HIS SIDE OF IT.

MR. MOTTER MAKES A PLAIN STATEMENT.

Challenges Mr. Norwood To Produce Evidence That Proxies were Obtained In Underhanded Manner In The Recent Bank Election.

Since January the 8th., on which date the Rev. Isaac M. Motter was elected president of the First National Bank of Frederick and from which position he resigned a few days later, various articles have appeared in the newspapers tending, as Mr. Motter thought, to cast reflection on his methods in securing the proxies necessary to elect him.

Throughout the controversy Mr. Motter maintained silence, signifying everything that was said about him but after due reflection, and with a feeling that he owed it to his friends, he explained his position in the following terms:

"As to proxies, I am prepared to stand side by side with the gentleman before the court and have him under oath produce the evidence that I wilfully deceived or betrayed the confidence of a single stockholder. I did secure proxies, and if that is a crime then I am a deceiver and a criminal along with a large number of men who are doing the same thing almost daily, and who knows but what the gentleman himself has been guilty of the practice? One thing is certain, I did not force or press anyone into giving me a proxy. I happen to be the largest stockholder in the bank, and it is fair to presume that I would not act in any way to jeopardize my interests or those of the stockholders."

"Mr. Norwood has said on more than one occasion that he was willing to step aside, and feeling persuaded that the business of the bank could be enlarged, this was the purpose and its accomplishment was practically assured. I fully appreciate the trying times the bank has had and the work accomplished by Mr. Norwood and his associates, but I was persuaded that the time had come when a change to twentieth-century methods was the greatest need of the bank today, and that if a fair trial had been given, we believe the facts would have clearly demonstrated that the supposition had grown into reality and that the stockholders would have found that the change was to their best interests."

"As to the organization of the new board and the subsequent undoing of what had been done: After the election the board was sworn in and then organized by unanimously electing me president. This action was taken voluntarily and freely. After the election the members of the board, of their own volition, promised me their united and cordial support and pledged themselves to work together for the best interests of the bank. After we separated, trouble commenced to brew. Between gossips, the old maid-men and ex-president, much was said, and some things, I have reason to believe, to my detriment."

"Secret meetings were held between seven members of the board and the ex-president and at a conference it was made clear to me that it was their desire that I resign as president, but act as director. I declined to do either, but said I would consider the proposition if two conditions were met. First Mr. Norwood to retract, over his own signature, the ugly insinuations published as to my character and reflections as to my honesty and integrity. The second was to sell to them all my holdings of stock and step aside, or to purchase from them all of their holdings."

"Neither was accepted, but the policy mapped out became plain when one director said he would resign and this would open the way for the board to elect Mr. Norwood a director and subsequently president, but that I should remain a director. To have agreed to this plan would have defeated every purpose for the betterment of the bank I had in mind. To avoid unpleasantness and friction I concluded it best to resign. This I have done, and I hope the old family will be happy and contented. What motive other than the highest could I have had? Surely, not for the princely salary, for this I would have been glad to turn over to the ex-president, if it were the loss of that which troubled him. My record as a gentleman in social and business circles is before the community, and I am proud to stand upon it. I shall live in the future as in the past—dealing justly, loving mercy and keeping a conscience void of offense toward God and man."

The heavy fall of snow last week brought out all the sleighs in town. Friday night the streets were lined with cutters and there was much speeding indulged in from one end of town to the other.

The lecture which was to have been delivered by Rev. Mr. Boyle, of Hagerstown, in the Presbyterian Church, has been postponed to a later date to be announced hereafter.

TWO BANKS COMBINE.

People's Bank of Middletown Secures Control of the Valley Savings Bank.

The newly incorporated People's Savings Bank, of Middletown, this county, has secured control of the Valley Savings Bank, of the same place, and instead of building up a rival institution has decided to combine interests, retaining the name of the older institution. The weekly deposits of the bank will be increased from $50,000 to $75,000.

The Middletown Register, in its article on the new organization says: "The Valley Savings Bank has always been a strong and well managed financial institution, and with this addition to its weekly deposits and surplus fund, it will be among the strongest institutions of our county and one which will insure its depositors the utmost safety. The new building to be erected for the People's Bank will be used for the Valley Savings Bank. This building will be equipped with the latest appliances and will be ready for occupancy in the near future. The old building and furnishings will be sold."

Rev. R. J. Campbell, the English divine whose 'New Theology' is being promulgated from the pulpit of the City Temple, London, the same church associated with the fame of Dr. Parker, is being widely denounced. Some style his doctrine as a revival of the Pelagian heresy, others declare it a most insidious form of atheism.

Hagerstown newspapers have been notified by Postmaster Startzman that if they continue to print news items in reference to articles to be chanced off at the coming fair of the First Hose Company, of that place, or of any other raffles past, present or future, he will under the anti-lottery statutes, be forced to exclude the papers containing such notices from the United States mail.

The services rendered and the good intentions of this Government toward the sufferers at Kingston were disparaged and underestimated by Governor Swettenham, of Jamaica, in consequence of which the American vessels steamed away from the island. Great Britain promptly disavowed any responsibility for the conduct of the Governor, and the people of Jamaica are loud in their cry for the recall of Swettenham. The United States will let the matter drop.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY OBSERVES FEAST

REV. FATHER MALOY AND REV. DR. FLYNN PREACH ELOQUENT AND FORCEFUL SERMONS TO THE ORGANIZATION.

Impressive Services At St. Joseph's Catholic Church Attended By Members Of This Large Society.—Ninety-Three Of Them Take Holy Communion Sunday Morning And Nine New Members Join In The Evening.

Last week The Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church made a three days retreat in preparation for the feast of the Holy Name. Services consisting of the Rosary, a sermon and Benediction were held on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings at 7.30. Notwithstanding the inclement weather the attendance at all the services was quite large.

The sermons were preached by Rev. Chas. B. Maloy who spoke on the following subjects, Wednesday, Sin, its Nature, Effects and Consequences; Thursday, The Sins That The Soldier of Christ Must Combat; Friday, Temptation. In the course of the sermons the exact nature of sin, its effects on the individual and on society and its consequence, the eternal loss of man's destiny, happiness with God, were developed. The three vices which each member of the Holy Name Society pledges himself to fight against viz: Cursing, Drunkenness and Impurity, formed the theme of the second discourse. On the third evening Father Maloy dwelt on the subject of temptation, explaining the fact that temptation is not in itself a sin but if properly used becomes a means of bringing out the Christ-image in the soul.

Sunday morning at 7 o'clock a Solemn Mass was celebrated at which the members of the society approached Holy Communion in a body. The officers of the Mass were: Celebrant, Father Maloy; Deacon, Father Hayden; Sub-deacon, Mr. O'Donnell; Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Cassidy. The last mentioned gentlemen from Mt. St. Mary's College. Father Maloy delivered the sermon taking for his text Acts IV. 8-12. He explained how at the mention of the name of Jesus new vigor ran through the limbs of the man lame from his mother's womb. He went on to say that the world paralyzed by sin found the new life of grace flowing through it on the introduction of the name of the Saviour. The human soul feels the same thrill of new life when brought into spiritual contact with Jesus. Continuing the speaker dwelt on the devotion of his soldiers to the great Napoleon, showing how they flocked around him on his return from Elbe and how when grape shot had cut off their arms they waved the gory members over their heads and shouted "Long live the Emperor." This was their devotion to the Commander who was to lead them to death, and destruction. But Jesus came not to lead men to death but to eternal life. He lived not that men should sacrifice themselves to his aggrandizement but that men might have life and have it more abundantly. Father Maloy concluded by exhorting the members of the Holy Name Society to greater devotion to their great Commander Jesus Christ.

"From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same, the name of the Lord is worthy of praise."—Malachi. With these words for his text Rev. Father Denis J. Flynn, L. L. D., President of Mount St. Mary's College, spoke very earnestly and impressively to the Society in the evening. "Today," said Dr. Flynn, "the Church celebrates the feast of the holy name of Jesus; a festival which she has wisely set apart to impress upon us, in a most positive manner, our duty in ever holding in reverence the name of our adorable Saviour; a name great above all names; at which every knee must bow, whether on earth, in Heaven or in hell."

The speaker laid stress upon the fact that it was not that reverence should be accorded the name merely for the name's sake, but for what the name stands for. When the name of a parent, sister, a brother was spoken, the individuality, the character, the traits of that person were immediately brought before one's mind; so that, to all intents and purposes, the name was the person spoken of. Names, Dr. Flynn suggested, were sacred and no one would be willing to have the name of a dear friend or relation bandied about in a light or a disrespectful manner.

"What son could stand by and hear his father's name vilified and insulted? His manhood would instantly rise up and resent it. And if his sister's name were made the subject of aspersion; if reflection were cast upon it, a man would immediately revenge the insult and consider it a privilege to give even his life for his sister's honor."

"So should it be with the names of those in authority." Referring to the President the preacher said: "We should have great respect for the name of the President of the United States, the man who by all right is the head of this nation; and we ought to teach our children to pronounce the name with respect."

"Name, then, means everything; the name of my friend is my friend. Now when we pass from this to the name of God, of Jesus Christ, the Church wishes us to honor that name. It is the name of Jesus, meaning our Saviour, like Jehovah, God our strength. It is the name of our Redeemer who has opened the gates of Heaven for us; the name of Christ, the Anointed One."

This name, Dr. Flynn reminded his hearers, was the name which the child, when it could scarcely articulate, was first taught at its mother's knee to reverence and love, and it is the last name that the priest utters to the departing soul; a name that is "almost a password to heaven; that name by which alone I can be saved; the name that all should respect and honor and reverence and love."

With special emphasis the speaker enjoined upon the members of the Society their obligation in living up to the duties prescribed by the organization—duties which he said were "few, simple, but great." He told them that oftentimes they would be ridiculed, they would be in the minority, but that they should be "brave and self-assertive when the honor of God was assailed." Not in a brusque manner, but in a quiet way were they to speak to and rebuke those who used God's name as a by-word. This method, it was intimated, was more effective than any other in making the one guilty of the offence thoroughly ashamed of himself.

In closing, Dr. Flynn complimented the Society on its flourishing condition, on the progress it had made; he besought its members to continue the good work they had begun and to be faithful in endeavoring, by example and influence, to foster in all with whom they come in contact a perfect reverence for the Holy name.

WELL-KNOWN MUSICIAN.

Prof. Henry Schwing Dies in Baltimore.—Author Of Musical Works And Composer.

Prof. Henry Schwing, a well-known musician, died last Saturday of pneumonia at his home on North Avenue, Mount Washington, at the advanced age of eighty-one.

Professor Schwing was born in Palatinat, Southern Germany, December 27, 1825. He was educated in Germany and came to Baltimore in 1846. About 30 years ago he built a home at Mount Washington and had resided there ever since. He retired from his profession a number of years ago. He was a teacher of harmony and composition, and also organist of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, for 22 years. He had also served several other churches as organist, and was the author of important books on harmony, as well as a composer of music.

Associated with Dr. Steiner Prof. Schwing published a hymn book familiar to all the older members of the Reformed Church in this community called the "Cantate Domino."

MRS. ROBERT WANTZ.

On Wednesday morning the news was received here of the death of Mrs. Wantz, wife of Mr. Robert Wantz, in Frederick. Last week Mrs. Wantz, who had been ill for some six weeks, was taken to the City Hospital where she was operated on by Dr. Hummer, of John's Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. Every thing possible was done for her but she never fully rallied from the shock of the operation and on Wednesday morning, the thirty-seventh anniversary of her birth, at seven o'clock she died.

The deceased is survived by her husband, Mr. Robert Wantz, two young sons and one daughter; her mother, Mrs. Louise Caldwell; three brothers and three sisters.

On Saturday morning at ten o'clock the funeral will be held at the late residence, of the deceased near town, after which the regular services will be held in the Methodist Church, this place. The interment will be made in Mountain View Cemetery.

THREE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FOUR YEARS OLD.

Last Monday night the Reformed churches of Baltimore celebrated the three hundred and forty-fourth anniversary of the compilation of the Heidelberg catechism, the doctrinal standard of that denomination. The services were held in the Third Reformed Church of that city, the principal address being delivered by Rev. Dr. William J. Hinke, of the Ursinus Theological Seminary, Philadelphia.

TO AMEND CHARTER.

Seminary at Gettysburg Allowed an Increased Income.

The amendments to the charter of the Theological Seminary of the General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, as adopted by the Board of Directors, were filed in the open court of Adams county.

These corrections to the charter increase the allowed income of $20,000 a year from all sources to the authorized income of $20,000 from real estate, and $30,000 from personal estate. It further fixes the maximum number of directors at fifty, the minimum at thirty, and a quorum to be composed of twenty directors.

SWETTENHAM.

The tyrant's heel is on the shore. Swettenham! His help is at thy ruined door, Swettenham!

Avenge the earthquake's awful gore, Command the Yanks to leave thy shore And never come back any more, Swettenham! O Swettenham!

Thou wilt not cower in the dust, Swettenham! And take the Yankee's help, we trust, Swettenham! Jamaica's cracked and trembling crust, The dead in burning buildings thrust. The looters and the looter's lust Are scarcely things to be discussed, Swettenham! O Swettenham!

Thou wilt not yield the Yankee toll, Swettenham! Thou wilt not crook to his control, Swettenham! Better the earthquake be thy goal, Better the fire upon the roll, Than softening of the British soul, Swettenham! O Swettenham!

The killed in Kingston now are dead. Swettenham!

The injured's blood has all been shed, Swettenham!

The hungry ones need not be fed, The leaderless need not be led, The houseless, homeless need no bed, The British standard, flying red, Floats proudly o'er Jamaica's head! Swettenham! O Swettenham!

Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, the only woman who enjoys the distinction of being a member of the United Spanish War Veterans and who held the commissioned rank of lieutenant in charge of the army nurses in the war with Spain, has received from the Japanese Government a handsome medal in recognition of the services of herself and her corps of American nurses in the late war between Japan and Russia. The token is of unique design and inscribed in Japanese characters.

CAUSES OF DIVORCE.

Chicago Judge Tabulates The Causes Of Divorces In Two Hundred Cases.

Judge Willard McEwen, who tries on an average of one-hundred divorce cases every month, has kept a table during the last two months showing the following to be the causes for divorces which he has granted to the two-hundred persons who have appeared before him.

No children and drunkenness, 115. No children and cruelty, 10. Another woman and desertion, 25. Another man and desertion, 10. Religious conflict, 9. Jealousy, 11. Lazy husband, 15. Dubious past, 15.

DEATH OF MRS. ANDERS.

Mrs. Anders, formerly Miss Valentine, the widow of the late John W. Anders, of near Rocky Ridge, died last Monday evening at six o'clock.

Mrs. Anders was seventy-three years old and is survived by nine children, four daughters, Mrs. Herd, of Rocky Ridge; Mrs. Milton Troxell, of Detour; Mrs. Alexander Troxell and Mrs. Anna Durr, both residing in Pennsylvania, and by five sons, Harvey, of Philadelphia; William, of Hagerstown; Harry, of Union Bridge, and Calvin and Grayson, of Rocky Ridge.

The funeral services were held at Rocky Ridge yesterday morning at eleven o'clock, Rev. Burganzer, of Union Bridge officiating. Interment was made in Mount Tabor Cemetery, Rocky Ridge.

BLUE MOUNTAIN HOUSE SOLD.

Extensive Improvements To Be Made By New Owners.—Realized $205,000 Less Than Cost.

The Blue Mountain House, with twenty-five acres of land adjoining, was sold at public auction in Hagerstown, on Tuesday afternoon, to Henry A. McComas, Charles S. Lane, of Hagerstown, and Alonzo M. Hurlock, of Baltimore, for $200,000. The furniture of the hotel was included in the sale.

Twenty-three years ago the Blue Ridge Hotel Company, which built the hotel, was organized with a capital stock of $100,000 and $125,000 of bonds. These sums were used in the construction of the buildings and purchasing the furniture and site.

It is stated that the hotel will be improved, $15,000 being set aside for this purpose. Mr. McComas reports that the hotel will be in operation the coming season.

There will be Holy Communion in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday, Jan. 27th. Preparatory service Saturday the 27th inst. at two o'clock.

FROM ONE WHO KNOWS

The Newspaper The Best Advertising Medium.

"Another duty the merchant owes the local paper is his patronage. It has been said by those who have watched the order of events that no merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another, and up to this day and age of the world no medium has been found so satisfactory as the newspaper to convey information to the public."

"And what is advertising but informing the people what you have to sell? I say it is the duty of the merchant, and I would also include the professional men and mechanics who have business of their own to patronize the local paper not only by their subscriptions, but by advertising as well. If we help to build up the papers they will help to build up the town and bring to us increased trade and greater opportunities."—A. M. Foster.

THE "SUN" SHINES

ABELL COMPANY HOSTS ON A GALA OCCASION.

Thousands Attend The Formal Opening Of The Baltimore Paper's Beautiful Building.

Last week, Thursday Jan. 17, the magnificent building of The Baltimore Sun was thronged with visitors, representatives of most every trade and profession, who came at the invitation of the publishers of this splendid newspaper, to view the interior of the spacious and well appointed building, to inspect the wonderful mechanical equipment and to congratulate the owners of this colossal and modern newspaper plant.

These visitors, fully five thousand in number, among them being Cardinal Gibbons, Gov. Warfield and Mayor Timanus, were shown through every portion of the building by courteous members of the Sun's large staff. Everything was thrown open from the editorial rooms to the press room, and all the modern devices necessary to produce a large daily newspaper were fully explained to the interested and appreciative throng. A delicious buffet luncheon was served on the fourth floor and here congregated many newspaper men from various parts of the country, all of whom were loud in their praise of what they saw.

Perhaps the most interesting features to the majority of those who came were the huge presses and other machinery in the basement, about which the Sun had this to say:

"In the basement the visitors were impressed with the magnitude of the machinery and by the fact that all of it was duplicated—some of it triplicated—as a precaution against delay in case of a break-down. Opposite the dynamos, which supply the current for the light and power by what is known as the three-wire system, they were shown the same pieces of machinery not in motion, but ready to be started at a moment's notice if the others broke down. Among the interesting facts which the visitors learned was that the switchboard, larger than any in the city except those in the electrical powerhouses, represented the assemblage of 80,000 separate parts.

"A center of great interest was the battery of four Hoe presses which occupy the main portion of the basement. Although it is not until the early hours of the morning that the printing of the paper begins, the presses were run for short intervals to show how they work. They can be seen at their best only when going at full speed."

"Care was taken by the operators of the presses and the guides to show how the machines automatically count the papers and run them out to the endless chain of carriers which relay them up to the mailing rooms and the city circulation rooms."

"Next the crowds were led to the rooms on the main floor, where the men work all day getting ready for the wrapping of the papers to be sent out by mail. The system employed here was full of interest for persons unacquainted with the means by which the thousands of readers in all parts of the State and surrounding territory are supplied with their papers every morning with the same regularity that they are delivered in the city and suburbs."

KICKED BY A COLT.

Horse Becomes Frightened And Kicks The Lad In The Jaw.

On Saturday morning while working in the stable, Benjamin, a son of Mr. Harry McNair, met with a painful accident. The lad was engaged near a stall occupied by a colt, and something frightened the horse and he kicked back striking the boy on the jaw. Several teeth were knocked out and the flesh was lacerated but fortunately no bones were broken. A physician was summoned and the wounds were dressed.

PASSES OR NOT.

NO DISTINCTION FOR VALUE RECEIVED.

Papers Begin Campaign Against New Ruling Of Interstate Commerce Commission.

Unless expositions which will no doubt be held in the United States in the future as they have been in the past, are to be considered merely local and not national, there will have to be an entire change of attitude toward the publishers of newspapers. The matter is being taken up in the interest of newspapers by Mr. A. L. Sutton, himself a practical newspaper man, and a campaign having for its purpose the securing of an amendment to the new Interstate Commerce Law is being inaugurated to bring about a change. The ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission against issuing passes by railroads is considered to be unjust by all those who in the past accepted passes only in return for valuable advertising. Mr. Sutton states the case very tersely in the following words which are taken from a circular letter sent out from the Jamestown exposition of which he is chief of the Division of Exploitation.

Mr. Sutton says: "Expositions are dependent for their success upon the generosity and services of newspapers for exploitation. It is the newspaper that tells the people what expositions are to be, and through the medium of their news columns people are induced to visit them. If the people visit the expositions, they must be brought by railroads. The newspaper man has space to sell; the railroad has transportation to sell. The newspaper man wants transportation; the railroad wants advertising. If the railroad is willing to trade its transportation for newspaper space, and the newspaper is willing to trade its space for transportation, it would seem only just that they be permitted to write their contract without the interference of a law which appears to well-informed men to be an infringement of the right of contract, which is one of the fundamental principles of liberty and law."

AT IT AGAIN.

JOURNALISM DISSUADED BY FORCE.

Myersville Monitor Harassed By Enemies.—High School Pupils Arrested. Compositor Assaulted.

Edgar Hauver and Harry Gernand were arrested last Saturday in Myersville by Sheriff Martz on the charge of assaulting William Moser, a compositor in the office of the Myersville Monitor. They waived a hearing and gave bail for their appearance before the grand jury.

This is the third deed of violence committed against this particular newspaper. Some time ago unknown parties secreted themselves in a room in the house of Ira Moser, the editor of the paper, and assaulted him. The second offense was the wrecking of the type and forms of the newspaper and was reported in full in these columns.

This third outrage, the alleged assault, and probably the other two previous deeds, grew out of the publication of an article to which Hauver and Gernand took exception, and of which they accused Moser of being the author. Last night they met Moser on the street, and, it is alleged, beat him.

GOOD WORD FOR TOWN.

A Michigan Soldier Chats Pleasantly On Various Topics.—Fought at Gettysburg In '63.

Mr. James Gibbs, of Michigan, formerly of Chester county, Pa., and brother of Mrs. C. J. Shuff of this place, paid a very pleasant visit to the CHRONICLE office last week; viewed the new equipment and talked very entertainingly on many subjects. Mr. Gibbs was impressed with the progress that seemed evident in Emmitsburg and contrasted the town with many other places of its size which, he said, failed to exhibit the same progressive spirit. The soldier spoke with pride of his old regiment, the Fifth Michigan Cavalry, which was part of Custer's Brigade and of which Senator Alger was colonel for a time. This regiment was one of the first on the field at Gettysburg and took an active part in that memorable battle. Mr. Gibbs was orderly of his company and has the unique distinction of being perhaps the only orderly who could give the address and the history to date of every one of the one hundred and three men of his company.

An accommodation train on the Big Four Railroad was blown from the track by the explosion of a car load of powder as it passed a freight train at Sanford, near Terra Haute, Ind. Thirty-five persons were killed.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1907.

Out of respect to the mother country whose big heart is ever wont to beat in sympathy with those who are in distress, perhaps the most charitable view to take of the Kingston incident is to assume that Governor Swettenham acted in his private and individual capacity and not as the spokesman of his government. In times of panic and excitement men in authority are liable to err in judgment; to speak quickly; to act impulsively, and for this allowance must be made. But in a time of peril for one to pen sarcastic and studied insults to the representative of a friendly and magnanimous nation is conduct for which it is hard for anyone, howsoever charitably inclined, to frame excuses.

Admiral Davis was quick to respond to an implied call for assistance, his one idea being to render aid to a stricken people—aid of the most practical character. That he performed instantly and well what he rightly conceived to be his duty, the result of his many actions was already becoming evident. But in the very midst of, we might say at the very beginning of his attempt to show a national courtesy he was ordered off the premises, so to speak, in a most ill-bred manner, and by one on whose breast the badge of the flunky rather than that of the diplomat would be more becoming. In this unfortunate affair, having no justification whatever, Admiral Davis proved himself to be a man and a gentleman, and his conduct throughout was dignified and tactful; such as to call forth the highest commendation from every quarter. The apology from the British nation and from the British press, as well as the numerous expressions of genuine regret quickly proffered by high British officials, rob the incident of what would otherwise have been a breach of international etiquette, and more than overshadows the attitude assumed by an unbalanced colonial governor whom England will no doubt be anxious and willing to put "on leave of absence."

Last week our esteemed contemporary, The Catoctin Clarion, published the announcement that all trains on the Western Maryland Railroad stopped at Thurmont. There is a reason and a good one—as far as the railroad is concerned. It is simply because at that station there is a large and well-filled water tank from which engines are compelled to take numberless gallons of water before attempting to climb the steep mountain grades beyond. This then, is the real explanation—it is the tank. But by reason of that tank Thurmont gains and Emmitsburg loses.

We do not question the fact that Mr. Tillman, the fire eating Senator from South Carolina, has brains, but we do question his failure to use them on occasion. It was not so much the underlying thought that was in Mr. Tillman's mind when he spoke some time ago on the race question, and again when the Brownsville matter was brought before the Senate, as it was the language in which his thoughts were couched and the manner in which he expressed them. The other day, however, when he indulged in what he was pleased to call humor, the Senator made a sorry mess of it, and instead of eliciting the appreciative applause which he no doubt expected, he brought down upon himself the disapproval of both the Senate and the people at large; his reference to the "minstrel show" was expunged from the Record, and an apology for his undignified, ill-chosen and ill-timed remarks was practically forced from his lips.

It is sincerely to be hoped that when he finally said, "I am sorry I ever tried to be funny. Having made such a failure as the end man of the minstrel show, I will never, never, do it again," this self-styled "brusque bluff, plain-speaking man," who says of himself, "I have little association with polite society," means what he says and will adhere to his determination. Mr. Tillman, when in the future he would seek to accomplish something of benefit to his country—and no one can for a moment doubt his sincerity and his willingness to aid and uphold her at any hazard—would be wiser and would gain better results if he were to advocate his measures in more moderate language and in a more dignified manner. Bluster is in no sense an evidence of earnestness, nor is fiery language an indication of bravery or sincerity and it seems unfortunate for this Senator—whom no one could accuse of not being in earnest and who is nothing if not brave—to misrepresent and bring ridicule upon himself and his constituents by the infelicitous expressions in which he has so frequently indulged.

A notice in another column announcing an important meeting of the stockholders of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railway Company, at which meeting the stockholders will be asked to vote upon an additional issue of the capital stock, indicates that this trolley road will, in a reasonably short time, be equipped as far as this town. We are informed that rights of way are being taken, that thousands of cross-ties are being received, and that very soon plans and specifications for a power-house will be submitted to the directors for their consideration.

From all accounts there would seem to be a disposition on the part of some property owners to put obstacles in the way of this new trolley road by asking unreasonable damages, and it goes without saying that such tactics, if persisted in, will materially delay an improvement which experience at other points has invariably proved to be to the interest and not to the detriment of those property owners through whose land or near whose land trolley lines have been built.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[In this column "UNCLE BILL" will answer all questions of a proper character submitted to THE CHRONICLE. Readers of this paper should not hesitate to patronize this column frequently, as "UNCLE BILL" draws a big salary and loves to work.]

Uncle Bill: Where is Terra Firma?
STRANGER.

Stranger: There is a station along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad called Terra Firma and one on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis line, called Terre Haute. The time table of the Western Maryland does not mention Terra Firma. Judging from recent events I doubt that there is such a place.

Uncle Bill: What hurt Governor Swettenham?
AMERICAN.

American: His name. Davis ought to have shot him with talcum powder.

Uncle Bill: Was it an apple or some other kind of fruit that Eve handed Adam? Was there any Garden of Eden at all? How did Cocilius Calvert wear his hair? What is the proper title for the war which occurred in this country nearly a half century ago?
BALTIMORE NEWSPAPER.

Baltimore Newspaper: Question A. It was the skin of a gooseberry. Eve thought that if it would encompass his form it might improve his appearance. B. Yes; where the gooseberry grew. C. On his head. D. On the authority of Gen. Sherman I call it a Hell-of-a-War.

Uncle Bill: Who was Confucius?
GOVERNOR.

Governor: He was orderly to One Lung Ting and a brother-in-law of I Swing Hi. Old Con. was the author of a con game, named after himself, which consisted of a moral menu, a sort of ethical chop suey served with joesticks; sometimes with a snicker snee.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

LIVE CAPITAL TOPICS.

Weekly Letter From Our Regular Correspondent.

Several conferences were held at the White House last week concerning the shortage of cars in the Northwest and a special investigation for the President is being made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is well-known that he is thoroughly aroused over the failure of the railroads to transport the necessary quantity of coal for domestic use in the Northwestern states and he will send a special message to Congress on the subject looking toward legislation that will give the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to compel the roads to move the cars. A special effort is being made by the agents of the President to collect testimony to show that the railroads have not, as James J. Hill declares, done their best to relieve the situation, but that they have

ROOF FALLS IN.

Borne Down By Heavy Snow.—No Stock Injured.

The recent heavy fall of snow crushed in the roof of Mr. Charles Long's barn last Friday night. From one end to the other of the structure the timbers were broken and had it not been for the heavy logs that brace the square of the building some of the stock would have undoubtedly been killed. As it was in some places the timbers came through perilously close to the horses and cattle.

The thaw on Saturday and the heavy frosts of Sunday left things in a deplorable condition. It is impossible to repair the barn at once and Mr. Long will dispose of his stock immediately no other arrangement being possible under existing circumstances.

In consequence of this disaster Mr. Long will have sale on Saturday instead of in the Spring as he had intended.

FOR A FINE BUILDING.

Contract Awarded For The Frederick Young Men's Christian Association.—To Cost $35,000.

Last week the contract for the erection of the new home for the Frederick Y. M. C. A., was awarded to Lloyd C. Culler. The contracts call for the completion of the building by next November.

This structure is to occupy the site of the old Park Hotel and the work of tearing down this old hostelry has been commenced. The interest the citizens have taken in the movement, begun some months ago, for a suitable home for this growing association has been proven by the large fund they have subscribed for this worthy purpose. Over $60,000 was reported by the committee as being deposited to the credit of the Y. M. C. A. fund.

IN MEMORIAM

The Session of the Presbyterian Church, of which the deceased was an honored member, would offer the following testimonial of their appreciation of his fellowship and services:

WHEREAS, God in His wisdom has called our brother, Dr. Robert L. Annan, from our companionship in the Master's work to his reward; therefore, be it resolved,

I. That we bow in submission to the will of Him whose he was and whom he served so long and so faithfully.

II. That in his departure we have lost a devoted member, an elder of fine Christian spirit, and one who was ever ready and willing to care for the flock over which the Holy Ghost had made him an overseer.

III. That we mourn with the bereaved family in their affliction and extend to them our heartfelt sympathy, directing their faith to Him who has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

IV. That a copy of this minute be spread on the records of the Session, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent to THE CHRONICLE.

By order of Session,

REV. K. M. CRAIG,

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT.

WHEREAS, God in His wisdom has taken out of this world our brother, Herbert F. Stonesifer, who died at Emmitsburg, Md., on Jan. 10, 1907, at the early age of 29 years, 4 months and 12 days, and who had won the good-will and favor of those with whom he mingled.

Resolved, That while we as members of Taneytown Lodge, No. 36, K. of P., feel the loss of this our brother.

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well, and commend those who were near and dear to him, to Him who knows our sorrows and is acquainted with our griefs.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his parents, be published in the Carroll Record and EMMITTSBURG CHRONICLE.

THAW CASE.

Five-Hundred Thousand To Be Spent By Defense.

THE FACTS INVOLVING

Stanford White, The Architect.—Harry Thaw The Spendthrift.—Evelyn Nesbit, The Beauty.

The most sensational case that has been tried in years is now before the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court in New York city. Between the commission of the crime and the trial, some seven months, interest has never flagged and various stories have been passed around by the press relative to the events leading up to the crime committed last June in Madison Square Garden.

Beside the bare facts of the case, which alone make it most startling and would attract unusual attention, the public is eager to see what will be the effect of the vast amount of money that the Thaws will undoubtedly spend to save the young man, Harry Thaw, from the chair. According to reports the members of his family expect to spend $500,000 in his defense. The money already spent in looking up innumerable witnesses and collecting evidence is not included in this estimate.

Of all the accounts so far published the following, taken from the Philadelphia Press, seems to give the best idea of the most noteworthy points concerning every aspect of the case:

White at the time of his death was in the zenith of his career. He was 53 years old and in the structural growth that transformed New York's sky line in the past twenty years his handiwork was seen. His friends declared after his death that nearly every block of New York's greatest thoroughfare was full of monuments to his taste and genius. Madison Square Garden, on whose roof he met his death, was perhaps the greatest of his achievements.

In appearance White looked much more the heavy-weight athlete than the artist. He was 6 feet tall and of heavy build. He had a rugged face, a heavy mustache and a massive head. His shaggy auburn hair, which he wore in pompadour fashion, had no streak of gray in it. His figure was a familiar one along Broadway, at the theaters and the restaurants. He came to be known as the friend of the chorus girl and was known to many women of the stage. Everywhere he was known for his generosity and it is said he never failed to aid the stage folk who sought him in their financial difficulties.

The manner of White's living resulted in the usual digging up after the shooting of sensational stories that the man, dead, could not deny or disprove. Scandal-stained rumor flowed like a millrace after a Spring freshet. The nature of the charges made them such that the man's friends could give them no specific denials and could only stand by their statements that White was a manly and generous man and altogether different from what the scandal purveyors would have him.

It is only just to the memory of the man to say that for none of these stories was there ever shown any proof. As it turned out later, Harry Thaw, with the aid of detectives, had been trying for two years to fasten like offenses on the man he hated, but had failed.

In many respects Harry Thaw was the direct opposite of White. While White was the maker of his own fortune and had acquired fame for his ability and the product of his genius Thaw never earned a dollar in his life and his one aim in living seemed to be to spend the money that had been left by his father. Beginning life as a poor mechanic in Pittsburg, William Thaw, the father, had accumulated a vast fortune.

The Thaw fortune at the time of William Thaw's death was estimated at $40,000,000.

As a boy Harry Thaw was mixed up in all kinds of pranks and he had considerable knowledge of the world when he was sent to the Wooster University, of Ohio, in 1887. No theatrical company ever came to the town but what Thaw sought out the female members of the troupe. On one occasion he got all the girls of a show to wear garters and bows of college colors and display them.

In 1894 young Thaw was sent to Princeton and there he remained until 1897. Returning to Pittsburg Thaw cut a swath that even in that town which was becoming well versed in Tenderloin, was considered very wide. In his will his father had cut him down to an allowance of $2,500 a year until he was 35 years old, but to this his mother added a yearly allowance of $80,000.

The young woman over whom sprang up the emnity that was to lead to Stanford White's death was born about twenty years ago in Pittsburg, the daughter of Winfield Scott Nesbit, a struggling lawyer. Her father died about ten years ago and her mother was forced to look to her own work for a livelihood. As a child Evelyn Nesbit, who was sometimes called Florence, was considered as having remarkable beauty, and her picture was soon seen in the different photograph galleries. Later she became sought for by artists, who wished her to pose for them in their pictures of child life.

The lure of New York brought Mrs. Nesbit and the girl there, where the stories of Evelyn's beauty had preceded her. The girl, then scarcely 16 years old, became a model for such artists as Carroll Beckwith, Irving Wiles, F. S. Church, Carl Blenner and Charles Dana Gibson. She was then described as the most beautiful artist's model in America.

s. dealer in Hard

Evelyn Nesbit's first introduction to the New York stage came in August, 1901, when she was made one of the flower girls in the first "Florodora" company.

From the best accounts, it was while Evelyn Nesbit was in the "Florodora" company that she first met, Stanford White. It was through White, the same report has it, that she obtained an engagement in the "White Rose" company, which was then appearing at the Knickerbocker under the management of George W. Lederer.

It was after White became friendly to Evelyn Nesbit and her mother that the Nesbits moved from their furnished room in West Twenty-second Street to apartments in the Auditorium on Broadway. While the girl's beauty made her an attractive feature in a performance she was awkward on the stage and showed a lack of finish. It was White's suggestion that she should go to school, and accordingly she went to the private school of Mrs. H. C. De Mille, at Pompton, N. J. White paid the bills. She was taken sick there and came back to New York to take up her stage career again, and it was about this time that she met Harry Thaw.

Thaw first began paying the closest attention to the girl at a time when White was called out of the city. He spent his money with a prodigal hand and sent valuable gifts to the girl at her apartments—one of them being a grand piano—and sought her on every possible occasion. The culmination of it all was that Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter went to Paris, and it is said that White paid the way.

The Nesbits had not been in Paris long when Thaw followed them. His influence was finally such that, it is said, he induced the girl to leave her mother, who, stranded on the other side, had to cable to White for money, and it was with this that she came home.

Thaw and the girl traveled through Europe for a while, but it is said that his treatment of her was such that she was forced to leave him and come home alone. When she reached this side she first sought out Stanford White and then prepared an affidavit in which she said that Thaw's treatment in detail. In this document she is said to have set forth that Thaw, besides being cruel to her, took away all her jewelry. This affidavit is said to have been written in Evelyn Nesbit's own hand, and it is also said that White wrote in detail, in interlineations. There was talk that the girl was to bring suit against Thaw for $25,000 damages through Abe Hummel. The suit, if one was contemplated, never came to trial. According to report, the original of the affidavit when made was destroyed. White, however, kept a photographic copy of it, according to general belief, for he knew at that time that Thaw had detectives on his trail watching his every movement.

Thaw followed Miss Nesbit home and met her in spite of her mother's influence and the influence of White and finally won out.

In December 1904, Thaw and Evelyn disappeared, going together to Europe. Once Thaw and the girl got abroad there were renewals of the reports of his cruelty to her. It was then that White is said to have washed his hands of Evelyn Nesbit.

From London, in 1905, came the report that Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit had been married. In the early part of 1905 they returned to New York and were refused admission to hotels unless they registered as man and wife. Thaw then made a trip to Pittsburg where he met his mother, who had disapproved of his association with Evelyn Nesbit but now gave her consent to his marriage, which took place in the parsonage of the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan, of Pittsburg, on April 5, 1905.

With the former model and chorus girl for a daughter, Thaw returned to Pittsburg. In the early part of 1905 Thaw set about to fit the young woman for the new social sphere and practically forced Evelyn Thaw into Pittsburg society.

After this marriage Thaw did not appear in any escapade that freshened the memory of his doings in the past. All his time was spent in watching Stanford White.

There is some doubt as to whether or not White met Mrs. Thaw after her marriage. It has been said at different times that Thaw's attorney would show, in the course of the trial, that the architect sought out Mrs. Thaw after the ceremony in Pittsburg, but so far as known the only thing that points to a meeting between Mrs. Thaw and White in that time is in the statement made by Thaw's chauffeur. He has made a statement in which he says that on two occasions, at White's bidding, he drove Mrs. Thaw to her apartments from a restaurant. On one of these occasions another woman was with her.

This brings the story up to June 25, the day of the crime. This is fresh in the memory of all. After the shooting and White's almost instantaneous death, Thaw has been in prison. Concerning the trial the District Attorney believes that if the case proceeds in the ordinary way his case against Thaw is such that, bare of all appeals to human emotion, it should result in the finding of a verdict of murder in the first degree.

From the outlook it appears as if the worst Thaw can expect is a life term under a verdict of murder in the second degree, or a long time in the Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan.

SERMON PREACHED BY REV. MR. CRAIG AT THE FUNERAL OF THE LATE DR. ANNAN.

Christ hath abolished death, brought life and immortality to light through the gospel.—2 Timothy, 1st ch. and 10th verse.

Death is a theme of mighty import, and every variety of eloquence has been exhausted on the magnitude of its desolations. There is not a place where human beings congregate together that does not, in the fleeting history of its inmates, give the lesson of their mortality. Death enters the home, and unceremoniously and with rude hand, tears asunder the dearest of our sympathies. It enters the town, and those whom we love, and that the most sincere affection, lie silent in our midst. It enters the market place and the busy thoroughfares and lays low those who are ripe with years, as well as those in manhood's prime. Its shadows creep over the hills and valleys they flit around our hearths our homes, our firesides. Death makes no exception it scatters its desolations with unsparring regularity among all the sons of men. And how dark the outlook, were there no deliverance from the grave. "But thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Christ came to overthrow death, to grapple with this great enemy of man, and the tyranny of death was broken. We looked toward the unchanging aspect of the starry heavens, over the great handiwork of God, and everywhere nature maintains her solemn silence. Yet at the coming of our Savior the heavens broke silence, music came from their canopy, and living voices rose and fell in music, in melody, in praise to God, that Christ had come. With his coming and by his death he has abolished the power of death, he has made perpetual invasion upon nature's constancy and she never, in a single instance, resisted the word of his power. "What manner of man is this" said his disciples, "even the winds and the waves obey him." He restored sight to the blind, speech to the dumb, life to the dead, he laid down his own life, he took it up again, he robbed the grave of victory. The disciples gave up all the last when they saw the champion of their hopes made the victim of the very mortality which he had promised to "destroy." It was like the contest and victory of nature—but it was only to make his triumph more complete. He entered "that undiscovered country from whose bourn no traveller returns." But he did not die. He broke asunder the mighty barriers of the grave; he entered and re-animated that body which expired on the cross, and by that most striking of all testimonies he has given us to know that he has fought against the law of death, and has carried it, he has conquered, he has triumphed. Christ hath abolished death, he hath rendered it of none effect.

Temporal death however, has not been set aside, nay it comes, and still it comes, carrying generation after generation to the silence of the grave. But though the grim messenger may lay his cold hand on the brows of those we love, yet a power higher than death shall lift it, and these loved forms shall forsake the tenement of clay, and be re-animated with all the warmth of life and sentiment.

God's-acre has been called the land of silence and silent indeed it is to those who occupy it—the Sabbath-bell is no longer heard, nor yet the tread of the living above their dust, but though remote from the sounds of earth, yet shall the sound of the last trumpet enter the loneliness of their dwelling, and be heard through death's remotest caverns. As Jesus arose from the narrow bed, so shall man arise, and death will have lost its sting, the grave its victory. On that great morn, at touch of the Divine the corruptible shall put on incorruption, and assume the blush and vigor of immortality. The day is hastening. Through the darkness and the sorrows that surround us, even through the clouds of death the light is breaking.

Holding fast a firm faith in the Son of God, and holding it to the end, the bed of death will be a scene of triumph, the last messenger will be a messenger of joy, and in Christ the blessed promises of God shall be found to have such fulfillment, that they shall bear us up in the hour of death with a joy unspeakable and full of glory. Christ explains the mystery; His presence pours tranquility and joy amid scenes of distress; His presence gives fortitude to the dying, and when despair and sorrow sit heavily on many a countenance, these words so full of cheer, of hope, of comfort break upon the mournful silence, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" Thus shall the grave be destroyed, thus for a time shall our frail bodies mingle with the dust of the earth, but at last they shall be raised in honor, bearing all the noble and attractive qualities essential for the eternal home.

Committed to its final bed the body looks pale and wan, but it shall come up in splendor and beauty like unto Christ's glorious body. Inasmuch then as Christianity honors the body, and opens to the mortal the prospect of immortality, it follows that man has vast interests, and solemn duties while he lives. Let us take care of our bodies and our souls, and let us do this by providing for their immortal destination. From the grave they must come, beyond the bounds of earth they must go. It is important that we believe with a faith, and hope with an expectation and live with a discipline, a purity, and an obedience which shall promise to them a rising to immortal life, immortal glory. Let us feed and cherish and nourish the nobler aspirations of the soul, so that when earth is fading, when we are passing from all that is mortal, we may with rejoicing enter the portals of that state which is glorified.

Some day, some hour, every grave shall be empty, and every soul shall wing its flight to God who gave it birth. Some day the body shall be transformed, transfigured; every redeemed face shall be radiant with glory, every garment shall glisten with light, every redeemed soul shall put on the image and the brightness of the heavenly kingdom. Yes, the day is coming when the heavens and the earth shall be filled with the glory of the rising dead, and when the triumphant words shall sweep from East to West, and from North to South, O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

My Dear Friends:—I cannot close my brief remarks without referring to the solemn circumstances that call us together today and at this hour, for a loving husband, a tender father, and a friend, the truest of the true, lies silent in our midst.

Yet no words of mine are needed to extol the noble character and genuine worth of our departed friend, for by common consent, the late Dr. Robert Annan squared all his actions by the square of his profession. He was pre-eminently a man of God, and longed that all men might forsake sin, that they might follow after righteousness and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. His last moments, like his life, were calm and peaceful. But now the silver cord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken, and the mourners go about the streets. We shall miss his manly figure, and kindly word, and there is a break in our ranks, I know not who can fill. Loved ones who sorrow today, put your hand in the hand of the great burden bearer, the Man of Sorrows, Jesus Christ, and eventually he will lead you beyond the shadows, lead you to that golden radiant sunset shore, where sorrows and partings are forever unknown.

"One winter eve a soul was sailing
Beyond the earth's dark bars
Toward a land of sunsets never paling,
Toward heaven's sea of stars.
Behind there was a wake of billows tossing
Before a glory lay;
Oh happy soul with all sail setting
Just into the far away."

Careless Smokers Endanger Hall.—Two Fires Averted.—Work On The Pipe Line.

Through the carelessness of somebody who attended the Smoker given by the members of the Odd Fellows, last Thursday evening in their lodge hall in this place, the building caught on fire. The prompt work of several citizens averted a serious conflagration.

Several small boxes filled with sawdust had been placed in the room for the convenience of the smokers, into one of these some one thoughtlessly threw a lighted cigar. The sawdust smoldered all that night and the next day until four o'clock when somebody noticed the smoke. The door was broken open and the fire extinguished but not before it had eaten a hole through the floor and rafters, and was rapidly burning the weather-board and walls. Mr. John McClellan, who conducts a store immediately under the hall had some of his goods damaged by the smoke and water.

Being warned by this fire Mr. Aaron Musselman, in whose building the band holds its rehearsals, took the sawdust from the boxes used by the band for a similar purpose, and in its place put wood ashes. Unfortunately for Mr. Musselman the ashes contained live coals and in a short time he too found it necessary to repair his floor.

The Pure Oil Company are at work on their pipe line. The pipes are being distributed along the line which runs through Mr. Hafer's farm and the land belonging to Messrs. Grove, F. Shully and D. C. Shulley in Hamilton town township. These pipes were shipped to Fairfield station sometime ago.

Mr. Howard M. Hafer, of Womelsdorf, Pa., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. Shulley.

The convention of the School Directors, held in Gettysburg, was attended by quite a number from this place.

Misses Mary and Mattie McLaughlin have returned to their home in this place, after spending a month with the family of Mr. George Linn, near Gettysburg.

The roads in this vicinity are in a terrible condition. The heavy teams from the sawmills and those used by the Pure Oil Company have almost made certain roads almost impassable.

Our correspondent still calls attention to the bad condition of the boardwalk leading to the station.

Road Supervisors Appointed.

Last week the County Commissioners appointed the following men as road supervisors in this district: N. Ellsworth Miller, George Smith, William A. Kump, Wallace H. Moser, John H. Chluts, Joseph H. Long, Edward C. Shriener, N. C. Stansburg, Denton A. Wachter, Charles E. Keilholtz, William T. Smith, Albert Dotterer, John A. Horner, J. Stewart Annan, Wm. P. Eyer, Harvey G. Winter.

Senator Tillman received a stinging rebuke from Senator Carmack last Monday. Mr. Tillman, in an attempt at humor, characterized the United States Senate as a minstrel show and made light of Mr. Carmack's recent political defeat. The Senator from Tennessee (Carmack) said in his remarks, "I believe it to be true, Mr. President, and I say it with pride, that the fact that my service terminates is a matter of regret to nearly every Senator upon this side of the chamber, and I believe to most of the Senators upon the other side of the chamber. I doubt very much whether that could be truthfully said with respect to either side if the Senator from South Carolina were in my position."

ELECT A SUPERINTENDENT.

Dr. Barnes, Now Head Of Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Visits Emmitsburg.

The State Tuberculosis Commission, at a meeting held on Tuesday evening, elected Dr. H. I. Barnes, superintendent of the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium of Rhode Island, as head of the proposed state institution. Dr. Barnes will not assume his duties for sometime but taking advantage of his stay in Baltimore he visited Emmitsburg on the day following his election, Wednesday, and looked over the several sites already suggested to the committee.

Dr. Barnes was particularly struck with the Wagerman farm declaring that aside from its distance from the railroad, it was an ideal spot for such a sanitarium, in fact as suitable a place as could be found in the state. Several other sites were inspected, and on Wednesday evening Dr. Barnes left for Baltimore.

WATCHES

Your neighbor may not be a subscriber to THE CHRONICLE. Mention the matter to him.

Have all the characteristics of a life-long friend. Even the first glance suggests those excellences which every day's service emphasizes. You can always depend upon them for attractiveness in style, absolute comfort and unusually long wear. Suppose you try on a pair. Don't ask for any particular size. Simply request to be fitted.

LIGHT FOR ALL.

It Has Come To Stay. It Has No Equal.

SAFE, ECONOMICAL, BRILLIANT, HEALTHY.

Having made important improvements in our Gas Machine by the application of Force Feed and combining generator and gasometer in one, and simplifying many points of construction, and requiring small space to install; obviating all danger of excessive discharge of carbide into generator, making gas in excess of consumption. We now claim to have the perfect Gas Machine, furnishing the most brilliant light ever produced, and are prepared to furnish the Improved Machine, guaranteed to be the most simple and efficient working Gas Machine on the market. We guarantee all machines as represented and put in on approval. All material of the best, put up in neat and substantial manner. All inquiries for prices or information in regard to installing machine will have prompt attention. Descriptive circulars on application. Rights for sale. Fully protected by patents.
