This feature of the celebration was so much enjoyed that it will be repeated Saturday. In the parade tomorrow the "Roosevelt," Peary's ship, will be given a place. Splendid order has been maintained throughout the celebration, which ends tomorrow.

On Tuesday at least 2,000,000 people witnessed a parade of 20,000 men and 54 floats which passed before the envoys of 21 nations participating in the celebration. This was the supreme effort of the commission. For several month 300 artists, carpenters and paper mache mauipulators have been at work preparing the wood and plaster figures which decorated the 54 floats. Nearly 20,000 men, women and children, most of them in costume, representing every national and patriotic society in the city, posed as historic personages on these floats or marched between and beside them. The cost of the whole spectacle was $300,000.

York were dimly outlined in the gray dock on the beach, and she was pulled mist which screened the land. A storm had carried so much ice against the coast that a near approach was impossible, and continued winds kept up a sea which made it equally a difficulty to land on the ice.

In Ice Free Polar Waters.

Though anxious to meet the natives at Cape York, we were forced to turn and set a course for the next village, at North Star bay. At noon the sooty clouds separated, and in the north through the narrow breaks we saw the steep slopes and warm color of crimson cliffs resting on the rising water.

Darting through the air were countless guillemots, gulls, little auks and eider ducks. We were in the ice free north waters, where creatures of the sea find a marine oasis in midst of a polar desert.

This kind of coast extends poleward to the land's end. It is the abundant sea life which makes human habitation just possible here, though land animals are also important.

The people of the farthest north are crowded into a natural reservation by the arctic ice wall of Melville bay in the south and the stupendous line of cliffs of Humboldt glacier in the north.

Home of the Eskimos.

Widely scattered in small villages, the northernmost Eskimo finds here a good living. A narrow band of rocky land between the land ice and the sea offers grasses upon which feed ptarmigan, hare and caribous.

Numerous cliffs and islands afford a resting place in summer for myriads of marine birds that seek the small life of the icy waters. Blue and white foxes wander everywhere. Seal, walrus, narwhal and white whale sport in the summer sun, while the bear, king of the polar wilds, roams over the sea at all times.

Both had been condemned by the Eskimo law of the survival of the fittest, the first because of insufficient senses and the second because it was under three and still on its mother's back when the father passed away. They were not to participate in the strife of life. But an unusual mother loved them.

A few days before the previous winter the old father, anxious to provide warm bearskins for the prolonged night, had ventured alone far up into the mountains. His gun went off accidentally, and he never returned.

The executor of the brother of Manee's former husband was kind to her for the long night and kept famine from her door. In the summer day she had been able to keep herself, but who could provide for her for the night to come? Her only resource was to seek the chilled heart of her former husband, and we were performing the unpleasant mission of taking her to him as wife No. 2.

When we later saw Ikwa he did not but we had expected no reward.

The speed of the yacht increased as the night advanced. A snow squall frosted the decks, and to escape the icy air we sought our warm berths early. At 4 o'clock in the morning the gray gloom separated and the warm sun poured forth a suitable wealth of August rays.

At this time we passed the ice battered and storm swept cliff of Cape Parry. Beyond was Whale sound. On a sea of gold, strewn with ice islands of ultramarine and alabaster, whales spouted and walrus shouted. The grampus was out early for a fight. Large flocks of little auks rushed over on hurried missions.

We aimed here to secure Eskimo guides and with them seek caribou in Olrick's bay. While the yacht was tacking for a favorable berth in the drift off Kanga the launch was lowered and we sought to interview the Eskimos of Ittiblu. There were only one woman, a few children and about man talked quickly and explained at some length that her husband and others were away on a caribou hunt, and she told us without a leading question the news of the tribe for a year. #### A TYPE TO EMULATE.

The career of anyone who has hewn his way out of rough surroundings and achieved success in the face of the poverty and ignorance of his forbears and shiftlessness of those with whom he was associated in his early days-even if that one be without high character-at least commands attention. But the selfmade man of moral and broad common sense calibre, who uses his self-developed faculties in constructive work and his wellearned position of trust and responsibility for the good of his fellow men is rightly an ideal personage in the eyes of the American people. He is the best specimen of the true American type—a type that is worthy of emulation. On many a page of the history of our own country do we find records of the noble lives and brilliant careers of those who rose to prominence from nothing, we may say. In our own times we can point to living men whose achievements are on the lips of many but whose early lives were made up of long periods of privation and hardship. And too often does it happen that death claims those whom the world can ill afford to spare, just as their lives are

The career of Governor Johnson of Minnesota, is a case in point. There was a man that made the world better because he lived in it. There was a death that brought sorrow to thousands; for it took from the people a man of the people whose chief aim was to serve themand that he did it fearlessly, faithfully and efficiently the records of his State will show. His was an humble beginning, and moreover he was the offspring of a confirmed drunkard whose very existence was a millstone around the young man's neck-a thorn in the flesh that pricked him at every turn. Poverty was his early lot, and hard work was his daily companion. He acceptbe dealt with for a time, and he made friends with work that he might lighten the burden of his mother who was a toiling wash woman. This one thought of his mother was an index of young or "get in wrong," or make a Johnson's character, and let it be monkey of yourself, don't throw

It is indeed something to have risen from out a heavy shadow and to have been three times governor of a state the vote of which was solidly opposed to the party of the incumbent. It counts for much that a Republican Legislature enacted into law practically every measure advocated by this Democratic executhat the constructive ability of a plain man of the plain people that bear the name of this governor of a great commonwealth. But it means a great deal more to have done all this within fortyeight years and without stain or blemish to one's character, private or public.

Governor Johnson's life is an example for young America.

MR. TAFT'S SERMON.

The President need make no apology for the "sermon" he delivered in the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City on Sunday. He chose a good text: "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger," and while the speaker lauded Mr. Roosevelt to the skies we fancy that among others he had the former occupant of the White House in mind when he said, "We ought to avoid this acrimonious discussion that consigns everybody who is opposed to our view to perdition and to having the most corrupt motives and ascribes to those who stand with us only the purest motives."

There is much of this kind of

Dr. F. A. Adams of Boston and Dr. W. J. Spillman of the Department of mountains, filled up canons, bridged Agriculture at Washington are at odds arms of the sea itself. It can have about the relative advantages of the few loftier ideals in the practical workcountry and the city for the production ings of a railroad than the maintainthe parade to be given in Washington of men of ability and genius. In ance of the sacredness of human life. on the evening of October 12 in honor Science of Sept. 24 Dr. Spillman There is every reason to believe that figures of three classes of American ton and Pennsylvania has been repeat-A meeting of Frederick Democrats citizens "who may be, perhaps, placed ed upon other lines, and that it will be highest among the list of our leading extended to other systems still as it be-

But Dr. Spillman's original contention was that "about 70 per cent. of the leaders in every phase of activity' come from the farms. Dr. Woods took down his "Who's Who," and determined that the leaders there recorded are 50 years old on an average-that is, they sprung from the population of 1860, when but 16.1 per cent. dwelt in the ninety-six cities of 8,000 or more inhabitants. But as natives of these cities the gentlemen represented in "Who's Who" under the initial A are 29.6 per cent. of the total, as against the 16.1 per cent. expected. Under the initial B. the urban percentage was 27.5; under C. it was 31.7, and under D. and E. 31.6 per cent. and 35.6 per cent. Groups selected at random under other letters of the alphabet confirmed these results. The towns, villages, and farms contained five times the population of cities in 1860, yet they failed to produce more than about twice as many notable

Dr. Spillman does not challenge this estimate, therefore his present table for Presidents, Governors, and Cabinet officers born in the country is an exception merely. Dr. Woods has demonstrated that the cities, either through sional men and the better educational facilities they afford, or because of inwho had moved to the urban districts, produce gifted boys in greater ratio than the farms.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

We are now doing business in our new building, of which the superintendent of its construction, Mr. John Evans, of Scranton, Pa., says:

"When I make the following statement I am saying a great deal, but, in my judgment, I have a perfect right to state this is not only a fireproof building, but the vaults are burglarproof in the full sense of the word."

We have a special room for the use of ladies transacting business.

We also have three rooms—one large and two smaller rooms—for the use of persons who wish to meet others and transact business, or where they can take their securities and detach coupons, etc. All of these rooms are easy of access and ready for use at any time, and we will be great to have them used by the people.

In our splendid vaults we have a large number of safe deposit boxes, in which persons can arrange to place their securities or valuable papers.

We will be pleased to open accounts with individuals, firms or corporations, whether large or small accounts, giving to our smaller accounts the same attention as the larger ones. We will be glad to show persons through our building at any time during business hours.

PRACTICAL CLOTH SKIRT.

LLUSTRATED is an exceptionally pretty skirt that will answer for all around wear. It is of the so called three piece model, but has none of the objections that are generally attributed to skirts that are cut on the circular, for it is so arranged that it will not sag on the sides. The front panel is cut from made either with a deep yoke and circular lower portion or in a five or seven gored model. Of equal importance is the finish of the outer skirt at the waist line, for it must rather set well than fit the figure. The fashion of mounting it high on a woven webbing band is continually gaining in favor, but unless the band is thoroughly boned and stiffened with an additional piece of canvas the width of the belt of the skirt will turn it over at the top.

This circular skirt in sheath style is cut in six sizesfrom 22 to 32 inches waist measure. To copy it for the average person requires 51/2 yards of material 36 inches wide or 41/2 yards 44 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4379, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.
