ANALYSIS OF POPULATION.

Growth Of South More Rapid During Last Census Than North.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 22.—The Director of the census has made public advance proofs of a bulletin entitled "A Discussion of Increase of Population," prepared under the supervision of Walter F. Wilcox, the special agent of the Division of Methods and Results.

In his letter of transmittal to the Director the expert states the main results of the discussion of increase of population to be as follows:

The increase in the population of the United States between 1890 and 1900 was twenty-one and one-fourth millions. Of this increase, three-eighths was due to the extension of the boundaries of the United States in the decade 1890 to 1900, and the other five-eighths to the increase of population within the boundaries of 1890.

The increase in the population of continental United States—that is, the United States exclusive of Alaska and the recent insular possessions (Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Guam and Samoa)—was 13,040,861, or 20.7 per cent.

Only one country—Argentina—has, by the most recent figures, shown a more rapid rate of growth.

The present rate of growth in continental United States is probably double the average rate of Europe; is nearly double that of Canada, exceeds by one-sixth that of Mexico, and by one-tenth that of Australia.

In the decade 1890 to 1900, for the first time in our national history the Southern States increased faster than the Northern, if allowance be made for the undercount in 1870. East of the Mississippi, however, the Northern States, as a group have grown in the last 10 years somewhat more rapidly than the Southern; but west of that river the Southern States have increased almost two and a half times as rapidly as the Northern. And it is this fact which makes the growth of the South, as a whole, exceed that of the North.

The rate of increase in the North and South in the last 20 years was practically the same; but in the character of this growth the two regions differ widely, there being a relatively uniform growth over the whole South, equaled by a balance in the North between a lower rate of rural growth and a higher rate of urban growth.

While the United States, in its life as a nation, has extended its boundaries several times, it was not until the last decade that it added in this way a great number of people. The sudden jump in the increase from fewer than 13,000,000 between 1880 and 1890, to more than 21,000,000 between 1890 and 1900, was due mainly to the new population brought into the United States as a result of the Spanish-American War.

The only countries that have either a greater area or a more numerous population than the United States are the British Empire, the Chinese Empire, the Russian Empire, and possibly France.

The numerical increase in the population of the United States between 1890 and 1900 (21,253,303) was probably greater than that of any other country. This figure may be analyzed as follows: Increase within the limits of the United States as they stood on June 1, 1890, 13,078,401; persons stationed abroad in 1900, 91,219; increase due to the inclusion of new territory (Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Guam and Samoa), 9,083,683. Thus three-eighths (38 per cent.) of the increase in the population of the United States, 1890 to 1900, is due to accession of territory.

Potent Pill Pleasure.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are Dr. Witt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot of Albany, Ga., says, "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than calomel blue-mass, or any other pills I ever took and at the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by T. E. Zimmerman.

HOW THE BIRDS DRESS.

Description Of Toilet Made By Tiny Songsters.

As bird fashions do not change the lady birds of today wear the same kind of dresses their grandmothers wore and are not troubled about styles.

Two suits a year are quite enough for most birds, but they need to take great care of them.

Each separate feather must be cleaned and looked over and the useless ones pulled out.

You have seen a canary preening his feathers by lifting them and smoothing them out with his bill, and you may have thought him vain to do this so often.

But necessity and not vanity is the cause of his frequent dressings.

If you neglect to comb your hair it will become tangled and look untidy, but more serious things happen to a bird who does not comb his feathers.

These feathers are not packed close together, you know, but lie loose and have spaces between filled with air.

When a bird wants to get warmer he lifts his feathers so that these air spaces may be larger, but if his feathers are tangled or wet and dirty he could not raise them and soon he could not keep the heat in his little body and would die of course.

Perhaps you have noticed sparrows or other birds in the winter time. They always look larger, but they have only fluffed out their feathers because the weather is cold.

Mr. Canary does the same thing when he goes to bed at night. A water bird has to be even more particular about his clothes, for if he would get them wet he would die of cold.

It seems odd, does it not, that he can go in the water and not get wet? It is a fact, though it is only because he oils his feathers. All water birds have an oil gland, as it is called, located down among his tail feathers, and after he has smoothed himself carefully he reaches his head down to the oil gland and gets a nip of oil in his bill, and with it he oils his feathers with the greatest care.

If he does it properly the water will run off and not soak in the least bit. Just watch a duck when you get a chance and see how he does it.—Ez.

When you want a physic that is mild and gentle, easy to take and certain to act, always use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman Druggist.

HAD LOTS OF TROUBLE.

"I was once summoned as a witness in a case where an old darkey was charged with chicken stealing. The old darkey was on hand early and before the case was called the judge, observing his presence, asked his name. My name is Johnsing, yo' honah," said the darkey. "Are you the defendant in this case?" inquired the judge. "No, sah," replied the darkey, "I've got a lawyer to do my defendin'. I've the gemman what stole de chicken."

"Just then a small insignificant Irishman hobbled in on crutches accompanied by his wife, a big brawny woman, 'Judge,' said she, 'I want you to give this man six months for giving me this black eye. What!' exclaimed the judge in astonishment 'do you mean to say that this physical wreck gave you this black eye?' 'Your honor,' said the woman, 'I want you to understand that he was not a physical wreck until after he gave me this black eye.'"

IT CANNOT BE DONE.

In a recent paper read before the Institute of Electrical Engineers (Great Britain) the author placed a very discouraging prospect before those scientists who are endeavoring to perfect some means of "getting electricity direct from coal" without the intermediation of some form of primemover. He says that it is the dream of the electro-chemist to devise an electrolytic cell in which the consumed electrode is carbon. This he believes impossible, for he reasons that at ordinary temperatures carbon is practically inert; it forms no ions, and therefore can give no electromotive force. At high temperature oxygen, sulphur, silicon, and to some extent nitrogen, and many of the metals, combine with carbon but there is no dissociable salt or carbon formed. The carbon cell thus seems impossible.

IN THE CUSTOM-HOUSE.

Experience Of Returning Traveler With Our Terrible Officials.

After all the customs officials in New York are not such terrible persons. Yet even the old travelers seem somewhat nervous when they go down into the salon of the ship—after it has passed Quarantine and the customs officers have come aboard—to answer all the questions put to them to the best of their knowledge and belief.

There doesn't seem to be a very distinct understanding about the $100 worth of stuff that is exempt. The purser has a copy of the customs regulations, but they are so filled with "whereases" and "here-untos" that it is difficult for the average mind and particularly for the average feminine mind, to understand them.

Just before reaching New York all that one has to tell the customs man about one's self is where one lives, where he was born, on what date he went abroad and on what boat, how many trunks, satchels, bags and boxes he took with him when he went, and how many he brought back; how much wearing apparel he bought on the other side, and how many presents and souvenirs.

It takes a great deal of groping around in the mind for many of the passengers to decide exactly how much money they spent in wearing apparel—only it is always less than $100 worth when they do remember—but the editor of the Woman's Page didn't hesitate a moment when her turn came to sit beside the ogre and be catechised.

"Fifteen dollars' worth," said she, and she devoutly hoped she wouldn't be asked to itemize her purchases, for, what with the difference between francs and shillings and guilders, she was very mixed in her financial column.

"Did you buy any presents or souvenirs?" asked the ogre, and it was then that the editor of the Woman's Page went through a terrible struggle with her better self. The way she had read the customs regulations, one could bring in $100 worth of goods for one's self but nothing for any one else. And she had a lot of men's gloves with her! She had been advised by the man who sat next her at dinner to distribute these among the other gloves she had and say nothing about them. The inspector, he said, would mistake them for women's gloves, and nobody would be the wiser.

The editor of the Woman's Page thought of this unholy advice and then she thought of the imprisonment at hard labor that the customs regulations incidentally mention, and then morality won, for she hates hard labor and she murmured "I have half a dozen pairs of men's gloves."

After this she went up on deck and tried to calculate what the duty would be on her importations.

An hour later, having got her baggage together on the dock, she summoned an inspector and prepared to have her gowns and hats spread on the floor for the benefit of such of the spectators as had time to look at them. The inspector came. He looked to be about 17 years old, but he wore spectacles and an air of majesty.

"Please show me what you bought for $15 while you were abroad," he said and his official manner was impressive.

"All the things are exactly on top of my trunk," said the traveler meekly.

The inspector looked them over gravely. "Here is a separate item of men's gloves," said he.

The editor of the Woman's Page produced those articles. "I wish now," said she, frivolously, "that I hadn't mentioned these. I don't believe you would ever guessed that they weren't a woman's gloves."

"Don't you believe it," said the official; "nothing escapes my glittering eye."

He didn't say glittering but he meant it.

Then, averting his eyes, delicately he plunged his arm down in each of the four corners of the trunk, and feeling nothing that was contraband to the touch, withdrew it again and affixed a little ticket to the top of the box.

"We have to be diligent in our search," said he. "If we didn't every one in this country would soon be out of business. Why, the other day a woman came through here with a bunch of cigars in her trunk. I just came across them accidentally. Do you know, she declared that they were for her own use. Protested that she smoked cigars regularly and all the time. Then we asked her if she would give a demonstration. But she fell down there. She said she wasn't going to smoke before a lot of men. She paid duty on those cigars, you may just bet. Now (to the passenger), you come along with me."

"Where?" asked the editor of the Woman's Page, alarmed. "I thought it was all over when you put the little ticket on my trunk and bags."

"No, it is not," said the inspector, "you must come around here to the office and answer all the questions which are put to you truthfully."

The traveler, having already told her life's history on board the ship, both in filling out blanks and answering the ogre's questions didn't know what was left to tell, so she went reluctantly to where a gray-haired man was sitting with a number of important documents before him.

"Are the articles you purchased only for yourself or for members of your family?" he asked, in a terrible voice.

"They are," replied the victim, tremblingly.

"Very good," said he, and the ordeal was over.

"Don't I have to pay duty on the men's gloves?" whispered the woman to the inspector.

"Certainly not," said he.

"I think the customs officials are charming," said she, "such taradiddles as are written about them, too!"

"We try to do our duty as pleasantly as possible. Out this way, miss," said he, loftily.

And the great examination was over, but it had taken exactly two hours and twenty minutes to get $15 worth of goods through and the 4.55 train for Baltimore had just pulled out of the station.—Baltimore News.

THE ONE-LEGGED MAN.

Various Occupations In Which The Maimed Make A Living.

"Have you ever thought about the one-legged man, how numerous he is, what he is, what he does for a livelihood?" asked an observant man of the New Orleans Picayune. "Well, I suppose you have without paying much attention to what you were thinking about. You will find many men who are thus afflicted quite as well off in the affairs of the world as men who still retain both of the lower limbs. Many of the brave soldiers who took part in the little skirmish of the sixties left the fighting with one leg, or they were wounded in such a way that they lost the afterward because amputation became necessary. Frequently this condition confronted the wounded soldier many years after the war. So there are many one-legged men who are prominent in all the professions and in all the business affairs of the country.

"But I was thinking of another class of men—men who are not, for one reason and another, fitted for the more responsible positions in life, the class of men who perforce fall into the most convenient grooves for the aims and responsibilities which beset them. He is a boot-black now and then, and we find him lounging on the corner, waiting for some good customer who will give him the usual allowance for a shine.

"Sometimes we will find him at other things which do not require too much leg work," as the saying goes. But I had in mind a still more curious fact in connection with the calling of the one-legged man. Did you know that fully 90 per cent of the railway flagman in the United States are one-legged men? Did you know that fully 90 per cent of the men who sweep out the grooves and who grease them at the curves on street railway lines are one-legged men? It is a fact whether you know it or not, and a little closer observation will convince you of it. So you find the one-legged man at crossing of the roads, and your life is often in his hands. If he naps he may whiff your candle out. Or if he should give a false signal for some reason something might happen to a whole trainload of people. So true is it that the one-legged man is the flagman, in all the plays where it has been necessary to introduce him, the flagman is one-legged. The verdict of the stage is not always good, but in this respect I am inclined to think that no mistake has been made. So, after all, the one-legged man plays an important and responsible part in the affairs of the world."

Phrenologist—Here is a man out of his proper sphere. His head betoketh high intellectual and spiritual qualities, yet he is spending his time behind a grocer's counter. Sir (to the grocer), I wish to ask you a question. Have you any aspirations—

Grocer (calling to clerk)—John, have we any aspirations?

Clerk—All out, sir. Have some in the last of the week.—Kansas City Journal.

It Worried Her.

The woman who was reading the paper looked up with a laugh.

"It says here," she remarked, "that the girls of Nashville, Tenn., have organized a hugging club."

The woman who was now reading the paper looked worried.

"Now, I wonder," she said, "If John really had important business at Nashville. He started for there yesterday, you know."—Chicago Post.

Willie—Pa, what is an "appetizer?"

Pa—It is something that gives you an appetite, my son.

Willie—But when you said you'd take an appetizer before dinner yesterday you really took whisky. Does that give you an appetite?

Ma (interrupting)—Yes my son, it always gives him an appetite for more whisky.—Philadelphia Press.

Pig Prices.

A reduction of $1.50 in pig iron prices is reported. There seems to be no reduction in pig meat.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Read Less, Think More. The average person of so called culture who has leisure to read reads too much and thinks too little, and in consequence his conversation lacks freshness and spontaneity. An exchange, after saying that people generally read too much and read more than they carry, tells a story of a man who had been a great reader, but had changed his ways, and people, after he read less, finding him much more interesting, exclaimed: "How entertaining John was today! He must have been reading a good deal."

Mere reading is a waste of time. To conduce to intelligence the reader must train the mind to concentration on the subject in hand, and to concentration must be added the effort to clothe and transmit thought in appropriate phrase.

The Sailors' Psalm. How many people—landsmen, at all events—are aware that one of the Psalms is often called the sailors' psalm? It is of course Psalm cvii, wherein occur the beautiful and familiar words, "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters—these see the works of the Lord and his wonders in the deep." The psalm is usually read as part of the special services which take place on Sundays on ships at sea. For that reason it is known as the sailors' psalm.—London Chronicle.

The Road to Success. It is well for the young man to remember that if he finishes his education as a skilled farmer or stockman or fruit grower there are plenty of places open waiting for him at good pay, while if he becomes a minister, lawyer or doctor he may have to hunt long and far to find a place and wait long before a good living is assured.—Rockford Register.

The Retort Courteous. Smart Passenger—Here, conductor, is my fare. I had no desire to beat the company, but I thought I would just see if I could fool you by getting busy with this newspaper. Conductor—I saw you, but you looked as if you needed information a good deal worse than the company needs money, so I just let you read.—Baltimore American.

FATAL FIGHT OVER DIPPER.

In a struggle among negroes to get possession of a tin dipper, the value of which was not more than 5 cents, an incipient riot resulted Sunday at Maddensville, Va., about 10 miles from Culpepper. Two of the participants were shot to death and three more are now in jail at Culpepper.

The negroes were holding an all-day religious meeting at Maddensville and a large crowd attended the meeting. The town of Culpepper supplies a number of the younger element, and these town negroes are the envy of the country negroes, it requires little to start a fight. As the result of the struggle for possession of the dipper Walter Reed, of Culpepper, was badly beaten. The leaders of the country crowd, when they discovered that Reed had been beaten tried to make their escape, but were pursued by Arthur Reed, Robert Clark and James Blucker, all town negroes and friends of Reed.

They were overtaken in front of the church, and here ensued a rough-and-tumble fight. One country negro was shot, and died almost instantly. Then pandemonium reigned. Several men rushed to avenge the death of their comrade. Arthur Reed, a brother of Walter Reed, with his friends, gave fight, and so hard pressed the others that several of them ran into the church, pursued by their assailants. One of the country negroes here fell, another victim of the irrepressible pistol, wounded with three bullets in his body. It is now reported he is also dead.

Arthur Reed, Walter Reed and Robert Clark claimed they acted in self-defense, but all three have been placed in jail, while the authorities are now searching for more of the participants.

A SUICIDE AT 73 YEARS

William G. Durfor, 73 years old, committed suicide Tuesday morning by jumping from a second-story window at the home of Mrs. S. Hoffman, 1505 Clearfield street, Philadelphia, where he boarded.

The man fell in front of Daniel Macatee, a patrolman, who was passing at the time. He landed on his head, and his brains were scattered on the pavement only four feet from where the startled policeman had halted. A patrol wagon was summoned, and, though life was instantly crushed out by the fall, the body was hurried to St. Luke's Hospital, where the doctors pronounced it dead.

Durfor had been in ill health, and it is thought despondency over this fact prompted his rash act. He was a compositor.

May Have Been Kidnapped

The community of New Salem, seven miles from York, Pa., is stirred by the mysterious disappearance of Edmund Hoffman, who has been missing for 10 days. Hoffman is the 15-year-old son of a widow, and was working on the farm of Albert Breenman when he disappeared. It is supposed that he has been murdered or kidnapped by tramps. When last seen he was working in the field near which tramps were loitering.

GIRL SHOT FOR BURGLAR.

Lilly Tariter, a colored servant girl employed by Rev. D. H. Kern, Harrisburg, Va., was shot in a peculiar way early Tuesday morning at the Methodist parsonage by Robert Staples.

Mr. Kern is away from home on vacation. Soon after midnight Mrs. Kern thought she heard a burglar in the house. She called to her assistance Mr. J. C. Staples and his son Robert, who live next door. The young man had a revolver. In searching the house he mistook the colored girl for an intruder and fired at her. The ball took effect in the right cheek and passed around under the ear. Physicians have not yet located the bullet, but agree that the girl will recover.

A UNIQUE SALOON KEEPER.

John A. Showles, a saloon keeper, known to almost everyone in Milwaukee, Wis., as "Judge" Showles, where he had conducted a saloon for thirty years, is dead. He never sold a mixed drink, declined to sell more than three drinks to a man, and if he knew a man's family suffered because he frequented his saloon, no price could buy a drink. "No more for you my friend," he would say. "Take your money home to your family. I do not want it; they need it." And he adhered to this rule. Six o'clock in the evening was his closing hour, and when the clock struck six his best customer was told that business was over for the day.

BREAKS RECORD ON AROUND-WORLD TRIP

New York, August 26.—Henry Frederick, who left New York city on July 2 on the steamer Deutschland for a tour around the world, with the hope of breaking the record for the shortest time consumed in circling the globe, returned to New York tonight on the New York Central Railroad. Mr. Frederick had been successful in his endeavor, having made the circuit in 54 days 7 hours and 20 minutes.

In Carlisle, Pa., there has been an epidemic of poisoning from ivy and oak and on all sides people are suffering with the eruption so caused. It has been discovered that mosquitoes carry the virus from the poisonous weeds and implant it in people they bite and the eruption then follows.

His Mistake.

There is one woman poet in New York who will read proof carefully until the edge of a recent error wears off. She spent two days on a touching poem, the pivotal line of which read: My soul is a lighthouse keeper. When the printer finished with it the line read: My soul is a light housekeeper.

FOES TO CONTAGION.

When a mere lad I had often heard it said that the eating of onions and lemons was a protection against contagious diseases, and when about 18 years of age I had an opportunity to test them for myself says a medical writer. I had spent the winter in the city of New Orleans, where in the spring yellow fever of a virulent type made its appearance, causing an urgent demand for nurses, and having faith in what I had heard of the protective power of unions and lemons I concluded to take what my friends called a ghastly risk and made application at the Common Street Hospital for a position as nurse, was accepted and entered at once upon a line of duty in commencing which I began the use of raw onions and lemons, alternating them weekly—always taking them just before going to bed.

I took no other remedy, although medicine was provided every morning for all attacks. At the expiration of the tenth week I was no longer needed and left in as vigorous health as when I entered the hospital.

On taking my departure I was reminded by the head physician that his medicine had probably preserved my health. Nevertheless a number of nurses and attaches died of the fever, despite his vaunted medical ability. Before leaving the institution I acquainted the doctor with the fact I had not used his medicine, but had relied solely upon my onion-lemon treatment, when he said it was a wonder that it had not killed me, and if it had that I had deserved it.

During our civil war I had a similar experience with small-pox cases in Washington, D. C., finding the onion and lemon a perfect protection to myself and many of my associates.

SWALLOWED THE BOTTLE.

Humorous glass eaters are extremely numerous, but it isn't often that an animal or reptile sets himself up in that business. However, here is a story of a snake glass eater from the Coffeyville Journal which has all the elements of truth in it: "Mrs. J. M. Creath, who lives seven miles northeast of the city, went out to her henhouse a morning or two ago, and, finding a 'house snake' about four feet long lying on the floor of the henhouse, killed it. Noticing a protuberance in the snake the reptile was cut open. Imagine their astonishment when a shock-polish bottle popped out. Mrs. Creath had been using shoe polish to mark eggs which had been set and had left it lying on the ground in the chicken house."

A French engineer is alleged to have discovered alloys for aluminum which impart to this metal most extraordinary qualities. By varying the amount of his alloy from 1 part in 12 to 1 part in 240 he obtains compounds varying in tensile strength from 29,000 to 53,000 pounds to the square inch. These are so different in characteristics that they may be chased, soldered, brazed, forged, rolled into plates and leaves are drawn into wire, all depending on the amount of the alloy. It can be made soft, like pure aluminum, or stiff and rigid, like steel, and possessed of nearly the same strength, at one third the weight.—Sun.

RUINED BY UNIONS, HE SAYS.

Chicago, August 10.—Declaring that he has been ruined financially by labor unions, John M. Stiles, a painting contractor, is about to file a suit for heavy damages against the organizations he accuses of plotting him. The bill will be directed against the National Painters' Union.

The outcome will prove whether the non-incorporation of labor unions will exempt them from liability for damages. The case is one of great import to the labor movement all over the United States. Mr. Stiles bases his case against the painter's and other unions in the building trades on a series of struggles against the opposition of unionism extending over ten years. The final troubles occurred several months ago, when the union demanded that a contractor abrogate his contract with Stiles on certain buildings before they would touch the job.

"The unions have caused me to lose $500,000 in contracts and $50,000 in profits," says Stiles. "I have been harassed continually, and my work tied up because I refused to sign agreements with the unions and insisted on the freedom of contract and the right to hire non union workmen if I chose to do so. I believe that the union is liable for damages to my business, and that the courts will sustain my claim in this case."—Examiner.

Important Change in Train Service

on W. M. R. R.

Commencing August 3, the Western Maryland will quicken up very materially the time of their No. 15 train, so as to arrive at Hillen Station, Baltimore, at 6:40 p. m., instead of at 6:55 p. m., as heretofore. This train is attached to Fast Mail train leaving Hagerstown, except Sunday, at 2:10 p. m., as in the past, and run on same time as heretofore as far as Westminster, leaving the latter point at 4:25 p. m., and arriving Baltimore as above. By this means passengers will not only have a quick run to Baltimore, but arrive in time to connect with the 5:30 p. m. train from Union Station, Baltimore, for Philadelphia and New York, and will also be enabled to make connection with the steamboat lines for Old Point Comfort, Norfolk and other southern points.

July 24-5-15

Chair Car on Western Md. Trains

The Passenger Department of the Western Maryland R. R. announces that taking effect Monday July 27, their car "Gettysburg" will be attached to their regular train leaving Hillen Station daily, except Sunday, at 5:15 A. M., for Hagerstown, and this car attached to Fast Mail train leaving Hagerstown, except Sunday, at 2:10 P. M., for Baltimore. This will enable a comfortable trip in chair car at reasonable rates to be made between any points on main line between Baltimore and Hagerstown. This is quite an innovation, and should be a popular move on the part of the Railroad Company. July 24-5-15.

They Should Be Thankful and Not Mad. Some fellows are always taking exceptions at what the newspapers have to say of them. As a matter of fact the man who gets mad at what the newspapers say in the way of news and about him is generally just the man who should return thanks three times a day for the things the newspapers know about him and don't print. There is not one man in ten that the newspaper man could not print something that he does not want the world to know. The idea is to be thankful for what the newspaper man knows and does not tell.

PACKING CORN BEGUN.

Work Started At Local Canning Factories Their Output Will Be Large

The corn canning season at the Monocacy Valley Canning Company's factory started Monday afternoon and the Frederick City Packing Company started work Tuesday. Colt and Dixon's factory started Wednesday.

The canning industry is one of the most important in Frederick and the local factories rank among the largest in Maryland. It is conservatively estimated that over 8,000 acres of corn are put out in this country for factories in Frederick, Buckeystown and Walkersville.

The Monocacy Valley Canning Company has added a husking shed for colored huskers in addition to the large sheds reserved for white huskers. This factory has three filling and capping machines and last year added three new tipping machines. There are from 400 to 500 men, women and children employed at this plant. It is thought that about 3,500,000 cans of corn will be put up at this factory.

The Frederick City Packing Company employs about 700 persons. Four machines are kept busy putting up corn the entire season and it is estimated that 4,000,000 cans will be put up.

The new factory of Colt and Dixon is equipped with the latest machinery and while this is its first season it is thought over 2,000,000 cans of corn will be canned in addition to the tomatoes, blackberries and other things that have already been canned.

All of the factories expect a fairly good crop of corn while the tomato crop is expected to be very poor on account of the heavy rains. —Frederick News.

FREIGHT WRECK.

Fifteen Cars Piled Up As A Result Of A Collision.

An outgoing Baltimore and Ohio freight over the Pittsburg division was in collision Tuesday night with two cars of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, which had been left standing on the main track while shifting over cars, at Peart, Cumberland. About 15 cars were piled up, making a costly wreck.

The freight was moving rapidly, and it is said the flag was not back far enough. The two cars standing on the track, loaded with merchandise for points in the George's Creek region, were telescoped and set on fire from matches in one car, which were lighted by the sudden jolt. The city fire department was called out to extinguish the blaze, which entirely destroyed both cars. There was an explosion of three cans of powder which hurled members and debris in the big crowd standing about, creating great consternation, but no one as far as is known, was hurt, although scores were knocked down.

The sudden application of the air brakes piled up two sections of the freight train, one near the middle and one in the rear, while cars between were not damaged. Fifteen cars altogether, some empties, others loaded with household goods, were wrecked, and all three tracks leading to Pittsburg blocked. The crash was heard many squares. Houses line the railroad at the point of the collision. The locomotive strange to say, was little damaged.

A strong gas was issuing from the fire in the kiln and when he succeeded in reaching the top he was so exhausted and overcome by the gas that he fell to the ground. Jacob Markle who happened to be near, went to his assistance and Mr. Sneeringer was soon revived.

SAD FATE OF MRS. MURDOCK.

Mrs. Anna Murdock of Hagerstown, has lost her mind and Monday, penniless, was committed to Bellevue Asylum. At one time she was wealthy and for some years resided in Baltimore, where her husband was in business.

Several years ago she entered suit in the United States Circuit Court in Chicago for $100,000 damages against Charles A. Morrill, a well-known tea merchant, of Chicago, with whom Mr. Murdock was employed as salesman. She charged Mr. Morrill with alienating the affections of her husband and inducing him to withdraw a life insurance policy for $5,000 which had been made payable to her. Mr. Murdock died in 1897. The suit is still on the docket in Chicago.

Mrs. Murdock spent nearly all her money in prosecuting the suit. Dr. H. K. Derr examined her and pronounced her insane. —Sun.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Charles Crowell Died From Injuries Received By The Fall Of A Derrick.

For The Chronicle.

The saddest accident that ever befell our community occurred on Thursday afternoon of last week when Charles Crowell, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crowell, prominent citizens of Sharpsburg, Md., occurred one mile north of Sharpsburg, at Cornfield Avenue, Antietam Battlefield, where a New Jersey Monument was in progress of erection. It is unnecessary to give the details as our county papers have been filled with a truthful account of the sad deed. We must all meet death, and it matters little whether it is extended a few years longer or not. Still nothing will reconcile us to the death of one so young and in the full enjoyment of robust health as Charles Crowell. Reared in our community, educated in our public schools, an industrious, sober, honest man, a consistent member of the Memorial Lutheran Church, a friend to everyone, his untimely death has produced a shock that will not easily be removed. We can hardly realize that he is gone, that he has passed from the things of sense and time into that mysterious land from which none has ever returned. In the prime of manhood, his vigorous body and the smile which broke into kindness, love and gentleness with his loved ones and every one he came in contact with is hushed. Truly it may be said his death was a sudden and unexpected shock to everyone.

To his afflicted family the sincere sympathies of the community go out. To his aged father and mother deep sorrow is felt. We recognize the fact that they are in sorrow, hearts stricken with grief, children orphaned and the home circle severed and broken. We can but point them to the grace of Him who has promised to sustain and comfort them through all the sorrows, troubles and trials of this mortal life. The comforting influences of our holy religion, which alone can support us under the most severe trials, comfort and support the dear ones bereaved is the prayer of every one.

"There is no death," the stars go down To rise from some fairer shore And birds in heaven's jeweled crowns They shine forever more.

"There is no death," but angel forms Walk o'er the earth with silent tread They bear our best beloved away And then we call them dead.

The funeral took place on Saturday evening at 5 o'clock from his late residence, West Antietam street, attended by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives, friends and citizens. A beautiful address was delivered by his pastor, Rev. A. A. Kerlin, after which the body was laid to rest in Mountain View Cemetery.

Peace to his memory.

Mr. Crowell's death was caused by a derrick, on which he was working falling. He was about 47 feet from the ground when the derrick fell.

Mrs. James T. Hoshelhorn, of this place, is a sister of the deceased.

FOR REPUBLICAN JUDGE.

Candidate to be Nominated Against Judge McSherry.

The State Central Committee from Frederick and Montgomery counties met at Washington Junction at noon Monday and organized by electing Prof. William H. Harry, of Frederick, chairman and Mr. W. B. Burdette, of Rockville, secretary. The committee, which had been authorized to fix the dates for holding the judicial primaries in the Sixth district by the State Central Committee selected September 5 for holding primaries in each county to select delegates to the convention to be held in Frederick and Rockville on September 7 to the Judicial Nominating Convention, to be held at Point of Rocks on September 10, when a candidate will be chosen to oppose Chief Judge James McSherry. Those spoken of for the nomination are Hon. Milton G. Urner, William H. Hinks and Edward S. Eichelberger.

While a helper engine was pushing four loaded steel coal scows up the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad coal tipples at Cherry Run, Tuesday, three of the cars were pushed over the west end of the tippie, falling a distance of about 40 feet. One car, coal and all, fell on an eastbound train, the engine of which was cooling at the time, wrecking itself and the car it fell on. The other two cars fell on a side track. Fireman C. W. Silvers, of the helper, acting as brakeman on the cars going on the tippie, was carried down and buried under the coal and debris. Fireman Silvers was about 35 years old and lived near Cherry Run.

Not Over-Wise.

There is an allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

Resolutions.

The chairman of the committee on resolutions, Mr. Edward S. Eichelberger, read the following, which were adopted:

"The Republican party of Frederick county in convention assembled announces the following as its declaration of principles:

"1. That glorifying in the past of the party of the nation we renew our allegiance to it, believing that it will always be found equal to each new emergency that arises in our advancing civilization, treating public questions with far-sighted, broad-minded wisdom that will secure the prosperity of our people, the protection of all our citizens irrespective of wealth or station, and the credit and honor of our nation the world over.

"2. That we endorse the administration of President Roosevelt as that of a man actuated by patriotism, faithfulness and a fearless desire to best serve the interests of every citizen of the Republic; and we hereby declare for his re-nomination to the high office which he now adorns.

"3. That we denounce the subversive Democracy of this State for its prostitution of the State Government and election machinery to partisan ends for the purpose of unfairly perpetuating themselves in power against the judgment of the best citizenship of the State, and we condemn all who had part or parcel by advice or act in the proceedings connected with the infamous extra session of the Maryland Legislature.

"4. Believing that, as the ultimate power rests with the mass of our body politic, the will of the people properly expressed is the voice of command to any convention or organization (which are at most the servants of the people), we declare ourselves in favor of a nomination for Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of the State, holding that, while partisan politics has no place upon the bench, the people whose rights and property are at stake themselves should be the judges of who best exemplifies this idea.

"5. That we hereby most heartily commend and endorse for nomination as Governor of this State Hon. Steven son A. Williams as competent, trained, honest and clean-handed, one of the best types of Maryland's sons."

ROSETTE OF THE POTATO.

A Peculiar Disease Resembling Scab in Its Effect on the Crop.

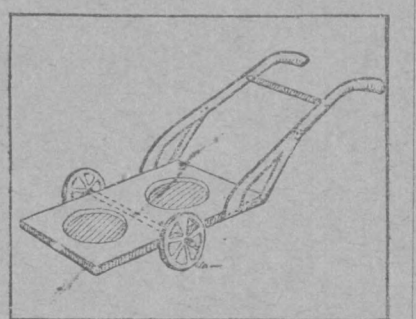

Dating back at least three years we have had in Ohio complaints of the early dying of the potato vines before the formation of many tubers. The underground parts appear to be the seat of the disease agency, while at the same time excessive branching in some examples and in general a conspicuous clustering of these branches or of the terminal leaf groups, together with early dying of the entire tops, have been the conspicuous above ground characters. In 1900 one grower, who had purchased seed of the enormous variety from the station, suffered a very large loss from this disease. Attention was at this time called to the malady, but no satisfactory explanation was secured.

In the same season there was a small amount of dying of the vines of the entire hill in the station fields, grown from the same lot of seed, but no specific cause for this dying was ascertained. In the fall of 1900 the sclerotia of the sterile fungus, Sclerotinia, was discovered in abundance on tubers of the Triumph variety and likewise upon some other varieties at the station.

About June 1, 1902, Mr. Alva Ayce of Gallia county called attention to a serious condition of his potatoes of the Carman variety. It was found that from 10 to 12 per cent of the hills of this variety, grown from seed obtained from the experiment station, was affected by a disease of the character briefly described above. There was in many instances stunted growth, with rosette-like clusters of the upper leaves, in others marked clustering of the leaves without apparent retardation of growth. Above ground the stems showed occasional discolored areas of soft decay, while below the soil surface were numerous lesions of the form of brown dead areas. The leaf clustering is so conspicuous that the fields afford opportunities to detect a large percentage of the affected plants. Often in advanced stages of the trouble an oblong "blaze" more than an inch in length may be found along the side of the potato stem.

From the standpoint of losses the rosette disease of the potato is similar to the potato scab. Usually neither entirely destroys the crop, but both may diminish the yield and in that way the market value. The scab also reduces the market value by roughening the tubers. An external cracking of the tubers may be referred to the attacks of Sclerotinia. Probably from 6 to 20 per cent of diseased hills will cover the usual amount of rosette disease where prevalent. Nevertheless such a proportion of these plants should well repay prevention, especially so since it now appears to be possible to reduce this disease largely by using formalin treatment instead of the corrosive sublimate method for the seed potatoes.—A. D. Schy, Ohio Experiment Station.

A Farm Convenience.
A convenient truck to haul ten gallon milk cans from the barn to the house and for other uses about the dairy farm is described as follows by the Ohio Farmer: Upon a steel axle two feet long place two long, broad, tired wheels. Regular truck wheels are the best. Place upon this axle between the wheels a strong platform 3 by 1 1/2 feet or the most convenient size for your use. Either nail cleats on the platform to hold the milk cans in place or else saw holes in an inch board to fit the cans, and nail that on the platform, as shown in the illustration. If you have discarded plow handles fasten them on to the platform by good bolts or heavy screws, using braces of heavy strap iron. If no plow handles are available fasten strong, hard wood pieces to the sides of the platform in a similar manner, and use the crossbar between them to push the truck, as in the case of a hand cart. Such a truck could also be used for moving grain.

Forestry College Suspended.
The New York State College of Forestry has suspended operations and some of the instructors have resigned. Insufficient appropriation by the state for carrying out the plans of the college is the cause reported.

SELF INDUCED AILMENTS.

The Policy of Nursing the Habit of Not Feeling Well.

Few people realize that their ailments are largely self induced, says O. S. Menden in Success. They get into a habit of not feeling well. If they get up in the morning with a slight headache or some other trifling indisposition, instead of trying to rise above this condition they take a positive pleasure in expatiating upon their feelings to any one who will listen. Instead of combating the tendency to illness by filling the system with pure, fresh air they dose themselves with headache tablets or some other patent specific warranted to cure whatever ill they think they are suffering from. They begin to pity themselves and try to attract pity and sympathy from others. Unconsciously by dwelling and dwelling upon their symptoms they re-enforce the first simple suggestion of illness by a whole army of thoughts and fears and images of disease until they are unfitted to do a day's work in their homes or offices.

There is greater danger that young girls who are delicate while growing up and lounge around the house and lie down whenever they feel the least bit out of sorts will form a habit of invalidism when they reach maturity.

How often do we see such girls "brave up" at once when anything happens which interests or excites them! An invitation to a reception or a ball or any other pleasant social function acts like a tonic. For the time being an instantaneous cure is effected. They are as well as anybody until after the entertainment.

Indulgent mothers are frequently to blame for this physical and mental laziness, for it is nothing more, on the part of their daughters. A lounge or sofa is a positive curse in many a home, because it is such a temptation to lie down and succumb to trifling suggestions of illness or the least indigestion. A habit of giving in whenever you "don't feel like it" is fatal to all achievement and ruinous to self discipline, self poise and nobility and dignity of bearing.

THE AURORA BOREALIS.

A Spectacle That Is Magnificent in Its Impressiveness.

It was a trifle past the afterglow of sunset, and the sea was a deep rich purple, with long flowing swells. The sky, a fine light turquoise blue at horizon, gradually deepened into a rich cobalt, in which a few stars twinkled. A majority of the men were absorbed in various occupations below when a call of enthusiasm brought all up on deck. At a point low on the southwest horizon a faint film had arisen, which quickly, silently assumed the form of a curtain, waving and mounting upward in two stately columns past a group of daintily shaped, drooping trees. In a few seconds it was across the zenith, displaying beautiful pale yellows, greens and delicate pink and blue lights, with edgings at intervals of faint purple and red. The columns descended rapidly in ever varying spirals of perspective until the avant garde was lost behind the far northwest horizon.

We were about off the Danish port of Godthaab, Greenland, a sufficiently southern latitude at this season for the duration of day and night, and as the heavens darkened the stars shone with increasing brightness through this great shimmering veil of light.

The heavens and the sea grew darker and darker, and the aurora brighter and brighter in lightning changes of form and color, with the green and yellow and blue rays predominating and the delicate sheen from the aurora's light writhing in fiery serpent forms over the face of the moving waters. What impressiveness, what magnificence! It held the soul in a spell. There was not much talking. Splendid as it was, I afterward witnessed auroras which produced a deeper impression, due doubtless to the presence of the long night of the far north.—Century.

Arizona Sunshine.

To one who has been there, says Caspar W. Hodgson in Sunset Magazine, the name Arizona, first of all, suggests sunshine and plenty of it. Nowhere on the globe is sunshine more abundant, more appreciated or more banished. Indeed, a sunstroke has never been recorded in this territory. Though all good Arizonians have crossed the Hualapai river, which act, according to tradition, gives one of the power to tell the truth, I believe their records are accurate as to sunstroke. The explanation is found in the fact that heat is not so much a matter of thermometer as of humidity.

The dry, hot air of the Arizona desert is invigorating to the initiated. One can learn to love the desert. There the sunrises and sunsets are intensely beautiful and nowhere on earth richer in color. This is sometimes called Sunset Land. It might also be called Land of Sunrise.—Sunset Magazine.

PAINTING.

"As a general thing," says a lawyer, "one doesn't expect to find a sense of humor in the employees of a prison. Yet I know of a rather entirely reply made by a prison guard to the query of a visitor whether the existence of the guards was not a painful one.

"Painful!" echoed the guard. "I should say it was when you consider what a number of felons we have on our hands."

An Ingenious Woman.

The limit of masculine humiliation has been worked in the case of a Wichita man. His wife makes him wear tucks in the sleeves of his nightgowns, trimmed with pink ribbon so that the baby won't know the difference when he wakes the floor with it in the night.—Kansas City Journal.

Absent Minded Lord Derby.

Lord Derby could be very absent minded, and once on a time he walked with Lord Clarendon, his opponent, and told him all the secrets of the cabinet. Lord Clarendon listened amazed, but thought it too large an order when he was asked for his advice. It was not for him to counsel his political foes. At this intimation Lord Derby woke up, saying, "Really, I thought all the time I was talking to a colleague!" He had continued, hardly recognizing the fact, a controversy he had been having with other ministers at the foreign office. Of course Lord Clarendon honorably preserved the cabinet secrets, but he told his story against Lord Derby and made a laugh.

SCIENCE AND OLD AGE.

Man Should Live Long Enough to Welcome, Not Dread, Death.

From twenty to fifty a man should live for himself and his family, from fifty to 100 for science and humanity and after a hundred for the state. Honored, useful in full possession of all his faculties at seventy years and on, the graybeard of the approaching future will be among the most enviable of mankind, for the fear of death is an aberration.

The fact is that only one man in a million at present dies a natural death. We should live till 140 years of age. A man who expires at seventy or eighty is the victim of accident, cut off in the flower of his days, and he unconsciously resents being deprived of the fifty years or so which nature owes him. Leave him a little longer and in due time he will desire to die, as a child at dusk desires to sleep. The sandman will pass!

All our instincts drop from us one by one. The child cries for mother's milk. The idea of such an ailment is repugnant to the adult. The desires for sweets, for play, for love and lovemaking, for long walks and adventures are all impulses that have their day and pass, and the wish to live is an instinct which falls also with satiety. Only at present none of us lives long enough to be satiate with days.—Professor Metchnikoff's "Studies in Human Nature."

The Day After.

It is a strange omission that the day after, supreme and epoch making period of time, should have failed to receive the homage which is its just prerogative.

De Quincey, in his powerful bit of word painting entitled "The Knocking at the Gate," dwells on the thought that in "Macbeth" the climax of the tragedy, the moment most truly fraught with terror, is not the one in which occurs the murder of Duncan, or when the guilty party nerve themselves for its accomplishment, but the moment when the first knocking at the gate is heard. With that summons from without comes an instant and terrible realization of what has taken place. In that instant of horror is condensed all the meaning of past crime and future retribution as in a lightning flash.

The magnitude of what has happened cannot be measured until the first touch of reaction has been felt. We cannot tell what has really occurred till the day after.—Atlantic.

Too Small to Obey.

When a certain couple were married the wife was sixteen years old and big and strong. The husband was two years her senior, but slim to thinness and not up to the ankles in height. Ten years passed, and the couple got along as well as many couples do, but the wife was hard to manage. With the flight of time she became larger, while her theoretical lord and master added not an inch to his stature nor an ounce to his weight. One day he wanted her to do something, and she refused, at first quietly, then vehemently and finally explosively. "I'll not do it," she declared, "and I'd like to see you make me!"

"But, Maria," expostulated her husband, "when you married me didn't you promise to obey me?"

"I did," she replied, "then, slinging up his diminutive proportions, she added, "But I expected you'd grow."

How to Make Pine Woods.

Farmers in the White mountains have discovered, or learned, what farmers elsewhere are slow to ascertain. It is that if you lop off the lower limbs of balsams when they are young the limbs will not grow again. Thus the tree as lumber will be improved. It will be free of knots.

Certain hotel owners, desiring pine lands near their hotels on account of healthfulness, asked a government forester how to get them. The reply was: "Cut off the hard woods, then turn the cattle in to pasture for three years. That will keep down the shoots of the hard woods, and the pines, which cut off, will grow up, and their needles will keep down other growths."
