.

Scandinavian Carving.

From earliest times carving has received great attention in Scandinavia. One sees evidence of this in many Swedish churches, both in wood and stone, dating back many centuries. In Stockholm are many to be found, now safely cared for in a well known museum. Some of these northern churches, notably those of Borgund and Hitterdal, are quite covered with such quaint ornamentation. Beyond such public expression of painstaking labor one may see in almost any comfortably furnished house wooden forks, spoons, salt boxes and platters, but still more attracting attention are huge wooden tankards, and these will often bear close study both in design and in execution.

Red Flannel Currency.

A Scotch missionary to a group of small islands in the south Pacific a great many years ago found bits of red flannel circulating as money. This currency came to them in a curious manner. The body of a shipwrecked sailor had drifted ashore, and to the untutored savages, who had never before seen clothing of any kind, his red flannel shirt was an object of wonder and admiration. By common consent they cut the garment into small pieces, which thenceforth became the currency of the island.

Small Bits of Gold.

Gold is so very treacherous that a piece of it drawn into wire one-twentieth of an inch in diameter will sustain a weight of 500 pounds without breaking. Its malleability is so great that a single grain may be divided into 2,000,000 parts and a cubic inch into 9,523,809,529 parts, each of which may be distinctly seen by the naked eye.

The Fun of It.

A young man writes to me:

"Is it proper to kiss a young lady to whom you are engaged if she says you must?"

"No, sir. It is decidedly improper. That's half the fun of it."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Quite Opposites.

Student—What is pessimism?

Philosopher—The faith of cowards.

"Then what is optimism?"

"The faith of fools!"—New York Weekly.

THE FIRST TAILOR.

HE MONOPOLIZED THE SARTORIAL TRADE OF THE WORLD.

His Methods Were Crude, and His Materials Were Rather Grotesque, but He Turned Out Good, Honest Work, Hand Stitched Throughout.

The first industry of the world was tailoring. The first maker of clothes and the first worker was Adam. Of this strange character who appears on the pages of history in the dual role of the first tailor and the first customer we have but a brief biography. The meager details require sympathetic interpretation to make up a complete story. Of his father and mother no mention is made, but the record shows he was destined to be a cloth of some sort, for he was put into Eden to "dress" the garden. We do not know if he obeyed this command, as his biographers do not so state, for, it seems, instead of "dressing" the garden he "dressed" himself.

His early marriage and the trouble relating to the theft of some fruit with sundry other unpleasant details preceded his work as a tailor. He began in a humble way; just himself and one assistant. He was one of the early settlers in a newly opened country, a land of natural advantages which must soon attract other inhabitants. With a large and increasing population he foresaw that there must come a growing demand for clothing if he could introduce them and make popular his new invention. He was a pioneer. He had no competition. He controlled the tailoring trade of the world. Thus with the first industry came the first trust.

As he busily plied his needle we know not what visions of future business and wealth filled his ambitious mind. But never in his wildest dreams did he conceive that his little tailoring establishment, employing only four hands, doing only a local trade and turning out the first custom made garment, would be the beginning of a ready made clothing business that in the United States alone gives labor to hundreds of thousands of hands and covers an investment of a great many million dollars.

But of the great wealth that has come from his invention Adam, like most pioneers, made no money whatever and died leaving his family without a penny. Even his name is not associated with his wonderful discovery, but—such is the sarcasm of time—it appears only in the word Adam's apple, in memory not of his virtues, but of an escape of his wife.

Though even Carlyle has not recognized Adam's sartorial genius, there are some capital points in the work of this first tailor.

He originated the style himself. He was not a petty trader on the reputation of others and imitating their fashions. Even in the names for the garments he was original. The first suit of clothes, in reality only a girdle or belt, he humorously termed an "apron." It is difficult to determine the season of the year. Judging from the coolness of the suit, it might have been a summer style, but as it was just a little after the fall it was probably early in the winter.

They were hand stitched throughout. They contained no machine work or cheap labor. The workshop was in the open air, and, although tailored in the sweat of his brow, no sweatshop work was possible.

The material was not of the best, but Adam found no better at hand. Some of the modern tailors, making shoddy garments at shoddy prices, imitate Adam, who used "cheapings."

As to Adam, the first customer, when he was alone in the world he never thought of dress, but when he came to the realization of himself as an individual and in relation to others he began to spruce up. Courtship led him to beautify himself, to appear well in the eyes of "the only woman he ever loved." Human nature has not changed much.

With the entry of society dress began. Perhaps this is why dress forms so prominently a feature in society today.

After eating the apple of knowledge the mind of Adam was suddenly illuminated as if by a thousand electric lights. A great thought of large, practical, worldly wisdom flashed before him. He realized that to amount to anything in the world he must make a good appearance. In this he struck a keynote of business success.

Surely he needed to keep up appearances. He reflected over his actions for the two weeks prior and then looked at his future. He had been in bad society and had been seen with a disreputable serpent, he had been led into temptation, he had broken the law, he was implicated in an apple theft as accessory after the fact, he had some of the stolen goods in his possession and he was a fugitive from justice, for he was then in "hiding." Discovery was certain. He was to be ejected from his home and in disgrace had to face the awfulness of actually earning his own living by work. Then, after a mild attack of remorse, he was equal to the situation and in a manly way accepted it, made himself a suit of clothes in which he could make a decent appearance and began life anew with the courage, hope, pride and confidence that comes from the consciousness of being well dressed.—William George Jordan in Fashion.

STARTING A TRADE.

The New England Peddler and the Secret of His Success.

"Peddlin' is a great business. The secret of it is that you must do a trade, even if it hurts your principles, when there's a possible chance. I remember how I once managed with an old fellow who wouldn't 'hev nothin' to do with me. He was so confident an' sure he wasn't goin' to trade that I made up my mind he'd got to. I've got wooden nutmegs, pocket sawmills, says I, 'an' horn gun flints, basswood hams, tin bungholes, calico hog troughs, white oak cheese an' various other articles too numerous to mention, includin' of cast iron railboles, an' if any of them ain't big enough to answer I'll knock the bottom out of a fryin' pan, an' that'll let any rat through that you've got, I guess. Whoop! says I, 'I'm from way in the mountings of Hepzibad, where the lion roareth an' the whang-doodle mourneth fer her firstborn!' The old man just looked on and shuk his head. 'I'll take pewter, copper, zinc, iron, rags—anythin', says I, 'exceptin' money an' old mades.' But the old man on'y shuk his head.

"I just simply had to start a trade. I saw a pair of old boots, an' I said they was just what I wanted. 'What?' he says. 'Dye buy old boots?' an' I said them was my partickler specialty.

"How much dye give?' he asks, an' I says, 'Half a cent a pound, 's long as half cents is coined.' He didn't take no heed of my meanin', but began to rummage round and git out three or four pair. They wasn't no good to Nowton, but I was startin' a trade. 'Now, hain't yer got some rags?' I says. 'Them was what I asked fer first, an' the old miser said he didn't hev none, but now, stirred up by the chancin of gittin' somethin' fer his old boots, he brought out seventeen pound of rags, an' we done a little bit of tradin' fer thineare. I left the old boots settin' beside the gate when I drav away. 'Them 'll come in handy to start another trade on next time I come,' I says."—Julian Ralph in Harper's Magazine.

KNOWING TOO MUCH.

Some Serious Drawbacks to the Pleasures of Conversation.

One very serious drawback to our pleasure in conversation with a too well informed person is the nervous strain that is involved. We are always wondering what will happen when he comes to the end of his resources. After listening to one who discourses with surprising accuracy upon any particular topic we feel a delicacy in changing the subject. It seems a mean trick, like suddenly removing the chair on which a guest is about to sit down for the evening. With one who is interested in a great many things he knows little about there is no such difficulty. If he has passed the first flush of youth, he no longer embarrasses him to be caught now and then in a mistake. Indeed your correction is welcomed as an agreeable interruption and serves as a starting point for a new series of observations.

The pleasure of conversation is enhanced if one feels assured not only of wide margins of ignorance, but also of the absence of any uncanny quickness of mind.

I should not like to be a neighbor to a wit. It would be like being in proximity to a live wire. A certain insulating film of kindly stupidity is needed to give a margin of safety to human intercourse. There are certain minds whose processes convey the impression of alternating currents of high voltage on a wire that is not quite large enough for them. From such I would withdraw myself.

One is freed from all such apprehensions in the companionship of people who make no pretensions to any kind of cleverness. "The laughter of fools is like the crackling of thorns under a pot." What cheerful sounds—the crackling of the dry thorns and the merry bubbling of the pot!—S. M. Crothers in Atlantic.

The Site of the White House.

The site for the president's palace, as the first maps name it, was selected by President Washington and Major L'Enfant when they laid out the federal city in 1792. They proposed to have the president's house and the capitol reciprocally close to the long vista formed by Pennsylvania avenue, and they also laid out a parklike connection between the two great buildings. The plans for the house, selected by Washington and Jefferson as the result of a competition in which L'Enfant took part, were drawn by James Hoban, a native of Dublin and a medal man of the Society of Arts of that city.—Charles Moore in Century.

Produced the Desired Effect.

Kate, when two years old, was fond of climbing. One day when her mother was in an adjoining room she called excitedly:

"Oh, mamma, mamma, come quick!"

Her mother, thinking she was in danger, hastened to her to find her standing quietly beside the table.

"Why did you call that way?" she said. "I thought you were falling."

"I wanted that cup, and I called you that way so you would hurry."—Little Chronicle.

Why Johnny Went to Bed Supperless.

"What is the matter with this horridish, Mamma?" asked the father of the family. "It looks unwell."

"What's the reason they call it horridish, papa?" inquired Johnny. "I offered it to the horse a little while ago an' he wouldn't touch it."—Chicago Tribune.

There is no use growing excited when a man calls you a liar. If you are an American you knew it before he told you, and if you are not you know his lie. Baltimore American.

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1903.

R. H. STODDARD DEAD.

Richard Henry Stoddard, the poet, died Tuesday at his residence in New York City.

Mrs. Stoddard died less than a year ago, and their son, Lorimer Stoddard, is also dead. Mr. Stoddard was the only one of the family left. For a week past he had been confined to his bed with rheumatism of the heart and ailments incident to old age.

Mr. Stoddard was the last living member of a little group who wrote America's first poetry. The white-haired veteran—who was the intimate friend of Hawthorne, Longfellow, Bayard Taylor, Whittier, Holmes, Whipple, James T. Fields, N. P. Willis, Halleck and Alice and Phoebe Cary, and the acquaintance of Poe, Emerson and practically every literary man or woman of note who has either resided in or visited this country during the past 50 years—was until a year ago as vigorous mentally as ever despite his years, and did a creditable day's work each day as literary editor of the New York Mail and Express.

The poet's birthplace was Framingham, Mass., where the Stoddard family settled as early as 1638. The date of his birth was July 2, 1825. His ancestors were seafaring folk, and when the future poet was but 2 or 3 years old his father, the young captain of the brig Royal Arch, was lost at sea. The widow, being left in rather straitened circumstances, married again, and in 1835, when her boy was 10 years of age, became a resident of New York city.

"The story of my whole life is a tale of mean streets," the poet said recently, "for we were very poor, and our quarters in New York were very humble. As a small boy I spent little of my time in school and much of it at work. I sold matches, was an office boy and earned a little money in a lawyer's office. What may be termed my want of education was obtained in a New York public school, and from 18 to 21 I devoted myself to the ungenial task of learning the iron-moulder's trade."

"From early boyhood I had been fond of books, and I became a bibliomaniac soon after entering my teens, buying books in the old stall with the 50 cents a month my mother allowed me from my wages. In these places, too, I would often loiter, reading Keats, Wordsworth, Shelley and other English poets, whose books I was then unable to purchase."

"I tried finally to write verse, but fortunately lacked the courage to attempt getting into print. Though not consciously imitative of any one, my early verse must have reflected my early reading. Poem after poem was written in my bedroom by the light of a dim oil lamp after a hard day's work, and when there was a good stock on hand I made a bonfire. I wrote and wrote and burned and burned, and finally summoned up courage and sent something to a little magazine which, much to my surprise, printed it. Equal luck awaited me in one or two other periodicals, and I was soon a regular contributor to the Knickerbocker Magazine, the Union Magazine, Sartan's Magazine and others."

WILD CAT TREED BY FIRE.

Odd Incidents of Recent Forest Fires as Related by Fire Fighters

The forest fires which raged on the South Mountains last week were the most destructive in recent years. Some odd incidents occurred during the rapid spread of the flames. In relating a few of them the Blue Ridge Zephyr says:

Forestry Superintendent David Knepper, so the story comes to this paper, saw a wild cat treed by the fire and heard his plaintive screams above the roar of the flames. The cat was driven from his lair by the fire and went dashing and crashing through the woods, making huge leaps here and crawling hastily under fallen trunks and diminutive trees there, in a frantic effort to escape the snapping tongues of the fire. The frenzied animal made good speed but the conflagration did better and the cat realized that he could not run further. With one last effort he leaped part way up a tree and climbed quickly into the highest branches. There he crouched and cried in most distressing fashion while the hot flames passed over and around him, nor would he come down until the fire in the underbrush and foliage of the tree had practically died out.

Elmer Shockey, Slabtown, had an unique experience. He was returning from the Gum spring when the fire got very close to him. A blacksnake roared from his quarters by the flames, was gliding along behind him at top most speed. He caught up with Shockey and the two, man and snake, raced together. Shockey, for some reason, began to fear the reptile would attack him and after they had traversed about 400 yards he stopped long enough to pick up a long pole and with it to toss the reptile into the advancing flames. Then he ran to save himself from the fire that was almost upon him. The flames had the snake in their embrace in a minute and killed him in a very short time.

Countless rabbits and pheasants were destroyed by the flames, and a number of deer perished.

It is said there will be an immense huckleberry crop this season because of the burning of the underbrush.

Some of the experienced mountain residents say they do not think all the large trees were damaged materially by the flames—that the conflagration passed along too quickly to get a good hold on them and kill the sap.

100,000 MAY SOON BE IDLE.
New York, May 8.—With building operations in this city, so far as the use of brick and lumber is concerned, at a standstill today and the strike on the subway work apparently as far from being ended as ever, owing to the refusal of the strikers to approve of the arbitration agreement between the subway company and the Central Federal Union, the labor situation seems more threatening than ever before.

In the opinion of experts $56,000,000 in capital will be tied up in incomplete buildings by next Monday unless some change in the situation occurs. Fully 100,000 persons will suffer. Capitalists have laid aside plans for building until they are assured that the work can be pushed through to completion. Monday has been fixed upon as the time when work on nearly all buildings must come to an end, as the contractors cannot keep more than enough bricks or lumber to last for a few days on hand in the new structures. This surplus is rapidly disappearing, and already express wagons have been pressed into service to bring bricks, sand and lumber from Brooklyn to Manhattan.—Sun.

A. W. Machen, superintendent of the free delivery service, has been relieved from duty pending the result of the Postoffice Department inquiry.

The historic residence of H. B. McKinney was burned at Williams-town, Va. It was built in 1800 by Hezekiah Bukey, who was one of the jurors in the trial of Aaron Burr for conspiracy, and both Burr and Herman Blennerhassett had been guests at the house.

The Oakland Beach Hotel, at Oakland Beach, R. I., and two adjoining buildings were burned.

Fire Lieutenant Clarke died from injuries received at the Diamond Mills fire in Buffalo. The damage to the mills by the flames amounted to $200,000.

FIGHTING FOREST FIRES.

Superhuman Efforts to Save Towns in the Alleghenies Around Johnstown, Pa.

Johnstown, Pa., May 13.—Without a rest for 60 hours, exhausted and choked with smoke, the lumbermen and mountaineers of Cambria, Somerset and Westmoreland counties are praying for rain to quench the forest fires that have been raging for a week.

By almost superhuman efforts of the inhabitants, and with the aid of fire companies summoned from Altoona and Johnstown the villages and mills at Dunlo, Vintondale and Twin Rocks have been saved. On the Laurel Hill, in Westmoreland county, several houses have been burned and loss of life was narrowly avoided. Guards surround the Conemaugh Powder Company's plant at Seward to prevent the flames reaching that establishment.

The relays of mountaineers and lumbermen work about two hours each, when a new body of fire-fighters takes the place of each retiring brigade.

Latrobe, Pa., May 12.—The most destructive forest fire in years is sweeping the ridge and threatening the destruction of Waterford and Laughlinstown. The fire commissioners have a large force of men fighting the fire.

Bradford, Pa., May 12.—Forest fires are again raging in this vicinity. Near Ormsby, yesterday, 50 oil well rigs were destroyed. The majority of them belonged to the South Pennsylvania Oil Company. Nine thousand cords of wood, chopped and piled in the forest to be used in the manufacture of wood alcohol, were consumed. Hundreds of men are at work. The fire is moving rapidly through a region where many oil wells are located, and there is no absolute way of checking its progress. At Timbuctoo another forest fire is raging. A family living in the woods near Ormsby is missing.

William Henry Thomas, a 12-year old colored boy, was arrested in Frederick, Wednesday, by Deputy Sheriff Carter, on a charge of stealing a horse and wagon belonging to R. Lee Horsey, of near Burkittsville. According to the information received at the sheriff's office, Mr. Horsey, while driving between Knoxville and Petersburg Wednesday, came up with the boy along the road and gave him permission to ride in the wagon. While Mr. Horsey stopped at a blacksmith shop the boy drove off. In the wagon were a trunk and Mr. Horsey's coat. The boy declares that he did not intend to steal, but that the horse was started by some boys, and he could not stop it.

Ex-Gov. John Lee Carroll called upon County Clerk John H. Owings in Elliott City, last week to make inquiry as to the law governing the removal of voters to other States. Last fall ex-Governor Carroll removed from his Howard county home to Washington, D. C., where he spent the winter. He did not take the necessary oath, he said because he was not aware of the existence of such a law. In consequence of his failure to make the necessary affidavit before the County Clerk of his intention to return, he will be obliged to remain in the State one year before he will be entitled to a vote.

IN A CRITICAL CONDITION.

J. Walter Schamell, the young man who shot himself Sunday afternoon on the street in Brunswick in a fit of desperation because Miss Lilly Daily refused to marry him, is in a critical condition, spitting blood from one lung which was perforated by the bullet he fired into himself. He was attentive to Miss Daily for some time. The date for the wedding was set for Wednesday last, but on Sunday afternoon the young lady told him she would not marry him because he was drinking. Finding his persuasions unavailing he pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot himself in her presence.

The young lady, whose home is at Berkeley, Springs, W. Va., was at the home of Mr. C. F. Keenen, Brunswick. After Schamell had shot himself he was taken to his home and is now under care of physicians.—Sun.

The Grand Jury of the Baltimore Criminal Court for the May term was sworn in and formally charged by Judge Stockbridge as to their duties, the most important matter being the conduct of the late municipal election, especially the conduct of the election officials of the four precincts in which the ballots were turned over to the Supervisors of Election without being counted.

The Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons discussed the methods of Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the Austrian surgeon, and some adverse criticism was elicited.

After the prosecution closed its case the State's Attorney confessed to a judgment of not guilty. About 15 minutes before the shooting Lee started up the railroad track from the station. Murray was coming up behind on his way home. As Lee was about to fire again Murray rushed in on him, wrenched the pistol from his hand, and seeing that Lee was drawing a knife shot and killed him.

SLIGHTLY PARALYZED.

Mr. George C. Rhoderick, of Middletown, the veteran editor of the Valley Register, suffered a stroke of paralysis last Thursday night in his office, in Middletown. He was in Frederick Thursday attending the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. William H. McCaffrey. When he returned to Middletown he assisted, as has always been his custom, in getting out the weekly issue of his paper. The work of preparing the papers for the mails, in which he took an active part, had just been completed when the stroke of paralysis occurred. The stroke did not render him unconscious, but affected his speech somewhat and rendered his left arm almost useless. He was assisted to his home and a physician was summoned. His condition has greatly improved. He is 68 years of age and has been associated with the Register for half a century. He is widely known and held in the highest esteem.

MOUNTAIN FIRES

Jack's Mountain, near Monterey, was on fire Sunday last. The fire burned fiercely, destroying a large amount of timber. Both sides of the mountain was on fire. The fire could be seen plainly from this place in the evening. A large number of men fought the fire, and got it under control. On Monday morning very little fire could be seen in that section of the mountain. The mountain between this place and Thurmont was on fire last week. Much timber was destroyed. It is reported that a lot of shingles belonging to Mr. J. M. Stouter was burned, and at one time his shingle machine was in danger of being destroyed.

SERVICES AT OLD HILL CHURCH.

A religious service was held in the Old Hill Church, in Freedom township, Pa., last Sabbath afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. A. R. Steck, pastor of St. James Lutheran Church, at Gettysburg. This was the first of several religious services which will be held in this church during the summer months. These services will be presided over by pastors from the different denominations at Gettysburg, Fairfield, Emmitsburg and other places. By a motion made, and passed by the audience an offering was taken up to be used in renovating and repairing the property—which was reported in a very bad condition. The offering amounted to $15.18, which was very good for the short notice given.

The Rev. Dr. D. H. Riddle, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Emmitsburg, will preach in this church next Sabbath afternoon, May 17, at 2:30 o'clock. Should the weather be inclement there will be no services on this date. These services are non-sectarian, and all are invited to attend and take part in the services.

FIRE AT HAGERSTOWN.

Spoke And Rim Factory Of Pomeroy & Wingert Destroyed.

The spoke and rim factory owned by James and Edward Pomeroy and Henry F. Wingert in the northwestern suburbs of Hagerstown was burned to the ground Thursday morning between 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock, entailing a loss estimated at $20,000. It is understood there was only $5,000 of insurance on the building. The building was one and a half stories high, of frame and 80 feet wide by 180 feet long. The entire fire department was called out, but by the time the firemen reached the scene the building was wrapped in flames. The water pressure was weak and it was necessary to send for the Western Enterprise engine. Thirty thousand feet of walnut lumber in logs loaded on three cars on a switch were burned, together with valuable machinery and thousands of trimmed rims and spokes. Much of the machinery was new and had just been installed. Four carloads of walnut boards were also burned.

Several dwellings adjoining were threatened and the furniture carried out. The factory employs about 25 men regularly. It is understood it will be rebuilt at once.

Edward Valentine, of Cumberland, Meets Death and Two Are Injured.

Edward Valentine aged 19 years, residing with his parents in Cumberland, was crushed to death Tuesday while assisting in loading a freight car on the railroad siding near the Cumberland Glass Works, and Joseph Gerde and Conrad Labor were injured.

The men were in a car loading beer of the Cumberland Brewing Company, when another car was jammed into it, the force causing the heavy barrels to fall, catching the men. Young Valentine was killed almost instantly, his neck being broken. Gerde's arm was broken in two places and Labor's collarbone was broken. Young Valentine was a son of Abraham Valentine, and had been in the employ of the Cumberland Brewing Company for a number of years.

Nick Jackson, the most widely known character in Anne Arundel county, died Monday morning at his home, on Fleet street, Annapolis, of general debility and old age. He was a half-demented old colored man, who, with his quaint figure hobbling along the streets, hurling imprecations at his many juvenile tormentors, and one of the relics of the old era of Annapolis. His constitution was of iron, and his long life, in view of the exposures he underwent, was a marvel to all. Naval officers, after long years of absence, upon their return to Annapolis, remembered Nick Jackson first of all the inhabitants of the city.

RIVALS IN LOVE.

One in Jail and One Probably Fatally Shot

Sheriff Reason took to Belair Jail William Dean, who is charged with shooting John Blackburn, of Havre de Grace last Saturday night. The shooting occurred about midnight and is alleged to have been the result of a fight between the two men as rivals in an affair of the heart. It is said they agreed to settle their difficulties in a fight. Dean said that Blackburn beat him unmercifully and his appearance when he arrived at the jail would seem to carry out this theory. Blackburn has made an ante-mortem statement to Justice Fahy, in which he says he was shot three times with a 38-caliber revolver. The grand jury will investigate the case and in the meantime Dean will be held in jail without bail to await the results of Blackburn's injuries.

The prisoner in his statement says he called on Miss Ophelia McGovern at the home of his uncle, John Boyd, in Havre de Grace, Saturday evening. John Blackburn afterward came to the house, but did not stay. Some time after 11 o'clock Blackburn returned and called Dean out, and when he went out he was struck with a club by Blackburn. He attempted to defend himself with his fists, but found he was unable to cope with the man, and, in order to save himself from being killed, he said that he drew a 38 caliber revolver from his pocket and shot his assailant. The ball entered Blackburn's abdomen. Dean voluntarily gave himself up to the Sheriff of Cecil county at Elkton and was removed to Belair.—Sun.

CATERPILLAR PLAGUE AT EASTON

The caterpillar plague is raging in the Easton district of Talbot county as it did last spring. These pests are destroying the beautiful foliage upon ornamental and fruit trees. Citizens are endeavoring to destroy the caterpillars by burning them out of their web-covered retreats. To all appearances these ravenous creatures are identical with those so destructive last year. There are millions of these worms, and every variety of tree is attacked by them.

HAT RAISES ITSELF.

The newest invention is a hat which salutes the ladies automatically. By means of a clock work the poor man who is too fatigued to raise his hat to a lady friend is able to escape an imputation of impoliteness. He has simply slightly to incline his head and the hat raises itself gracefully. On his head resuming the perpendicular, the hat goes back to its perfect position. Of course the owner has to wind up the hat every night like a watch.

A NEGRO POSTMASTER.

His Office Is Quindocquia, In Somerset County.

Quite a little flurry of excitement was caused in Princess Anne, Md., Tuesday by an announcement that the Postoffice Department had recently appointed a negro postmaster at Quindocquia Postoffice, in Somerset county. The announcement of appointment was made about 10 days ago, but it seems that the matter did not attract public attention for some days, and only within the last day or two did the people of the county generally realize that Somerset was to have her first negro postmaster. Indeed so far as is known there, this is the first instance of the appointment of a negro as postmaster in this State. The appointee is one Andrew J. Day.

It seems that the postoffice at Quindocquia was established upon the strength of a petition forwarded to the Postoffice Department from the neighborhood of Quindocquia, and it is generally understood that the signers of the petition were obtained through the instrumentality of Charles Tilghman, a negro merchant, at whose store the postoffice was to be kept. Day, the newly appointed postmaster, came from Virginia, and few people in the county knew anything about him or his past history. It is probable that for this reason the announcement of his appointment did not at first suggest to anyone the idea that the appointee was a negro. When the facts in connection with the appointment began to come to the surface a few days ago it seems that Republican politicians in the county were informed that Day's record was not good, and steps were taken to have the appointment revoked. It is now announced that Congressman Jackson will ask the Postoffice Department to recall Day's commission and to discontinue the office.—Sun.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.

St. Mary's College Temperance Society Closes This Year's Meetings with Election of Officers.

On Sunday, May 10, Mount Saint Mary's Temperance Society held its last meeting for this school year. President Malachi E. Kitrick, of Wilkes-Barre, called the meeting to order at one o'clock. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Before proceeding with the regular business a graphophone concert was given by Mr. Robley Schwarz, of Harrisburg, Mr. Leo P. Milligan, of Alabama, read an excellent sketch of the late Father Bessons, of Indiana, a great Temperance leader. Several musical selections were then rendered by request. The students were delighted with "The Good Old Summerhyme" and joined in the song enthusiastically. George L. Rice, of McSherrystown, read a paper on "Beauty and Alcoholism," a very sensible and philosophic essay. James F. McKeever, of Pittsburg, read an article on "What Drinking Will Do," and in it he drew a splendid moral.

The President then appointed Messrs. McKeever, Rice and Leo P. Milligan to nominate candidates for the offices of President and Secretary. After consultation the committee suggested the names of Mr. J. E. McDermott, of Boston, and Mr. Wm. J. Munster, of Elizabeth, for President, and Mr. Richard O. Gerow, of Mobile and Emmett B. Kennedy, of Louisville, for Secretary. An election was held which resulted in the choosing of Mr. Munster for President, and Mr. Kennedy to fill the office of Secretary for another year.

Before retiring Mr. Kitrick spoke, and gave some excellent advice in regard to the building of the temperance society. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Kitrick for his great service to the temperance society, and the members in general expressed regret at his retirement from office.

The Reverend Director spoke a few words in which he complimented the retiring president on his services, voiced his pleasant remembrance of the at the strides which temperance is making, and especially was he delighted at the interest which the students have manifested in their college society. He tried to impress upon his hearers the necessity of temperance when one wishes to succeed in life, and pleaded with the boys to stand up for what is good, for what is manly. He drew as an example of the man or young boy who in the face of sneers and unmanly influences, will dare to do right, will dare to abstain from alcoholic drink, will dare to be more manly than the sneerer, and remain unsouled by evil influence.

After prayer, the meeting adjourned.

EMMETT B. KENNEDY, Sec'y.

Samuel Bennette, who resided near Ellerslie, Allegany county, was taken to an insane asylum near Harrisburg, Pa., having suddenly become insane. He had a horror of gray hair for the last 10 years and kept his hair and whiskers dyed a deep black with some kind of a preparation. The physician who attended Mr. Bennette thinks the dye went to the brain. The unfortunate man is of splendid physique.

WILLIAM UPDEGRAFF RETIRES.

The retirement of Mr. William Updegraff, of the firm of George Updegraff & Sons, is an event of unusual interest in Hagerstown business circles. In connection with his present factory he has also conducted a large retail store.

RAPE AS A FORAGE CROP.

It Has High Feeding Value For Pasturing Sheep and Hogs.

Rape is much like the Swedish turnip in appearance, but the root is more like cabbage. The leaves are large and smooth, the flowers bright yellow, seed pods usually two inches long, with seed black and globular. The plant reaches a height of from one and a half to two feet, and the roots penetrate the soil to a considerable depth.

The rape most used in America is of the winter or biennial variety. Dwarf Essex or English is the most widely cultivated. Dwarf Victoria has recently given excellent results in New England and the northwest. In this country rape is grown almost exclusively for selling and summer and winter pasturage.

Rape is best adapted to rather cool, moist climates, such as prevail in portions of Canada and the northern United States. It can, however, be successfully grown as a forage crop in many of the warmer and drier sections.

In the northern states the biennial rape will not survive the winter, hence does not produce seed. In the south it may be grown as a fall or winter forage. The annual varieties used for the production of oil form seed the first year, but these kinds are not suitable for forage.

In favorable seasons or with a small amount of irrigation excellent crops of rape are grown in Wyoming, Montana, the Dakotas and other states in the so called semiarid region, and many instances are on record where good crops have been produced without irrigation under conditions of drought so severe as to cause the failure of corn and other farm crops. In the middle south rape cannot compete with crimson clover for forage.

Throughout the northern states generally seedling may take place from the first week in May to the middle or last of July, according to the season and locality. In the south the seed may be sown in September or early in October. Under favorable conditions two to three pounds of seed per acre will be sufficient, and it will never be necessary to use more than five pounds per acre.—A. S. Hitchcock.

is made of inch lumber. The boards A A are hinged to a central board of the same width and swing up and hook to a head block C, after wool is laid on table. B is of leather twelve inches wide, with slits to allow for tying. This leather is a foot longer than the bottom board and has a bar in end and a chain which is brought over and hooked on the hook in lever D. This gives greater leverage, and the notches in leg of horn hold it.

The Hen the American Bird.

The hen is a sweet tempered, hard working, productive creature. She is identified with our home life and our domestic and national prosperity. She lays $29,000,000 worth of eggs every year, or four and a fraction eggs for each individual in the land. When the eagle is loading around waiting to steal something to eat, the modest hen is attending to business, and after a life of activity, laying eggs, cooking, laying more eggs and hatching little chicks, she gives up her life that the American boarding house may thrive and wax fat.

A Practical Weed War.

In Canada they begin at the beginning in the eradication of weeds. Dr. Fletcher tells that in the schools of Manitoba the children are taught to know and name the thirty commonest weeds on their fathers' farms and tell whether they are yearly, two year or biennial plants.

THE DUST SPRAY.

Its Advantages and Disadvantages, Machine and Formula.

In response to general interest in the subject the Country Gentleman has collected information from various fruit growers and also presents a cut which gives some idea of the construction of one type of apparatus or dust spraying. The cylinder is the dust box, and the wheel works the air blast. D. W. Maxwell says:

Like being your conveyor, you have a basis upon which you can make a compound with perfect safety to your foliage that will exterminate insect life. You will never see any discoloring of fruit. It gives you a perfect foliage. In the liquid process you cannot have thorough work, but in the dust every particle of the tree is covered, not only that, but everything around it. As a fungicide there is no comparison of the two methods nor in destroying the cankerworm and codling moth. You can spray from forty to fifty acres in a day of trees from fifteen to twenty years old at one-half the expense of liquid spraying; cost of material per tree, 3 cents. By our experience we have perfected a formula.

How to Make the Spray.

One barrel of fresh lime, 25 pounds bluestone, 5 pounds concentrated lye, 25 pounds powdered sulphur, 5 pounds paris green (pure). Increase the paris green to 10 pounds for cankerworms. Break the lime into small pieces and put it into a box 3 by 6 feet. Dissolve the bluestone in boiling water, 6 gallons. Dissolve the lye in 5 gallons hot water. Keep the two solutions separate. Take a sprinkler and sprinkle the solutions on the lime. If not enough to slack into dust, use water. Cover over the dust when through slacking. Make a sieve of fine wire and attach a long handle. Sieve out the dust. Rub the sulphur through sieve into the dust and put the paris green in. Stir thoroughly. Be careful not to get the dust too damp. Your compound is now ready for use. Spray just before the bloom opens, then as it drops, then once a week until you have sprayed six times, then once every two weeks until the 1st of August.

A Conservative View.

J. M. Stedman of the Missouri experiment station writes: I can briefly say that the dust process cannot take the place of the liquid process for applying insecticides in all cases, but that in many instances it is just as effective, while in a few it seems to be more effective. Where one has a number of small plants, such as cabbages, strawberries and the like, it frequently happens that the dust process is more effective than the liquid and also has an advantage over the liquid process, in that it is much more readily managed. On the other hand, in spraying large orchard trees it is not as effective, especially for the codling moth, as is the liquid. Many orchards are located on steep hillsides, where it is practically impossible for a team to draw a heavy load of water. The ground in other orchards is so soft during the spring that it is practically impossible to draw a heavily loaded water tank through the orchard. In still other orchards the location is such that it is impossible to obtain sufficient water for the spraying. In such instances it becomes a matter of using the dust process or none at all.

Handy in the Garden.

For the garden the dust process is so much lighter that a person can readily carry the machine, and do the dusting that would require a barrel of water in case of the liquid process. The dust process also has an advantage in that in many instances it is much more readily made up, and many people will use a small hand dust machine where they will not go to the trouble of using a liquid one. The paris green or other arsenical poison used in the dust machine readily floats in the air and is blown a considerable distance by the wind, so that in dusting the trees one should be careful to see that the dust does not blow in the face, otherwise one is apt to inhale too much arsenical poison. The horses should also be kept away from the dust. It is advisable in the use of the dust to apply it early in the morning while the dew is upon the plants or soon after a rain, and it is also well to apply the dust when there is a slight breeze.

Farmers and Cannerymen.

The Farmers' Protective association of central New York is making trouble for the canning factories in setting prices for which the members are willing to grow their produce instead of taking the prices offered, as heretofore. The scale adopted is considerably in advance of what was received by farmers last year. Some factories have granted a slight increase. In Maryland there are much agitation and conflict between growers and packers of tomatoes along the eastern shore.—Country Gentleman.

Leave the Old Hen in Peace.

During the hatching, if you are wise, you will not be too curious, but will allow the instinct of the hen to do her work. It may be well to quietly reach under her and remove such eggshells as can be removed without disturbing her, but nothing further should be attempted.

Usually the Way.

Mamie—She is trying to keep her marriage a secret.

Maud—How do you know?

"She told me so."—Baltimore World.

Hardly as She Meant It.

Monument Man—What shall I put on your husband's tombstone, madam? Distracted Widow—Oh, say that he was my husband and that he is happy now.—Life.

Those who pursue happiness are fortunate to catch up with content.

Language is the subtlest instrument ever played on by man. Its variations are illimitable—that is, they are limited only by the powers of the human mind and soul in all possible situations. The power of words or speech exceeds that of music because language is more than music and even includes music. Language in the hands of a master is pregnant with every meaning.

A nation's language is at once an expression and a mold of its character, reflecting from century to century the development of its civilization and its advance in intellectual and moral culture, in learning and refinement. The flexible Greek tongue was the product and the instrument of the subtle Greek intellect. The distinctive qualities of the classic speech of the Roman declare the dignity and the virile energy which were inseparable from the old Roman.—Portland Oregonian.

Scattered Too Much.

"It always pays to be conservative," said the careful man. "Now, I recall the case of the man from Dyersville, Dyer county, Tenn."

"I can lick any man in Dyersville," he announced one day in the main street of that village.

"There was no response. 'I can lick any man in Dyer county,' he then proclaimed.

"Still there was no reply to the challenge. Emboldened by the success of his bluff, the man shouted, 'I can lick any man in Tennessee!'"

"At that a long lank mountaineer peeled off his coat and wiped up the street with the boaster.

"Gentlemen," said the braggart, as he brushed off his clothes, "the trouble with me is that I scatter too darn much!"

Exhausted Brain Cells.

Nerve specialists say that a great many suicides are the direct results of exhausted brain cells. When you find yourself becoming morose and despondent, when you are conscious that the zest of life is evaporating, that you are losing the edge of your former keen interest in things generally and that your life is becoming a bore, you may be pretty sure that you need more sleep. That you need country or outdoor exercise. If you get these, you will find that all the old enthusiasm will return. A few days of exercise in the country rambling over the hills and meadows will erase the dark pictures which haunt you and will restore buoyancy to your animal spirits.—Success.

Getting Into a Life Buoy.

The average person in danger of drowning usually attempts to lift a life buoy over his head, with the result that he is immediately plunged deeper into the water. A good swimmer can do this with a sudden upward jerk, but with the nonswimmer it is almost an impossible feat.

What he should do when he has seized the buoy is to place both hands, palms downward, on the buoy on the part nearest the body, pressing it downward and slightly away, when the farther part of the buoy will rise out of the water and actually fall over the head. The arms can then be put through easily, "and there you are."

"I think gossip is never entirely useless." "Yes; it can always be used to satisfy other people's curiosity."—Brooklyn Life.

"Wine of Cardui is indeed a blessing to tired women. Having suffered for seven years with weakness and bearing-down pains, and having tried several doctors and different remedies with no success, your Wine of Cardui was the only thing which helped me, and eventually cured me. It seemed to build up the weak parts, strengthen the system and correct irregularities."

By "tired women" Mrs. Adams means nervous women who have diseased ovaries, and suffer from womb, ovarian troubles or any of these ailments that women have. You can cure yourself at home with this great women's remedy, Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui has cured thousands of cases which doctors have failed to benefit. Why not begin to get well today? All druggists have $1.00 bottles. For any stomach, liver or bowel disorder Theodor's Black-Draught should be used.

Views on Ambition and Dyspepsia.

"Dyspepsia," wrote Eugene Field, "often incapacitates a man for endeavor and sometimes extinguishes the fire of ambition." Though great despite his complaint Field suffered from indigestion all his life. A weak, tired stomach can't digest your food. It needs rest. You can only rest it by the use of a preparation like Kodol, which relieves it of work by digesting your food. Rest soon restores it to its normal tone.
