HOLDS ITS OWN.

Emmitsburg Has Creditable Industries.

HOME MANUFACTURE.

Local Enterprises of Which The People Have a Right to Be and are Proud. Many Useful Commodities Made Right Here In Our Midst.

No dense clouds of smoke from unglazed stacks rise above it; the noise of massive machinery is not heard on every hand, and yet each year the town of Emmitsburg in its quiet way adds its quota to the long list of manufactured products that makes up the sum total of the country's industries, and, strange to say, if the average citizen was asked to enumerate the manufactures in or near the town he would be likely to hesitate, and finally he would fail to name the total number. Yet it would not be so very strange after all, for not many of those who are interested in these various local industries of a manufacturing kind are prone to let the outside public know much about their small but always busy plants.

Here, for instance, is located a Foundry in which is manufactured all kinds of castings for farm machinery and farm implements, plowshares, grates for engines, stoves and furnaces are made here. Iron door sills, sash weights, cattle troughs, fire backs, kettles and wagon parts are products of the firm, and under the same roof is cast one of the best known and most satisfactory stoves on the market at this time. In addition to all these this foundry has made and does make up special orders for the government, for the county and for individuals.

Right at the very depot almost stands the Pin Factory of Zimmerman & Shriver, a busy place which in the course of a year turns out thousands upon thousands of wooden pins, used on telephone poles throughout the country. These pins, owing to their exceptionally good quality, are quickly bought up, and it is often a hard matter to manufacture a sufficient quantity to supply the ever increasing demand.

Outside of the limits of the town, but not a great distance, is located the Broom Factory, a busy concern which makes nothing but the very best quality of brooms. The product of this bustling manufactory is well known not only in this community, but also throughout this and many states.

When it comes to buggies, runabouts, surreys and light vehicles of all kinds there are none better made than those which come out of the local shops.

These vehicles are all made to special order and, apart from being constructed of the best materials which insure long usage, they are invariably representative of the best types in vogue.

The Shirt and Wrapper Factory, another home enterprise, is always working to the full limit of its capacity and every week hundreds of dozens of well made garments are shipped to the city. Only recently new capital has been added to this company, which is now incorporated, and plans have been perfected which will permit of a much greater increase in business.

Acetylene gas-machines giving more or less satisfaction are made in various large cities, but it remained for Emmitsburg to turn out the finest one that is manufactured. This machine, known as the Sunlight Automatic Force Feed Gas Machine, and manufactured by Messrs. J. T. Hays & Son, is the result of many long and careful experiments having for their object the overcoming of the defects noticeable in the other gas machines. The one in question is guaranteed by the makers to be faultless, and that it comes up to the guarantee is evidenced by the numerous testimonials coming to this firm from those who have had these machines installed. Not the least important feature about this improved gas maker is its freedom from those irregularities which have made it necessary for the underwriters to cut out eighty per cent of all the acetylene gas machines made.

The monument and tombstones in many a cemetery and grave yard hereabout and in neighboring towns are the work of an Emmitsburg firm, Hoke & Rider. These gentlemen are busy from one year's end to the other filling orders from far and near. There is an individuality about every monument they make, and the good taste displayed in designing and the high grade of stone used in this work brings many an order to this town that would otherwise be filled elsewhere.

Another home industry is the Emmitsburg Bottling Works, also operated by Zimmerman & Shriver, where soft drinks of all kinds are bottled. There is great demand for soft drinks in this vicinity, especially during the warm months, and these works are taxed to their utmost in supplying the needs of numerous appreciative customers—not only local, but also from a distance. Nor is the smoker forgotten in the list of home manufactures. Although not large in equipment, the town cigar manufactory is constantly busy in producing cigars of various qualities.

MAGAZINE FOR BLIND.

MATILDA ZIEGLER'S GIFT TO THE BLIND.

This Splendid Philanthropic Venture Will be Unique in the Magazine World.—The Bulkier Periodical Ever Circulated.

The first number of a new ten-cent magazine made its appearance last Tuesday. The new periodical is the Matilda Ziegler Magazine for the Blind, and its rate of ten cents is not for a single issue, but for the whole year, a number to appear each month.

Publication will cost those who get it out more than $3 a year for each subscriber, and as yet its plan includes no advertising. Mrs. Matilda Ziegler is bearing the expenses out of her interest in the welfare of the sightless. The ten cents a year is purely nominal. It was necessary in order to get the magazine entered at the post office as second-class matter, but those who forget their subscription will not have their names wiped from the books.

The new magazine is possibly the bulkier in circulation. It is almost square in shape, about a foot and a half in breadth and height and two inches thick. The cover is a light green, and the pages of the finest quality of white paper. In spite of the thickness there are only fifty pages, so that nobody need fall asleep in their perusal. The reading matter appears in the form of raised dots scattered over the pages with the appearance of tiny fish roe. Owing to the manner of printing only one side of the sheet can be used.

The new periodical opens with a publisher's announcement of its purposes. Following is a letter from President Roosevelt, which winds up with "Wishing good luck," and the Chief Executive's signature. Below it is a brief letter of good will from Grover Cleveland, who was once a teacher in a school for the blind in this city, and a longer communication from Helen Keller.

Publishers and authors who have been approached have given the magazine entire freedom in reproducing from their works whatever it pleases. A first instalment of "Mrs Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" appears in the March number, and will be run serially until concluded.

March's issue of the magazine is 7,000 copies. Individual numbers are going out through the mails to-day to 4,500 persons in various parts of the United States who can read the blind alphabet and the other copies to schools. Separate copies will not be sent to every member of a school on account of the expense, but enough that all may have a chance to read.

BARRED FROM MAILS.

CRIMINAL MEDICAL CONCERNS UNDER THE BAN.

Postoffice Department Excludes From The Use Of The Mails, After A Thorough Investigation, Fourteen Philadelphia Medical Offices.

In pursuance of the movement inaugurated against persons engaged in criminal medical practice, Postmaster General Cortelyou issued an order denying the use of the mails to fourteen persons in Philadelphia. The names and addresses of those against whom this action was taken are as follows:

Dr. Fox, 608 North Twelfth street; Mrs. Butz, 1508 North Thirteenth street; Mrs. Lange, 1202 North Seventh street; Mme. Bruno, 120 North Eleventh street; Conde Douche, 503 North Seventh street; Dr. and Mrs. Hale, 510 North Eleventh street; Dr. Bushnell, 510 North Eleventh street and 1427 Fairmount avenue; French Remedy Company, 202 South Twelfth street; Dr. Anna Wood, 134 North Twelfth street; Dr. Hiller, 927 North Seventh street; Dr. Mary Allen, 631 North Sixteenth street; Dr. Bogner, 1637 North Park avenue, and Dr. Harman, 631 North Twelfth street.

This action of the department is in line with the investigation it has made of similar advertising in Boston, New York, and Buffalo, in which cities it has taken action against 100 or more such offices.

HAVE YOU HAD IT?

The only man who insists that you shall count your chickens before they are hatched is the gleefully optimistic party selling incubators. The idea of making a fortune raising chickens catches everybody once in a lifetime, just like chicken-pox. Have you had it?

As the result of the terrible ordeal through which she passed, Miss Jean Mitchell, the beautiful young woman who was found crucified to a sink in her apartments in Pittsburgh, on November 20 last, is now said to be hopelessly insane. She believes, since the crucifixion, that she is a second Christ and is to be crucified several times. No clue as to the identity of the perpetrator of this crime has been obtained.

DEATH RECORD.

Certain Diseases Decidedly On The Increase.

TUBERCULOSIS LEADS.

Bureau of Vital Statistics Issues Its Report.—Complete Account of The Mortality Throughout The Various States.

Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur, chief statistician for vital statistics, has furnished some very interesting data concerning mortality during the year 1905. The statistics appear in the sixth annual report of the Bureau of the Census, just published. They do not cover the entire country, but are restricted to what is termed the "registration area"; that is, to States in which the laws requiring the registration of deaths have been accepted as giving practically complete mortality returns and to cities in non-registration States in which satisfactory returns are required by the local authorities. This registration area in 1905 consisted of ten registration States and 123 registration cities in non-registration States. The ten registration States were Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, and Vermont. The population of the entire area in 1900 was 30,765,618, representing 40.5 per cent. of the total population of continental United States. Of this number, 19,960,742 persons, or 26.3 per cent. of the total population, were in registration States, and 10,804,876 persons, or 14.2 per cent., were in registration cities in non-registration States.

The death rate of 16.2 per 1,000 of population reported for the United States in 1905 is lower than that of Ireland, Germany, or Italy, but higher than that of England and Wales, Scotland, or the Netherlands.

The death rates per 1,000 of the several registration States for 1905 were as follows:

Connecticut	16.5
District of Columbia	16.5
Indiana	12.8
Maine	16.2
Massachusetts	16.2
Michigan	13.5
New Hampshire	17.0
New Jersey	15.8
New York	17.0
Rhode Island	17.1
Vermont	17.0

The diseases for which the death rate during the five-year period, 1900 to 1904, amounted to 10 or more per 100,000, and is apparently increasing, are nephritis and Bright's disease, apoplexy, cancer, diabetes, and appendicitis. They are mostly those of a chronic character and chiefly affect elderly people. Appendicitis is an exception to this statement, but the apparent increase in this cause of death may result from the increasing accuracy of statement among physicians or the tendency to ascribe to this cause deaths that would formerly have been reported otherwise. This statement also applies to apoplexy, which probably in many cases was formerly reported as paralysis, a disease which shows a decreasing rate.

Diseases other than paralysis for which the death rate during the five-year period from 1900 to 1904 amounted to 10 or more per 100,000, and has been fluctuating are the following: Tuberculosis of the lungs, pneumonia, heart disease, diphtheria, and enteritis, typhoid fever, diptheria and croup, meningitis, premature birth, broncho pneumonia, congenital debility, influenza, lack of care, cirrhosis of liver, gastritis, whooping cough, endocarditis, and measles.

Pneumonia	101.1
Heart disease	132.5
Diphtheria and enteritis	116.7
Nephritis and Bright's disease	106.5
Apoplexy	72.1
Cancer	72.1
Accidental traumatism	42.1
Old age	36.4
Measles	34.5
Brucellosis	34.5
Premature birth	32.9
Congenital debility	29.5
Typhoid fever	28.1
Diphtheria and croup	25.8

The number of deaths in the registration area for 1905 resulting from pulmonary tuberculosis was 56,770. Undoubtedly other deaths were due directly or indirectly to this cause, but they were not returned with sufficient precision to be classified thereunder. Prominent among these are deaths from "hemorrhage of the lungs" and also "debility" and "marasmus," not to speak of well-defined cases of pulmonary tuberculosis where the physicians ignore the actual cause of death and record a terminal condition, or even make a worthless return, such as "heart failure."

Among the registration States the rates for pulmonary tuberculosis vary from 88.4 in Michigan to 175.6 in Rhode Island. In the District of Columbia, which is strictly urban in its character, and therefore should be compared with cities rather than with States, the rate was 274.7. Cities of 100,000 population or over in which the number of deaths from tuberculosis per 100,000 of population exceeded 230 were Newark, N. J. (241.1); Cincinnati, Ohio (251.9); San Francisco, Cal. (275.9); New Orleans, La. (316.5); and Denver, Col. (460.4). Cancer, although only seventh among the various causes of death, is of interest because of its steadily growing death rate. In 1905, 24,330 deaths were reported from this cause, of which only 3,189 were males, while 15,141 were of females. An increasing number of deaths is shown with advancing age, until the population becomes too much diminished to maintain the numerical increase. The largest number of deaths for each of the five years from 1901 to 1905, inclusive, has been at the ages of sixty to sixty-four years.

IT IS A KNOX BOOM.

VERY ELIGIBLE IN THE EYES OF DEEMER.

The Senator From Pennsylvania Spoken Of As A Possible Candidate For The Presidency by One of His Admirers.

At a dinner given in Washington last week by Representative Deemer, of Williamsport, Pa., to the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, Hon. Jas. F. Burke, of Pittsburgh, nominated Senator Philander C. Knox for the presidency.

"The logic of the present situation points to Pennsylvania," said Mr. Burke. "From recent declarations of factionalists and development in other States having Presidential possibilities, it seems that there is not one in the list of those under discussion at the present time whose path-way is as clear as the man who has come to be recognized as one of the safest counselors and the possessor of one of the clearest intellects that has found its way into the Senate of the United States."

"In looking over the list of all men in public life who have participated to any notable extent in the most creditable achievements of Theodore Roosevelt, the name of Philander C. Knox looms high above them all. At the very inception of the President's undertaking, when difficulties were countless and the course was filled with many obstacles, it was the trusted Attorney General of the republic who breathed life into dead statutes, imparted vitality to abandoned policies, and pointed with the unerring clearness of the evening star the way to those accomplishments which have done more to immortalize the administration of Theodore Roosevelt than all else in his great struggle for the people's rights."

INCREASE IN TRADE.

Growth Of Our Trade With Our Non-Contiguous Possessions.

The following figures compiled by the Bureau of Statistics, show how American shipments of merchandise have increased in 1906 as compared with 1904: Porto Rico, from $12,000 to $22,000,000; Alaska, from $11,500,000 to $17,500,000; Hawaii, from $11,000,000 to $12,500,000; and to the Philippine Islands from $5,000,000 to a little over $7,000,000. Shipments of merchandise from non-contiguous territories to the United States during the same period have increased as follows:

Hawaii, from $25,000,000 to nearly $30,000,000; Porto Rico, from $13,000,000 to $20,500,000; Alaska, from $10,500,000 to $12,000,000, while in the case of the Philippines there is shown a slight reduction.

Of gold received from Alaska the total of domestic production was, in 1904, a little over $9,000,000, and in 1906, $18,500,000.

GENTLEMAN DEFINED

By Sir Harcourt Courtney, a Character in the Play, "London Assurance."

"And these are the deeds which attest your title to the name of gentleman? I perceive you have caught the infection of the present age. Charles, permit me, as your father, and you, sir as his friend, to correct you on one point. Barefaced assurance is the vulgar substitute for gentlemanly ease; and there are many, who, by aping the poses of the great, imagine that they elevate themselves to the rank of those whose faults alone they copy. No! sir. The title of gentleman is the only one out of any monarch's gift, yet within the reach of every peasant. It should be engrossed by Truth—stamped with Honor—sealed with good-fellowship—signed Man—and enrolled in every true young English heart."

BRIGHT AND NEWSY.

We note with pleasure the handsome improvement made to the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE, by its able and progressive editor, Mr. Sterling Galt. The paper, aside from its bright and newsy qualities, presents a neat appearance typographically and is a credit to its publisher.—Middle-town Valley Register.

MILLIONS IN GLASS.

There are more than 10,000 establishments in the country for raising early vegetable plants under glass. Within a radius of fifteen miles of Boston there are nearly 2,000,000 square feet of glass used in forcing vegetables. Near Providence, R. I., are fully ten acres of glass for the same purpose. The suburbs of New York, Chicago and other big cities use nearly 5,000,000 square feet of glass for strictly vegetable and early fruit culture, and the glass alone used in thus forcing matters is worth millions.

WHAT TO WEAR

Flannels And Serges Will Be Popular For Women.

VERY SMART EFFECTS.

Separate Waists Again In Vogue. Fancy Trimmings, Braids And Buttons To Be Much In Evidence This Season.

A fashion writer whose opinion about dress is always correct, declares that the separate waist will still hold its prestige this season. Of course the entire costume is considered more dressy, but patterns in separate blouses are more numerous and varied than ever before. Flannel of the unshrinkable kind is to be the thing for Spring wear, and the trimmings are to be of bias or plain bands, with fancy braid and ruffings, or with tucks and shirrs, fancy buttons, and straps of contrasting silks or cloths.

The new flannels are light weight, with smooth, even finish and altogether very desirable, but, for all that, the serges, albatross, nun's veiling, and cashmere will hold their own against them, except for sporting costumes, when flannel is invariably the correct material. A very chic little suit for tennis, or boating, or, in fact, for general morning wear, has an oddly designed blouse. There is a shallow yoke piece cut in one with long strap epaulettes pointed at the ends which confine the box plait at either side of the front, which is slightly full underneath. The armholes are outlined with fitted pieces of the blue and striped flannel, cut crosswise and long, pointed pieces are set in at either side of the wide front box plait. The sleeves are of the regulation bishop order, with four-inch cuffs, the tops cut in elongated points, which overlap the under part underneath a pearl button. Pearl buttons also decorate the yoke piece, while three loops of blue lousine matching the blue stripe in the blouse material, in graduated lengths depend from the rounded points of the yoke, and a crush girdle of the same silk gives a charming finish to a charming blouse.

While these flannel waists will enjoy unusual popularity as separate blouses, they will also form accompaniments to skirts of the same material. So, if it is desired to utilize the one blouse in the two ways, it is by all means advisable to select a color or combination of colors that will not fade.

Some of the braid-trimmed waists are wonderfully fetching, and give ample scope for extravagant elaboration, with simple lines. For example, there is a stunning model which would directly come under that observation. It is of deep, creamy white, with the shoulders laid in sixtyn tucks, each tuck some five inches long. Through the centre there runs a three-inch box-plait, which is slashed at intervals for the passage of a soft taffeta tie. At either side and extending slightly over the shoulders are bretelles of the waist fabric, back and front, which are shaped to the waist and are tucked smoothly in the girdle. Around the base of the collar, down the sides of the front plait and outlining the bretelles, is a half-inch fancy braid of loose mesh which is laid over dark blue silk, matching that of the tie and the girdle. The sleeves are laid in several very straight little gathers at the shoulders, and again at the tops of the cuffs which, coming just below the elbow, give the three-quarter effect to the sleeves.

An order has been issued by the postmaster-general providing new regulations governing the size, form, and weight of private post-cards entering the mails. Such post-cards must be made of an unfolded piece of cardboard, not exceeding three and nine-sixteenths by five and nine-sixteenths inches, nor less than two and three-fourths by four inches.

They must in form and quality and weight of paper, be substantially like the Government post-card. They may be of any color, not interfering with a legible address and postmark. Very thin sheets of paper may be attached to them on condition that they completely adhere to the card. Cards bearing particles of glass, metal, mica, sand, tinsel, or other similar substance, will not be accepted for mailing except when enclosed in envelopes.

Four experts from the United States Treasury began on Monday the task of counting the $81,000,000 contained in the subtreasury in Chicago. The count is being made by order of President Roosevelt, who wants to know whether there have been thefts other than of the $173,000 that disappeared last week. Rumors that more than $173,000 had disappeared were circulated about the Federal building in Chicago.

Fifty-three Representatives in Congress who desire to know for themselves the conditions under which the Panama canal is being built sailed Wednesday on the steamship Panama for Colon.

WHICH WILL IT BE?

BOOMS OF ALL KINDS FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

Fairbanks, Knox and Cortelyou Mentioned as Possibilities. Mudd has Settled on Roosevelt as the Man.

On top of a Fairbanks boom, a Knox boom and a Cannon boom comes the report that Mr. Roosevelt is forcing Cortelyou up the ladder as a possible presidential candidate. There may be some foundation for the Cortelyou report as it has been quite evident for some time past that the President has been taking particular care of his protege. But as to whether Mr. Cortelyou has the calibre is a matter of decided doubt among politicians generally.

On the possibility of the President's intention a dispatch from Washington says:

From Secretary of Commerce and Labor Cortelyou was elevated to the Postmaster Generalship, and now he is placed in probably the most important position under the Government, harring the Presidency itself; for, while the Secretary of State outranks him in the order of Cabinet precedence, acts of the Secretary of the Treasury, day in and day out, have much more influence upon the material progress and prosperity of the country.

That the President intends to figure very largely in the selection of the next Republican candidate is a matter that no one here who knows anything of politics will deny. It isn't human nature for a man to have tasted such power as Mr. Roosevelt has in the time he has been the occupant of the White House and quietly step aside when he is still in his prime and permit the management of the party machine to go into other hands. It is not strange, therefore, that his oft-repeated declaration that he would not accept a third term is not taken by a great many persons to literally represent the ultimate decision of the President, if the crown should be pressed steadily upon his brow.

And while these rumors are ripe and the statement is made that the President is "too good a politician to run counter to the American prejudice against a third-term idea," up pops Mr. Mudd who declares that Mr. Roosevelt will get the nomination, and in this fashion: "The convention will assemble with many names before it. Suddenly some man will rise and propose the name of Roosevelt. That will settle the whole matter. They won't stop to worry about Roosevelt's desires, but they will choose him and he will accept. He will be elected."

Mr. Mudd has spoken. There is nothing further to be said or done, for what Mr. Mudd does not know is not worth knowing.

ABOUT FOOTBALL

"FIERCE" SAYS ELIOT, "CLEAN" SAYS ROOSEVELT.

A Slight Difference Of Opinion Between Presidents Roosevelt And Eliot.—The Former Upholds The Game, The Latter Dislikes It.

President Eliot, of Harvard, is strenuously opposed to football, basketball and hockey, and in his annual report will tell all that he thinks about them.

On the other hand President Roosevelt is highly in favor of these sports and forcefully supports them.

Says President Eliot: "The game of football was somewhat improved by the new rules extorted last year from its creators and managers by the pressure of public opinion. . . . The spirit of the game, however, remains the same. It is properly described by the adjective 'fierce'—a term commonly applied to the game by its advocates. It, therefore, remains an undesirable game for gentlemen to play or for multitudes of spectators to watch."

Mr. Roosevelt's views are as follows: "As I emphatically disbelieve in seeing Harvard or any other college turn out molly-coddles instead of vigorous men, I do not in the least object to a sport because it is rough. . . . The preparatory schools are able to keep football clean without the necessity arising to so much as consider the question of abolishing it. . . . There is no justification for stopping a thoroughly manly sport because it is sometimes abused, when it is shown that the abuse is in no shape attendant upon the game."

THEY NEVER FORGET.

Elbert Hubbard says that "Common-place people have good memories. They never forget the good they do; the wrongs that are done them; nor the faults of their friends. Memory means misery, but heaven lies in faith, hope and love; and love looks to the East, with a finger to her lips."

Accompanying a donation of one hundred dollars to the Russian Famine Relief Committee President Roosevelt called the attention of the people to the present "literally unprecedented prosperity" of the country, and hopes the people out of their abundance will give generously on this occasion. His letter is in reply to one received from the committee, calling his attention to the urgent need of assistance.

IT'S ALL OVER

Second Session of the Fifty-Ninth Congress.

THE MONEY IT SPENT

Will Cause It To Be Long Remembered. Shall It Be Labeled Good Or Bad. Measures of General Interest Which Passed.

Amid the singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and the waving of American flags both branches of the Fifty-ninth Congress adjourned sine die at 12.15 P. M., Monday. In the diplomatic gallery of the House on the closing day James Bryce, ambassador from Great Britain and Mrs. Bryce were the principal figures of interest. In the Senate the exchange of farewells and the benedictions of the Vice-President upon his colleagues and the newspaper men made up the closing scenes of that august body.

"This second session of the Fifty-ninth Congress," says the special correspondent of the New York Evening Post, "will be remembered by the money it has spent rather than for the good it has done. It has not been an epochal Congress, save as a money-spenders. It has become the fashion in certain quarters, probably because of the President's dominating personality, to inquire at the end of each session of Congress what Mr. Roosevelt 'has got out of it.' The thick-and-thin supporters of the Administration then proceed to label the Congress 'good' or 'bad,' as it has yielded to the President's eager importunities for new legislation, or denied him his demands."

During the Winter the President has sent a great many messages to Congress, about forty in all, and nearly all of them came during the first week of the session. Some of his pet measures were passed, others were voted down. Among the first kind probably the most gratifying to him was the bill authorizing the building of two battle-ships. Whether Mr. Roosevelt went out in the Japanese imbroglio is a matter of doubt. If he did win, the victory was not a great one.

The Senate at last sanctioned the Santo Domingo treaty. The Philippine tariff bill is all right when looked at from the view point of the sugar and tobacco interests. This bill is not a matter of self-congratulation to the President. All the power and pleas of the Administration were not sufficient to have the customs duties decreased on the products of the Philippines. This bill will again appear before Congress next Winter.

The bill to give the Government the right of appeal in certain criminal cases, advocated by the President in one of his messages, was so changed in the Senate that it might as well not have been passed. The service pension bill was passed and this enactment will cost the Government about $15,000,000 the first year. The Senate and House voted to increase the pay of Senators and members from $5,000 a year to $7,500 a year. They voted as well to increase the pay of the Speaker, the Vice-President, and the Cabinet officials. The pay of nearly every postal employee in the country has been increased under the provision of the Post Office Appropriation bill. Congress, however, refused absolutely, despite local pressure, to increase the pay of the Government clerks employed in the department of War.

The outcome of the Brownsville investigation is unknown. The bitterness of the debate and the time consumed is to be regretted. The correspondent quoted in the first part of his article says, "If the Senators would speak truly they probably would say that they know as little about the real truth of the affair on the Rio Grande to-day as they did at reveille on the morning after it occurred."

Senator Smoot will occupy his seat despite the wail of the W. C. T. U. The long delay in the business of the Senate caused by this and the Brownsville incident spurred the members to some hasty action. In fifty-two minutes the naval appropriation bill carrying $100,727,307.50 was passed. The Military Academy will get $2,000,000 due to ten minutes work of the Senate. The Fortification and the Diplomatic and Consular bills went through the Senate in less than an hour. The District of Columbia Appropriation bill, carrying several millions was put to a final vote in the Senate within sixty-five minutes from the time of its introduction. In eighty-seven minutes ninety-two millions were appropriated for Rivers and Harbors.

The following bills were passed in addition to those above mentioned: Providing for an increase in the Artillery Corps; the forbidding of corporations to contribute money to political campaigns; the limiting of the working hours of railroad employees; the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippines; the Currency law widening the scope of the authority of the secretary of the treasury to deposit Government money in national banks, and providing for the issuance of gold certificates in small denominations.

The following were killed: The Eight-hour bill; the Anti-injunction bill; the bill to confer citizenship upon Porto Ricans; the Crumpacker Post Office Fraud Order bill; the Child Labor bill; the bill to regulate interstate traffic in intoxicating liquors; swamp land reclamation; modification of the Chinese Exclusion act; copyright revision, and the removal of duty on works of art. The Subsidy bill died of old age the last moments of the session.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1907.

THERE are many towns as large as this one in which little or no manufacturing is done, and although Emmitsburg does not pretend to be a manufacturing place its people should feel proud that, in every instance, whatever has been manufactured here has not only come up to the required standard, but has often surpassed it. It may not be generally known that our local foundry for a long time was the only foundry in operation in Frederick county, and the fact may be overlooked that our local manufacturers surpass many in larger places in the production of certain things.

But Emmitsburg could do a much larger volume of business in the lines of manufacture already established if a greater effort was made to give local enterprises more publicity.

In these days "well enough" should be an obsolete phrase. It carries with it the idea of limitation, and progress should certainly not be restricted to narrow or essentially local channels. And this applies to the town itself and to its business places generally. It is manifestly to our individual interests as citizens, property owners and business people, to do all we can to further the prosperity of Emmitsburg; to let more outsiders know that there is such a place and to convince them, moreover, that it is a good place; and it is certainly to our collective and individual advantage to persuade as many others as possible to take up their abode among us.

Emmitsburg people are kindly people; they are thrifty people; they are solid people; but they do have a decided tendency to hide their light under a bushel.

AFTER all is there much wonder why it has been sought to exclude from newspapers the unnecessary details of the testimony that has been given in the Thaw trial during the long drawn out session of the New York Court? Who that has followed the proceedings of the two murder cases, the one referred to and the other in Virginia, could have failed to be deeply struck by the contrast in the manner of conducting the examination of the various witnesses for the prosecution and the defense?

In the one case every bit of evidence that was particularly revolting has been eagerly and unfeelingly wrung from the chief witness and given immoderate emphasis by the prosecutor; every nauseous feature of the evidence has been accentuated in the boldest manner by enforced and entirely unnecessary repetition; and the most glaring examples of moral depravity have been dwelt upon and over-emphasized by a merciless prosecutor while crowds of sensational-loving people have been permitted to jostle each other in attempts to gain positions from which to hear more distinctly every indecent utterance that has been forced from the lips of a woman.

In the other case only those who had any legitimate connection with the unfortunate trial were permitted to be present, and judge and prosecutor and counsel for the defense were ever conscious of the fact that they were dealing with a woman for a chief witness. Prosecutor and defending lawyer were considerate in the manner of presenting their questions to her and chivalrously thoughtful in couching their interrogatories to others whose answers were to be given in the hearing of women. And in the end all the facts were brought out; no point was overlooked; the interests of the prosecution and the defense were sacredly upheld.

Let a distinction be made between the characters of the two women, if need be; let the line of social demarkation be strictly drawn; the fact nevertheless remains that both witnesses were women and the facts to which they were forced to testify, and the unnecessary publicity given to those facts, must inevitably leave their baneful impress upon the minds of thousands who by its publication formed their first acquaintance with open immorality. Entirely disregard, if need be, the feelings of the witness in one of these depraving tragedies; consider only what was wrung from her and enlarged upon and broadened and intensified; then think of its effect upon the minds of those of tender age. Does not a reproduction of the whole testimony, the sensational scene, the flippant allusion to unspeakable subjects have a tendency to minimize the public attitude toward crime; to belittle the dignity of courts of justice, and to foster a familiarity with indecency?

It is the effect produced, the example set and the influence for ill put in motion by the publication of these details of testimony that does the harm—and it is a lasting harm.

ALWAYS say the good word about your own town, about its people and its enterprises. Have faith in your community and be always ready to lend a hand in pushing forward its best interests. Uphold law and order; keep your own troubles to yourself, but be quick to speak the word of encouragement. In short be a good citizen.

WHEN it is realized that the House of Lords is composed of some minors, more chronic invalids, many impecunious barons and one or two who are of unsound mind, is there much wonder that there is an agitation to abolish it?

BEFORE another winter rolls around it is to be hoped that many of the unsightly and dangerous side walks of our town will have been replaced by others that are newer and more serviceable. But in order to insure the accomplishment of this badly needed improvement it will be necessary to have a proper grade determined upon, and this should be done by the authority of the commissioners. As it is everything is at sixes and sevens. One sidewalk is high, another low, and a few extend beyond the gutter line. Several people who have been and who are now willing to make improvements of this kind have refrained from so doing on this very account. At present there is no established grade, and there never will be until some action is taken in the matter by the proper authorities.

The citizens of the town have faith in their commissioners, and those who are only too willing to lay new sidewalks feel assured that these gentlemen will not delay improvement by a failure to meet the people half-way. But whatever you do, Messrs. Commissioners, by all means secure the services of a competent engineer. Have him establish the grade and when this is done make it incumbent upon each property owner to lay his sidewalk in accordance with it. Then and only then will our streets have any semblance of uniformity and neatness.

This month is the anniversary of the birth of Robert Emmet, that martyr to the cause of Ireland's freedom, whose memory all true Irishmen revere and whose traits of character none can do aught but admire. He was only one of the many whom "Old Erin" has sent forth to become beacons in the world's history, and each recurrence of this month should serve to remind her sons that Irishmen do not stand second to men of any nation in religion, in the arts, in letters, in music, in the professions or in any calling whatsoever.

Congregationalists See the Need of Keeping Lent.

"He must have thoroughly mastered the art of Christian living," says the Congregationalist of Boston, "who has no need from time to time to curb his appetite; to refrain from this or that social diversion; to take himself rigidly in hand and strengthen his nature where it is weak and cleanse it where it is impure. Theoretically, any season of the year serves this purpose of self-examination and self-discipline as well as the six weeks before Easter. Theoretically, any day may be kept as holy as the Sabbath; but in point of fact, the specific season offers peculiar advantages to cast out the things that stifle the better nature. We never expect to see, even during Lent, any preponderant number of Christians abstaining from meat on Wednesdays and Fridays; but we should like to see Christians generally entering so deeply into the meaning of the Christian life that they would, of their own accord and each in his own way, deal relentlessly with themselves in the spirit of that great saying of Paul's, 'They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts thereof.'"

HAGERSTOWN EVENTS.

What Goes on From Day to Day.—The News of The Week.

Lewis Myers, a farmer living near Hancock, Washington county, whose criminal relations with his own daughter, both under sixteen years of age, greatly excited the neighborhood in which he lived, was sentenced on Saturday afternoon by Judge Keefe to ten years in the penitentiary. Myers shows many symptoms of insanity. Before the sentence was imposed, when asked if he had anything to say, he told the court that it was highly important that he get back to his farm and prepare for the spring work.

A freight conductor on the Western Maryland Railroad, Mr. Charles Murray, of Hagerstown, was killed in a wreck near Stanley last Saturday morning.

One of the worst landslides since the completion of the Cumberland extension of the Western Maryland Railroad occurred on Saturday morning near Kieffers Station, 45 miles west of Hagerstown. For a distance of over a hundred yards the track was covered with earth and rock that rolled down the mountain side. All section hands on the division were rushed to the scene of the trouble.

A conference of prominent railroad officials representing the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Western Maryland railroads, met in Hagerstown last week. Among the various matters said to have been discussed was the handling of fast freight through Hagerstown and also the erection of a union depot for the Western Maryland, Norfolk and Western and Cumberland valley roads. President McCrea of the Pennsylvania, and Murray of the Baltimore & Ohio were present.

The election of town commissioners at Williamsport last Monday resulted in the selection for a one-year term of George W. MacCaddell, editor of the Leader. It was one of the most exciting local elections ever held in Williamsport.

The J. C. Hollingsworth Wheel Company, of Wheel, Harford county, has been absorbed by the Hagerstown Spoke and Bending Company, which has increased its capital stock from $100,000 to $150,000.

The Hagerstown Socialists have nominated G. S. B. Heck, John S. Jones and Oliver S. Hines for Councilmen on a platform declaring for municipal ownership of waterworks, coal yards, icehouses, gasworks, bakeries and butcher shops. They demand direct election by the people of all administrative city officers.

The Western Maryland Railroad Company has purchased a new locomotive, which, under steam, weighs 221 tons and has a hauling capacity of 3,000 tons. The boiler is 84 inches in diameter.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[In this column "UNCLE BILL" will answer all questions of a proper character submitted to THE CHRONICLE. Readers of this paper should not hesitate to patronize this column frequently, as "UNCLE BILL" draws a big salary and loves to work.]

Uncle Bill: I have frequently heard the terms "mote" and "beam" used in connection with the human eye. Can you tell me what such expressions mean?

DULLARD.

Dullard: The expressions are polite terms for the simple phrase "hunting trouble." An example of this "beaming" trouble is to be found in the recent utterances of Senator Morgan, representing the State of Alabama, which by the way is not a beamless State, when he takes up the case of the negro, not in Alabama, but in far off Africa, and gets out his optical instruments, in this case a hammer, and tries to remove the eye of King Leopold from the mote, by knocking the same optic into a cocked hat. These poor "exiles"—the descendants of Congo negroes—have ever been the subject of much solicitation to the worthy neighbors of Senator Morgan, and while the treatment of these exiles Africans may be a mote done in Alabama, over in Belgium it is decidedly a beam. When Senator Morgan, King of the Knockers, arraigns scathingly Leopold, King of the Belgians, it is a beam trying to pry out of a mote.

Uncle Bill: What is an expensive luxury?

SIMPLETON.

Simpleton: Being a bachelor I can only speak in veiled terms, which reminds me that it costs something to go up against the woman proposition. Just see what a pretty penny it cost us men to seat Smoot safely in the Senate when one million women headed the opposition. Fifteen thousand dollars out of our funds has to be spent on balm for Smoot's feelings. Let me therefore declare that Smoot is an expensive luxury. I hope the Senate will not lose him until they get their money's worth; but then it will cost something to bury him and to pay the expenses of the Junketing Committee from Congress, whose duty it is to see that he is "officially" buried. And if he is polygamous there will be half-dozen pensions coming to Mrs. Smoot, and all the little Smoots will be after kickings. It is hoped that during his term no one will try to shoot the Smoots. Some people say that the Government ought to pay Joseph Bailey's bill for the little time he had down there in Texas, beside his regular salary for time while away—not wiled away. May be the Senate is an expensive luxury.

WATTERSON-TARIFF.

Tarifa! Does the name not sound a trifle familiar? In the olden and golden days of primitive man, before corporation lawyers had learned how to frame pillaging statutes and slick politicians to bamboozle confiding constituencies—when they even took who had the power and they even kept who could—the gentle pirates of Tarifa laid broad and deep the foundations for the protective system in the United States.

To take by law from one man what is his and give it to another man who has not earned it and has no right to it was an invention of the Moors, copied by the Spaniards, and elevated thence into political economy by the Americans. Tarifa took its name from Tarif-Ben-Malik, the boss robber baron of his day, and thus the lords of Tarifa were the progenitors of the robber barons of the Rhine and of Pennsylvania. Tribute was the name they gave the robbery, which was open and aboveboard. The coal kings, the steel kings, and the oil kings of the modern world have contrived to hide the process of their stealing; but in Cadiz and in Seville the palaces of their forefathers rise in lonely and solemn grandeur just as a thousand years hence the palaces upon the Fifth avenue side of Central Park and along Riverside Drive may become but roosts for bats and owls, and the chronicler of the anthropophagi, "whose heads do reach the skies," may tell how the people of the great republic were bought and sold with their own money, until "heaven released their legions north of the north pole, and they swooped down and crushed the putrid mass beneath their avenging snowsides?"

We can sympathize with the inhabitants of Taneytown as the shades of evening fall upon their benighted town. Despair not, fair Taneytown! your sister, Emmitsburg, from out the darkness of midnight sends cheer and greeting! We too are groping toward the light, and the burden of our cry is ever clearer and stronger, light, more light, walks, side-walks!

NEWS FROM FREDERICK

Abridged Items From The County Seat Of General Interest To The Local Public.

Dr. Elisha E. Mullinix, 56 years old, a well-known physician of Urbana, Frederick county, and brother to Lorenzo E. Mullinix, of Frederick, died at his home on Tuesday afternoon after a week's illness of pneumonia. He was the oldest son of the late Leonard C. Mullinix, of Frederick county, and after an academic course at Frederick College entered the University of Maryland, Baltimore, where he was graduating in 1874, remaining one year at the University Hospital as resident physician. Dr. Mullinix practiced his profession in Baltimore for two years. He then came to this county and located in Urbana, where in the last 30 years he has built up a large and lucrative practice. He was a member of the Frederick County Medical Society and was on the staff of physicians at the Frederick City Hospital. He married Miss Mary Darling, of Baltimore, who survives him with five children, four daughters—Mrs. Frank Hedges, of Frederick; Mrs. Newton Wolf and Misses Virginia and Frances Mullinix, and one son, Eldridge Mullinix. The funeral was held at his late home on Thursday morning.

Mr. Max von Schlegel who has been special agent at Frederick for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., has resigned his position and accepted a more lucrative one in Martinsburg, W. Va. Mr. von Schlegel's change in the nature of a promotion as his new position carries with it greater responsibilities at a larger salary. During the time this gentleman acted as special agent for the C. & P. Co., he accomplished splendid work in building up business throughout the county, and his genial and attractive personality made him many friends who will regret his departure from Frederick. Mr. von Schlegel's successor is Mr. C. H. Kreh, a gentleman whose rare executive ability will be invaluable to the company whose interests he so capably guards.

Mr. Frederick J. Steckman, son of Mr. N. C. Steckman of near Frederick, and Miss Oda Mae Virts, daughter of Mr. Edward J. Virts, were married in the Lutheran Church, Jefferson, Frederick county, by the Rev. W. T. S. Montz.

It is expected that further testimony in the Bentz case will be taken next Thursday.

Mr. Cornelius Mercier, a well-known retired farmer, 83 years old, died Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Wm. H. Geisbert, in his daughter's home.

A marriage license was granted to Lewis Brown and Julia A. Fogle, both from near Emmitsburg.

The case of Amann, Horner & Co., vs. Hugh F. Roddy was suspended until later date and the jury excused for the present. The object of the suspension is to give time for the accounts of the notes, and the discounts made, to be looked up, which could be done to greater advantage out of court, and with less expense.

Arrangements are being made for improvements to the Blue Mountain House by the new owners of the hotel, and about $40,000 is to be expended.

Some of her property has been taken to their own use. Mr. Glover believes that his mother is too feeble in body and mind to attend to her business.

George von L. Meyer, of Massachusetts, was sworn in as Postmaster General last Monday afternoon, to succeed George B. Cortelyou, who was sworn in later as Secretary of Treasury.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

LIVE CAPITAL TOPICS.

Weekly Letter From Our Regular Correspondent.

Considering the vast expenditures of this Congress, which will reach near the two billion mark, there has been nothing approaching the storm of disapprobation which assailed the "billion dollar Congress." The people have perhaps come to an understanding of the enormous increase in governmental expense in the last decade and they accept with surprising equanimity the announcements of the huge appropriations. It takes but a glance to see how the expenses of this government have gone on increasing at this astounding rate. The acquisition of our foreign dependencies has been one of the most prolific sources of our expenditure, and the defense of these colonies calls for even more than for their administration. Previous to the Spanish war our army numbered about 26,000. Now we have a force of 60,000, the greater part of which is employed to protect our Oriental possessions. The Pearl of the Antilles has been the costliest jewel in our diadem and our latest intervention there has added several millions to our National budget though this will finally fall on Cuba. Then we have engaged to dig a canal that will connect the great oceans and the job has already proved an expensive one. These are all what one might call outside expenses, comparable in household economics to the luxuries. But our home and necessary disbursements have gone on increasing in about the same proportion. The Postal system has been greatly extended and in fact all the departments of the civil service have been increased as a result of the unparalleled growth and prosperity of the Nation. It is true that we have an extravagant and cumbersome system and that many millions could be saved in every department if the proper administration of the departments were to be inaugurated, but it is as well to look for the millennium as to look for thrift in Government affairs under the present system. But if there is extravagance and waste everywhere, at least the housecleanings of this Administration have done away with much dishonesty and graft and if this regime can be counted for a decade longer we may expect great economical changes for the better.

One of the most serious blows to the Congressman's pocket came in the surrender of railroad passes last year so that there were many serious faces when the House Committee on Appropriations reported this week that in their judgement eight cents a mile was sufficient allowance for mileage in place of ten cents heretofore received. Of course Congressmen are flush now with a fifty per cent addition to their salaries, but a loss of two cents a mile on their journeys to and from the Capital is not a matter to joke about. The average railroad rate is about two cents a mile and the extra eight cents that Congressmen have enjoyed has not only supplied them with sleeping car accommodations, meals and cigars, but has in fact been a source from which to draw for the savings bank account. An article appearing recently in one of the magazines, written by Senator Beveridge and treating of the vast expenses of life in Washington, is provoking much comment and criticism at the Capital. People are saying that either the Indiana Senator is an "easy mark" and has been pitifully "done" since he came to Congress or that he is exaggerating the true conditions of living in Washington. According to his findings a man can scarcely keep the wolf from the door with an income under ten thousand a year, and that among his friends there are many who can only keep up the illusion of "appearances" by spending from $25,000 to $75,000 each year. It is a favorite complaint with all Congressional families here that the Congressional salary cannot be stretched over a decent living at the Capital, but the old residents know that in spite of the increased cost in the necessities of life that five thousand a year will not only keep a family here as well as it will in any of the large cities but that in the case of Congressmen it will go farther since they receive many concessions on account of their position. It does not need the word of the old resident though to confirm this information for the fact that there are Congressmen who do live here decently and who do save money besides is sufficient to establish it.

The Isthmian Canal situation is furnishing an ample topic for gossip these days and if the President loses sleep over anything Canal affairs must be keeping him awake o' nights. Mr. Oliver is proclaiming that it has been a "skin game" and that he is out forty thousand dollars as a result of taking his chances with the government.

He Believes in Foreign Missions.

Mr. Jacob A. Riis, who does so much for various classes of the poor and for the newly arrived immigrants in New York, says that he once "growled" against foreign missions, like many others who know no better. He writes that now he has learned that "for every dollar you give to convert the heathen abroad God gives you ten dollars' worth of purpose to deal with your heathen at home."

Archie Roosevelt, the President's 14-year-old son, has diphtheria and is confined to a room in the southeast part of the White House under the care of his physicians.

NOT A QUORUM PRESENT.

Last Friday was the regular night for the meeting of the Vigilant Hose Company. Exactly six members were present, and as this number did not constitute a quorum the meeting was called off.

There is some important business to be transacted and the unconcern of the majority of the members makes it impossible for it to be transacted. Some radical action should be taken in this matter before bills and other expenses, which are rapidly multiplying, become too great. It is supposed that the next meeting will be well attended.
