REFORM FOR PHILADELPHIA

Gas Lease Fight Ends in Disruption of Durham Machine.

EURRENDERS TO THE MAYOR

Philadelphia, May 30.-State Insurance Commissioner Israel W. Durham, leader of the Republican organization in Philadelphia for the last 10 years. and whose influence reached far into the interior of Pennsylvania, unconditionally surrendered to Mayor John Damage to Japanese Fleet is insignifi- command of Admiral Togo and by ob-Weaver, who opened war on the organization a few weeks ago. The action of Leader Durham was a great surprise to the people of the city, as all his lieutenants and the rank and file of the organization had been given to understand that the fight begun by Mayor Weaver over the gas lease would be fought to a finish. It had been announced that the fight the organization was making in the courts against the mayor's new directors taking office would be carried into se-Bedt council when the mayor sent in their names for confirmation. The mayor and his friends promptly took up the gauge of battle and started to wage a bitter war on the councilmen who intended to vote against the confirmation of the new officials.

Leader Durham sent for the ward leaders, nearly all of whom responded and pledged their fealty to the organization, and it looked as though the fight would be a long one. Shortly after this meeting, however, William S. Vare, recorder of deeds, a close political friend of Durham, called upon the mayor and assured him that he and his brother, State Senator George A. Vare, would stand by him. The Vare brothers hold large city contracts. among them being the street cleaning contract for this year, This move caused a sensation in political circles, and rumors became current that the organization was crumbling. Mr. Durham sent for some of the ward leaders. and after a conference he released them from their pledges to stand by him, and made the following announce-

"I have advised my friends not to oppose the confirmation of A. Lincoln Acker as director of public works, and Colonel Sheldon Potter as director of public safety, if their names are sent to select council by the mayor."

The mayor is now practically in control of municipal affairs. What the the name of the captured transport, organization will now do has not yet; been definitely determined. Reform previously cabled. organizations of the city have already advantage already ga.ned and attempt to defeat Harry C. Ransley, president of select council, who is the Republiiff at the November elections.

In an interview Mayor Weaver made a statement, important to Philadelphians, to the effect that by the exercise of proper economy the city should be able to undertake the various pro-$1,50 on the $100. One of the results of the fight against the organization is the probable abandonment of a scheme to build a beautiful boulevard from the city hall to Fairmount Park. This would have cost many millions of dollars. It is probable that the abolition of grade crossings will be the first improvement taken up. In view of the abandonment of the fight against the mayor. It is probable that the injunction proceedings instituted last week, and which will come up for argument in common pleas next tomorrow, will be dropped.

Mayor Weaver received the following telegram from Governor Folk, of Missouri: "Keep up the fight. The cost will sometimes seem hard and the way dark, but remember, no matter how mighty the forces of corruption may be, you have behind you the strongest machine in the world-the hearts and consciences of the people of America."

Thomas Dolan, president of the United Gas Improvement company, transmitted to the presidents of select and common councils copies of a letter stating that the company receded from its position: that it no longer desired. and would not now enter into, the coutract proposed by the Seger ordinance.

At the same time David Martin, in the capacity of an ambassador, waited upon Mayor Weaver. He bore the capitulation of Israel Durham, and pressed only for this grace for the conquered: That of his generosity Mayor Weaver would forbear vetoing the abandoned bill, so as to allow councils on Thursday to withdraw it and themselves inter it, with an imitation of decency.

Even this boon was denied. The mayor will veto the bill.

THE MANLY APOLOGY,

and Was Not Given. It is a brave man who can apologize: It is one of the highest attributes of a gentleman. I never vet knew anybody who lost money by an apology. I know many men who made some. I know a man in the city of London who spoke harshly to his confidential clerk. He accused him of having mislaid or lost a certain long and important letter. The clerk said very politely he had never seen such a document. The merchant said, "Don't be a fool in talking such nonsense." The clerk gave in his res- . ignation. It was the duty of this clerk to call at his employer's house in the evening after dinner to take to the office next morning such letters as would require attention. There he found the missing letter. The merchant had placed it, with a few others, in his overcoat pocket to read carefully at home the evening. He said: "I did not know I had done that. You must withdraw your resignation. I will increase your salary." But never a word of manly apology. The incident left its sting behind. The confidence and trust the clerk had in his employer were lost. So, a year later, when this confidential clerk came into a big sum of money he refused the partnership that was offered him; he joined an opposition firm, and the profits of this merchant have fallen in four years from £15,000 a year to £3,000 He lost that, and he has gained premature old age and much mental anxiety. This is a true story.

THE DUKE'S DECISION.

Wellington's Verdict in the Case of a Stolen Kiss. "The Military Reminiscences of a Retired Colonel" contains the following story relating how the Duke of Wellington overcame a somewhat embarrassing difficulty: The sentry on duty one day at the gate of Hampton Court palace many years ago was asked the time by a young lady, the daughter of the widow of a distinguished soldier, who occupied apartments in the palace. She happened to be wearing a dainty apron, and, appearing to the soldier to be a neat lady's maid, his reply to her question was, "Half past kissing time," and-a kiss. The indignant young lady fled to report the impertinence to her mother, who promptly sent a letter of complaint to the colonel of the sentry's regiment. The colonel regretted the occurrence and referred the lady, half in jest and half in earnest, to the commander in chief. To the highest quarter accordingly she went for redress and received the following reply: Field Marshal the Duke of Wellington while regretting the occurrence of which Miss Q. complains, begs to say that he has duty, but in this instance it appears Miss Q. opened the conversation, and the sentry, although he answered in an un-usual manner, committed no actual breach

DEATH DANCES.

They Form a Part of the Tibetan Mystery Plays, The death dances of the Tibetan mystery plays, one of which is performed on the last three days of the year, are called "the ceremony of the sacrificial body of the dead year." The effigy of a man made out of dough as lifelike as possible and having inside a distinct heart and all the entrails filled with a red fluid is placed by four cemetery ghouls in sight of the numerous spectators in the center of the yard, and at once bands of skeleton ghosts rush upon the corpse to attack it. This is the time to display the necromantic power of lamaism over the evil spirits. Monks and lamas come forth and go through a series of ceremonies, the perior powers, makes his appearance Atchison Globe. and takes the field, whereupon a saint of an incarnation of Buddha himself goes to the rescue, sprays flour on the enemy, makes mystic signs and utters incantations. SOME OF THE CURIOSITIES OF THE COLORADO DESERT.

Graves Each of Which Tells a Story of a Tragedy of Heat, Thirst and Death-Odd Stones and Shells That

Strew the Barren Region. desert where nature has left some remarkable records. She has visited the region alternately with fire and water and has left it with neither. It is the most desolate, wild, barren, forbidding part of the desert, says the Los Angeles Times, and it is shunned alike by man and beast. That there is good and sufficient reason for avoiding this locality is attested by numbers of graves, nameless for the most part, found in the terrible region.

These graves are simple affairs, merely mounds of earth with a border of stones about each and a pile of rocks two or three feet high at the Each tells the story of a tragedy of heat, thirst and death. Those items are about all that is ever known of the stories of those who Their mummified bodies or bleached bones are found long after sixteen inches apart in the row and thing else black. The whole sky, the struggle is over, and the finder, re- cover deeply with a double moldboard clouds and all, would be blue. The specting the memory of the unknown, scoops a hole in the earth, lays the ghastly relic within and piles up the only monument available in that wild

The plain now lies nearly a hundred feet below the level of the sea, and the rocks of the plain and the bases of the mountains are washed and eroded in a wonderful manner. Mingling with the burnt stones and volcanic debris are rocks worn by the waves and shaped into hundreds of fantastic forms. There are many acres of these stone curiosities, and certain sections of the field seem devoted to certain shapes and

For Instance, one passes through a region which he at once names the cabbage patch, for it presents the appearance of a field of those vegetables which have turned to stone. The waves have worn the rocks into round bowlders about the size of the vegetable which they so much resemble and have cut into the globes, laminating them in perfect imitation of the leafy layers of the garden vegetable.

Another locality is devoted almost exclusively to dinner plates. Thousands of rounded, thin disks are scattered over the plain or are piled scores deep in singular piles, each piece shaped exactly like the crockery which adorns our tables and quite as thin and symmetrical.

Another section of this truly wonderful region is given almost wholly to dumbbells. These vary ln size from pleces weighing one or two pounds up to those seemingly calculated for exercising the muscles of a giant and weighing thirty or forty pounds each. In almost every instance these natural dumbbells are well balanced, the balls at either end of the connecting piece being of the same size and weight.

There is in this plain an arsenal also. While guns and swords and bayonets and powder were not there to be found, there are thousands of cannon balls varying in size from two and three inch balls to those fit for the big thirteen inch guns of modern warfare. And all are of stone, all formed in nature's workshop.

There are other objects innumerable. There are stone roses, stone lilles, stone tulips, stone leaves, stone birds, stone animals, stone quolts, stone ornaments in varied and unique designs, stone canes-in fact, almost everything conceivable in nature or art imitated in stone on the plain of Yuha.

In one portion of Yuha rise two hills or small mountains. One might mistake them in the distance for ancient craters, but when he approaches the eminences he discovers them to be monuments to an ancient life-the records of species now extinct. They are shell mountains, great beds of prehistoric bivalves which were left stranded when that ancient sea swept back from the region and left a dry and desolate

One of these mountains, the large one, is composed wholly of large rough shells, much larger, but less elongated, than the shells of the modern oyster, which in some respects they so much resemble as to lead to the suspicion that they are the remains of the ancestors of our much prized bivalve.

The lesser hill is composed of tiny shells of a prehistoric type of brachiopoda. Like the larger shells, they are found except on the surface in an undisturbed state, both valves of nearly every shell being found in position. Although the mollusk dwellers of these shells vanished several countries ago, so perfect are the shells one almost expects when he opens the valve of the shell to find the living creature within.

More potatoes can be secured by close planting, but the implements of intertillage are not usualsuited to narrow intervals.

In from ten days to two weeks, the seed potatoes will have healed over and the sprouts have grown to a length of from one to two inches. However, this will depend on the earliness of planting and the temperature and character of the land. In any case level the ridges before the sprouts have become so long that they will be injured by the leveling process. The best leveling implement is a spike toothed harrow, with a 2 by 4 scantling placed underneath it at an angle of forty-five degrees from the rows. If the harrow is inclined to clog, make the angle of the scantling more acute. First drive lengthwise of the rows, taking three at a time. Sometimes it may be well to stand on the harrow, but in such a position as to allow the teeth in the rear end of it to come into sharp contact with the ground. If one harrowing does not level the ground satisfactorily, cross harrow. If these instructions have been followed the results will be a well prepared seed bed, even if the fall plowing has not been performed; the seed planted early, four inches deep or a trifle more; an extra tillage by reason of furrowing the ground deeply and then by covering the seed by a deep, broad furrow run in the middles, permitting the ground to dry and warm, which is not objectionable in early spring.

COLOR OF THE SUN.

What Would Happen if It Were Oth-

A German astronomer has published some interesting observations on the theoretical effects of a change in the color of the sun. It is amazing to consider the possibilities if our sun were green, blue or red instead of what it is. If it were blue, there would be only two colors in the world-blue and black. If it were red, then everything that some swallow up five of the colors and reflect only one. Thus we have primoses yellow because they absorb all but the yellow, roses red because they absorb all but the red, violets purple because they absorb everything but red and blue, a mixture of which two colors forms purple. In the event of the sun being red, roses, blood, red ink and all other things that are now red would reflect it. So also would snow, the lily and all things that are now white, but these would, of course, be red. Everything else would swallow up the red light and appear quite black. Grass, for instance, would be black as ink, and so would the blue of the sky, but the white clouds would be red. The same kind of thing would happen if the sun were blue. Everything now Place the seed pieces not more than blue or white would be blue and everyor a large single shovel plow. Use two grass this time would be blue, not horses or the potatoes will not be cov. black, for it reflects both blue and ered deep enough or middles fully yellow. Hair would be all black, the opened. Have the plow large enough red of the lips would be black, and the and run it deeply enough so that it rest of the face would be a cloudy blue. If the sun were green, we would and yet cover the seed to a depth all have a little variety. Things that are told of eight or ten inches-that is, now yellow would still be yellow, things that are blue would be blue sharpish edge. If the tools you have and things that are green would still be green, but there would be no reds, purples, orange, pinks or any of those cheery hues that make the world look so bright.-New York Herald.

THE BAYEUX TAPESTRY.

An Extraordinary Work of Art of Great Historic Value.

Few besides those who have visited Bayeux or have especially studied the subject have any idea of what this extraordinary work of art is really like or have any authentic knowledge of its history. It tells the story of Edward, Harold and William and of the couquest of William in a series of pictures, so that its value is great as a chronicle as well as a relic of needlework 800 years old.

The vicissitudes of the treasure have been many. It is a curious fact that from 1476 until 1724 lt seems to have dropped entirely out of the world's knowledge. It was preserved with among the treasures of the finished. Perfect fitting. Bayeux cathedral and was brought out about the nave of the cathedral. No one but the peasants ever saw it, and the cathedral authorities cared for it only as a decoration. In 1724 an old drawing of part of the tapestry came into the hands of a learned antiquarian, who tried without success to find the original. The Pere Montfaucon also tried to find it and at last succeeded and told the world about it in his great book, "Monuments de la Monarchie Francaise.'

The church had no power to protect such a treasure in 1724, and the ancient length of linen with its quaint emthedral and used to cover one of the military wagons belonging to the local battalion. M. le Forestier rushed to its rescue and substituted a canvas to cover the wagon and brought the tapestry to his study till he was relieved from his self appointed mission by a commission that undertook the protection of the work of art. Now the tapestry has been restored and may be seen framed under glass in a museum

Breaking Eggs For a Living. THE UNDER MARRIAGE.

Wedding Customs and Frolics That Prevail In Holland.

Punylin Seed Alx. Senna + Rockelle Salts -Anice Seed + Propermint Bit Carbonale Seda + Worm Seed -Clavified Sugar Wintergreen Playor.

In Holland two weeks before a marriage takes place cards are sent out declaring that the banns have been published. This is called an "under mar- | Now Sells For 1 Cent, And Can Be rlage." The card also announces when the final marriage is to take place. The wedding itself is a small affair, and the civil marriage is the only one recognized by law. A church wedding is usually looked upon as a concession to either fashion or sentimentality and is called a "consecration of the marriage." The couple enter the church behind the family members, bridesmaids and other attendants. They are shown to scats before the whole assembly, and the clergyman comes in with two witnesses long after the others have been seated. He first makes a prayer, then delivers a sermon on a suitable text, which usually brings the bride to tears. After that the couple are married. Then a hymn is sung and the blessing given. The whole occupies about an hour and a quarter. Before leaving the church a large Bible is presented to the bridetill closely to the plants. The rule in told me, who do nothing else but crack groom. During the two weeks of waiting between the "under marriage" and the real marriage all the wedding festivities take place. The happy couple are literally surfeited with dinners, balls and theater parties, and all man-"Mamma," remarked Dottle, "if I get | ner of practical jokes are played on the pair. At the dinner toasts innumerable are given, and at each the whole company rises from the table to sound and touch glasses with the bride and grown, who never rise. Among their friends the idea is not to allow the couple a night of sleep, if possible, before the wedding day.
