According to the San Francisco Examiner, the Federal authorities have taken definite steps to secure a site for the biggest United States Army depot in the country. It is to be on part of the existing army reserves at Fort Mason, and then run northerly on land at present submerged. An unconfirmed report says that private parties have offered $800,000 for the Jamestown Exposition site and buildings thereon, exclusive of the State and other privately owned structures. The raid was made on last Friday night.

Because of a reduction in their wages from $60 a month to $50 a month a number of Cumberland Valley Railroad telegraph operators have resigned and others, it is said will follow in their footsteps. The reduction in salaries followed the decrease in the number of working hours, with a view of complying with the provisions of the eight-hour law.

The constitutionality of the act of Congress of June 1, 1898, prohibiting railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce from discriminating against members of labor organizations in the matter of employment was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States on Monday against the Government. If Wm. J. Bryan has his way, says the Philadelphia Press, the Denver platform will be a string of so-called "Rooseveltisms." He is now laying the groundwork for this wonderful construction by claiming that the President has been advocating Bryan doctrines and by trying to persuade the Democratic leaders here that Rooseveltism is what he, Bryan, believes in and what the people of the country want.

Attorney-General Bonaparte has announced officially that the Department of Justice will institute action in the courts at an early date to break Harriman's grip on the Pacific Coast Railroad lines South of Portland, Ore. This is characterized as a conspiracy in restraint of competition.

Calendar for January 1908 showing days of the week and dates.

FRIDAY, JAN. 31, 1908.

If the readers of THE CHRONICLE will be good enough to send to this office the names and addresses of former Emmitsburgians, or those identified with or interested in Emmitsburg and its people, the Editor will greatly appreciate the courtesy.

THE action of the directors of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railroad meets with general approval. They asked for a survey of a route from Lewistown to Rocky Ridge, presumably with the idea of constructing their line over that course if its advantages are greater proportionately than those held out to the company by the former route.

The merging of the Emmitsburg Railroad with the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg line, which is part of the plan now under consideration, will clear up the whole railroad atmosphere in and around Emmitsburg and will make available for the company some capital that otherwise would not be invested in their road.

At last the trial of the men charged with conspiracy to loot the State Treasury of Pennsylvania has begun. It has been a long wait for the indignant citizens of that State. Judge George F. Kunkel, who presides over the trial, is determined they shall not have to wait much longer and will push the proceedings with the least possible delay.

State's case will likewise be presented and argued by men of no mean ability. Pennsylvania may have her honor vindicated and incidentally lose a few prominent politicians.

This case is the outcome of the spirit of honor and righteousness that is ever working in the rank and file of the American people, strange as that may sound when applied to citizens of Pennsylvania. Such movements are always slow, and when they truly represent the voice of the people, seldom spectacular; yet they are nevertheless irresistible in their power.

At the same time the newspapers published the account of the brilliant wedding of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt to Count Laszlo Szechenyi there also appeared, in not so prominent a place, the notice that the Earl of Yarmouth would condescend to allow his wife, formerly Miss Thaw, to apply for a divorce if her family would pay him a million or so.

What Is Your Preference?

Every reader of a newspaper has ideas. Every reader of a newspaper has a preference for certain features which to him or her, as the case may be, are particularly attractive and interesting.

It is the object of THE CHRONICLE to give its readers just what they want, and therefore an invitation is herewith extended to every subscriber of this paper to state just what that preference is.

All suggestions sent in good faith will be carefully considered, and a new department will be added to THE CHRONICLE whenever a preference for the same feature has been indicated by several readers.

No attention will be paid to unsigned communications, but each letter will be treated as confidential and the name of the writer will NOT be published.

What The Sphinx Thinks

—That politeness while cheap, availeth much.

—That there is nothing makes time fly quite so fast as a note coming due.

—That your balance lost on the fence is generally found on the ground.

—That "Where ignorance is bliss" does not have anything to do with compulsory education.

—That notwithstanding the fact that many men high in public life think so, politics and plunder are not synonymous terms.

—That there is consolation in the thought that while the poor man has to walk to get something to put in his stomach, the rich one has to walk to get a stomach to put that something in.

FASHION'S LATEST WRINKLE.

Braiding on Costumes Invariably Black. Handsome Gold Bands on Hats.

No matter what the color of your winter gown, the braiding must be black, and a touch of some black fur will give it all the chic of an imported frock.

Bands of elaborate silver or gold trimming or pearl passementerie are much used on hats. One exceedingly rich band is of gold net covered with gold figures very much in relief. As

A VALID OBJECTION.

Young Sheridan's Ready Wit Saved Him a Birching.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan early evinced a genius for getting something for nothing and, seeing the door of the refectory had inadvertently been left unlocked, peeped in and saw a huge basket of grapes freshly gathered from the orchard.

Stealthily closing the door and approaching the grapes, he thus addressed them: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and these grapes. Is there any one to forbid the banns?" And, having no reply to his query, he proceeded to fill his breadbasket from the other basket with great gusto. But retribution was to follow, for on the class being reassembled the master called upon Richard Brinsley Sheridan to stand forth and joined with his name the ominous name of Walker, who was the dunce of the school and selected from his weight and size to mount the culprit upon his shoulders in order that the master might get a firm surface upon which to use the birch with effect.

Sheridan being duly mounted and appropriately denuded of superfluous raiment, the master thus addressed him: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and this birch. Is there any just cause or impediment why these two parties should not be joined in holy matrimony?"

"Hold!" yelled Sheridan.

"Well?" said the master.

To which Sheridan said, "V'ry, sir, the parties are not agreed!"

This being not only witty, but apt, as being a valid objection in point of law, Sheridan was requested to retire and restore himself to his former habiliments amid the uncontrollable laughter of all concerned, including the head master.—Exchange.

IN BLUE VELVETEEN—5845.

some of this trimming costs $20 a yard the staggering prices of millinery are not surprising.

A shirt waist seen recently was fastened down the front with small black bows of ribbon tied to flat beauty pins. The ribbon was about half an inch wide and made into small one inch bows. The trimming looked very neat down the front of this black silk waist.

Adjustable cuffs can be purchased in desired lengths to wear with short sleeved lingerie waists.

Velveteen is being very much used this season for the small boy's suit and is always handsome, while it is durable in the extreme. The suit illustrated is of dark blue velveteen relieved at the throat by an embroidered linen collar. JUDIC CHOLLET.

When Life Was Little Valued.

The 223 capital offenses which the old English law recognized as punishable by death did not keep down crime, and with the abolition of the death penalty for all crimes but murder crime in England, as well as everywhere else all over the world where the death penalty has been modified, lessened markedly, notes the Boston Traveler.

Edmond Burke said that he could in his time obtain the assent of the house of commons to any bill that carried the death punishment.

A man's life was not very valuable in those strenuous days. If he scratched his name on Westminster bridge, if he wore a wig or false moustache or if any other disguise on a public road, if he cut down a young tree, if he stole property worth more than $1.25, if he had been transported for crime and returned a day ahead of the expiration of his term of punishment, if he wrote a threatening letter, if he stole a hide from a tanner's, for any and all of these things and for 200 more than these he was hanged by the neck 'untill he was dead.

NOT TOO SERIOUS.

A Bit Of Wit And Humor To Season The Serious Side Of Life.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Trust all men, but not far enough to lose control of them or of yourself.

Without a doubt in a multitude of counselors there is a general wrangle.

A friend is a useful adjunct to your personality and shows that you are of that much importance anyway.

The longer a woman remains a widow the more she compliments a dead man and the less a live one.

The less a woman has to do with her husband's affairs the more respect she has for them.

It is necessary to know that you are right before any one will take the trouble to persuade you that you are wrong.

The easiest way to make a great deal of money is to get employment at the mint.

Out of the violence of the brain storm the mouth speaketh.

There probably isn't any such thing as a useless experience, but we would hate to make use of some.

Where there are a great many family jars the bill for crockery is apt to be high.

Result Getter.

The cheerful taffy giver
As he jogs along the way
Is the one who gathers favors
As the farmer gathers hay.
He never in his travels
Is lacking for a friend;
He drops a bit of blarney
And draws a dividend.

No matter where he wanders,
Results are just the same;
He always finds a victim
Who tumbles to his game,
And, whether male or female
And whether old or young,
They sip as it were nectar
The honey from his tongue.

There isn't any danger
Of making it too strong,
Because in that direction
He never can go wrong.
He finds no sort of trouble
Encountered on that score.
The one who gets the package
Is always out for more.

There's nothing so effective,
There's nothing quite so strong,
As loud and boisterous taffy
To help a game along.
It clinches the receiver
If handed to him right
And makes the giver solid
For anything in sight.

Came Easier.
"What in the world have you got on your lips?" asked the young man after the struggle was over.
"Nothing," said the young lady indignantly. "What did you think?"
"Tasted like honey," replied the frank young man.
He didn't have to fight for the next one.

Wanted Him Protected.

"What are you going to name your boy?"
"I think we will call him Peter."
"Don't do that. Name him Paul."
"What is the difference?"
"A whole lot. I have always noticed that Peter is the unfortunate one who is eternally being robbed to pay Paul."

The Reason.

"Pray tell me why, if so you can,
The gossip's whisper light
Will penetrate, as sure as fate,
The noisy day and night."
"No matter what the noise may be
The gossip's lightest word
On every hand, on sea or land,
By every ear is heard."

Nautical.

"Did the actress take her dog along when she crossed the ocean?"
"Yes; she couldn't get along without the dear little thing."
"Then her bark is on the sea."

We All Would.

This is a thing we often hear,
"Oh, Christmas comes but once a year."
If it should come for twice or more,
I'd take French leave the year before.

Making Them Palatable.

Conan Doyle told of an experience which he had when leaving school. His teacher must have been one of those noble old Romans such as Thackeray describes as roaring at young Penderennis when the major, his uncle, called to take the boy away. When Conan Doyle had finished his course in school the head master called him aside and, after eying him with ominous disfavor, spoke to him in measured tones as follows: "Doyle, I have known you now for seven years, and I know you thoroughly. I am going to say something which you will remember in after life. Doyle, you will never come to any good!"—Bookman.

A Poor Prophet.

While we are considering when to begin it is often too late to act.—Quintilian.

"That's a ladies' man. He always says such sweet things."
"Yes; he knows where he gets off, all right."
"What do you mean?"
"He is often called upon to eat his words."
