QUEER OLD LAW.

Eighteenth Century Edict Against Tobacco Chewing.
In the code of laws passed by the towns of Windsor, Hartford and Wethersfield in the years 1738-39 may be found the following on tobacco chewing:

"Forasmuch as it is observed that many abuses are crept in and committed by the frequent taking of tobacco, it is ordered by the authority of this court that no person under the age of twenty-one years nor any other that hath not already accustomed himself to the use thereof shall take any tobacco until he hath bought a certificate under the hands of some one who are approved for knowledge and skill in physics that it is useful for him and also that he hath received a license from the courts for the same.

"And for the regulating of those who either by their former taking it have, to their apprehensions, made it necessary to them or upon due notice are persuaded to the use thereof, it is ordered that no man within this colony after the publication hereof shall take any tobacco publicly in the streets, highways or any barnyards or upon training days, in any open places, under the penalty of sixpence for each offense against this order in any of the particulars thereof, to be paid without gainsaying, upon conviction by the testimony of one witness—that is, without just exception—before any one magistrate.

"And the constables in the several towns are required to make presentment to each particular court of such as they do understand and can convict to be transgressors of this order."—Pittsburg Gazette.

HINTS FOR BRIDEGROOMS.

Plenty of Advice For Brides, But Not a Word For the Men.
A thoughtful young man of Washington was heard to decry the other day the fact that, while there is a deluge of "don't" and "do" for the bride to follow, the bridegroom must shift for himself.

"There is absolutely nothing to guide a man but his own awkward self. It isn't fair," he said. "From the time she is old enough to detect sound she understands the importance of having things done properly at a wedding, while the prospective groom is only something necessary to complete the picture. Nothing short of inspiration can get a man through a marriage ceremony gracefully.

"In order to impress the bride and spectators that he is enthusiastic about it he appears with a sort of frozen grin on his face that you expect to melt at any moment and run down his collar. If he is too frightened to smile, he should understand the bride's girl friends will whisper that it was plainly evident he was unwilling from the start." Again, if he replies in a loud, stern voice another bunch in another direction of the church will huddle together and express how glad they are that they are not marrying him, while the attitude of many is that they are signing away their life and all worth living for. So I, for one, think it high time that somebody wrote a few hints on how to behave, that we men may appear enthusiastic about being married without being ridiculous."—Washington Post.

Ancient Jewellers' Association.

Birmingham Jewellers have been famed since the middle of the seventeenth century. When Charles II. brought with him to England the French fashion of wearing metallic ornaments Birmingham at once took the lead in supplying them, and the city then commenced a career of prosperity which has never since for brief periods suffered abatement. Even Southey, who could scarcely find sufficiently censorious language to describe Birmingham, allowed that it "excelled every other place in the world for watch chains, necklaces, bracelets, buttons, lace and snuffboxes." Though he said, "they were dearly purchased at the expense of health and morality."—London Chronicle.

The Liberty Cap.

When the Romans manumitted a slave his head was adorned with a small red cloth cap. As soon as this was done he was known as a libertinus, or freedman, and his name was registered among others of the city's "tribes." In the year 203, when Saturnus invaded the capital, he hoisted a cap on the point of his spear to indicate that all slaves who rallied around this standard should be free. This was the origin of the liberty cap still used in art as a symbol.

Anthology.

"Never mind," said her dearest friend. "There are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught out of it."
"I know it," said the girl that had set her cap for the foreign count and failed to get him, "but statistics show that the lobster catch is getting smaller every year."—Chicago Tribune.

Ancestors.

"We can't afford to recognize them. Their ancestors were in trade."
"Were't ours?"
"Of course, but our trade ancestors are two generations farther back than theirs."—Exchange.

Willing to Forget.

"Then he doesn't want to be called the Hon. Mr. Smith?"
"No. It's an unpleasant reminder that he used to be in politics and with strangers it might hurt his reputation."—Puck.

It is supposed that the average depth of sand in the deserts of Africa is from forty to eighty feet.

IMAGINATION.

Instances Showing How It Has Made Well Men Sick.

The domination of imagination over the normal exercise of the faculties is no new idea. Samuel Rogers suffered from a violent cold from the effects of what he believed to be an open window at his back, which in reality was closed. An instance of this known to the medical faculty is more strange still. Two men stayed at a house in which an inmate had died of cholera. One man placed in the room in which the patient had died was in ignorance of what had occurred. He slept well and was no worse. The other, wrongly told that the room in which he slept was that in which the cholera patient had died, spent a night of mental agony and in the morning was actually found to be suffering from this complaint. He died of cholera.

A similar instance was mentioned the other day by a friend of the writer. Two London men stayed in the country at a house where scarlet fever was reported. One, an unimaginative, healthy minded fellow, awoke all right in the morning. The other, a nervous, sensitive man, was very ill—had not slept and had broken out into a terrible rash which both declared to be scarlet fever. A wire to a London medical man was dispatched, and by the first train he hurried down. The supposed fever patient proved to have no fever at all beyond an imaginary one. As a fact, there was no scarlet fever in the house, the case had been wrongly diagnosed, and the frightened visitor had tortured himself into a violent rash, all without cause.—St. James Gazette.

BASKET BALL.

An American Game With No Uncertainty as to Its Origin.

Basket ball as a recreative game is unique in its origin for two reasons: First, it is our one positively sure, home American production; secondly, the name, date and place of its origin are exactly known. Basket ball was born in the year 1891 at Springfield, Mass., and its author was James Naismith. The story is short enough to be interesting. In that town is a training school connected with the Young Men's Christian association and of course professors, among them a professor of psychology, who is paid to teach the young ideas how to think effectively. In one of his lectures he called attention to certain conditions upon which the brain could with advantage be exercised and challenged his class to supply the requirements to meet them. The conditions were the invention of a new game which could be played indoors in a limited area by a defined and unalterable number of contestants and adaptable to both sexes. Upon this hypothesis one of his pupils, James Naismith, the same night evolved basket ball. It was put into practice the next day experimentally and found to meet the conditions and limitations laid down by the professor admirably. But it had more than an academic value, as its spread as one of our most appreciated pastimes attests.—Illustrated Sporting News.

Feeling the Colonel.

I doubt if the pranks of the present day subaltern are as pluckish as those of his predecessors. I can remember a story that went the rounds some years ago of a daring junior of the Grenadier guards who chafed his colonel in a fashion that would not be tolerated today. But the colonel was not disposed to deal leniently with him. He kept unusual late, or rather early, hours, so one day an early parade was ordered unexpectedly, and five minutes before the hour the colonel rode past the culprit's quarters.

Cheerfully unconscious of impending doom, the latter leaned out of his bedroom window in the airy garments of sleep to say good morning. The colonel chuckled and rode on, but to his surprise at the stroke of time the subaltern stepped out on parade fully dressed and all in order. He knew of the trap and had donned the looser garment over his uniform to take a rise out of his superior.—London Tatler.

Where Wives are Pawned.

They have a curious way of utilizing wives and daughters in some parts of India. If a man wants money he puts these members of his establishment in pawn, and his creditor detains them until the debt is discharged. The custom varies in different localities. In Nellore the Yeralis pledge their daughters to creditors, who may either marry them or give them away, and a man who has to go to jail deposits his wife with another man of her tribe until his return. In North Arcot unmarried daughters are frequently mortgaged and become the absolute property of the mortgagee until liquidation.

Contributor—Would you take it kindly if I were to ask you on what grounds you refused my latest poem? Editor—Yes, if you'll take kindly to my true statement of the case. Contributor—(After slight hesitation)—Good day, sir.—Baltimore American.

MOODS AND TEARS.

One Woman's Views About Weeping at Theatrical Performances.

"There is just this about crying at the theater," said the average woman—"you'll cry if you're in the mood for it and you won't if you're not, no matter how harrowing or nonharrowing the play may be. Like most average women, I rarely cry either at the theater or anywhere, but I long ago discovered that it depends entirely upon my mood at the time. I once went to a genuine comedy and found the tears filling my eyes just because I happened to be blue at the time and I've been at many a play with all the women round me mopping their eyes and drying their pocket handkerchiefs on their fans while I, being for some reason or other uplifted, sat there dry eyed, almost smiling.

"No matter what my mood, however, the thing sure to keep me from weeping at the theater is any emotional display on the part of her who is with me. I can attend the weepiest kind of a play unmoved with my sister, for she starts in way ahead of time, making me feel more like laughing than crying, and then when the true lachrymose opportunity arrives it finds me pathos proof. This is the only way by which I may make myself immune from weeping at theaters upon all occasions."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

TIPPING IN LONDON.

No End to the Fees to Servitors in Restaurants.

As an old Londoner I have seen changes in the manners of the city which amount to a complete metamorphosis. I remember well the time when there wasn't really a good restaurant in all London and when men had to be content with dining and supping in the back parlors of public houses. You got very good food in those dark, low ceilinged, stuffy rooms, and I remember when you were considered to be doing very well when you handed the somewhat time worn and ill clad waiter twopence or threepence as a tip.

Nowadays you go into a restaurant which is palatial, and you see men, especially if they belong to the Stock Exchange, giving huge tips that in olden times would have paid the price of a whole dinner for half a dozen friends. And the tipping never seems to end. You tip one waiter for one thing and another for another, and you tip the carver, and then you tip the man who gives you your wine, and as you are leaving you tip the porter who puts on your coat and the other porter who calls your cab. It is, in fact, becoming almost impossible for men of moderate means to go to most of the restaurants of today.—M. A. P.

HEAT AND MOTION.

Various Theories About the Connection Between These Agents.

The idea that heat is a kind of motion was entertained by Plato, who makes Socrates say: "For heat and fire which generate and sustain other things are themselves begotten by impact and friction, but this is motion. Are not these the origin of fire?" Bacon defined heat to be "a motion acting in its strife upon the smaller particles of bodies." Newton, Boyle and Hooke considered heat to be motion. Locke described it as "a very brisk agitation of the insensible parts of the objects which produces to us that sensation from whence we denominate the object hot; so what in our sensation is heat in the object is nothing but motion. This appears by the way heat is produced, for we see that the rubbing of a brass nail upon a board will make it very hot."

Many scientific men have held heat to be matter, and in spite of Rumford's vigorous exposition of its fallacy this material theory held its ground until a comparatively recent date, when Sir H. Davy took up the subject and by his experiments proved conclusively that this view is unsound.

Caseway of Bending Pillars.

Nature has hewn many upright pillars from the rock at various prehistoric periods, but so far as is known she has completed but one group of bending pillars. The caseway at Starfa, in Scotland, is after this original design. The stone shafts rise perpendicularly to a height of fifty or sixty feet, when they curve inward in a long, sweeping line at once graceful and massive. In some places a perfect Roman arch has been formed in this way. The formations are so symmetrical as to suggest the hand of the architect.

Antiquity of Pins.

Pins of various sorts have been in existence ever since our "first parents" clothed themselves in palm leaves which grew wild in the garden of Eden. As a matter of fact, pins claim a very high antiquity, the earliest form being a natural thorn, which is still used to some extent for fastening the dress by the peasant women of upper Egypt. In prehistoric times pins were also made of the small bones of fish and animals.

Of Course Not.

"Marriage," remarked the moralizer, "is a lottery."
"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer, "but it's one of the games of chance that clergymen do not try to discourage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Usual Thing.

Mrs. Knowitt—I hear you celebrated your silver wedding last week. Mrs. Wise—No. To judge from the presents we received I think it was our silver plated wedding.—Chicago Journal.

Success may sometimes come unexpectedly, but work alone can hold it.—Murray.

THINGS DOING.

Current Events of General Interest in Agriculture.

One outcome of the cotton situation in this country has been for some time apparent to anybody with an eye for future events. England has been making strenuous efforts to extend cotton culture in Egypt, and it is authentically reported that those efforts are meeting with success. The government of Jamaica is said to be entering upon extensive experiments in cotton production with a view to pushing the industry. Germany and France are also making their ventures in various parts of their foreign possessions, and it is beginning to be realized that there are fresh areas where it is probable the cotton plant can be profitably cultivated.

Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy and Japan are now talked of as donors all of which possess cotton territory in their foreign colonies of Africa and the East Indies and Formosa. Russia already grows cotton, but thus far uses it all.

The secretary of agriculture, the chief of the bureau of statistics and one of the largest manufacturers of print cloths in this country are all credited with opinions which are substantially to the effect that the shortage in the supply of cotton has not been sufficient to account for the abnormally high prices and that the result of those may be the establishment of new cotton fields in other countries. Cotton traders who maintain that the high prices are justifiable do so on account of the smallness of the crop. This is attributed in general to the cotton boll weevil. The loss in Texas cotton through this insect is placed by latest estimates at 300,000 bales. Deterioration in the cotton seed is another factor claimed in the short crop, and some of the agricultural authorities are inclined to see truth in this claim, believing that the low price of cotton had made many planters indifferent in the selection of seed, the best of which went to the oil markets.

A Real Farmers' Trust.

"Buying and selling and dealing in all kinds of farm and dairy products, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, hardware, farm machinery, lumber, stone, brick and all kinds of building material, grain and real estate and dealing in all kinds of merchandise and in buying and selling all kinds of property on commission and otherwise." Such is stated to be the object of a company of 500 Iowa farmers. It is claimed that at an expense of less than $4,000 for salaries and other items on a capital of $25,000 and indebtedness not exceeding $5,000 they carried on last year a business worth $620,000.

How Glucose is Made From Corn.

One of the novel things in the food section of the Agricultural building at the St. Louis world's fair will be the demonstration of the process of making glucose from corn. Glucose is now understood to be a neutral sweet devoid of flavor, with no harmful properties and of value as food. With the addition of a little hickory bark to give it the maple "twang" or mixed with a proportion of the genuine maple, it makes a table sirup thicker or heavier than maple, but lighter in color, unless colored with sugar house molasses.

A Farmers' Exchange.

A project which originated in a farmers' co-operative meeting held in Chicago last of December has for its object the consolidation of the various co-operative movements of American farmers and the establishment of a farmers' exchange. A meeting at Omaha is expected to bring further development of the plan.

A Big Butter Show Planned.

At the recent Wisconsin Association of Buttermakers, Secretary Fulmer advocated the holding of a state scoring contest once a month. He also said that his association could aid the dairy and food commissions and become a power in legislation. It was proposed that as important an exhibit as possible should be made at St. Louis, and the work of the dairy school of Wisconsin university was commended. It is claimed that the supply men sold about $300,000 worth of machinery.

Ohio's Fine Poultry Show.

Exhibits by two categories, over a hundred dogs and fifty beautiful water-fowl were interesting features of one of the finest poultry shows on the record of the Ohio State Poultry association, recently held. The entries of fowls numbered about 1,000 and comprised many varieties and breeds. A number of bantams were shown, including black rose combs, silver duckling, games and many others.

Corn Competition.

Both Illinois and Missouri have worked systematically and vigorously for success in the world's fair corn exhibit at St. Louis. The exhibits of each of these states will be the result of state competitions held with a view to securing the finest corn grown in the state for display in the universal exposition. The Illinois commission makes its awards under the auspices of the state farmers' institute.

J. T. MARSHALL.

The Horse For the Farmer.

Mitchell, S. D.—Before the South Dakota Live Stock association at St. Louis, the mine of Scotland said in his address on "The Horse For the Farmer": "The horse for the farmer is the draft bred horse. He is the horse that can be raised by the common farmer with little trouble and expense. He is in reach of almost every farmer in the country. It is a profitable business on the farm to raise a few good colts. I say 'good colts' for it is just as easy to raise good ones as poor ones.

"It is just as easy to raise good ones as good ones or good sheep or good pigs. It does not pay to raise poor ones. Leave that for the other fellow."

POTASH MINES.

They Are All in Prussia and Supply the Entire World.

The potash which is dug from the royal Prussian mines, located at Strassfurt, ninety miles from Berlin, is the sole source of the world's supply. Before the mines were discovered the best substitute which could be found for the product was wood ash, such as the southern plantations used in the old days for making lye soap. The Prussian mines are twenty-seven in number and were devoted to the production of salt before rock salt was discovered.

When the new variety of salt was given to the world the Prussian mines were temporarily abandoned, and in a few years a search for rock salt was instituted. The salt was found, but in a badly adulterated condition, and an analysis of the adulterant revealed the fact that it was the most valuable part of the mineral. The potash was at once turned to use as commercial fertilizer.

The mines are controlled by a syndicate. They employ 21,000 men and yield 1,200 car loads a day of potash. Of the entire output 75 per cent is used for agricultural purposes, while the remainder is used for chemical purposes. It is largely utilized in the cyanide process of extracting gold from the ore.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MILITARY STORIES.

A Soldier Who Was Punished and a Bugler Who Was Excused.

From one of the French naval ports comes an interesting story of an incident which recently occurred there. A general holding a high command made his appearance suddenly at the barracks of an infantry regiment, which, in obedience to his orders, was promptly drawn up in the yard. Then he explained the reason in a brief address. He said that as he was walking in the town atrium in muff on the previous day a man belonging to the corps, who was the worse for liquor, accosted him rudely and asked him to stand him a drink. "Let him step out of the ranks," he concluded. Immediately a bugler emerged and, saluting, said, "It is I, mon general."

The incident is characteristic, and apropos of it we are reminded of such an adventure which befell a certain French marshal. A grenadier who was conspired at some injustice that had been done him pointed his pistol at the marshal and pulled the trigger, but it did not go off. Without moving a muscle the grenadier cried, "Four days in the cells for keeping your arms in a bad state!"

The bugler's honesty can scarcely have failed to be an exemption of his offense in the eyes of the general.

FASTER FLOWERS.

For The Chronicle.

I dreamed one night of eidelweiss, of eidelweiss on hills of ice;
Again of one rude dangerous spot,
Where grew the first forget-me-not;
Ah, me, that dreams like these should ever be forgot.

Sometimes I face the clouded west,
The dark blue vest where Carrick's crest,
Looms upward, and I feel and know
That there Arbutus blossoms grow;
But up those ridges blue I may not ever go.

But blessed be to-morrow morn,
Sweet Easter morn, when newly born
In lovely dales and pastures lilly,
I'll pluck the yellow Dafoodilly
And nodding violets and touch the heavenly lily.

THE WORD "HUSSAR."

It Is Hungarian and Originally Meant a Freebooter.

Hussar is a Hungarian word meaning originally a freebooter or free lance. These men, strong, active, hardy, accustomed to capture and tame herds of wild horses, were brought into military service by Corvins, the boy king, in 1442 and became the finest body of light cavalry in the world. The suggested derivation from the Magyar—huzst, twenty, and ar, pay (one horse-man raised by twenty families)—is only a fanciful one. The name spread into all ranks, and hussars of all nations are distinguished by uniforms of brilliant colors and elaborate ornaments. Two characteristics are the dolman and the busby, with its scarlet cloth attachment, a survival of the narrow Magyar bag, which fell over the left shoulder as a protection against sword cuts.

The word dragon was first used of a regiment of mounted infantry, so called from the dragons or short muskets with which they were armed. The head of a dragon, wrought on the muzzle of the muskets, seemed to spit fire, and at one time was depicted on their standards.

At Chingford, in Essex, England, an estate is held by a very strange condition. Whenever it passes into new hands the owner, with his wife, manservant and maid-servant, comes on horseback to the parsonage and pays his homage by blowing three blasts upon a horn. He carries a hawk upon his fist and his servant has a greyhound in the slip, both for the use of the rector for that day. He receives a chicken for the hawk, a peck of oats for his greyhound. After dinner the owner blows three more blasts, and then, with the party, withdraws from the rectory.

OPENING PARLIAMENT.

The Pomp With Which It Was Done by Queen Victoria.

The trumpets sound! The queen approaches! The trumpet continues, and first enters at a side door close to my elbow the college of heralds richly dressed, slowly two and two. Then the great officers of the household, then the lord chancellor bearing purse, seal and speech of the queen, with the mace borne before him. Then Lord Lansdowne with the crown, the Earl of Zetland with the cap of maintenance and the Duke of Wellington with the sword of state. Then Prince Albert, leading the queen, followed by the Duchess of Sutherland, mistress of the robes, and the Marchioness of Douro, daughter-in-law of the Duke of Wellington, who is one of the ladies in waiting. The queen and prince sit down, while every body else remains standing. The queen then says in a voice most clear and sweet, "My lords (rolling the r), be seated." Upon which the peers sit down, except those who enter with the queen, who group themselves about the throne in the most picturesque manner. The queen had a crown of diamonds, with splendid necklace and stomacher of the same. The Duchess of Sutherland close by her side with her ducal coronet of diamonds and a little back Lady Douro, also with her coronet. On the right of the throne stood the lord chancellor, with scarlet robe and flowing wig, holding the speech, surrounded by the emblems of his office; a little farther, one step lower down, Lord Lansdowne, holding the crown on a crimson velvet cushion, and on the left the Duke of Wellington, brandishing the sword of state in the air, with the Earl of Zetland by his side. The queen's train of royal purple, or, rather, deep crimson, was borne by many train bearers. The whole scene seemed to me like a dream or a vision. After a few minutes the lord chancellor came forward and presented the speech to the queen. She read it sitting and most exquisitely. Her voice is flutelike and her whole emphasis decided and intelligent. Very soon after the speech is finished she leaves the house, and we all follow as soon as we can get our carriages.—Mrs. George Bancroft in Scribner's.

A Thoughtful Man

M. M. Austin of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25c. at T. E. Zimmerman's Drug Store.

WILL PAY WAR CLAIMS.

If there is time this week the House of Representatives intends to pass an omnibus bill carrying a large number of war claims. These claims are for materials taken or consumed by the Federal troops during the Civil War, and for which no payment was made at the time. The supplies were taken from citizens who established their loyalty to the Union to the satisfaction of the Court of Claims, and the amounts to be paid were settled by the court after a careful investigation of all the facts. The total amount carried by the bill this year is $328,658.03. Congress has been paying these bills very regularly of recent years, and has thus far paid out $2,044,054.88.

Western Maryland always figures largely in these bills. This year the following claims are to be paid: Charles W. Hoffman, executor of William C. Hoffman, deceased, of Frederick county, $2,845; Andrew H. Rinehart, of Frederick county, $434; Lewis W. Riddlemoser and Marion F. Riddlemoser, sole heirs of Ephraim Riddlemoser, deceased, of Frederick county, $127; Engene L. Derr, administrator of the estate of John Derr, deceased, of Frederick county, $1,119; R. G. Johnson, administrator of Washington Stone deceased, of Frederick county, $352; Joseph E. Harley, administrator de bonis non of Otto F. Harley, deceased, of Frederick county, $654.

CYCLONE SENT HIM TO JAIL.

Chicago, March 30.—The same cyclone that made James Melny homeless in Indiana Harbor last week found him a new home in the Indiana Penitentiary. Justice, moving almost as fast as the cyclone itself, has decreed that he serve five years at hard labor for bigamy.

Had it not been for the storm which destroyed Melny's house and left him with slight injuries, his whereabouts might have never become known to the wife who has just brought about his conviction. Mrs. Olive Angliss Melny, of Chicago, who claims that Melny deserted her in Hamilton, Ontario, 15 years ago, chanced to see his name published in the list of injured by the storm. The result was the identification and arrest of Melny, who two years ago was married to a girl in the suburbs.—Sun by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

This Woman Refuses to Speak

In a fit of pique one year ago Mrs. Mary A. Heindel, wife of Aaron Heindel, of Codorus township, York county, Pa., resolved to refrain entirely from speaking to the members of her family and to all other persons. She has rigidly kept her resolution at the cost of the loss of reason, for Monday her case was brought before the court and a committee was appointed to inquire into her mental condition. Mrs. Heindel recently has refused to work, and when sewing is offered her she tears the fabric to strips. She shows many other symptoms of insanity, and with all maintains rigid silence.

Bored For Oil In Vain.

Oscar A. Wesner and Joseph D. Wesner, of Harford City, Ind., trading as Wesner Bros., well diggers, Wednesday secured an attachment, or mechanics' lien, on the well of the Tuscarora Oil Company, located in the "narrags," on the edge of Cumberland, for $3,350, which they claim is owing them. They began drilling September 16 last and have been paid $2,500 on account and a $500 stock certificate. They were to have received $50 a day for drilling. The contract of the company with the drillers included a $1,000 stock certificate.

The Wesners are shipping their machinery away, and it is likely that the company, composed largely of local capital, with G. W. Myers, of Hagerstown as president, will continue the test. The well is 2,300 feet deep and, despite many days of hard work, the drillers have been unable to penetrate the rock, which geologists say is the hardest known.

Recently the well was shot with right being able to budge the rock. There are indications of oil on the spot.—Sun.
