WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.—The death from consumption of the famous sculptor Bartholdi in Paris causes deep regret in this city where he was well known. In 1886 your correspondent was present at the unveiling of his great statue of Liberty Enlightening the World in New York harbor. It will be remembered by all who "assisted" on that occasion that the eminent creator of the colossal statue that loomed above them, though he could speak English fairly well, was permitted to take only the slightest part in the celebration. The stupidity of the management conspired with his own modesty to shove him completely in the background, while DeLesseps came forward and talked for an hour about his great Panama canal which even then was a disastrous failure. Perhaps the distinguished artist was content in the reflection that he had provided himself with a magnificent monument in the bronze goddess who through the centuries will lift her torch to light the pathway of the world's commerce.

Our distinguished visitor from Buenos Ayres, Dr. Carlos Pellegrini, former president of Argentina, has just had luncheon with the President. I called on him yesterday at the New Willard and had a pleasant interview. Dr. Pellegrini is a tall, distinguished looking man, and speaks English perfectly. "That's a great world's fair at St. Louis," he said, "but Japan is really the only nation on earth that does its best there. Most of the other countries have what may be called complimentary exhibits. The fact is, the human race is somewhat fatigued with too much world's fair." I asked him if he saw many changes since he was here twenty years ago. "Oh, great and magnificent," he answered, "immense everywhere. But probably not so great as have taken place in Argentina in the same time. We have probably built more railroads than you in proportion to the population. The city is superb. In twenty years more it should be well, at the head."

I showed Dr. Pellegrini the report of Governor Luke Wright's speech in Manila, in which he affirmed that the South American Republics had shown that they were not fit for self government. "Ah, yes," he said, as he read, "I had not seen. The Governor does not know his geography. He should be more careful of his tongue. He means the northwest republics which are not yet very far advanced. But Argentina, Chile, Brazil, a large proportion of their people are white, descendants of Europeans and with stable governments."

"Then Argentina does not believe in the black races?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; but the Indian is different—unquiet and fond of change. We have no trouble with the descendants of Africans. The color line is not drawn with us. Personally, politically and socially we make no difference. We have no such race hostilities as you have."

"That," I suggested, "perhaps because the slavery question is absent, or because you have so few negroes?"

"No," he said, "we too had slavery and the proportion of negroes in Argentina is about the same as in the United States—say one-tenth. We have not learned to dislike a man on account of his color. Many of our best citizens are colored. Portugal has just sent us her ambassador, a negro. His mother, I believe, was quite black; he is a dark mulatto, a man with fine features, a scholar, a linguist, a traveler, a fine conversationalist, wealthy—in short, a gentleman. His father is one of the rich men in Lisbon. Well, this brown ambassador is received in society everywhere on a par with any white man, and he gives fine dinners and parties and we all attend them. Why should we not? But yours is a wonderfully progressive country. I mean to visit it every little while as long as I live." Dr. Pellegrini is gathering data for the treatment of labor problems in Argentina.

Mr. Metcalf, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, is energetically trying to bring to punishment the scoundrels who were responsible for putting on the market life-preservers concealing within their cork interiors bars of iron six inches long—of course because crude iron is much cheaper than cork. A more hideous offense against human life has not come to light in this generation, and the Secretary vehemently declares that he will detect the guilty ones and punish them for their crime. It seems that some of them, especially the manufacturers who furnished the life preservers, are already well known; it seems also that there is no law under which they can be adequately punished. To punish them by a fine "for an attempt to evade the United States' laws" seems like trifling with the sacredness of human life.

The mighty question whether the suspension of partisan banners across the streets of Washington shall be permitted has been decided in the affirmative at last. It seems like a work of supererogation. There are no party caucuses here; no party conventions; no party meetings; no party speeches; no party placards on the walls, and no party press. There are no party office-holders—for, although the whole 30,000 are apparently Republicans today, they will almost all be apparent Democrats on the 9th of November if Parker is elected president. Why, then, should our picturesque vistas be interfered with by impertinent party curtains disfigured by portraits painted by sign painters?

This city is now pervaded by over a thousand boys in uniform from various parts of the country, evidently fired with the pomp and circumstance of war and marshalled in what they call "brigades." Athletic contests, drills, and military evolutions are on the programs for yesterday and today. A few of the youngsters stop at hotels but the majority of them sleep in the corridors of the public buildings and in Talmage's Presbyterian church which has been opened for headquarters. They will pay their respects this afternoon to the President, whose methods they greatly admire, and to night will receive prizes in Convention Hall for their multifarious exhibitions of strenuousness. As Coxey was stimulated to lead his army here by the parade of the unemployed in Cleveland, it is believed that these gold-braided kids have been started on this expedition by reading of the deeds of the dreadful derring-doers, the paladins of chivalry, who followed Corbin's intrepid automobile through the corn fields and potato patches of Virginia.

We Have $31.16 A Piece

The amount of money in circulation in the United States is now greater than at any other time in the history of the country, the aggregate being $2,558,279,984. Notwithstanding the loss in volume through the loan to the Cuban Republic, this total is $169,377,806 more than on September 1, 1903.

Based on the estimates of the Treasury experts of a population of 82,098,000, the amount in circulation if equally divided would give each man, woman and child in the United States $31.16.

The per capita circulation has risen steadily at a faster rate than the population has increased. On September 1, 1903, it was $29.60; on the same date in 1902 it was $28.55; for 1901 it was $28.18 and for 1900 it was $26.85, while on September 1, 1903, it was $29.96, an increase of 23 per cent. in six years.

Facts For The Judge

Last week a strapping negro woman was up before a magistrate, charged with unmercifully beating her boy.

"I don't understand how you can have the heart to treat your own child so cruelly," said the magistrate.

"Judge, has you been a parent of a wuffless yaller boy like that ar cub of mine?"

"Never—no, never" (with great vehemence—and getting red in the face).

"Den don't talk; you don't know nuffin about it," Philadelphia Ledger.

A Sight For The Morbid.

The morbid curio hunter has missed his opportunity if he has overlooked the display in a Broadway jeweler's window. It is the mummified head of a dead South African. The weazen, coal-black visage, as it rests on a silver pedestal, suggests the harrowing history of its original owner. The card that is appended testifies that the exhibit is "A genuine head of the South African Indian, who was killed by his tribe, and that afterward his mouth was sewed to keep him from revealing secrets in the other world."

Pill Pleasure

If you ever took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness or constipation you know what pill pleasure is. These famous Little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but pleasantly give tone and strength to the tissues and organs of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

Shy Leap-Year Maid

"Yes," said the egotistical youth. "I have been called a mechanical genius."

"What's a mechanical genius?" asked the innocent girl.

"One who can almost make anything."

"Oh, how lovely!" she exclaimed. "And could you make me a proposal?"—Columbus Dispatch.

Obvious.

He was the rawest of recruits and the drill sergeant, who could not do anything with him was driven all out of patience. At last the angry sergeant shouted:

"Man, what is your head on for?"

"Why to keep my collar from slipping off," was the ready retort.—Glasgow Times.

ORIGIN OF "KICKERS."

Supposed to Come From an Occupation in Cornish Mines.

"I believe that the origin of the expressive bit of slang 'kickers' may be found in the very lowest of occupation any member of the human race follows," W. M. Robinson states.

"Between Wornsey's and St. Helen's, in Cornwall, is an underground canal connecting the lower levels of the coal mines at Wornsey's with the surface station at St. Helen's which saves a great deal of money for the mine owners in handling the coal, which is simply loaded on the barges in the mines and transported by the canal under the mountains to the harbor at St. Helen's. When the canal was devised, however, how to provide for locomotion for these barges was a problem.

"Mules couldn't be used, and there were circumstances which made steam impossible, but an inventive genius finally solved the riddle by suggesting that cross pieces of timber be placed along the roof of the canal, which was very low, and men could lie on their backs on top of the loaded barges and 'kick' the vessel along. After the barge was once started this was found to be feasible.

The men could easily keep the load in motion by the means suggested, and it has ever since been in use. There is no question about the low grade of this sort of work, and even the men who follow it are constantly 'kicking' around the villages where they live. They were known at the mines officially as 'kickers' because of their work, and their vocal complaints, continually indulged in, caused every one at Wornsey's or St. Helen's, no matter what their station or employment, who indulged in complaints to be called 'kickers.' I presume that the origin of the word, as we use it, is just what I have suggested."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CAUSTIC CURVES.

Why a Napkin Ring Throws a Heart Shaped Reflection.

It is found that in concave spherical mirrors the reflected rays only come to a definite focus in the point, when the angular aperture of the mirror does not exceed eight or ten degrees. With a larger aperture the rays reflected near the edge cut the axis of the mirror at a point nearer its surface than those from points immediately around the center. This being so, and the curve of the mirror being continuous, a corresponding curve of successive focal points is formed in space, and can be rendered visible by the rays falling on a reflecting surface, such as a sheet of white paper or a tablecloth.

The napkin ring is a cylinder and possesses the properties of the spherical mirror along one diameter. The rays falling upon portions more remote from the center line are brought to a different focus from those falling nearer the center, and this produces the peculiar heart shaped reflection.

These figures are known as "caustics by reflection," and can be well observed by allowing the light of a candle to fall on the inside of a cup or tumbler partly filled with milk.

TYING KNOTS IN JAPAN.

It is a Serious Art, as a Mistake May Mean an Insult.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way—one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the broad bag of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Hooks and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have much to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cord so far. The Japanese have hundreds of ornamental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama. An easy knot is called the "old man's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

THE PARISIAN LUNCH.

A Substantial Meal Served in the Middle of the Day.

Noon or 12:30 is the universal hour for the strictly Parisian lunch, which commences with "hors d'oeuvres" and peizizers eaten with butter—the only time butter is ever served on a French table.

The endless variety of "hors d'oeuvres" would fill a volume—sardines, shrimps, olives, radishes. Tiny salads of every description are included among them.

An egg or fish course follows, and the various ways in which both are cooked would also fill a volume. Next the meat is served—beef, mutton, lamb or veal—accompanied by one vegetable or a salad. If a vegetable, the salad follows as a separate course with fowl, game or cold meat of some kind. If a salad is the necessary for the meat, then some vegetable course after it as a single course preceding the cheese, never omitted—and which with fruit of some kind forms the dessert.

Between the salad and cheese course a sweet dish, an "entremet," consisting of a custard, cream, tart or the like, is often served, but cheese and fruit are usually allowed the honors of the ordinary average luncheon dessert topped off with a good cup of coffee and a tiny glass of some liqueur—What to Eat.

How Sea Birds Get a Drink. "When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seeing birds thousands of miles out to sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty."

"One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glittering day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of the empty space over a hundred sea birds came darting from every direction. They got under the rain cloud and they waited there for about ten minutes, circling round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill.

"In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinkin' water in the way. They smell out a storm a long way off, they travel a hundred miles, maybe, to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them goin'!"—Portland Oregonian.

Oxford Training.

The average citizen, if asked what was taught at Oxford, would probably reply, "Useless learning." And in many ways it is a true answer, for his aim is not to turn out doctors, lawyers and merchants, ready made, but men with carefully trained minds, fitted for the way of life, and for the whole conduct of life. It is contended that such a man will instinctively take a wider view of his subject than the specialist, for he approaches it from a different standpoint.—London Outlook.

Good Living In China.

An English surgeon at Hongkong writes that "all Chinamen eat fish and pork at morning and evening meals. Fowls and ducks are always on the table of all but the most humble of the cool class, and they do not have them because they cannot afford them. I hope this will be a sufficient answer to those who maintain that Chinamen live on rice. It is not nearly so true as that the Scotch live on porridge."

A Simple Question.

"May a man marry his widow's sister?" was a question I heard put to a prominent lawyer.

"Certainly he may," was the reply without a moment's hesitation. Then the lawyer had another thing coming.—Albany Journal.

Seer.

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are," said the seer. The man told him what he ate.

"You're a blanked fool!" said the seer.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" exclaimed the man.—Puck.

At First Sight.

"Did he tell in love at first sight?" "Yes. First sight of her 'bank account.'"—Princeton Tiger.

VEGETARIANISM.

A Theory That Has Been Maintained From the Earliest Days.

From the earliest days vegetarians have maintained that fruit and vegetables are the proper food for mankind, and in ancient times such leaders of thought as Plato, Pythagoras, Empedocles and Plutarch can be counted among the advocates of this doctrine.

It is in this connection that we find Virgil singing the praises of a natural diet apart from the use of flesh:

Soft chestnuts we possess
And apples ripe, with store of curdled cream.

Still more to the point are his words in the Second Georgic at the close of a vivid description of the joys of a golden age:

Before the reign
Of the Diuturn king, before the days
When on slain bullocks fed an impious race.

This further rendering from Latin poetry proclaims the same primeval teaching:

Forbear, O mortals, to taint your bodies
With forbidden food.

Earth is lavish of her riches and teems
With kindly stores.

Providing without slaughter or bloodshed
All delicacies.

DUCKS AND THUNDER.

The Possible Origin of an Ancient English Expression.

The phrase, "like a duck in a thunderstorm," probably originated in the peculiar susceptibility exhibited by these birds to electrical disturbances. They hang their heads at such times and turn up their eyes in the most comically pathetic fashion, giving a faint die away quack now and again, as though they had quite made up their minds that their last hour had come, but were resigned. They are thus precisely typical of people whose submission, more or less forced, is made mainly with an eye to effect.

This susceptibility seems to be inherent in ducks, for their eggs in course of hatching are spoiled by a thunderstorm when hens' eggs escape.

It is worth noting in this connection that Shakespeare in "Timon of Athens" says, "We, poor mates, stand on this dying deck." It is just possible that this may be the real origin of the phrase, as it refers to the sinking of a ship during a thunderstorm, and deck may have been carelessly recast as duck.—London Answers.

MARINE TURBINES.

They Date Back to the Time of Hero of Alexandria.

In turbine steamers there is a marked absence of vibration, while the position low in the hull of the machinery gives great stability and in men-of-war makes better protection possible and affords facilities in maneuvering. The practical advantages of turbines are many. They reduce the oil bill considerably and while they occupy less floor and cubic space are simple in construction and operation.

In a turbine there is nothing to wear out. The only parts subjected to friction are the bearings at the extremities of the spindle, but these run in oil and after years of constant service show no wear. Parsons' turbine plants of 400 horsepower and 1,800 horsepower, which have been driving electric generators for years, have not yet cost a penny for repairs.

The steam turbine dates back to 120 B. C., when Hero of Alexandria described it in his book on pneumatics.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Print of the Springs.

A politician upon his arrival at a certain small town where he was to make a speech the following day found that the two so-called hotels were crowded to the doors. Not having telegraphed for accommodations, the politician discovered that he would have to make shift as best he could. He was compelled for that night to sleep on a wire cot which had only some blankets and a sheet on it. As the statesman is a fat man, he found his improvised bed anything but comfortable.

"Well," asked a friend, when the politician appeared in the dining room in the morning, "how did you sleep?"

"Oh, fairly well," replied the statesman nonchalantly, "but I looked like a waffle when I got up."—Youth's Companion.

A Bottomless Lake In Sweden.

In Thomas Nashe's "Terrors of the Night," published in 1594, he says that Lake Wetter, Sweden, is bottomless. He also tells other peculiar things respecting it. "Over it no fowls flies but is frozen to death nor any man pass but is mummied like a statue of marble. Awile ye inhabitants around about it are deafened with ye hideous roar of lites waters when out of its midst as out of Mont Gillib a sulphurous stinking smook issues that well nill poison ye whole countrie about."

Act In the Present.

Be not anxious about tomorrow. Do today's only. Fight today's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them. Enough for you that God is just and merciful and will reward every man according to his work.—Charles Kingsley.

Human Nature.

It is constantly said that human nature is heartless. Do not believe it. Human nature is kind and generous, but it is narrow and blind and can only with difficulty conceive anything but what it immediately sees and feels.

When trouble goes hunting him a man may dodge it, but when a man goes hunting trouble it hasn't one chance in a thousand of escaping him.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

THE HEAD ON THE FLOOR.

Startling Incident Accompanying the Death of a Slave Trader.

In a squallid court in Edinburgh many years ago a man who had been notorious for his cruelties as a slave trader lay dying. Mental terror made his end appalling to witness. According to Scotch custom, the family opened the door to let the spirit pass. To their infinite horror, the bloody head of a black man suddenly rolled into the room. The family shrieked with fright. The man on the bed gave a yell of terror. They turned to his bedside, but he expired as they watched him. When they looked toward the door again, the head had disappeared. There was a splash of fresh blood upon the floor to mark the spot where it had been, but nothing else to certify that the horrid sight had not been a creation of morbid imaginations.

This appearance of a negro's head in the room of a man dying after he had committed innumerable barbarities upon black slaves was a strange coincidence and nothing more. Professor Owen, the famous anatomist, had been attending an anatomical lecture where the body of a negro had been dissected. He was taking the head home with him to examine it more carefully. The streets were wet and slippery. Just as he was passing the open door of the house in which the man lay dying he tripped, and the head, slipping from the cloth in which he had it, folled into the little room. The cry of the dying man diverted the attention of those who were in the room, so that Owen was able to secure his treasure and depart unnoticed.

A MODERN HAMLET.

Wherein Hawthorne Was Akin to the Melancholy Dane.

Certain characteristics of Hawthorne are, of course, indisputable, and it is not fantastic to add that some of these qualities bear a curious resemblance to those of that very Prince of Denmark who seems more real to us than do most living men. Hawthorne was a gentleman; in body the mold of form, and graced with a noble mind. Like Hamlet, he loved to discourse with unlettered people, with wandering artists, with local humorists, although without ever losing his own dignity and inviolable reserve. He had irony for the pretentious, kindness for the simple hearted, merciless wit for the fools. He liked to speculate about men and women, about temptation and sin and punishment, but he remained, like Hamlet, clear sighted enough to distinguish between the thing in itself and the thing as it appeared to him in his solitude and melancholy. His closest friends, like Horatio, Bridgman and William D. Tuckman, were men of marked justice and sanity of mind—of the true Horatio type. Hawthorne was capable, if need be, of passionate and swift action, for all his gentleness and exquisite courtesy of demeanor. Toward the last he had, like Hamlet, his forebodings—"such a kind of gain giving as would perhaps trouble a woman"—and he died, like Hamlet, in silence, conscious of an unfinished task.—Bliss Perry in Atlantic.

Reason For Marrying.

They were talking about a friend of hers who had married a bishop stationed in Kamchatka or Timbuktou or some other heathen land.

"I never could understand why she married him," said the young woman. "She seemed the last girl on earth to marry a bishop. She cared so much more for having a good time than she did for church work and sewing circles."

"Girls are pretty wise nowadays," said the young man, "and they generally have a good reason for marrying the way they do. A girl friend of mine married a doctor so she could always be well for nothing, and maybe this girl married the bishop so she could be good for nothing."—New York Tribune.

The Traitor's Stone.

A curious specimen of the famous Traitor's stone of Rome is still preserved in England. It is a large round piece of sandstone, much of the appearance of a millstone, with a few apertures which make it bear a faint resemblance to the human face. At one period in Roman history it was the custom to have all persons suspected of traitorous conduct place their hands in the mouthlike opening. If the stone bit their fingers the prisoners were deemed guilty.

Japanese Prison Food.

The food given the prisoners in Japanese prisons is in proportion to their conduct and industry, the prisoners who do not conduct themselves as they should receiving a cake of rice, which must last for seven days, while in the case of the orderly prisoners the same cake lasts only four days. The prisoners who conduct themselves properly receive also a little horse meat and potato or pea sauce with their meals.

They Go Together.

"And what are you going to do when you're a man?" asked the visitor.

"I've been thinking," replied the bright boy, "of starting an elephant farm in Virginia."

"An elephant farm?"

"Certainly. Why not? They raise peanuts there."—Philadelphia Press.

Fond of Children.

"The dog you sold me yesterday would have eaten my little girl up this morning if she had not been rescued."

"But you insisted on having a dog that was fond of children."

The reason a man marries his sweetheart is because she is not like other girls. The reason he divorces her is because she is.—Illinois State Journal.

SKELETONS IN BOOKS

Stories of Love as Well as of Crime Buried Between the Leaves By Absentminded Readers—The Way One Murder Mystery Was Solved.

The letter began, "My Sweet Anne." Surely a stranger must be pardoned for reading it through, for it was found hidden snugly away between the leaves of a dusty and ancient volume of poems drawn from a great library. The finder took it carefully to the librarian.

"Another one?" said the librarian inquiringly. "Out of the old edition of Moore, eh? Well, I guess we won't send it back. I generally return personal letters if they are of enough interest and nobody calls for them, but if I sent everything back that we find the directors would be about my ears for wasting postage stamps." The afternoon was a quiet one, and the librarian continued:

"We shake every book that is returned, and almost always something falls out. It may be a letter like the one you have just found or a visiting card or a hairpin. Almost invariably the treasures that we unfold bear the earmarks of feminine possession. I am not charging women with carelessness. I am simply stating a fact.

"Generally the things we find are documentary in their nature. Last week I shook out of a book on home life a signed and indorsed check for $70 made payable to the dressmaker whose statement of account was pinned to it. On another occasion a fifty dollar bank note fluttered out. Both were called for within a short time. Occasionally one gives us a glimpse of a love secret or a tragedy. Not so long ago a letter was taken from a book which was of such an unusual nature that I remembered the names concerned long enough to recognize them in the newspaper reports of a court case which divided a family. The letter was addressed to a woman and filled with the frank and open avowal of a man's forbidden love, for the woman was the wife of another. I carefully secreted the missive and a few hours later was confronted by a tall, heavily veiled lady, who asked if a letter had been found in a book which happened to be a morbid problem novel of great popularity at the time, the work of a well known Englishwoman. The question was asked in a voice which tried hard not to shake. I handed the letter over, and the woman hastily took herself off. Scarcely a month later I ran across her name in the newspapers as defendant in a divorce court.

"Yet the writings we find in books are not always so intimate. Sometimes they savor of domesticity and the delights of the kitchen. Indeed I have enough recipes for desserts and sweetmeats to publish the collection as a cookbook. Now and then a book is a veritable mine. I have found in them gold, silver and precious stones. Embroidery silk by the yard and of rainbow hues may be fished out from some novels, and, alas, an occasional cigarette paper.

"The evidences of masculine forgetfulness are rarer. I have forgotten almost all such instances, but of those which I do remember there is one of which the details are as clear to me now as if they had happened yesterday. Indeed it will never leave my mind, for it led to the capture of a gang of criminals.

"A wealthy but solitary old bachelor was found lifeless on the floor of his library one morning. On his body no wound was discovered, and as far as the detectives could ascertain no one had gained access to the house. The case excited great public interest, and I followed the developments with closeness in the newspapers. There had been at first some talk of suicide and more of heart failure, but the autopsy put a new phase upon the case, for it showed that the old man had come to his death through an insidious yet powerful poison. The question then arose, Who administered it? As I was reading the detailed report of the doctors I suddenly dropped the paper. I remembered that a month before a stranger had come in one wet, dismal night and asked for a recomite work by a foreign author. It was a standard treatise on poisons and a volume seldom read.

"I hurried to the library and sought the book. Opening it and rapidly running over the pages you may imagine my astonishment and almost horror to find lying between two pages devoted to a detailed account of the very poison that caused the old man's death a smirched and thumb marked piece of paper. On it was written in a small and singular hand referring to the chapter and page on which the poison was described. I then looked up the record of the book's withdrawal and found the name which the man had given. I also found that the book had not been taken out since. Having ascertained these facts, I went at once to the police. Taking the information as a clue, the detectives, after a long and arduous search, followed it to its logical end and arrested the only relative the old man had possessed, a medical student, whose existence had not even been known. He confessed his share in the crime and, with his accomplices, paid the penalty. That case opened my eyes to the value of inspecting every book as it returned to the library."—New York Tribune.

She's Just Practicing.

"I understand that Mr. Rinx and his fiancée have had a quarrel."

"Yes," answered Miss Cagenna. "But it is nothing serious. She is a prudent girl and wants to make sure she can manage him when he is angry."—Washington Star.

WYNNIE IN PAYNE'S PLACE.

Washington, October 10.—President Roosevelt today appointed Mr. Robert J. Wynne Postmaster-General, to succeed the late Henry C. Payne, of Wisconsin. Mr. Wynne has been acting Postmaster-General by order of the President since the death of Mr. Payne and the appointment today making him a member of the cabinet was not unexpected in Washington, where it has been known since Friday that his name was under consideration by the President.

It is understood that George B. Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will succeed Mr. Wynne as Postmaster-General in the event of the election of Mr. Roosevelt about January 1 or perhaps not until after March 4. The post of First Assistant Postmaster-General has been left vacant, and while it is reported that Mr. Wynne will return to that position, if succeeded by Mr. Cortelyou, it is generally believed in Washington that the character of the services which Mr. Wynne will render as Postmaster-General will be of so high a standard of efficiency and integrity that the President in remoulding his cabinet, in the event of election, will offer Mr. Wynne some other important Cabinet post or a position of equivalent rank and standing.

CUMBERLAND'S NEW POSTOFFICE OPEN

Cumberland's new federal court and postoffice building, completed within the past few months and for which the government appropriated $175,000, was thrown open for the inspection of the public Wednesday evening. Postmaster William Pearce, Assistant Postmaster George Shuck and the entire postoffice force acting as the reception committee. The building was decorated with flowers and potted plants, and during the evening several thousand persons passed through the different rooms.

The edifice, standing near the City Hall, is three stories in height and has a basement. The entire building was constructed of stone and brick, practically fireproof. In the basement are the furnace, the bicycle and reading rooms, postmaster's private office, money order, stamp and registry divisions and vaults. The postoffice is fitted up with over 600 lock boxes. The second floor contains the federal court room, judges' chamber, clerk's office, deputy marshal's office, deputy collector of revenue's office, prisoners' cells and vaults. The third floor contains witness and jury rooms, toilet rooms and closets. Arthur Cowsill, of Washington, D. C., was the contractor.

Cataract Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Cataract is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Cataract Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Cataract Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Cataract. Send for testimonials free.

WAR IN FAR EAST.

The Japanese are reported to have severely damaged the Russian battleship Retvizan at Port Arthur and claim to be steadily drawing the lines closer about the fortress.

The Emperor of Japan has decorated the American nurses with the Order of the Crown.

The Japanese government has decided to float another $40,000,000 loan.

The Japanese captured the British steamer Fu Ping, while running the blockade at Port Arthur, having munitions of war for the Russians.

One hundred and ninety-seven were lost by the disaster to the Japanese gunboat Heiven off Pigeon Bay.

The mail seized on board the Calchas was released by order of the Vladivostok prize court.

UNCLE SAM'S GRAIN CROPS.

The greatest corn crop ever produced in the United States was that of 1902, the output of that year being 2,523,000,000 bushels. According to the Government crop report for October, the yield of corn in 1904 will not fall much below that of 1902, being estimated at 2,475,000,000 bushels. The wheat production this year is estimated at 551,000,000 bushels—$6,000,000 bushels less than last year. The oats crop is estimated at 888,000,000 bushels. These are big figures, but this is a big country. Our farmers make enough corn and wheat to supply a nation of 80,000,000 people. In addition, they have a surplus production of cereals to export to countries which cannot make the raw material for their own bread. This year, if the shortage in the wheat crop be as great as the Government report indicates, Uncle Sam will ship only half as much wheat abroad as he did in 1903. That is the theory, but it may not prove the fact. The English, for instance, may be willing to pay a high price for wheat—a higher price, perhaps, than the grain will command in the American market. In that event they will get as much American wheat as they are able to pay for at prices satisfactory to the owners of wheat in the United States.

Uncle Sam's farmers raise, according to the Agricultural Department more than three fourths of the world's corn crop. Our exports of this cereal have grown from 30,763,213 bushels in 1891 to 209,348,273 bushels in 1900—European countries taking 192,519,785 bushels. Mr. C. J. Murphy, Commissioner for the State of Iowa, is authority for the statement that more corn is used in Belgium and Ireland for human food than is used by the people of the United States. Belgium imposes no duty on corn, while France and Germany both levy duty on this food product. The Belgian and the German do not eat corn bread pure and simple, as it is eaten in the United States. In Germany rye and corn meal are mixed in the proportion of two-thirds of the former and one-third of the latter. This mixture was recommended by the Berlin Imperial Board of Health, which made many tests. Emperor William, it is stated, took great interest in the matter, the first loaves made according to this process, being sent to him. Some German bakers are also using a mixture of corn meal and wheat flour for sweet cakes and their customers find the product satisfactory. A loaf of bread made of rye and corn meal costs much less than a loaf of rye bread. The difference in price is a matter of considerable importance to European laborers and artisans, whose wages are small compared with the earnings of Americans of the same type. —Baltimore Sun.

SPOILSMEN AS CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONERS

The removal by Mayor McClellan of the entire Civil Service Commission of New York City for spoiling cannot but shock the friends of Civil Service reform. The board of Civil Service Commissioners, composed of Democrats and Republicans, is removed entire, because all its members engaged in the betrayal of their trust. They made the positions in the labor schedule the field of wholesale political patronage. Appointments and salaries were subjected to the wishes of local politicians, instead of being allocated on the basis of merit, as indicated by civil-service examinations. Their labor list was juggled with to get votes. All the crimes of the spoils system were exemplified by the proposed guardians of public virtue and efficiency in office. All of which shows that elaborate devices for securing the predominance of merit must fail if spoilsmen are set to work them. —Baltimore Sun.

FIVE VICTIMS OF FUED.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 11.—As a result of a feud two men have been killed and the wife and two children of one of the victims are perhaps fatally injured.

Muriel Davis and Jesse Meeks were the heads of two hostile families living on the same section of land near here. Ever since the opening up of Oklahoma proper these two families have been fighting.

Sunday night Davis went to the Meeks home and a violent quarrel followed. Meeks was shot and died soon, but Davis managed to escape to his home.

A few minutes after Davis returned home neighbors heard a gun shot from his house, and on making an investigation found him lying dead on the bed with the top of his head blown off. His wife and two children were also found to be shot. —Evening Herald.

Mr. Crane Named For U. S. Senate

Boston, October 12.—Governor John L. Bates today appointed former Governor W. Murray Crane, of Dalton, U. S. senator to fill the unexpired term of George F. Hoar, recently deceased. He will accept.

W. Murray Crane, ex-Governor of Massachusetts, is a successful business man who has amassed a great fortune by indefatigable industry and a genius for large organization. He was born in Dalton 50 years ago in the house in which he still lives. But for generations the family has been a notable one in the history of the old Bay State. They have dominated some of the most important railroad interests of Massachusetts among which is the Albany Railroad Company, one of the richest corporations in the old commonwealth.

In addition to his railroad interests, Mr. Crane owns a number of woolen mills. He also owns a shoe factory at Dalton, his native town. But it is the manufacture of paper that has demanded most of Mr. Crane's attention, and for years he has supplied this article to the government at Washington.

To Europe And Back In 12 Days

What is said to be the record trip across the Atlantic and back was completed Tuesday when the North German Lloyd liner Kron Prinz Wilhelm arrived in port at New York. Julius P. Meyer had journeyed to Europe and back in 11 days and 23 hours. Mr. Meyer took passage on the steamship Deutschland from New York at 8 A. M. on September 29. He reached Cherbourg at 1 P. M. on October 5. There Mr. Meyer was put aboard the Kron Prinz Wilhelm. The Kron Prinz Wilhelm left Cherbourg at 5 P. M. that day, and arrived off the bar at New York at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Over 6,000 miles had been covered in less than 12 days.

The West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, which has a large plant at Luke, Allegany county, will remove its bark peeling plant from Covington, W. Va., to the Cheat River country, in West Virginia. Several hundred men will be employed and a town of about 500 people will shortly spring up in what was only a short time ago an almost impenetrable wilderness.

Killed 6 More Cattle

Since last Thursday Mr. I. S. Annan has lost 6 more cattle, which he had to kill on account of the rabies among his herd. This makes 13 killed out of a herd of 25, and there is no assurance that the end has yet been reached.

The cow belonging to St. Joseph's Academy and which was bitten by a mad dog on September 10, died one day last week.

Will Be On Ticket

Sylvester L. V. Young, of Hagerstown nominated by the Socialist party of this district as a candidate for Congress, but whose name was denied a place on the official ballot by Attorney General Bryan because of failure to comply with the law, will, after all have his name on the ticket. He has just sent to the Secretary of State a petition, signed by 400 voters, again nominating him as the candidate of his party.

Killed By Boiler Explosion

Last Friday the boiler in the steam saw and grist mill of Edward L. Hunt at Mattawoman, Charles county, was blown to pieces, killing one person and severely wounding two others. Three small boys were playing about the mill. One of the boys was instantly killed and another seriously wounded and will likely die. The third was covered entirely with flying debris, but apart from being stunned, escaped unhurt. Mr. Joseph L. Hunt was badly scalded.

Gutters Ablaze With Gasoline

Late Monday night some children turned on the spigot of a barrel of gasoline in Frederick at the corner of Market and South streets. The fluid was running down the gutter for several squares when someone threw a lighted match into it. Instantly the gutter was ablaze. Seeing the fire approaching, a colored man rolled the barrel of oil to a safe distance from the flames.

Newly Made Citizens

At Westminster of Monday Judge William B. Thomas naturalized 60 applicants for citizenship in the Circuit Court for Carroll County. They were brought to Westminster from Baltimore by ex-Judge Garland. Most of them are residents of East Baltimore. A majority of them had their first or declaration papers. The Germans led in numbers, other nationalities represented being English, Russian and Italian.

Escaped From Burning House

The dwelling of Mrs. Malinda Boggs was burned Sunday night near Olney, Allegany county, and the occupants barely escaped with their lives. The house was a landmark, being of logs, weatherboarded. The fire originated from a stove pipe. Miss Lizzie Carter, of Hancock, a school teacher, who boarded with Mrs. Boggs, lost all of her personal effects. Nothing was saved by any of the occupants, not even necessary clothing. Mrs. Boggs is a sister of Geo. Kifer, whose barn was destroyed in the same locality by being struck by lightning a few weeks ago.

WILL ENFORCE THE LAW.

The Frederick city authorities have decided to enforce the payment of the city license tax which went into effect October 1. As the measure naturally met with some opposition the authorities granted a fifteen day extension. Those who fail to take out their license by October 15, the authorities state, will be arrested and a test made of the constitutionality of the law. The lawyers and physicians declare they will not pay the $10 license fee for the privilege of practicing their professions, and if they are arrested they will sue the city for damages if the law proves unconstitutional.

FIRE IN SEXTONSVILLE.

A fire of unknown origin broke out about midnight in Sextonsville, a little hamlet about 200 yards across the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks from the Clarendon stockyards, just outside the southwestern Baltimore city limits, and at 1 o'clock Saturday morning it was thought that the entire place was doomed.

It was said that no water was available to fight the flames. The county engine at Mount Wains responded to the alarm.

The absence of a high wind alone prevented the fire from reaching the big stockyards and destroying more valuable property.

TAKING PASTEUR TREATMENT.

Mr. Charles Haines Taken To That Institution on Monday.

Mr. Charles Haines, of this place, was taken to the Pasteur Department of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, on Monday morning for treatment. He was accompanied to the city by Mr. Rodney Burton. Mr. Haines, who is employed on Mr. I. S. Annan's farm, was taken quite sick early on Monday morning, and Dr. R. L. Annan was called in to see him, and after examining Mr. Haines' condition, suggested that he be taken at once to the city for treatment, as his case might turn out to be hydrophobia, as Mr. Haines had subjected himself to considerable risk in working among the cattle that he had the rabies on Mr. Annan's farm. Mr. Haines thought that he might have gotten some of the saliva on his hands and introduced it into his own system, owing to the fact that he had a small cut on one of his hands.

The physicians at the Pasteur Institute considered Mr. Haines' condition favorable and that he might not take the disease, but the case was such that hydrophobia might possibly develop, and that it would be well to give him a course of treatment for the prevention of the disease.

A subscription list was circulated among the citizens of this place on Tuesday to raise the money necessary to pay for the Pasteur treatment. It being a worthy cause, the response was generous.

DIED AT YORK FAIR.

Driver of Horse Felt Dead of Apoplexy While Winning Race

A number of Gettysburg and Adams county folks saw a tragic occurrence on the race track at the York Fair last Thursday. While coming down the stretch on the first half of the third heat in the 2.14 pace Lyman Redmond, driver of Noah B, was stricken with apoplexy and fell to the track dead. When Redmond fell he was directly in the path of the following teams and two of the sulkeys passed over his body.

Hundreds of spectators hurried to the prostrate form of the driver and he was removed from the track to the quarter stretch where two physicians, who were in the crowd, pronounced the man's death to have been due to apoplexy. Redmond was about 59 years old and resided in Arlington. The horse driven by him was owned by T. G. Becklin, of Baltimore, had won the first two heats of the race and looked an easy winner in the third when the driver fell.

David S. Hartle Falls Dead

David S. Hartle, a well known business man of Hagerstown, fell over dead while sitting in front of his home on North Potomac street, Sunday evening. While not in the best of health for several weeks, he seemed to be as well Sunday as usual. His death was due to apoplexy. He was 63 years old. Mr. Hartle was a native of Leithersburg, where he conducted a hotel for a time, going to Hagerstown about 30 years ago. He was an active Republican. On Sunday night just 11 months ago Mr. Hartle's wife was taken suddenly ill in church, and 10 minutes later expired in the office of a physician near the church. Mrs. Hartle is survived by these children: Mrs. Ridenour, wife of W. H. Ridenour, proprietor of the Hotel Baldwin; Mrs. Leila P. Swartz, Miss Bertha Hartle, Miss Sue Hartle and Richard, at home.

McDivit-Smith

Miss Mabel Carey Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Smith, 321 East Twentieth street, and Dr. Harry Norbert McDivit, of Baltimore, were married at St. Ann's Catholic Church at 11 o'clock Monday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father C. F. Thomas, rector of the church. Miss Louis Dean was the maid of honor, and Mr. Joseph McDivit, brother of the groom, was groomsmen. The bride was attired in a dress of white crepe de chine, with real lace trimmings.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The couple left Monday afternoon on a trip North and on their return will reside at the groom's home, 13 West Twenty-fifth street, Baltimore.

12 PATRIOTIC JUDGES.

The Frederick County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, has completed its program for the placing of a memorial tablet in the Frederick County Courthouse November 23 to the 12 judges who were the first to officially repudiate the British Stamp act. Gov. Edwin Warfield will deliver the presentation address for the society and Chief Judge James McSherry will accept the memorial in behalf of the court. Mrs. Donald McLean, daughter of the New York Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and Miss Willie Ritchie, regent of the Frederick Chapter, will also deliver addresses. Masters Philip and David Winebrenner will unveil the tablet.

The memorial, which is a beautiful bronze tablet, suitably inscribed, will be placed on the north side of the courthouse, over the jury box.

Singular Accident

An explosion of blasting powder occurred last Thursday under singular circumstances in the store of Lloyd Durst, Lonaconing. A customer was trying a revolver which he wanted to buy when the weapon went off accidentally. The bullet struck a stove, glancing and penetrating a canister containing six pounds of blasting powder. An explosion followed, causing a conflagration, which threatened the establishment, but was controlled. Olla Durst's hand was burned severely. Lloyd Durst narrowly escaped being struck by the bullet.

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Conviction of a Negro Who Killed His Wife With a Shotgun

At Salisbury, Md., the jury in the case of the negro Henry J. Handy rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree for killing his wife Celia Handy. She was Handy's second wife and they lived in Crisfield. The woman went to Wicomico to work, taking her little child with her. Handy came from Somerset in his boat, after having searched the woman's trunk and found compromising letters written to her by Thomas J. Taylor, colored.

Before setting out on his murderous errand Handy told Capt. Elijah Sterling and Atley Handy that he was going to kill his wife. Captain Sterling tried to persuade him not to do so, but his mind was made up and he proceeded to arrange his property so that in case anything happened to him his child would be provided for. Henry oiled his gun, put it in good condition, carried it on deck and fired it off to see if it would work all right. Satisfied with it, he loaded it and, taking eight more shells with him, he shouldered the gun and set out to find Celia.

He had to sail some distance and then walk five miles more until he came upon his wife working in the field with a number of others putting up eorntops. No one saw him until he had spoken, and he called out to Celia:

"Put down your corntops; you will never put up another."

After saying a few more words he raised his gun and shot her in the throat. Then he placed a new cartridge in the gun, and after walking up to her and satisfying himself that she was dead, set out for the office of Justice Denton and gave himself up, saying he had killed his wife and expected to be hanged. He asked the Justice to write a will for him deeding his property to the child.

HARNEY NEWS.

Harney, Oct. 12.—Mr. Abraham Hesson, who had his arm broken, is improving at this writing.

Mr. Morris Bishop, formerly of Harney, and Miss Lillie Swartz, of Adams county, Pa., were quietly married at the Mt. Joy parsonage by their minister, Rev. G. W. Minnich.

Misses Aurella and Grace Shriver and their cousin, Miss Bessie Shriver, of Barlow, Pa., are spending the week at Hagerstown, Md., visiting Mrs. R. A. Harner, sister of Misses Aurella and Grace. They also expect to take in the great fair.

The people of this vicinity are very busy husking corn and seeding. A large number of young and old folks of this vicinity expect to attend the Hagerstown Fair.

Mr. Harry Stonestifer and family have moved to York, Pa., where they expect to reside in the future.

Miss Bertha Harner has gone to York, Pa., for a short time.

Mrs. Solomon Miller, of near Two Taverns, Pa., died Oct. 3, aged about 73 years. The funeral services were held at the home of her son, Rev. Lindman officiating. Interment in Christ's Church Cemetery.

Miss Mamie Rider has returned to her home in St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Charles Landers, mail carrier, started for the World's Fair at St. Louis yesterday morning.

Mr. Joseph Rowe has returned to the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Annan and daughter, Pauline, left here Wednesday evening for the World's Fair.

Miss Amelia Annan has returned from a visit among friends at Taneytown.

Mrs. William Scarborough, of Steubenville, Ohio, is the guest of Mrs. R. L. Annan.

SILVER LEAF ROBBERY.

Deputy Sheriff William B. Hodel returned to Cumberland Monday night with William T. Simpson, colored, arrested in Washington for alleged complicity in the Silver Leaf Club hold-up and robbery in Cumberland early in the summer. Simpson was arrested at the time of the hold-up, but claimed he had been robbed himself, and was released. He was a waiter in the place, and while two Italians were drinking with two women masked men entered and at the point of revolvers secured about $400, besides several watches, escaping after shooting at the police. Later the women who were with the Italians were arrested at Newport News with James Murphy, alias "Glin" Murphy, of Frostburg, and Earl Gordon. The men are now in jail at Cumberland. The women—Nan Pugh, of Frostburg, and Jessie White, who went to Cumberland from Virginia and is said to be from a good family—were also in jail, but later were released on bail. The Pugh woman is said to have made a confession implicating the two men not only in the Silver Leaf Club hold-up, but in the hold-up and robbery of William Offman, a young restaurant proprietor of Frostburg, who was shot by highwaymen as he was on his way home from his place of business. About $200 was secured from Offman. The authorities all along believed the women were used as dupes by the men to accomplish the robberies.

"LOOP-THE-LOOP" ACCIDENT.

One Man Killed And Four Injured At Hagerstown Fair.

An accident in which one person lost his life and four others were slightly injured occurred on the Hagerstown Fair ground Wednesday afternoon by failure of a brake on the "loop-the-loop" to work.

Thomas Goode, aged 40 years, of Patterson, N. J., who had been with A. P. Prescott, owner of the loop-the-loop for three years, was almost instantly killed. The injured were Roy Banf, Goodman Welsh, of Hagerstown; Herman Mitsal and Charles Yessler, of York, Pa.

The top loop had just been erected and tested. Two cars, each containing a passenger, were sent around. The mechanism was found to be in good working order.

A number of tickets were sold, and the four young men who were slightly hurt got into the car and successfully circled the loop, which is 25 feet in diameter and require six seconds to complete the trip from the top to foot of incline.

When the car reached the foot of the incline Goode, who held the brake lever, tried to work it, but it failed to move. The car went thundering along at a speed of 80 miles an hour, crashed into the bumper, jumped into the air and fell to the ground, 12 feet below, carrying 10 feet of the platform with it.

Two of the passengers were thrown out. The other two were plucked beneath the car. The two knocked out raised the car and liberated the other two. Their injuries consisted of cuts, bruises and nervous shock.

Goode's head was caught under the car wheel. His skull was crushed, both jaws fractured and the jugular vein severed. He died 10 minutes afterward. The accident was witnessed by several thousand persons. James Ryan of Syracuse, N. Y., the brakeman on the track opposite Goode, made a marvelous escape.—Sun.

FAIRFIELD ITEMS.

Fairfield, Oct. 11.—Miss Lillie R. Moyer, of Womelsdorf, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Shulley, of Fairfield.

Some of the farmers are not done cutting off their corn, whilst others have husked some of their corn. The corn is better this year than for many years.

Mr. J. S. Hill has taken up 1,100 bushels of potatoes. Mr. Hill has a fine lot of Potatoes.

The Dedication of the Disciple's Church has been postponed on account of the Church not being finished.

There will be an excursion to Baltimore on the 20th of October starting from Fairfield at 6.45 in the morning. The excursion is under the auspices of the U. B. Church, Gettysburg.

Since we have had two heavy frosts everything looks gloomy.

Chestnuts are selling for 25cts per quart at Womelsdorf, Pa. They seem to be scarce.

Mr. Charles Grove took milk to the creamery last Friday and whilst coming home his horse became frightened, ran off, throwing Mr. Grove out of the buggy heavily upon the ground. No bones were broken, however, he was bruised considerably. His horse ran about a half a mile and was caught and brought back. His buggy was not injured.

Corn is selling at 50 cents per bushel out of the field in this vicinity.

Rev. Laughlin will preach in the Lutheran Church on next Sunday evening. This will likely be his last sermon. The Presbyterians will be without a preacher for a while.

There is an old woman running around, or rather she is traveling in a buggy with a very poor horse. She sleeps in her buggy along the road. This should not be allowed.

Some of our farmers are not done with their seeding. There will be a lot of corn stock ground put out in grain this fall.

HAGERSTOWN FAIR.

Poultry Show and Various Features and Departments

The Hagerstown Fair opened Tuesday auspiciously. The weather was perfect, and the attendance was estimated at 10,000.

Chief Marshal W. Merrick Huyett and his aids, John W. Cable, Jr., D. M. Frick, Howard Martin, Roy Weagley, Roy Fockler, Charles Nigh and Samuel Kaylor, met all incoming trains and escorted the crowds to the fair grounds, headed by the Middletown Band of 23 pieces.

It is conceded by all visitors that the present exhibition is the largest in the history of the association. Every stable on the grounds is filled with live stock, and the various buildings are crowded with all kinds of exhibits.

The entries in the household department number 8,053, which is about 500 more than last year.

Franklin county (Pa.) and Berks county (W. Va.) are competing for the $250 first prize offered for the best collection of farm products by any one of the ten counties connected with the fair. There is a second prize of $125, so both will be sure of prizes. The Franklin county exhibit is made by J. A. Phillips, Mercersburg. Berks county shows 10 yellow pumpkins, each weighing from 50 to 100 pounds, taken one vine.

J. H. Ground, near Hagerstown, won $75 for the best individual exhibit of farm products. He was the only one competing. He showed 155 varieties of farm products and 12 species of fish, including gold fish taken from Antietam creek, which runs by his farm.

The articles were judged Tuesday and the premiums awarded. The wine judges had to pass upon 477 entries in the home-made wine department. The jelly tasters confronted 1,000 entries. There were 608 entries of pickles and vinegars, 278 of cakes, 188 of breads, 84 of cooked meats, dairy products, etc.

The poultry show is one of the features of the fair. About 4,000 birds are on exhibition from many parts of the country. The quality of the birds shown is fine and ahead of that of any previous year.

Five hundred pigeons are on exhibition.

The expert judges of chickens are George O. Brown, J. H. Drevenstedt, F. B. Zimmer, David A. Nichols, William J. Stanton, J. Fred Crangle and Theodore Howes.

William J. Stanton will judge the pigeons. The Light Brahma Club of America will meet in Hagerstown during the fair. G. P. Nettleton is president and John Runbold secretary.

HUNTERS TAKE NOTICE

By an act of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1904, it is unlawful for any one to hunt with gun or rifle in Frederick county from the 10th day of October until the first day of November, or on any election day in November. The penalty for a violation of said law is a fine of twenty dollars and costs, or 60 days in jail. One-half of the fine is to be paid to the informer. Also, it is unlawful for any one to trap, snare, net, bag or hunt on the ground with a gun or other firearms at any time any partridges in Frederick county. Penalty twenty dollars and costs for each bird so taken or killed, in default of payment to be committed to the House of Correction for three months. One-half of the fine paid goes to the informer, the other half to the County Commissioners.

VOTES WHERE HE SLEEPS.

Henry C. Strayer made application to be registered in York county and matter was heard by York county courts last week. He owns a farm partly in York county and partly in Latimore township Adams county. On farm are two houses. The mansion house is in York county and tenant house in Adams county. Last April he rented the farm to his son who moved into mansion house and the father moved into the tenant house. Mr. Strayer lives in York county during the day, working on farm and eating in mansion house and sleeps in tenant
