A GREAT MIND.

Tribute To Emerson By Prof. George E. Woodberry

A VAST IMAGINATION.

The Biographer of Poe and of Hawthorne and the Student of Whitman Exalts Emerson High Above American Men of Letters.

America has produced in literature.' This from the pen of Prof. Geo. E. Woodberry who in his recent book on Ralph Waldo Emerson, (published by the Macmillan Co) says further:

"His page is as fresh in Japan and by the Ganges as in Boston; and it may well be that in the blending of the East and West that must finally come in civilization the limitations that awaken distrust in the Occidental mind may be advantages when he is approached from the Oriental slope of thought, and his works may prove one of the reconciling influences

This decision followed a conference between the district attorney and counsel for the defence. The Justice told the lawyers that he had given the matter great consideration, and that it was a question of conflicting affidavits, which he did not feel he could himself decide, so he would appoint a commission.

The memorandum of the Justice reads, "I do, therefore, in pursuance of the statute in such cases made and provided, hereby appoint the Hon. Moral slope of thought, and his works may prove one of the reconciling influences of that larger world. His material is permanent; there will always be men in his stage of mental culture or, at least, of his religious developement; his literary merit is sufficient to secure long life to his writings. For this reason his fame seems permanent, and with it his broad contact with the minds of men. However unconvincing he is tatute in such cases made and provided, hereby appoint the Hon. Morgan J. This luster of na-ture is one of his prime and characterture is one of his prime and characteristic traits. There is, too, a singular nakedness of outline as of things seen in the clarity of New England air. His philosophy even helps him to melt and fuse the scene at other times, and gives impressionist effects, transparancies of nature improvements the encies of nature, unknown aspects, the stream of the flowing azure, the drift of elemental heat over waking lands, the insubstantial and dreaming mounty worry, anxiety, hatree, jealousy, anger, great self-shypes, are all deadly one. sionism in the service of philosophy.

wherever his theme may begin it becomes religious, he exhorts, and all ends at last in the primacy of morals. The 'Essays' are the best of lay-sermons, but their laicism is only the king's incognito. He was so much a man of religion that he undervalued literature science, and art, and their chief examples, because they viewed life from a different point, just as on life from a different point, just as on his first visit to England he thought Landor and Carlyle, Wordsworth and Coleridge, failed of the full measure of Coleridge, failed of the full measure of the life from a different point, just as a different point, just as on the day's run, just as a life from a different point, just as life from a different point, just as on his first visit to England he thought lating, needs to be put in perfect tune, adjusted to a nicety every morning before it starts on the day's run, just as men because they were not everwhelm- a violin needs tuning before the coningly filled with the moral sentiment | cert begins. and its importance In both cases the view taken is professional. Literature shrewd in other matters, should be so enters into the 'Essays' as salt and savor; but their end is not literary. Emerson in the substance of his works belongs with the divine writers, the religious spiritualists, the sacred moralists, the mystic philosophers, in whose hands all things turn to religion, to whom all life is religion, and nothing mayes in the world except divine mean-

But it is not within narrow limits of political or worldly wisdom that his influence and treather than the country were and the country within a much fresher condition if he had taken time to put himself in tune before going to his office in the worldly wisdom that his limited that teachings have their effect; but in the invigoration of the personal life with which his pages are electric. No man who goes to work in the morning feeling out of sorts with everybody, in an antagonistic attitude of body, in an antagonistic attitude of the proposed by the sort of the proposed by the sort of the proposed by the sort of the proposed by the prop more unshackled. To obey one's disposition is a broad charter, and sends the soul to all seas. The discontented, the no condition to bring the maximum of troubled in conscience, the revolutionary spirits of all lands are his pensioners; the seed of their thoughts is here, and also the constitution of his power to his task. A large percentage of his mental forces will not be available. and also the spirit that strengthens in lonely toils, and perhaps in desperate tasks, for the wind of the world blows efficiency of the work done that counts? such winged seed into far and strange places. It is not by intellectual light, more in two or three hours of vigorous, places. It is not by intellectual light, but by this immense moral force that his genius works in the world. He was so great because he embodied the American spirit in his works and was himself a plain and shining example of it; and an American knows not whether to reverse mean the simple maphood of his instrument—tired nerves. to revere more the simple manhood of his instrument-tired nerves, a jaded or personal life in his home and in the world, or that spiritual light which shines from him, and of which the radiance flowed from him even in life.

The three died leves, a fadet of world life world brain.

Forcing the brain to work when it is out of tune is a very shortsighted policy. It takes too much out of the shines from him, and of which the radiance flowed from him even in life. That light all men who knew him saw as plainly as Carlyle when he watched him go up the hill at Craigenputtock and disappear over the crest 'like an angel.'"

The efficiency of the great majority of business and professional men is seriously marred by the little irritating annovances. The first thing, then, to annovances. The first thing, then, to shove the store was awakened by

One has often in reading him that feeling of eternity in the thought which is the sign royal of greatness.

The Resurrection Life.

Colossians, iii: 1-4: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory."

The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the keystone of the arch of redemption. The first and second coming are the buttresses. In the first coming we have the incarnation, Christ's life and His death, and in His second coming His glorious reappearing and the consummation of God's eternal purposes. The resurrection completes and perfects the arch for the complete redemption of mankind.

When Jesus came into the world it was God coming down to man. When He went into heaven it was man going up

When Jesus came into the world it was God coming down to man. When He went into heaven it was man going up to God, and the glorious connecting link between these two great events was the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

If He did not arise from the dead "preaching is vain," "our faith is vain," and we "are yet in our sins." For He died for our sins, but was raised for our justification. Hence, if He did not arise we are still in our sins and there is no hope of immortality. For without immortality and a positive proof of it we are left to cry aloud, with no answer except the echo of our hopless cry, and no help, for He in whom we trusted is dead and did not arise.

If Christ did not arise, then life's inequalities will never be leveled up; man's ideals will never be realized; prophecies will never be fulfilled; the deeper meanings of the soul's longings and nature's teachings will never be understood; Christ's character is a wreck and His promises fade away like a moment's foam fade into the wave that bears it and is lost forever. If Christ, be not risen, then Christianity is a false religion, for it has been founded on Christ and His resurrection, and 400,000,000 Christians have been deceived. If Christ did not arise, then death is one long, dark night without any day, and the hopes, deep longings, future perfection and eternal peace and joy are shrouds for the grave, but not robes of resurrection glory. The saddest, darkest thought that could come to our world is that Jesus Christ did not arise from the dead!

If He did not arise, then we have no authority for observing the first-day of the week as our Sabbath, no foundation for the teachings of the Scriptures; no fulfillment of a large part of prophecy and no meaning to the ordinances of the New Testament and the Christian church.

Of an indescribable joy.

Very inspiring indeed is the singing of the "Miserere" and the "Benedictus." The stately solemnity of these wonder-full chants is immortal. When every the stately solemnity of these wonder-full chants is immortal.

New Testament and the Christian church.

Dr. Arnold, whose ability as a thinker none will doubt, says: "I have been used for many years to study the history of other times and to examine and weigh the evidences of those who have written about them, and I know of no one fact in the historsy of mankind which is proved by better and fuller evidence of every sort to the mind of a fair inquirer than the great sign which God has given us, that Christ died and rose again from the dead."

Then, if Christ has arisen from the dead He liveth forever, for there is nothing in this universe to destroy Him, and our faith in Him is a channel through which we receive His life, which is eternal life; if He has arisen then the Christian Church is a consequence of and an outgrowth from the victorium.

our faith in Him is a channel through which we receive His life, which is eternal life; if He has arisen then the Christian Sabbaths are linked with the open grave; the Christian Church is a consequence of and an outgrowth from the victorious life of Christ; the ordinances are then symbols of great events, in His life, and the teachings and exhortations of the Apostle Paul in the chapter and the text have a fullness of meaning which can only be realized in eternity completely. "Seeking those things above," "setting the mind on things above," is the positive side of the Christian life conditioned on the resurrection of Christ. "Setting not the mind on things upon the earth," is the negative side, and only possible as the higher, nobler and eternal life of Christ supplants the sensuous, lower and sinful life of man.

All that occurred in Christ as man's representative has been attributed to man in Him. The Christian died in Christ; arose in Christ; ascended in Christ; lives in heaven in Christ. (Romans, 6; Ephesians, Philippians and Colossians all teach these truths.) "For our citizenship is in heaven," "We sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus," and "When Christ, who is our life, shall be manifested, then shall ye also with Him be manifested in glory." It is a "life hid with Christ in God," but it is the Christian's life in operation now and will be the life that shall be manifested when Christ is manifested in glory.

Christ is manifested in glory.

Jesus Christ is the fountain of life, and faith is the appropriating channel by which that life becomes ours. Hence the spiritual is the only life that is eternal as to its existence and relationship. "This is life eternal, that they may know Thee the only true God and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

COLLEGE NOTES.

Religious Services of Palm Sunday And Holy Week.-Baseball Candidates Busy.

On last Sunday, the feast of Palm Sunday, the impressive ceremonies prescribed for that day by the ritual of the Catholic Church, were carried out most minutely at Mt. St. Mary's Seminary. This was the beginning of Holy Week, which is, in the Catholic Church, especially, a season of most solemn and impressive ceremonies. On Sunday the passion of Our Lord was chanted from V. Ruddy members of the Seminary choir. Rev. Father James J. Burke was celebrant of the Mass. On Wednesday at 3.30 P. M. began the solemn ceremonies of tenebras which continued until Friday. ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

What are the leading points to be noticed when buying a horse?

Equus: First have faith—not the kind that comes in bottles; next, a loose wad; let the auctioneer know of this and then the auctioneer know of this and then forget that you had it. When a horse is represented to be six years old add two ciphers, divided by four and you are within calling distance of his age. Drop a nickle in his ear and pull his tongue, if the bell rings you're it. If the horse is blind he can't see you. Hold three fingers in front of the horse (but don't let him get it) and a good animal will weep; a perverted animal will be disapweep; a perverted animal will be disap-

BRAINS.

Is it dead—you have to use chlorate of lime to approach it. Did I understand you to say dead—why the buzzards have forgotten it. It is so dead that the Postoffice Department has sent out a fraud order against it and all letters addressed in sanskrit are sent to Jerome for prosecution. A president of a well-known brain factory once attempted to deliver a lecture on sanskrit and was arrested by Anthony Comstock. Dead! Why it's as dead as Frederick. They both belong to the same era.

The Improved Frictionless 'Empire.'

You keep cows, you keep them for the results to be obtained, for the dollars you can make out of them. We make and sell Cream Separators for the same reason-dollars. You can buy a Cream Separator for less money, but you cannot buy any other Cream Separator as good as the Empire for any price.

Did you take the wrong road? Why not take the back track?
We all make mistakes occasionally; the harm is in not correcting them. If you have a low-down machine, or $19.00 stuff, why not set it aside and

BUY AN EMPIRE?

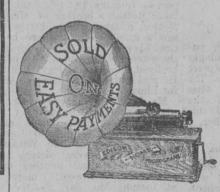

If you have any o the standard Cream Separators that have served their use-fulness, and have vibration from old age we will take them in part pay for an Empire. For anything in the Dairy line, no matter what, Address,
