Governor Hughes' Speech At Buffalo Last Week.

THE PUBLIC JUDGMENT

Two Classes Of Enemies To The Prosperity Of The Country-The Unscrupulous And Those Who Would Profit By Unprincipled Agitation.

A great many influential Buffalo business men listened to Governor Hughes' admirable speech delivered at the banquet given by the Chamber of ommerce last Thursday night. The Governor, who was the principal speaker said in part:

"We sometimes hear voiced a feeling of resentment against the assertion of public rights, upon the ground that it is attack upon the business interests

A railroad man told me the other day that for the purpose of securing necessary assistants in the enlargement of his railroad facilities he had sent to one of the largest railroad corpora-tions in the country for a list of avail-able men. He had received the names of a considerable number between thirty-five and forty-five years of age, among whom he recognized many who had won distinction for their abilities, and against all was the note 'broken down.' That, I suppose, was the reason why they were 'available.' Now, in a situation like this, where executive ability is crowded to the utmost, and the demands of the day are multiplied, while the hours of the day remain inexorably fixed, there is danger of an undue tenseness and of a tendency to disorganization. If I were tendency to disorganization. If I were to put in a phrase the special demand of the hour upon all those engaged in the discussion of public and economic questions affecting the business interests of the country. I should say: Let these questions be upon your conscience and upon your heart, but not upon your 'nerves.'

'The prevailing sentiment in this country is wholesome and just; it is idealistic; it rejoices in the extension of commerce and the development of industry; it takes pride in the ability that invents, in the talent that can organize effort and make cooperation productive; it honors honest toil of hand and brain; it prizes sagacity and thrift; it extols prudence; itreverences achievement. But it also demands honesty. It also exacts fidelity, both GETTYSBURG.

It is not only regrettable that this bill failed to pass the Massachusetts legislature, but also that a law similar in effect is not daily changes in force in every State of the Union. Yet, although there are no regulations of this kind in many places, quite a number of newspapers insist that every line of an advertisement shall indicate that it is such, and peremptorily refuse to accept anything as reading matter that disguises itself by misrepresentation.

MRS. CATHERINE CULBERTSON.

O! How long she suffered with pain, That baffled all skill, all care, How long she was racked with pain, And sufferings hard to bear.

What grief and pain, she suffered here, No one will ever know, Our Heavenly Father called her home, Where pain and grief are no more.

Her hands so active for us to serve, Are folded now for ever more, Her toil on earth is ended, Her Heavenly Crown and home is won. BY HER LOVING HUSBAND.

To OUR MOTHER.

Oh, how hard we tried to save her, But our care was all in vain, Our Father called her home from us, She is with Him, safe from pain.

Into sweet rest, she has entered, No more to suffer and weep, She is smiling upon us from Heaven Our beloved mother is now at peace. HER LOVING CHILDREN.

Although Mrs. Culbertson was ill for a year, she was not confined to her bed until three months ago during which time, she often suffered the most intense pain, enduring it with great patience and during which time, she often suffered the most intense pain, enduring it with great patience and resignation. She never murmured, nor complained, although at times her suffering was almost unbearable. Her thoughts and care were for othersnever for herself—and she continued solicitous for their comfort and welfare until she was called a way. With all her suffering she greeted her friends with a smile and a pleasant cheerful word. Mrs. Culbertson was a devoted wife, a loving mother, a faithful friend, and above all, a good christian. She was always willing to perform a good service for any person who was in need of it, and she cheerfully performed her duty to her family and friends. Mrs. Culbertson is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. Milton Everhart, of Baltimore, Mrs. Charles Morton, of Chicago, Mrs. Melvin Slusser, of Milwaukee, and eight grand-children.

The funeral services were held at St. Anthony's Church, on April 17th, Rev. Father Tragesser officiating. The interment was made in the family lot in the Presbyterian Cemetery near town.

Why I Shall Vote for William Jennings Bryan In 1908.

(Copyright, 1907, by the Emmitsburg (Md.,) Chronicle. All Rights Reserved.) At the outset I may state frankly that I am a Republican, and so strongly were the principles of Republicanism imbedded in my mind some years ago that I had little sympathy for any of the doctrines propounded by the Demo-ment of the country, coming from that source. Years ago it seemed to me that government by the House of Lords and the aristocratic element of the House of Commons of Old England was ideal, and could not be improved. As years advanced, however, my views widened and the mote and the beam fell from my eyes, and then I could clearly see that the aristocratic element was not in touch with the great masses of men struggling in the race of life. Notably is this the case in our own country, and at this hour. In God we trust, and a government for the people and by the people, sounds well, and if strictly adhered to would surely bring peace and happiness.

But there has been a sad departure from our underlying principles, and today, under the Stars and Stripes, we have two distinct orders, the Classes and the Masses. The third order, the extremely poor and almost abandoned, will probably never be known on this side of the Atlantic.

In Europe the Classes are distinguished more by intellectual culture, as opposed to those who receive distinction from wealth alone. In this country the distinction is almost solely that of wealth. The names of the most prominent millionaires and men of wealth in this land and the means by which they have acquired their wealth, are so well known that it is unnecessary to review their life and work as the Federal and Criminal Courts are almost daily unfolding their biographies. Probably most of us have silently come to the conclusion that the penitentiary would be an ideal country home in which to spend their declining years. In the province of Insurance they have robbed the widow and orphan; in the great Steel Trust the mechanic has laboriously added to a wealth in which he has never participated; in the Railroad Combinations workmen have been treated like slaves, working often sixteen hours a day, and having lost all distinction between Saturday and Sunday. The lives of sixty thousand of our been received with approbation abroad, but unfortunately he has ignored them when dealing with men and measures at home.

He has been troubled with the superlative Ego.

And yet on the strength of his very theories, men will act when the opportune time arrives, and will show him that they have had enough of his imperialism, and far too much of his Dictatorship.

Neither, it seems to me, will his political offspring be tolerated. That the sign price of hay and feed is reble for the new tariff.

Neither, it seems to me, will his political offspring be tolerated. That the first is a fairly capable man no one will deny, and that he has done some commendable things, especially in the Philippines, will be conceded; but when it comes to filling the Presidential chair, with all its far reaching issues, it is probable that his name will never be seriously considered. Cortelyou is simply a tool in the hands of the great Roman Patrician. Root has obeyed the mandates of the White House with diligence and has spoken his piece without a break, but when we think of him as an original man, eloquent, brave and fearless, and is never ashamed of his convictions, but he lacks that national reputation which is so essential when the Presidential chair is in view.

TO LIVE THE TRUTH.

Man knows the external world in its multi-various relations. He finds him-Man knows the external world in its multi-various relations. He finds himself by nature a participator in these relations; relations to God, relations to his fellow-men. "Himself from God, he cannot free." "He is," to use the quaint phrasing of Aristote, "a social animal" and to live absolutely alone as the same author tells us man must needs be "a god or a brute." He is not a mere beholder nor spectator of the grand pageant of the universe, but an actor therein. It is his to be a "doer of the word and not a hearer only."

Ideals are the life of the soul. Higher ever higher, is the motto of the man who really lives. Alexander would have new worlds to conquer, and each man in some small way, in his own sphere howsoever restricted, should be an Alexander.

Alexander.

This is to live the truth, and is exercised by man through the faculty commonly called his free will. The truth when once man has encompassed it, becomes for his will the good, something to be desired. This, as every genuine philosopher from Plato to William James, has recognized is the real aim of life. Not high thinking but right living is the true philosophy. Not what we know nor what we think makes us men, but what we are, what we do, and what we endeavor to do. By thinking we cannot add one cubit to our moral, any more than to our physical stature.

The Apollo Belvidere was at one time hidden in the block of marble. The sculptor saw it in his mind's eye and, taking his hammer and chisel, he let it free. The ideal man, the man of worth for this world and the world to come lies hidden in every soul. He may be imprisoned in the marble of heredity, of passion, of past transgression. The carving out of the finished man is a slow and tedious process. orphan; in the great Steel Trust the mechanic has laboriously added to a wealth in which he has never participated; in the Railroad Combinations workmen have been treated like slaves, working often sixteen hours a day, and having lost all distinction between Saturday and Sunday. The lives of sixty thousand of our citizens have been lost yearly through railroad accidents, but large dividends have been paid, the corporations have been satisfied, and the memories of wreck and ruin of today have flitted by like a morning dream, until aroused by the catastrophies of tomorrow.

The failures of Bank Trusts in Chicago, and in many of our large cities have rendered homeless many of our most thrifty and industrious citizens. That wrongs, therefore, had to be righted, our Government realized, but many of our Senators and those in authority were so interwoven with political intrigue and so intertwined with men who were money-mad that they approached the vexed questions of the hour with timidity—for "consciene doth make cowards of us all." In the hour of extremity the Nation looked toward President Roosevelt for help and guidance, nor did it look in vain. He entered the arena of reformation with zest and spirit, and certainly through his instrumentality much has been done for the betterment of the country. Yet we feel that this reformation has been rather meteoric than lasting, rather temporary than permanent.

The great Middle Classes, the Producers, the very backbone of the nation, the men above all who ought to enjoy the fruits of their labor, are liable to suffer an invasion at any hour from the worried hordes who would even sap and destroy the very root from which their vast wealth flowers into fruit.

These large combinations, the massing of men of vast wealth to further increase their wealth, is a serious menace to the best interests of the country. As the years advance they will naturally control the great Highways of Commerce, they will control the legislation of the country, they will control even increase their wealth, is a serious menace to the best interests of the country. As the years advance they will naturally control the great Highways of Commerce, they will control the legislation of the country, they will control even the White House itself. The problems therefore, that face the coming presidential election are of grave and serious import. That President Roosevelt is clearly in disfavor for another term, will become more and more evident, the nearer we approach the election.

Of late he has been more than a Roman Dictator; he has even vied with the Czar of Russia in his imperial commands. He has been the whole government, and if any Senator has been brave enough to take up a different line of action, his gracious majesty has never failed to show the club. This spirit has been resented both in the Senate, and among the people throughout the land who are quietly biding their time.

No $5,000,000 combination will be needed to oust him from office, and from his seat of universal power. Publicly he has ever and on all occasions advocated individual rights and the uplift of individual manhood, and his ideas have been received with approbation abroad, but unfortunately he has ignored them when dealing with men and measures at home.

over and "inspected" at the desk. It is believed that the announcement of disapproval by Mr. Cortelyou will be followed by remedial action. Any one who has ever gone through the experience of landing in New York after a European trip will be heart and soul for such reform. The principal topic throughout the homeward journey is the dreadful inspection. As the vessel approaches New York there is anxiety and apprehension in the air. Ninety-nine per cent. of the passengers have LIGHT FOR ALL. more than their allowed one hundred dollars worth of wearing apparel and even the hardened ones dread the lie that they must tell to the customs officers who come on board and take down SAFE, ECONOMICAL, BRILLIANT, HEALTHY, in writing your declaration that you are Having made important improvements in our Gas Machine by the application of Force Feed and combining generator and gasometer in one, and simplifying many points of construction. generator and gasometer in one, and simplifying many points of construction, and requiring small space to install; obviating all danger of excessive discharge of carbide into generator, making gas in excess of consumption. We now claim to have perfect Gas Machine, furnishing the most brilliant light ever produced, and are prepared to furnish the Improved Machine, gurranteed to be the most simple and efficient working Gas Machine on the market. We guarantee all machines as represented and put in on approval. All material of the best, put up in neat and substantial manner. All inquiries for prices

ORDER NISI ON AUDIT.

Last Monday morning the warenotise of Peter Kready & Son, of Orrtana, was entered by burglars. The safe containing the money and supplies of the post office which is in the same building and conducted by the Messrs. Kready, was blown open with nitroglycerine and the contents made away with. Post office money, between $60 and $70, and $240 worth of stamps was taken by the burglars, also about $20 of taken by the burglars, also about $20 of the railroad funds. The Messrs. Kready In the Circuit Court for Frederick checks and $60 in cash. Strange men, seen in the neighborhood for several days, are supposed to have committed the robbery.
