PARAGRAPH NEWS FROM ALL POINTS OF THE COMPASS.

Five men were injured at the launching of the battleship New Hampshire.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge has been summoned to give evidence concerning campaign contributions in Massachusetts.

Fifty persons were injured in the wreck of a New York and Philadelphia express on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

Pennsylvania Railroad officials report that the peach crop of the State of Delaware will amount to over 3,500,000 baskets.

The excessive heat, last Friday and Saturday, was the cause of the death of many people in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. Conditions were worst in Philadelphia where the temperature rose to 96°.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company have decided to enlarge their freight yards at Brunswick, and work has already begun. The capacity of the new yards for 7,500 cars means the building of at least thirty-two miles of track, and the expenditure of $700,000. When these improvements are made Brunswick will have terminal facilities equal to any in the world.

At a Luncheon given by the Society of American Women in London, last Friday, the Duke of Marlborough eulogized President Roosevelt. He spoke of the President's high aims, courage and manliness. Lord Curzon, at the same luncheon, said that the President was making an enduring mark on the history of his times, and that the British had to thank him for cementing the good relations existing between the two peoples.

Something new in hold-ups occurred near Phenixville, Pa., last week when a party of four Philadelphians were stopped by two men. The Philadelphians were skimming along the road when the chauffeur saw immediately ahead, a man lying in the middle of the road. The machine was stopped, and the driver and another man jumped out to see what was the matter when the man jumped to his feet, drawing a revolver, ordered the automobilists to throw up their hands. Another man then appeared and relieved the travelers of $94 in money, three gold watches, several diamond rings and other valuables. Then the two got into the automobile and escaped.

It is safe to say that the trial of Harry Kendall Thaw, accused of murdering Stanford White, will be conducted, regardless of the millions in money owned by Thaw and White's family, just as any other murder case, and that justice will be meted out in accordance with the law. In the hands of district attorney William Travers Jerome, the case will be handled without gloves. Regarding the murder, Mr. Jerome says: "Thaw will have to wait until his case comes up in the regular order. As there are 48 murder cases ahead of his, probably his case will not be reached until October. The case will go on, notwithstanding what is said, for the man has been indicted and there is no way out."

The disclosures already alluded to in the press dispatches concerning this case make it one of the most sensational in the New York criminal annals.

The political fight in Allegany county between Pearre and Lowndes, was ended on Saturday night by the overwhelming defeat of Lowndes. Pearre carried the city of Cumberland, Lonaconing and Frostburg. Lowndes received the most votes in Mount Savage. Pearre's majority was over 600. This victory is a defeat for Wellington who was a supporter of Lowndes. It was on account of his allies more than any other reason, that Lowndes's candidacy was distasteful to the people. When Mr. Lowndes announced his intention to try for the congressional nomination early in the winter and while the legislature was still in session, all the dissatisfied elements of the republican party immediately surrounded him. By these unfortunate alliances his cause was disaffected, many refusing to join with the disgruntled ones.

Another trust has been formed in New York, known as the American Farm Products Company. Twenty millions of dollars have already been subscribed and more can be had when the need presents itself. Such men as Levi P. Morton, Thomas F. Ryan, Harry Payne Whitney, Anthony Brady, E. J. Berwind and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. are behind the scheme. It is proposed, by this company, to take absolute control of all dairy products, chickens and eggs, and to abolish the middle man, delivering to the consumer direct from the producer. The company, when fully organized, will take charge of 2,000,000,000 pounds of butter produced each year in the United States, reduce it to butter oil, extract the impurities, mix it again with fresh milk and make it into high-grade, pure butter. An increased and uniform price is promised to the consumer besides giving him a better product and a more economical method of distribution, the corporation taking the responsibility of delivering butter and milk to the consumer. Further than this the company expects to drive all oleomargarine business out of existence by selling a pure product at such a price that will be prohibitive to such dealers.

Cornstalks as Material for Paper.

Long Island farmers feel increased interest in corn as a crop since it has been discovered that cornstalks can be utilized in the manufacture of paper. Hitherto the only use found for them has been for bedding and fertilizing purposes, with the large crops of sweet corn raised for the New York market, the vast quantities of stalks practically represent waste and really were not difficult to get out of the way.

Now the farmers are finding a profitable market for their cornstalks, and have been shipping them away in thousands of bales. Their newly found value will have the effect of largely increasing the acreage of corn planted on Long Island the coming season, and probably there will be some attention paid to raising corn for the stalks alone.

Paper That Serves as Window Glass.

The Chinese in Manchuria have a substitute for window glass in the form of a translucent paper, which they paste over the window sashes or frames when the long winter sets in. It is made almost entirely from hemp, and most particularly from hemp rope, by a very simple process.

Heavy stone rollers are passed over the pieces of discarded rope until the hemp is ground into small particles of fibre. This is placed in vats and stirred until the fibres are well distributed through the water the vat contains. Then a large sieve is sunk in it and slowly raised out of it, clearing the liquid sufficiently to permit the water to drain from it, leaving a thin substance that is skimmed off and dried on the wall, from which it is stripped as paper.—The Search-Light.

WHY HAIR TURNS GRAY.

The color of the hair depends on little granules, which can be seen if the hair be examined under a powerful microscope. Sometimes the hair may become white in a night.

Brown-Sequard tells us that when he was forty-five years old his beard turned white in two days. This took place when he was perfectly well and without any especial cause. Sometimes, however, sorrow or illness produces the change earlier in life than it would usually take place. As to the cause, some have said that the hair becomes filled with small air-particles which make it look gray; others have said that the outer part of the hair becomes altered, so that it is like ground glass and you cannot see the color. But a man by the name of Metchnikoff tells us that the real reason is because small movable bodies in the hair devour the grains of coloring matter and move them to the root of the hair. Sometimes poisons, in disease, or some result of sorrow, bring about an effect upon these small migrating bodies (cells), causing them to become active in the above fashion. That is said to be the reason why the hair grows gray.—St. Nicholas.

TRUE.

A lawyer and a cart-wheel must be greased.

The fool always finds a greater fool to admire him.

After all, our worst misfortunes never happen, and most miseries lie in anticipation.

The man who is most slow in promising is most sure to keep his word.

Typographical Blunders.

An old New York newspaper man, now turned farmer, kept a scrapbook in which for years he pasted hundreds of the typographical blunders and other errors that always annoy, but sometimes amuse, newspaper writers. A few selections from this collection are given here to show that vagaries of the types and blunders which writers sometimes make when driven at top speed may be compared favorably with some of the current humor of the day.

It was a New York newspaper which announced that "A long line of scorpion's feathers filed into the church" instead of "surplised fathers." A journalist once famous under the press name of "Gath" wrote a Fourth of July article, in which he told with fervent eloquence how the effete monarchies of the Old World trembled in their boots when they read the immortal declaration penned by Thomas Jefferson. "Thrones reeled," he began a sentence, and the next morning he wished he hadn't when he saw in cold type "Thomas reeled."

A daily newspaper up the Hudson reported the speech of a Fourth of July orator who had something to say about the "Fiat of the Almighty." It got into the paper "the fist of the Almighty."

The Winnipeg Times, on the death of a reverend gentleman, meant to say "the death of a prelate," but printed "the death of a pirate." A Cardiff newspaper, reporting the sermon of the Rev. Dr. Mellor before the Congregational Union, where the clergyman spoke of "Women Clothed With Sanctity," by an unfortunate transposition of the "c" printed the phrase "Women Clothed With Seantity."

A London paper said that Ernest Renan had occasion to telegraph across the British Channel the title of a lecture he was to deliver in Westminster Abbey. The title as written by him was "The Influence of Rome on the Formation of Christianity." It was published in England as "The Influence of Rum on the Digestion of Humanity."

It was in a New York paper's report of a political meeting that the word "shouts" was so ludicrously misprinted as to make the blunder famous. "The snouts of 10,000 Democrats rent the air" read the report. A local reporter wrote that Dr. Talmage closed his services with the hymn "Nearer, by God, to Thee," but the blunder was caught on the fly in the proofroom, and did not get into the paper. At the time of the Meeker massacre, in Colorado, a dispatch from the West attributed the tragedy to the farmers having "pulled down the Indians' tents and corrals." One paper put it into type as "pulled down the Indians' beets and carrots."

The old-time reporter, with the howl for copy ringing in his ears, sometimes perpetrated remarkable English. A young Chicago news-gatherer wrote of a man who had died of asphyxiation; "Mr. Johnson was found reclining on the bed, while his legs extended over the floor and toward the outer edge of the room."—New York Sun.

Indian Proverbs.

The coward shoots with shut eyes. No Indian ever sold his daughter for a name.

Before the paleface came there was no poison in the Indian's corn.

Small things talk loud to the Indian's eye.

When a fox walks lame old rabbit jumps.

The paleface's arm is longer than his word.

A squaw's tongue runs faster than the wind's legs.

There is nothing so eloquent as a rattlesnake's tail.

The Indian scalps his enemy, the paleface skins his friends.

There will be hungry palefaces so long as there is any Indian land to swallow.

When a man prays one day and steals six, the Great spirit thunders and the evil one laughs.

There are three things it takes a strong man to hold—a young warrior, a wild horse and a handsome squaw.

SOUSEVILLE SIFTINGS

BY McSWATT.

A car load of crutches passed through here yesterday on the way to Cripple Creek.

Mickey McTavish, our live Conestable, arrested three lambs for gambling last Sunday.

Euphemia Dink and Vira Gorp are going to spend some time in Slotown this summer.

Time is about all those girls were ever known to spend.

Three pigs belonging to old Kate Wink left home Monday last.

We saw Kate throw one of her cherry pies in the trough Sunday evening.

Sipe Giggins is being treated by Dr. Boozie for Chronic sneezing. Sipe always was up to snuff.

The sewer lid on the square blew up on the 4th, sending Ike Izzle twenty feet into the air.

Ike, there are "some things" were better ne'er to dwell upon."

Swenk Pivel's cattle dog bit Carry Ump on the calf of the leg, during the parade on the fourth of July, and broke three of its teeth. We always knew Carry was tough.

Bill Sop's boy, Dip, is going to marry Phenny Bodge in September. Dip is hot gravy.

Jed Gobbin's daughter, Petunia, has gone to Whorletown to work in a pinac factor. Jed says she's to be on the top floor.

Petunia always struck us as being lightened.

Souseville celebrated the Fourth in true patriotic style. In the morning the Burgess painted the town pump a brilliant red and to the strains of "The British Barked at Bunker Hill," played by the Souseville Silver Cornet Band, led the Oldest Inhabitants to the field back of Abe Punk's barn to open up the festivities arranged for the occasion.

Hez Holly, age 106, sang the "Star Strangled Bladder," accompanying himself on the mouth organ, and Crunch Windle, 105 years old, did a buck and wing dance with both legs tied behind him. After the singing of "Freedom Drenched in Martyrs' Blood," by the Skittsville Quartette, there was a debate between Bigelow Butts and Tim Grundle, the subject being: "Which does the Most for our Country the hatchet or the cherry." Butts, whose uncle is in the Maraschino trust, won, hands down. During the debate Malachi Hinch got hot in the neck and set fire to his celluloid collar. In the evening there was a grand ball at the Hose Co's. house, followed by fireworks on the lawn—and at various other places.

The Bug Town Bugle needn't copy.

These are of special interest now in connection with the bi-centennial celebrations. Franklin began publishing the almanac in 1732.

Each year the book gave the usual lunations, eclipses, weather prophecies, tables of tides, etc., but its most valuable portion to-day is its great number of Poor Richard's sayings, many of which have become proverbial. From them may be quoted the following:—

"Keep your eyes wide open before marriage; half shut afterwards."

"Since thou art not sure of a minute, throw not away an hour."

"Drive the business, but let not that drive thee."

"Eat to please thyself, but dress to please others."

"Search others for their virtues, thyself for thy vices."

"Each year one vicious habit rooted out, in time might make the worst man good throughout."

"All things are cheap to the saving, dear to the wasteful."

"He that can rest is greater than he that can take cities."

Sunflower Better Than Ginseng.

It is worth while for Kansas to know that a Spanish professor is reported to have made the discovery that the sunflower yields an excellent febrifuge that can be used as a substitute for quinine in the treatment of malarial fevers.

This is in line with a previous report to the therapeutical society of Paris to the effect that the sunflower should not only by its growing exert a great fever-dispelling effect, but also yield a product to be used advantageously for malarial fever.

A Russian physician has also obtained from sunflower leaves a product that is used with good results in malarial fever cases, and among the Russian peasants fever patients sleep upon beds of sunflower leaves and cover themselves with them.

So in its fields of sunflowers the State of Kansas has a plant that may become as popular in the civilized world as the great American ginseng is in China, and with better reason.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC.

In the midst of the consternation caused by the great earthquake in California there assembled in Philadelphia a body of eminent scientists for the purpose of celebrating the 20th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. Throughout the country there has been aroused an interest in everything pertaining to the life of the philosopher-statesman, who strikingly illustrated in his own person the value of the admonition he once gave to the readers of "Poor Richard's Almanac":—

"If you would not be forgotten As soon as you are dead and rotten, Either write things worth reading Or do things worth the writing."

There were recently brought to light in Newport, R. I., several copies of this famous almanac, which was published by Franklin in Philadelphia in 1734, 1736 and 1738, and Appreciation.

We desire to express our very keen appreciation of the sentiments contained in the numerous letters which we have received from our subscribers and to acknowledge the gracious comments our various esteemed contemporaries have made concerning THE CHRONICLE.

Such encouragement, so generously and spontaneously offered, not only strengthens our belief that a conscientious effort to serve the people is ever rewarded by their hearty support, but also spurs us on to greater endeavor in the interests of those people whom we have pledged ourselves to serve.

Permit us to say again, and to lay stress upon it, that THE CHRONICLE is the people's paper and that its columns will always be open for a dignified discussion, by the people, of any subject that may seem to them interesting, or that may in any wise be a benefit to the community at large.

The Town Hall.

It looks very much as though the people of Emmitsburg are in earnest about building a Town Hall. And well may they be, for if ever there was a place where such a structure was needed, sorely needed, that place is right here in this community.

The meeting Monday night though not largely attended, was representative of the various business interests of our town and this and the freedom from unnecessary discussion and the practical plan adopted, would seem to indicate that the success of the undertaking was assured.

When the committee, whose duties consist of finding a suitable site and the cost of a proper building, makes its report, a plan for raising the necessary funds will be determined upon.

The plan likely to be adopted and the one that would undoubtedly call forth a hearty response from the people generally, has for its object the issuing of shares in small denominations, purely nominal in fact, in order that everybody may subscribe and thereby feel a strong personal interest in the building which will be and should be by all means the people's building.

But right here let us beware of hectic enthusiasm. Sudden outbursts of public spirit which cool as suddenly as they originate are never productive of any good. And as we said last week "to simply call attention to an important matter of this kind and then have it discussed at haphazard on the street corners, avails nothing."

In this undertaking let us act promptly and well, let us all pull together, stick to it, and carry it to a successful issue.

We will never regret it.

A Contemptible Act.

The act of wilfully destroying private property, under pretense of being patriotic, is certainly a sad commentary on good citizenship. Right on the Main Street of our town a man, not a thoughtless child or irresponsible youth, deliberately places a lighted cannon cracker on the window sill of a merchant's warehouse—and that merchant our Burgess—and like a coward slinks into an alley to await the result and to gloat over his malicious act.

To celebrate the Fourth of July in a patriotic manner, by the display of fire works during lawful hours, is commendable and proper, but to go beyond this is unlawful, unreasonable and unpardonable.

The act of Wednesday night, evidently directed against the Burgess in his official capacity, should in consequence, be officially considered by our Commissioners.

The New Railroad.

Our contemporary, the Catoctin Clarion, has twice invited us to express an opinion in regard to a new railroad and the general improvement and "development of the North end of Frederick county."

Agreeably to this invitation and in order that our views may be thoroughly understood, we unhesitatingly announce that first, last and all the time, we are for improvement, for development, for advancement and for any measure or project that is for the betterment of the County in general and the North end in particular. We will heartily welcome and lend our support and efforts to any railroad that is capitalized on a sound basis and that proposes to build substantially, to furnish modern equipment and to adequately serve the public.

If this is the intent and purpose of the promoters of the W. F. & G. Railroad, and no doubt it is, we may be relied upon to do all in our power to further the interests and the welfare of that road.

The London Wreck.

Simply because it wanted to exceed the running speed of a competing road, the London and Southwestern Railroad killed twenty-three out of forty-two passengers.

Of course we realize that the lives of the passengers amount to little or nothing when compared with the advertising that results to an eminently respectable corporation, but we think that twenty-three out of forty-two is a little above what a good kind corporation has a right to expect.

Judging from the variety of results, Mrs. Harry Thaw must have spent four-fifths of her time in front of the photographer's camera.—Washington Star.

And judging from the notoriety of the case and the amount of expert testimony to be taken, the husband of Mrs. Harry Thaw will have to spend four-fifths of his money to escape the gallows.

It will soon be time for Promising Pearre to come around with his hearty handshake and his little package of assurances and his ever-ready "I will."

THE EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE has learned to smile.—The Benzine Bard in Baltimore Sun.

Especially at breaks like this: " * * * the expenditure of $35,000 finally was authorized. Practically the whole of this amount will have to be used in making the repairs necessary."—The Sun of July 3rd.

The Summer girl is in a whirl Of rapture, most ecstatic; At gay resorts she flirts and sports And poses, quite dramatic.

The Benzine Bard is thinking hard Of words to catch the eye, But though he strains his fertile brains, His thoughts all run to pie.

If you have a good friend and some money, Cling to each with your might and main, Lend money to friend and you lose him And the money you won't see again.

NOT TOO SERIOUS.

NEWBORN (furnishing his library): Let me see. Now I've got all the sets of standard authors bound in calf—Dickens, Scott and all them fellows.

CLERK: Yes, sir. NEWBORN: Now I'll want something to read. Say, have you got a complete set of "Old Sleuth"?—Philadelphia Record.

At a recent political meeting in England, the speaker made a jest, and finding that his audience had missed the point of it, said playfully: "I had hoped, gentlemen, that you would laugh at that." A plaintive voice came through the silence, "I laughed, mister." Then everybody did.—Argonaut.

THE CAPTAIN BECAME SINGULAR.

Capt. Rossi loves to use the pronoun "we" in speaking of himself, but discontinued the practice after the following episode. One day he said to his servant:

"John how much wine have we in the house?"

"Two bottles, sir."

"What? Impossible. Two weeks ago there were fifty at least!"

"Yes, sir; but you said, we have excellent wine, John; we will enjoy it, and so—"

"Well, what?"

"Well, we have enjoyed it."

MIXED WIVES.

In the early part of the last century there lived in an old New England town a Mr. Church, who in the course of his earthly life was bereft of four wives, all of whom were buried in the same lot. In his old age it became necessary to remove the remains to a new cemetery. This he undertook himself, but in the process the bones became hopelessly mixed. His "New England conscience" would not allow him, under the painful circumstances, to use the original headstones, so he procured new ones, one of which bore the following inscription:

"Here lies Hannah Church and probably a portion of Emily."

Another:

"Sacred to the Memory of Emily Church, who seems to be mixed with Matilda."

Then followed these lines:

"Stranger, pause and drop a tear: For Emily Church lies buried here. Mixed in some perplexing manner With Mary, Matilda, and probably Hannah."—Harper's Weekly.

COMPARISON.

The tourist stopped at the little cabin where an old colored mammy was bending over a big tub.

"Good morning, mammy," greeted the tourist.

"Maw'nin', sah," responded mammy.

"Where's your son Sam?"

"Gone, sah, Ah dunno wheh."

"Well, he always was a bad boy, mammy."

"Deed he was, sah. He was dess lak det ol' blue umbrella Ah los' in de thunderstorm. He was hahd to raise, powahful hahd to raise, en aftah Ah raise him he's jumped away from me en Ah ain't seen him since.—Official Railway Season.

CARRIED HIS OWN FUEL.

Two Irishmen were crossing the ocean on the way to this country. On the way over Patrick died. Preparations were made for burial at sea, according to the Magazine of Fun, but the lead weights customarily used in such cases were lost. Chunks of coal were substituted. Everything was finally ready for the last rites, and long and earnestly did Michael look at his friend. Finally he blurted out sorrowfully:

"Well, Pat, Ol' always knew ye were goin' there, but Ol' dommed if Ol' thought they'd make yer bring yer own coal."—Lancaster New Era.

HE WORRIED ABOUT IT.

When the weather was murky, he gazed at the sky, And he worried about it; He watched the grey cloudlets go scurrying by, And he worried about it;

"I'll bet it will rain," he would say to a friend, All manner of dire disaster portend; His life was one fret from beginning to end, For he worried about it.

He had a few troubles, as human kind will, And he worried about it; His health was high perfect, but then, if you please, He fancied he had mostly every disease, And marshalled his ailments in columns of threes, And he worried about it.

No doubt when he entered the world long ago, He worried about it; As a matter of fact, when he married, you know, He worried about it.

And when he departs from this scene of despair, And mounts on light wings through ethereal air, When ushered right up to a heavenly chair, He'll worry about it.

A FACT ABOUT THE "BLUES."

What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered LIVER.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

Tutt's Pills

They control and regulate the LIVER. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

AN EPOCH MAKING SESSION

How the Fifty-ninth Congress Has Met the New Issues Initiated by President Roosevelt, With Extension of Federal Powers as the Dominant Note.

By EDWIN S. POTTER

Railroad Rate Regulation.

The keynote was struck unmistakably in the message which congress received at the opening of the session—namely, the insistence on federal fixing of interstate railroad rates as well as the prevention of rebates or any kind of special favors. Rate bills of various kinds and descriptions were promptly introduced in both senate and house; but, the house majority being under better discipline, the bill was more promptly formulated there, which was approved at the White House. It was favored by Representative Hepburn of Iowa as chairman of the committee on interstate commerce. It was so modified in the committee as to come before the house without Democratic opposition, and after a few days of perfunctory discussion it was passed on Feb. 8 by the almost unanimous vote of 346 to 7, the seven opponents all being Republicans. As passed it gave the interstate commerce commission full power to regulate interstate freight tariffs without express recognition of the rights of appeal in the court. This, however, was only the foundation of the law that was to go to the statute book.

In the senate the Hepburn bill was destined to run the gauntlet of fierce opposition from a conservative faction of the Republicans led by Aldrich and Foraker and become the foothold of personal and party bickerings over a period of three months. The main point of the dispute was the question of a broad or narrow court review provision, and at one time, after the president's political and personal enemy, Tillman, had been placed in charge of the measure, there was a tacit coalition between the president and the minority.

Later, however, the president accepted the compromise Allison amendment, upon which his party associates had agreed, vesting jurisdiction in the circuit courts to enjoin, set aside, annul or suspend any order of the commission on appeal of the carrier concerned. It was at this time that the Democratic leaders charged the president with bad faith on the strength of representations said to have been made through ex-Senator Chandler. Finally the bill, with sixty-seven amendments, passed the senate May 18 by a vote of 71 to 3. Still further changes were made in conference thereafter. The senate conferees held out against the house proposal to drop the clause placing pipe lines under federal control. As this was finally agreed to by senate and house, the pipe lines are to be regarded as common carriers, but are not prohibited from carrying their own products. Railroad and railway mail employees are exempted from the anti-pass amendment. The president signed the bill June 29.

A New Star on the Flag.

The statehood muddle, left over from the preceding congress, was one of the most difficult tangles to be unraveled. Under the leadership of Speaker Cannon a Republican insurrection against joint statehood for Arizona and New Mexico was crushed, and the bill was passed Jan. 24, 1914 to 150, the insurgents numbering forty-three. On March 9 the senate passed the statehood bill with provision only for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as one state. The bill finally emerged from conference under a compromise agreement providing for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as the state of Oklahoma and authorizing Arizona and New Mexico to hold a plebiscite on joint statehood next fall. This was approved by both houses and became a law with the president's signature June 16.

Notwithstanding the disagreement over the immigration bill the house bill making uniform the conditions for naturalization was adopted by the senate on June 28. Declaration must be made two years in advance. Anarchists and polygamists are barred.

For Lock Canal at Panama.

The house was the first to go on record in favor of the lock type for the Panama canal, and the senate followed suit June 21, 33 to 31. By a party vote the senate directed that American products and manufactures should be used in the construction of the canal, and in this the house agreed.

Important Bills That Failed.

The Philippine tariff bill, which was one of the pet administration measures and which was forced through the house by making a concession of 25 per cent of the Dingley rates on sugar, tobacco and rice, by the vote of 258 to 72 as early as Jan. 16 was put to sleep effectually in the senate committee on the Philippines through a combination of Democrats and stand pat Republicans. The committee voted 8 to 5 against reporting this cherished administration measure, and the efforts to bring about a reconsideration proved futile.

The senate on June 5 tabled the proposed constitutional amendment permitting a federal divorce law.

The house defeated by a large majority the Adams bill authorizing whipping posts for wife beaters in the District of Columbia.

PRETTY WEDDING.

The following account of the marriage of Miss Helen Morrison to Mr. Leroy M. Law, June 27, at Washington, D. C., appeared in the Washington papers:

A pretty wedding took place last evening at the Eastern Presbyterian Church, when Leroy M. Law and Miss Helen Morrison, both of Washington, were married. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas C. Easton, D. D., pastor of the church, and the bride was given away by her father, Thomas J. Morrison.

The bride was attired in white lace applique over white silk, wore a veil of tulle caught with wreath of daisies, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Bruce Morrison, of Emmitsburg, Md., a cousin of the bride. She wore a dress of white chiffon taffeta, and carried a bouquet of Marguerites. The bridesmaids were Miss Nina Morrison and Miss Beatrice Law, sisters, respectively, of the bride and groom. They wore yellow organdies with wreaths of ivy in their hair and carried Marguerites. The little flower girl was Miss Gertrude Gibson. She wore white mill and lace with yellow ribbons, and about her neck was a gold necklace, the gift of the bride. Mrs. Law's mother, Mrs. Morrison, was gowned in a black lace robe over white silk, and her sister was attired in lavender seolian, handsomely trimmed with lace.

The groom is the son of John B. Law, and is a chemist in the Treasury Department. He was accompanied by Joseph Harrison, who acted as best man. The ushers were Myers Hand, Edward S. Allsine, J. Samuel Kemp, and Dr. T. J. Kemp.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 304 Maryland avenue Northeast. Mr. and Mrs. Law left on a late train for their wedding trip, which will be a tour of the Northern States, partly by sea. The travelling dress worn by the bride was of Alice blue, with hat and gloves to match. After returning from their trip, they will stop at the Washington College at Eckington.

DEATH OF FATHER HEMLER.

A Former Resident of This Place Dies at McSherrystown.

The Rev. Pius Peter Hemler, formerly living near this place, died on Friday afternoon, June 29, at McSherrystown. Father Hemler was the rector of St. Mary's Church, McSherrystown, from the time the church was opened for worship, several years ago, until his death.

When he was assigned to that parish he superintended the erection of the church which now stands as a monument to his efforts and zeal. At the time of his death he was the Rural Dean of the district of Adams county.

The funeral services were held on July 3, from St. Mary's church, the Rev. Fathers Kohl, of Littlestown, Huber, of Hanover, Galligan, of Lykens, Pa., and Hollen, of York, taking part in the services. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Shanahan pronounced the absolution. The interment was made in the new St. Mary's cemetery.

Father Hemler was a son of the late David and Susanna Hemler. He was born April 8, 1859, in Straban, township, Adams county, Pa., and was baptized at Gettysburg, by Rev. Basil Shorb. After the death of his mother in 1863, the family moved below Taneytown, from which place they came to Emmitsburg, where he received his education, being ordained to the holy priesthood from St. Mary's College, October 5, 1888, by Bishop McGoeyern. He served parishes at Chambersburg, Lebanon and New Oxford before going to McSherrystown.

He is survived by four brothers and three sisters: Samuel, John and Frank Hemler, of Thurmont, Lewis Hemler, of Taneytown, Misses Mary and Aggie Hemler, of Thurmont, and Mrs. Hugh Roddy, of this place.

Now is the time to think about Ham-mocks, Tennis Goods and Croquet Sets. C. J. Shuff & Co., "on the Square"—keeps them.

STORE WINDOW WRECKED.

Malicious Deed Of Some Ill-willed Person Or Persons—Show Window Ruined.

About 12 o'clock Wednesday night, one of the display windows in M. F. Shuff's furniture store was wrecked by a giant fire cracker. It was undoubtedly the work of some spiteful person, for the explosion was at a time when few were on the street, and the explosive so placed that it would do the most damage. The lower glasses of the window were blown out, a large hole torn in the sash and part of the weatherboarding under the window splintered and shattered. Two men were seen near the store a short time before the deed was committed, one of them turned into Frailay's shops, the other stayed back presumably to light the fire cracker. Several people saw this man run down the street turning down Frailay's alley and then towards the upper end of town. Although no one could recognize the man it was seen that he was a tall man, in his shirt sleeves, wearing a light straw hat.

TOWN HALL.

Mass Meeting Held on Monday Night, General Interest Expressed in the Project.

Agreeably to the call made through the columns of THE CHRONICLE for a mass meeting to consider the advisability of erecting a town hall, a representative body of citizens gathered in Firemen's Hall, on Monday night. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Galt who outlined the object of the meeting. He said: "As we all realize the necessity for a Town Hall let us not dilate unduly upon its advantages, but let us be practical and consider the ways and means by which we can, without unnecessary delay, build a structure suitable for the purpose."

It was suggested that this building be a People's hall, which all could be personally interested in and to further the plan that stock should be issued at such a price that all could become stockholders and part owners and that it should not be a close corporation. Mr. Annan Horner was elected secretary of the meeting and Mr. Galt, chairman. It was moved by Mr. Gelwicks that the chairman appoint a committee to report on the feasibility of plans already outlined and to consider available sites. The meeting was then adjourned to meet again at the call of the chairman. The following gentlemen were present: Dr. D. E. Stone, Vincent Sebold, I. S. Annan, E. E. Zimmerman, John Horner, J. T. Gelwicks, William Troxell, Burgess Shuff, Rev. A. M. Gluck, Samuel Rowe, Annan Horner, Sterling Galt, J. H. Stokes, J. S. Annan, E. L. Annan John Long, E. L. Higbee.

Since this meeting a committee consisting of Sterling Galt, J. T. Gelwicks, Peter Burkot, Dr. D. E. Stone and Annan Horner, is busily engaged in securing the information desired and will report at an early date.

You may have goods that people need, But if you fail to tell them, How on earth are they to know And how are you to sell them? THE CHRONICLE can reach them all, And if you are but wise, You'll lose no time about it, And you'll straightway advertise.

ST. EUPHEMIA'S VS FREDERICK.

(Air—Tammany.)

Play base ball, play base ball! We are used to winning here. We can do it every year. Play base ball! play base ball! Pitch 'em! bang 'em! slug 'em! Play base ball!

At 7.30 Wednesday morning two of Mr. John Long's dandiest teams began a long jaunt to Frederick freighted with the members of St. Euphemia's base ball team. The mettle manifested by the spanking horses was gentleness indeed compared to the spirit that burst forth from the boys. Jupiter Pluvius had done his best the night before to throw a blanket of wetness over the boys. They had been assured by the managers that if there were enough blue sky to make an Irishman a pair of breeches the trip would be made. At the hour appointed for the start there was just sufficient clear sky, by actual measurement to supply a Hibernian with the afore-mentioned breeches and a pair of overalls. So the trekking over the kopjes to Frederick was begun. The orb of day, out of admiration for the pluck of the youngsters, made a great fight and by ten of the clock, was in serene possession of his realm.

As the wagons drew into Frederick-Town, and the boys shouted extracts from "Barbara Fritchie" the Frederick warriors with a whoop of welcome boarded the caravans. With the usual good spirit that exists between Father Smith's boys and St. Euphemia's the town rang and the band played. Father Smith had prepared a sumptuous repast of which the boys partook plentifully (some to their grief; Smith and Cook please take note.)

At 1.45 the game began. Kerrigan led off with a hit, Sebold, R. got jealous and repeated the trick. Walters had gotten Joey to take off his sneaks and waded into his eyes to remove the gnats. It was a batting-fest and before the side was retired the scorer had put down four tallies. The Frederick boys had nice exercise running off and on the diamond. In the ninth with the score fifteen to three, just to show what our boys could do, another batzen-fest was inaugurated from which six hits and five runs resulted.

Arnold had his wing with him and the assortment that he dished up was enough to give the Frederick batters locomotor ataxia. Our junior beef trust on second was a revelation and showed that even Mr. Rosenfelt cannot keep a good man down. Walters' batting was of the pyrotechnic assortment and as the score doth testify, he had five hits out of six times at bat. Score:

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[In this column "UNCLE BILL" will answer all questions of a proper character submitted to THE CHRONICLE. Readers of this paper should not hesitate to patronize this column frequently as "UNCLE BILL" draws a big salary and loves to work.]

Uncle Bill: I am going to Paris in August to attend the wedding of Countess Boulogne. Can you suggest a unique arrangement for the entrance of the bridal couple?

BIRDIE.

Birdie: I see at a glance that you are a high-flyer and I will give a suggestion that will suit your class. Here it is. As soon as the chimes ring off and the organ peals are hushed, start a flower girl holding six lighted roman candles, up the center aisle on a bicycle. Quickly following her have four small boys enter on a dead run throwing here and there ripe plums and yellow tomatoes. These must be aimed at the coiffures of the assembled friends, the object being to leave them stiff fast and lend color to the scheme. Then come the ushers, eight in number, clad in Highland costume and singing in French "Tammany." Then the bride enters seated in a base drum (full of red white and blue parlor matches) borne on the shoulders of her bridesmaids. By the time the gendarmes enter with drawn swords, the scene will be animated—and the bridal party cremated.

Uncle Bill: I am invited to a very formal dinner and I would like a pointer or two on dinner etiquette?

DINER-OUT.

Diner-Out: Next to funerals formal dinners are the limit for stiffness and tiresome conventionality.

Don't get seared however, but just jot down on your cuff a few of the cues I'm going to give and you'll be right in it.

First of all, after taking your seat examine carefully the bit of tools on the right of your plate, picking out the implement that seems least adapted to the first course. This will surely be the one you are expected to use. Holding it in your right hand, kick your vis a vis on the shins (under the table, of course) and then dive in and eat. This will open up a general conversation, and during the excitement you'll get a decent bite. Try this several times during the meal and you won't go away hungry.

Now for a few don'ts. Don't upper cut the waiter, no matter if he does appear to fuss you in some strange language. Don't stir the consommé with your knife. Don't mistake the chianti for a shampoo mixture. Don't eat macaroni with the fist. Don't renig on anything that is put before you. If you can't eat it, shove it quietly under the table. Don't pocket any of the silver. It is very bad form to swipe souvenirs. Don't comb your mustache with your fork. Don't ask for a hair brush and mirror after using the finger bowl. Follow these directions carefully and you'll be glad you went.

Uncle Bill:—My wife does not like chewing tobacco; she says it is a vile habit. What shall I do?

DOUGLAS.

Douglas: Douglas, Douglas, tender and true, Give her a piece of leather to chew.

Uncle Bill: What is our national flower?

PEARLINE.

Pearline: Pie.

Uncle Bill: Why is it wrong to say "Where am I at"?

SYMPOSIARCH.

Symposiarch: It is never wrong if you are in church, but it often is cruel to say where you are at when you were not at the lodge meeting. Better not get in the habit of ating, then you will be saved procrastinating. Now laugh and behave yourself.

Uncle Bill: How can I keep grass out of my garden without working it?

REST.

Rest: Station yourself at the gate and when you see it coming in politely direct it to the next house.

Uncle Bill: What does "E pluribus unum" mean?

AMERICANISM.

Americanism: You omitted the last words, which are necessary to complete the motto viz: "Eini Go Bras." When any one gets this off it means that he has eaten too much sponge cake.

"No power on earth is so strong to build up a town so well as a paper well patronized."

HAND IT AROUND.

Don't be ashamed or afraid to say kind things. There are some people who look as though they had been caught sheep stealing after they give way to an impulse to be pleasant.

Kindness is not a weakness. There is no danger of over production along this line. There is a market for all the bright looks and good wholesome pleasantness that can be turned out.

People go to bed hungry every night for a gentle touch or a helpful word. Men and women are laid at rest in the cemeteries every day, who would a thousand times rather have had a few thoughtful tokens of good will when living than all the flowers that have been heaped upon their caskets.

Hand out kindness and see the joy it will bring you as well as those at the other end of the transaction. "Pleasant words are as an honey-comb sweet to the soul and health to the bones." Get away from the idea that pleasant words should only now and then be thrown out like a bone to a dog. Carry a full basket and be generous. It will beat the widow's cruse and flour barrel at spontaneous reproduction. —American Correspondent.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

With a whoop and a rush Congress wound up the present session. There were rumors on Friday that an adjournment might be reached on Friday night and in expectation of such a development a special train was kept all night at the depot to be ready at any time to take the President to Oyster Bay if he so desired, it being known that he wanted to get out of Washington with Mrs. Roosevelt just as soon as possible after getting Congress off his hands. There were many callers at the White House early on Friday to shake hands with the President and to tell him good bye. Then came the cabinet meeting at which most of the discussion was over the pending prosecutions against the Standard Oil company. Attorney General Moody has engaged Messrs. Morrison and Kellogg as special counsel for the Department to work up these cases so as not to take the regular lawyers of the Department of Justice off their routine work of which there is plenty to keep them busy.

There was considerable speculation early in the day as to how Congress might act, there being still the Rate Bill and the pure Food Bill to dispose of and the conferees on both sides remaining stubborn. There were reports early in the day from the conferees on both bills saying that it was impossible to reach an agreement. The House stood out for the alteration of the Rate Bill so that pipe lines would not be designed as "common carriers" and thus work hardship on the Standard Oil Company which owns all of the pipe lines and the bulk of the oil that they transport to say nothing of owning Congress. The House conferees on the Meat Bill were also stubborn as to the provision putting the cost of the inspection on the government. This meant a matter of $3,000,000 for inspectors wages and though the Senate conferees were willing to go halfway and appropriate a million and a half dollars for the inspection with the proviso that the other half should be raised by fees from the cattle slaughtered, running not more than five cents a head, the House would not hear to it.

Things looked dark for a while and there was talk even that Congress might be carried over till next week. Then late in the afternoon came the news that a compromise had been reached on the rate bill, that the Senate had accepted the house report, which was equivalent to the passage of the bill, all except the signature of the President. It was not many minutes later that the same report was made as to the Pure Food Bill and that also was practically a law. With these two important measures out of the way, it was only a matter of hours for the loose ends to be gathered up and an adjournment was in sight.

It may be remarked in passing that the members were rather good to themselves in the matter of public buildings. Ever since the President put the postmasters in the classified service, much to the disgust of most Congressmen, the Public Building Bill has been looked upon as the best piece of political pickling left. This was to be an economical Congress, at the start, and the Speaker declared that he would have none of public buildings any more than of river and harbor improvements. But at the end it was found that Congress would be more docile if it were given this bone to gnaw on, and the Omnibus Public Building Bill was rushed through at the last minute, covering every state and territory except the District of Columbia which does not vote and consequently does not count. The whole amount appropriated by the bill was over $84,000,000. Of this $80,000,000 originated in the House. When the bill came to the Senate, the senators made a pretense of scaling it down, so they took off a little over a million in patches and added five million by way of economy. But it is a way-up, good bill, according to those who were benefited, and it has served its purpose of keeping Congress quiet during a very strenuous spell.

It is said that there will be no Ship Subsidy Bill next session. It was announced recently by Mr. Grosvenor that such a measure would form an important feature of the legislation next session, but this statement was afterward flatly contradicted from the House and it is probable that the matter will not be taken up.

An interesting line on the third term talk developed this week in the shape of a letter that Secretary Loeb wrote to a Colorado man who had inquired as to what the President was going to do about the third term. Mr. Loeb replied that he was going to do all he could to help the party but that so far as the Presidential candidate was concerned it would have to be someone else than Theodore Roosevelt.

"To stumble twice against the same stone is a proverbial disgrace."

THE ANVIL CHIME.

"Last eve I paused beside a blacksmith's door,
And heard the anvil ring the vesper chime;
Then looking in I saw upon the floor
Old hammers worn with beating years of time.
'How many anvils have you had,' said I,
'To wear and batter all these hammers so?'
'Just one,' said he; 'and then with twinkling eye,
'The anvil wears the hammer out, you know.'
And so I thought the anvil of God's Word
For ages skeptic blows have beat upon,
Yet though the noise of falling blows was heard,
The anvil is unharmed—the hammers gone."

H. F. MANNING.

How He Was Regarded In Knoxville, His Adopted Home.

From The Knoxville Journal and Tribune.

At the time of his death Mr. Manning was in his forty-sixth year, about eight of which he had been a resident of this city. Mr. Manning was born near Emmitsburg, Md., and lived for the greater part of his life there. On moving to Knoxville he identified himself with the lumber manufacturing business, first as a member of the firm of Murphy and Manning and later with the Recut Lumber company. At the time of his death he was engaged in the mill supply business as vice president of the Tennessee Mill Supply Company.

Since coming to Knoxville, Mr. Manning has by his cheerful manner, unusual kindness and integrity established himself in the hearts and minds of those with whom he came in contact until his friends are numbered, not merely by those who knew him most intimately, but also by those who were fortunate enough to be numbered among his acquaintances. In his death the community loses a man whose energy and knowledge in his business, together with his uprightness and honesty of purpose under all conditions, awarded him a place unique in its rareness.

He was a noble, Christian gentleman, a devout, life-long member of the Catholic church, a kind-loving, devoted and thoughtful father and husband, and a friend once tried, always loved and remembered.

Mr. Manning was married eleven years ago to Miss Nina Quinn, of Emmitsburg, Md., with which union five daughters have been born, four of whom together with their mother survive and have the heartfelt sympathy of all.

Besides his immediate family, Mr. Manning is survived by his father, Mr. C. A. Manning, of this city, one sister and six brothers.

PANAMA "INFORMATION SLIP."

(Questions Which Might Prove Embarrassing to Applicants for Employment.)

Life in the Panama Canal Zone is pretty dull, but the monotony is somewhat relieved by expedients which are not altogether unknown in these United States. Mr. J. O. Williams, of Baltimore, who holds a clerical position in the office of the Canal Commission at Culebra, is responsible for the following form of "Information Slip." It is not known what percentage of the questions must be answered satisfactorily, in order to qualify a candidate for employment.

Name (in full)— Name (when full)— What was your last alias?— Married or single?— If married, how many wives have you?— Is your personal present address known to them?— How much more do you know than your chief? (In answering this question use another sheet, if necessary.)— Do you suffer with cold feet?— Can you tell the difference between the yellow fever and black eye?— Do they miss you at home?— For how much?— Were you ever employed by the Rock Island, Illinois Central or Seaside Railways?— Did you get the exact position you came down to fill?— Do you think the dentists employed by the commission have a good pull?— How much do you owe in the States?— If employed in the track department, excavation or transportation department, explain your experience as hack driver, pullbearer, forist, trained nurse or gravedigger. Did you ever short-change your bartender, or oversleep?— Can you sing or play pingpong?— Have you any suggestions to offer as to the best methods of digging the canal?— Could you organize your department better than it is organized at present?— How many stones will it take for a sea-level canal?— How old were you when you first shaved?— If you die, which would you prefer, Monkey or Ancon Hill?— Can you speak the deaf and dumb language?— For identification give the following information: Length of your whiskers?— Laundry mark?— How old were you when you were born?— Weight at birth?— Baltimore American.

New Plan to Dupe Farmers.

A clever new confidence game is being worked in Lancaster County, Pa., says the Quarryville Sun, and the operators have found not a few victims. A well dressed man stops at a farm house and declares that he lost a valuable pin in the road, and all make a search. Nothing is found, but before leaving the stranger says he will return, and if the pin is found will give a reward of $150 for its return. A few days later a tramp turns up with a pin, presumably a diamond, which he says he found. The farmer usually takes the bait and gets the pin for $20 or $25, expecting to get $150 as his reward. After vainly waiting for the loser he learns from some jeweler that the pin is worthless.

BE A BOOSTER.

The World Losing Patience With the Chronic Grumblers.

"Boosting" is a slang word that fits admirably into American speech. There is no other that quite conveys the meaning.

The word "jolly" is another bit of colloquialism useful in its way. But there is a wide difference between a jolly and a booster. To jolly is to flatter. To boost is to put forth a sincere effort. The jollier uses his lips only. The booster acts from the heart. The latter is sincere. He believes, therefore he boosts. He has a good reason for boosting. That which he boosts deserves to be boosted.

Take the man who boosts his town. It is the center of the universe to him. His property is there. His home. His family. His future. Even his grave. He boosts his town because it is his town and because he believes it is worth boosting.

He is an admirable fellow, the booster. Sometimes he may appear to be a "knocker." The knocker is the opposite of the booster. He knocks because he is a booster. He wants better government. He knocks in order that he may boost. When things are put right he begins to boost again.

One of the beauties about boosting your community, for instance, is the reaction of it. When you boost your town you boost yourself. And boosting makes the booster happy.

A newspaper writer says boosting is the soul of work. That is a fine definition. Work, effort of any sort, without enthusiasm, is but a treadmill, a dreary round of commonplace. There is no soul in it. Work without soul in it is drudgery.

Be a booster. Put soul into effort.

And thus every boost in behalf of your town, or your church, or your cause—whatever it may be—will become a constant series of happy accomplishments. —St. Paul News.

Congress appropriated $60,000,000 more this session than last year. The total sums up to $880,183,301.

The Panama canal appropriation helped to swell the aggregate, so that not all the total sum can be charged against revenues.

Mrs. Tanner, wife of the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., was the victim of an automobile accident, June 29. The machine in which she was riding while going around a freight wagon ran off the edge of an embankment, turned over and threw the occupants out. Mrs. Tanner struck the ground with such force that she lost consciousness. She was being taken to a hospital at Helena, Montana, when she died. Mrs. Tanner's death will be a great loss to the G. A. R. as she was an energetic worker in the auxiliary societies related to that organization.

On Saturday night June 30, the barn and stable in the rear of the store occupied by A. L. Happle, & Bro., Blue Ridge Summit was completely destroyed by fire. Six horses, a number of hogs and new delivery wagons were lost. The store and dwelling house near the stable were saved by a bucket brigade. The loss, which is partly covered by insurance, will reach fully $1,500.

Mr. Huntington Wilson, who for nine years was secretary of the United States embassy at Tokyo, was sworn in at the State Department, July 2, as third assistant secretary of state. He succeeds Mr. H. H. D. Poire, who has been appointed United States minister to Norway.

Uses for Cracked Fruit Jars.

Take a cracked jar and dip the top in kerosene as far down as the crack extends. Then touch it to a lighted match. The heat will cause the part that has been dipped to drop off. The whole part left makes a very nice receptacle for jelly or pickles. —Miss ARBERTA TAYLOR.

An Accommodating Grass.

Recently I advised the use of Topsoil for dry high land and am reminded that Professor Shaw "claims that red-top does not do well on a poor high and dry hillside." That is true enough in a way. Few grasses can do their best under such conditions. But we have learned that redtop will stand more drought than timothy. It does so well on heavy wet land that many assumed this grass was fitted only for such land, but it does comparatively well on droughty land and should go into a mixture for seeding land that suffers badly from drought. —Aiva Agee in National Stockman.

Section 7. And be it enacted, That if the license be issued shall be to sell spirituous or fermented liquors in quantities not less than one pint, or to keep a hotel or ordinary, and the application shall be for nine, six or three months, then the license fee shall be three-fourths one-half or one-fourth of the amount severally required by law for the issuing of such license for one year, but if the license shall be to sell spirituous or fermented liquors in quantities less than one pint, except under the provisions of a license to keep an ordinary, then there shall be no reductions made because the same is for a portion of a year only, and before such license shall be issued the Clerk shall receive the amount now required or that may hereafter be required by law for the issuing of a license to sell spirituous or fermented liquors in Frederick County for one year.

Section 8. And be it enacted, That nothing in this Act shall be construed as authorizing the issuance of licenses to sell spirituous or fermented liquors in any portion or portions of Frederick County where the issuing of such license is now prohibited by law nor shall anything in this Act be construed to repeal any provisions of law providing terms upon which a license to keep an ordinary shall be issued.

Section 9. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from and after the first day of May, 1906.
