CURTISS WINS THIRTEENTH ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES $10,000 PRIZE

ALBANY TO NEW YORK

Remarkable Trip of American Aeronaut

RECORD FOR SPEED AND DANGER

Aviator Outstrips Special Train at Points in Covering 137 Miles in Two Hours and 32 Minutes.— Gives Exhibition.

Glenn H. Curtiss flew from Albany to New York city in an aeroplane Saturday, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World. He covered the distance of 137 miles in two hours and 32 minutes and came to earth as easily and as lightly as a pigeon. His average speed for the distance—54.06 miles an hour—surpasses any record ever made by an aeronaut in long distance flight and in its entirety his feat perhaps eclipses anything man has attempted in an heavier-than-air machine. Albany was left at 7:03 o'clock in the morning and weather conditions were as near perfect as the most fastidious aviator could demand. One hour and 23 minutes later he had reached his stopping place near Poughkeepsie, where there was an hour's intermission. Resuming his flight at 9:26, he sped southward and landed within the boundary of Manhattan Island at 10:35.

Only 100 yards north of the point on which his craft settled lay Manhattan bay. Had he failed to cross this his flight would have been in vain, but as he swept over it, the prize was his. Thence to Governors Island his task was but a whim of triumph and the concluding lap of a race already won. Faulhan's flight from London to Manchester, 186 miles, exceeded Curtiss' feat in distance, but not in speed and danger. The Frenchman's average was only 44.3 miles an hour and below him lay English meadowland. Curtiss followed the winding course of the historic Hudson, with jutting headland, wooded slopes and treacherous palisades. He swung high over the great bridge at Poughkeepsie, dipped at times within 50 feet of the river's broad sur-

The thirteenth annual commencement of the Emmitsburg High School has occupied the attention of the people for the past week. This, in the words of the handsome souvenir programme issued by the class, was "the first annual commencement week." The exercises began on Sunday when Rev. Charles Reinwald, D.D., delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates. A very large audience attended this service and special music by the choir added to the enjoyment.

On Tuesday evening the Junior Class gave a reception to the graduates at Hotel Slagle. Covers were set for eighteen. Mrs. Slagle was especially bountiful in the supply of good things for the banquet which followed the reception. The menu consisted of chicken soup, croustons, olives, tomatoes, potato salad, cold boiled ham, deviled eggs, spring chicken, French fried potatoes, lettuce salad with French dressing, rolls, biscuits, ice cream, cake, tea, coffee, lemonade and strawberries. Miss Hazel Boller acted as toastmistress and the following toasts were responded to: "Air Castles for Next Year," Miss Elizabeth Rowe; "The Girls Versus the Boys in My Class," Mr. Charles Eichelberger; "1911's Relation to the Other Classes," Miss Naomi Harbaugh; "What 1911 Has Accomplished This Year," Miss Louise Beam.

The elocution contest for two prizes in gold donated by a friend of the school was held on Wednesday night in the opera house before a large audience of interested friends and patrons of the school and parents and relatives of the contestants. The following took part: Misses Naomi Harbaugh, Elizabeth Rowe, Edith Ohler, Louise Beam, Hazel Boller, Pauline Baker and Elsie Springer and Messrs. Donald Agnew, Thomas Frailey, Alexander Colliflower, Samuel Keilholtz, Lawrence Mondorff and Robert Cook. The music for the occasion was furnished by Misses Nellie Eyster, Johanna White and Eva Shulenberger.

The judges of the contest, Mr. Warnefeltz, Dr. J. McC. Foreman and Mr. E. Lewis Higbee must have had no little difficulty in selecting the winners. The rules governing their judgment were 25% for voice culture, 25% for gestures and 50% for feeling and general delivery. The first prize of $7.50 was awarded to Mr. Lawrence Mondorff. The second prize of $2.50 was given to Miss Louise Beam and the distinction of honorable mention belonged to Miss Hazel Boller.

The awards were made apparently to the satisfaction of a large part of the audience judging from the applause that greeted the announcement.

The entertainment of the evening was further enhanced by the performance of a two-act comedy, "Cabbage Hill School," with Miss Frances Rowe as Gladys Merton, teacher; Robert Cook, William Frailey, Pauline Baker and Mary Mondorff, older pupils; Frank Shuff, George Stokes and Naomi Harbaugh, pupils between eleven and twelve years of age; Charles Eichelberger and others pupils still younger and Mary Ellen Eyster Delbert Hospelhorn and Edith Ohler youngest scholars. Louise Beam took the part of Martha Morrison. In the second act the cast included Thomas Frailey, Donald Agnew, Ruth Ohler, Alexander Colliflower, Clarence Seabrook, Naomi Harbaugh, Hazel Boller, Edith Ohler and Elsie Springer.

The advance in the art of expression made by the pupils of the school under the training of Prof. Strauss is remarkable. All the speakers who appeared on Wednesday evening are worthy of commendation. Miss Springer, Miss Ohler, Miss Harbaugh, Miss Baker, Miss Rowe and all the young men did far better than could reasonably be expected. And the comedy was splendidly presented. Emmitsburg is indeed proud of her school.

Last evening the Class Day exercises were held. This was equally as enjoyable as the contest on Wednesday evening. Before the exercises the Emmitt Cornet Band gave a street concert. By eight o'clock the Opera House was crowded and the curtain rose as the chorus sang "Maryland, My Maryland." The music for the occasion was furnished by Misses Mary Mondorff and Edith Ohler, pupils of the school, and Miss Eva Shulenberger. The features of the evening were the four quotations, Latin, German, French and Greek sentences. These were translated and answered by four pupils of the school. The comic recitations, compositions, dialogues and the class prophecy, presentation and oration were particularly enjoyable. After the number, "Woman's Suffrage," by Miss Hazel Boller, Prof. Strauss in a speech which emphasized the fact that "perseverance gains the meed, and patience wins the race" announced the honors and made the awards. The honors are for scholarship, attendance and deportment. The following were named: Samuel Keilholtz, Frank Weant, Lawrence Mondorff, Frank Shuff, Delbert Hospelhorn, Clarence Seabrook, Pauline Baker, Bessie Dorsey, Naomi Harbaugh, Hazel Boller, Mary Mondorff and Edith Ohler. These are all scholars in the "B" and "C" grades.

The commencement proper will be held this evening in the Opera House at 8 o'clock, when the following programme will be given: Music, Miss Eva Shulenberger; Invocation, Rev. Leighton B. Hensley; Salutatory, "Opportunity," George Stokes; Song, "Maryland, My Maryland," Essay, "School and Home" (a comparison), Ruth Ohler; Music; Oration, "Ideal Citizenship," Alexander Colliflower; Recitation, "The Old Clock on the Stairs," Lawrence Mondorff; Essay, "Why Latin," Elsie Springer; Valedictory, "Ulysses Grant," Thomas Frailey;

Music; Address to the Graduates by Prof. John T. White, Superintendent of the Public Schools of Frederick county; Recitation, "What the Tramp Said," Naomi Harbaugh; Presentation of Diplomas and Farewell Speech to Class by Prof. P. F. Strauss; Class Ode; Benediction by Rev. Charles Reinwald, D. D.

During the principalship of Prof. Strauss the school has maintained a debating team which met and defeated a similar team from the Brunswick High School; and a Literary Society which has held weekly meetings. A few months ago the school edited the CHRONICLE in a manner most pleasing to its readers. The first elocution contest ever held by the school was given last December and the second contest was heard this week. The baseball team representing this school has made an enviable record. Fourteen games have been played with the following result:

The team is made up of the following players:—Charles Eichelberger, Donald Agnew, Robert Cook, Ned Annan, Lawrence Mondorff, (Capt.); George Stokes, Clarence Seabrook, Alexander Colliflower, William Frailey, Thomas Frailey, (Mgr.)

Several social affairs have been held during the year: A picnic at Indian Lookout, sleigh ride to Thurmont High School, trip over Gettysburg Battlefield and the banquet on Tuesday evening. Special exercises were held on Arbor Day, Lincoln Day, Washington's Birthday and Maryland Day.

Through these gatherings, social and otherwise, the scholars have been cemented close to one another and a spirit of comradeship between the pupils and their principal has been created which has added largely to the efficiency of the institution.

HOW TO RULE BY THEODORE

"BIG STICK" AT WORK

Colonel Roosevelt Dazes English Audience

ON BRITISH EGYPTIAN POLICY

Gives Advice to British Empire, Twists the Lion's Tail, Pounds Home His Advice and Sits Down to Admire Gift.

At the Guild Hall, London, where a reception was given to Theodore Roosevelt and where the honorary freedom of the great city was presented to him in a wonderfully wrought golden case, the former President of the United States laid down to the English people his conception of the proper rules for handling the affairs of the four British protectorates in Africa.

His remarks were plain spoken and his audience was partly dazed by the daring of the speaker. He had something to say and it did not take him long to relieve himself. He said in part as follows:

"We have just spent nearly a year in Africa. While there we saw four British protectorates, and I grew heartily to respect the men I there met, the settlers and the civil and military officials. It seems to me the best service I can render them and you is to very briefly tell you how I was impressed by some of the things I saw.

"Your men in Africa are doing great work for your Empire and also for civilization. The people at home, whether in Europe or America, who live softly, often fail to realize what is being done for them by the men who are actually engaged in the pioneer work of civilization abroad.

"The civilized nations who are conquering for civilization in savage lands should work together in a spirit of hearty mutual good will. Ill will between such nations is bad enough anywhere. It is peculiarly harmful and contemptible when those actuated by it are actuated by the same task, a task of such far-reaching importance to humanity in the task of subduing the savagery of wild men of a wild nature and bringing a crust of our civilization those lands where there is an older face and jockeyed like a falcon at the turns. Only once did his craft show signs of rebellion. This was off Storm King, near West Point, where at a height of nearly 1000 feet a treacherous gust struck his planes. The machine dropped like a rock for 40 feet and tilted perilously. But Curtiss, always cool, kept both his head and his seat, and by good handling of his levers brought renewed equilibrium to his aerial steed.

With the signal that Curtiss was off, the special train, five cars and a locomotive, gathered impact and sought to follow. But so quickly had he flown that for 21 miles southward the locomotive, though running nearly a mile to the minute, remained a laggard. At 7:26, however, the train came abreast of the aeroplane and thence to New York city those on board kept the aviator in sight.

Gettysburg Hero Dead.

There recently died in Richmond Capt. William M. Lawson, a member of the old 1st Virginia regiment, known as the "Fighting first." At the battle of Gettysburg this soldier followed Pickett in the memorable charge, carrying the "ate colors. In the rush one shot away with the flag, but he clung to the tattered emblem, and injuries, kept on with the Capt. Lawson was 80 years

NEW YORK VETERANS REVIEWED BY PRESIDENT

Taft Sees Impressive Parade of Remains of Metropolis' Contribution to War of Secession.

There passed in review Monday before the President of the United States, what remains of New York city's contribution to the war of secession. The President went from Washington especially to see them pass by the reviewing stand at the foot of Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument on Riverside Drive, and as the veterans trudged by, they quickened the stiffening muscles of old age, raised their gray heads higher and sought to show that they were still fit and active. But the blue lines wavered and some of the men who marched behind the ragged flags, quickly spent what strength they had and kept their places only with the help of more stalwart comrades.

A feature of the Memorial Day celebration was the work-horse parade up Fifth avenue from the Washington arch to the North monument at Fifth avenue and Twenty-fifth street. Two thousand dollars in cash and many medals and blue ribbons were presented from the reviewing stand by Mrs. Russell Sage and Mrs. James Speyer, the latter president of the women's auxiliary of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. There were 1220 horses in line, including a number of blind animals, which appeared in the parade this year for the first time.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE AT EMMITSBURG

Memorial Day was most fittingly celebrated on Monday morning by the citizens and veterans of Emmitsburg. The parade was one of the best in recent years notwithstanding the fact that time has thinned the ranks of the local G. A. R. post. The march was led off by the Emmitt Cornet Band, followed by the veterans, the Vigilant Hose Company and children of the local schools. The exercises began in the public school building where the oration was delivered by Rev. Mr. Hensley, of the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Hensley was eloquent and earnest and impressed upon his hearers the supreme importance of patriotism. Among other things he declared that this virtue was not a thing of immediate growth nor was it a passing fancy, for reverence for the flag and love of country, which two things are crowned by patriotism, is a matter of growth, of inheritance and reverence for the soil which nurtures. On this ground Mr. Hensley advocated that foreigners seeking a new home here should be residents twenty-one years before they enjoyed the boon and benefit of citizenship and suffrage.

After the programme had been given the march was resumed down Main street, across to Green, down Gettysburg to the Square and then to the Lutheran cemetery where the services followed the Grand Army ritual. Mr. Black, of Rocky Ridge, being in charge. Mr. J. Dunn Black read the prayer and Mr. A. A. Horner Lincoln's Gettysburg speech. Rev. Dr. Reinwald delivered the benediction. Probably never since the beginning of the observance of this day were the services so impressive as they were last Monday. The depleted ranks of the local post, the age of those left and their appearance in the line of march clad in the familiar blue uniform gave a certain solemnity to the scene though the background was gay with the red, white and blue. All along the line of march between the decorated houses and crowded sidewalk, this feeling was apparent. The thought that in a few years the soldiers of the civil war would be gone forever was uppermost in many minds. After that Memorial Day when the last survivor of that terrible struggle stands alone at a similar service, these exercises will be held as before until patriotism dies within the heart of these American people. Memorial Day, 1910, will go down in the tablets of memory as one of the best since 1863.

No holiday in America is complete without a game of baseball and the day was memorable in that respect too. In the afternoon the Thurmont High School was defeated by the Emmitsburg High School 3 to 1. The contending teams were escorted through the streets accompanied by the Emmitt Cornet Band and the Vigilant Hose Company. The march stopped at the Hose Company's grounds where the game was played.

The game opened up lively. Creager first up, sent a hot one past Mondorff, at second and was safe, Root struck out, Eyler out Mondorff to Topper, and Creager tapped one to Kerrigan who threw him out at first. For the High (Continued on page 6.)

WESTERN MARYLAND TO BUILD BIG TERMINAL

President Announces Plans For Baltimore Harbor.—Large Freight Increase Expected Soon.

Over $5,000,000 will be spent by the railroads interested in the extension of the Western Maryland for a large terminal at Baltimore and for the elevation of the tracks approaching the city, according to a statement issued by B. F. Bush, president of the Western Maryland, in Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

The company expects to handle a large amount of freight at that point as the result of the alliance made by the company with the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie. The company is negotiating for the purchase of two piers to give the company good docking facilities and in this direction the company will spend over $450,000. The docks of the company are to extend into the river over 400 feet and some of the largest boats that come into the Baltimore harbor will be able to load freight and coal at this point when the plans of the company are completed.

With the connecting link built, the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie will have a direct right of way to the seacoast and will be able to handle freight at a lower rate than any railroad on account of the shorter haul of the company.

The government's charge of direct violation of the anti-trust law against the Western railroads may end their combine.

civilization which has somehow gone crooked."

He then complimented the London officials and began to talk of Egypt. After asserting that England had given Egypt the best government in 2,000 years, he continued:

"Yet recent events, especially with what happened in connection with and following the assassination of Boutros Pasha (the Egyptian Premier who was killed by a Nationalist) have shown that in certain vital points you have erred and it is for you to make good your error. It has been an error proceeding from an effort to do too much, and not too little, in the interests of the Egyptians themselves. But unfortunately it is necessary for all of us who have to do with uncivilized peoples, especially fanatical peoples, to remember that in such a situation as yours in Egypt weakness, timidity and sentimentality may cause even more far-reaching harm than violence and injustice. Of all the broken reeds, senti-

Senator Dix Supported.

United States Senator Dick received a unanimous vote of support at Medina, O., Saturday from the delegates to the Republican common pleas judicial convention for the district embracing Medina, Lorain and Summit counties. Summit county is Senator Dick's home. The convention adopted a resolution declaring that voters of Ohio should stand by the result of the primary which had nominated Senator Dick.

GREATEST OF BASEBALL HEROES

John C. Wagner's Brilliant Record on Diamond.—Star of Many Contests.

John P. Wagner, familiarly known as "Hans" or "Honu" is the greatest baseball player in the history of the game, says the Springfield Republican. Wherever the followers of the national game congregate to discuss the latest moves of the heroes of the diamond the name of the mightiest hero of them all is sure to be flashed from one mouth to another before the conversation ends. The hearts of all lovers of baseball have set apart a pretty large corner for this man, a simple, quiet Dutchman, whose feats on the diamond have caused millions to wonder, whose remarkable record year after year has set new marks for posterity's baseball stars to approach.

Not long ago Wagner played a Sunday game in which he stole second, third and home, and the next day he got five hits out of six times at bat and stole three bases. At that time his name was on the tongue of every baseball enthusiast in the United States, and the heads of most players would have been turned by the praise that was showered upon him. Those things have bobbed up in Wagner's baseball career many times during the last 12 years. But he has accomplished great things consistently and the consistency with which he does things is what has kept the name of Wagner on the tongues of the men who play and the men and boys who follow baseball.

Other stars have appeared since Wagner began doing startling things. Great stars have been among them. Their names will live. But above all will be the name of Wagner, "Hans" of Pittsburgh. Wagner is above any other star in baseball history. He does the things year in and year out that others do for a season or two or three. He is the same wonderful player, at bat, on the bases and in the field. For six seasons Wagner led the National league in hitting. His record:—

1903.....	355
1904.....	349
1906.....	339
1907.....	350
1908.....	354

In 1901 Wagner batted .332, and in 1902 his average was .329. The record of Wagner for 1905 was .363. In 1900 he played in a Pittsburgh uniform and he has been a Pirate since then. During his career in Pittsburgh, Wagner has played in 1606 games, been at bat 6152 times, scored 2141 runs, secured 2162 hits and stolen 533 bases. His batting average for 10 years of playing has been .351.

In 1897, 1898 and 1899 Wagner played with the Louisville club. In 1897 he hit .344; in 1898, .305, and in 1899, .358. For a dozen seasons he never hit below .305, and his best average was .380, made in the first year that he played with Pittsburgh, 1901. He played in 134 games that year, was at bat 528 times, scored 107 runs, got 201 hits and stole 36 bases. Of popularity, Wagner has plenty, and he bears more nicknames than any other man in baseball. Last year they gave him loving cups and good wishes and everything that men give one another to show gratitude for things accomplished. This year some men figured that Wagner would go back, start on the downward path physically, which course all men are bound to take at some stage of life. But Wagner has returned strong as ever, fielding brilliantly.

Wagner fields with much motion. There is nothing catlike or graceful about his movements. He is all motion—arms, hands, limbs, body, when he goes after a ball. But he gets there just the same, and the public doesn't stop to consider how a man gets there, just so he arrives, nearly always in time. If he does not, it is never because of a lack of speed or a lack of judgment. The big Teuton is to-day as awkward as any man playing in the big leagues. Many of the chances he takes look to be impossible for one who works as he does—but he gets there just the same. Like the stars of the stage, Wagner comes while the stage is waiting. The other players are on the field; they have been warming up for an hour or so, but not so with Wagner.

As the umpire discovers that it is 10 minutes before the time to call play, Wagner arrives at the ball park. He comes in a big automobile, his biggest hobby. He makes a dash for the clubhouse, climbs into his uniform and runs across the field, generally about the time the umpire is announcing the batteries for the afternoon's game. And when he gets his first chance in fielding, Wagner throws the ball just as hard as any of them, although they have been warming up right along and he has not. That is the wonderful Wagner, his work and his record.

Not a Crack in the Canal.

It appears from reports just received at Washington that the recent seismic disturbances in Costa Rica did not approach nearer than 200 miles to the canal zone and there was not even a crack in the concrete of the canal as a result of the quake. The fact that the canal was not affected by the recent earthquake is regarded as refuting the predictions of possible disaster when the Panama instead of the Nicaraguan route was selected.

FRESH AMMUNITION FOR THE INSURGENT FORCES

Roosevelt Invitation To Representative For Conference Used To Create An Impression.

Something of a flurry has been caused by the announcement that an insurgent representative from New York, an old friend of Col. Roosevelt, has received a so-called "invitation" from the former President asking for a conference in New York on the day Col. Roosevelt returns. It is declared that after stating that he does not care or does not need to put on paper his views in regard to the insurgent attitude, Col. Roosevelt adds: "You know my views on this insurgent situation. They have not changed since I last talked with you, and I wish to see you in New York immediately after my arrival." The invitation was addressed to Hamilton Fish.

Not unnaturally, the insurgents have been making all the use they have dared of this letter and have sought to create the impression that it definitely puts the ex-President in their ranks. But it appears that the Roosevelt letter was in answer to one from the New York representative in question, who wrote and requested such a conference. This somewhat diminishes the importance of the Roosevelt letter. In addition, it has not been wholly forgotten that Mr. Roosevelt, so long as he was President himself, never cared or never dared to wage an out-and-out warfare upon Speaker Cannon. There is also reason for believing that soon after Mr. Taft was elected and when he for a time showed signs of a readiness to lock horns with "Uncle Joe," President Roosevelt strongly advised him from the White House not to do so. But possibly, the intrepid African hunter has conveniently forgotten these things. The statement that he is to attend a dinner given by the publisher of Collier's Weekly soon after his arrival appears to have quite as much significance as, if not more than, the letter to the New York insurgent.

DR. KOCH BACTERIOLOGIST DEAD OF HEART DISEASE

Famous Scientist Who Made Reputation With the Microscope.—Discovered Tubercle Bacillus.

Prof. Robert Koch, the famous bacteriologist, died at Baden Baden last Friday afternoon of a disease of the heart. He was 66 years old.

Dr. Koch's reputation became worldwide from the discoveries he made in the years of research and investigation in bacteriology. As early as 1876 he succeeded in isolating the bacillus of anthrax—the spleen fever—which attacks cattle and sheep and even man and almost invariably causes death. He published the results of his investigation, which attracted universal attention in scientific circles and earned him recognition from the government, which appointed him a member of the imperial board of health in 1880.

About that time Dr. Koch, who had constantly improved his methods of investigation, discovered and perfected a method of coloring microscopic organisms so as to make them distinguishable from the surrounding medium. By this method he succeeded in 1882, in isolating the tubercle bacillus and ascertaining its true nature by developing pure cultures and inoculating animals with the germ, producing in them tuberculosis. He also isolated the "comma" bacillus and identified it as the cause of cholera. In recognition of his remarkable work Dr. Koch, in 1883, was appointed privy counselor and given the position of president of the German Cholera Commission. As a further reward for his discovery of the cholera bacillus Dr. Koch received a gift of 100,000 marks from the government.

MARCONI WILL TRY TO SEND MESSAGES OVER ROCKIES

Success of Transatlantic Wireless Complete.—Optimistic of Crossing the Continent.

Early in the coming autumn, it is declared, Marconi who just left for England, intends to begin a series of tests as to the practicability of throwing electric waves, charged with messages, over the Rockies to the Pacific coast. He feels confident of success in this venture, as he has already performed the same feat over the Alps. In Canada the very great havoc occasioned to telegraph poles and wires, arising from sudden freezing after sleet storms followed by gales, is a serious matter to the railways every winter. If the wireless system can be brought to do the work expected of it, these disastrous annoyances will entirely disappear. It is also declared practical to communicate with trains in motion by wireless, whereby the engineer may be apprised of all that concerns the movement of his train without leaving his cab.

His plants in Nova Scotia and across the Atlantic in Ireland are in constant communication and this success has led him to consider the problem of long distance wireless communication inland.

The maritime conventions providing for a $6,000,000 subsidy in aid of Italian shipping and a 25-year subvention to the Italian Lloyd steamship company for the transportation of mail were approved Saturday in the Chamber of Deputies at Rome.

FRANK BROWN IS BACK IN POLITICS FOR KEEPS

Will Take Part in Fight for Mayor of Baltimore and Then Run for Governor of Maryland.

Former Governor Frank Brown has told the world that he is back in politics. First he will run for mayor of Baltimore as a preliminary canter to the race for governor.

Mr. Brown was governor of Maryland from 1892 to 1896. Since then he has held no public office except tax collector, the duties of which he is now performing under the Mahol administration. He organized the fight for former Mayor Hayes and he pulled hard for former Mayor McLane.

"My identification with the city administration," said Mr. Brown, "has given me an opportunity to learn more about the city and the ways in which it can be benefited than I ever knew before. City government is a big business proposition. It happens that legislation is needed to pave the way for the changes that are necessary if the city is to forge to the front. I understand the situation, I think, and I would be in a position to go after the legislation if I were governor of Maryland."

"Since months intervene before the mayoralty fight, which precedes the gubernatorial campaign, this is no time to announce my platform of principles. I am influenced in declaring my purpose to go after the nomination for the reason that county friends whom I met at the State Central Committee meeting the other day demanded a positive statement of my intentions. Plans of the campaign and platform on which it will be waged will be announced at the proper time."

"JIM CROW" LAW IS UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

Separate Cars for Whites and Blacks Declared Legal.—Lower Courts Affirmed by High Tribunal.

The Supreme Court Tuesday affirmed the judgment of the Kentucky Court of Appeals in the "Jim Crow" case of J. Alexander Chiles against the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

Chiles, who is a Negro, bought a first-class ticket over the Chesapeake and Ohio entitling him to ride from Washington to Lexington, Ky. The train did not run through to Lexington, and when he reached Ashland, the first city on the Kentucky side of the line, he went into the white car. A police officer was summoned and Chiles was removed under protest to as good a car set apart exclusively for Negroes.

Chiles brought action in the Fayette County Court, which decided against him. The Kentucky court upheld this decision, and the United States Supreme Court affirmed the lower courts. The Supreme Court, at the outset, dismissed as unimportant the distinction between State and inter-State commerce. "We are dealing in this case," says the court, whose opinion was written by Justice McKenna, "with the act of a private person, to wit, the railroad company."

WIRES BETWEEN BALTIMORE AND CAPITAL UNDERGROUND

American Telegraph and Telephone Company Given Authority to Lay Conduits in Roads.

The American Telegraph and Telephone Company, which controls all the important telegraph and telephone lines of the country, proposes to place its wires, or at least a part of them, in underground conduits, thus rendering them safe from wind, sleet and snow, as was the disagreeable experience on the occasion of the inauguration of President Taft. The company has devised a plan by which all the important cities of the country will be connected by the conduit system. In Maryland the conduit will be laid in the gutters of the Baltimore and Washington Boulevard and Philadelphia road.

The State Road Commission granted permission to the company to lay its conduits along the Philadelphia road, the application being made by Mr. Bernard M. Carter, of the law firm of Bernard Carter & Sons. Mr. Carter appeared before the State Geological Survey, which has jurisdiction over the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard, and asked for the same privilege which has been extended in the case of the Philadelphia road.

How to Cure Hiccoughs.

Hiccough is a distressing and sometimes a dangerous complaint. Many times a swallow of water will stop it. If simple measures fail the following has been found very efficacious. The nerves that produce hiccough are near the surface in the neck. They may be reached and compressed by placing two fingers right in the center of the top of the breastbone between the two cords that run up either side of the neck and pressing inward, downward and outward. A few minutes' pressure of this kind will stop the most obstinate hiccough.—[Dr. Charles S. Moody in Outing.]

The case against Gov. Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, in which he is charged with complicity in an alleged conspiracy to secure Muskogee town lots fraudulently, was Saturday at Tulsa, Okl., set for trial at McAlester, September 26.

GOVERNMENT HALTS THE FREIGHT RATE MEASURE

Injunction Proceedings in Missouri To Restrict.—Developments in Railroad Rate War.

Twenty-five Western railroads have been temporarily restrained by United States District Judge David P. Dyer at Hannibal, Mo., from enforcing or making a general advance in interstate freight rates, scheduled for June 1. The injunction was granted on a petition filed by the Government on the allegations that the advances in rates were agreed on by the defendants without competition and in violation of the Sherman act. The order to file the injunction came directly from Washington.

The Western railroads, it was announced, will fight the Government injunction proceedings, and President Ripley, of the Atchison, declares the increase in rates is absolutely necessary.

Decisions of the Supreme Court uphold the Interstate Commerce Commission in its right to reduce freight rates. The decisions were based on reductions made between the Mississippi and Missouri River and from Chicago and St. Louis to Denver.

Senator LaFollette offered a resolution in the Senate instructing the Attorney General to bring injunction proceedings against the Western railroads.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad announced that it would increase commutation fares to points between Bound Brook, N. J., and New York city.

Million for Washington Cathedral.

Expressing belief that the erection of a cathedral of the Protestant Episcopal Church at the capital of the nation, where the plain religion of Jesus Christ, unnumbered by obscuring rites and ceremonies, shall be preached to all people, will promote the true Christian faith and tend to elevate the standard national morality and character, the late John A. Kasson, by his will, dated March 3, 1906, named the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia residuary legatee of his estate. The value of the estate is rumored to be $1,000,000. Mr. Kasson was a famous diplomat, former Minister to Germany, Minister to Austria, and the intimate friend of Garfield and McKinley.

Some Congressional Calculations.

The Democrats at Washington, says the Springfield Republican, have for some time been shouting over prospective victory in the coming congressional elections, and now they are figuring on its precise extent. One "very conservative" calculation gives the Republicans 166 in the next House, and the Democrats 224—a Democratic majority of 58, compared with a Republican majority of 56 in the present House. This seems to be the very minimum of the Democratic expectation.

GETTYSBURG

John H. Raymond has purchased the restaurant under the First National Bank, of George Culp. Mr. Raymond has made numerous changes in the place.

Residents of the East end of town noticed an unusually large number of automobiles on Sunday. One person counted eighty on East Confederate avenue between 8 A. M., and 4 P. M.

Mrs. Louise Rupp, widow of Carl Rupp, died at her home on S. Washington Street Thursday evening, of tuberculosis. Funeral was held Monday morning from St. Francis Xavier church, with interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Miss Elizabeth Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver, Baltimore Street, was married on Monday, May 23, to Mr. John Walter Rodkey, of Pittsburg. The ceremony was performed at Glen Rock by Rev. Joseph B. Wolf, an uncle of the bride, who married her parents thirty years ago.

Mr. Howard Stauffer, of York, a student at the Theological Seminary, has been elected secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. Mr. Stauffer is an experienced man along this line—is a hustler—and expects to increase the associations membership an add new features to its work.

The annual High School commencement was held in Brua Chapel last Thursday evening. The house was crowded and an excellent program rendered. Prof. Burgoon, principal of the Gettysburg schools was not able to be present on account of illness, and County superintendent Roth presided. High school, class and national colors formed the decorations. The graduating class numbered twenty-three.

The annual Alumni banquet was held at the Eagle Hotel Friday evening, with about eighty members present. A number of toasts were responded to and several impromptu addresses made.

Memorial Day in Gettysburg was, as usual, a gala day. The day donned clear and remained so with the exception of a light shower, which, however, did not come until after the conclusion of the ceremonies in the cemetery.

Visitors began to arrive shortly after sun-up and by noon Gettysburg contained a record-breaking crowd for Memorial Day. The W. M. R. R. brought thirteen extra train loads beside regular trains, the first of which arrived from Frostburg, Md., shortly after seven o'clock. The P. & R. R. also brought a large number, besides numerous automobile and driving parties.

The parade, in charge of Chief Marshal W. A. McIlhenny and aides Dr. Henry Stewart and Morris W. Stansbury, formed on Chambersburg street and moved out Baltimore street promptly at 1:30 o'clock in the following order: Gettysburg Band.

York Cadets (Incorporated) under command of Capt. Wm. C. Kraber.

Co. B, Sons of Veterans, under command of Lieut. Walter H. Ziegler.

All other Sons of Veterans, Patriotic Organizations and Civic Associations.

Ex-Soldiers of Spanish War.

Grand Army of the Republic and ex-Soldiers.

Upon reaching the Cemetery the impressive ceremony of strewing flowers on the graves by school children was performed. This is regarded as one of the most interesting sights of the day.

After this the program was carried out as follows:

Ceremonies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Strewing of flowers by pupils of Public Schools, Veterans and others.

Dirge by Gettysburg Band.

Taps, Bugles, Salute fired by Cadets and Co. B.

AT ROSTRUM.

Music by the Band.

Prayer by Rev. J. B. Baker.

Recitation of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by Hon. S. McSwope.

Oration by the Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, M. C.

Music by the Band.

Benediction by Rev. T. C. Billheimer.

The Rostrom was reserved for members of the G. A. R. and ex-soldiers.

The usual large crowd of people was in the Cemetery and all that could get within hearing distance of the rostrum listened with interest to the address of Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, which was a masterly oration.

A dog, supposed to be mad, made its appearance on Hanover street about six o'clock Sunday evening. It was followed to the edge of town, where it was despatched by C. Roy Rupp.

An automobile line, from Caledonia to Gettysburg, making three round trips daily, began operations on May 23rd. The line has been well patronized.

The curb market is steadily growing in favor and patronized liberally. On Tuesday of this week thirty stalls were occupied.

The college baseball team met defeat on the home grounds Monday morning at the hands of Dickinson College team. Score 6 to 2.

A. team, in all stages of the game especially in the pitching department, were Engle the local's star twirler was in fine form. He kept the seven hits made off his delivery well scattered.

For the visitors Merchant twirled a creditable game, he only allowed six scattered hits, and poor support given him in the field help to account for the five runs. The visitors scored their last tally in the eighth, when Duggan hit to left field for a home run.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The scholastic year is at an end and another graduating class is about to enter that big university in which character, individual merit, high motives, loyalty to principles, honesty and perseverance will alone be considered when the diploma of success is finally awarded—the University of Real Life.

The happy days spent in the old High School will never be forgotten by those who leave it now. Nor will these days have been spent in vain if in the years to come the lessons learned within its walls are rightly applied.

It is a fortunate thing for the community that an institution like the Emmitsburg High School is located here, and it is fortunate that at its head there should be a man as indefatigable in his efforts to produce good results and one as thorough in his work as he who in his capacity as principal accomplished so much in so short a time.

And if it has been a privilege for the scholars who to-night take their diplomas from this school, to have received instruction from Mr. Strauss, his year of close association with the class of 1910, the earnestness of its members and the excellent record made by them must inevitably be treasured by their teacher as a pleasant memory for future contemplation.

We heartily and sincerely congratulate both principal and pupil; to the parents of these young ladies and men we offer our felicitations, and to each of the class of 1910 we say, "God-speed and may fair Fortune smile upon you."

THE TRAVELLING PRESIDENT.

The dignity of the presidential office is hardly enhanced by the uncalled-for custom that has grown up in late years among occupants of the White House—that of the Chief Magistrate lending his presence to advertise schools, colleges, clubs, political organizations, boards of trade and other things too numerous to mention. Mr. Roosevelt established the precedent for "swinging around the circle" and certainly in this particular, if in no other, Mr. Taft can be said to be strenuously carrying out the Roosevelt policies. Already he has exhausted the fund of $25,000, appropriated by Congress for presidential travelling expenses, and he has not yet completed his tour for the year.

Up to this time he has visited all sections of the country. En route he has given his views—none too sound, it would appear—on many questions, and among other blunders, after slapping the people of the west squarely in the face from a distance, he has hurried out to their homes to tell them in person that he did right. Incidentally, it is not necessary to state the effect. It has seemed to be a part of Mr. Taft's programme, just after upholding the unpopular and sometimes questionable act of a prominent "regular" or perhaps a member of his official family, to take a special train and at every town and city to tell an indignant populace that his proteges are infallible and the public all wrong.

Nor does it seem that the President knows very much about putting his affairs in good hands, even when he leaves his office for a game of golf. Every time he ventures away from home somebody on his staff blows up or makes a bull of a matter that has been under confidential consideration and is yet unsettled. Therefore it would appear that, in order to save even half of his bacon, Mr. Taft ought to stay indoors and "attend strictly to business," one of the first things on the docket, as far as his own peace of mind is concerned, being to revise his list of official co-workers and to hand a few of them their hats.

Former presidents have had the knack of travelling to some purpose, and some of them have possessed the knack of knowing who to fire and when to fire them. But Mr. Taft thus far has been woefully short in both these suits. And after all—to quote a journal quite friendly to the present Executive—"continuity and effectiveness of public policy and administration are not favored by over-much moving about among shouting crowds of people."

HOUSE CLEANING.

And now the season's here again when "cleaning house" takes place, and when poor father gets some jolts that make him fall from grace. 'Tis hard to get him in the game and make him do his part, and harder still to stop him when poor father gets a start. For when he hits the garret and discovers lots of "trash," out the window goes the contents with a quick and mighty crash. And photographs and albums and bandboxes by the score, have the torch applied, and father knows he'll see them nevermore. Aunt Dinah's hoop-skirts, uncle's stock, and grandpa's 'broidered vest, are grabbed by father and they meet the fate of all the rest. And when they try to stop him in his fast and wild career, father ups and says some things that are not very nice to hear. This makes him get another move—it just whets up his ire—and prompts him to take hold again and build anew the fire. At last the embers smoulder and when falls the friendly night Father knows blamed well that he has helped to "clean" the house all right.

To Professor William Cleaver Wilkinson who, according to current comment, does not understand why verse makers so rarely speak of the nose in any of their rhymes, we humbly submit this punky platitude:

To you, kind sir, who much deplore the lack
Of poetry that of the nose does smack,
We offer just a bit of old advice
And pray you read it over once or twice,
In life be this the burden of your song:
"Don't stick your nose in where it don't belong."

SENATOR DOLLIVER came pretty near hitting the nail on the head when he recently referred to President Taft as "a good man surrounded by people who know exactly what they want." It has been demonstrated almost every day that these chosen few are getting nearly everything they hold out their hands for.

WITH six telescopes on the roof of the Capitol, Congressmen ought to be able to see whether we are drifting.—Baltimore Sun.

Perhaps. But it must be borne in mind that the average Congressman never looks upward. Six microscopes on the floor of either House would be more to the point.

It may be counted on that the man who is forever making use of the quotation, "The laborer is worthy of his hire," is referring to himself. And it may also be observed that his hire is always a good deal higher than anybody else's.

WE'RE beginning to love President Taft for the Democrats he has made.—The Oklahoman.

We'd simply adore him if he'd get real busy with that overwhelming majority in Pennsylvania.

"It is no small task to look well on little money," says an exchange. And yet Lincoln looks pretty well on those copper pennies.

OUR idea of egotist is a man who thinks he is as good as Colonel Roosevelt says a man ought to be.—Detroit Free Press.

Isn't Roosevelt pretty much of an egotist?

EDITORIAL COMMENT FROM PRESS ASSOCIATION

Shops For Schoolboys.

New York city recently has opened the shops of its industrial schools from 3 to 5 p. m., giving boys a chance to put in two extra hours at the bench daily. The more the city educators wrestle with the problem of turning out workers from the schools the more they favor the shop idea. It is slow work, but necessity, if nothing else, is urging on the movement "back to the shop."

An ever increasing number of town and city boys from fourteen to eighteen years of age find that they must drop books for work. Offices are overcrowded and wages for beginners a mere pittance. Girls monopolize the store counters, and hard lines confront the lad who shirks work with his hands. Factories are closed to all but a few apprentices, and the manual schools are the only places where the rudiments of mechanical trades may be mastered by every ambitious boy. It is a tedious road, yet there is a living and true dignity at the end of it.

It is now given out at Washington that the United States navy ranks second among the navies of the world, Great Britain's, of course, ranking first and Germany's third. And yet Americans for a century or more congratulated themselves on their isolation, which made great armaments unnecessary.

In view of a threatened increase of rates, doubts arise as to whether wages have been raised voluntarily by some of the railways or involuntarily by the passengers and shippers.

The Ballinger controversy grows hotter and hotter without promising to reach its finish. The forbearance of the public long ago came to an end.

Taft himself springs fewer sensations than his predecessor, but his administration seems to be "up and doing" just the same.

Old Westminster Hall.

The selection of old Westminster hall as a fitting place for the remains of King Edward to lie in state recalls the unique history of one of the world's notable shrines. Originally built 400 years before the discovery of America, it has been partially destroyed by fire, restored and remodeled and put to a variety of uses in connection with dramatic events in the life of the English nation.

In early times the hall now practically closed to public uses was the meeting place of parliament. There Edward II. and Richard II. were deposed, Charles I. condemned and Oliver Cromwell bailed lord protector. The memorable trial of Warren Hastings took place in old Westminster, and there several political offenders were sentenced to death. The last coronation within its walls was that of George IV. Although connected with the new Westminster palaces, or houses of parliament, the old hall retains its distinctive name. Through its portals members of parliament may reach their seats by a private entrance.

Party platforms do not count with Senator Aldrich when he opposes a bill like that admitting New Mexico and Arizona to statehood. He is regular when he can have his way and an insurgent when he cannot.

In order to avoid criticism or betrayal of confidence it may become necessary for our public men to sacrifice the conveniences of dictation and laboriously write everything with pen and ink.

Publicity of election expenses has just thrown another member of parliament out of his seat, which proves that the scheme has a stinger in it.

King George should either cross his fingers or do some crossing of palms with silver. The professional lookers into the future are knocking him.

A cool May doesn't necessarily mean that a comet freak is abroad, but it is usually followed by bulging cellar bins and haystacks.

Big hats and long hatspins not barred at King Edward's funeral, only ladies asked to "kindly refrain."

It is to be hoped the Milky way will not turn sour at the notice the comet is getting.

It's a well balanced brain that is not "dreaming now of Halley."

The Inauguration Amendment.

The amendment to the constitution providing for a change in the date of inaugurating a president failed of passage by a vote so narrow that its advocates may reasonably hope for ultimate triumph. The proposition to change to a date which would favor outdoor ceremonies has led to a discussion of much practical value. The inauguration need not necessarily be delayed so as to fall within the inclement period.

November is generally a pleasant month, and when it is fine it is in every way suitable for pageantry. December is even more reliable than March. A re-elected president could well be inaugurated the second time immediately after the result had been declared, work that could be hastened without detriment if law required it. An important provision of the defeated amendment was for the selection of a president in case of the death or incompetency of the president elect. Such contingency is now unprovided for.

Mayor Gaynor is right in the focus of the public eye. He has started an Ananias club, closed an indecent theater and never makes a banquet speech without stirring up a hive of bees. It begins to look like a strong movement on the presidency.

The Episcopal clergyman who has resigned his pulpit to fight prohibition has given evidence of the sincerity of his convictions, whether they are right or wrong. And that is the main thing.

Between whiles of telling us all they know about comets and a lot besides astronomers are vigorously jotting down a mountain of facts they never knew before.

The Hague can quickly add to its reputation by letting light through our foggy Newfoundland controversy now over there for treatment.

Uncle Joe Cannon's personal popularity is attested by the fact that he holds his own as a favorite topic for the anecdote artists.

There must be a host of people who saw Halley's comet seventy-five years ago if they took the trouble to watch out.

It's about time for crooks and grafters to present a loving cup to the discoverer of legal technicalities.

The drowning season opened with a sendoff which threatens to make it rival the automobile season.

The Gunpowder Fourth.

The nuisance Fourth is a modern development. Young folks formerly burned all the powder they could pay for and shouted to their hearts' content without jarring anybody's nerves. There was room for all sorts of noisy doings all around the village and even on the town common. It broke up the dull monotony of life to awaken the echoes once a year. As towns grew dense, house crowding on house, there developed danger from fire and reverberations that are a nuisance.

People are driven from the towns and cities on the Fourth in search of quiet. They find it in the woods and along the shore or the streams. Those who want noise could as well make it out in the open expanse, where it would disturb nobody and do no damage. Then lovers of a quiet day would find it at home, to many the most fitting place. With the noise and danger removed from crowded precincts the Fourth can be made safe and sane, according to everybody's notion, without denaturing it completely.

The deaths are recorded of a shipmaster aged eighty-four, a retired river steamboat owner and board of trade operator of the same age and a former locomotive engineer who was eighty-nine. The relation of occupation to longevity is one of the things science is slow in finding out.

Norway women twenty-five years of age can now vote, but it's a safe bet that the "sweet sixteen" age will lose no popularity among Norway swains and maidens for all that.

The personal element in the Ballinger controversy is obscuring the real issue, and in the meantime somebody may steal Alaska while the public isn't looking.

If some wandering comet will make an advance date for striking the earth society will guarantee to have an army of "undesirables" on hand to receive it.

A good many Americans who left for Canada found one winter a cure and are feeling well enough now to return home.

The man who saw the flag on the summit of Mount McKinley is also challenged to show proofs.

Most of Latin America's wars are mere fakes, but earthquakes down there are the real things.

Too many men in Butte, too many girls in Boston. Some folks should emigrate.

Will the Maine Be Raised?

Information from Washington in connection with the long delayed appropriation for "raising the Maine" gives reason for the belief that the wreck may never be raised intact as it is today. Recovery of the bodies of the heroes entombed in the mud embanked hold seems to be the only thing positively provided for. The elimination of an obstruction to navigation and the probing of the mystery of the explosion in 1898 are incidental in the plans discussed.

The appropriation of $100,000 seems small for a thorough job. Recovery and fitting burial of the bodies might be accomplished at that cost. This feature has always been a popular demand. But for that the impediment to navigation would probably have been disposed of long ago by dynamiting. Dynamite will bury the wreck and its mystery at one blow. If the bodies are first recovered the public probably will cease to take interest in the sinking of the Maine.

Trade between the United States and the republic of Panama will exceed $22,000,000 for the fiscal year ending in June and for the seven years since the republic of Panama came into existence will approximate $100,000,000. About nine-tenths of this total, speaking in very round terms, is merchandise exported from the United States to Panama and about one-tenth merchandise imported into this country from that republic.

In celerity and dignity the management of the Lustig wife murder case resembles the trial of Wolter. These examples show how murder trials should be and can be conducted in New York.

It is to be said in excuse for the woman who lived near Washington for sixty-five years without seeing a president that she had also not seen a circus.

None of the distinguished Japanese visitors to this country gives any sign of the slightest acquaintance with the opinions of Mr. Hobson.

Give the comet its due, including leafy trees, flowers and garden products ahead of the average schedule.

The threatened rise in passenger rates is a warning to vacationers to get busy early.

Halley's is not a one night stand comet, so don't all try to get front seats at once.

"Long Live the King!"

The expression "The king is dead; long live the king!" indicates something deeper than the fickle emotions of a people. The king is an institution and can live so long as the monarchy lasts. When a president of the United States dies in office the event precipitates a crisis in the dominant party. He was elected to stand for certain policies. A king has no policies in the partisan sense. A party may be built up around his policies and the fall of that party be more disturbing than the death of the monarch.

In Great Britain the king is far more at the mercy of parliament, where party power is potent, than the president of the United States is at the mercy of congress. The people—that is, the majority, which is again the dominant party—make the president and declare his policies. The constitution guides and protects him. Great Britain has no written constitution, and the constitution changes at the will of the people declared through parliament. Strangely enough, the people of monarchical Britain can more speedily and directly influence the policies of the king—that is to say, of the throne—than can the people of the United States the policies of their president. So, in a sense, our democratic government is more stable than the monarchy of Great Britain.

Governor Brown of Georgia says he believes that grand opera would be much more enjoyable and popular if it were given in English. The difference between Governor Brown and a lot of other people is that he is candid and unashamed.

The task of becoming popular may be impossible to George V., but the task of meeting the constitutional requirements is easy. Nothing indicates that the new head of the royal house of England is not equal to that.

King George V. is very much in the position of the substitute hitter who is sent to bat with the bases full and a home run needed to tie the score.

This prevention of war by force all depends upon the amount of force the fighting fellows can put up.

The colonel's visit created no excitement in Holland, but then nothing ever excites Holland.

The census figures are now up to the arithmetic men of the bureau.

The adjectives work all right either way in "famous ugly men."

England and World Politics.

There is naturally much speculation as to the effect of King Edward's passing upon the alignment of the powers. England formerly boasted of her "splendid isolation," meaning that she was free from alliance, while the other great European powers were bound by treaties or agreements intended to hold them together against the world.

England stood at the height of its splendid isolation when Edward ascended the throne in 1901. At that time the continental powers were aligned in two divisions—Germany, Austria and Italy in a triple alliance and Russia and France in a dual alliance. He arranged an Anglo-French alliance, Spain ultimately being included in the league, and also a formal treaty of alliance with Japan. King George has announced that he will look out for the "nation of shopkeepers" and seek to strengthen England's trade. That policy may lead to entanglements and is certain to beget new trade friendships and perhaps trade enmities.

Buffalo Bill for nearly thirty years has been marching around the world showing what the west was when it was the "frontier." With his retirement we shall have only the story writers and historians to fall back upon, and they cannot begin to equal the vividness of Colonel Cody's shows.

This function of proclaiming a king is a survival from the ages when it was well that the new monarch should be publicly set upon his throne in a hurry, for there was likely to be competition.

The English do not have pageants when a cabinet resigns or a new parliament meets and a new set of rulers takes hold. There is no more theatricalism about the real government of England than about our own.

The railroad bill looks as though it had been in a rear end collision, but there are those who claim that the trouble was a misplaced switch.

Too much should not be expected of England's new queen, with such immediate predecessors as Alexandra and Victoria.

It shows a lack of the commercial spirit in doctors to advocate a safe and sane Fourth.

Nowadays a frequent item in the news is that the "president is back in Washington."

Too many of these "joy rides" end in rides to the graveyard.

Jesus Walks on the Sea.—Matt. xiv: 22-36.

Golden Text.—Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying: Of a truth thou art the Son of God. Matt. xiv: 33.

Verse 22.—What remarkable event had immediately preceded this lesson? Why did Jesus want to scatter the multitude? (See John vi: 15.)

Why did he, probably, send the disciples away even before he dismissed the multitude?

If the rulers of the Jews, and not the common people only, had wanted to crown Jesus king, would he have resisted them? Why or why not?

Verse 33.—Why did Jesus need solitude and private prayer?

How much solitude, and private prayer, are essential to one who would have the spirit and do the work of Jesus?

Verse 24.—Why does god permit his children to be so "tossed with waves" when they are on the voyage he has sent them?

* Which are most blessed, and why, those Christians that have a stormy voyage and contrary winds through life, or those that have fair weather and favorable winds? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verse 25.—Why did Jesus leave them in their distress so long? and why does God often permit His children to be buffeted with wind and waves until it seems there is no hope for the ship?

Verse 26.—The disciples saw Jesus coming at last, but why is that any ground for hope that God will, when we are in trouble, come to our rescue in time to prevent any real disaster?

Can you give any examples, besides this, of being afraid of the very messenger, or circumstance, that God is sending to save us from our troubles?

Verse 27.—When, if ever, is there need for a true disciple to be afraid of anything?

Give a reasoned answer to the following, Is God literally in every circumstance, and does He speak with words of cheer in every event, whether loss or gain, or pain or pleasure, to the disciple who has spiritual faculties to see and hear God?

Verses 28-31.—Was it wise or profitable for Peter to have made this daring venture, seeing his faith failed him?

When God invites us, or bids us, do anything no matter how hazardous, should we do it, even if our hearts tremble at the anticipated result, or should we get the full assurance of faith first?

Is it wise or otherwise, and why, for us to attempt every thing that Jesus did?

What are the limitations to our duty, and privilege in duplicating the life of Jesus?

How much risk is there of failure, if we attempt to do all God commands us?

Verses 32-33.—Could any ship sink in that day with Jesus on board, and what does your answer suggest, as to the safety of all to-day who take Jesus for their captain?

If they worshipped the man Jesus in the same way as God should be worshipped, what comment have you on their act?

Verses 34-36.—How much benefit would it be to-day, if all the people of this community would bring their sick ones to Jesus?

A FAIR EXCHANGE

MANY people have things that they no longer have use for, but keep them in the house, taking up room and doing no one any good.

Better sell or trade off things you don't want. Advertise them and you will find that there are people ready to take them and pay cash, or trade for them. You will find it easy through the Columns of

THE CHRONICLE

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

St. Euphemia's Club Opens the Season

St. Euphemia's Club opened the season in a game with the second team of Mt. St. Mary's College, on the latter's grounds yesterday afternoon. It took ten innings to decide the contest. Although beaten the visitors had the better of the argument all the way through. Arnold retired seven men by the strike out route compared with three that McCoy fanned; Arnold allowed only four hits, two of which were doubles, while McCoy was touched up for eight singles, and a homer by Topper in the fifth which tallied Emmitsburg's first run. Mt. St. Mary's had only one earned run, the rest being scored on errors and bad throws. The umpire was none too satisfactory. Batteries were: St. Euphemia's, Arnold and Hemler; M. S. M., McCoy and Horlihan.

Score by innings:

St. Euphemia's	0	0	0
Mt. St. Mary's	1	2	0

No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

Editor of the Chronicle:

Dear Sir:

It is useless to tell you that the CHRONICLE is always looked forward to more than any other publication, by an ex-Emmitsburger. I have heard some very high compliments concerning your paper by people in Creston, who are about as anxious to read it as I am. A prominent lady there told me recently that she enjoyed reading my paper (THE CHRONICLE) because the news is so well gotten up, and both brief and clear. Wishing you success, I am,

Very truly yours,

CONGRESSIONAL PRIMARIES

OBLIGATORY SAYS STRAUSS

Republicans Meet To Rescind Action of April 27 In Reference To Election, — Application of Law.

The Maryland Republican State committee met Tuesday to rescind its action of April 27 in reference to Congressional elections. Attorney General Strauss has given an opinion that the new primary law applies to Congressional elections. At the time of the meeting the committee was under the impression that the law did not thus apply, and plans for holding primaries and Congressional district conventions were fixed. In fact, Thomas Parran was so nominated last week for Congress in the Fifth district.

CURTISS WINS $10,000 PRIZE

The terms of the competition prescribed that the flight must be the full distance from New York to Albany. It was optional to start from either end, and Curtiss would have preferred to start from New York, but if there is a worse aerodrome than Manhattan Island, bristling with shafts of skyscrapers and the waters of New York harbor cluttered with shipping and cross cut by deflecting winds, he would like to have it shown him. Aeronauts and aviators were unanimous that Curtiss performed the most wonderful feat of the air that the world has ever seen. Curtiss was dressed for the trip in wading boots and sweater. His aeroplane carried pontoons, or floats, to prevent it sinking in case it fell into the water. The pontoons are his own invention, and were designed with a special view to making the Albany-New York race. A 50-horse-power motor of his own make propels the craft, which, with the aviator in its seat, weighs approximately 1,000 pounds.

mentality is the most broken reed on which righteousness can lean." After detailing the turbulent conditions in Egypt following and preceding the murder of Boutros Pasha, the Colonel went on: "It was with the primary object of establishing order that you went into Egypt 28 years ago.  Now, either you have a right to be in Egypt or you have not. Either it is or it is not your duty to establish and keep order. "If you feel that you have not the right to be in Egypt, if you do not wish to establish and keep order there, then by all means get out of Egypt. If, as I hope, you feel that your duty to civilization mankind and your fealty to your own great traditions alike bid you to stay, then make the fact and the name agree and show that you are ready to meet the responsibility which is yours. "Some nation must govern Egypt. I hope and believe that you will decide that it is your duty to be that nation."

President Taft announced Tuesday that during his administration he will not lend his approval to legislation designed to give government aid to specific railroad interests in Alaska. PRESBYTERIANS DECLARE ON SUBJECT OF WEALTH

Its Acquisition Must Be In Obedience To Christian Ideals and It Must Be Held as a Trust From God.

The Presbyterian General Assembly closed its sessions at Atlantic City on Saturday. The meeting will be held at the same place next year. The financial committee will ask a per capita tax of eight cents a member for the coming year, an increase of two cents. The report of the committee on social problems adopted by the assembly says:— The church declares that the getting of wealth must be in obedience to Christian ideals, and that all wealth, from whatever source acquired, must be held or administered as a trust from God for the good of fellowmen. The church protests against undue desire for wealth, untempered pursuits of gain, and the immoderate exaltation of riches, and calls for a more equitable distribution of wealth.

The church declares for the abolition of child labor—that is, the protection of children from exploitation in industry and trade and from work that is dwarfing, degrading or morally unwholesome.

The church declares for the employment of the methods of conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes. The church declares for the release of every worker from work one day in seven, and it declares further for adequate protection of working people from dangerous machinery and objectionable conditions of labor. The church declares for some provision by which the burden imposed by injuries and deaths from industrial accidents shall not be permitted to rest upon the injured person or his family.

TIRE PROBLEM SOLVED BY WESTINGHOUSE INVENTION

Air-Brakes Man's Device Intended to Do Away With Puncture Evil.—Solid Tires on Automobiles.

George Westinghouse will have his new air spring, which he believes will replace the pneumatic tire for use on automobiles and do away with the puncture evil, on the market within six weeks. In an interview the inventor first declared his belief that the new spring would bring in an age of solid and cushion tires to replace the pneumatic tire, and second, expressed his acknowledgement to "a doctor, a clergyman, a mechanic, and a little engineer" at Watervliet, N. Y., as the originators of the idea that he has since developed and adopted. "I had been keenly alive to the dangers, costs, and delays connected with pneumatic tires," said Mr. Westinghouse. "When the originators of the device sought my aid I determined to prove the efficiency of the oil-packed air spring on a heavy vehicle fitted with solid rubber tires. Last September I applied a set to my largest limousine car, weighing 4,600 pounds, the wheels of which were fitted with cushion tires of the kind usually applied to heavy trucks. Notwithstanding the fact that the tires are only moderately resilient, the riding of the car over the roughest pavement and the most uneven roads demonstrated to me that cushion tires, which cannot be punctured, are practicable and comfortable on a machine equipped with the air-spring device."

Here is Mr. Westinghouse's description of the device in brief:

"The spring consists of two brass tubes, each of which is closed at one end which work into each other, piston style. The upper cylinder is fitted with a leather packing at its lower end. "A third, or outer tube, acts as a dust and mud guard. Four of these cushions are used to replace the steel springs on the ordinary automobile. The upper cylinder of each is attached to the chassis; the lower cylinder to the axle. Enough oil is placed in the cylinder to prevent the escape of the air past the piston packing. The leakage is taken up by a small interior pump, which oscillates with the motion of the vehicle. The piston and cylinder permit a play of about seven inches. The range of action of these springs, and the quickness of air under pressure, not only reduces the maximum strains on the tires, but obviates the rebounding effect of elliptical springs when a car is moving at high speed over 'thank-you-ma'ams.'"

Mr. Westinghouse gives it as his opinion that the new invention will quickly bring about the perfection of the cushion puncture-proof rubber tire, to replace the pneumatic.

State Loses in Boundary Dispute.

The low water mark on the south bank of the Potomac is held by the Supreme Court of the United States as the true boundary between Maryland and West Virginia. The State of Maryland contended it should be the high water mark. The Court also held the cost of surveying the boundary line should be borne by both States in equal parts.

AUGUSTA PROTESTS AGAINST NIGGARDLY ECONOMY

Opposition to Appropriation For President's Travelling Expenses Creates Sentiment.

A protest against the action of certain Democratic members of Congress in opposing the appropriation of $25,000 for the President's expenses, covering the President's last southern trip, and an offer to make up the deficiency was telegraphed to Speaker Cannon by the Augusta (Ga.) Chamber of Commerce and Cotton Exchange and Georgia-Carolina Fair Association. The telegram announced that at a called meeting of the three organizations held Saturday the following memorial was ordered sent to the Speaker, to be presented to the House and to President Taft:—

Augusta, the winter home of President Taft, stands indignant and mortified at the action of certain Democratic members of Congress in defeating by technical objection the proposition to make retroactive, so as to cover all the expenses of his last southern trip, the appropriation of $25,000 for the President's traveling expenses. At a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, Cotton Exchange and board of trade and the Georgia-Carolina Fair Association, held this day, it was unanimously agreed that we respectfully tender through you to the government of the United States, the $50,000 necessary to meet the deficiency of the President's recent transcontinental trip which did so much to cement the ties between the different sections and bring the nation and the nation's chief executive in closer touch and sympathy with each other.

MAN IS A FAILURE

When he has no confidence in himself nor in his fellow-men.

When he values success more than character and self-respect.

When he does not try to make his work a little better each day.

When he becomes so absorbed in his work that he cannot see that life is greater than work.

When he lets a day go by without making some one happier and more comfortable.

When he tries to rule others by bullying instead of by example.

When he values wealth above health, self-respect and the good opinion of others.

When he is so burdened by his business that he finds no time for rest and recreation.

When he loves his own plans and interests more than humanity.

When his friends like him for what he has more than for what he is.

When he envies others because they have more ability, talent or wealth than he has.

When he does not care what happens to his neighbor or to his friends so long as he is prosperous.

When he is so busy that he has no time for smiles and cheering words.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

A Suggestion of the Tunic Effect. Parisian Color Scheme.

Bands that suggest the tunic are more practical for walking skirts than the tunic draperies that are seen at their best in soft materials of house gowns and evening dresses. The line of trimming that is most generally becoming dips toward the front and rises on the sides, giving a slight forward movement.

Paris is combining that very chic effect, black and brown, in the same costume, but it takes an artist to accomplish this blending and bring about a creation and not a sartorial blunder.

Princess gowns are made secure and easy to hang when they are supported by a boned and perfectly fitted inside waist belt.

A neat morning costume is shown in the cut carried out in dark blue serge. The waist is more attractive when made of satin in the same color. The skirt may be decorated with satin covered buttons to carry out the one piece idea.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Judicial Favor.

A verdant local reporter whose propensities incline to daring rather than to judgment and whose ardency in the quest of news is one of his marked characteristics approached a judge of the United States district court and solicited a little advance information on a case in progress in the judge's court.

"You see, judge," said the youngster to the astonished jurist, "we go to press in a few moments, and we all know your inclination to do a newspaper man a favor."

The venerable man eyed the youth sternly and said slowly and emphatically:

"Yes, young man, I'll do you a favor this time, and you will see that you don't ask me again."

"That's fine, your honor. Thanks, very much. Just a few lines will do."

"I will do you this favor. I shall not send you to jail this time, but if you ever approach me again with such a question your friends will not see you for some time."

The discomfited reporter retired ruminating on the mysteries of the law and the dignities pertaining to the judiciary.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Exclusiveness of Casts.

An English officer who some years ago was wounded in a battle in India and left lying all night among the native dead and wounded tells this story: "Next morning we spied a man and an old woman, who came to us with a basket and a pot of water, and to every wounded man she gave a piece of jooree bread from the basket and a drink from her water pot. To us she gave the same, and I thanked heaven and her. But the Soobahdar was a high caste Rajput, and, as this woman was a Chumar, or of the lowest caste, he would receive neither water nor bread from her. I tried to persuade him to take it that he might live, but he said that in our state, with but a few hours more to linger, what was a little more or less suffering to us—why should he give up his fate for such an object? No; he preferred to die unpolluted."

Power of Deceiving.

There is a Brooklyn woman who possesses a servant who is a model in all respects save one—in that she is none too truthful.

Lately the mistress has been using all her eloquence to make Nora see the error of deceitfulness. But at last she had to own herself beaten when Nora, with a beaming smile, turned and in a most cajoling tone said:

"Sure, now, mum, an' wot do ye suppose the power of desavin' was given us fer?"

fastened double breasted from the neck to within four inches of the waist. Large buttons are used with braid buttonholes for ornament. There are many pockets, two of which are in the sleeves just below the elbow.

Despite the rumor of their going out of style, separate waists of silk or net will be worn again this season.

Creme de celine, born in the satin and silk finished weaves, will be very popular this season for waists and whole gowns.

For handsome afternoon frocks the lustrous broadcloths are first favorites and hold their own in spite of novelities.

The jumper dress illustrated is a charming model for a young girl. It closes in the back, and the skirt and waist are separate, although joined at the waist line.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Origin of Oxygen.

That eminent scientist Lord Kelvin maintained that all the oxygen in the atmosphere probably originated from the action of sunlight upon plants. When our earth was a globe of hot liquid it contained no vegetable fuel and probably no free oxygen. But as it cooled off plants appeared on its surface, and these began to evolve oxygen through the medium of the sunbeams. Upon the oxygen thus derived we depend for the maintenance of life by breathing. When we burn coal or other vegetable fuel we use up oxygen, and it is to plants again that we owe the restoration of the oxygen thus lost to the air. If they failed to keep up a sufficient supply the atmosphere would gradually part with its oxygen, and the inhabitants of the earth would disappear in consequence of asphyxiation.

In Westminster Abbey.

Fox's tomb is perhaps the most ridiculous in the abbey, but others run it hard—the naked figure of General Wolfe supported by one of his staff in full regimentals and receiving a crown from Victory; William Wilberforce apparently listening to Sheridan telling a comic tale and contorting his features in the endeavor not to laugh; the Sir Cloudesley Shovel, in periwig and Roman toga, which excited the mirth even of contemporaries, and all the monuments erected by the East India company, with palm trees and other tropical exuberances, to the memory of great soldiers, like Sir Eyre Coote. From the point of view of good taste a dictator would be justified in dismissing these and many more to the stonemason's yard.—Cornhill Magazine.

Not So Absurd.

"How absurd!"
"What's absurd?"

"Five years are supposed to have elapsed since the last act, and that man is wearing the same overcoat."
"Nothin' absurd about that. He's takin' the part of a married man, isn't he?"
