Don't Lose Your Enthusiasm. In The Chronicle Piano Contest.

There are only three months left in which to make your effort to get this prize. If you want it you had better get after it, for a good many are in the contest and only one can win it. Don't you think that you would do well to get particularly busy just about this time and clinch your hold on it? Others are working while you may be dreaming about it and some are working very hard. It would not be a bad idea to select THE CHRONICLE Piano for a Christmas Gift and then get your family and friends to push you forward in the contest. How about the rainy day when the horse and buggy are idle? It would be worth your while to get out through the country and canvass. Many a new subscription can be gotten this way at no cost to yourself, and every new subscription means 200 votes.

THE WAY TO GET IT IS TO WRITE TO EVERY FRIEND YOU KNOW, ASKING FOR A YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION, AND TO CANVASS YOUR OWN NEIGHBORHOOD FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

A LITTLE TIME, A LITTLE EFFORT AND THE PIANO IS YOURS. TAKE THE TIME, MAKE THE EFFORT AND WIN THE PRIZE, YOU CAN DO IT.

FOOT BALL AT THE COLLEGE.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S EXPECTS TO DEVELOP A WINNING TEAM.

Plenty Of New Material—Practice Every Day.

And a Revo, and a Rivo, And a Revo, Rivo, Rum. Dan get a rat trap Bigger than a cat trap, Bom! Bom! Cannon Ball, Zis! Bum! Bah! Mt. St. Mary's, Rah! Bah! Rah!

The outlook is very bright for a winning team at Mount St. Mary's this season. Although 6 of last year's team were lost by graduation, the loss is not greatly felt, as new and good material is abundant. The team will again be coached by Mr. William Delaney, who had so much success with last year's eleven. He will be ably assisted by Messrs. Thomas J. McEntee and John C. Dunphy of last year's fame. The squad of candidates is large and all are trying hard to land a position.

The members of last year's team who have returned are Hayes, Capt., Bigley, Taylor, Middleton, Quirk, Chaisty and McGraw.

Those of the new candidates who have shown up well are: McHugh, McCarry, O'Brien, Barrett, Egan, Lauringer and Carroll.

There is daily practice out doors. At 1 P. M., blackboard work; at 4 P. M., out door work, such as kicking, punting, running through signals and especially getting acquainted with forward passes.

The season opens tomorrow, Oct. 6, at the College, the opposing eleven being The Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

All lovers of foot-ball, and there are many in this community, should turn out strong, at this, and every other game, and root for Mount St. Mary's.

THE IDLE MAN.

Like an Idle Machine soon Deteriorates.

The Creator has put an enormous penalty upon idleness—the penalty of weakness, of deterioration, of destruction, of annihilation. "Use or lose" is nature's edict.

The idle man is like an idle machine. It destroys itself very quickly. A score of enemies are in readiness to attack anything as soon as it is at rest. Rust, decay, and all sorts of disintegrating processes start in a man just as soon as he becomes idle. Self-destruction begins in the mind the moment it ceases to work. There is no power in heaven or on earth that can save an idle brain from deterioration, no power can make a man strong and vigorous unless he obeys the natural laws of his life, written in his very constitution. Work, steady, persistent, with a purpose, with zeal, with enthusiasm, with a love for it, is the only thing that can save a man from the disgrace of being a nobody. Work is the inexorable law of growth. There is no getting away from it.

The time will come when an able-bodied man who has the nerve, the insulating presumption, to try to get all the good things out of the world and give nothing in return will be looked upon as a monstrosity, an enemy to civilization, and will be ostracized by all decent people.—O. S. Marden in Success.

NEW USE FOR RATTLESNAKES.

Put to Practical use by Wither of Worcester.

Last week William Wither, the well-known snake king of the South Mountains, went into the hills near Edgemont and caught, with his hands, 15 rattlesnakes and copperheads. These snakes were taken by Wither to his home, where they were liberated in his granary ostensibly to rid the place of rats and mice and incidentally of any other unwelcome visitors. Wither has a strange liking for snakes and is rarely bitten. Occasionally they do strike him but their poison has no effect on his system.

MOTTER--OVELMAN.

FATHER OF THE GROOM THE FOUNDER OF THE CHRONICLE.

Mr. Paul Motter Formerly of Emmitsburg, is United in Marriage to Miss Ovelman, of Chicago.

Mr. Paul Motter, son of the late Samuel Motter, Esq., and Miss Rosa Blanche, daughter of Mr. George R. Ovelman, of Chicago, were married in the First Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tennessee, on September 26th, by the Rev. Wm. M. Anderson. Mr. Motter was born in Emmitsburg, and lived here until 1892 when he left for Baltimore, making that city his home for several years. Afterward he moved to Chicago where he resided until a few months ago. While in Emmitsburg Mr. Motter was engaged in the printing business, having a position on the staff of this paper, which was founded by his father, Samuel Motter, Esq., in 1879. The bride was also born in this vicinity and lived here for a number of years.

The many friends of the bride and groom in this community extend their congratulations and wish the newly married couple much happiness and success.

The future home of Mr. and Mrs. Motter will be Birmingham, Alabama.

CUBAN TROUBLE.

From the Cuban Government's Side By Captain M. Carrillo Aldama, in the Independent.

The present trouble is practically confined to three provinces—Havana, Pinar del Rio and Santa Clara, Eastern Cuba being practically unaffected by the movement.

Much has been said concerning the causes leading up to the insurrection that has been distorted or absolutely untrue. The essential facts can be stated in a few words. The refusal of the defeated minority to abide by the will of the majority as expressed at the polls is the key-note to the whole situation.

General Jose Miguel Gomez, the former Governor of Santa Clara Province, was offered the Vice-Presidency under President Palma. This was refused by Gomez and his followers, as they believed that they would be able to elect him President. When they learned that Gomez did not have a sufficient following to insure his election they refused to vote. In other words, they sulked, and a short time later began to lay plans for an insurrection against the Palma Government. As early as last January the Government learned of these plots, and it is a striking refutation of the charge that President Palma is dictatorial or tyrannical that these instigators of rebellion were not arrested or otherwise molested.

When President Palma took over the reins of government from the Americans, in 1902, there was $600,000 in the Cuban treasury; today the same treasury holds a surplus of $18,000,000, while the customs receipts frequently reach as much as $1,500,000 monthly, or 50 per cent. more than was collected at any time during the American administration of island affairs.

During the past four years millions of dollars have been expended in public works, roads have been built, public buildings have been erected and Havana has been made one of the most beautiful capitals in the world. Not a village in Cuba has its public school; indeed, the law declares that a public school must be provided for every place where there are twenty-five school children of school age.

It has been charged that President Palma has summarily removed office-holders from their positions. He has—both Liberals and members of his own party alike. President Roosevelt has also removed grafting officials, nor has any word of criticism been heard on that score. The cases are analogous

JAVA AND MOCHA.

Are Very Misleading Terms As Applied to Coffee.

In the current number of Good Housekeeping there is an interesting article on Coffee showing that very little, if any, real Mocha or Java reaches the American market. It is said that Turkish and Egyptian traders buy the crop in Arabia while it is still on the tree and market only the best through Cairo or Alexandria, the culled coffee going to Mocha.

In view of the fact that the best Mocha never reaches that market at all, says the writer in the above mentioned magazine, and the notorious fact that for years only an infinitesimal proportion of the United States' imports have been from Arabia and Java, the official statement is doubtless true in declaring that "the terms Java and Mocha have now become mere characteristics of quality and blend," but it would be difficult to frame any description of the characteristics of quality and blend which these terms are supposed to represent. As a matter of fact, therefore, the words Java and Mocha on a brand of coffee may usually be accepted as equivalent to the words "finest" or "best," or similar adjectives.

Only on coffee which is positively known to be the pure product from Javanese plantations or from Arabian plantations do these terms have any significance. And there are not a few disinterested coffee lovers who prefer some of the standard brands of Brazilian coffees (which constitute the great bulk consumed in this country) to genuine Java or Mocha.

GOOD EXAMPLE.

The Highest Form of Influence.

Perhaps the encouragement of a good example is the highest form of influence, for no one can fail to respect the standards for which others are willing to fight, suffer and die; whereas from the cynic's false standpoint, which probes vice and sneers at virtue, only discontent can arise which discourages the more ambitious. More encouraging at times than all wise theories is the assurance of simple love, and trust and confidence, and equally discouraging is moral stinginess, which communicates itself to all, for our happiness and grief are pitifully dependent upon those with whom we come in contact. Those dear, sad faces, tattooed with wrinkles, are not always evidences of advancing years, but frequently the result of disappointment and lacerated hearts, and which wrinkles might possibly have been smoothed, and which hearts might have been eased and readily responded to love and sympathy which are but different forms of encouragement.

If encouragement depended solely upon the material things in life, then indeed would some be denied the responsibility and privilege of giving, but love, sympathy, tenderness and kindness are God's gifts to all and by sharing them one necessarily becomes enriched, rather than impoverished.—LONDON CARTER.

The efforts of Harry K. Thaw's counsel to get his case transferred have failed. When the case comes up 200 talesmen will be drafted from which the jury will be selected. Thaw was examined twice last week by alienists, retained by his counsel, to decide whether he is insane now. In case Thaw is proved insane he could not be tried, but would be confined as a criminal insane until cured and then his case, if not forgotten, might be brought to trial. Thaw still insists that he is and was sane and firmly believes that were he tried before any 12 men he would be adjudged innocent. He says, "I would sooner die than go to the asylum."

DYNAMITE.

Some Figures and Interesting Facts About This Untamed Power.

Dynamite is made of inert acids—nitric, sulphuric and picric. Combined properly these acids make an agent of power well nigh incomprehensible in force. In one blast alone it has been calculated that, for the brief period of activity, there has been exerted a power that, expressed in figures, amounts to sixteen and one-half million horse-power. This is, in other terms, a pressure of 300 tons to the square inch.

In the handling of this high explosive it is quaintly said, "In this business a man never makes more than one mistake." Yet with all the danger of making this one fatal and last mistake, large numbers of men are engaged in this greatly increasing industry. At one factory, the day that an explosion had killed three men and blown the building into dust, twenty men applied eager for their vacant places.

There are two kinds of explosives, high and low, the difference being in the length of time it takes to consume a given amount. The high explosives detonate practically instantaneously, the lower explosives are comparatively slow. A train of dynamite three miles and a half long would be decomposed into its gases in one second while it would take an equally long train of gun powder about half an hour.

In its perfect state dynamite will not respond to any shock except that of certain sensitive chemicals, of which fulminate of mercury or dynamite cap is commonly used.

This little cap, smaller than a 22-caliber cartridge, exerts an explosive pressure of 320 tons to the square inch. Dangerous as is this fulminate yet it is the safest of all the sensitive detonators. There are other chemicals that will do the same work but they are too sensitive. For instance diazo—benzene compounds will explode under the influence of a slight current of warm air; Nitrogen chloride will detonate from the footfall of a fly, and iodide of nitrogen will respond tumultuously to any one of three or four low notes of a violoncello, played at a distance of several yards.

The fumes given off by the explosion of dynamite are very poisonous, causing "nitro-headache," a blinding agony that seems to involve every nerve from the eyes upwards. These fumes sometimes are as deadly as the force of the explosion itself.

Our government employs an expert, Dr. C. E. Munroe, to experiment with these high explosives. In his experiments he has made a beautiful collection of explosive engraving. One of these is the exact fac simile of a young maple leaf on a bar of iron. This was made by laying the leaf on a bar of iron and covering it with gun-cotton. After the gun-cotton was exploded the leaf was reproduced, perfect in every detail even to the finest fiber, in the unyielding metal. Lace designs and the faces of coins are similarly produced. These are not imprints but reproductions, for strangely the fibers of the leaf, the filaments of the lace and the lettering of the coin, all stand out in relief just as they are in the original.

SOUSEVILLE SIFTINGS

BY McSWATT.

All of Souseville turned out for the Carnival held in Plutz Garland's meadow Wednesday afternoon. The town was gay with bunting (and red noses) and all the girls wore their Sunday best and had Saturday afternoon smiles on their faces. The men were rigged up like four masted schooners and, on the quiet, many of them had schooners for ballast.

Hub Dunk, the Grand Marshall, attired in green pants, sky blue coat and red shirt and wearing a stove pipe hat (vintage of '69) with a yellow band, looked like a Chinese Mandarin out for a lark. His white horse, trimmed with golden rod and spinach, was prancing around like a scared ostrich, shaking buds from Dunk's bouquet at every step.

The scene at the Town Pump, where the start was made, was beyond description. The Souseville Cornet Band committed its first offence against public law and order by tearing off and tattering and otherwise mangling some music that would make the composer commit suicide if he heard it. But everything went (especially at Mickey McMutts') and all that the crowd wanted was noise and gay uniforms—and they got all they were looking for. Never before did the Hose Company present such a front as on that day. Old Hi. Wopgodde, the captain, was rigged up so scandalous that he had to be introduced to himself before he would believe that the nectarine on the front seat was really he. Of course Diah Hunch, who was unattached, (except to his wooden leg) and who is always looking for somebody to "blow him off," had to break in on the procession.

He climbed up on the hose carriage and fell over the nozzle into the bass horn, from which he got blown right and proper.

The festivities at the meadow began at 1 o'clock sharp. And with cheers and trumpet blasts the visiting Knights came into the ring followed by all the local Knights (some clear and others a little cloudy) trimmed up in red, white and blue calico and each carrying a clothes prop wrapped in yellow tissue paper. Round and round they went, jabbing at the ring and cracking each other over the skull and poking holes in the air, while the band played, "There's Bloom Upon the Barley and Blue Whiskers on the Rye." That's the name that was on the music, but the men behind the horns didn't let that worry them a bit—or the notes either for that matter, and every note struck at ought to have been protested.

At last, just as dark came on and the "hurry up" wagon, driven by Swipe Muckey, was carrying the last load of scrappers to Judge Gadbubble's office, Sock Stuffle, Knight of the Red Tub, knocked over the pole from which the rings were suspended catching the entire bunch in his high hat. Sock thereupon crowned Tossie Fudge, Queen of Love and Beauty, the band burst into tears, the horses in the hose carriage ran off, the visiting Knights threw a fit and—Mickey McMutt did the "business of his life.

The foot ball squad appeared yesterday, for the first time, in their new uniforms. The stockings were furnished by the Wet Wool Factory and are striped laterally in pea-green and yellow. The trousers are made of skunk skin gathered at the waist to a curb link belt. The jacket is made of porpoise hide well oiled. The shoes were made by the Anchor

Horse Shoe Co., after a device of their own. The heels are pointed, being cut down so as to form a spike about 1/4 of inch in diameter. This does away with the cumbersome old time cleats. The toes are concave crescent shape, built to fit the ball at the same time giving the wearer a good "toe holt." Barrel Schlitz-buyer's foot did not fit any of the shoes sent from the factory so he rigged up, in his carpenter shop, a pair of soap boxes which will do for a while. He plays center and has contrived a neat little pair of rollers which can be lowered into position by pulling a cord. After the ball is in play, by pulling the string, the rollers are thrown into place and he can be moved to a new position. Doc Scrutt says there is nothing in the new rules against such a contrivance.

The first game will be played next Saturday afternoon. Our boys will then be able to put in practice their various theories. The Booby Hatch eleven with Pedals McPunt as captain will arrive on the 2:23 train and it has been arranged that the boys meet them and give their yell. Josh Squelch is the cheer leader and this is the yell:

Skidoo! Skidoo!
We're on to you.
Green briar, barb wire, lullaballoo!
Giant Powder! Blood chowder!
Ricky Chicket! Kill 'em Quick!
Bazoo! Razzo! Skidoo! Bing, Bang Boo!
Souseville! Souseville!
OH FUDGE!

STATE TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM.

Board of Managers Appointed By The Governor.

In accordance with an act passed at the last legislature creating a State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Governor Warfield recently announced the appointment of the following Board of Managers:

Ex-Governor John Walter Smith, Worcester Co., Dr. Guy Steele of Dochester Co., Dr. Chas. M. Ellis, of Cecil Co., Dr. Chas. H. Conley, Frederick Co., Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs and Dr. H. The Board of Managers met in Baltimore last Thursday and organized by electing ex-Governor Smith president, and Mr. Robert S. Hart acting secretary. The Board will proceed immediately to the selection of a site for the new institution which will be pushed on to completion as rapidly as possible. President Smith appointed the following committees to arrange the preliminary work of the Board of Managers: Committee on plan of operation: Drs. Henry Barton Jacobs, Guy Steele, H. Warren Buckler, Chas. H. Conley, and Gordon T. Atkinson. Committee on site: Dr. Guy Steele, ex-Governor Smith, Dr. H. Warren Buckler, Dr. Chas. H. Conley, and Dr. Chas. M. Ellis. Committee on choice of secretary and quarters for Board: Gen. Murray Vandiver, Dr. Chas. M. Ellis and ex-Governor Smith.

The Democratic Convention held in Buffalo, last week, which nominated Hearst for governor, was one of the most turbulent ever held in New York State. Cockran, who seconded Hearst's nomination, said that he preferred riot to rottenness. This saying will be used by the Republicans in their campaign for Hughes, as it is a direct admission that Hearst represents riot. "Honorable Democrats," says the New York Evening Post, "openly repudiate him (Hearst); thousands are saying quietly that they would no more think of voting for him than they would of forging a note."

Emmitsburg Chronicle.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY AT EMMITSBURG, MARYLAND.

STERLING GALT, EDITOR AND PROP.

TERMS: One Dollar a year in advance; six months, fifty cents. ADVERTISING RATES made known at office of publication.

Entered as Second-Class Matter at the Emmitsburg Postoffice.

FRIDAY, OCT. 5, 1906.

The good people of Emmitsburg have had the honor and pleasure of entertaining in their hospitable homes this week the delegates to the Baltimore Presbytery, which met in the Presbyterian Church, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and the residents in this community have had the good fortune to hear from the lips of more than one scholarly clergyman of this prominent body, very forceful and earnest addresses.

The keynote of most all of the popular talks was unmistakably personal service, that intimate touch from a Christian to his fellowman, without which religion can accomplish but little in this busy day. And apart from the new impetus given by these good men to those already possessing a proper conception of Christian living and a desire to benefit others not so blessed, a train of thought which leads to higher and nobler things and ultimately to Him who inspires them, must inevitably follow as a result of the influence exerted by this body of clergymen sojourning in our midst even for so short a time.

The reverend gentlemen who came as delegates to the Baltimore Presbytery must surely have taken home with them the kindest remembrances of Emmitsburg and its hospitable people, and the citizens of this town can only look back upon the event as one most welcome, instructive and pleasant.

At the next session of the Illinois State legislature there will be introduced a bill having for its object the better and more thorough safeguarding of the interests of bank depositors.

The bill in question provides that bank examiners shall be certified public accountants, retained permanently under civil service, thus doing away with fee system; that such examiners and their assistants must be experts on the value of listed and unlisted securities, mercantile, collateral or real estate and also experts on handwriting; that examinations are to include not only a thorough audit, but a valuation of all securities held as collateral; that loans to stockholders are to be itemized and to form a part of the report; that directors are not to be "dummies," but live men who are required to certify in writing as to the genuineness of all notes and other securities, and that the State auditor shall have the power to refuse charters to and to suspend suspicious banks.

That such a measure is absolutely necessary not only in Illinois, but in every State of the Union, recent bank crashes and defalcations fully prove.

Those who entrust their deposits, trust funds and securities to the keeping of National Banks and Trust companies should be thoroughly safeguarded by far reaching legislative enactments, and all such institutions should be required to furnish to their depositors, at stated times, itemized and sworn statements of their exact condition.

The bill to be presented in the legislature of Illinois is thorough and sound in its provisions and should receive the support which it justly merits. More than that, bills of a similar purport should be introduced in every legislature of every State.

Having lost time and cars, the good will of passengers and many other things, the Western Maryland has now taken to losing conductors. Last Saturday night the train due here at 7:35 was late again (only an hour and a half it is true) for the reason that the engineer left the conductor at a station and came twenty miles up the road without him.

Of course the time lost in going back for the "Captain," who was evidently looking for that lost schedule, made no difference to the passengers, especially on Saturday night. Why should it? Passengers ought to realize that it is a concession on the part of this road to allow them to ride at all.

Should the time spent by over inquisitive individuals in Bradstreeting into other people's affairs be used for some good purpose, gossip would happily be at a discount.

A pet prejudice that has been carefully nurtured is often exhibited with great pride and with innumerable arguments and explanations to justify the exhibit.

What makes the train so late to-night? Sobbed little Willie Mack. Don't cry, my boy, the same old thing. The train ran off the track. And will the trains never run on time? Asked Willie's brother, Ned. Nay, Nay, my sons, I fear me not Till after we are dead.

If pointing a moral by antitheses is the excuse for idleness and vagabondism, there are many unselfish philanthropists going around these days.

The self-opinionated are always delighted with their own company. To them it is a very large, sympathetic and appreciative audience.

"When ye sitte by my fyre to keep yezal warme, Tak heed that ye tongue doth ye naybor na harme."

This old Scotch couplet would be a splendid motto for some fire places.

An Interesting Programme Prepared.—
Music by a Chorus of 300 Voices.
The State Sunday School Convention will be held in Baltimore, October 11th and 12th. All the counties of the State are expected to send delegates to this meeting and it is thought it will be the largest local gathering of this kind ever held in this State. Unusual interest has already been manifested by those connected with this branch of religious education, and it is expected that this interest will become more and more practical and less theoretical.
There will be three sessions Thursday—morning, afternoon and evening—in both St. Mark's English Lutheran and Seventh Baptist Churches and two sessions in each church, Friday—morning and afternoon. Noted Sunday School specialists will speak at all these sessions.
Friday evening there will be a Jubilee Mass Meeting at the Lyric Music Hall, at which the Christian Endeavor Chorus of 300 voices, conducted by Mr. Richard A. Harris, will sing; Governor Warfield will present a loving cup to the Champion Baseball Club of the Baltimore City Sunday School League, and Mr. Marion Lawrence will make an address.
For information regarding board during the Convention, or any matter concerning it, address General Secretary George H. Nock, 316 N. Charles St., Baltimore.

The annual Love Feast and Communion services of the Moravian Church, in this place, will be held on Sunday next at 10 o'clock. These services will mark the 148th anniversary of the Church's organization.

Mr. Howard E. Colliflower was elected delegate to the Second District Synod of the Moravian Church which convenes at Palmyra, N. J., Oct. 16. Mr. William Morrison was elected alternate. Mr. Colliflower and the Rev. J. F. Kaiser, pastor of the Church, will leave here for Palmyra on Oct. 15.

Mrs. Kaiser, wife of Rev. Kaiser, is now visiting her former home, Egg Harbor City, N. J., near Palmyra, the place of the synodical meeting.

The summer visitors to Graceham and those from this place who have been spending their vacation elsewhere have nearly all returned to their various vocations.

The prevailing favorable weather has given the farmers of this vicinity an opportunity to seed their wheat and the grain, already planted, has started well, promising a good harvest next season. Most of the corn has been cut and husked. The local market price for this new corn is two dollars a barrel. The yield, from all accounts, will be very good.

The marriage took place at Harrisburg, Pa., on March 7, last. The secret of the marriage had been well kept by the young couple and much surprise was felt by their many friends when the news was made public.

MARY ELIZABETH HOCKENSMITH

Death Attributed To An Accident—Investigation Being Made.

Miss Mary E. Hockensmith, formerly of this place and now residing at Mrs. Joseph Hockensmith's, died in a hospital at McKeesport, Pa., on Sept. 27. It is supposed that the immediate cause of Miss Hockensmith's death, was the injury she received a short time ago in a loader accident. Her brother is now in Pittsburgh investigating the accident and as yet no word has been received from him either confirming or denying the rumor.

The deceased lady was in business in Western Pennsylvania and was 33 years, 2 months and 21 days old.

Her remains were brought to her home, near Bridgeport, on Saturday morning. The funeral was held at her home, Rev. A. M. Gluck, her mother's pastor, officiating. The interment was in Mountain View Cemetery.

What is going on at this Far Famed Institution.

Strangers being shown through the Academy at this, the opening session of the scholastic year, naturally experience a pleasure, perhaps not altogether unshared with surprise, on seeing the young ladies already so deep in their work.

After the respite and pastime of the Summer vacation the old pupils returned promptly to begin early, bringing with them many new ones. The neat uniform of navy blue, quite a modern feature, is in excellent taste. These young ladies make a graceful appearance in their new costume, as they move about with the charming simplicity and ease that has always characterized the graduates of this Academy, qualities by which they may readily be recognized long after their names are registered amongst the Alumnae, or even after they have won the degrees which their Alma Mater is now empowered to confer.

A photograph in one of the corridors presents a most attractive picture—the class of '05, after the last Commencement, the central figure of the group, in cap and gown, showing that Mrs. Katherine Nesla Jenley, of Brookline, Massachusetts, is everywhere entitled to the degree of Master of Arts.

Methods of Study and Discipline.

In passing through the buildings, with their exquisite cleanliness and faultless, artistic arrangements in the respective departments, one is forcibly reminded that "Order is Heaven's first law." The methods employed, both for study and discipline, are such as to induce there being a judicious distribution of exercise and recreation, with earnest mental application, while no branch has been overlooked. That education in its truest sense is thoroughly understood in this institution is so clearly in evidence that the parents of some of the pupils have not hesitated to declare that it is a monument to Christianity. No wonder, therefore, that the Rt. Rev. Bishop Morris, of Little Rock, visiting St. Joseph's, a brook or two, thought the occasion opportune, after having granted a holiday, to congratulate these favored students upon the countless facilities they enjoy, recalling to them the responsibility that is implied, that they reap the harvest with honor in their daily duties, in order to secure the exceptional advantages now within their reach. His Lordship smiled at the gravity with which his youthful audience received the valued counsels, he was leaving as an earnest of the month's visit; counsels suggested by his interest in the life-work that awaits these future mothers of our beloved country. As he turned to leave, the Bishop requested Father Sullivan to see that the generous supply of candy ordered to give zest to the students' holiday, be forthcoming in due season.

The Forty Hours Devotion.

The devotion known as the "Forty Hours," which had opened on Sunday last, closed on Tuesday with the usual procession and other beautiful and impressive ceremonies attending this privilege. This explained the almost fairy like decorations of the Commencement Hall and the front corridors, with their colored lamps, tapers, fragrant flowers, and superb sword-fens, and palms. This devotion usually ushers in the welcome month of the Guardian Angels, October, which is also the month of the Rosary. To the inmates of the Academy, despite autumnal tints and blasts that bring down the sore and falling leaf, the poet's line: "The melancholy days have come the saddest of the year," are a source of joy and comfort since Leo XIII ordained that every child of the Church shall daily weave its garland of roses for the Queen of Heaven.

Among recent visitors to St. Joseph's was Miss Post, of Baltimore, Mother Seton's grand-niece.

The 286th Stated Meeting Largely Attended By Clergymen Of The State.

CITIZENS OF THIS TOWN HOSPITALLY ENTERTAIN VISITORS.

Pronounced The Pleasant Meeting Ever Held By Baltimore Presbytery.—Large Audiences Attended The Public Assemblies.

The 286th stated meeting of the Presbytery of Baltimore was held in the Presbyterian Church of this place. The meetings began on Monday evening at 8:30 and closed on Wednesday afternoon, a special prayer meeting being held on Wednesday evening.

The inclement weather and the delay in the arrival of the evening train, on Monday, did not in the least detract from the interest all felt in the exercises about to take place, and the visiting ministers were greeted by a large and representative audience at the first public meeting on Monday evening.

The sermon, on this occasion, by the Rev. S. S. Greenwell, of Belair, the retiring Moderator, was able, scholarly and at times eloquent. He took for his text part of the 28th verse of the 8th chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

The whole subject was handled with fine spiritual insight that after all the shadows, the sorrows, and the perplexities of life, there comes peace and rest to the believing soul, and the hand of God is clearly recognized in the control and direction of the destinies of men.

After the sermon the Presbytery immediately resolved itself into a business meeting. The Rev. David Neely, of Asquith street Church, Baltimore, was elected Moderator and, after a short speech of acceptance, took the chair. Rev. Neely with grace and tact conducted the business of the meeting.

After the report of the Committee of Arrangements, Rev. Craig as chairman, Rev. Dr. Benham introduced a motion that Charles E. Chamberlain, of the Presbytery as a student for the ministry. After a general discussion and after Mr. Lefond, a Hebrew and formerly a free thinker, had explained his position and conversion and had been examined, he was provisionally taken under the care of the Presbytery.

Mr. Lefond, after his conversion was deserted by his Hebrew friends and relatives and deprived of the financial help due him from various Jewish benevolent orders. He left Emmitsburg for Baltimore on Tuesday morning. He will attend the Presbyterian Seminary at Newark, N. J.

After a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Kerr, of Baltimore, the meeting was adjourned to convene again on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Inspiring Sermons.

The popular meeting held on Tuesday night at 7:30 will long be remembered by all those who listened to the eloquent, intellectual and spiritual sermons then delivered. The Church was crowded, not only by members of the Presbytery, but by an audience embracing all the Protestant Churches in Emmitsburg.

After an earnest prayer, in which the Divine blessing and aid was invoked for Rev. Dr. Simonton, former pastor of the local Church, and oldest member of the Baltimore Presbytery, who is critically ill at his home in Washington, Pa., the first speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. Kerr, was introduced.

In a most impressive and eloquent manner Dr. Kerr spoke on "Personal Work," and personal contact with men as the means ordained of God and practiced by Christ in the salvation of men. He drew a beautiful picture of the scenes of the most of the most of the most in flesh, the Lake of Galilee or Gennesaret where the multitudes of the afflicted were brought to him to be healed.

The speaker said it was a "museum of misery" that presented itself to the Divine healer. He said that wherever Dr. Kerr said, would at once, were the power given them as it was to Christ, say "be healed," but not so with Jesus. He laid his hands on them, every one of them, for the same reason that the mother, when her child has fallen, picks it up in her arms and kisses it. He loved them so. Each one who felt the healing touch and heard the comforting words, received an inspiration that can come alone from such personal work.

The speaker said, "You can't save a soul, but you can bring a soul to Christ, by a personal touch of sympathy, love and invitation."

Directing his remarks to the members of the Presbytery, he said that he fully urged them to do more personal and pastoral work, warning them that "The hand that is laid on people must be a clean hand, and you must have a clean heart, and your work must be professed and followed by the word. In conclusion he said that personal work was also incumbent on every man and woman in any wise connected with the church. "It is the sweetest thing outside of heaven, and there may be nothing sweeter to you than to be a man tell you that you are the cause of his conversion. That your hands bore the touch of Christ to him. That through you Christ found him."

Rev. Dr. Benham, the next speaker, took as his subject the great Brotherhood movement which, of late, has been the means of stirring men to a higher sense of duty and helpfulness in the Church of Christ.

Dr. Benham commented on the preparation of women for the congregations of all Christian Churches. He said that various reasons are given for this condition. One is that women are more devout than men. They are more easily moved by emotions of love and fear. More apt of unishanism and penalty. The men being bolder by nature do not have the same fear. Another reason held up by some is that women have more leisure than men; more time to attend to their religious duties. None of these, the speaker said, is the solution of the question.

Again, it is said, that more work is done for women than for men. Ministers, in their pastoral calls, frequently find the men away and their visits are made to the women; and that, when he finds it his duty to urge the women to influence their husbands and children to their churchly duties.

The minister uses the women as his agents. He finds it easier to do so. The speaker then said that, when he wished to fish for trout he went to a trout stream; if he wanted to catch black bass he went where these fish were to be found and drawing his conclusion from these self-evident facts he said, "If I want men, I go after them."

In conclusion he remarked that artists, in depicting a saint, invariably painted a picture of a monk, in solitude, reading his Bible with a human skull in his hand. A picture of seclusion and meditation with the image of death constantly before the eye. "I would paint the saint in business garb, the perspiration standing on his brow, reaching down his hand to help a brother and constantly looking for men to help and aid." Emphasizing the remarks of the former speaker he said, "Our inspiration comes from Christ, bone of our bone, flesh of our flesh, very man of very man, commanding the admiration of all that is manly and admirable. Your brother calls for your invitation, your brother needs your help, for this reason we are organizing this work."

Rev. John T. Stone, the next and last speaker, took up the general thought of the two former speakers and maintained that in order to do efficient work we must each have our Arabia, some quiet corner where we can commune much with God, so that we may be strengthened for all work that may be before us. He used as his text the 17th verse of the first chapter of the Epistle to the Galatians: "Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again into Damascus.

"Men who are winning men to Christ," said the speaker, "are not the influential, but those who are dependant on God."

Closing his remarks Rev. Stone insisted that to do the work of the Church man must forget himself, to appoint and the secret place of God, and hold communion with His spirit. To do this work conscientiously, the man must begin with himself. Find the Arabia and alone with God solve the problems and then go forth to the battle field of the grace of God.

After the address the Rev. James Cook was taken under the care of the Presbytery.

Rev. Dr. Campbell paid a graceful tribute to Dr. William Simonton, at one time pastor of the Emmitsburg Presbyterian Church. Dr. Campbell's motion, that a message of remembrance and kind regards be sent to Dr. Simonton was unanimously adopted by a standing vote.

On Thursday evening Mr. Noel, was examined in Theology and the Sacraments and showed that he had not only been finely trained, but that his faith in Christ was firm. Arrangements were made for his ordination.

The Rev. Dr. Pringle, chairman of the Historical Society, stated that the proceedings in connection with the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Organization of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America would soon be published and that an opportunity would be given to Presbyterians everywhere to know more fully the history of their Church, and its great force for righteousness throughout the land.

In the evening Rev. Dr. J. Wynne Jones conducted the prayer meeting taking as the basis of his remarks the 2nd chapter of Acts, and especially the outpouring of the Holy Spirit at Jerusalem. Dr. Jones then traced the great spiritual awakenings and revivals under Moody and Sankey at home and abroad.

He also dwelt at length on the spiritual power felt in Wales, and what a power for good, under the Spirit of God, Evan Roberts had been, not only to his own countrymen, but to men of all lands. The benediction by the former beloved pastor of the Church, Rev. Dr. Riddle, brought this great meeting to a close.

By common consent this was one of the finest meetings in the memory of the Baltimore Presbytery. The people of the town rose to the occasion with fine spirit, and entertained their guests royally.

The singing was excellent, and the popular meetings were uplifting. The preaching left the town happy, and with but one thought in mind, that they would soon be able once again to swing open the hospitable gates of Emmitsburg.

FOOT BALL NEWS.

Condensed News From Different Institutions during the Football Season.

Last week the new rules were tried out with the larger institutions and opinion varies as to the new movement. It is evident that the ten-yard gain required by the new rules for offense and defense, have made mass plays and heavy line bucking unprofitable. In the manner of passing the ball the change has been radical. The ball is now lofted instead of being passed low and straight, and formerly this change being due to the forward pass rule, and the ball is sent high to avoid opponents. Coach Warner, of Cornell, insists on the ball being handled with two hands as in basketball. He has, among his assistants, "variety" basketball captain, Schmedt, the coaches advocate playing a heavy man on one end. This is done so that he may head any tandem formations without dropping back the required 5 yards. Great stress is being laid on the work of faking the ball.

In the Cornell-Hobart game, last Saturday, although the score was 0-0, yet the game, as played by Cornell, was so spectacular and complicated that the Hobart team was fairly bewildered. Hobart played a fine style game.

Last Saturday's scores were: Pennsylvania... 32 Lehigh..... 6 West Point..... 12 Tufts..... 0 Harvard..... 5 Williams..... 0 Princeton..... 25 Villanova..... 0 Fayette..... 21 Young..... 0 Dickson..... 21 Lehigh..... 0 Cornell..... 0 Colgate..... 0 Swarthmore..... 65 U. The following games are scheduled for Saturday: Mt. St. Mary's against Baltimore Polytechnic, at Emmitsburg. Yale against Syracuse, at New Haven. Princeton against Washington and Jefferson at Princeton. Harvard against Maine, at Cambridge. Pennsylvania against North Carolina, at Philadelphia. Cornell against Oberlin, at Ithaca. West Point against Trinity, at West Point.

Annapolis against Dickinson, at Annapolis.

A. H. Douglas, whose great work with the Navy team was largely responsible for the Midshipmen's victory over Princeton last year, is out of the game. In the Princeton game he broke his leg and a wound, that developed after the fracture was reduced, has never healed. Frederick C. Sherman, who was considered a likely candidate for the team, is also passed. He tore the ligaments of his leg in the consequence of which he has been granted two months' sick leave.

The quarter-back on the Franklin and Marshall team fractured his breast bone and broke his right shoulder blade.

The quarter-back on the University of Pennsylvania in Wednesday's game. The following scores were made on Wednesday: U. Pa..... 6 Gettysburg..... 6 U. Va..... 10 Richmond..... 0 Wake Forest..... 0 Yale..... 21 Wesleyan..... 0 Princeton..... 22 Stevens..... 0 Indians..... 48 Susquehanna..... 0

The most important duty devolving on this government, having charge of affairs in Cuba, will be the blotting out of yellow fever. An appointment has already been made by Taft with Dr. von Zedlitz, chief of the Marine Hospital Service in Havana, to go over the yellow fever situation and outlook.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[In this column "UNCLE BILL" will answer all questions of a proper character submitted to THE CHRONICLE. Readers of this paper should not hesitate to patronize this column frequently. "UNCLE BILL" draws a big salary and loves to work.]

Uncle Bill: How long has the Chinese Empire been in existence? HISTORIAN. The Chinese Empire was founded by Tin Pi Pan in—000 B. T.

Uncle Bill: Who invented sleep. WEARY WILLIE. Sleep was invented by an Irishman named Murphy, the Italian for which is Morphi, sometimes corrupted into Morphesus.

Uncle Bill: What is the name of the highest mountain in the world and where is it situated. GEOLOG. The highest mountain in the world is very seldom spoken of and but few people outside of explorers and scientists know of its existence. The exact location of it is 390,000 miles due North of Bogobangazi on the South West coast of Koko Dolo, adjoining the Sliplimido range of the Noversawski group. This mountain is 67,841 feet high and its name is Tectoahkittilindiverinero. Can you wonder that it is very seldom spoken of?

Uncle Bill: What is the greatest piece of music ever written and who wrote it? MUSICIAN. A rhapsody in eight flats (the last flat for the Phyllophone) by Rhinostriehoven, for a long time, even up to the 18th century was considered the piece de resistance for a strained orchestra. In 1738 Beethoven, in a fit of mad despair, wrote the score of "Under the Old Apple Tree" in the key of e flat major, for 17 bass drums, 12 silos and a bagpipe. Ten years later Schubert arranged it for 3 hands and 6 feet and it was played at Oskosh at the Weinavurst Schiltarbeit. Since then nothing has been composed or performed that can compare with this for lurid musical effect. I have heard mentioned, in well informed circles, as a lyric of supreme excellence my own "Joked from the Joint," but I refrain from mentioning it.

Uncle Bill: What are the winter styles (1) for women, (2) for men? ANXIOUS. The colors for women are pronounced for this season, mule-tooth yellow and bumble bee breath being most used. Shoes are still worn on the feet. Greenback gowns trimmed with 10 dollar gold pieces come high and are very much in demand—especially around the first of the month. Patent leather boleros trimmed with trace chains are quite the rage. Bell shaped skirts with clapper effects will be seen a great deal on the boulevards. Bonnets will be high this winter, especially on tall women.

There are few decided changes in the attire for men. Rope waistcoats with knot embroidery will be worn with evening dress. Horse collars and hand cuffs will be much in vogue and hats will be worn on the head as usual. I might mention that it is no longer considered good form to wear rubber boots at card parties.

Uncle Bill: Can five people keep a secret? SUB. Sub: Yes—If four of them are dead.

that afternoon supper was ready, and they were nearly worn out.

"Here he is!" one whispered suddenly from a window. Then, with a fast poke at her hair, Miss Letitia admitted the teacher. They spoke their greeting in a half whisper and stood near, waiting timidly for his coat and cap.

"No, thank you," said he, taking them to a nail. "I can do my own hanging, as the man said when he committed suicide."

Miss S'mantha looked suspicious and walked to the other side of the stove, impressed by the silence of the room, much exaggerated by the ticking of the clock. Sidney Trove sat a moment looking around him. Daylight had begun to grow dim. The table, with its cover of white linen, was a thing to give one joy. A ruby tower of jelly, a snowy summit of frosted cake, a red pond of preserved berries, a mound of chicken pie and a corduroy marsh of mince, steaming volcanoes of new biscuit and a great heap of apple fritters lay in a setting of blue china. They stood a moment by the stove—the two sisters—both trembling in this unusual publicity. Miss Letitia had her hand upon the teapot.

"Our tea is ready," said she presently, advancing to the table. She spoke in a low, gentle tone.

"This is grand!" said he, sitting down with them. "I tell you we'll have fun before I leave here."

"They looked up at him and then at each other, Letitia laughing silently, S'mantha suspicious. For many years fun had been a thing far from their thought.

"Play checkers?" he inquired.

"Afraid we couldn't," said Miss Letitia, answering for both.

"Old Sledge?"

She shook her head, smiling.

"I don't wish to lead you into recklessness," the teacher remarked, "but I'm sure you wouldn't mind being happy."

Miss S'mantha had a startled look.

"It's in a proper way," he added.

"Let's be joyful. Perhaps we could play 'I spy.'"

"Y!" they both exclaimed, laughing silently.

"Never ate chicken pie like that," he added in all sincerity. "If I were a poet I'd imitate an ode 'written after eating some of the excellent chicken pie of the Misses Tower.' I'm going to have some like it on my farm."

In reaching to help himself he touched the teapot, withdrawing his hand quickly.

"Burn ye?" said Miss S'mantha.

"Yes, but I like it," said he, a bit embarrassed. "I often go and put my hand on a hot teapot if I'm having too much fun."

They looked up at him, puzzled.

"Ever slide down hill?" he inquired, looking from one to the other after a bit of silence.

"Oh, not since we were little," said Miss Letitia, holding her biscuit daintily after taking a bite none too big for a bird to manage.

"Good fun," said he. "Whisk you back to childhood in a jiffy. Folks ought to slide down hill more'n they do. It isn't a good idea to be always climbing."

"I'm afraid we couldn't stan' it," said Miss S'mantha tentatively. Under all her man fear and suspicion lay a furtive recklessness.

"Y, no!" the other whispered, laughing silently.

The pervasive silence of that house came flooding in between sentences. For a moment Trove could hear only the gurgle of pouring tea and the faint rattle of china softly handled. When he felt as if the silence were drowning him he began again:

"Life is nothing but a school. I'm a teacher, and I deal in rules. If you want to kill misery load your gun with pleasure."

"Do you know of anything for indigestion?" said Miss S'mantha, charging her sickly voice with a firmness calculated to discourage any undue familiarity.

"Just the thing—a sure cure!" said he emphatically.

"Come high?" she inquired.

"No; it's cheap and plenty."

"Where do you send?"

"Oh," said he, "you will have to go after it!"

"What is it called?"

"Fun," said the teacher quickly, "and the place to find it is out of doors. It grows everywhere on my farm. I'd rather have a pair of skates than all the medicine this side of China."

She set down her teacup and looked up at him. She was beginning to think him a fairly safe and well behaved man, although she would have been more comfortable if he had been shut in a cage.

"If I had a pair of skates," said she faintly, with a look of inquiry at her sister, "I dunno but I'd try 'em."

Miss Letitia began to laugh silently.

"I'd begin with overshoes," said the teacher. "A pair of overshoes and a walk on the crust every morning before breakfast; increase the dose gradually."

The two old maids were now more at ease with their guest. His kindly manner and plentiful good spirits had begun to warm and cheer them. Miss S'mantha even cherished a secret resolve to slide if the chance came.

After tea Sidney Trove, against her protest, began to help with the dishes. Miss S'mantha prudently managed to keep the stove between him and her. A fire and candles were burning in the parlor. He asked permission, however, to stay where he could talk with them. Tunk Hously, the man of all work, came in for his supper. He was an odd character. Some, with a finger on their foreheads, confided the opinion that he was "a little off." All agreed he was no fool, in a tone that left it open to argument. He had a small figure and a big squint. His perpetual squint and bristly, short beard were a great injustice to him. They gave him a look se-rever than he deserved. A limp and leaning shoulder complete the inventory of external traits. Having eaten, he set a candle in the old barn lantern. "Waal, mister," said he when all was ready, "come out an' look at my hoss."

The teacher went with him out under a sky bright with stars to the chill and gloomy stable.

"Look at me," said Tunk, holding up the lantern as he turned about. "Gosh all fishhooks, I'm a wreck!"

"What's the matter?" Sidney Trove inquired.

"All sunk in—right here," Tunk answered impressively, his hand to his chest.

"How did it happen?"

"Kicked by a hoss; that's how it happened," was the significant answer.

"Lord! I'm all shucked over to one side. Can't ye see it?"

"A list to sta'b'rd; that's what they call it, I believe," said the teacher.

"See how I limp," Tunk went on, striding to show his pace. "Ain't it awful?"

"How did that happen?"

"Sprung my ex," he answered, turning quickly, with a significant look; "thrown from a sulky in a hoss race an' sprung my ex. Lord! Can't ye see it?"

The teacher nodded, not knowing quite how to take him.

"Had my knee unso't, too," he went on, lifting his knee as he turned the light upon it. "Jes' put yer finger there," said he, indicating a slight protuberance. "Lord, it's big as a bog spavin!"

He had planned to provoke a query, and it came.

"How did you get it?"

"Kicked ag'in," said Tunk sadly. "Heavens, I've had my share o' bangin'! Can't conquer a skittish hoss without sufferin' some—not allwuss. Now, here's a hoss," he added as they walked to a stall. "He ain't much 't' look at, but—"

He paused a moment as he neared the horse—a white and ancient palfrey. He stood thoughtfully on "cocked ankles," every leg in a bandage, tail and mane braided.

"Get up, Prince," Tunk shouted as he gave him a slap. Prince moved aside, betraying evidence of age and infirmity.

"That's Tunk repeated, with emphasis.

"Ug'ly?" the teacher queried.

"Ug'ly," said Tunk, as if the word were all too feeble for the fact in hand. "That's what he is! Look out! Don't get too high him! He ain't no conscience, that hoss ain't."

"Is he fast?"

"Gressed lightnin'!" said Tunk, shaking his head. "Won twenty-seven races."

"You're a good deal of a horseman, I take it," said the teacher.

"Waal, some," said he, expectorating thoughtfully, "but I don't have no chance here. What d'ye 'spect of a man livin' with them o' mads?"

He seemed to have more contempt than his words would carry.

"Every night they lock me upstairs," he continued, with a look of injury. "They ain't fit fer nobody 't live with Ain't got no hoss but that dunned of plug."

He had forgotten his enthusiasm of the preceding moment. His intellect was a museum of freaks. Therein Vanity was the prodigious fat man. Memory the dwarf and Veracity the living skeleton. When Vanity rose to show himself the others left the stage.

Tunk's face had become suddenly thoughtful and morose. In truth, he has an ardent and amusing humbug. It has been said that children are all given to lying in some degree, but seeing the folly of it in good time, if, indeed, they are not convinced of their wickedness, train tongue and feeling into the way of truth. The respect for truth that is the beginning of wisdom had not come to Tunk. He continued to lie with the cheerful inconsistency of a child. The hero of his youth had been a certain driver of trotting horses who had a limp and a leaning shoulder.

In Tunk the limp and the leaning shoulder were an attainment that had come of no sudden wrench. Such is the power of example, he admired, then imitated and at last acquired them. One cannot help thinking what graces of character and person a like persistence would have brought to him. But Tunk had equipped himself with horsey heroism, adorning it to his own fancy. He had never been kicked, he had never driven a race or been hurled from a sulky at full speed. Prince, that ancient palfrey, was the
