Extensive Guardianship Of Col. J. Blair Shoenfelt. Some Of His Varied Duties

Col. J. Blair Shoenfelt, of Muskogee, I. T., is the guardian for 85,000 wards, says the Kansas City Journal. This is exactly what his job as Indian agent of the Five Civilized Tribes amounts to. It is probably the most extensive guardianship extant. These wards have 19,000,000 acres of land and about $25,000,000 in cash and Colonel Shoenfelt has a parental control over all their land and money. This is not all. He has supervisory control of their different tribal governments. In fact he is almost the whole works.

Up to 1874 each of the Five Civilized Tribes, composed of the Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws and Seminoles, had an agent to look after its affairs. On that date Congress consolidated the agencies into a union agency and located it at Muskogee. Since then one agent has had to handle the affairs of all five tribes.

The most troublesome work the agent has is the regulation of trade between the Indians and whites. The different nations are still working under their own tribal laws. Each nation has different laws, especially governing taxation. All, however, are intended to make the white man's burden heavy. The agent must enforce these laws with his Indian police. In the Chickasaw nation he must collect a tax of 25c. a head on all cattle introduced and also 1 1/2 per cent. on all goods introduced by the white merchants. Both merchants and cattlemen are continually on the warpath. The cattlemen have fought the tax through all the courts of the land and lost. The merchants are now lawing over it. They have just started. Arbitrary action must be taken by the agent to enforce the collection of taxes. Only one way is open. If the cattle tax is not paid he has to drive the cattle out of the country. Frequently if the Indian police drive large herds into Texas or Oklahoma or any old place, just so they are expelled from the Indian country. If a merchant refuses to pay his tax his store is closed.

At South McAlester the merchants have enjoined the agent from closing their stores, but in issuing the temporary writ the judge told them that they would have to pay the tax sooner or later. In the Creek country he collects a grazing rental for cattle. The Creeks have repealed their tribal merchants' tax. This gives merchants free trade. The Seminoles enforce their own laws under the direction of the agent. This is one of the concessions they got in their treaty with the Government which the other nations overlooked. In the Cherokee country the agent has to collect the hay and ferry tax. In all the nations he collects the royalties on coal, asphalt, timber, stone and sand. These royalties are used in maintaining Indian schools.

All payment for town lots for the entire Indian Territory are made direct to the Indian agent. This makes a tremendous amount of work. There are more than 200 towns building, and the average is about 2,000 lots to the town. A separate account must be kept with each town-lot purchaser. Purchasers are allowed time in making their payments, and this compels many entries on each account. The agent makes out all patents to town lots.

In the Creek country he acts as a clearing house for farm property deals. When a person buys a farm in the Creek country he must deposit the deed from the Indian with a certified check covering the price of the land with the Indian agent. If the sum is deemed adequate the Secretary of the Interior approves the deed. The agent then gives the deed to the purchaser and the check to the Indian. This is the only nation where farm lands can be sold at this time. All long-time leases over the Territory, either on land or mineral, must take the same course. Short time leases of some kind are made without approval or this routine.

In substance Col. Shoenfelt acts as treasurer of all the tribes except the Seminoles, and all moneys paid out, for whatever claims, pass through his hands. This includes bills for running the schools as well. He has to sign the check for every school teacher in the country. In order to keep the teachers on their mettle each one is required to make a monthly report on the back of a voucher. If the report doesn't show up right the teacher is hauled up on the carpet and sometimes his pay is withheld.

Close on to $2,000,000 is received and paid out by the Indian agent annually. At the present time he has five payments going on. The largest one is the Chickasaw, $40 per capita payment. In the transaction of this vast business Colonel Shoenfelt is required to write on an average 500 letters daily. These embrace replies to all sorts of questions. Speculators are about the only people who are not honored with replies to their questions. The agent lets them shift for themselves. He says it is not his duty to post speculators.

Just now Colonel Shoenfelt is making a specialty of removing intruders from Creek lands. The department furnished him $15,000 to do the work. As rapidly as possible he is putting the Creeks into peaceful possession of their allotments. Over 5,000 intruders were found on the allotments and many of them are being removed by force. The Indian police, under the direction of the agent, simply swoops down upon them and sets them and their goods out in the highway. They have no right of appeal. No court has jurisdiction to stop the police in this work. Timber thieves are treated worse. Their property is confiscated, and if they show fight they are lodged in jail.

While the financial end of his work is the most stupendous, Colonel Shoenfelt finds plenty of other work to do to break the monotony. For instance, he acts as arbitrator between Indian and Indian. Hundreds of disputes arise between the Indians themselves and they always take their troubles to the agent. Not long ago the Creeks in one neighborhood got into a row over some hogs running at large. They came to the agent. A regular hearing was given them. Each Indian was allowed to have his say. Things were not going right to suit one Indian. He thought the speaker on his side had not explained the thing intelligently.

"Maybe so I know more about it," said he, "cause I live among hogs." Even the Indians had to laugh. The speaker could not understand why they were laughing.

No matter how trivial the trouble, the agent must hear it. He is the Indian's adviser and friend. He knows all about their family affairs, and oftentimes prevents a separation and divorce. He is also the poor commissioner. Whenever he finds an Indian or group of Indians in a destitute condition he supplies them with food and clothing. He is also the board of health for the territory and must promulgate all sorts of rules and regulations in case of an epidemic. The Government furnishes him with plenty of money to look after the health and comfort of the Indians. Some time ago smallpox broke out among the Cherokees. He was given $50,000 to use. He suppressed the epidemic and only spent $1,500. The remainder was turned back.

Colonel Shoenfelt is also the game warden of the Territory. It is his duty to protect the game. He uses the Indian police for the work. Frequently the guns and ammunition of hunters are seized and confiscated. The game laws or rather lax and the agent is urging Congress to straighten them.

The Indian agent is road overseer for the Territory also. He has absolute control of the highways. Just now this work is arduous. The Indians are taking their allotments and are breaking up the old travel trails wherever they run through their farms. While there is no law requiring roads to go along section lines, yet ground has been reserved on the lines for roads. The Indians are fencing up roads and compelling the public to break new roads along section lines. It is difficult to travel in this country now for that reason. Colonel Shoenfelt says, it will take two or three years to break the new roads, but after that there will be no trouble. He also keeps track of telephones and new railroad lines and sees that the right-of-way tax is paid, also the tribal tax.

It is a difficult task to look after the interests of 85,000 wards, most of whom speak their native languages. If they all talked one language it would be easier. But they don't. The Cherokees have a language of their own; the Creeks and Seminoles have a language and the Choctaws and Chickasaws have a language. All languages are different. One tribe doesn't understand the language of the other and a good portion of all tribes don't understand the English language. Interpreters for the different tribes are kept close at hand, so that they can be reached when wanted.

An unscrupulous agent could get rich in a few years by taking advantage of the inside official information he possesses and joining issues with some speculators. Col. Shoenfelt is not of that type. Speculators learned early in the game to give him a wide berth. He simply sees that everybody gets a square deal. The white man with a straightforward, legitimate deal has nothing to fear from him. But the speculator with a scheme to rob the Indian is shown no mercy.

BORING INSECTS.

Damage Done to Fruit Trees by the Bark Beetle.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 23.—Many complaints have come to this office here of late of injury to fruit trees by a small boring insect, the fruit-tree bark-beetle, Scolytus rugulosus.

It does its injury by boring into the trunk and branches, and if there is no effort made to check its ravages, the bark of the infested tree will soon be found to be thickly "peppered" with holes as though by fine bird shot. There are the exit holes of the beetle that have in their larval state mined and developed under the bark.

Early in the spring the beetles make their appearance and may then commence their work by boring through the bark. After reaching the sap wood, feeding as she goes, the female constructs a brood chamber and along the sides of this at very short intervals, gnaws little pockets in which she deposits her eggs. According to Dr. J. B. Smith the eggs hatch within three days and the larva attains maturity in about twenty days, at which time it changes to the pupa, this period lasting about seven days. It now emerges as an adult beetle, passing its life cycle in four to six weeks.

Prof. F. H. Chittenden, Department of Agriculture, states in his circular No. 29, The Fruit Tree Bark-Beetle, that he is led to believe that there are three generations in this latitude.

Until recently it was thought by some that this insect would only attack diseased trees, but Professor Chittenden states that he has seen this insect working in perfectly healthy trees and the writer has witnessed the same many times this year. Therefore there is no doubt that the insect will infest healthy trees, but it may prefer diseased or dying wood.

In giving remedies to employ against this pest, the writer realizes that borers are at best very hard insects to deal with and especially is it so in this case as the beetles are extremely small and numerous and also the fact that they attack any portion of the trunk and branches of a tree. Owing to the insect's habit of breeding in diseased or dying trees, it is of prime importance that all brush wood and other remnants of orchards should always be burned. Where a tree is seen to be badly infested, it is best to cut it down and burn to prevent infestation to sound ones. However, a tree may recover from slight attacks, and in this case always cut out and burn the dying or dead growth as soon as detected. For this as well as other insects, orchards should always be kept in a vigorous condition so they will more readily be able to withstand insect injury.

Many washes have been employed as deterrents against this pest. Whale oil soap at the rate of two pounds to the gallon of water, applied with a brush on the trunk and larger branches may prevent the beetles from entering the bark to some extent. Also a wash composed of one pint of crude carbolic acid and one gallon of soft soap, diluted with eight gallons of water, has been recommended. Much good may come by touching lightly infested spots from which gum or sap has begun to ooze with a small sponge or brush saturated with kerosene. If this is done on the outset of attack, many beetles may be killed and thereby much consequent damage prevented.

GODMOTHER OF FURNACES.

Miss Helen E. Reed is an unrivaled godmother of blast furnaces. All over Western Pennsylvania operators look upon her as the personification of good luck. She has started the fires in more furnaces than any other young woman in the country, and the success that has attended the enterprises so inaugurated has been phenomenal.

Miss Reed's fame has extended beyond the borders of her State, and the last fiery christening over which she presided was in Toledo, Ohio. She went thither at the special request of the manager of Pickand, Mather & Co., to launch upon it, blazing way the $1,000,000 furnace of that corporation.

Blast furnace operators are superstitious folk. They would not for a moment hear to initiate a new plant on Friday, nor on the 13th of the month. It is part of the articles of their belief that some young woman shall start the fire in a new furnace. Nowadays Miss Reed's services are in great demand. She seems to bewitch all the furnaces with her touch and make failure impossible.

Her home is in Sharpsville, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philo Reed, live.

ROTTEN DYNAMITE.

Five tons of dynamite were recently condemned at Fort Pickens, a military post, 10 miles from Pensacola, Fla. Disintegration or "rotting" of nitro-glycerin is rapid in a warm climate, and the dynamite becomes peculiarly sensitive to shocks when the nitro-glycerin it contains is partly disintegrated. The condemned dynamite was taken out and placed about a mile from the fort and set fire to. It did not merely burn up rapidly without detonating, but it exploded with great violence, tearing a hole in the beach "as big as a house," shattering windows in Pensacola, 10 miles away, and "painfully shaking" the men at the fort.

The lesson is that spoiled dynamite cannot be safely destroyed by burning it—especially in large quantities. It should be burned only in very small quantities, if at all; but in this particular case perhaps the safest and quickest way would have been a deep-sea burial, for the sea water would quickly complete the work of disintegration and dissolution.

TIT FOR TAT.

Two Irishmen, Pat and Mike found themselves one day very much in need of money, and as a means of replenishing their pocketbooks decided to go on a foraging expedition, each man for himself.

Pat soon found a cow which he appropriated and succeeded in selling. Mike likewise stole a watch, and with its equivalent in money jingling in his pocket, met up with Pat.

They proceeded to have a "time", and in course of a few hours, had managed to get drunk enough to be led to the police station to sober up.

Next morning Pat, thinking to joke Mike about the watch he had stolen said: "And what toime might it be, Mike?"

"Faith and I think it's about milkin toime Pat," was Mike's quick rejoinder.

"Do you think it wise to write poetry to a young woman with whom you are in love?" said Willie Washington.

"Yes."

SUICIDE BY HANGING.

Mr. John Brown of Kent Island, committed suicide Thursday morning by hanging himself in a meat house on his property. No reason can be assigned for his action. He had amassed considerable money by means of systematic saving, and was not involved in debt and enjoyed excellent health. He was a painter and paper hanger by trade, and had been living on the island for 15 years. He was about 52 years of age.

Mr. Brown went to the island a stranger, and was always very reticent concerning his past life, his home and family. It is thought by some that Brown is not his proper name and that he came from up North to escape from the misery of what had proved an unhappy union. This much was inferred from snatches of conversation had with him. He has no known relatives, and it is not known where his money will go, as he left no will. It is thought that he has money secreted about the premises, as he always earned good wages and lived frugally. On the morning that he took his life he was to have gone to the house of Mr. John Jones to do some papering. Not arriving there at the proper hour, Jones went in search of him. When he arrived at Brown's home, two miles distant, he noticed the door of the meat house left open, and, looking in, saw the body of Brown hanging from a rafter. A bag of meal upon which he stood while tying the rope around his neck was kicked aside and left him hanging about six or eight inches from the floor. An inquest was held in the afternoon, at which it was brought out that Brown's body was still warm when the doctors who had been summoned by Jones arrived and that he could not have been dead over two hours when discovered at ten o'clock.

SILVER DEPOSIT DISCOVERED.

Noah F. Hersh, of York Springs, has discovered along the South Mountain what promises to be valuable deposit of silver ore. He owns a tract of land along the mountain, about two miles back of Latimer postoffice, and had the opinion from surface indications that there were metals of value underneath. Tunneling into the side of the hill he came across rock at a depth of about four feet. A hole was drilled in this and a charge of dynamite inserted. After this blast was put off several fine specimens of ore were thrown out and when analyzed by a chemist in Harrisburg, were found to be rich in silver.

Mr. Hersh intends to continue the work on the tunnel as soon as he can find leisure to do so. A party has already tried to buy the land, but Mr. Hersh is not ready to sell yet. Copper and asbestos have also been found on the tract in small quantities.

Deafness cannot be cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one rational way to treat deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

RECLAMATION OF WEST-ERN ARID LANDS.

The expenditure of millions of dollars by the United States government for the reclamation of hundreds of thousands of acres of arid land in the great West is the subject of discussion among engineers of the government reclamation service, now in session in Denver, Col. The conclusions of this conference will be reported to Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock by Chief Engineer F. H. Newell and orders for active work will then be given.

Engineers in charge of the proposed works in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, South Dakota, Utah, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming are in attendance at the conference. The Gunnison tunnel project in Colorado is one of the most gigantic works to be undertaken. The great Salt river reservoir in Arizona and the work along the Pecos river in New Mexico, along the Shoshone and North Platte rivers in Wyoming will soon receive special attention.

TEXTILE STRIKE.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 29.—Eight hundred plush and velvet weavers employed in the John & James Dobson's mill, at the Falls of the Schuylkill, who have been idle since the inauguration of the textile strike nine weeks ago, reported for work today without their demand for shorter hours or increased pay being granted. The firm, however, was compelled to send home 600 of the workers because the fifty loom fixers employed at the mill have decided to remain out until the demands are granted.

All of the mills in the lower section of the city are in operation, the strikers having returned to work at the old hours with the same pay. In the Kensington district, where the greater number of mills are located, the strikers are holding firm and a compromise may be effected.

In a statement this afternoon John & James Dobson announce that the plush and carpet mills of the firm will be closed down tonight until further notice. This action is the outcome of the refusal of the loom fixers to return to work until their demands are granted. About 900 persons will be thrown out of work by the shut down.

NO TRACE OBTAINED OF LITTLE HARRY BROWN.

No trace has been obtained of Harry Brown, the 8-year-old son of Mr. William H. Brown, 1606 Gough street, Baltimore, who has been missing from his home since last Friday. Every effort is being made by the parents and relatives, aided by the police department, to locate the missing lad. It is thought that if he had been drowned the body would have come to the surface before this. The parents have a hope that the little fellow may have wandered off with tramps and that he will turn up all right.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Western Maryland Repair Hoses' Thrilling Experience.

Friday evening last Mr. A. A. Sanders, foreman, with his gang of four other men, employed on this section of the W. M. Railroad, made a miraculous escape with their lives. They were returning from their day's work on the hand car on schedule time, and were coming down grade in the cut just west of the iron bridge, at the rate of 20 or 25 miles an hour, when they noticed coming around the curve extra freight No. 51, at a rate of 35 miles an hour. The engine was then not more than six or eight rails length from them. Mr. Sanders threw his weight on the brake of his car and all hands jumped for their lives except Daniel Stoops, who was thrown by the sudden stop of the car, head-first between the rails on the roadbed, sustaining from the fall a compound fracture of the left arm at the wrist besides being badly bruised about the elbow and shoulder. When the train had passed Mr. Stoops was found lying just outside the rails and the drivers of the engine had taken a piece of his shirt sleeve off his arm and slightly pinched the flesh. How he got outside the rails and was not ground to pieces, is a mystery to himself and fellowmen. The other men were all more or less bruised and shaken up. Mr. Smith Stoops, a cousin of Daniel, had one eye badly injured. The hand car was struck by the engine and thrown to the side of the track a total wreck. The men had no warning of the approaching train, until it was almost upon them, and their escape from being badly maimed or crushed was a most miraculous one. The Messrs. Stoops above mentioned are formerly from Fairfield, and have been employed on this section the past few months.—New Oxford Item.

A $2,500,000 COAL LAND SALE.

Richmond, Va., July 24.—Mr. B. J. Wysox, of Russell county, second clerk to the Corporation Commission, has just sold 50,000 acres of coal lands in Russell county to Messrs. Hall and Alexander, of Indiana, for $50 an acre. The deed was fixed up today and the transaction will be closed at once.

Much of the land is said to be valuable and would bring much more than $50 an acre if sold separately. It is understood that the purchasers will begin work shortly to develop the coal fields thereon.

Crab Packers Busy.

The crab packing houses at Oxford are now running overtime. A large force of women and children both white and colored, are finding daily employment picking crab meat. The past week was a busy one. Hundreds of thousands of crabs were disposed of, the majority of which are "picked up" and the meat packed in cans or buckets of various sizes up to one gallon and shipped by express to the Northern and Western markets.

Over 1000 barrels of crabs were caught on the Tred Avon and Choptank rivers and disposed of by the Oxford packers last week, which means the handling of several million crabs. The price paid the crabbers is 75 cents a barrel, and some are able to catch between four and five barrels a day.

FIREBUGS AT WORK.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., July 27.—The firebugs who have been active in this place during the past six weeks resumed operations early this morning, when they set fire to a frame barn belonging to Joseph Wild, located in the heart of the city and in dangerous proximity to a number of other frame buildings. The blaze was noticed at 3 o'clock, and had gained such headway when the fire department arrived that it was impossible to extinguish it before the building was destroyed. The loss is several hundred dollars, with no insurance.

Nearly a dozen fires have been started in this city during the past 6 weeks, and property owners are discussing the advisability of organizing a committee of protection.—Herald.

Important Change in Train Service on W. M. R. R.

Commencing August 3, the Western Maryland will make up very materially the time of their No. 13 train, so as to arrive at Hillen Station, Baltimore, at 6:00 p. m., instead of 6:15 p. m., as heretofore. This train will leave Hagerstown at 2:10 p. m., as in the past, and run on same time as heretofore as far as Westminster, leaving the latter point at 4:25 p. m., and arriving at Baltimore as above. By this means passengers will not be made late for their trains, but will arrive in time to connect with the 5:30 p. m. train from Union Station, Baltimore, for Philadelphia and New York, and will also be enabled to make connection with the steamboat lines for Old Point Comfort, Norfolk and other Southern ports.

Chair Car on Western Md. Trains

The Passenger Department of the Western Maryland R. R. announces that "taking effect Monday July 27, chair car 'Gettysburg' will be attached to their regular train leaving Hillen Station daily, except Sunday, at 10:15 A. M., for Hagerstown, and this car attached to Fast Mail train leaving Hagerstown, except Sunday, at 4:10 P. M., for Baltimore. This will enable comfortable trip in chair car at reasonable rates to be made between Hillen Station and Hagerstown and Baltimore. This is quite an innovation, and should be a popular move on the part of the Railroad Company. July 24th.

Death Of Mrs. Edward Mickle.

For The Chronicle. Died, on Wednesday, July 22, Mrs. Josefa Herrera de Mickle, a native of Santiago, Chile, the relict of Edward Mickle, formerly of Baltimore, but at the time of his death, of San Francisco, California.

The lady, whose death is mourned by many devoted friends, had attained the great age of nearly 78 years. She was a remarkable woman in many respects. She belonged to a family prominent in the history of South America, her father, General Ramon Herrera, having been the first President of Southern Peru. Her husband was the uncle of George H. Miles, the Mountain Poet.

She dispensed her charity among the poor of the Mountain in the truly Christian spirit. Her kindly, genial and cultured nature gave her the stamp of true nobility. The plain people whose tale of sorrow, hardships and sacrifices she always listened to with tenderness and whose secret longings she was ever prompt to gratify, will miss her when want pinches.

May it not be hoped that she who stands at the foot of the Great White Throne with hands full of good deeds, will find the reward of the Good? Though her heart which was ever warm with human sympathy is pulseless now, yet, her many good deeds will fill the Sacred Heart with love and mercy; for her and will entitle her to the place of Light and Refreshment for which she always prayed.

Catarrh Of The Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secrete mucus, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me, until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. $50 FINE FOR FIVE REDBIRDS.

After a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. L. Hill, in Gettysburg last Saturday afternoon, Henry Sunday, of East Berlin, was fined 50 dollars and $7.40 costs for the snaring of five Cardinal Grosbeaks. The prosecution was brought under the direction of Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, Secretary and Chief Game Protector of the State Game Commission and the warrant was sworn out on information of Joseph Berrier, a State Game Warden. Constable Chas. Wilson, of Gettysburg, accompanied Game Warden Berrier to East Berlin to make the arrest.

The warrant charged Henry Sunday with catching ten Cardinal grosbeaks but when he pleaded guilty to the snaring of but five, Dr. Kalbfus decided not to take the case any further and Squire Hill simply imposed the fine of $10 for each bird admitted to have been taken by the defendant and the cost of the case, $7.40. In a case of this kind half of the fine goes to the informant and half to the State.

In assisting in this case Constable Wilson performed his first duties as State Game Protector. Sportsmen believe that the heavy fine paid by the defendant will serve as a warning to others who are said to have been violating the game laws.—Gettysburg Compiler.

CHARMIAN ITEMS.

For The Chronicle

Last Tuesday when nearing their Buena Vista summer residence, after their daily afternoon drive, Mr. and Mrs. John Crapper and Miss McSherry were thrown out of their vehicle, and miraculously escaped injury. "Flassie," the valuable thoroughbred spaniel, which for years was Mrs. Crapper's pet, was instantly killed.

The grave of the poor unfortunate dog is now marked by a mound of beautiful flowers.

The spirited horse of Dr. H. T. Thomas, while standing before Hoover's butcher shop at Blue Ridge Summit, managed to get its leg over the trace. In jumping from the vehicle, to extricate the leg, the coachman fell, frightened the horse, which started on a wild run. Before he halted, he succeeded in driving the shaft of the vehicle, to which he was attached, into the chest of Mr. Fowler's valuable horse, taking about two pounds of flesh away. The Fowler horse can scarcely recover.

The people of this locality are indignant at the carelessness shown by Commissioner of Pensioners, Ware, in respect to his late action when asked to cause the arrest of an impostor who was swindling the old soldiers of this locality. The impostor might have been easily caught, had Mr. Ware taken advantage of the information promptly sent to him.

If the secret service men of Washington are so busily engaged trailing corrupt officials, that one could not be spared for such important duty, it would be advisable to increase their ranks; and it has been suggested that if Mr. Ware is so busy altering the complexion of the very useless Boards that he can't take steps to arrest a man who he admits has swindled the old soldiers of Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, he should be laid on the shelf or given an assistant.

Some of the leaders of New York's old 400 have decided that henceforth to belong to that clan one must have associated with Royalty. Others of the same set demur, stating that such restriction would thin their ranks to the verge of ruin.

While the course of the latter is commendable, yet it is logically wrong; it would increase their ranks. Right here in this mountainous district there are many persons who have sat at the table with Kings and Jacks, and your humble servant must confess to having "fumbled" with four queens! and on one memorable occasion the same individual held in his hand a Royal flush! This is a distinction rarely attained at the court of St. James, Vienna, Barbie or St. Petersburg, so it would seem we all might be of the "Smart Set" if one cared to—but we don't; it is only a step from the 400 to Sioux Falls, Dak., and we draw the line at that.

REUNITED AFTER MANY YEARS.

At least two persons in Baltimore have cause to rejoice that the Elks' reunion was held in that city. They are Craig Brown, an Elk from Beaver Dam, Wis., and Mrs. Ella Nicholson, 1083 Granby St., Baltimore, brother and sister, who had not seen each other for 27 years, and each of whom thought the other dead until they were brought together by Mr. Brown's going to Baltimore to attend the reunion.

They had corresponded until ten years ago, when letters went astray, and each thought the other dead. Upon reaching Baltimore, Brown looked in a directory for some of his sister's descendants and found her husband's name.

Night Was Her Terror

MOORE-PALMER NUPTIALS.

Wednesday evening, July 15th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Palmer, of Logan, Iowa, occurred the wedding ceremony of their daughter, Blanche, to Mr. E. A. Moore.

At 8.30 o'clock, Mrs. C. A. Harvey standing at the piano in the back parlor, began singing the beautiful and appropriate selection, "O, Promise Me," and before she had finished with the second verse, the bride, looking very pretty in a dress of white Pointed Spray, and groom, preceded by Miss Fredrica Luce carrying the ring, and attended by the Misses Mary McHenry and Lucy Luce, came down the winding stair, through the beautifully decorated hallway and walking through the front parlor between the two rows of friends, took their places under a beautiful canopy, made in the colors green and white from ribbons and the flowers selected, where the ceremony was pronounced by Rev. Father Murry, of Missouri Valley that made these two man and wife.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Palmer never looked more beautiful than it did Wednesday evening. Miss Mattie White, of Missouri Valley, had charge of the decorations, and everywhere was shown evidences of her artistic ability. In the hallway, where the punch bowl, presided over by Miss Laura McCoid, was stationed, the decorations were of green and white, Miss McCoid standing under a canopy made from these two colors. Walking through the other rooms was like one walking through a beautiful garden, as on every side and above were flowers and ribbons hung in the most catching manner one could conceive. The back parlor was in red and white, sweet peas and nasturtiums being the flowers used in decorating.

After the ceremony was over and the guests had congratulated the happy couple, all were asked to register and were conducted into the dining room which was even more beautiful, if possible, than the other rooms, the decorations being more lavish in colors of pink and white. Here were sitting the bride and groom under a beautiful canopy of the prevailing colors, two large white hearts, pierced with red arrows, hanging over and behind them. A delightful collation was served here by Misses Lucy Hyde, Addie Barnhart, Emma Ernstorf and Vera VanSoy, followed by cigars for the gentlemen.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore enter their new life under the most auspicious circumstances. Everything points to a happy and successful journey down life's pathway together. Mr. Moore has been in Logan and other points in Harrison county for a long time, going there from Baltimore several years ago. He is an enterprising and successful business man both in the conducting of the H. A. Quinn Lumber Co.'s, business in Logan and in his private enterprises. He has always been a leader in the society events of Logan people and is much sought after by the musical people of Logan.

The bride is as popular as the groom. She has lived in Logan with her parents for a number of years and excepting the times she has been located in other places, she has made her home there. She, like the groom is a society leader, and her friends in Logan and other towns are numerous. She is a beautiful, accomplished young lady with excellent traits of character and a home-loving disposition. Among the friends were Mr. H. A. Quinn, brother of the groom; Miss Mina Quinn, niece, and Willie Bennett, cousin. Others from out of town present, were: Those from Missouri Valley being Mr. and Mrs. Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard, Mrs. J. W. Barnhart, the Misses McLaughlin, White, Middleton, Susan and Addie Barnhart, From Woodbine were present, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Kibler, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Kibler, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Curtis, Dunlap; Mrs. Sears McHenry, Denison; Miss Mouch, Creston; Mrs. Chas. Wood, Omaha; F. H. Harvey, Whiting; Mr. and Mrs. Gee Luce, Boston.

GERMAN SYRUP.

We want to impress on our readers that Boschee's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market to-day that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasm of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air; good food, etc. German Syrup will give relief and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much 75 cents. At all druggists.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Clyde Price, 5 years old, son of William J. Price, a well-known resident of Lapidum, Harford county, Md., was fatally burned about the head and body last Saturday. The little fellow was alone in an upstairs room and is thought to have lighted a match, which ignited his clothing. After struggling desperately to extinguish the flames, as shown by the severe burns on his hands, he screamed for help. When his mother reached him he was completely enveloped in flames, which were extinguished by rolling him in a blanket. Dr. Fisher, of Port Deposit, was hastily summoned. It was found that the boy was horribly burned and had inhaled the flames. He suffered intense agony for several hours, when he expired.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited. How do they manifest themselves? In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility. How are they expelled? By Hood's Sarsaparilla, which also builds up the system that has suffered from them. It is the best medicine for all humors.

DRANK ACID TO KILL HIMSELF.

Charles E. Shadrach, manager of the Roxbury distillery at Roxbury, Washington county, ended his life Monday morning by drinking muriatic acid. In a little over an hour after taking the poison Shadrach was a corpse. Before dying he said that trouble drove him to commit the deed.

He had been despondent, it is stated

THE SEALER'S DOCTOR.

In Case of Sickness the Ship's Cook Asked No Questions.

"There is no governor of Newfoundland, and he is a shoo-in for the sealers' health," began the old sealing captain, his deep set eyes twinkling.

"The night afore the North Star left Sen John's for the ice he came aboard to inquire what kind of stuff for medicine chist we had.

"You ought to have a ship's doctor aboard her with 200 men shipped," says he. "Who gives out the medicine?"

"The cook, of course," I answers. "But I'm sarten of one thing, governor. 'Tis 'tween the sealers' health and the sealers' health, there's nothin' to be done."

"How do you know?" he asks pretty sharp.

"Well," I answers, "a man comes runnin' to the cook, and he says, 'My chum's sick, and I want some medicine for him.' The cook never asks no questions as to what's aillin'. He grabs up the first bottle he gets his hand on and pours out some in a cup. If it don't do the man's chum no good he comes back, and the cook pours somethin' out on another bottle, and so on till he strikes somethin' that 'elps him. That's why I know there's nothin' pizen in that chist or the cook would've killed 'arf of 'em twenty years ago!"—Lippin cott's Magazine.

BOER AMUSEMENTS.

Among Them Are Pole Climbing, Ax Throwing and Spade Racing.

The Boer is a firm believer in the advantage of exercise, though his ways are not ours. One favorite form is pole climbing. This consists of having one arm tied behind the back and swarming to the top of the pole with the aid of the legs and the free arm. It sounds simple, but it is not half so simple as it seems.

Another exercise is throwing the hatchet, or ax, to be more correct. An ordinary wood chopping ax is used for this. This is swung round the head until it reaches a sufficient momentum, when it is released. The man who throws the farthest does not of necessity win, as it is necessary that the blade should bury itself in the earth on reaching its destination. It requires a considerable amount of skill to accomplish this.

Another kind of amusement is spade racing. The men stand with one foot on either side of an ordinary spade, grasping the top of the handle between the hands. At the signal they start forward by a series of jumps. If a man's foot leaves its proper place he is disqualified. There is no more getting in this. The distance for such a race as this is generally twenty paces.

The Boer is gifted with wonderful endurance. At long distances he could hold his own with any, but he would not stand any chance with our men at sprint racing, as he lacks the necessary speed.

The Sacred Scarab.

The sacred scarab was for many centuries venerated by ancient Egyptians, a cult shared recently by Hottentots and akin to that of the holy cricket of Madagascar.

In explanation of this Thespian said, "The Egyptians do not venture to give form to their gods; they use symbols of occult meaning." A black and a golden green beetle were both regarded as emblems of Ra, the sun god; of Ptah, the creative power, and of rebirth, resurrection and immortality.

Every beetle was held to be male and self produced. Its thirty toes symbolized the days of a month, and the pelot of dung in which it rolled along its eggs was a type of the movements of the sun.

In ancient Egyptian philosophy the sacred scarab is spoken of as the first living creature that sprang from the mud of the subsiding Nile. It was closely connected with astronomy and used as an amulet of sovereign virtue for the living and the dead.

Origin of "Grass" Widow.

"Why should a woman separated from her husband be called a 'grass' widow?" The term "grass" widow, the latter answered, "has nothing to do with the herbage on our lawns. 'Grass' is a misspelling, sanctioned by custom, of 'grace'. In the past, when divorces were rare, a woman separated legally from her husband was called a 'vidua de gratia' by the Roman church, and the French called her a 'veuve de grace'. The meaning of both terms is the same—'widow by grace'. We took the 'veuve' from the French and translated it properly into 'widow', but the 'grace' was incorporated into our language, misspelling it in the process. You would be technically correct in writing 'grace' instead of 'grass' widow, but it is probable that no one would understand what you meant."—Philadelphia Record.

Schoolboy Blunders.

A. H. B. of Ascot sent to the London Globe some specimens of "howlers" perpetrated by board school children, and collected by a board school master. On the nature of gases. "An oxygen has eight sides." In natural history, "A cuckoo is a bird which does not lay its own eggs." "A mosquito is a child of black and white parents." "A blizzard is the inside of a fowl." In geographical study we get the following: "The equator is a menagerie lion running round the earth and through Africa." "A meridian is the place where they keep the time" and "The inhabitants of Paris are called Parisites." Among answers we have heard before is that of the child who declares, "Izaak Walton was such a good fisherman that he was called the judicious hooker."

The Japanese Way.

The question of choice between two vases was decided by a patron in a Japanese shop when the proprietor said: "That smaller vase, madam, is thoroughly Japanese in form and decoration. That floral pattern in gold around the upper half is characteristic, and so, too, is the exceedingly narrow and short neck. The vase will hold but a single blossom that should be long stemmed and stand upright. Thus the flower will be individualized and the vase likewise. That is the Japanese way."

Positively Brutal.

WHEN WOMAN PROPOSES.

Methods of the Hungarian Gypsies and Burnese Maidens.

In England leap year is supposed to confer upon the fair sex the privilege of choosing her life partner for better or for worse, but the custom is more honored in the breach than in the observance. The gypsies, especially in Hungary, enjoy and make a very extensive use of the right at all times in accordance with an ancient custom. Thus a marriageable young gypsy girl in the land of the Magyars as soon as her heart is smitten takes good care that the smiter shall hear of the havoc he has wrought and have a chance of consulting her. With this praiseworthy object in view she has a love letter indited, places a coin in a piece of dough, bakes it and throws the cake and billet doux during the night into the bed-chamber of her bridegroom elect. Then she possesses her soul in patience and awaits developments.

The Burnese maiden begins her marriage campaign at a much earlier stage. In order to get together a goodly gathering of young men from whom to choose she places a lamp in her window at night—it is known as "the lamp of love"—and entices all those youths who are candidates for the order of Benedict. In sunny Andalusia the peasant girl whose heart has been stolen by a stalwart young husbandman prepares a tasty pumpkin cake and sends it to his home. If he eats it—and the Andalusian girls take good care to make it highly edible—the pair are forthwith betrothed.—London Telegraph.

Cleanliness and Austerity.

In Styria and Carinthia there is much arsenic eating among the peasants. The women take it to give themselves a good complexion and to make their hair fine and glossy. The men take it because they believe that it gives them wind in climbing in the chase after chamois. There is nothing of this sort in Cornwall and Devon.

In Styria and Carinthia it is known that an arsenic eater can never be broken of the habit and that if arsenic be compulsorily kept from the eater death rapidly ensues. It is believed in the Tamar—and this is perhaps true—that an arsenic worker is fit for no other work. He must remain at this occupation. Health and breath fail him at other employments. Eventually it may be that chronic arsenical poisoning ensues. But this may be staved off, if not wholly prevented, by scrupulous cleanliness, by care taken not only to wash in the "changing house," but to bathe freely at home. As one of the foremen said to the writer, "Against arsenic the best antidote is soap taken externally."—Chambers' Journal.

Purely For Ornament.

The trained nurse has to meet many curious conditions which arise among her poorer patients. One of these faithful wagers who had a sick girl in charge in a miserable tenement house noticed that the oranges which had been provided for the fever patient were not eaten. They were placed in an old cracked blue bowl on a little table by the sick girl's bed, and there they remained untouched.

"Mary," said the nurse one day, "don't you like oranges?"

"Oh, yes," answered the girl.

"You haven't eaten any of these," the nurse suggested.

Mary's mother answered, "Oh, mls., she said eagerly, "Mary, she eat 'a half, an' me an' Jimmy, we eat 'the other half, an' Mary an' me, we says we won't eat any more 'cause it looks so nice an' wealthy to have oranges settin' round."—Youth's Companion.

Posterity of Drunkards.

A professor of Bonn university in tracing the posterity of habitual drunkards has found 534 descendants from a woman who for forty years was "a thief, a drunkard and a tramp" and whose miserable life came to an end in the last year of the eighteenth century. The professor has traced the lives of 700 of this woman's descendants from youth to old age, and of these 142 were beggars and 64 more lived on charity. There were in the family 76 convicts, including 7 murderers. The professor estimated that in seventy-five years this family has cost the German authorities in almshouses, courts, prisons and other institutions about $1,250,000.—Chicago Journal.

Friendship.

There are two elements that go to the composition of friendship, each so sovereign that I detect no superiority in either, no reason why either should be the first named. One is truth. A friend is a person with whom I can be sincere. The other element of friendship is tenderness. When a man becomes dear to me I have touched the goal of fortune.—Emerson.

A Yearning For Courtesy.

"Why do you sigh for great riches?" "Well," answered the mild mannered man, "I don't value money for its own sake, but I'd kind o' like to be in a position where the subordinate employees of large enterprises will say 'Good morning, sir,' instead of 'Step lively!'"—Washington Star.

Thomas Jefferson, Farmer.

Like Washington, Jefferson delighted in farming. "The hope of a nation," he wrote in his youth, "lies in the tillers of the soil." In his final retirement at Monticello a guest addressed him ceremoniously as "President Jefferson."

"Farmer Jefferson," the distinguished statesman interposed. "I would rather be Farmer Jefferson than to have all the titles of Europe."

His garden book, covering a period of half a century, shows the precision with which he farmed at Monticello. Here, for example, is an excerpt from his memoranda for July of one year: July 15.—Cucumbers came to table; planted out celery; sowed patch of peas for fall; planted snap beans.

July 22.—Had the last dish of our spring peas.

July 31.—Had Irish potatoes from the garden.—Leslie's Monthly.
