STENOGRAPHY.

Sign Writing Was in Use Among the Ancient Greeks and Romans.

The existence of stenography among the Greeks and the Romans is certain. The shorthand that they used was a form of writing in which each word was represented by a special sign. The letters of the alphabet, with modifications, connected so as to admit of great rapidity of execution, formed the elements of these characters. They date at least from the first century before Christ.

In the second century A. D. is found the term semelograph (stenographic character) in the Greek orator, Flavius Pilostratus.

Origen of Alexandria (185-254 A. D.) notes his sermons down in shorthand, and, according to the ecclesiastical historian of the fourth century, says that part of the sermons of St. John Chrysostom was preserved by the same process. In the first century B. C. a discourse of Cato Uticensis, according to Plutarch, was taken down by shorthand reporters.

The development of shorthand was due especially to Marcus Tullius Tiro. Born in Latium in 103 B. C., Tiro, who was a slave, was brought up with Cicero, who was some years his junior. Freed, he became Cicero's secretary, and in this capacity aided him greatly. In the famous trial of Catiline (63 B. C.) the stenographic rapidity of Tiro was at its height.—Chicago Tribune.

RIGMAROLE.

The Word Evidently Comes Down to Us From "Ragman Rolls."

The word rigmarole is applied nowadays, with the contemptuous emphasis of slang, to describe a long, unintelligible statement. At one time it must have been a word of some weight, for Byron in "Don Juan" speaks thus of it: "His speech was a fine sample, on the whole, of rhetoric, which the learned call 'rigmarole.'"

It was certainly associated with what were known in law as "ragman rolls," lengthy deeds with seals attached, whose lack of lucidity probably gave rise to the word's modern meaning. Even papal bulls were so described during the middle ages, while the ragman roll by which Edward I. bound the Scottish nobles is of historical celebrity. This was a cumbersome and complicated deed, consisting of thirty-five pieces of parchment sewn together. There was a very old game called ragman roll, in which the players pulled from a roll of parchment papers attached to seals hung outside, on which various characters were inscribed.

The primary derivation of "ragman" is very doubtful. In "Piers Plowman" it is applied to the evil one, and in Icelandic it means one who is cowardly or confused.—London Answers.

HOW BONES GROW.

The Evolution From Cartilage Is Slow and Complicated.

Bone, in its earliest stages called temporary cartilage, has fibrous tissue as its primary foundation. The chief uses of bones are to protect delicate organs and to form a framework for the body, by which, in combination with the muscles, the body is moved.

As growth advances stronger mechanical support becomes necessary, and as scaffolding is gradually removed in the course of building, so each part of the soft cartilage is cleared away piece by piece, at first by the absorption of its central part and then by the deposit of a few particles of bony matter to take its place.

The arteries next enlarge and deposit granules of calcareous phosphate, which are laid down, particle by particle, in regular lines, so as to form continuous fibers, which cross connect and unite from different centers and by definite laws.

Each distinct bone is thus formed from ossific or bone forming centers, which unite by a natural affinity. Dr. Roger has compared this process to the method by which a sculptor models first in plastic material the form to be expressed in marble.

SEEING DOUBLE.

How Intoxicating Liquor Acts Upon the Eye Muscles.

Among the earliest consequences of strong drink must be placed the lack of proper co-ordination of all muscular movements. This applies not only to the limbs, as is seen in the staggering gait, but to all parts in a healthy body which act in sympathy.

Certain parts of the retina of both eyes possess what are called sympathetic areas, so that through each eye has its own image, yet by continued experience these are transmitted to the brain as only one object. Should the muscles by any cause be unequal to regulate the associated movements the images of external objects are thrown on unsympathetic areas of the retina, and the result is that they appear double.

This may easily be tried in the healthy eye by squeezing one eyeball slightly, when the images will fall on areas not usually sympathetic, and two objects appear instead of one, or if a finger be pointed upward about two feet away, and a candle be placed farther off still, then the eyes, looking closely at the finger, will perceive two images of the distant candle.

An Invitation.

An interesting collection of invitations to and from Benjamin Franklin during his visit to England is in the University of Pennsylvania library. Among the letters to Franklin are some from George Washington and for letters to and from Franklin and Washington. One of the letters is an invitation to Franklin to visit the University of Pennsylvania. Franklin accepted the invitation, and he and Washington went to the University of Pennsylvania. Franklin was in the University of Pennsylvania for a short time, and he was very popular. He was invited to give a lecture, and he gave a very interesting lecture. He was also invited to give a speech, and he gave a very interesting speech. He was very popular in the University of Pennsylvania, and he was very well liked. A Cow Superstition.

According to Indo-European folklore the clouds of the heavens were nothing but cows, who were invested with the duties of a psychopomp. At times these clouds descended to the earth and assumed their bovine garb, but their duty remained the same. Hence the superstition prevalent in many agricultural countries that a cow breaking into a garden foretells a death in the family. The psychopomp was merely looking for a soul to escort to the hereafter.

A Queer Sight In Holland.

One of the queerest sights which I saw in Europe was a row of wooden shoes outside the door of a Dutch farmhouse on Saturday morning. There were the big sized shoes of the farmer himself, the middle sized shoes of his good vauro and several small sized shoes of the children, and all the line had been scrubbed and freshly whitewashed in preparation for Sunday.—"Old Stories of Holland."

THE BANANA.

Fruit That Ripens on the Plant Is Not Suitable For Food.

There is a vast amount of ignorance prevailing among intelligent people of the north concerning the growth, production and marketing of bananas. Many people imagine that the natives in tropical climes step out of their huts in the early morning and pluck and eat bananas from the plant, the same as they would oranges and other fruits. Bananas ripened on the plant are much the same as the pith which is found in the northern cornstalk or elder. Bananas sold in the United States, even after traveling 3,000 miles in a green state, are every bit as good as bananas ripened under a tropical sun. This is probably true of no other export fruit.

The plant of which bananas is the fruit is not a tree, nor is it a bush or vine. It is simply a gigantic plant, growing to a height of from fifteen to twenty feet. About eighteen feet from the ground the leaves, oftentimes eight feet long, come out in a short cluster, from the center of which springs a bunch of bananas. These do not grow with the bananas pointing upward naturally, and if the stem grew straight they would hang exactly as seen in the fruit stores and grocers' windows. This, however, is not the case. The stem bends under the weight of the fruit, and this brings it into directly the opposite direction, with the large end of the stalk up and the fringes pointing toward the sun.

A word of explanation concerning some banana terms. Each banana is called a "finger," and each of these little clusters of fingers surrounding a stalk is called a "hand." The quality and value of each bunch depend on the number of hands it has. Some may wonder how the fruit is cut from the top of a plant fifteen feet from the ground. The native laborers cut the stalk part way up its height. The weight of the fruit causes the stalk to slowly bend over until the bunch of bananas first nicely reaches the ground; then the bunch is cut off with the ever ready machete and carried to the river or railroad for shipment. The plant at the same time is cut close to the ground. The banana is a very prolific producer of itself, and at every cleaning of the land it is necessary to cut down many of the young plants, or "suckers," as they are termed, in order that they may not become overcrowded up to a certain limit. The fewer suckers on a given area the larger the fruit they will produce.—Chicago Chronicle.

LITTLE THOUGHTS.

Disappointment is not a sufficient reason for discouragement.

Be satisfied with yourself if you will, but do not be self satisfied.

All things come to those who leave off waiting and go after them.

The chimps to wisdom of all owls and most men rest upon their looks.

Good qualities, like good steel knives, grow dull of edge unless they are used.

Many a man who is offered a chance of a lifetime for a mere song cannot sing.

Your grip on success depends largely on the other things you are willing to let go.

When a man sets popularity before his eyes, he is likely to let principle out of his heart.

If we had no failings ourselves, we should not take so much pleasure in finding out those of others.

Good Secret To Know.

A man went to a nose and throat specialist the other day to have his cold cured. As he was paying well for the first treatment he said, "How long does it take you to cure a cold?"

"Three weeks," said the specialist.

"And how long would it take me to get well if I didn't come to you?" asked the alarmed patient.

"Twenty-one days," said the specialist.

And it wasn't until the patient was half way home that he suddenly stopped and wondered whether he ought to laugh or get angry. He finally decided that perhaps the secret he had learned was worth the price he had paid for it. It's a good secret to know.—Saturday Evening Post.

His Rule of Business.

A fair young thing who buttonholed a Wall street magnate and asked him what was his rule of business is puzzling over his answer: "Very simple. I pay for something that I can't get with money I haven't got and then sell what I never had for more than it ever cost."—New York Press.

Home Exercise.

"Smithers seems to be improving in health. Notice the spring in his walk nowadays?"

"Yes; he has been taking a course of 'get strong quick' exercise at home the last two weeks."

"Under whose instructions?"

THROWN UPON THE STAGE.

The Way English Audiences Reward Popular Players With Gifts.

There have lately in the provinces been several sensational nights at prominent theaters when to mark the last performance of a local pantomime all manner of gifts have been thrown upon the stage for the benefit of popular performers.

All those acquainted for long with the inner life of the theatrical profession can tell some remarkable stories of these gifts cast upon the stage. The most celebrated and universal of these relates to a lady who once held the main portion of the lease of a prominent London theater. While this lady was still an actress only and not a manageress, an actress of great talent and beauty, there was one night on the first production of the piece a small bouquet cast upon the stage at her feet. Attached to the bouquet was a small Russia leather card case, and inside this were bank notes to the value of £1,000 exactly. On no fewer than seven different occasions, with a tolerably long interval between, did the same thing occur, and the lady, as alleged, has never from that day to this discovered who her admirer was, though all manner of romantic conjectures were made at the time.

Even within the last few weeks an unknown elderly gentleman threw an envelope weighted with pennies and containing a five pound note to a tiny child performing in a London suburban pantomime. Some of the gifts, all manner of presents, from frying pans to green vegetables, having been gently deposited on the stage for the popular actors; yet, on the other hand, both writs and summonses have been handed to actors who could not be approached through the stage door, but who consented to receive presents over the footlights on their benefit nights.

The most curious sight the writer ever saw in connection with these gift throwing nights was in relation to a favorite actor who, at a great provincial theater, played during a long pantomime run the part of a parasite named Cadgi, who carried a pipe that had a huge bowl and whose oft repeated cry was, "Can any one oblige me with a bit of 'bacca'?" On the last night of the performance the familiar request for a "bit of 'bacca'" had no sooner been spoken than literally scores of packets and "screws" of tobacco of every imaginable kind were thrown upon the stage, more than 120 of these falling about the actor.—London Tit-Bits.

His Present.

"John," she said, "your little wife has been saving up her money to buy you a nice present."

"Good little wifey," he replied.

"What is it?"

"A smoking jacket," she explained.

"And I saved the money all myself out of the house allowance. Wasn't I thoughtful?"

"Splendid!" he exclaimed.

"And now I wish you'd bring me home some more money tonight."

"What did you do with what I brought home last night?" he asked in some surprise.

"Oh, that's what I saved the smoking jacket money out of," she answered.

Not To Be Hushed.

Bishop Littlejohn of Long Island, who died at the age of ninety, refused up to the day of his death to accept the assistance of a coadjutor bishop, declaring that he was perfectly able to perform his duties and care for his people. At a meeting of the clergy in the last year of his life Archbishop Bryan was requested to call the meeting to order. The archbishop arose and requested the delegates to give attention, remarking:

"The bishop wishes to say a few words."

"A few words, sir; a few words!" interjected the bishop. "I would have it understood, sir, that the bishop will say as many words as he pleases."

The Benefits of Prayer.

"Now, honestly," said the unbeliever, "have you ever been helped by prayer? Can you point to a single instance in which you can truthfully say that praying has done you the slightest service?"

"I should say I could!" replied the good old elder. "If I hadn't stopped to say my prayers the other morning I'd have caught the 7:40 train into the city, and instead of sixty-one passengers killed and injured in the wreck I'd have probably made the sixty-second."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Polite Butcher.

Boy (in butcher's shop)—My mother sent me back to let you see what a big bone there was in the pound of beef she bought last night, and she wants another pound without bones. Butcher—Tell your mother the next time I kill a cow without bones I'll send her a leg for nothing.

THE LAW IN KOREA.

Queer Ways of Punishing the Refractories of Criminals.

Angus Hamilton in his book on Korea says: "The inhabitants are peculiarly proficient in the art of doing nothing gracefully. There are, therefore, infinite charm and variety in the daily life of Korea. The natives take their pleasures passively, and their constitutional incapacity makes it appear as if there were little to do but to indulge in a gentle stroll in the brilliant sunshine or to sit cross legged within the shades of their houses. Inaction becomes them. Nothing could be more unsuited to the character of their peculiar costume than vigorous movement. The stolid dignity of their appearance and their stately demeanor add vastly to the picturesqueness of the street scenes. The white coated, white trousersed, white socked, slowly striding population is irresistibly fascinating to the eye."

Here are some of the punishments prescribed by Korean law: Treason, man—Decapitated, together with male relatives to the fifth degree. Mother, wife and daughter poisoned or reduced to slavery. Treason, woman—Poisoned. Murder, man—Decapitated. Wife poisoned. Murder, woman—Strangled or poisoned. Arson, man—Strangled or poisoned. Wife poisoned. Arson, woman—Poisoned. Theft, man—Strangled, decapitated or banished. Wife reduced to slavery; confiscation of all property. Desecration of graves—Decapitated, together with male relatives to the fifth degree. Mother, wife and daughter poisoned. Counterfeiting—Strangulation or decapitation. Wife poisoned.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

The Famous Case of Lesurques of the Lyons Mail.

The most famous of all cases of mistaken identity is that of Lesurques, charged with the robbery and murder of the courier of the Lyons mail, which has been so vividly brought home to us through the dramatic play based upon it. Lesurques was positively identified as a man who had traveled by the mail coach, and he was in due course convicted. Yet at the eleventh hour a woman came into court and declared his innocence, swearing that the witnesses had mistaken him for another. Duboseq, whom he greatly resembled. She was the confidant of one of the gang who had planned and carried out the robbery. But her testimony, although corroborated by other confederates, was rejected, and Lesurques received sentence of death. Lesurques died protesting his innocence to the last. Four years elapsed before Duboseq was captured. In the interval others of the gang had passed through the hands of the police, but the prime mover was only now taken. Even then he was twice escaped from prison. When finally he was put on his trial and the judge ordered a fair wig, such as Lesurques had worn, to be placed on his head, the strange likeness was immediately apparent. He denied his guilt, but was convicted and guillotined. Thus two men suffered for one offense.

Too Unanimous.

"Talk about men being lords of creation! Why, I can twist that husband of mine around my little finger."

"Yes, I suppose so. He's rather small, isn't he, and quite slender?"

"Small and slender? He isn't any such thing. There's enough of him, let me tell you, to make a million such husbands as yours."—Chicago Tribune.

More Definite Information Wanted.

"Now, William," said the man of business to the office boy, "I am going out to get shaved."

One Cent Claims Against Uncle Sam.

There have been several one cent claims against the United States government. One was by the Southern Pacific, which submitted a bill of $5.29 for hauling government freight. It was a bond aided road, only part of its bills against the government being paid in cash, the rest going to the railroad's credit on the bonds. In this case its credit was $5.29 and its cash a cent. Another government obligation of a single cent was in favor of a chemical company which for some unexplained reason agreed in a public competition to supply 36,892 pounds of ethyl ether for a cent. The offer was accepted. There were nine signatures, one that of a rear admiral, on the paper relating to the establishment of this claim, and the warrant for payment had to be signed by several persons.

A Gormandizer.

Some years ago the late Marquis of Queensberry made a bet of 1,000 guineas that he would produce a man who would eat more at a meal than any Sir John Lade could find. The bet being accepted, the time was appointed, but his lordship not being able to attend the exhibition he wrote to his agent to know the result and presently received the following note:

My Lord—I have not time to state particulars, but merely to acquaint you with the fact that your man has been defeated by a pig and an apple pie.

IN THE LAND OF FIRE.

How the Native of Tierra del Fuego Manages to Exist.

In Tierra del Fuego the Yaghan Indian leads a remarkable existence. He braves the seas of Cape Horn naked in a frail bark canoe. He owns no faith, religion or tribal tie other than that of the family, which huddles together for food and sustenance. His only household goods are the smoldering brands which he carries on a slab of turf in his canoe to each feast-baiting place. The women, usually two, paddle the canoe from the stern. The man crouches in the bow on the lookout for prey. On the shore runs one or two dogs to sniff out and turn any lurking otter or sea bird. The long pole that fringes the coast serves as a break-water for the frail craft, whose crew only venture out into the open channels when their foresight tells them that a calm will be of sufficient duration to enable them to pass from one inhospitable beach to another. They are unduly developed in the torso at the expense of the lower limbs, for they pass their lives thus crouching on the ground. Fishing without hooks, living on mussels and fungus, this tribe marks the limit to which man may strip himself of all aid or comfort and yet survive.

TICKLING TROUT.

How Irish Poachers Catch the Fish With the Bare Hand.

In Europe trout poachers have the reputation of catching trout with their bare hands. The process in Ireland is called "tickling." I could scarcely believe that this thing was done—that the most timid and wary of fish could be caught by the naked hands. Reading of one fellow sent to jail for "tickling" trout, I was curious enough to try the process myself in the presence of an angler as witness. I found it the simplest thing in the world, as far as the "tickling" was concerned. The difficulty appeared to lie in approaching the trout. But I found that this could be done almost every time by quiet,

KILLED FOUR OF FAMILY.

J. M. Pouch of Noted Brooklyn Family Murders His Children And Takes His Own Life

Roselle, N. J., June 7.—Joseph M. Pouch murdered three of his children and, after wounding a fourth, killed himself last evening in his cottage, near the station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Pouch killed two of the children on Sunday and laid them out as an undertaker would. He had been engaged in that business. He kept the other two children in an upper room of the house until the authorities, in response to a warning he had mailed to County Physician Westcott, rapped on the front door. Then he shot both children, killing the girl and wounding the boy, who died this morning. The man finally shot himself, dying a few minutes after the police forced an entrance. Pouch is a nephew of the Pouch who built the Pouch Mansion in Brooklyn.

Pouch was about 52 years of age. His father was a wealthy undertaker in Brooklyn. When the father died some years ago he is said to have left his entire estate to a brother of the man who figured in the tragedy here. Since he was cut off in the will Joseph Pouch had been morose. He was twice married. His first wife is now remarried after a divorce. His second wife died about two months ago, and an investigation will be made as to the cause of her death. She had been badly bruised, and it is known now, told varying stories of how she was hurt. To some she said she fell down stairs, and to others that she was hit by a stick of wood while chopping kindling.

Worst of all Experiences

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

A Strong Heart

is assured by perfect digestion. Indigestion swells the stomach and puffs it up against the heart. This causes shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and general weakness. Kodol Dyspeptic Cure cures indigestion, relieves the stomach, takes the strain off the heart and restores it to a full performance of its function. Kodol increases the strength by enabling the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and appropriate to the blood and tissue all of the food nutriment. Tones the stomach and digestive organs. Sold by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

GALA DAY FOR OLD MARYLAND.

Maryland's building on the grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, at St. Louis, Mo., was dedicated Wednesday, handed over by the architect to the Maryland Commissioners, and by them transferred to President David R. Francis of the Exposition.

It was a gala occasion, rendered happy by pleasant weather, by a throng of charming ladies of St. Louis, and Baltimore, and by the admirable management of General L. Victor Baughman, chairman of the Maryland Commission. Speeches were made by General Baughman; by Murray Carleton, president of the Maryland Society in Missouri; President Francis, of the Exposition and Governor Dockery, of Missouri. The Maryland Commissioners went to the Fair Grounds in a parlor trolley car as guests of Murray Carleton, president of the local Maryland Society, who is president of the street car company over whose lines the car traveled. Accompanying the Commissioners were the entertaining committee of the Maryland Society. They were:

Murray Carleton, president; Frank J. McMaster, first vice-president; William H. Thompson, second vice-president; T. Garrison Morfit, secretary; Leonard Matthews, treasurer; E. E. Simmons, K. J. Laughlin, Frank Ridgely, D. M. Howard, R. S. Brookings, C. L. Hillery, Dr. Y. H. Bond, William H. Lee, John F. Lee.

That Throbbing Headache

Would quickly leave you if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for sick and nervous headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25 cents, money back if not cured. Sold by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

A SINGULAR EXPERIENCE.

Shamokin, Pa., June 8.—John Brewer, of Philadelphia, a commercial agent, was unable to leave a telephone booth in the Windsor Hotel last night owing to a catch on the door refusing to work. He was almost suffocated, when he thought of the telephone exchange, but by the time he got an answer he was too much exhausted to speak plainly. The operator of the exchange thinking something was wrong, sent a messenger to the hotel, and when the top of the booth was removed Brewer was found unconscious on the floor. He was revived with much difficulty.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Hills for constipation.

DENTON'S NEW JAIL.

Architect Davis Preparing Plans For A $12,000 Structure.

Architect Davis of Baltimore has been directed by the Caroline County Commissioners to prepare plans for a new jail, to cost not over $12,000. Mr. Davis recently submitted plans to the Board for a modern jail, with steel cage and sheriff's residence combined, to be erected upon the courthouse green, and of a style of architecture and construction in keeping with the new courthouse, but the bids offered were all above $21,000.

The old jail, now on the green, has been repeatedly condemned by Grand Jurors as unfitted either for the keeping of prisoners or the residence of the sheriff's family, and the statement is general that a new one to conform to the courthouse should be placed near the latter. It is now probable, however, that if a new jail is built it will have to be erected elsewhere than on the public square, as the County Commissioners do not think the finances of the county would justify the expenditure of a sufficient amount to build the character of structure necessary on the green.

Walter, contractor, of Motter's Station, who has the contract for rebuilding the house which was destroyed by fire sometime ago, and belonging to the Misses Ella and Anna Shriver, will have it completed and ready for occupancy within six weeks from the time the work of rebuilding was begun. The building is of brick.

Enoch Borton Garey, of Caroline county, the only appointee to the United States Military Academy from Maryland to enter West Point this month, was named from the first Congressional district by Representative William H. Jackson. He is a graduate of St. John's College, Annapolis, and has since been assistant principal of the Princess Anne High School.

Automobile Tank Explodes.

An oil tank in the automobile belonging to Mr. F. X. Hooper, of Glenmar, Baltimore county, exploded about 7 o'clock Tuesday night in the wagon shed of James H. Dinzey, at Towson, and caused some excitement. Mr. Hooper was putting the machine in order when it caught fire and the oil tank exploded. The loss was not large.

WRECK IN WAKE OF BIG STORM.

Harvest Wrought By Water, Wind And Lightning

Reports received Monday indicate that the storms of Sunday afternoon and night, which were general throughout Frederick county, did many thousands of dollars' damage. Farmers and fruitgrowers lost heavily. Crops were badly damaged and many fields of corn were ruined.

In the neighborhood of Braddock, where there are many orchards, one of the storms, blowing with cyclonic force from the southwest, cut a swath through the trees, snapping hundreds of them off close to the ground.

The County Commissioners stated Monday that, while it seemed that no large bridge had been destroyed, many small ones and culverts had been swept away, and the cost to the county for repairs would be very large. Much fencing and many chickens and hogs were swept away by the flooded streams.

Dr. J. O. Hendrix, of Frederick, had an exciting experience Sunday evening during one of the storms. He was returning from a professional visit near Feagville, when the storm broke. Trees were blown down all around him, and the rain beat upon his buggy with terrifying force. When he came to the bridge over Bollinger's Creek he found it covered with water and impassable, and he was compelled to wait in the road until the storm was over. When the water subsided the bridge was found covered with the remains of flood-gates and other debris, which had to be removed before he could cross.

Carroll Creek, which runs through Frederick, was higher Sunday night than it has been since the great flood of 1888. Scores of horses had to be removed from stables. At Houch's livery stable the water rose so suddenly that the employees, who had been out along the creek watching the flood, had to cut the halters of 32 horses in order to save them. The animals plunged through the flood into the street, and some of them were not captured until Monday morning. A valuable driving horse belonging to Dr. L. J. McCurdy, while at liberty ran into a barbed wire fence near the Frederick City Hospital and out its knees so badly that it is feared it will be permanently disabled.

In the Middletown Valley

Reports from the surrounding country indicate that Sunday night's flood was one of the most destructive that has visited this section of Middletown Valley since the Johnstown disaster. Nearly all the streams in the valley were out of bank, and there was great destruction of fencing, crops, fields, roads, bridges, etc., all along their course. The loss to the county will be heavy. Cornfields were torn and washed, gardens were destroyed and small buildings were washed away. The gale accompanying the storm blew down trees and fencing and damaged barns.

The heaviest damage was southeast of town. In that section two county bridges were wrecked in a number of places the county roads were torn so badly as to be impassable. South of town a bridge was swept away, and in the vicinity of Broad Run two were reported gone. The dwelling on the farm of the late Charles W. Ridy, southwest of Middletown, was struck by lightning and damaged. A hole was torn in the roof, the cornice was wrecked and some of the weatherboarding was torn off. Jacob Shank's barn was unroofed. At Bolivar the water swept across the National pike, sweeping away fencing and tearing the road. At the electric railroad powerhouse, east of Middletown, the small dam was washed away, the water extinguished the fires in the engine room and Martin Kefauver lost a lot of fencing and thousands of goldfish were washed from his pond. At the same place Thomas Stine lost all his chickens. Near Jefferson a horse was killed by lightning.

The rain was not so heavy in the northern part of the valley, and little damage is reported from there, except the blowing down of trees, etc.

Taken To Baltimore For Treatment. Daniel Bollinger, a young clerk of the Hoover House, Hagerstown, who threw himself from the roof of a rear building of the hotel a few days ago with suicidal intent, was taken on Sunday evening on a Western Maryland train to the Maryland General Hospital Baltimore. It was necessary to convey him to the train on a cot. His back is hurt and he sustained internal injuries, being unable to sit up. Little hope is entertained for his recovery. He was accompanied to Baltimore by his two sisters.

United Brethren Re-Union Day At Pen-Mar.

The United Brethren Church of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, will hold a grand reunion at Pen-Mar on Saturday, June 25th. This is the first reunion of that church at Pen-Mar Park and the committee having same in charge promise to make it one of the most interesting days ever held at popular Pen-Mar Park.

Excursion trains will be run from Shippensburg, Hagerstown, Baltimore and York, and the United Brethren Committee particularly request that every member and friend of that denomination join with them in making June 25th one of the largest and most successful church reunions ever held at Pen-Mar.

Youth Crushed To Death.

Saturday afternoon as the steamer St. Mary's, of the Weems Line, was making her usual landing at Solomons' wharf the vessel came in contact with an oyster hoisting derrick, where a number of persons were congregation to welcome arriving friends. The collision caused a general stampede, but Kenneth Vail, aged 14 years, son of Capt. P. T. Vail, of Solomons, was crushed to death in the contact.

ENTERS UPON DUTIES IN HIS NEW PULPIT.

Rev. Luther DeYoe In Trinity Evangelical Church.

Rev. Luther DeYoe entered upon his duties last Sunday as pastor of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, at Main and Queen streets, Germantown, Pa., where he succeeds Rev. Dr. Luther E. Albert. About twenty-five members of Messiah Church, Harrisburg, the pastorate of which Mr. DeYoe resigned to accept his present charge, went to Germantown to attend his initial service Sunday morning. Among the decorations in the church was an immense bunch of American Beauty roses, a gift to the pastor from the Christian Endeavor Society of Messiah Church, Harrisburg.

The Lutheran congregation of Emmitsburg, of which Rev. Mr. DeYoe was formerly pastor, was represented at the services.

"God's Blessing Essential to Success" was the theme of Mr. DeYoe's sermon, his text being from Psalm cxviii, 1: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it."

Doubt As To Author.

"It is not known who wrote the 127th Psalm," said the pastor. "Some think David, some Solomon. It is not known whether it refers to the Temple or some other building. While these things are uncertain, it is sure that the psalm teaches this great and comforting truth: Our human life is encompassed by the Divine life. God is ready to let His blessing rest upon our work. His blessing is essential to our success. Very much of what we do is described as building. This is especially true of things we do toward the completion of some plan. We speak of building a house, a ship, and just as correctly of developing something that is not material. We speak of the building of character, of parties and States and nations. We speak of the building up of a Church. When we use the expression in this way we do not mean the erection of the house in which the congregation worships. That is one of the smallest items in the building up of a congregation. The thought includes all the conditions and facts for which a congregation should stand in a community and the world. It stands as Jesus would stand if He were here.

"It is a friend to the needy. Wherever a church is, there is someone ready to feed the hungry, clothe the destitute, minister to the sick, inspire the discouraged, comfort the sorrowing. There is someone ready to teach them that God is good and that they should love Him and each other.

"The real building up of the Church is the enlargement of these facts and conditions among men. That development of a church is one that is always continuing. It is never to stop until the entire community, until the entire world is brought under the dominion of those suggestions. God gives us a reward according to the degree and wisdom of our efforts. He begins and finishes results. He does very much toward the making of the harvest. Somewhere, however, he has left something for man to do. The abundance of the return depends upon the degree of abundance of labor that man has given. That is just as true in reference to results in the Church. He that soweth liberally shall reap liberally.

God's Request.

"To be certain of satisfactory results God asks that we work in Him as He suggests. It is our privilege to realize His presence. We do not serve a God who is far away, but One who is here and now. He has fire and flood and winds and the minds of men under his control. If He is for us He is more than all who can be against us. The undying comfort in our work is that we are working, and working to accomplish His purposes and according to His methods.

"In undertaking the work of Trinity Church I have this comfort: From the beginning this congregation has been guided by eminently godly men. None more so than the last beloved leader, Dr. Albert. The results gathered here have been in the Lord. They are permanent. Our aim is just to develop that which already is. For this work I ask from you but one gift. That is your prayer that God will keep me true to the enlightenment that He grants to me. If you do that, then I have strength and hope. The work of building up a Church is the happiest work of time. May He help us to be faithful to this, and to His name we will give the praises."

Storm Causes Death Of Three Horses.

During the rainstorm on Monday evening the gable end of the bank barn on the McPherson farm, (known as the Crawford farm) along Marsh Creek, near the pumping station of the Gettysburg Water Company, was blown in, killing two horses outright and breaking the legs of a third necessitating its being killed, for the tenant, Mr. James Boyd.

The buildings on the farm of Jacob Kitzmiller, Freedom township, suffered considerably. The wagon shed was moved about two feet and the doors blown off. Some of the weatherboarding was blown from the barn and the roof slightly moved.

A PRETTY JUNE WEDDING

A pretty June wedding was solemnized at a Nuptial High Mass at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Mt. St. Mary's, at 7 A. M., Wednesday, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the happy couple.

The contracting parties were Miss Jennie Rosesteel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Rosesteel, of Motter's Station, and Mr. David H. Guise, of near this place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles O. Rosesteel, of Forest Glen, Md.—a cousin of the bride—assisted by Rev. Thomas Lyons, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, and Rev. J. O. Hayden, rector of St. Joseph's Church, this place. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Kelly and the best man was Mr. William Rosesteel. The bride was attired in a pretty gown of white China silk, trimmed in lace and ribbon, and wore a veil and gloves and carried a beautiful bouquet of sweet peas and maiden fern. The maid of honor wore a gown of persian lawn, trimmed in lace.

After the ceremony the happy couple were driven to the hospitable home of the bride where a sumptuous dinner was served to a large number of friends of the happy couple.

In the evening a reception was held at "Cloverdale," the home of the groom, where a large number of people gathered to extend their best wishes to the bride and groom for a long, happy and successful journey through life. The large attendance at the reception was an evidence of the respect and esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Guise are held in the community in which they reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Guise were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents, among which were a handsome set of silverware, a china dinner set, two large rockers, parlor lamp, toilet set, etc.

Among those in attendance at the reception from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Guise, of Pikesville, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jacobs and family, Mrs. David Snovell and son, of Baltimore; Miss Sallie Kelly, of McSherrytown; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Krise, Miss Bessie Waddles and Mr. Blaine Waddles of Fairfield, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Topper, of near Gettysburg, Pa.

BRANNEN-STOCKDALE

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Stockdale, in Thurmont, Wednesday afternoon their daughter, Bertha Gardner Stockdale was married to Mr. James Brannen, of Baltimore. The bride was tastefully attired in dotted Swiss, with lace trimmings, and carried Bride Roses. Rev. George H. Harris officiated, the ring service being used. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Brannen left for the World's Fair and Cincinnati. They will be at home to their friends after July 15 at Patterson's Mansion, near Waverly.

Excursion Train Ran Into Washout

The Baltimore and Ohio excursion train returning to Hagerstown from Baltimore and Washington, at a late hour last Sunday night, ran into a washout on the Washington County Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio, a short distance from Weyertown. The engine was derailed and fell to one side of the track and the front coach left the tracks, but no one was injured.

There was almost a panic, however among the 255 persons aboard the train, and a number of women fainted. On account of the grade the train was running at a low rate of speed. Had it been making the time usually made on the branch road the whole train might have dashed down over a rocky precipice. The washout was due to the rains Sunday afternoon and night. The wrecking crew was summoned from Brunswick and the track was repaired, the excursionists reaching Hagerstown at 2 o'clock Monday morning.

CYCLONE, WITH HAIL.

Heavy Injury Done In Washington County Fruit Belt.

A cyclone, with terrific hail, swept over the lower section of Washington county Monday evening, and the damage will reach thousands of dollars. The fruit crop about Smoketown and Mapleville is practically destroyed, and the loss is heavy. Entire peach and apple orchards, and hundreds of acres of raspberries and strawberries, truck patches and gardens, were laid waste, being cut by the hail almost into shreds. The storm was the worst that ever visited that locality. It came from the southwest, and traversed a territory over a mile wide from near Sharpsburg to the fruit belt about Mapleville, at the foot of South Mountain, near Boonsboro. At that point the storm broke, crossing the mountain.

The roaring of the wind could be heard for some distance, and hail fell for 20 minutes, covering the ground to a depth of several inches.

All of the fruit growers in that section suffered a heavy loss. David Ridemour estimates his loss at a thousand dollars. Hail was six inches deep on his porch. Window lights in houses were smashed by the hail and wind and large branches twisted from trees and carried some distance. Numbers of trees were uprooted, miles of fencing blown down and other damage done. At Boonsboro and Rohrersville considerable damage was done, and also in the localities of Benecola and Buertners, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. At Keedysville the storm was very heavy, hail and wind doing lots of damage to orchards and property. A violent storm prevailed at 8 o'clock at night in the section east of Clear Spring, damaging property to a great extent.

SHOT HIMSELF.

On last Saturday morning Guy, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sebold, of near town, accidentally shot himself in the stomach with a 22-caliber revolver. He was at St. Joseph's Academy when the accident occurred, and was in the act of putting the revolver in his inside coat pocket when the hammer of the revolver caught in his clothes causing the accidental discharge of the weapon. He walked to his home but did not tell his parents of the accident until some time in the afternoon. Dr. J. W. Eichelberger was summoned and dressed the wound, but was unable to locate the bullet.

Guy's father took him to a hospital in Baltimore on Monday morning for treatment.

SALARY INCREASED.

Postmaster Tuck, at Annapolis was notified by the postoffice department at Washington Tuesday that on account of the greatly increased business done by this office his salary had been increased $200 a year. Dr. Tuck states that the business now being done by the local office has never been equaled, the force of clerks and handlers having been rushed for the past month with a congestion of mail matter which beats the usual Christmas rush. The total increase for the last twelve months over the revenue in the preceding year amounts to $6,000 while for one day's work last week the amount earned by the Annapolis office was $1015. The daily average of revenue now amounts to between $150 and $200. While it is thought that the number of Warships which have been laying at anchor off the Naval Academy has contributed to the recent rush of mail matter, there is still a safe margin of increased business.

The professor paid his fine, and said he should not have been ignorant of the law.—Gettysburg News.

REFUSED TO REFUND

Sharp Lewis Merriman, the young man from New York arrested in Hagerstown recently on the charge of deserting his wife, Eleanor I. Merriman, and minor child and who left Hagerstown suddenly on the night of the same day with a Hagerstown girl, filed a petition in the Circuit Court asking that the $400 bail which he forfeited be returned to him. He was represented by Louis Karish, a New York lawyer. The petition recites that Mr. and Mrs. Merriman entered into a written agreement of separation to live apart for 3 months, Merriman agreeing to provide for the support of his wife and child for that period, Mrs. Merriman agreeing not to institute any proceedings against him for non-support and desertion, and to discontinue the proceedings she brought against him in Hagerstown. Judge Keeley heard the case and refused to refund the bail.—Sun.

THE USE OF LIME.

Lime Not a Fertilizer—Advice From the Ohio Experiment Station.

Lime is absolutely indispensable to plant growth, yet it is required in comparatively small amounts. Our cereal crops, for instance, contain about two pounds of phosphoric acid and three pounds of potash for every pound of lime, while all soils except the clear sands contain much more lime than phosphoric acid and at least as much lime as potash.

Lime, however, serves other purposes than as simple plant food. One of the most important of these is the correction of acidity in the soil. When a soil becomes acid clover will not thrive upon it, and when this condition occurs an application of lime may be necessary.

Lime performs still another important function—liberating plant food already in the soil. If a little lime be mixed with strong manure, such as hen manure, an odor of ammonia will become apparent. This means that the lime is liberating the ammonia from the manure and that it is escaping into the air. If lime be mixed with the soil similar action will take place. If a crop be growing upon the soil it may absorb part of the escaping ammonia, and a larger crop will result, but this larger crop is made at the expense of the soil stores of plant food, and if these stores are not maintained by manuring or fertilizing the soil will soon refuse to respond to lime, because all the material in it upon which lime can act has been drawn out, and the soil is poorer than if no lime had been used.

European farmers who have used lime for many years have become so convinced of its injurious effect when used in this way that they say "lime enriches the father, but impoverishes the son," and it is customary in some places to prohibit the use of lime in leaching land.

When used as an adjunct to liberal manuring or fertilizing lime may be made to perform a most important service, but its use as a substitute for manure or fertilizer means ruin to the soil.

CAVING OF RIVER BANKS.

An Ingenious Scheme in Planting Willows For Protection.

The most successful method of protecting a soft alluvial river bank is, according to G. S. Cloutier of the bureau of forestry, to make it sloping in REVETMENT FOR PROTECTING RIVER BANK. Instead of perpendicular and to keep it covered with vegetation. The willow is admirably adapted to holding alluvial soil in place. It is far more serviceable for this purpose than walls of masonry, and the facility with which it reproduces itself by seed, suckers, sprouts and cuttings, both natural and artificial, makes its use very simple and inexpensive.

The great difficulty with planting any sort of tree on perpendicular banks is that the caving of the soil is so rapid that the planted tree has no opportunity to get a start before it is undermined and precipitated into the river. An excellent scheme has been proposed by Mr. E. Bayles of Kansas. The plan is as follows: Green willow poles eighteen to twenty feet long are secured in the spring, just after the ice goes out of the stream. These poles are laid on the ground near the bank two feet apart, with their butts all pointing toward the river. Woven fence wire is then stretched along over the poles and stapled fast to each one. Sections of wire about 100 feet long can be handled to best advantage. After the wire has been securely fastened to the poles they are all pushed over the bank together, so that the butts of the poles will fall and sink into the soft mud at the water's edge. As the bank caves off some of the falling soil will lodge on the wire, partially burying and weighing down the poles, which will consequently strike root and grow. The wire will serve to hold the mass of willows together until they have become firmly rooted. The ends of the wire should be made fast to wire cables running back over the bank some distance and fastened to posts set firmly in the ground. The caving and erosion of the bank will soon round off its top corners, and the growing willows at the water's edge will catch the soil as it rolls down the declivity, causing a bank to form of just the right slope to resist erosion most effectually.

The Way They Do It Abroad. Everywhere the traveler goes in England and on the continent he will find this or a similar notice posted in the postoffices: "Postoffice for money order, savings bank, parcel post, telegraph, insurance annuity and inland revenue stamp business." Which means that the postmaster will sell you a money order, receive a deposit in the government savings bank, receive a package to be posted at a very cheap rate to any part of Europe or America, issue an insurance annuity and sell you revenue stamps.—Farm Journal.

VISITING A VOLCANO.

The Party Was Simply Too Tired to Descend Into the Crater.

We had meant to descend into the crater, but upon reaching the top concluded that we could see all that was to be seen from there. First one and then the other remarked that there was no need to make that arduous descent or that there was nothing more to be seen down there anyway. Of course we were not afraid. No, no; just tired. One of the boys sat down on the edge and proceeded to shoot up the scenery with his kodak, while we two others made a tour of exploration along the summit. Coming to an opening in the wall with a sort of shelf running along inside, we entered with something of the air of a chicken quietly, poking its head into a forbidden kitchen. If the presiding demon had made any explosive remarks, we should have widened that breach in getting away. Our native guide told us that it was all right, but he modestly refrained from forcing himself to the front, leaving that honor to the more aggressive Anglo-Saxon. The fact is we were all trying to get behind one another, with more or less success.

—William Blanchard in National Magazine.

ASBESTUS.

It Was Used by the Ancients on Their Funeral Pyres.

Asbestos, which takes its name from Greek word meaning incombustible, consists chiefly of silica, magnesia, alumina and oxide of iron. It was known to the ancients, who used it as a wrap to preserve the ashes of those whose bodies were consumed on the funeral pyre.

The modern demand for this valuable product has produced a supply from many quarters as far apart as the Alps and Canada. Its quality is determined by the length, strength and firmness of its fibers, which can be so manipulated as to resemble wool and to be woven into cloths, ropes and felted fabrics which resist any ordinary flames.

As closely woven cloth or felt it is a valid protection against fire. It is largely used as packing for the pistons of steam engines and as nonconducting coverings for boilers or for fireproof cements. Combined with clay it forms the familiar fuel of our gas stoves, which burns, but is not consumed, and it has proved of very special value in the manufacture of a safety paint and as an indestructible filter for acids or for electric gloves.—London Standard.

AN EARLY TIMEPIECE.

The Ring Dial Which Was Used Before the Days of the Watch.

The ring dial, or sun ring, was used as a small sundial before the days of the watch. Modern imitations were made, we are told, "in baskets" by a Sheffield firm about 1780, and in much more recent times specimens about six inches in diameter have been on sale in London as instructive toys which tell the solar time with great accuracy when the sun is high.

A writer in Notes and Queries, Jan. 25, 1881, describes a ring dial half an inch broad and two inches in diameter of Swedish make. To the right of its small handle a slit extends nearly a third of the whole length. A narrow band of brass runs along the center of the ring and covers the slit. This band is movable and has a hole through which the rays of the sun can fall. On each side of it letters for the months are inscribed, and within the ring opposite to these letters are figures for the hours.

By a proper adjustment of the brass band this ring could be properly set by the sun at suitable intervals perhaps once a month.

Curious Beliefs Customs of FOLK. The Filipinos believe that a cause a marvellous youth or maiden dies without having gone through with the elaborate nuptial knot tying ceremony of the islands his or her soul is doomed to wander about forever in an intermediate region between heaven and hell. When any one does—man, woman or child—a whale's tooth is placed in the hand of the corpse, the missile to be thrown at the tree which stands as a depot to point out the road that leads to heaven and the one that leads to hell.

London and Athens. On entering a London suburb the spirit of London meets you, takes possession of you and hurries you on in thought to meet the millions in its bosom. On entering the outskirts of Athens it is the spirit of the past which you encounter and which carries you back so far that the wearied mind turns and reposes in the present in keeping with the things animate and inanimate in its vicinity.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Wasn't He Fooled by a Sign.

An old fellow from one of Portland's most remote suburbs, while passing a certain hardware store in that city the other day, noticed a sign which read, "Cast Iron Sinks." The old fellow chuckled softly to himself; then, gradually, as the absurdity of it dawned upon him more forcibly, he broke into a loud guffaw. A passerby, attracted by the apparently unseemly mirth of the old man, made bold to ask what amused him so. "Why, gol darn it," he spluttered between spasms, "ef some folks air not gettin' ter be reglar durn fools. The idee uv hangin' up er sign tellin' people that 'cast iron sinks'!"—Lewiston Journal.

Keep Your Temper.

The unwritten laws both of society and good manners are innumerable, but there is one that we cannot pass over in silence, and that is—never lose your temper. This applies especially when playing games. To lose one's temper in private is bad enough, but to do so in public is unpardonable. It is a crime which no hostess can forgive, for it makes all the other guests feel uncomfortable and disturbs that outward calm which is the essence of all good society.

Self Possession.

Without a tremor Mrs. Highmore proceeded leisurely to open the black bordered letter. "If there were any bad news," she said, "it would have come by telegraph. It must be that something has happened to Mr. Highmore's rich uncle."—Chicago Tribune.

LAKE CICOTT.

The Secret of Its Rise and Fall Is a Deep Mystery.

Lake Cicott has been an interesting phenomenon to the people of northern Indiana for many years, but the secret of its rise and fall has never been discovered. It is the only lake in Cass county and is about one mile wide and about one mile long. The water is clear and cold and perfectly fresh. Its most mysterious characteristic is the fact that it overflows its banks every seventh year. The farmers who own the land upon its banks have become so used to this that they never attempt to cultivate the land in the seventh year, but give it up without protest, as they know it is sure to be claimed by the waters.

The Potawatomi Indians, who inhabited what is now Cass and adjoining counties, were familiar with the characteristic of the lake. They believed that the bottom was inhabited by a powerful spirit, which at intervals every seven years caused the lake to overflow. They construed this action as approval of the tribe by the spirit and watched anxiously for the time to come, for they saw in the rising waters a sure indication that they had done nothing to displease it. The early white settlers became acquainted with the legend, and the oldest inhabitant is not able to recall a time that the overflow did not take place when expected.

GLASS MANUFACTURE.

The Art Goes Back to a Time Beyond the Knowledge of Man.

The art of glass manufacture goes back into antiquity to a time "when the mind of man runneth not to the contrary," yet we cannot penetrate the mists which hang over the infancy of what has for ages been a useful industry. Its original discovery is alleged, on the authority of several reputable writers, to have been the result of an accident in which some nitrum (supposed by some to have been salt) was fused with sand. The date of this event is not even approximately given, but is said to have taken place on the banks of the Belus, in Palestine, where some masters have lauded and were cooking their meals, using blocks of nitrum to hold their pots in position.

Sir Gardner Wilkinson gives a cut of a piece of Egyptian sculpture which represents two glassblowers plying their art in a manner which strikes one as being surprisingly like that practiced at the present time. Sir Gardner informs us that this sculpture was executed about 3500 years ago during the reign of Beni Hassan. Theban paintings and sculptures which are known to date back to the time of the exodus, 1400 B. C., show glass drinking vessels of delicate shape, and fine workmanship, in some instances rivaling similar vessels of modern make.

A PALACE OF ICE.

Cavern in Hungary That Is One of the Marvels of Europe.

The ice cavern near Dobosch, Hungary, is one of the most remarkable but least known marvels of Europe. Though spoken of as a cavern, in reality it is an ice palace, the roof, floor and walls being of ice, sometimes opaque, sometimes as diaphanous as glass. The frozen water assumes many quaint and beautiful forms. Pillars, vases, grotesques, couches and waterfalls meet the eye at every turn.

Herr Ruffing has the honor of being its discoverer. One day while shooting among the hills he was startled by the peculiar echo of his gun, an echo which suggested the near presence of a vast cavity or hollow. After a long search he was rewarded by finding a small aperture in the hillside overgrown by bushes and trees. The next day he returned, accompanied by two friends, who, having entered the cave, found a bitter cold, which increased as he descended, was felt.

At last he felt his feet touch the ground, and, looking around him, he found himself in a vast hall which he could but dimly see. The ice palace was discovered.

Falconry in Turkestan.

In a remote part of Turkestan Dr. Sven Hedin, the explorer, some years ago discovered the ancient art of falconry in full flower. "Among the horse-men were often falconers," he writes, "who of whom carried eagles, the others falcons, all daily hunting in the air. As he swung into the darkness a bitter cold, which increased as he descended, was felt.

At last he felt his feet touch the ground, and, looking around him, he found himself in a vast hall which he could but dimly see. The ice palace was discovered.

Trying It on the Dog.

North—You never seem to be impatient when somebody recommends something for your cold. West—Oh, no. I just repeat it to somebody else for trial upon himself. If it helps him, I shall know there's something in it. If it doesn't, it can't have any bad effect upon me, you know.—Boston Transcript.

Club Land in Japan.

Japan is the ideal club land. In this country the club world has a good many class and other limitations. But in Japan the system has flourished from time immemorial and enters into the daily life of all sorts and conditions of men. It is no uncommon thing for people of means to belong to from ten to a hundred different clubs, benevolent or social, all of which exist mainly to give the members an opportunity for one festive gathering the more. In Tokyo there are 5,000 different societies, from the Red Cross to the Mustaches and the Pockmarked, which explain themselves.

HEALTH

"I don't think we could keep house without Theodor's Black-Draught." We have used it in the family for over two years with the best of results. I have not had a doctor in the house for that length of time. It is a doctor in itself and always ready to make a person well and happy."—JAMES HALL, Jacksonville, Ill.

Because this great medicine relieves stomach pains, frees the congested bowels and invigorates the torpid liver and weakened kidneys.

No Doctor

is necessary in the home where Theodor's Black-Draught is kept. Families living in the country miles from any physician, have been kept in health for years with this medicine as their only doctor. Theodor's Black-Draught cures biliousness, dyspepsia, colds, chills and fever, bad blood, headaches, constipation, colic and almost every other ailment because the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys so nearly control the health.
