PERSONALITY OF NEW KING

IS UNLIKE EDWARD VII

Little In Common Between Dead Ruler and Son

UTTER DISLIKE FOR DIPLOMACY

Almost Snobbish in Private Life.—No Tolerance For Aristocracy and Yet Not Democratic.—Favorite Sport is Shooting.

The personality of George V, the new King of England, has become an item of a good deal of interest. England grew to love the late Edward in a way which seemed impossible 10 years ago. The same may happen in the case of his son, but it seems a rather remote possibility, for the two men had little in common.

George is insular in the extreme; he detests diplomacy, at which his father was a past master, but he does take great interest in the affairs of the colonies. He is by no stretch of the imagination a cosmopolitan; he does not like foreigners and he speaks none but the English tongue. He is almost snobbish in private life; he has no tolerance with the aristocracy of wealth that has flourished in Edward's court, and neither he nor his wife are overlavish in their expenditures of money. George belongs to but two London clubs and but seldom visits these, for he is essentially a "home man," enjoying an evening with a light book while his wife sits by with her knitting. Both are strict in their translations of the code of morals, neither can bear the fast set so prominent in London society and both dislike the glitter and pomp which surround royalty.

But this does not mean that the new court will be democratic; quite the reverse will be the case. The friends of the new rulers are the members of the old nobility, and it is the scions of ancient families that will now gather at Buckingham palace in place of the brilliant financiers of South Africa and London and the beautiful women who have ruled English society.

There will be changes, too, in the sporting world, of which the king has so long been patron. George dislikes horse racing, the sport his father was so devoted to, and he cares but little for fishing or yachting. But shooting is his passion and he is said to be the best shot in the kingdom when afield for pheasant or grouse. Some of his record bags have been startling in size, but in this pastime again he has shown his dislike for the newly rich. Many of the best moors are controlled by millionaires of recent "creation," but George is never found upon them, confining his sport to the boxes of old-established families. He cordially hates cards, to which his father was devoted, and he has no tolerance for gambling. In fact, his resources for his own amusement are rather restricted, and he is not an especially companionable man. He has been devoted to his children and wife and their home life has been as peaceful and quiet as that of any country couple of moderate circumstances.

As the Prince of Wales, George visited the colonies of the empire, some of them on several occasions. Just how popular he will be beyond the seas remains to be seen. His official tour of India in 1905, which was the occasion of the glittering durbar, in which Lord and Lady Curzon were equally prominent, was not a great success from a political viewpoint. On his return to London he made a speech on British rule in India that created a good deal of comment. That and his address in the London corporation guildhall in 1901, when, upon his return from opening the first Australian...

Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The magnificent Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine, at New York, is now assured the sum of $55,000 a year after the crossing and choir shall be opened. Bishop Greer has received pledges of $27,000 for five years, in addition to the endowment income, as large. Two chapels are to be built, one in memory of Bishop Henry Codman Potter, the other in memory of Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington of Grace Church. It is stated that the Cathedral when finished will take fourth place among the sanctuaries of Christendom. The larger are St. Peter's of Rome, the Cathedral of Seville and the Duomo of Milan.

Resolutions favoring an amendment to the Constitution, so that United States Senators may be elected by direct vote of the people, were passed by the Massachusetts House by 116 to 110.

TWO POLISH HEROES

Statues to Pulaski and Kosciusko Unveiled

HELPED AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Pulaski Killed at Siege of Savannah in 1779.—Both Honored by American Congress for Service.

On Wednesday statues of Casimir Pulaski and Thaddeus Kosciusko, Polish Revolutionary patriots, were unveiled in Washington. Addresses were made by the President of the United States, the Secretary of War and other men prominent in public life. The Kosciusko statue stands at the northeast corner of Lafayette Square and the Pulaski monument at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Delegates from almost every Polish society in America attended.

Count Pulaski after a series of unsuccessful efforts for his native land met Benjamin Franklin in Paris and offered his services to the cause of American independence. In 1777 he joined Washington's army as a volunteer and performed distinguished service at the battle of Brandywine. Shortly after he organized an independent corps of cavalry and light infantry and saw service under General Lincoln in South Carolina. At the battle during the siege of Savannah he was mortally wounded and died two days after, Oct. 11, 1779.

Thaddeus Kosciusko came to America also in 1777 and was made engineer with the rank of colonel and afterwards general of brigade. He performed excellent service and with Pulaski was publicly thanked by Congress. He lived to fight for the independence of his native land but unsuccessfully. He became a French citizen by act of the Assembly. He was killed by accident in Switzerland Oct. 4, 1817.

FOREST FIRES RAGING IN EASTERN MINNESOTA

Over Five Hundred Miles of Blazing Timber.—Villages in Path of Flames Fanned by High Winds.

The entire northeastern part of Minnesota's forest region is smoldering and smoking, vast timbered areas in Wisconsin are swept by flames, several villages are threatened with destruction and large losses seem inevitable from forest fires, according to despatches.

Reports of vessel captains and train crews entering Superior, Wis., seem to indicate that the fires are scattered over an area of at least 500 miles. The densest pall of smoke seen in a score of years is hanging over Lake Superior, and fires appear to be burning in all directions.

A report from Washburn, Wis., says that the flames have entered the largest tract of standing timber in the state. High winds are fanning the fire.

Increasing forest fires in the west end of the peninsula of Michigan have cast a cloud of smoke over the whole region, having destroyed much valuable timber land and now threaten to wipe out whole villages.

Railroad passenger rates are being raised.

AGRICULTURE AND THE FARMER

RURAL OCCUPATIONS TO BE MADE ATTRACTIVE

Widespread Movement to Coax Men Back to The Soil and Away From Other Employment

ECONOMISTS ANGLING FOR THOSE WHO HAVE FORSAKEN THE PLOW

Future Possibilities of Agriculture.—Everything is Working Toward, and Everything is Coming From the Soil.—Nothing as Certain as Nature.—National Prosperity Depends on Farms and All of Maryland is Not Within the City Limits of Baltimore.

The proposition of the Governor of Missouri to form a sort of a farmers' loan association and Governor Crothers' commission of farming educators, both of which were described in the last issue of THE CHRONICLE, are not initiative. They are part of a movement as nation wide as the prohibition movement of which so much has been said. Mr. Hill, the great railroad magnate and shrewd business man, has been calling men back to the soil for several years. His cry was a prophecy of the necessity that is almost here: More producers. Consumers are plentiful.

"Since the beginning of history," remarked the Philadelphia Press some time ago, "mankind has been prone to forsake the pathways of slow but steady gain in favor of the chimera of easy acquisition and quick wealth." The farm boy sees two dollars a day made by his urban brother and it looks big, but he is nearsighted. His eye fails to discern the $1.75 spent very often by this same fellow to live. "There where I am not, there would I be" is part of human nature.

Following up the statement above the same paper says: "Compare the reports of great corporations, bonanza gold, silver and copper mines, with those of the Department of Agriculture, which show the productiveness of the American farmer. The figures presented are staggering and almost incomprehensible. Last year he added to the wealth of the world nearly $8,000,000,000 and it came in a form that provided the primal necessities of mankind, not of the sort that appeals to the conceit of an overflowing purse, though it helped fill that purse, but of the sort that means perpetuation—food supply.

"It is a fact almost too patent for comment that one acre of soil properly planted, cultivated and tilled, will sustain the average American family for six months of the year, and we have the assertion of Gifford Pinchot that the most valuable citizen to the body politic is the man who extracts from the soil his means of livelihood.

"One wonders, therefore, why it has become necessary, markedly so within the past twenty-five years, for the organizations that seek to better social conditions to maintain so many who are idle, with so many thousands of acres of fertile soil in the United States lying in absolute neglect, untilled and not fruitful."

"Those who labor in the soil are the chosen people of God," remarked Thomas Jefferson, and Secretary Wilson concurs. What name the great Jefferson would give those who have deserted the farm—the soil—for the city, neither history nor tradition says nor does it.

HARRY DAVIS GENUINE HOME-RUN SLUGGER

Has Made Total of Sixty-Seven Home Runs and Seventy-Six Three Baggers in Last Nine Years.

Harry Davis of the Athletics has made 67 home runs in the last nine years. For the same time he is credited with 292 two-baggers and 76 triples. "Buck" Freeman had the call for long-distance hitting in the early days of the American league, with Lajoie, Seybold and Hickman as his rivals. Three of these players have passed to the minors, leaving Lajoie and Davis of the old guard. Lajoie led in home runs the first year of the American league, with 13. Freeman is credited with 12. Seybold reached top-water mark in the second year with 16. Freeman was second with 11. The next season Freeman pushed out 14 homers, leading the league, while Hickman was second with 12. Then Davis came to the front. He topped the list for four consecutive years. He made 10 homers in 1904, eight in 1905, 12 in 1906 and eight in 1907. "Wahoo Sam" Crawford made his bow about this time in the ranks of the home-run clubbers, replacing Davis as the leader in 1908, with seven four-base smashes; Davis had five. Last year Cobb led the league with nine, Davis having four.

But the record made by Davis in his nine years of play in the American league will stand a lot of hammering before being replaced.

The comet is now travelling tail first.

matter. What the economists are more interested in is the lure that will entice the wanderers back to the plough.

Several months ago the Virginia Educational Conference at Richmond spent some time on the subject of the improvement of rural conditions. Better rural schools, less ignorance, the forming of granges, associations, etc., are some of the means suggested to make a "land of promise for little children where the fear of God and intelligent labor restrain evil and poverty; a land of honest, brave men and gentle women, whose labors and love make the nation great."

That there are wonderful future possibilities of agriculture there can be no gainsaying. "Everything is working toward the soil and everything is coming from the soil. Nothing is as certain as nature. The acre will bear its crop when man is loyal to it. It will produce if you feed it, but you can't expect to keep on robbing it year after year and expect it to continue its same prolific yield. Execute properly what you have learned knowingly, and then apply your knowledge industriously. The question is often asked: Who is to be the future farmer? and the answer is: The man who knows."

This is the opinion of no less an authority than Dr. Dietrich the frugal German whose application of business methods and sound common sense to his native industry and thrift made his profits so phenomenal that he attained a national reputation and became the object of attention and study on the part of the Government experts and many less successful tillers of the soil, who sought to follow in his footsteps. He declares that he is a "book" farmer, and his plea is for the college training of the youth who desires to espouse the calling. He saturated himself with all the possible knowledge he could obtain in every phase of farming that he took up, and he thus accounts for his success.

A fool is a fool whether he is a farmer or a preacher and he is no greater a fool because he is a farmer than if he were a preacher. By the same token a wise, a sagacious, a shrewd farmer is no less a commanding figure than the same kind of man in any other walk of life. Much of our material prosperity depends on agriculture and as we do not lack in fertile soil our agricultural prosperity depends on the efficiency of the men behind the ploughs. This efficiency is being promoted to-day more than ever and that state will fall behind that neglects its rural population. In conclusion it might be said that the best part of Maryland is not within the city limits of Baltimore.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO R. R. INCREASES AVAILABLE FUNDS

Forty Millions for Improvements in Equipment, Additional Track and Roadbed.—Vast Sum Borrowed.

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, has successfully completed negotiations for a $40,000,000 loan. With this money it is intended to make the road a trunk line, for the improvement and purchase of additional equipment needed to take care of the business already offered to the Baltimore and Ohio, as well as to provide for such increase as may be expected in the immediate future, and for providing additional second and third tracks where needed. Other facilities necessary will be provided for the next three years.

During the last 10 years the Baltimore and Ohio, with the exception of a comparatively short period following the depression of 1903, has been unable, because of lack of equipment and facilities, to handle the business offered it on its own rails. It was not able during that period to obtain its fair share of business that would have come to it from connections, even had it been in shape to contribute its proportion of the necessary equipment. The funds now arranged for will enable the company to proceed vigorously and at once toward providing such additional equipment and facilities as are needed.

Emperor William of Germany will attend the funeral of the late King of England.

TAFT RAILROAD BILL

Passes House by Majority of Seventy-Four

SOME PROVISIONS OF MEASURE

Long and Short Haul to Cost the Shipper the Same Unless Permission is Granted.—Concerning Rates.

The House passed its railroad bill Tuesday by a vote of 200 to 126, a majority of 74. This great majority showed that not only the solid Republican majority of the House, but that many Democrats, too, had voted in favor of the bill.

The bill makes changes in the existing law that, if accepted by the Senate will greatly affect interstate commerce. The court of commerce is created to adjudicate cases on appeal from the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is provided that this court shall be organized by the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, future appointments to membership on the court to be made by them.

Stock and bond issues of railroads are controlled by the bill. The long and short haul clause of the measure provides that a railroad cannot, without first gaining permission, charge more for a short haul than for a long haul over the same line.

It provides for the valuation of railroad property as an aid in the consideration of railroad rates. It gives to the commission authority over classifications, regulations and practices of railroads. Its authority at the present time being limited to rates and matters affecting rates. A railroad company must quote a freight rate accurately upon demand of a shipper and the shipper is given the right to route his freight whenever it passes over more than one railroad.

The bill is not hurt by amendments.

ROOSEVELT CREATES A SENSATION IN NORWAY

Makes Official Deny Statement Made Through Papers and Severely Censures Him For Mistake.

Mr. Roosevelt's visit at Christiania has been followed by an incident which is making a sensation in Norway. Mr. Roosevelt has severely censured ex-Postmaster-General Gunnar Knudsen, who is now vice-president of the Parliament, for using his name and quoting him as a partisan in Norwegian politics. The ex-postmaster-general has been making a campaign and has introduced a bill in Parliament for the conservation of the natural resources, chiefly the water-power, and the opposition party has been fighting this scheme as an infringement on personal rights. At the recent gala dinner at the castle Mr. Knudsen had a conversation with Mr. Roosevelt on this subject. The latter, in the belief that he was speaking of general principles, expressed warm sympathy in the work. Mr. Knudsen asked permission to make the former President's remarks public. "Tell it to anyone you like," Mr. Roosevelt replied enthusiastically.

There was a considerable stir when the newspapers appeared quoting Mr. Roosevelt as a warm supporter of Knudsen's policy. Mr. Roosevelt summoned Knudsen and insisted emphatically that he issue a denial, and he himself wrote a letter to the same effect.

By the will of the late John Converse, of Philadelphia, $200,000 is bequeathed to the Presbyterian Church.

MARYLAND'S WHEAT CROP LEADS OTHER STATES

Almost Eight Hundred Thousand Acres of Cereal.—Rye Crop Also Gives Excellent Promise.

In a crop statement issued Tuesday morning by the Department of Agriculture it is shown that Maryland's wheat crop is in better condition than that of any other State in the Union. The crop is, of course, not the largest, but there is a smaller per cent, of its acreage abandoned than any other wheat-producing State can show. Just one per cent. of the winter wheat crop is in bad condition.

The State shows, further, that there are 794,000 acres of Maryland in wheat, which is a greater acreage than shown by any other Southern State, except Tennessee and Texas. This is slightly more wheat than was reported in Maryland by the Department last year. Maryland's rye crop is also discussed in the statement, but the acreage is not given. The condition of the crop is placed at 92, which is slightly under the condition of rye last year at this time.

The seventeen-year-old Louisville boy who single-handed attempted to rob a bank in New Albany, Ind., and killed the cashier, was sentenced to prison for life on Saturday.

RULES FOR THE ASSESSMENT

EXEMPTIONS ALLOWED

Stocks, Bonds, Debts and Even Jewelry Covered

PENALTIES ARE VERY SEVERE

Assessors May Administer Oath to Property Owners.—Books Not Open to Inspection Unless In Appeal or Revision.

The provisions of the new law ordering the reassessment of property are very explicit. The act providing for this revaluation obtains in Frederick county and concerns its citizens. Practically everything is assessable—real estate of every description, stocks, bonds, promissory notes, certificates of indebtedness or evidences of debt in whatever form. Even jewelry except that habitually worn on the person, is taxable.

Churches, graveyards (where profit is not intended), hospitals, asylums and other charitable or benevolent institutions are exempt, as are the crops of any land in the hands of the producer or his agent, and also provisions and fuel kept for use and consumption of the family. Working tools of mechanics and the first $300 worth of farming utensils are also on the list of exemptions.

The provisions of the law do not apply to the shares of homestead or building associations incorporated in Maryland and doing business solely within the State to the extent that the shares represent investments in mortgages on real estates within the State.

Money that is the proceeds of the sale of stocks, bonds or other property disposed of to evade taxation is assessable.

Assessors are empowered to administer the oath to all parties owning property. The affidavit required of each property-owner contains this: "I have not directly or indirectly converted temporarily for the purpose of evading the assessment thereof for taxation into non-taxable property or securities of any kind."

Assessors have the right to propound any question which they may deem necessary to enable them to ascertain the location, kind and character of the personal property owned by the person to whom the oath is administered.

Any person or officer who makes a wilfully false and fraudulent return shall be guilty of perjury and liable to a fine of not over $500 or imprisonment not exceeding two years and to be forever disqualified from being a witness in any matter of controversy.

Penalties are also prescribed for assessors who shall make fraudulent returns.

The law says assessors shall assess property at its full cash value, not looking to a forced sale.

The assessment books shall not be open to inspection of any person other than a tax or assessment official, nor shall any copies be permitted to be made, unless in case of appeal or revision. A fine of from $5 to $500 is imposed upon any official found guilty of violating this provision. The county clerks, however, are permitted to give the assessment and valuation of real estate to parties having the right to demand the same.

Any person, with a view to evade payment of taxes, who refuses to give in to the assessor any bonds, notes, claims or other evidence of debt shall not be permitted to recover on the same by action at law or suit in equity before the courts until they have been listed and the taxes paid thereon.

The tax commissioner furnishes the blanks for the assessors and all printed instructions and forms for the guidance of the assessors.

Sunday Baseball in Ohio.

Gov. Harmon of Ohio, vetoed a Sunday baseball bill passed by the Legislature, because the constitution of the state will not permit Sunday baseball under any circumstances. Gov. Harmon points out that a convention for the revision of the constitution is to be held in 1912, when it will be possible to so change the constitution as to legalize Sunday ball, to which the governor does not personally object, if the people desire.

The noted libel case of the United States against the Press Publishing Company, proprietors of the New York World, was docketed Monday in the Supreme Court of the United States. The case comes to this court on a writ of error from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, where the indictment by a Federal grand jury was quashed by Judge Hough.

The Colonel's Kid

[Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips &amp; Co.]

Among the batch of forty recruits received at Fort Blank one day from Jefferson Barracks was one who attracted attention immediately from his superior looks and bearing. He had an aristocratic face, a good figure, and it was evident at a glance that he did not belong among that crowd. Private Harker had not been in the barracks an hour when it had been determined from colonel to corporal that he was a man who must be disciplined.

Colonel Banks had lost his wife two years before, but he had not sent his little daughter Edith east among relatives, as it had been supposed he would do. She was a handsome, sunny haired child of ten, and he clung to her and had an aunt come out and act as his housekeeper and a mother to the motherless. Scarcely any one at the fort gave the child her name when speaking of her. She was referred to affectionately as the colonel's kid.

The colonel's kid stood holding her father's hand when the recruits lined up for roll call. Her eyes roved along the line until they rested on Harker, and there they paused. There was that in his face that attracted her, and she secretly determined to be friends with him. He saw her from his place in the ranks, and his face softened. He dared not smile at her, but more friendliness came into his heart than had been there for many a day. The next day, and the next, and the next, he saw her from a distance while he was being drilled. On the fourth day, while he was doing sentry duty at the flag-staff, she came walking up to him and held out her hand and said:

"I like you. Won't you shake hands?" Private Harker's face was all smiles as he took her hand and assured her that he liked her in return and that back in the east he had a little niece who looked almost like her. Ten minutes later the colonel's kid was back in Officers' row with tears in her eyes, and Private Harker was in the guardhouse. It was a tremendous breach of discipline he had committed. Never before in the history of the American army, according to the sergeant, had a son on duty dared to pause in his monotonous tramp and ground arms and shake the colonel's daughter by the hand. The captain agreed with the sergeant, and Private Harker got five days' confinement. He knew that spite was the foundation, and he set his jaw hard. He had been at liberty only three days when fault was found with him at inspection of barracks. He answered back, and this time it was ten days in the guardhouse. At the end of that time he was called before the colonel.

In barracks even the children know what goes on. The colonel's kid had learned that Private Harker had been disgraced for shaking hands with her. She defended him. When he received his second sentence, she defended him more vigorously. In fact, she wept over it and was scolded by her father and aunt. Men and women make friendships in an hour, but their judgment is not as good as the intuition of a child. The kid had taken a liking to Private Harker, and they argued in vain. The colonel was upset over it. He was in angry mood when he received the recruit. There was nothing he could do officially, and yet he would not talk as man to man.

"Private Harker," he began, "I am sorry to hear bad reports of you. If you begin this way, where will you end? You may be above the common run, sir, but let me tell you that you can put on no airs here. If I catch you tripping again, I shall put you down as a trouble maker and act accordingly. Go to your quarters, sir."

The intent had been to humiliate him, and the soldier knew it. From that hour on he had but one object in view. It took him three months to accomplish it, but in the end he had talked revolt until the 200 rank and file at the post were ripe for it. They would leave the fort and scatter among the mines and ranches. Before leaving they would kill four or five of the officers that had been marked down. Never was a conspiracy better planned or a secret better kept. Not the slightest hint reached the officers' ears or the ears of those who would remain loyal. At 10 o'clock at night the 200 would arm, parade and march out in the face of the officers, and there would be shooting done before the last of them left the gate.

The signal was to be given by Private Harker—a musket shot. He had planned for days that the ball from that musket should find the colonel's heart. He would reach the colonel's quarters and fire on him through an open window. They had kept the kid out of his sight for weeks, and he did not take her into account in his planning. It was her father he meant to kill, but her feelings were not considered. When the night came, he slipped out of barracks, dodged across the parade ground and skulked up a dark alley and reached the point aimed at. The evening was warm, and the colonel had fallen asleep as he sat over his papers. The soldier raised his musket and drew a fair bead for the officer's heart, and his finger was pressing the trigger when a hand was gently laid on his arm. He lowered his musket to find the kid by his side and standing on her tiptoes to whisper:

"Don't shoot him. He is my father. He don't like you, but for my sake don't shoot him."

Private Harker bent down and kissed the child and then walked away and out of the fort and was never seen again. The signal did not come, and the waiting conspirators covered in their bunks and made no move. The colonel's kid had saved the day.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Nothing great is ever done on doubts. All masterful influences are built on faith.—Bishop William Quayle, Methodist, Chicago.

Value of Hard Work.

Hard work never spoiled anybody. It teaches independence, begets courage, fosters self reliance and inspires self support.—Rev. W. W. Bustard, Baptist, Boston.

Soul Growth.

The mind will not develop without thought and knowledge, and there can be no soul growth without God.—Rev. Guy Arthur Jamieson, Episcopalian, Tottenville, N. Y.

Guard Your Influence.

Nothing destroys your influence like wrongdoing, and nothing gives you more confidence and greater power with others than a clean life.—Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, Presbyterian, Brooklyn.

Soul Food.

The truth is food for the human soul, by which it grows and becomes strong and noble. Truth is instrumental. It is through a knowledge of the truth that we find freedom and peace and strength.—Rev. John W. Rowlett, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

Life's Rich Tableland.

Most people look upon middle age as upon an oasis. They call it a rich tableland, harvest clad, sloping backward toward a desert named infancy, sloping forward toward an unproductive desert named old age.—Rev. Dr. N. D. Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

Moral Law.

There is a moral law as truly as there is a law of gravitation, and this great law of laws will stand for no trifling with itself, and with both the individual and the nation nothing endures that does not rest on justice and decency.—Rev. Thomas B. Gregory, Universalist, New York.

What Love Will Do.

Love is the cornerstone of every truly happy home. It is the invisible bond, knitting heart with heart in an indissoluble union. It is the motive power which will send a father to exhausting labor for the sake of others. It is the inspiration of all that is noblest in art, in drama, in poetry and of all that is most heroic in history.—Rev. E. S. Woodring, United Evangelical, Philadelphia.

Secret of Perpetual Youth.

To learn is also to unlearn. To grow is to outgrow. In advancing we leave something behind. The soil is enriched by dead leaves and dead forests. Civilization has been enriched by old empires that are dead and buried. The old gods are mummies, and some of the new ones are being mummified. "We rise on stepping stones of our dead selves." To live and learn—this is the secret of perpetual youth.—Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ames, Unitarian, Boston.

The Church's Mission.

The church has no business in politics. Its business is to make men good. When it shall have done that it shall have done the full measure of its duty both to mankind and to the state. When all men are good there will be no need for the interference of the church in politics to better conditions. The mission of the church is to proclaim to all men the teaching of Christ, and its mission is divine, not political.—Rev. Percy S. Grant, Episcopalian, New York.

Love's First Duty.

Now, if the whole essence of love is to put the joys and the blessings and the happiness of others above all selfish happiness and joys and blessings, what is then in its crudest form the first duty of love? First, never to give another pain; never do anything which will bring the tear to the eye or the quiver to the lip or the sob to the aching heart. It does not take much to wound the sensibilities of another. And, if your first duty of life is to learn not to hurt yourself, so the first duty of love should be never to hurt or to wound the feelings of another.—Rev. Dr. Frank De Witt Talmage, Presbyterian, Los Angeles, Cal.

Not Enough Religion.

Benjamin Franklin once said, "Time is money," but it is much more. With some of us it is only money, for it is spent with money getting wholly in view. But what is money compared to nobler virtues and pleasures of life? At best time is short. It is important, therefore, that it be well redeemed, for the night cometh when no man can work. Not only should the young be actively engaged in their youth, providing time in the springtime of life for a time when their perchance may be incapacitated for work, for, after all, when one is sick and has no money he is usually nothing more than an object of pity, so that some need to learn a lesson from the ant and provide for a time of need. Important as it is to provide for the body, it is still more important to make provisions for things eternal, the soul, which will survive the perishable body. When death knocks at the door it is too late to think about making such necessary provision. Religion that does not make a man or woman kind and loving in the home is a sham and a mockery. Shame on those who pretend to be Christians who in public life and in the church assume the smile of a saint and in the home wear the mask of the devil and, still worse, act like the evil one! There is too much pretense in this world and not enough of practical religion in everyday life. Some who kneel at the mourners' bench to point others to life eternal should first kneel there themselves and be saved before seeking to save others. This thing of being an angel on the street and a fiend in the house is all wrong.—Rev. Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, Lutheran, Baltimore.

A Practical Joke.

He was a wag and was passing a large draper's shop in Manchester. There, drawn up, were three or four vehicles, and among them was a closed brougham with the driver fast asleep on the box. Evidently the mistress was inside the shop. Without a word the wag stole quickly up and, opening the carriage door, carefully slammed it to. In an instant the coachman straightened himself up and gazed up the street as if he had never seen anything more interesting to look at in his life. Then he stole a look over his shoulder and saw the wag standing, hat in hand, apparently conversing with some one inside the carriage.

"Thank you, yes. Good morning," said the practical joker and bowed himself graciously away from the door, turning as he did so to look at the coachman and say, "Home!"

"Yes, sir! Teli! Get up!" And away went the brougham home. Where that home was, who the mistress of the carriage was or what she did or said when she came out of the shop or what the coachman did or said when he stopped at the door of "home" and found the carriage empty—all that only the coachman and the lady know.—London Tit-Bits.

A Beggar In a Basket.

Perhaps the most curious use to which Mexicans put their baskets is to hold gamecocks. Sometimes the cock's basket is woven for the purpose; often it is made from a sombrero, the wide, high crowned, straw hat of the country, into which the bird is put, a hole cut in the crown to give him air and the brim carefully tied down that he may not escape. The bullfight has been called the national sport of Mexico, but cockfighting is much more universal, for the humblest peasant may have his gamecock, which he keeps in a carefully made cage in his patio, watches with pride and tends with care.

One of the strangest uses to which a basket has probably ever been put was the daily appearance in the streets of a young man carrying in a huge bushel basket on his shoulders his great grandmother, of unknown age, who held out a skinny hand to the passer by for the centavo which was almost unfailingly given. Surely a trust in Providence could go no further.—Eleanor Hope Johnson in Outing Magazine.

Dreams of the Blind.

In my dreams I have sensations, odors, tastes and ideas which I do not remember to have had in reality. Perhaps they are the glimpses which my mind catches through the veil of sleep of my earliest babyhood. I have heard "the trampling of many waters." Sometimes a wonderful light visits me in sleep. Such a flash and glory as it is! I gaze and gaze until it vanishes. I smell and taste much as in my waking hours, but the sense of touch plays a less important part. In sleep I almost never grope. No one guides me. Even in a crowded street I am self sufficient, and I enjoy an independence quite foreign to my physical life. Now I seldom spell on my fingers, and it is still rarer for others to spell into my hand. My mind acts independent of my physical organs. I am delighted to be thus endowed, if only in sleep, for then my soul dons its winged sandals and joyfully joins the throng of happy beings who dwell beyond the reaches of bodily sense.—Helen Keller in Century.

The Cheerful Undertaker.

A most amusing thing occurred one evening upon our arrival at a small town in New Zealand. We found awaiting us at the station the local carriage and pair, with the local undertaker as footman. He was garbed in his usual funeral suit of black, but he had substituted a white tie in order to relieve the situation somewhat, and, evidently with a desire to dispel any morbid impressions he might otherwise have created, he commenced to whistle a selection of the most cheerful tunes he knew, while he held the door open for us and helped us into the carriage.—Clara Butt in Musical Home Journal.

Fishing Up.

"Have you ever played poker with your son-in-law?" "Only once," answered Mr. Cumrox. "It wasn't very satisfactory." "Did he win?" "No; he lost. But it merely resulted in my having to write him a check so that he could indorse it over to me."—Washington Star.

A Slander.

Member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union—Did you write this notice of my lecture on "The Demon Rum?" Editor—Yes, madam. Member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union—Then I would like to know what you mean by saying, "The lecturer was evidently full of her subject."—Judge.

Lucky.

Rustic—What's the matter? Motorist—Matter! I can't get this car to go. Rustic—Then it's the lucky man you are, for just yesterday a motorist got nearly smashed to bits here because he couldn't get his car to stop.

Her Dig.

Miss Antique—Just think of the nerve of that impetuous fellow to propose to me! Miss Caustique—Nerve? Why, it was absolute recklessness.—Milwaukee News.

Considerate.

Jasper—Whenever a great man dies Longhair writes a poem about him. Raspar—Well, I must commend his consideration in not writing it before the great man dies.—Boston Globe.

An Awkward Player.

In 1608 King James published his famous "Book of Sports" and, thinking to render the Presbyterian form of worship less rigid, ordered that certain of the sports therein commended should be played in the several churchyards every Sunday at the close of divine service. John Ross, a minister of Blairgowrie, adopted a novel method of withstanding the royal ordinance. He was a strong, athletic man and seemed much interested in the recreations enjoined by the monarch. Football was selected by the parishioners of Blairgowrie from the list of "Sunday games." When the services of the church were completed Mr. Ross appeared among his people in the churchyard and joined them in their sport. None of the assemblage kicked more eagerly at the football than did the reverend incumbent. But constant misfortune seemed to attend him. Every kick missed the ball and fell heavily on the ankles of those who stood near. Apologies were promptly tendered and, of course, received, though every Sunday many of the parishioners returned home halting. Finally it was agreed that on account of the minister's awkwardness the games should be abandoned. Thus the ingenious divine gained his end and prevented compliance with the obnoxious order.

Famous Collection of Antlers.

Of the famous collections of antlers formed in the seventeenth century only two or three have escaped the general fate of conflagrations, sieges and pillage. One of these is in Moritzburg, the king of Saxony's historical hunting castle, near Dresden, while in the celebrated gun gallery in Dresden itself are to be seen in an unrivaled show the wonderfully inlaid arms used by the elector. The great banquet hall of the castle of Moritzburg is one of the sights with which no doubt many a traveled reader has been charmed. It is a chamber of noble proportions, sixty-six feet long by thirty-four wide and thirty-eight feet high. On its otherwise unadorned white walls hang seventy-one pairs of magnificent antlers, which one may describe as the most famous of their kind in the world. Not a single one carries less than twenty-four times or is less than 200 years old, while some are probably double that age.

A Celebrated Clock.

The art of the clockmaker has achieved many remarkable triumphs during many centuries. Sometimes it is a clock wonderful for the complexity of its movements and its busy population of automata that attracts our admiration, like that in the Cathedral of Strassburg. At other times the immense size of the machinery and the dials excites astonishment. This is the case with the celebrated clock in the tower of the Church of St. Rombaut at Mechlin. A writer in La Nature thinks that clock possesses the largest dials that exist in the world. There are four of them, one on each side of the great square tower, and their extreme diameter is nearly thirty-seven and one-half feet. The figures showing the hours are nearly six and one-half feet high, and the hands have a length of nearly twelve feet.

GIST BLAIR FOR CONGRESS

Montgomery Man Enters List Against Pearre the Unpromising Incumbent.

Republicans are much interested in the announcement that Mr. Gist Blair, of Montgomery county, will be a candidate for the nomination at the forthcoming primaries in the district. He will be opposed in Montgomery by Mr. B. H. Warner, Jr. It is understood that Mr. Thos. C. Noyes, of the same county, who had congressional aspirations in the years gone by, will not be a candidate.

It begins to look as though each county in the district, with the exception of Garrett, which has not yet been heard from, will have a candidate. Allegany will present Congressman George A. Pearre. Washington county will support Mr. Alexander R. Hagner. Frederick has not yet produced a candidate.

Mr. Blair is a son of the late Montgomery Blair, who was postmaster general in President Lincoln's cabinet. After the war between the states he became a Democrat, and as a Democrat he represented Montgomery county in the Maryland General Assembly in 1876.

Mr. Gist Blair was a Democrat until his party nominated Mr. Bryan for president in 1896, when he voted for Mr. McKinley. He has never returned to the party of his first choice. He has been prominent in the Republican party of his county and his state. He is a lawyer, with offices in Washington.

Drives Brother Needle with a push and a wheedle;

A stitch drops behind as she flies ahead.

Then comes Father Scissors and gives her a snip,

And starts them off on another trip,

Over a hen, or down a seam,

Needle and Thread, a lively team.

Fat Uncle Emery, bright and true,

When a hard place comes will help them through.

And pale Aunt Wax is willing enough

To smooth the way when they find it rough.

Then Grandfather Bodkin, with many a jerk,

Will do his part, and finish the work.

Now, where is their home? Well, since you ask it,

I'll tell you—they live in a little work-basket.

SAVE THE TREES AND PLANT MORE OF THEM.

No doubt for a long while a great deal of the talk concerning forest conservation and much that has been published in regard to reforestation has been received by many as only the sentimental outpouring of the views of horticulturists with pet hobbies. Judging from the erstwhile wholesale destruction of woodlands through this and other States this idea appears to have gained credence among unthinking people. But it is noticeable now, however, not only to those who have made a study of the subject but to many who have but recently had their eyes opened that this wanton waste of timber is causing no end of alarm. The most casual reader of the daily press cannot have failed to observe the attention given to this important subject by the national government and individual states. Nor can any follower of current events long remain ignorant of the enormous amount of work being done by the big corporations in tree planting and the care of young timber destined for future use. The Pennsylvania Railroad is spending thousands of dollars a year for this purpose, the government thousands more, and consumers like the International Paper Company are planting hundreds of thousands of selected trees each year. "The big paper corporations owning pulp lands no longer cut wastefully, but employ scientific foresters to superintend their cutting, and see the possibility of obtaining a perpetual supply through the proper protection of young trees and the adoption of systematic and continuous reforestation," says the Boston Herald. And what is being done by these big concerns can be and ought to be done, with modifications to suit local conditions, by every owner of wooded land.

There have been many costly changes in climatic conditions in late years; many costly floods and freshets; many costly droughts; much diminished rainfall—all due to the forest waste and the failure to replant and then to care for young timber. And "if we would not share the fate that has befallen so many countries of the old world whose fertile fields have become barren plains (as one writer puts it) and whose wooded slopes, once the rich pasture grounds of countless herds, have become sterile knobs, we must begin to plant trees."

Even the small wooded tract properly cared for means much to the owner of a hundred acres, and a large timber reserve means a great deal to him who owns a thousand acres. "Trees," to quote again, "imprison the wealth of melting snows and of falling showers in cisterns woven of their fragile roots, holding back their reserves from the drenched fields in spring, and yielding them to the parched soil in hot and arid summer." They preserve the springs and streams; give a more constant flow to rivers; they absorb the poisonous exhalations of the atmosphere and—well in a word they form the most valuable asset the tiller of the soil can possess.

Timber must be cut; the products of forests must be utilized by the manufacturer. This is as it should be. But the cutting must be intelligently done, and every tree that has matured must be replaced by trees of still tender growth. And in addition to this more trees must be planted. Only in this way can man preserve the inestimable fortune placed within his reach, and only by disregarding Nature's forethought will he rob himself in this respect and bring misfortune on those who follow.

WOULDN'T it be well to replace the tablets at the fountain before the big encampment is on at Gettysburg? Many strangers will pass through here shortly and we fancy that they will not be much impressed by the appearance of the Square. Perhaps the Burgess and Commissioners will take the matter up and communicate with the Battlefield Commission about these markers.

THE fellow who sits on the store box complaining of hard times never seems to be affected by the stringency in the money market when the circus comes around. And the man who is ordinarily opposed to games of chance somehow thinks it his duty to try to beat the shell game gent who wears the diamond stud and uses such refined and convincing language.

FULL soon the "sweet girl graduate," bedecked in white and pink, will read an essay that will start the whole wide world to think. And soon the college student, filled with wisdom to the brim, will spout a speech that doubtless will put Shakes—"on the blink."

ACCORDING to the Kansas City Star "A congressman's usefulness in Washington is measured by the number of times he is re-elected." If this is true, what an indispensable member Col. Pearre must be. But isn't this the time Geo. Alexander gets a spill?

WE venture to say that the Stockholm doctor who told Col. Roosevelt that he talked too much is the only man who ever had the nerve to make such a remark to that gentleman's face.

"WHAT'S the use, when you have no julep?" says the Atlanta Journal. We do not know—and neither do you!—Washington Herald.

There is one man who does know, and that's the Bentztown Bard. Anything that sounds like "julep" or "pie" will draw information from him in a jiffy.

A BALTIMORE paper says "Gotham received 648,000,000 eggs in April." No mention was made, however, of the proportion received by Gotham's umpires and actors during that period.

By the way has Frederick abandoned the idea of an "Old Home Week"? Even Washington is going to have one in the fall.

Of all the troubles loaded down on Mr. Taft just now, the greatest seems to be his need of cook and "mooley" cow.

Discussion of Affairs in General from Leading Journals of The Country.

Turmoil in Navy Department.

(Washington Herald.)

The conditions in the Navy Department have reached that stage which closely resembles demoralization of administrative function. This may sound sensational, but it appears to be justified by the statement of those who should know of the condition of affairs. When official relations terminate between the head of a department and one or more of the bureau chiefs, it is time that some steps were taken to apply a remedy. We shall not presume, in view of the meager information obtainable in this particular instance, to lend our valuable advice to the head of the Navy Department. Mr. Meyer is a man of much business experience. He has been prominently and intimately identified with large industrial and financial institutions in New England, and ought to be able to run the Navy Department without journalistic aid, or for that matter, depending on the newspapers for bringing his bureau chiefs to his terms. At all events, it is high time something was done to stop the turmoil in the Navy Department.

N. Y.'s Religion At Low Ebb.

(Philadelphia Inquirer.)

An Egyptian goddess was pawned for only fifty cents in New York. We can now believe all reports of the low state of religious feeling in that city.

An Example In Prosperity.

(Indianapolis Star.)

A Norwegian lumber dealer visiting in the West tells of a conservation method in force in Sweden, Norway and Finland which should commend itself to the friends of forest preservation in this country. In those three countries, he says, every lumber man who cuts down a tree is compelled to plant another in the place of it. The penalty for the first failure is a fine; for the second a fine and imprisonment; for the third refusal on the part of the government to allow the delinquent to do further business in lumber. Naturally the law is carefully observed with the result that forests will hold out indefinitely. The people—most of them those who wish to grab government property—who hold that our own forestry laws are too exacting, should learn that only the preliminary steps have yet been taken and that the movement is in its infancy compared with the work elsewhere.

Farmer And Politician.

(Nashville American.)

The farmer that looks after his crops while his neighbor is sizing up the political situation will eat watermelons while the other fellow picks persimmons.

Political Dynamite.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

It is admitted by even the most stanch Republicans that there are contentions within and without the party ranks that make for sloughing off of the voters from their party. When the reasons for these Republican losses are sought, the most potent are found to be dissatisfaction with high cost of commodities and with the provisions of the tariff bill passed in 1907 by a Republican Senate and a Republican House.

In the East, that is, in the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the high prices of food are charged largely to the tariff legislation, and the people of those states forget or overlook the benefits they are supposed to receive from the present law in their anger against the advanced prices they believe they are compelled to pay through the requirements of the tariff schedules. The cent and one-half per pound on imports of beef is as strongly resented by the people of the East as was the British tax on tea before the Revolution. Yet it is this very tax on beef that was imposed by a Republican Congress as was said, in justice to the raisers of cattle in this country in order to protect them from the formidable competition of foreign cattle raisers.

If we turn to the central part of the country and the West we find the insurgents in full rebellion against New England and eastern methods and forms of protection, and their followers are full of bitterness at the exactions of the tariff which they have to meet. There is no comfort for any defender of the new law in the agricultural states, notwithstanding the high prices prevailing for the products of the soil.

The Mills bill, the McKinley bill, the Wilson bill all brought defeat upon the party which framed them, and the Taft-Payne-Aldrich bill promises no better political fortune to its authors when the angry voters have opportunity to pass verdict upon its merits and demerits. It has been for years a favorite phrase with Republicans, "the tariff must be revised by its friends." As far as political prospects are concerned, the Republican party would have been much better off to-day if they had confided the revision to their political opponents.

There is more political dynamite in a tariff revision than in any other question or issue before the American people. All Republicans are for protection of course, but what to protect and who to protect and how much to protect plays the mischief with protection and the party.

Can't Get Any Lower.

(Houston Post.)

They have located a "man higher up" in the Pittsburgh scandal. It would be almost impossible to discover one lower down than most of the fellows who have confessed.

Mr. Taft In His Official Home.

(Washington Letter to Brooklyn Eagle)

It is something of a surprise to the friends of President Taft that he should complain so freely in public speeches about the seamy side of life in the White House. Almost every time the President leaves Washington he tells the public that he is lonesome, that his critics are unjust and that it is a delight to "nestle up" to people who are really glad to see him.

President Taft is far from being a pessimist in the White House. Those who call upon him seldom have an excuse for saying that he is discouraged or in a bad humor. In fact, the President's cheerfulness and buoyancy of spirit have been marveled at by all. If he really feels so badly about things as the public might be led to believe from his out-of-town speeches, the President conceals it admirably while at home. There are reasons why he might at times lose his courage and give way to the what's-the-use feeling. But so far as close observers know he never does this. His smile is perennial and his optimism boundless.

Mr. Taft finds time for more social relaxation than the average cabinet officer or senator. It is an exception for a day to pass without the President seeking diversion of some kind. He may go to the ball game, play golf, take a horseback ride or an automobile spin. It may be a wedding of the daughter of a senator that he will attend, or perhaps a banquet or the theater. He is exceedingly liberal in his views about official etiquette in its application to the movements of the President. In view of all these things it occasions some surprise here that the President, while away from home, should complain so persistently about the hardships of his life at Washington.

Oklahoma In a Bad Way.

(St. Paul Dispatch.)

Oklahoma has nine candidates for governor. It would take about nine of the caliber of the man now in office to make one real governor.

George V. and Politics.

(Springfield Republican.)

The strenuous appeals for an amicable compromise between the peers and the liberal ministry, being made by some of the most violent of the recent assailants of the government, are undoubtedly due in some measure to the recent by-elections. The liberal candidates have had no trouble in carrying liberal constituencies by good majorities. Trade is reviving, the budget is out of the way, and the liberal party is still united under a fighting leadership. Should another general election come within four months, the unionists could not hope to do better than they did in January. For them to gain seats enough to make their ministry independent of the Irish is regarded as impossible.

Hence the growing fervor of the cry on the unionist side that the change in kings requires a truce between the parties on the Lords' issue for at least a year. George V. should not be confronted with such an important crisis as that of the "guarantees" until he has had opportunity to become familiar with the royal office. He must be allowed time for mourning and then for educating himself in the duties of kingship. So runs the Tory argument. It will have some popular effect for a while, say a few months. But a postponement of the elections until next year seems both unnecessary and absurd. Political movements of great importance cannot be halted by a mere change in the personality of a monarch, as was shown when William IV. came to the throne in 1830. That monarch, in his first address to the privy council after his accession, manifested his personal opposition to the reform bill, but the reform movement simply proceeded on its course. There was no reason then, and there is no reason now, why a prince coming to the throne in middle life, after years of preparations, should not face the problems of the time as they arise.

George V. is not a youth of 18, with scarcely years enough to understand the nature of a constitutional monarchy. He is 45 years old, and for nearly two decades he has been carefully trained for the royal office. It has been part of his preparation for a long period to study the political questions of the day, and he has often attended sessions of the Lords and Commons during recent months to hear important debates. The possibility of a sudden accession to the throne has been always before him. The truth is that he is far better prepared for the kingship than the majority of American chief magistrates have been for the presidency when they took the oath of office. Yet no one in this country ever suggested that party struggles should be postponed six months or a year to afford an American President time to familiarize himself with public questions.

Growing hatred to Jesus.—Matt. xii;
22-32, 38-42.

Golden Text.—He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad. Matt.
xii:30.

Verse 22—What are the indications that Jesus will finally conquer the Devil and destroy sin?

What are your ideas, as to whether the time will ever come, when sickness, sin and sorrow, will be cast out of every body?

Verse 23—Which is the most amazing work of God, birth, life, death, or miracles? Why?

Verse 24—How is it that when a good man is praised by the people, that hypocrites become jealous, and that other good men rejoice?

When a man begins to undervalue or minify the good work of another, or to explain its gracious significance, in what class do you place him, and what are your reasons for your conclusion?

What motive prompted the Pharisees to ascribe Jesus' miracle to Beelzebub, and what inspired the motive?

Verses 25-26—By what power did Jesus know their thoughts, and what reason is there to think that to-day he knows your thoughts and mine?

Why will not a sane man pull down his own building?

Can you think of, or invent, any good reason which would induce Satan to cast out Satan?

Are men, who are inspired with hatred, capable of reasoning logically?
Why or why not?

What would result to Satan's kingdom if he were to begin to destroy his own works?

There appear to have been, at that time, other children of the Jews than Jesus, with power to cast out devils, which power was presumably ascribed to God, by the Pharisees. What therefore was the logical conclusion of Jesus' reference to that fact?

The desire to get somebody else to do our work is the mainspring of civilization.—Life.

Verse 28—What is the evidence that Jesus did cast out devils, and do other great works by the Spirit of God?

Verse 29—What is the kingdom of God on earth? If the strong man here stands for Satan, what then are his "goods?"

In order to dispossess Satan of the souls of men, what according to the figure here used by Jesus, is necessary?

What is the evidence that the Spirit of God, to-day, does bind Satan when a soul cries to God for deliverance?

Verse 30—Why is the negative sin of not accepting Christ, as bad as the positive sin of rejecting Him?

Which is the guiltier, and why, the man who sets a house on fire, or the man who refuses to put out the first small blaze, when he had full opportunity of doing so?

* Verse 31—What is the sin against the Holy Ghost? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 33-40—Why did Jesus imply that they were an evil generation for asking for a sign?

What signs had Jesus already given them?

Is there any record where a miracle alone, was the means of any person's conversion?

Verses 40-41—If the story of Jonah and the whale, should prove not to be historic, as some claim, and Jesus believed it was, what effect should that have upon our love and admiration for Jesus?

Verse 42—Why was it not immodest for Jesus to say he was greater than Solomon?

Lesson for Sunday, May 22, 1910.—
The Death of John the Baptist. Matt.
xiv:1-12.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

On Tuesday evening a carrier pigeon came to the residence of Mrs. Thomas Barry, near town. The bird was exhausted and seemed to have traveled quite a distance. It has a band around its leg, with the letters "A. B." and the figure "8." The bird will be kept until the owner is heard from.

Runaway Ball Game.

The game of baseball between Mount St. Mary's and the Catholic University on Tuesday looked more like a relay race than a game of ball. The score was 10 to 4 in favor of Mt. St. Mary's. The visitors made six errors.

KILLED ON W. F. AND G. R. R.

Harry Gough's Life Crushed Out Between Cars.—Died on Way to Hospital.

Harry Gough, aged about 23 years, who was employed by the Frederick Railroad Company as a brakeman and extra conductor on the W. F. and G. line, was fatally injured by being crushed between two freight cars at Catocin Furnace shortly before noon Tuesday. Gough was engaged in coupling the cars when in some way he was caught and crushed. He was hurried to Thurmout where he was attended by Drs. Kefauver and Birely, who recommended that he be taken to Frederick for treatment at the City Hospital. A special train was at once made up and rushed to Frederick with Gough aboard, but he did not survive the trip, dying just as the train reached the city.

Gough was a son of Marshall A. Gough, of Thurmout, and was unmarried.

DR. M. G. MOTTER OFFICER OF PHARMACOPOEIAL SOCIETY

Former Emmitsburgian Made Secretary at Convention.

Dr. Murray Galt Motter, formerly of this place but now a resident of Washington was elected secretary of the Pharmacopoeial Convention in session at Washington. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, was elected president. Charles Caspari, Jr., of Maryland, was elected second vice-president.

Dr. N. S. Davis was the candidate against Dr. Wiley, whose victory is regarded as having strengthened his stand for the rigid enforcement of the pure food and pure drug laws. The fight against Dr. Wiley, it was said, was inspired by manufacturing chemists, who have disagreed with him at various times.

Will of the Late Lewis M. Motter.

The will of the late Lewis M. Motter has been filed for probate in the Orphans' Court. He bequeaths his entire estate, real, personal and mixed, to his sons, Isaac M. Motter and Lewis Edwin Motter; to his daughters, Carrie M. Hack and Grace Resser, and to the children of his deceased daughter, Alice C. Annan, and his deceased son, Joshua S. Motter, in six equal shares four of said shares to his four living children and the two remaining shares to his said grandchildren per stirpes and not per capita. He authorizes and empowers and directs his executors to sell his real estate to the most advantage to the estate. He appoints his sons, Isaac M. Motter and Lewis Edwin Motter and son-in-law, Augustus A. Hack, as executors without bond.—Frederick News.

W. P. Eyer Hurt on Excursion.

Mr. William P. Eyer was among the excursionists that went to Baltimore on Wednesday that did not get hurt on the Emmitsburg train but he was not so fortunate on the Western Maryland. Mr. Eyer missed his train in Baltimore and started home on a freight. Just after the train pulled out of the Hillen yards his foot got between the bumpers. At the North avenue bridge he called for aid. The train was stopped and he was taken to St. Luke's Hospital where his foot was dressed. He came home last evening.

FREDERICK CANDIDATES MANY

Municipal Offices Very Attractive to Many Politicians.

The municipal offices of Frederick to be filled at the coming election look good to not a few of the prominent men of that place. The Democratic candidates for mayor are Mayor George Edward Smith, who goes after another term with a good record, Alderman Lewis F.aley, who has made a popular councilman, and a former member of the board; John Edward Schell, whose record as alderman is excellent. It was the latter who three years ago lost the nomination to the present incumbent by a narrow margin. All of these men are making a clean and strenuous fight. It was thought that Mr. Michael McCaffery, the incumbent would be renominated for city tax collector without opposition, but Mr. Walter H. McDaniel, a young man, has announced his candidacy. He will ask that this nomination also be made under the Crawford county plan. The City Committee determines how the nominations shall be made, and unless the Crawford ballot is asked for, candidates are named by delegates in convention.

Among the latest Aldermanic candidates are: Mr. M. Eugene Getzendaner one of Frederick's best known citizens. Mr. John N. Clary is another new candidate. Mr. David Lowenstein, president of the Board of Aldermen, is a candidate for re-election, and Mr. Henry Hahn, also of the present board, is spoken of for renomination. Others mentioned are: Mr. George S. Rodock, formerly president of the Business Men's Association, Casper E. Cline, Newton M. Zentz, Philip Seegar and G. Wesley Kindley. Mr. George E. Wilcoxon and Mr. James H. Gambrell, Jr., present Alderman, have made good records and have been prominently mentioned for renomination, but both have declared against it.

May 18 has been selected for holding the Mayoralty primaries under the Crawford system. On May 24 Aldermanic primaries will be held in the various city precincts and the day following, May 25, the nominating convention will be held. While the Republicans have made no move as yet toward their campaign, they are organized and ready to get a-going. Three candidates have been mentioned in connection with the Mayoralty, former Mayor William H. Chilton, former Sheriff George Edward Myers and Mr. William W. Osburn. None of them, however, is making an effort for the nomination. Mr. R. Ridgely has the call for city tax collector. For Aldermen a list of candidates, including Dr. A. Atlee Radcliffe, Mel-I Gittinger, Charles Crouse, Harry Hensel, Wm. E. Filler, George H. Zimmerman, former member of the board; Thomas H. Haller, George A. Dean, William H. Ramsburg, John D. Hendrickson and others have been mentioned.

NEW LAW AND HIGH SCHOOLS

The "Third Richest County in State" May Boast Only Three or Four Such Institutions.

By the operation of the new high school law schools of this character, in order to receive state aid, shall have an enrollment of at least 85 bona fide students for the first class and at least 35 for the second class.

The article published in the Baltimore American purporting to quote President of School Commissioners I. M. Motter that the schools at Emmitsburg, Thurmout, Woodsboro, Walkersville, Jefferson, and Adamstown will be closed is not authoritative. No action has been taken by the Commissioners.

Under the new law high schools of the first class will receive $2,500 each per year from the state towards their support, and schools of the second class will receive $1,500.

J. S. Annan a Manager of Frederick and Emmitsburg Pike.

At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the Frederick and Emmitsburg Turnpike Company, the following managers were elected J. S. Annan, J. Marshall Miller, Charles S. Snook, George A. Dean, George Houck, John R. Rouzer, George McMiller, G. Lloyd Palmer, P. N. Hammaker. The board organized by electing J. Marshall Miller, president; Hiram R. Heck, secretary and treasurer, and P. N. Hammaker, superintendent. A dividend of 3 per cent. was declared, payable July 1.

GEORGE T. SIX.

George T. Six, formerly of Emmitsburg, but for the past forty years a resident of Columbus, Ohio, died at Garfield Hospital at that place on April 13. He was a son of the late Edward and Susan Six, of Emmitsburg, and in the Civil War was a member of Cole's Cavalry. He was 68 years of age. He is survived by a widow, five children, also a sister and three brothers.

WRECK ON EMMITSBURG ROAD

Excursion Train Drifts Into Engine.—Several Passengers Hurt and All Badly Shaken.

The excursion train carrying some sixty persons, which left Emmitsburg early Wednesday morning, collided with the engine at Rocky Ridge and a number of persons were more or less injured. The cars were drifting at the time, the engine having gone ahead into the Y, the switch was open and the coaches followed the engine with the above result.

Among those injured were Mr. Fred. Brown, dislocated rib; Mr. J. Thomas Gelwick, sprained bone in right wrist; and Mrs. Bertha McCurdy, painful bruise of her already injured knee. Among the others hurt were Messrs. Guy Topper, William Longenecker, Charles Reeder, John Wagerman, Harry Stokes, Howard Rowe, Harry Bollinger, Eugene L. Rowe and Mr. Dicky. Mr. M. F. Shuff, who saw the danger, jumped. Mr. Harry Boyle, standing on the front platform was almost buried under coal jarred from the engine. The car was put out of commission, the front platform being pretty badly damaged.

AUTO CAR LINE TO RESUME

Meeting of Stockholders Held in Thurmout Last Saturday and Future Plans Adopted.

In a few days the Auto Car Line, established last summer, will be in full operation one car making regularly scheduled trips between Emmitsburg and Thurmout and the other car running between Gettysburg and the battlefield.

Nearly every share of stock was represented at the meeting held in Thurmout last week when plans for the season were carefully discussed. The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed that the line is a paying investment and under this year's schedule the directors and stockholders look for substantial results.

The car between Emmitsburg and Thurmout will make four trips a day connecting regularly with the important trains on the W. M. and the W. F. & G. Passengers will thus be assured of reaching their destination on exact time. It is expected that the car to be located in Gettysburg will handle a great number of tourists during the coming encampment and that it will be well patronized throughout the summer.

CHILD'S STRANGE AFFLICTION

Boy Shows Signs of Hydrophobia.—Tries to Bite Playmates.—Another Case at Keysville.

On Wednesday a son of Charles Ridge, attending school under Miss Clara Rowe at Annandale, gave evidence that he is suffering from hydrophobia. The lad was kept in at recess and his teacher noticed that saliva was flowing from his mouth and he moved his jaws in a peculiar manner. She told him to go outside and when he got among the other children he made several unsuccessful attempts to bite them. When Miss Rowe heard the commotion she came to the door and the afflicted child ran home.

His teacher has since discovered that the child had been bitten by a dog sometime ago.

The four-year-old child of Mr. William Deberry, of Keysville, who was bitten by a dog sometime ago, has been sent to Baltimore for treatment. Mr. Deberry killed the dog that bit his child and Dr. Diller sent its head to the Pasteur Institute and it was reported as the head of a mad dog.

Brunswick Delighted With Trip.

The following letter explains itself: Brunswick, May 10, 1910.

Editor of the Chronicle:

Our High School boys desire me to express through your paper, to the people of Emmitsburg, our appreciation of their kindness and hospitality during our recent visit there. The boys were more than delighted with the trip and shall always have pleasant memories of the occasion, and hope to continue the acquaintances made, through more friendly contests in the future.

Sincerely,

OSCAR M. FOGLE, Prin.

Waynesboro Plants to Enlarge.

Prosperity has come to Waynesboro in several places. Perhaps the most significant impression is the decision of the directors of the Geiser Manufacturing Company, builders of threshing machines, traction engines and other agricultural machinery, to float $500,000 more capital stock, increasing the capitalization from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. The additional capital has been authorized for several years, but has never been put on the market. It will be sold pro rata to stockholders at par, $50. Geiser stock commands in the open market twice its par value.

The Landis Machine Company has broken ground for an addition to its plant. The Victor Tool Company will resume work and the Frick Company has added a large shop to its extensive plant.

Frederick Wins Three More Games.

The Frederick Y. M. C. A. baseball team still wins. The latest victims were the "All Stars" of Baltimore, Rock Hill College and the Catholic University. In the game with the college Frederick won in ninth when they scored two runs. The board showed at the end Frederick 7, Rock Hill 6.

The "All Stars" were defeated by a home run, a three-bagger and two-base hit. The score was 4 to 2. The score on Wednesday with the Catholic University was 2 to 0.

Rev. W. J. Kane Going Abroad.

Rev. William J. Kane, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, Frederick, will leave that city on May 17 for New York and on May 19, sail on the steamer Carpathia for an extended trip to Europe. In the party will be Bishop Hennessey, of Wichita, Kan., and several other clergymen. They will go to Naples and Rome and will have an audience with the Pope. Father Kane expects to be gone about six months.

Succeeds Rev. Dr. Steck.

The council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Frederick, has been notified by Rev. Ulysses S. G. Rupp, of Baltimore, of his acceptance of the call recently extended to him to become pastor of that church. In his letter of acceptance, Rev. Mr. Rupp, who has been pastor of the Church of the Reformation, in Baltimore, since 1896, states that he will enter upon his pastorate there on July 1.

An editor of a paper published in Quinan, Miss., who wrote disparagingly of a dance, was forced to eat his editorial.

MR. BOB MAKES A HIT

Emmitsburg Dramatic Club Gives Excellent Performance.—First Appearance of Glee Club.

The performance of "Mr. Bob," by the Dramatic Club, given on Monday and Tuesday evenings was enjoyed on both evenings by a large audience. The play is a very amusing one, full of laughable scenes and peculiar mix-ups. The portrayal of the different characters was excellent: Miss Euphemia Tyson, Miss Valeria Welty, Miss Grace Lansinger and Miss Anna Felix on one hand and Messrs. Robert Kerrigan, John Rosensteel and Felix Adams on the other, constituted the cast. It was the first appearance of Miss Felix with the club and she acted her part admirably; the others, old members and well known for their ability, performed their parts in a finished manner.

The first appearance of St. Euphemia's Glee Club in connection with this performance must be remarked. From the way the different songs and soloists were received by the audience they made a decided hit. The Glee Club is made up Messrs. Albert Bowling, Robert Topper, Edgar Dukehart, Joseph Topper, James Mullen and James Arnold.

Letters To The Editor.

[The Editor would have it understood that he is not responsible for the views expressed in communications addressed to him and published in THE CHRONICLE.]

No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

Editor of the Chronicle:

Dear Sir:—Your edition, by your high school scholars, was fine. I read every word of it, and my regret was, that they did not have such schools and advantages when I was the girl that went to the pay school, of the dear old town. But I am thankful that the children of to-day are having better schools. I delight in my paper and feel I am at home with you all again as I read it.

Remaining yours Sincerely,

MRS. DALLIE A. SHARP.

SORROWING QUEEN TO PEOPLE

Alexandra's Pathetic Message to the English Nation on the Death of Edward VII.

From the depth of my poor broken heart I express to the whole kind people we love so deeply thanks for all their sympathy in my overwhelming and unspeakable anguish. I have lost everything in him, my loved husband, but the nation, have suffered an irreparable loss in their best friend, father and sovereign thus suddenly called away. May God give us all his divine help to bear this heaviest of crosses which he has seen fit to lay upon us. 'His will be done.'

'Give to me a thought in your prayers which will comfort and sustain me in all that I have to go through. Let me take this mode of expressing my heartfelt thanks for all the touching letters and tokens of sympathy I have received from all classes high and low, rich and poor, which are so numerous that I fear that it would be impossible for me ever to thank everybody individually.'

'I confide my dear son into your care, who, I know, will follow in his dear father's footsteps, begging you to show him the same loyalty and devotion you showed his dear father. I know that both my dear son and daughter-in-law will do their utmost to merit and keep it.'

VATICAN MAKES CORRECTION

Cardinal Del Val Did Not Refer To Roosevelt's African Hunt.

Mgr. Diomedeo Falconio, Apostolic Delegate to the United States issued a statement Wednesday relating to a cablegram published in this country, dated Rome, April 22 last, relating to the visit paid to former President Roosevelt when in Rome by Abbot Janssens. In this cablegram it was stated, referring to the Vatican:

'It did not wish Mr. Roosevelt to bracket the pope with other more or less royal personages he will boast of having hunted in Europe after his African hunt.'

The Apostolic Delegate called the attention of the Vatican to this statement and today received a cablegram from Cardinal Merry del Val, the Pontifical secretary, authorizing him to state that this portion of the Rome cablegram did not come from the Vatican and consequently was repudiated.

CLEMENS AS POLITICAL EDITOR

The Only Nominee He Knew Was George William Curtis.

The funniest of all Mark Twain's contributions to the Express was a leading editorial article which appeared on September 30, 1899. The Republican State convention had met at Syracuse the day before, and nominated a ticket of eight men, of whom Mark Twain knew only one—George William Curtis, the candidate for Secretary of State. But the Express was a strong party paper, and something had to be said about the ticket the next morning. So Mark Twain wrote this:—

Under the proper head will be found the telegram from the State convention announcing the nominations. As the political editor of this paper, Mr. Larned, is absent attending that convention, and as I do not know much about politics, and am not sitting up nights to learn, I shall discreetly hold my peace.

I am satisfied that these nominations are all right and sound, and that they are the only ones that can bring peace to our distracted country (the only political phrase I am perfectly familiar with and competent to hurl at the public with fearless confidence—the other editor is full of them); but being merely satisfied isn't safe enough. I always like to know before I shout. But I go for Mr. Curtis with all my strength! Being certain of him, I hereby shout all I know how. But the others may be split ticket, or a scratched ticket, or what ever you call it.

I will let it alone for the present. It will keep. The other young man will be back to-morrow, and he will shout for it, split or no split—rest assured of that. He will prance into this political ring with his tomahawk and his war-whoop, and then you will hear a crash and see the scalps fly. He has none of my diffidence. He knows all about these nominees—and if he don't, he will let on to, insuch a natural way as to deceive the most critical. He knows everything—he knows more than Webster's Unabridged and the American Encyclopedia—but whether he knows anything about a subject or not, he is perfectly willing to discuss it. When he gets back he will tell you all about these candidates, as serenely as if he had been acquainted with them a hundred years—though, speaking confidentially, I doubt if he ever heard of any of them till to-day. I am right well satisfied it is a good, sound, sensible ticket, and a ticket to win—but wait till he comes.

In the meantime, I go for George William Curtis, and take the chances. —Buffalo Express.

SUGAR COMPANY APPEALS Supreme Court Asked to Settle 'Immunity Bath' Question.

The American Sugar Refining Company fighting for the preservation inviolate to corporations of the "immunity bath" at Washington appealed to the supreme court of the United States States for protection against the government. The controversy arises from an investigation of a federal grand jury in New York.

The jury desired to examine two specified books of the corporation. Instead of issuing a subpoena to the secretary of the corporation or other officials requiring him to appear with these books, United States Attorney Wise procured a subpoena from Judge Holt directed to the corporation itself. An attempt was made by the corporation to have Judge Lacombe quash the subpoena. He declined, and when the corporation failed to comply, he fined it $500 for contempt.

W. M. R. R. BUYS DOCKS

Balloons Badly Hurt.

Numbed by a snowstorm encountered at an altitude of 20,600 feet and dropped rapidly to earth from a considerable height because of inability to control the balloon. A. Holland Forbes, of Bridgeport, Ct., vice president of the Aero Club of America, and C. J. Yates, of New York, suffered severe injuries Wednesday night after a flight of 40 miles from Quincy, Ill. Their balloon, the Viking descended with such precipitancy that both aeronauts were bruised and stunned and the balloon was partly wrecked. The balloon came to earth near Centerville, Ky., and dropped through the final 100 feet of space like a stone. The balloonists will recover. They were unconscious all Wednesday night, largely because of cold.

DOLLIVER ASSAILS THE TARIFF

Arranged to Deceive Public.—Pokes Fun at Some Reductions.

Senator J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa, analyzing schedule by schedule and item by item the Payne tariff act, in an address before progressive Republicans at Des Moines, Ia., Tuesday night, declared that close scrutiny showed that "so far as the public is concerned, the tariff revision in fact carries rates as high, or higher, than the Dingley tariff law on most articles of general use in their finished condition. Most of the reductions," said the senator, "were so trivial as to be ridiculous and were either upon articles which do not import to any extent, but on the contrary export in enormous quantities or were for the purpose of further protecting the manufacturers, especially by reducing the duties on raw materials.

"In fact a careful scrutiny of the particular items that were changed and the exact trifling change of rate in each case shows how cunningly the revision was arranged, in order to deceive the public and look like real revision downward."

Woman Killed by Strikers.

In a hand-to-hand battle yesterday at the plant of the Shenango Furnace Company, near Wilpen, Pa., a foreign woman was fatally injured and 20 men were more or less seriously hurt, when former employees tried to stop the work of imported strikebreakers. The authorities at Ligonier are on the way to the scene of the riots.

Over 300 foreigners have been on strike at the Shenango Iron Works for several weeks. New men have been recently brought in to the plant. Yesterday's riot, in which women and children are reported injured, was the culmination of weeks' bad feeling on both sides.

ROOSEVELT SEES MIMIC BATTLE

Special Honor to Distinguished American by German Emperor.

Col. Roosevelt in the company of Emperor William Wednesday witnessed a mimic battle in which 12,000 men of the German military engaged in the vicinity of Doberitz, Ger. It had been feared Mr. Roosevelt would be obliged to forego this because his throat is still somewhat sensitive, but in the morning, Prof. Fraekenel, the throat specialist, made another examination and decided that Mr. Roosevelt would suffer no inconvenience through being for four hours in the open air.

The engagement opened with an artillery duel, followed by a sharp collision along the whole front between the cavalry and infantry. Three thousand cavalry participated, but there was no grand cavalry charge. The day was sunny and the effect was most pleasing from Muehlenburg hill, from which Mr. Roosevelt, the Emperor, the umpires and officers of the general staff watched the finale. The operations completed, the officers above the rank of major who had taken part in the maneuvers, assembled on Muehlenburg hill to hear the criticisms of the Emperor and the umpires.

When these comments had been made, the Emperor in a loud voice called out: "My friend Roosevelt: I have been greatly pleased to show you some of our German troops. You are the first civilian who has reviewed our soldiers." Turning to the officers the Emperor added: "We are honored to-day in having here the distinguished colonel of the rough riders." Parting salutations were then exchanged and the imperial party left in automobiles for Potsdam, while Mr. Roosevelt, Kermit and Mr. White returned to Berlin.

SLAVERY IS ABOLISHED IN CHINESE EMPIRE

Sale of Human Beings Throughout the Realm Prohibited Under Any Pretext.—Not All Are Set Free.

The Chinese Government by imperial rescript has abolished slavery throughout the empire and has prohibited henceforth the purchase and sale of human beings under any pretext. The reform, however, is not altogether complete, as by the rescript certain forms of slavery will still be tolerated. The retainers of Manchu princes are not emancipated, but it is forbidden to call them slaves. The household slaves of the Manchus are also refused emancipation, but their status under the law is improved.

They are to be regarded as hired servants. The practice of selling children in China in times of famine is abolished, although they may be bound for a specified term, but never beyond the age of 25 years. Concubinage is still to be permitted, but there is to be no bargain and sale. The rescript eventually gives freedom to millions of human beings.

Awful Explosion in Canada.

The cities of Hull, P. Q., and Ottawa, Ont., are busy repairing the damage wrought by the blowing up of the General Explosive Factory Sunday night which killed at least eight persons and injured 50 or more. The head of a pine tree was discovered in the branches of a pine tree a hundred feet from where the body was picked up.

Money For Irrigation.

There is pending a bill authorizing the issue of $30,000,000 of bonds, with which to continue the construction of irrigation plants already begun by the reclamation service, the bonds to be redeemed out of the proceeds of the sale of public lands and the water rent collected from those who enjoy the benefit of the irrigation.

Appeal For Aid to Costa Rica.

President Taft, as president of the American Red Cross society, Monday at Washington made a strong appeal for contributions to relieve the distress of the earthquake sufferers in Costa Rica.

Mrs. Muggins—"The doctor has advised Mrs. B. Jones to take things easy for a while."

Mrs. Buggins—"I wondered why she had discharged her servants and was doing her own work."—Philadelphia Record.

PERSONALITY OF NEW KING.

tralian Parliament, he advised England to "wake up," were the only speeches he has made which created even a ripple on the surface of national events. And there is good reason for this. George is a most uninteresting speaker, his voice is low and colorless, and he appears bored when talking to the public. It is said that he writes all his addresses, and this may be accepted without dispute, for none have been of much literary merit or oratorical force. He lacks the personal magnetism which drew people to his father. He is rather short and slender, with light brown hair and beard just touched with gray. His eyes are light blue and a trifle dull, and he has a habit of playing with his decorations while listening to anyone. His lack of horsemanship will not make him a picturesque figure at the military reviews he will be so often called upon to hold, and his figure and carriage are not of the sort to offset a uniform. In fact his resemblance to his cousin, the czar, appears to be more than merely physical. But these things, as well as many others, may change now that he has so suddenly stepped into the center of the stage.

Massachusetts To Change Politics.

MARYLAND ITEMS ADOPTED

Conferees on River and Harbor Bill Make Progress.

The conferees on the River and Harbor Appropriation bill made such progress at their session on Wednesday that they hope to be able to report the bill out of conference. Maryland, by reason of the completion of the 35-foot channel project in the Patapsco, does not get as much this year as formerly, but the items carried are important for the Eastern Shore.

Only two of the Maryland projects were inserted in the Senate and both have been agreed to in conference. Both of these amendments were made through the activity of Senator John Walter Smith, and the changes are to be retained. One increases the appropriation from $60,000, as provided by the House, to $80,000, as amended by Senator Smith for improving the harbors at Rock Hall, Queenstown, Claiborne and Cambridge and the Chester, Choptank, Warwick and Manokin rivers. The other amendment increases the appropriation for improving the northwest fork of the Nanticoke river from $10,100 to $12,960. The total increase of $22,860 made by the Senate for these two Maryland projects have been retained in the report which the conferees will make.

KING EDWARD VII DEAD

LONG LIVE GEORGE V

Great Britain's Ruler Succumbs to Pneumonia and Prince George His Son Succeeds to the Throne.

King Edward VII of England died last Friday night of pneumonia, following bronchitis. Just before he died he said to those around him: "Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty."

The dead King was born November 9, 1841 and ascended to the throne in 1901, upon the death of Queen Victoria. In 1860 he visited this country as Prince of Wales. His son, Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert, became George V immediately after Edward's death. The new king was born in 1865 and is described as an extremely domestic man with a pronounced dislike for foreigners. He has been a sailor the most of his life and speaks only the English language.

Up to January 1, 1910 Mr. Carnegie's gifts to libraries amounted to $53,473, 153, distributed among 2,092 institutions.

WORK SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

Steelmen Employed at South Bethlehem Put in Twelve Hours a Day, 84 Hours a Week.

The conditions of labor existing at the Bethlehem Steel Works at South Bethlehem, Pa., as set forth in the report of the Bureau of Labor, recently sent to Congress, are more or less common throughout the entire steel industry, according to a statement issued by Dr. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor. He referred to the conditions in the blast furnaces as shocking.

This announcement was brought forth by a protest made to Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagle and Commissioner Neill by President Charles M. Schwab and other representatives of the Bethlehem Steel Works, regarding the summary issued by the Bureau of Labor of the report of its agents on wages and working conditions at the steel plant. Mr. Schwab complained that the summary was unfair to his company in failing to state that most of the skilled workmen of the Bethlehem plant had a Saturday half-holiday and in giving no indication that the conditions found at the Bethlehem Steel Works were not peculiar to the plant, but were general in the steel industry.

The report referred to shows that in the blast furnaces, for example, 84 hours a week has been the regular working time in every section of the country. This means practically a 12-hour day every day in the week. In cases where the day shift and the night shift periodically exchange every week or second week one shift works six days of 12 hours one week, while the other shift works six days of 12 hours and on the seventh day remains on duty continuously for 24 hours in order to effect the exchange. Those are conditions of labor which may well be termed shocking, but they are not confined to the Bethlehem Steel Works.

The House joint resolution providing for a change of the date of inauguration from March 4 to the last Thursday in April, and which would affect the terms of office of the President, Vice-President and Senators and Representatives will be voted on in the House next Monday.
