TAFT PROGRAM RIDDLED

WHAT MR. GILL THINKS

Reviews The Present Session of Congress.

PRESIDENT'S BILLS TORN APART

Secretary Ballinger and The Roosevelt Policies.—Currency Pledge a Bridge For Aldrich To Go Over To Europe.

In an interview Congressman John Gill goes after Taft and reviews the present session of Congress. Mr. Gill said in part:

"Taft's administration is but 15 months old and yet, beginning as it did with everything in its favor, it is confronted with a party in both branches of Congress hopelessly divided, every policy which the President fathered twisted, torn and battered into such shape as to be almost unrecognizable to him, his associates disgruntled and disgusted with each other and discredited before and despised by the country. Under such conditions it would be astonishing if the performances of the Taft administration squared with its promises—and they do not.

"Throughout the campaign President Taft was vociferous in his promises to promote the Roosevelt policies. The Roosevelt policy in which the people were most interested was that affecting the conservation of the natural resources of the people. To carry out this policy Mr. Taft selects Secretary Ballinger. This appointment nullified all that Roosevelt, through Pinchot and his bureau officers, had done.

"The Republican platform contained a plank favoring a more elastic and adaptable currency system. This pledge has served only as a bridge over which Senator Aldrich could go to Europe on a pleasure trip. Labor was promised a bill preventing the issuance of injunctions without notice. President Taft's measure on this subject lies entombed in the committee's mausoleum.

"President Taft advocated the passage of a bill amending the Anti-Trust law, also a measure calculated to revive the American merchant marine. Both of these measures are now on the calendar, the leaders not daring to call them up for consideration. He and his party also favored the enactment of a law amending the Inter-State Commerce law, giving to the railroads a right to enter into certain traffic agreements and preventing them from re-issuing bonds and stocks. The House, the Senate and the committees have so disfigured and mutilated this measure that even the Attorney-General, with the aid of a magnifying glass or a telescope, would be unable to find in it a sentence of his own."

Ten men were drowned in a ship collision off Hollyhead on Monday.

CATALOGUING GRIEVANCES AGAINST PEARRE IN 6TH

Republican Leaders Follow People In Desire for Change In Congressional Representative.

The Republican Congressional primary in this district continues to attract considerable attention especially in Frederick county where public opinion is very outspoken against Pearre. At the head of this opposition is Judge John C. Motter and his influence is very weighty.

It is said that aside from the various reasons that have influenced public sentiment against Congressman Pearre, politicians are averse to his re-election because he did not use his influence to have State Senator J. P. T. Mathias appointed Surveyor of the Port of Baltimore, but instead was instrumental in the appointment of Dr. Robert A. Ravenscroft, the Garrett county boss. It is further held against Pearre that Mathias was not made United States Marshal.

The way things stand now Frederick county will not present a candidate for the primaries but will support B. H. Warner, Jr., or one of the others in the race.

Officials to Attack Water Company.

Legal steps against the Washington County Water Company as a result of the prolonged disagreement over increased rates have been taken by the Hagerstown officials. As both parties, to the controversy claim to be strongly intrenched as to their respective claims the fight promises to be long and bitter. It is freely predicted that neither will yield until the highest court has rendered a decision.

A man was rendered unconscious by being struck on the head by a hailstone at Greenville, Pa., on Saturday.

GIST BLAIR WILL NOT DELIVER TO PEARRE

He is Independent in His Candidacy and Claims That He is Entitled to Recognition by His Party.

Gist Blair, of Montgomery county, a candidate for nomination as Congressman from the Sixth district, was in Emmitsburg last Saturday and while here positively denied the statements that he was a peace-maker for Col. Pearre and would "deliver the goods" to the man who has been holding office for so long a time.

Mr. Blair was asked this direct question, "Is there any doubt whatsoever as to your independence as a candidate for Congress from the Sixth district?" The emphatic answer was, "None whatsoever. I have been a consistent Republican and as a consistent Republican supported Col. Pearre whenever he was the nominee of the party. Having long worked as chairman and executive member of the Montgomery County Republican State Central Committee for Col. Pearre and all others in the party I thought it time to start my own claim for recognition.

"If Pearre is beaten Republicans and Democrats, who understand that honest labor in a subordinate place entitles one to be recognized, should wish me well in my endeavors. I think politics ought to mean genuine and representative government. If you know your county and people and what they want you can try to get it. Any man who has not been among the people for years may wish to do but can not."

Mr. Blair took occasion to explain that his relations with Col. Pearre were perfectly friendly, that there is no friction, no feud between them, and that he is simply endeavoring to impress the people with the fact that as he knows the district, its citizens and its needs he is in every way qualified to faithfully and satisfactorily represent it and them in Congress.

This, Mr. Blair claims, is a laudable ambition and on his record as a man and as a hard worker for Republican principles he appeals to his party for recognition which he believes is due him.

HAGNER A POSSIBILITY IN WASHINGTON COUNTY

Stands An Excellent Chance of Landing the Congressional Nomination in This District.

The woods of Washington county harbor a candidate for the Congressional primary to oppose Pearre. This may be Alexander R. Hagner. In a recent public statement Mr. Doub, a Hagner supporter, advocated the candidacy of Mr. Hagner against the field, and urged the Republicans of the Sixth district to get behind him. He claims that Hagner will have the backing of Washington and Frederick counties, giving him an equal chance with Colonel Pearre, who claims Alleghany and Garrett counties, and if the fight develops into a close test of strength between these two Hagner stands a better chance in Montgomery county than Colonel Pearre.

Former Senator David J. Lewis, of Cumberland, who was the Democratic nominee for Congress in the last Campaign, is making a preliminary trip through a portion of the Sixth district, looking after his fences. He is a candidate again for the nomination, and many Democrats regard his nomination as a certainty. He is considered to be the logical man by reason of the splendid fight he made against Colonel Pearre in reducing the majority of the latter to about 500 in the Congressional district.

The President-elect of Brazil will shortly spend a month here.

Loan of $1,500,000 to Liberia.

With the probability of Liberia being unable to meet her obligations growing out of a loan to her by a British syndicate, the American government has interested itself in Liberia's financial affairs. As a result a group of American bankers with whom are associated British, French and German bankers, are negotiating a loan to Liberia of $1,500,000. The tentative terms proposed by the bankers are regarded by this government, it is said, as entirely consistent with the best interests of the African republic.

To Investigate Lorimer Charges.

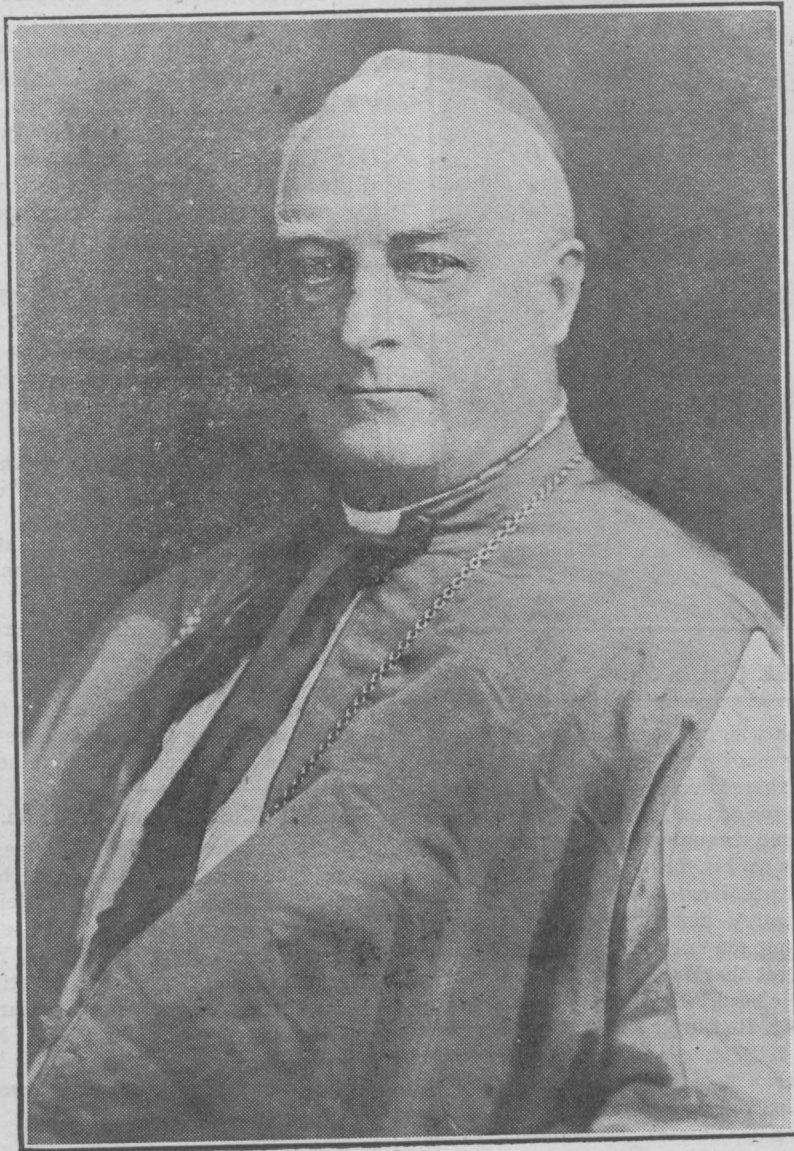

A full investigation into the charge of bribery made against Senator Lorimer of Illinois, in connection with his election, was decided upon by the Senate committee on privileges and elections. Senator Burrows will act as chairman of the committee. The inquiry will be conducted during the recess. No report will be made until next December.

An effort is being made to oust the Beef Trust from Missouri.

THE ACADEMY COMMENCEMENT

BISHOP NORTHROP PRESIDED AT EXERCISES

Miss Ruth Patterson Receives Class Medal.—Annual Meeting of the Alumnae.—Conferring of Degrees.

RIGHT REVEREND HENRY P. NORTHROP, D. D., BISHOP OF CHARLESTON, S. C., WHO PRESIDED.

For days, even weeks before the great event everybody in that beautiful, orderly but ever busy little city in the "Valley"—St. Joseph's—is preparing for Commencement, and when the time at last arrives and the scene is set and the big doors are thrown open to welcome the invited guests one learns ere long the cause of all the bustle and clock-like precision that has governed every bit of detail incident to the occasion.

There has been work—hard systematic work—throughout the year. Examinations are over and some evidence of the thoroughness of the course pursued must be presented to the outside world. The finished handiwork must be displayed, the essay read, the tuneless chorus sung, the difficult instrumental number played—all before a friendly but nevertheless a critical audience. But there is a decided charm about the suppressed excitement and the keenest pleasure to be derived from everything that takes place on commencement days at St. Joseph's. Those who attend expect a great deal, and they are never disappointed, nor will those who were at the Academy on Thursday morning, June 16th, fail to remember that happy event for many a day to come.

The distribution Hall, beautiful with its mural decorations in gold and delicate colors, its spacious platform banked with magnificent ferns, was filled by a throng of prominent people from various important cities, by parents of St. Joseph's scholars, and special guests from the College, from town and nearby places, when Bishop Northrop and the clergy entered, promptly at nine o'clock.

To the strains of the stately Commencement March, for two pianos at which presided respectively Miss Ila Louise O'Brien and Miss Frances Rohrbach, entered the graduates in cap and gown followed by the undergraduates in pure and appropriate white.

Each made obeisance to the Bishop and gracefully took her appointed place in the large semicircle in the center of which the salutation, the chorus the essayist and the valedictorian stood to greet, to cheer to edify and to say farewell. Well did they do their part and loud and long was the applause they received from appreciative friends. Each vocal and instrumental number was a finished production and each essay was a series of periods embracing learning and piety, and all delivered in clear and well modulated tones.

The following is the program of the morning: Hesselberg—Piano Duo—Commencement March; Piano First, Ila Louise O'Brien; Piano Second, Frances Rohrbach.

Bishop Northrop Makes Address.

At the close of the valedictory, Bishop Northrop, who is a very interesting speaker and one who commands rapt attention, addressed the graduating class in a very happy vein. He spoke of the advantages of education and of the special privileges enjoyed by the scholars of St. Joseph's, paying a very high tribute to the College and Academy and to the thoroughness of the instruction (Continued on page 7.)

SENATOR LEE DOES NOT WANT TO BE CONGRESSMAN

Predicts Democratic Victory in Sixth District This Fall.—Universal Political Sentiment.

State Senator Blair Lee, of Montgomery county, has put an end to the efforts of his friends to induce him to become a candidate for the Democratic Congressional nomination stating that he would not be a candidate nor would he accept the nomination if he could get it. At the same time Senator Lee said that the Democrats will carry the district and make corresponding gains in other Maryland districts.

"I have no idea of being a candidate, and am quite certain I could not be induced to take the nomination," he said. "There are a number of reasons for this, but one of them is not that I think there is much doubt about a Democratic victory in this district this time. Not only is the Republican party worse split up and in a more generally disorganized condition than it has been in many years, but the drift in all sections of the country is so strongly Democratic that our Republican friends, even in their strongholds, are trembling in their shoes.

"I returned a few days ago from a visit to Princeton, where I met a great many men from all parts of the country and of all shades of political opinion. The unanimity of sentiment with which they viewed the situation was really surprising. Men who have never before voted a Democratic ticket without hesitation declared their purpose of voting for the Democratic candidates next fall. I was amazed at the strength of the feeling manifested by ardent Republicans in this direction, and to me it was the most significant thing I have heard. This more than anything else, taken with the factional differences in the Republican party in the district, has convinced me that with anything like a genuine fight the Sixth district will send a Democrat to Congress next year. I intend to aid in the accomplishment of this all I can, but I do not think it wise for me to become a candidate myself and I have no idea of doing so."

FAKE CONSUMPTION CURES COST PUBLIC MILLIONS

Victims Spend $15,000,000 And Receive Nothing in Return.—Manufacturers Spend $3,000,000 in Advertising

Over $15,000,000 annually is poured into the coffers of those who exploit and advertise fake consumption cures, according to a statement issued yesterday by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis; and for this vast sum the victims receive nothing in return, but are often permanently injured and in the majority of cases cheated out of the chance for a real cure. Worse still, most of this money is paid by those who can least afford it.

The National Association has investigated several hundred so-called "cures" and "treatments" for tuberculosis now being advertised throughout the country, and finds that more than $3,000,000 a year is being spent in soliciting the patronage of the public. On examination, it has been found that the great majority of these "cures" contain harmful and habit-forming drugs, such as morphine, opium and chloroform. None of them will cure consumption. The only cure for this disease that has ever been discovered is the combination of fresh air, rest and wholesome food. All of the "cures" that attempt to destroy the tubercle bacillus without these or to stop the progress of the disease in some mysterious way are branded as frauds, and impositions.

Pays Like A Mere Citizen.

Although Col. Roosevelt as special ambassador to King Edward's funeral had good technical right to re-enter the United States without examination of his baggage by customs inspectors, he insisted that he come in as a mere citizen and pay full duties. His request was granted and members of his party filed eight declarations, while Col. Roosevelt prepared a typewritten letter, describing what he had bought abroad. In all there were 70 pieces of baggage, but the duty, all told, was not more than $300.

Robbins' Circus Again in Trouble.

Everybody in Emmitsburg knows of the Frank A. Robbins Circus. Late last week their train was wrecked one mile from Ebersburg, Pa., on the Cambria and Cresson branch of the Pennsylvania railroad. Two lions, an elephant, one leopard, one hyena, one jaguar and an ibex are reported to be at large as a result of the derailment. Ten circus employees were injured. The more seriously injured were removed to hospitals in Altoona.

STATE TO SELL ITS ANNUITY

BE RID OF INVESTMENT

Disposition In This Direction Apparent

IT YIELDS $90,000 EVERY YEAR

State Board of Public Works Has Power to Make Sale.—Its Revenue Might Help the Good Roads Movement.

Baltimore bankers and financiers are looking forward with interest to the action of Governor Crothers and Cabinet on the sale of the State's annuity in the Northern Central Railway, amounting to $90,000. The question of what disposition shall be made of the investment will be discussed at the meeting of the Governor's Cabinet on July 20. That there is a disposition on the part of the State administration to get rid of all its investments was demonstrated by the recent sale of stock in the Eastern National Bank which had been held in the treasury for over a century.

The sale of the Northern Central investment would be in keeping with this policy. The Board of Public Works has the power to make the sale, accepting, as required by the Constitution, State stock in payment. It is said that the mortgage, which amounts to $1,500,000, could find a market at $3,000,000. If this figure can be obtained it can be used to take up State stock outstanding or road stock now in the treasury and unsold. The last sale of road stock was in the neighborhood of 93, or the State is paying over 4 per cent. for money for road construction. More money for this work will soon be needed. It is confessed that the State Treasury cannot yield sufficient funds for the purpose by turning surplus receipts into the sinking fund, for there will not be any large receipts. If there is application for another loan the Board of Public Works faces a repetition of its last experience, the sale of State bonds below par, and the board said it would not have the same experience again.

It seems, therefore, that the most feasible plan, according to bankers, is to convert the Northern Central mortgage in a fund which would be available for road building without draining the treasury by purchase of stock for the sinking fund, and without impairing the State's credit by selling its stock below par to the investing public.

The annuity was created in 1854 with the right to redeem it. The time of redemption was permitted to elapse. In 1901 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company made an effort to take up the mortgage, but the Maryland Board of Public Works declined the offer. The courts were appealed to by the railroad company, but they held that the mortgage had practically become irredeemable.

MERRY DEL VAL MAY RESIGN SECRETARYSHIP

Changes in Vatican Looked For.—Crisis in Catholic Church Government Over Spanish Cardinal.

A crisis in Catholic Church government circles, almost without precedent in modern history, exists in Rome, and rumors are current that Merry del Val, the cardinal secretary of state, will resign his position and be succeeded by a cardinal who will be able to deal more diplomatically with the situation that confronts the vatican.

It is known that Pope Pius X is deeply grieved over the storm raised in Germany by the Borromeo encyclical and the threat that Spain will break off negotiations on the concordat revision if the Vatican protests against the royal recognition of other denominations.

The result is likely to be a startling change in the policy of the Vatican. The position taken by Merry del Val in the Roosevelt episode has lost him many supporters in the college of cardinal and as a result, it is said, he will gain no great sympathy in high papal circles.

Ice Gorges at Port Deposit.

Congressman Covington, of Maryland, is making a vigorous effort to have the War Department investigate the cause of the ice gorge and flood at Port Deposit, Md., in January last. He had a long interview with Acting Secretary of War Oliver on Saturday and he has transmitted to the War Department a mass of data and photographs to show that the ice gorge which caused so much property loss and personal suffering to residents of Port Deposit resulted from the building of addition piers in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad bridge across the Susquehanna river more than a year ago. Attention was called to the fact that the railroad had not removed the great mass of temporary pilings used in the construction of the piers and it is believed they were partly responsible for the great jam of ice that could not get through the bridge.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AT HOME ONCE MORE

After Absence of Year and a Half He Receives The Unqualified Welcome of Fellow Citizens.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

One hundred thousand people greeted Theodore Roosevelt when he landed in New York last Saturday. Col. Roosevelt came ashore at the Battery and was welcomed by Mayor Gaynor in a brief speech and was answered by the Colonel in an equally short address. After this ceremony which was prefaced by a naval parade Roosevelt's boat leading, the land parade began with the Rough Riders in the van and 400 officials and citizens in carriages immediately behind the carriage occupied by Mr. Roosevelt.

When the reception platform was reached the former President spoke to the throngs his thanks. "I wish to thank the American people for their greetings," said Mr. Roosevelt. "I need hardly say that I am most deeply moved by the reception given to me.

"No man could receive such a greeting without being made to feel both very proud and very humble.

"I have been away a year and a quarter from America, and I have seen strange and interesting things alike in the heart of the frowning wilderness and in the capitals of the mightiest and most highly polished of civilized nations.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed myself, and now I am more glad that I can say to be back in my own country, back among the people I love and ready and eager to do my part, so far as I am able, in helping solve the problems that must be solved if we of this, the greatest democratic republic upon which the sun has ever shone, are to see its destinies rise to the highest level of our hopes and its opportunities.

"This is the duty of every citizen, but it is particularly my duty, for any man who has ever been honored by being made president of the United States is, therefore, thereafter rendered the debtor of the American people, and is bound throughout his life to remember this as his prime obligation, and in private life, as well as in public life, so to carry himself that the American people may never have cause to feel regret that once they placed him at their head."

Mr. Roosevelt left America on March 23, 1909, shortly after he ceased to be President of the United States. He sailed to Naples where he was greeted by King Victor Emmanuel. He left Italy for Mombasa, British East Africa landing on April 21. Immediately he started inland for the jungle where he remained until March 1, 1910. On his return, which was by way of the Nile, he met Mrs. Roosevelt at Khartoum. His first public speech at this place caused much stir. At Cairo the next important stopping place he addressed the Egyptians deprecating their political aspirations.

In April he arrived at Rome and on account of an undiplomatic letter from the Vatican cancelled his engagement for an audience with the Pope. Through Italy to Vienna and Budapest where he was greeted by the Emperor of Austria then to Paris and Holland, Belgium and Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Germany and England and home his journey was a sort of triumphal procession.

His addresses at Paris, Berlin, in Norway and London attracted the greatest possible attention. While in England he acted as the representative from the United States at the funeral of Edward VII.

GEORGE A. PEARRE AT WORK ON BRAND NEW PROMISE

Scheme to Drain Unprofitable Marsh Lands in Maryland—Work For Next Session If—That's All.

Congressman Pearre is interesting himself in Southern Maryland. He has under preparation data to begin a campaign in Congress that will lead, he hopes, to the draining of the swamp lands in this State.

The information he has received from the Maryland Geological Survey satisfied him that if the State of Maryland will awake to its opportunities many acres of now utterly worthless land in Southern Maryland on the Eastern Shore can be reclaimed and rendered productive. His idea is that the members of Congress from Maryland regardless of politics or party, should join in pushing this project through next winter.

McCaffrey by a majority of one vote. Chief Judge Hammond Urner signed an order requiring McCaffrey to show cause within five days why the petition should not be granted.

Announcement was made last Wednesday of the marriage of Miss Mary S. Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, of East Middle street, to Mr. Paul S. Miller, of Hanover. The marriage took place in Camden, N. J., on March 10, 1910, and was kept secret until last week, when Mr. Miller graduated from Pennsylvania College. They left Thursday morning on a trip to Asbury Park, after which they will reside at Glenville, York county, where Mr. Miller has accepted a position as principal of Glenville Academy.

On Wednesday morning of last week Dr. W. A. Granville, the newly-elected president of Pennsylvania College, arrived in town. He was met at the train by an enthusiastic crowd of students, alumni and friends of the college, who gave him a rousing ovation. Three large automobiles containing the new president, ex-presidents McKnight and Hefelbower, the Board of Trustees and officers, headed by the Citizens Band and followed by scores of students and alumni paraded the principal streets of the town. Upon reaching the college the ovation was no less demonstrative.

The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association of Philadelphia, arrived in town by special train Thursday morning. They were met by the merchants of Gettysburg, who, headed by the Citizens Band, escorted them to the Courthouse, where a formal reception was held. E. P. Miller, president of the Gettysburg Association, presided. The address of welcome was made by William McSherry, Esq., and was followed by S. Ridgeway Kennedy and Edward J. Cattell, the latter representing Mayor Reyburn. The visitors were taken over the battlefield.

Miss Nina Thorn, eldest daughter of Chief Clerk George D. Thorn, of Harrisburg, died at her home in that place last Wednesday, of consumption. The remains were brought here and interred in the Evergreen Cemetery on Friday.

Rev. Herbert C. Alleman, of Philadelphia, has been elected professor of Old Testament Language and Literature, at the Seminary, to succeed Dr. T. C. Billheimer. Mr. Alleman was a former pastor of the College Lutheran Church, this place.

Mr. Harry Snyder and Miss Lillie Plank, both of this place, were married in Hagerstown last Tuesday by Rev. Thomas.

A band of gypsies was held up in town Friday morning by Sheriff Fissel, charged with trespassing on the property of a Mr. Newman, of Cumberland township. They were given a hearing before Justice Hill, and settled by paying a fine, costs and damages aggregating $22.

The first game of baseball between the teams of the Sunday school league was played on Friday evening by St. James and College Lutherans, resulting 5 to 1 in favor of the former.

A dance was given at Round Top on Wednesday evening by the Sons of Veterans Reserves.

John Newman, of this place, aged 16 years, was arrested Thursday by Chief of Police Gordon, charged with the theft of a gold watch, stick pin, two diamond rings and $73 in money from the house of Edgar Tawney, East Middle street. Newman had been in the employ of Mr. Tawney for about two weeks, and on Wednesday was discharged. Thursday he attempted to dispose of some of the jewelry to C. A. Blocher, from whom it had been purchased. Mr. Blocher, recognizing it, telephoned Mr. Tawney, who, upon investigation, found the goods gone. Newman was subsequently arrested. He waived a hearing and was placed in jail until August court.

A telegram was received on Monday by J. A. Sentz, of this place, stating that his son, Charles, had drowned at Plainfield, Ohio, on Sunday.

The Boys Club of St. James' Church, to music furnished by their own drum corps, headed by Rev. Baker, marched to Knoklyn Mills on Monday morning, where they will encamp for a week.

During a heavy thunder storm Monday afternoon lightning struck the stable of Wm. Lady, on Steinwehr avenue, setting it on fire. The adjoining stable, belonging to J. W. Horner, was also destroyed. Owing to the telephone exchange being closed during electrical storms, the fire had gained considerable headway before an alarm was turned in, hence when the firemen arrived on the scene it was impossible to save the buildings. However, they confined the flames to the buildings on fire, thereby saving adjacent properties.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S

Monday and Tuesday of last week Mt. St. Mary's played the last two games of a long and successful baseball season. They defeated Bloomsburg Normal on Monday in a long 12 inning game 5-4, and on Tuesday the strong Mt. Washington club journeyed to Echo field with bright hopes of making M. S. M.'s last game one more to their string of victories. Their hopes faded somewhat, when they found that Engle, the star twirler of the locals, was to be on the mound. Engle was in prime form, allowing but two scattered hits, and fanning 13, and winning his game 2-1.

Here are the results of the baseball season at the college:

MIDDLEBURG.

A cloud burst such as the oldest inhabitants never before witnessed passed over our town last Thursday. For two hours the rain came down in torrents, until the streets were like streams, flooding cellars and washing out gardens and truck patches that were the pride of their owners now left perfect wrecks, cornfields were terribly washed and grass in the meadow lands ruined. Fortunately there was very little wind. The electricity in the air kept nervous people on the jump as there was a continual crash.

The Children's Service which was held in the M. E. Church last Sunday was quite a success and was attended by a large crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McKinney, spent Sunday with Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Mt. Washington.

ST. JOSEPH'S IN THE VALLEY.

To impart a religious education to her children has ever been the aim of the Catholic Church and in no place has this ideal been more diligently fostered than at St. Joseph's College and Academy, Emmitsburg. Here, in addition to the kindly care and attention bestowed upon those entrusted to her keeping, is employed every means to develop the intellectual faculties that will prepare her scholars for a successful future and that will at the same time cultivate in them a true sense of their responsibility to God.

Religion is the dominating spirit of St. Joseph's. Its environment is one that is most helpful to the student in the prosecution of her studies and the well-balanced curriculum so arranged that on leaving this institution she is thoroughly equipped to meet every condition that may confront her in after life.

It has been wisely said that "given equal equipment and the same grade of instruction, an institution of learning having superior advantages in location offers to the student more of the elements helpful to her in the pursuit of her studies and will therefore bring her to higher development and efficiency."

If this be so, has not Saint Joseph's College and Academy an advantage equal if not superior to the majority of institutions? It would be hard, indeed, to imagine a spot more beautiful than the "Valley," and harder still to find a place more healthful. Broad meadows, rippling brooks and groves of stately trees are there, and Peace and Piety wander near them, hand in hand, while sweet toned bells invite the student to devotion or delightful study.

Enter those halls, hallowed by sweet memories of the saintly Mother Seton, and all is energy, directed by perfect system. Exact order prevails within the little city—for a city it is with its many finely equipped buildings and its multitudinous activities—and each department thoroughly supervised by faithful Sisters, competent and kind.

To be unhappy there would be unnatural, and for an earnest student not to acquire a full measure of her heart's desire would be inconceivable. But the test of this is apparent at Commencement time. Then it is that smiles are seen on every scholar's face; smiles of contentment from those who are to return, smiles tinged with sadness from those about to leave, and smiles commingling pride and pleasure from those who are about to receive well-earned awards from their Alma Mater.

For one hundred and one years has St. Joseph's stood the test. Her history and traditions are known wherever the cross has appeared; the magnificent work accomplished by her faithful Sisters stands as a monument to their deep devotion to God, and the achievements of her Alumnae are coming to light more and more conspicuously as the years go by. A proud record this, but a record fully merited, nobly won.

CONTROL THE ELECTRIC COMPANY.

The people of this place are now facing an opportunity to acquire the control of one of the most useful of public servants, and it is to be hoped that they will realize it to the fullest extent. The history of the local water company has shown that our citizens demand the best and will support a service that ministers to their comfort and well-being. In the years that have passed since the mountain water was brought to Emmitsburg there has always been a deep appreciation of the advantages derived from its introduction into our homes. In these same years the electrical industries of the country have been born, nurtured and brought up until to-day in the United States the money invested in electric light and power plants alone is more than a thousand million dollars, most of which is earning a fair return on the investment. The experience of many towns like this has shown that with careful planning and management, under the conditions that now obtain, electric light and power plants in such places many pay as fair a return as their more pretentious competitors in the great cities. With the introduction of the internal combustion engine the cost of producing electricity has been much reduced and with the perfecting of the metal filament lamp the cost of electric light has been brought down to about one-third of what it has been with the old carbon lamps.

Taken together these two inventions have made it possible to profitably supply current and to utilize electric light in communities where two or three years ago it would have been a hopeless proposition.

The small town everywhere is waking up to the situation. Already many neighboring towns have either procured, or are arranging to procure an electric light service. Our citizens are now offered a chance to acquire at a moderate cost the control of an electric plant that will be as good as any and far better than some that are heard a great deal of. Will they seize the opportunity, and keep the money and control in their own hands or will they leave it for outside capital?

We believe that they can and will acquire and retain control of their own electric service. Now is the time to do it.

The way to do it is get out and hustle. Take stock yourself. You are going to use electricity; have the profits come back to your pockets as dividends, or control the company and fix a rate that has no profit but gives you the electric service at cost. Go and talk it over with your friends and neighbors. The same strong reasons that apply to you, fit them. Three weeks from to-day the books close. By that time the entire amount necessary can and should be subscribed. Get out and "boost" for the old town and its new improvement and the job is done before you know it. And don't forget this: In boosting the above you are boosting yourself, and with the placing in commission of a locally owned and controlled electric service every piece of property in the town will advance in value, and every citizen's comfort and well-being be increased in no small degree.

HE HAS ARRIVED.

Literally and figuratively Theodore Roosevelt has arrived. He is back upon his native heath and now, just as he was before he left, it, he is the biggest chief in the clan, and instead of losing popularity he is, as the Westminster Review (London) puts it, "becoming more and more the commanding figure of the English-speaking world."

For over seven years he has been lauded and condemned, eulogized and criticized. He has had fanatical worshippers at his shrine; he has had level-headed statesmen for his supporters. Men of his own party—big strong men have differed with him and men of opposite political faith have been his henchmen. People have called him "Czar," they have styled him "Dictator," "Preacher-in-general to the civilized world," the "Apostle of strenuousness," the "Big Stick," and by innumerable other titles, complimentary or otherwise, they have attempted to describe this human anomaly who has been holding the centre of the world's stage and concerning whose future all the world is speculating to-day.

But it matters not what he has been called or how he has been criticised or commended. The one interesting and important fact remains: that whatever Mr. Roosevelt elected to do he did. In the language of the street he "got there"—he arrived, and for this, the most admired of American traits, he is entitled to all the honors he has received.

THE Sixth district would not have far to go in order to find a man quite as capable and quite as well qualified to represent it in Congress as Col. Pearre. One man in particular should appeal to the Republicans—Mr. Gist Blair, of Montgomery. Mr. Blair, though in the prime of life, is a "gentleman of the old school," a man who has been a tireless worker for his party, one who has a strong following and who knows the people and the needs of his district.

Unanswerable.

DR. R. J. MALONE'S ELOQUENT ADDRESS TO MT. ST. MARY'S GRADUATES

On an ever memorable day in June, thirty-five years ago, in this hallowed home of learning, in my happy young heart the light of hope bright as the sunlight on valley and mountain, I received my diploma from my indulgent "Alma Mater." I may be pardoned for venturing the opinion that never before or since, did prouder, happier graduates greet commencement day, for an unprecedented privilege was ours, that of receiving our diplomas and honors from the first American, the first Mountain Cardinal, on his first visit as Cardinal to his "Alma Mater." That glorious 23rd day of June, 1875, has had no twilight in the passing years, and that wild delirium of cheers for the Mountain given in response to the Cardinal's call at the close of the exercises, echoes yet in unforgetting hearts.

I should be unjust to myself and to my fellow graduates, if referring to that day of days in my young life, I failed to render the tribute of affectionate remembrance to my classmates—a band of brothers—one alas! at rest near the altar of God he served so faithfully, another under the New Haven elms, and still another beneath the moss-draped magnolias in far off Louisiana. The lengthening years only draw the survivors closer together in love of each other and their "Alma Mater."

From these happy and hallowed memories rooted in abiding love for the Mountain flows forth my appreciation of the honor conferred in the invitation to address the graduating class of 1910.

My first words to you, young gentlemen, are words of fervent congratulation upon the honor and privilege of graduating from Mount St. Mary's College. Less than two years ago at the Centennial Celebration the College was honored by the presence of His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons—beloved of all, and His Excellency, the Apostolic Delegate. The Cardinal, in classic speech, and words that stirred even while they stilled, rendered high tribute to our "Alma Mater," while His Excellency conveyed with glowing praise the congratulations and benedictions of our Holy Father, Pope Pius X, crowning the eloquent homage of her sons and the tribute of her visiting friends on that glorious occasion. And it is a blessed privilege to be educated at the Mountain, to be the beneficiary of its perfect system, which embraces the whole man, soul, mind, heart and body; which equips the student to work out his high destiny as it is recognized and revered at the Mountain—that is, with clean heart and hands and high thoughts, to serve God, our country and our fellow man. It is a privilege to be educated at the Mountain, inhaling day by day the atmosphere of its traditions and principles and assimilating its spirit of faith in God—the only anchorage of true manhood and ideal citizenship. It is a privilege for our eyes and hearts to be gladdened by these beauties of Mount and Vale, looking through Nature up to Nature's God. Apart from its curriculum and its method our college is especially favored in its setting, its atmosphere, silently but surely, day by day, toning up mind and heart to a love of the true, the good and the beautiful; shutting out from the young life the sordid and base. Here ever walks beside the student Reverence, called by Shakespeare "the angel of the world," and sadly does the world need that angelic visitant to-day, especially in the halls of learning. Young gentlemen take this Angel of the Mountain with you through your every walk of life. Grace your manhood in the coming years with Reverence, reverence for God, for Mother Church and her teachings,—reverence for our noble rulers and statesmen, whose singleness and purity of purpose, spite of all temptations, remain unchallenged; reverence deep and lasting for noble woman and all that she stands for and typifies when we utter the name of "Mother;" reverence for your conscience, in a world where conscience seems to have lapsed into convention. If the indirect influence of the Mountain thus tends to mould the manhood of its students, what shall be said of its direct influence, its scholarship?

First, the Mountain is a mental workshop. The healthfulness of its situation together with its isolation permits exceptional application to study and I am confident there is no institution of the land where harder work is systematically done by the students from the beginning of the year to its close than at Mount St. Mary's College. Love of study is another of those influences in the very air. The drone is as unpopular with the students as he is with the professors. Inertia is as foreign to the Study Hall as the ball field. Industry and application enter into the growing character of the student and these are assets in after life, apart from the matter of the Text Book, more valuable assets it may be in the battle of life.

These two you are to take with you from the Mountain—Patience, twin brother to Genius, such patience as placed Horace Birrey at the head of the Philadelphia bar "though he sat in his office for seven years before the shadow of a client ever darkened the threshold of his door." Courage, for a broken spirit buttons to the chin; courage that spite of weeds and thorns and reverses, that are often medicinal—will enable you to consecrate your utmost powers, all your faculties to the attainment of the right end. Love of work, tenacity of purpose not only for application to the immediate end in view, but to strengthen character, for after all character backed by the mental equipment of the Mountain is the great determining factor of our lives. If there is one word that fittingly characterizes class work at the Mountain, it is thoroughness, and this postulates conscientious work on the part of the student. Carry this thoroughness into your coming lives. While your mind forms the cocoon let your hands spin and weave the fabric, rake your calling fore and aft. Keep your eyes away from the dial plate of the clock. Close your ears to the melody of the stroke that tells the quitting hour; give not begrudgingly, half-heartedly, nor perfunctorily, but with a love that is the ear mark of labor, just a little more than is demanded, just a little more than is expected, and you will soon become so important a cog wheel in the main gearing of your calling that not a throttle will open, not a wheel turn unless your hand is on the brake.

Seek office—it is an honorable, a praiseworthy ambition—not solely as a means of subsistence but as a matter of civic pride and usefulness, and couple your pursuit of it with determination to do your duty on the side of right and justice to the rich and the poor alike. We had no translations, no key, no pony in my day. We had to work out our own salvation, and if not in fear and trembling at least in the extraordinary maze of Greek roots and the labyrinths of the Binomial and Sturm's Theorems.

Not only does the student at the Mountain derive the benefit of mental discipline but he graces and enriches his mind by companionship with those who

"Waged contention with their times decay,
And of the past are all that cannot pass away."

And there came to us and shall there not remain with us something of the joy of Keats when he first saw Chapman's Homer.

"Then felt I like some watcher of the skies,
When a new planet swims into her ken,
Or the stout Cortez, when with eagle eyes,
He stared at the Pacific, and all his men,
Looked at each other with a wild surprise,
Silent upon a peak in Darien."

Spenser would have us believe that a study of the classics is fostered by our colleges not so much for their intrinsic value as their intrinsic results on others. That an occasional Latin quotation or Greek myth is in after life the student's last pyrotechnical bid for effect rather than effectiveness, and that our educational institutions are Fashion Bazaars wherein the student's mind is dressed in the prevailing fashion. Just as the Orinoco Indian painted his skin with fanciful pigments. But Guilermo Fereare throwing aside the philosopher's budgeon and wielding the rapier cuts this into ribbons and leaves them scattered on the arch that history builds over the gulf of the past. He states, and with truth, that: Classical studies remain the educational foundation of the intellectual classes in all European-American civilization. That a good knowledge of them binds diverse people in an ideal entity, which conquers diversity of speech, history and traditions and blends together nations and people mentally so different as otherwise to be unpenetrable each to another. But the strongest reason of all for the perpetuation of the Classics—the Republic—the creation of ancient Rome is reborn here in America. "The Latin seed of the ancient world like the grains of wheat buried in Egyptian tombs, transported from the other side of the ocean" has sprung up in this land of Columbus. Had there been no Rome, no renaissance of Greek statues and manuscripts there would to-day be no Republic in North America.

Through the coming years of strife and stress, of disappointment and disillusion, it may be, shall we not bear with us from College days something "of the glory that was Greece, the grandeur that was Rome?" And from our study of the classics shall there not be with us still visions of the great Creator, mirrored in the marvels of man and nature? Shall we not continue to see the "shadow of the Almighty hand that steadies suns and systems, swings the stars," still hearing the music of the spheres? What a beautiful bond of Union is Mind. How it carries us back and unites us with the great spirits of the past. Ages have trodden down their graves. Worms have eaten their very dust, yet their thoughts live eternal, imperishable; they float down the awful current of time, while empires and men are swallowed in its mysterious depths.

But young gentlemen, the greatest blessing bestowed by the Mountain, the Supreme lesson taught by our Alma Mater is the knowledge of our divine Destiny. She teaches us not only the knowledge of God, but how to live out that knowledge; how to consecrate our faculties and our energies in mill or mart, in public office or private trust, in our labors for home and the dear ones, or in the perils for the State. And greatest boon of all, our Alma Mater gives us irrefutable reasons for the faith that is in us, reasons unshakably anchored in the rock of Peter, indestructible and imperishable through the ages.

And sweet memories of Alma Mater, sentinels of the heart, shall guard these blessings of College days through all the days to be. Though far away we shall make a pilgrimage in spirit to our Alma Mater. Jostling the trafficking throng in the busy streets we shall go gathering chestnuts among the russet leaves on the hillside, or go climbing for cherries in the lane. We shall bend above our desk in the dim office or sombre study—but tired eyes will gaze from Indian Lookout, that Monarch of the Mountain, with stately head and crown of verdure—over the Valley and see the sunlit spires of the Convent. And ears that have all day listened to discordant notes of stress and care and strife will hear in the anxious night the sweet songs on the terrace, and the weary heart will seek a sanctuary from the world's turmoil and clamor, while the Adeste Fideles rings through the churchyard, echoes along the hillside and down the valleys, its sweet tones pleading with all the world to be at peace as it erst was on that starry night in Bethlehem long centuries ago. While the sweet May hymns from yonder ivy-twined chapel will attune those tired hearts to the peace of other days there will flame up within us, to cheer and to bless us, these radiant, white-robed dreams—this love of the brotherhood of the Mountaineers and abiding, unwaning, love of the Mountain.

The Blossoming Rod.

Oft have I read with reverent mien
Of good old Aaron's rod,
That did bud and blossom so wondrously
Under the smile of God—
And yielded fruitage choice and free,
Like that of a real almond tree.

No so often in my boyhood days
Was sorely felt by me
Another rod, of the birchen sort,
Perchance plied lovingly—
Yet whose exasperating smart
Hardly served to leave a loving heart.

Many a year has flown since then,
Changeful as all lives know;
But among my dearest memories
Are the school-days of long ago—
Till even that rod, as a pleasant surprise,
Is recalled like the blessing in disguise.

Indeed, by some mystic alchemy
'Tis become a shuttle deft,
Weaving, somehow, a thread of gold
To relieve what the years have left
Of tell-tale gray, with snow among;
Though the heart bedeth doth still Keep young

Also the slipper and ferule harsh
Have lost with the years their sting,

Serving no longer for chastisement,
That each an innocuous thing,
Save when the old depravity
Suggests their penal utility.

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School
Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

(Copyright 1910 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.)

Parable of the Tares.—Matt. xiii:24-30, 36-43.

Golden Text.—Then shall the righteous shine forth as the Sun in the kingdom of their Father. Matt. 13:43.

Verses 24, 36-38—How many meanings has the phrase "the kingdom of heaven," in the New Testament, and what is its meaning here?

Who does the man who sowed good seed, stand for in this parable?

What instruments does God use in sowing his good seed?

What is the field in which the good seed is sown?

Verses 25, 38, 39—Who does the enemy stand for who sowed tares among the wheat during the night?

What motives actuate the devil in his delight in doing evil?

Give some examples of how bad men delight to do evil?

What was the effect of tares among the wheat, and what is the influence of bad men in the church and in the world?

Verse 26—What is the legitimate fruit of a good man, and that of a bad man?

Verse 27—God is the embodiment of good, then why does he permit evil in the world?

Is evil, in any sense, a part of God's plan in the final development of good? Why or why not?

Is the devil a power in the world independent of God, or is he under the control and necessary to the plans of God?

What would you say is God's purpose in permitting the devil and bad men to exist?

Verses 28-29—What would be the effect if the tares or weeds, should be pulled up while the wheat is growing?

What would be the effect if all bad men were, by the act of God, to be President Taft signed the bill admitting New Mexico and Arizona to statehood on Monday.

suddenly removed from the world?

What would be the effect upon the church, if all unworthy members should be turned out?

If Jesus were the pastor of a church to-day, how would he treat its unworthy members?

Verses 30, 39, 40—When, according to your interpretation of scripture, will the end of the world be?

What will be God's method at the end of the world, in dividing the bad from the good?

The best thing to do with weeds is to burn them, as here stated, but does that necessarily imply that God will literally burn the wicked?

What are the "angels" or laws or forces which inevitably separates the bad from the good?

Verses 41-43—Is there any reason to believe that the analogy here drawn between the burning of tares, thus utterly destroying them, and God's treatment of the wicked in the last day, is to be taken literally: that is, are the wicked to be burned up root and branch i. e., destroyed?

* If the wicked are naturally immortal, that is, must live forever, and if sin itself is misery, as we all know it to be, then how long will the misery of the wicked last? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

What ground is there to believe, either from experience, philosophy, or the scripture, that the wicked may possibly repent in the next world?

What is the basis of our belief that the joys of the righteous will be forever?

Lesson for Sunday, July 3, 1910.—Pictures of the Kingdom. Matt. xiii: 31-33, 44-52.

THE LEGORE BRIDGE DISPUTE

Attorneys Differ As To Construction Term "Authorizing and Empowering."

George R. Dennis, Jr., attorney to the Board of County Commissioners for Frederick county, has handed to the board an opinion in regard to a claim advanced by J. W. Legore, of Legore, in Woodsboro district, that, under an act of the Maryland legislature, the board is required to buy from him a stone bridge and a section of private road built by him near Legore, the bridge being across the Monocacy River.

Mr. Legore built and paid for the bridge and secured from the legislature an act prohibiting the county commissioners from erecting another bridge across the Monocacy within a certain distance from it in either direction. He also secured the passage of an act under which the commissioners are "authorized and empowered" to purchase the bridge from him, and he recently called upon the board to buy it, fixing the price at $197,000.

His attorneys argued that the language of the act "authorizing and empowering" the commissioners to buy the bridge was mandatory. Mr. Dennis holds, in his opinion, that the law merely gives the commissioners authority to buy the bridge and leaves it to their discretion whether they shall do so.

Summer C. E. Convention.

An innovation in church work in this State will be the Summer Conference which is to be held at Pen Mar, July 18 to 22 under the auspices of the Maryland Christian Endeavor Union. This Conference will be an entirely new feature in the religious work of Maryland and the many Christian Endeavor Societies in this county are interested in having representatives attend these sessions. The County Union is making a special effort to get out a large crowd for all the other Unions are working to the same end and the officers of this county want a good representation. For many years church workers have thought the beautiful mountains of the western part of the State would be a delightful place for a summer meeting but this is the first time it has been attempted.

S. E. CLUB DEFEATS LITTLESTOWN

Exciting Game on Firemen's Diamond Hotly Contested.

St. Euphemia's defeated Littlestown last Saturday in one of the most interesting games that has been played on the local diamond for sometime. It was nip and tuck all the way through, and no one knew whose game it was until the last man was out. Arnold did some fine twirling, retiring 14 men on strikes. G. Sebald's catching, Ray Sebald's hitting, Horneberger's home run and Joe Topper's throw from left, in the ninth, were features. St. Euphemia's had a batting streak in the eighth when with 2 out, five consecutive hits were made and 3 runs scored. The score follows.

Miss McGrath's Recital.

A few days ago Miss Lilian McGrath, granddaughter of Mr. James McGrath, of this place, gave a vocal recital to a number of her friends and Rev. J. F. O'Donnell, in Waynesboro. One of the Waynesboro papers had the following to say of the singer and her programme: Miss McGrath has a mezzo-soprano voice of much sweetness of tone, of more than ordinary range and of good cultivation. She is a student of Mrs. J. C. Criswell and of Sister Gabriel, Chambersburg.

Her guests were delighted with her numbers and she was liberally applauded.

Mrs. Criswell accompanied her upon the piano and her assistance helped in no small degree to the success of the recital.

The program was as follows:

"Ave Verum" (H. Millard).
 "Abide with Me" (E. L. Ashford).
 "Ave Maria" (Millard).
 "O Salutaris Hostia" (A. R. Rosewig).
 "A Gypsy Maiden" (Henry Parker).

Mr. James A. Koontz has just plucked from his garden a lemon weighing a pound and a half ounce, and measuring in circumferences, 12 and 14 inches respectively. The fruit was bright yellow and fully matured.

The removal of the corner iron pillar supporting the balcony at Annan's store is a great improvement. The post stood in the middle of the sidewalk and interfered much with traffic there. This change is in line with a number of other improvements that have recently been made in the same locality.

New and very attractive signs in large gold letters have been put on the glass fronts of the business establishments of Mr. Harry A. Hopp and Mr. W. S. Troxell.

Two large double windows have been placed in the front of the residence of Mrs. Virginia Gillelan.

The exterior of the home of Mr. Michael Hoke has just been repainted.

A beautiful ornamental gas lamp has been placed in the recently finished portico in front of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

A child was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Orndorff on Thursday.

Saturday evening, Mr. Robert Flenner, who lives near town, made a misstep, from the porch in front of Rotering's store and fell to the pavement, sustaining injuries about the head and body. He was rendered unconscious by the fall but he is now recovering.

Squire Henry Stokes who was ill the first part of the week, we are glad to say, is rapidly recovering.

One of Mr. Howard Martin's children has been seriously ill but is recovering.

Mr. John Mathews knows how to raise lettuce. A magnificent head from his gardens which weighed 2½ pounds was brought to this office.

Mr. William Bushman has had a concrete pavement laid in front of his residence on West Main street.

Westminster and Gettysburg fared badly on Saturday nights, or at least persons hailing from those places did. The Westminster man ran against someone's fist two or three times and then went to dreamland. The Gettysburg man also ran into trouble on Green street much to the disadvantage of his features which were more or less disturbed by an irate Emmitsburgian.

Several severe storms passed around this place this week. On Monday Gettysburg and the country to the north-east of here suffered considerably. On Tuesday afternoon hail fell at Thurmont. Another hail storm passed over Frederick on Saturday.

Mr. Ed. Riffe tells us that he killed a blacksnake 6 feet long and 7 inches in circumference. The details of the killing were not given by Mr. Riffe.

Miss Annie McNulty, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is able to be about again.

Master Henry Troxell suffered a painful accident on Wednesday. He was sitting on a fence and lost his balance falling on a pile of stones which cut a long gash in his scalp. Dr. Jamison dressed the wound.

Mad Dog Killed.

On Thursday a dog belonging to Mr. Charles McCarren is supposed to have gone mad. Mr. McCarren telephoned to town and to his neighbors to be on the lookout for the animal which he supposed was on its way to town. The dog was found in Mr. Meade Fuss' meadow, east of town, and was shot.

CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES

WHEN Cortright Metal Shingles were first introduced (24 years ago) you had some excuse for being sceptical:

But now—

If you are sceptical it can only be because you do not know the facts in the case.

They are used today from the Atlantic to the Pacific for all kinds of buildings, under all conditions.

They are fireproof, stormproof; never leak and last as long as the building itself without needing repairs.

given by the good sisters presiding over the institution. Art and Handiwork Exhibition.

Among the most interesting features of St. Joseph's Commencements is the elaborate exhibit in the Art Room—a beautifully arranged display of work done by the scholars during the year in pastel, water color, oil and sepia. This exhibit also comprises rare specimens of hand carving on leather and wood and examples of specially designed china decorations. Among the advantages enjoyed by the art students of St. Joseph's may be mentioned the kiln for baking hand-painted china and porcelain. This kiln is owned by the Academy and forms a part of the excellent equipment of the school. While it would be impossible to note in detail each representation in this year's exhibit, certain pieces are deserving of particular mention, among them being a complete fish set in Haviland China, decorated in gold, by Miss Alice Smith; old-fashioned tea set, by Miss Agatha Byrne; a fruit set and a beautiful colonial chocolate set, in blue and gold, by Miss Clare Cogan; china tea set, white and gold, by Miss Frances Kempf; floral painting of tulips, by Miss Hallie Parsons; hand-carved garden tray, by Miss Mary Murphy; a pastel, a forest fire, by Miss Margaret Vaughn; hand carved walnut screen, Louis XV. style, by Miss Alice Smith; oil painting, Jack Roses, by Miss Hallie Parsons; carnations in oil, by Miss Marie Gloninger; ale tankard and mugs, decorated by Miss Rohrbach. Among the other exhibits of merit were: Hand-carved leather work, bill-books, purses, Miss Clare Cogan and Miss Victoire Kalbach; sepia folio, Miss Margaret Dow; water-color painting, marine scenes—"Bridge of Sighs," "Scene in Venice," "Melrose Abbey," by Miss Clare Cogan and Miss Victoire Kalbach; landscape, Miss Mary Murray; marine view and carnations and wild roses in oil, Miss Annie Fesenmeier; dogwood and violets, Miss Mary Whittle; miniature painting on china, Misses Frances Kempf, Margaret Pearson, Alice Smith and Margaret Dow; hand-painted sofa pillows, Miss Katherine T. Conley and Miss Hilda Crespi; pillow, owl in leather work and tete-a-tete set in violets, Miss Rhoda Slaybaugh; fruit, water-color, and china ice cream set, Belle ware, Miss Edith Gass; wood carved jardiniere, Miss Margaret Dow; lustre bowl, Miss Frances Kempf; pen and ink sketches, "College Girls," Miss Katherine Conley; sacred vestments, benediction veil, Miss Alice Smith; stole, Miss Edwina C. Needle Work Display.

In one of the spacious corridors and arranged so as to give an opportunity for close examination, were shown many examples of drawn work, laces, embroidery, crocheting and plain sewing. Among the articles were: Mexican drawn work, Misses Frances Kempf and Mary O'B. Pepper; shadow embroidery, Misses Frances Kempf and Rhoda Slaybaugh; French and eyelet embroidery, Misses Mary Murphy, Mary Pepper and Eloise Gross; plain sewing—gingham dress, by the younger pupils; crocheted ties, Misses Rhoda Slaybaugh and Marie Gloninger; fancy bags, Miss Allene Spencer; collars, reticules, cuffs and laces, Miss Marie Gloninger; aprons, Misses Agnes Stark, Margaret Rohrbach, Rosa Rodgers, Louise Haberman, Marjorie Parsons; corset covers, Miss Mary Murphy.

The Alumnae at St. Joseph's.

The afternoon of June fourteenth was truly an ideal one; the earth and sky, foliage and flowers, with the rich and varied notes of feathered songsters seemed holding carnival. This was the first delightful weather we had enjoyed after a week of only occasional gleams of sunshine amid the frequent and sudden showers. The Valley that evening was all decked out in beauty as the hour drew near for the arrival of the train, which is always quite an event at Saint Joseph's, but unusually exciting when the Alumnae visitors are expected.

At the end of the recreation grounds were assembled all the pupils; last, but no means least among them, appeared the Juniors and Seniors in cap and gown. Waiting there too, were the President and officers of the Alumnae, and on the steps of the front entrance to the Burlando building stood Mother Margaret, the Directress of the College, and a number of Sisters, friends of the guests to whom this cordial welcome was to be a real homecoming, wherein the renewed joys of by-gone days were to rejuvenate these loyal children of our Alma Mater. After pleasant greetings, true to the laws of hospitality, we carried them off to the refectory to partake, not of the ordinary school repast, but a delicious banquet supper instead. This over and thoroughly enjoyed, a short hour was spent in the Commencement Hall, where music and song were enthusiastically appreciated, then up to the dormitories, a journey they had made oftentimes before. I do believe the spark of youth must have been hidden somewhere in their pillows,

"With dreams of such a lofty reach,
And more than earthly fancies fraught,
That not the strongest wings of speech
Could ever touch their lowest thought."

for next morning, they seemed not elderly ladies who had left the Valley scores of years ago, but all young girls with the animation and brightness of life's springtime.

As to the field sports, although new at St. Joseph's, all evinced much interest in the program of tennis, races, and especially in the game of basketball, the Mountain girls winning against the Valley, four to two. Commencement day at the College attracted many in that direction, but they returned amazingly soon, as there was so much to be talked of here, the events of the past year, and the future prospects of their Alma Mater, just entering upon her second century of labor in the cause of God. Wednesday was a well filled day. The reception tendered by the Alumnae to the parents of the pupils began at three in the afternoon. Many uninvited guests would have shared the honor, but the reception was for our parents only.

Eight o'clock that evening was appointed for the annual meeting of the Alumnae. A glance at the beautifully decorated Play-Room wrought its spell upon the members, and all entered with zest upon the labor of love. Miss Clare I. Cogan, class of '07, presented the six members of the Junior class and one Senior. Mrs. Mary Wade Kalbach, President, then delivered the following beautiful and touching address: "My few remarks this evening will not be worthy the name of an address. We shall have merely a short informal talk, on Alumnae Days at Saint Joseph's—for they are indeed to us the 'red-letter days' of our lives. These happy reunions, these Alumnae days, may fittingly be compared to the golden links of the chain of memory binding us to the past.

"When the fragrance of the roses reminds us that June is nigh, inadvertently our hearts turn to the Vale, for the roses of June, sweet girl graduates, and Alumnae days at St. Joseph's, are all intermingled in one. Happily, indeed, has this glorious month been chosen, the month that seems to fairly throb with passionate warmth and tenderness. With its rosy dawn, its glowing noon, and tender twilight our Valley never looked more lovely. Dear old Saint Joseph's may well rejoice that time hath so magnificently completed for her the golden decade of twice fifty years, plus one—for today we have been rejoicing with Alma Mater in an added birthday. Our venerable Alma Mater is now one hundred and one. As loyal children, we have come to pay her homage and to present to her our offerings of gratitude and love. She, in return, has extended to us a most cordial welcome with the happy privilege of another Alumnae day at the Vale. Another happy, restful day in this home we love so well. A day, apparently uneventful, yet, nevertheless, a milestone in the path of years around which none but pleasant memories cling. An enjoyable something to be remembered until next year brings us its welcome summons that another Alumnae day will soon be at hand. Our farewell will not be a lasting one, for one of the sweetest and most precious fruits of the Alumnae is to keep us in constant touch with those who have shaped our lives, moulded our character, built up the very fibres of our hearts, and with a tender, abiding interest watched over us; hence in parting for a time from those loved friends of our youth, those tried and trusted friends, we but stretch forth our hand for a reassuring clasp, and receive with it a heartfelt: 'God bless you!'

"The long scroll of a century bears the names of hundreds of pupils who have done honor to St. Joseph's, not perhaps through deeds applauded by the world, for the best women are often those of whom the world has heard the least, whilst they have excelled in woman's true sphere—the home. And the world never needed more than it does to-day good wives and mothers, who by their virtues will consecrate the sanctity of the home.

"The Centenary of Saint Joseph's has now become history; henceforth therefore, we the Alumnae of Saint Joseph's have a mission to fulfill. The formative period of the life of each one of us has been spent in this home of highest ideals. With Mother Seton for our model, let us give to society the ideal woman, to the home, the ideal mother and should a vocation claim some of you, give to your Community, as Mother Seton did, the example of an ideal religious.

"Well may we claim her as our model, that faithful wife, that tender mother, that noble religious.

"May the halo of sanctity which has for so long encircled her brow in heaven, soon, by the solemn sanction of the Church, appear here upon earth; then will the bells, the joy-bells of Saint Joseph's proclaim to the world that Mother Seton is not only our model, but has become our Patroness and our Saint.

"Soon, soon, may these joy-bells ring blending with the Centennial chimes of nineteen hundred and nine. They will then forever echo and re-echo in our hearts, for heart-memories never die, but grow nearer and dearer as life advances towards its setting sun." All were deeply impressed by the heartfelt, earnest manner in which the President strove to express her lifelong love for her cherished Alma Mater. Her sentiments met a responsive chord in every heart among her listeners.

Miss M. Stella McBride, secretary, then read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Elizabeth McConomy Rathfon represented the treasurer, Miss Alice McConomy, whom illness prevented from attending. A motion was made and seconded that a message of loving regret be conveyed to her, and likewise to Mrs. Mary Augusta Clapper Hutton. Many of the members had sent regrets that they were unable to attend. The President announced with much feeling that the Vice-President's term having expired, Mrs. Mamie O'Brien Seeman, begged the meeting to proceed to a new election, whereupon the matter was put to a standing vote and simultaneously the meeting rose to decide, against all opposition, that the former Vice-President's second term begin at once. Finding all protest vain, Mrs. Seeman was forced to submit, as she gracefully acknowledged the compliment. The staff of officers, therefore, remains the same. A motion was made and seconded that the members of the Alumnae wear their colors at the meetings. A motion was made and seconded that a message of thanks be conveyed to Mother Margaret and all the Sisters for their many acts of kindness. Mrs. Mary Helen Scott Brown, of Baltimore, was pressed to leave some thoughts with the younger members. With the most engaging simplicity and the most amiable gentleness Mrs. Brown said as she looked smilingly around upon the expectant groups, "Well, my memory of Saint Joseph's goes back over nearly a hundred years, for although it is only sixty years since my schooldays ended, I was made familiar with all the beautiful traditions of my Alma Mater, by my mother, who was a pupil in Mother Seton's time. Let me repeat what our President so beautifully said, that 'our characters were moulded here, the very fibres of our hearts built up by the Sisters.' I wish that you may all live to be as old as I am, that you may enjoy many more of these delightful reunions, that grow more and more charming to me; for if there is any good in me, I owe it all to Saint Joseph's and the Daughters of Mother Seton." At the close of the meeting all were glad to retire, even at the early hour of nine thirty, for this had been a strenuous, though never-to-be-forgotten day. No doubt among the last thoughts that occupied each mind that night came the question why Saint Joseph's should not register hundreds of pupils every year, that the good already done to so many might be shared with countless others, not less favored.

Among many privileges unspeakably dear to the Alumnae were those of high Mass and daily communion in the Chapel where each evening of their too brief stay in the Valley, Benediction, one of the glories of the Sacred Heart, fell as a seal upon the blessings, and choice graces they would bear away. Memories of the olden days renewed their strength and fervor as they drank in the music of the organ accompanying the old familiar hymns, "Mary, Dearest Mother," the Litany, and the strains of the sweet Invocation, "O Mary, Conceived Without Sin!" so characteristic of Saint Joseph's, to whose faithful Guardian now we say,

"Oh, watch still o'er the Valley and shield the young hearts,
That vibrate to its sorrow or joy!"

With one long, lingering glance at the altar adorned with crimson roses, shedding perfume all around, we turn from this loved sanctuary leaving there one pledge, that

"Again in the calm hush of even,
Round Mary's blest shrine oft we'll press,
And feel there a something of Heaven
Descend with our Mother's caress."

The following list was handed in by Miss M. Stella McBride, Secretary of the Alumnae:

EXPERIMENTAL STATION TO

TEST STOCK IN MARYLAND

Government After Farm For Bureau of Animal Industry Situated Near Beltsville, This State.

Negotiations are being made by the Agriculture Department for a tract of land at Beltsville, Md., known as the Hall Manor. There are between 500 and 600 acres in the estate and the price named is $20,000.

The farm will be used by the Bureau of Animal Industry as an experimental station. Every description of domestic animal will be put on the farm and scientific experiments begun.

"By careful breeding and experimenting it is proposed to rear cows which will give pure cream, sheep will have a combination flavor of mutton and spring peas, hog all ham, and horses in the shape of electric runabouts," said a government official, with a smile.

Dr. Alonzo D. Melvin, chief of the bureau, said he did not care to discuss the plans, but believed the farm would be one of the government's best.

WHAT IS WORN.

Hats For Conservative Women.
Changed Styles in Undergarments.
A rational hat that is finding favor with women who take the middle ground in the styles is a shape covered with velvet and draped with silk and trimmed rather far back with barnyard plumage and one fluffy gray white aigret that softens the mass. These hats come in one color schemes

IN FASHION'S REALM.

Old Fashioned Crewel Work Used For Costume Decorations This Winter.
Lace is not so much used in trimming gowns now, but embroidery and hand work of all kinds are dominant. The old fashioned crewel work is revived as a decoration for costumes. Buttons covered with fur are the latest novelty. These are used on such as myrtle green, chestnut brown, faded violet and black.

The new styles in dress have affected the cut of the undergarments as well as the outer articles of dress. Corsets are being made much longer below the waist line, reaching far down over the hips. They are also higher in the bust.

The long coat illustrated is a practical model either for day or evening wear. For wear over evening frocks it would be attractive developed in lightweight taupe broadcloth. Quite the newest idea in collars for such heavy, long coats and carriage wraps. The tight fitting gowns so popular at present have created a demand for all sorts of combinations. The one illustrated of bust supporter and full circular drawers can be made to answer a fourfold purpose and is one of the most practical. The bust supporter takes the place of a corset cover and at the same time confines the figure, and the circular drawers are full enough to serve as a short skirt. JUDIC CHOLLET

How Pausanias Died.

Pausanias, the Greek general, died by self administered poison. When hotly pursued by those sent to apprehend him on a charge of treason and sacrilege he took refuge in the sanctuary of a temple. Unable to remove him by force and also unwilling to violate the sanctuary, the officers waited up the entrance and began to unroof the building. When he could be seen they noticed that he was chewing something which proved to be a quill filled with poison. By the time the work had sufficiently advanced to admit of their entrance he was in a dying condition.

Secret For Secret.

In the days of Louis XIV. even warriors banded epigrams with one another.

The Marechal de Grammont had taken a fortress by siege.

"I will tell you a secret," said its military governor after surrendering. "The reason of my capitulation was that I had no more powder."

"And, secret for secret," returned the marechal suavely, "the reason of my accepting it on such easy terms was that I had no more balls."

The Land of Mustn't.

I know you sometimes travel there. For all good people do. Across the Land of Mustn't, where They take such care of you.

And you have seen those warning lines. The "Mustn't Romp or Shout!" And "Mustn't Eat Between Meals!" signs. They put up all about.

"Keep Off the Grass!" "No Fishing Here!" "No Wading!"—I declare, I think this sign will soon appear: "You Mustn't Breathe This Air!"

So, fellow traveler of these ways, My sympathetic hand I offer, for I've lived long days In that same Mustn't Land. —St. Nicholas.

More Interesting.

"Were you interested in that account of the Washington man who suddenly disappeared?"

"Well, I'd have been more interested in an account of a man who gradually disappeared."

Two Signs.

"To snuff a candle out accidentally is a sign of marriage."

"Yes, and turn down a lamp intentionally is a sign of courtship."

One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning.—Lawell.

His Athletic Neighbor.

A young man inmate of a boarding-house had been disturbed night after night by the boarder in the next room doing things with a punching bag he'd rigged up in the room some way. At breakfast each morning the young man would look over the crowd and wonder who the bag puncher might be, but there was no one in sight but a bunch of women and eight or ten men with narrow chests and retreating chins. One night he made up his mind to knock on the bag punching roomer's door and ask him to put over his exercise until daylight when all the world's awake. The man might be small enough to bulldoze even with all his athletics. The door opened and there, clad in a tight fitting red jersey, was a robust, buxom woman of perhaps thirty summers.

"And what did you say to her?" the young man was asked.

"I was so startled," replied he, "that I asked what afterward seemed to me the most natural request I could have made. I asked her if she'd lend me a couple of matches."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Persistency of Colds.

Why is it that we are so heavily subject to colds? Other epidemic diseases—measles, typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria—may get hold on us once and there is an end; it is not usual to have any of them twice. We brew in our blood immunity. The poison of the disease evokes in us its proper antidote. Our blood cells make a sort of natural antitoxin and keep it in stock, so that we are henceforth protected against the disease. A well vaccinated nurse, for example, works with safety in a smallpox hospital, where the very air is infective, but her blood is so changed by vaccination that the smallpox cannot affect her. By scarlet fever, again, we are, as it were, vaccinated against scarlet fever. The reaction of our blood against the disease immunizes us. No such result follows influenza or a common cold. We brew nothing that is permanent. We are just as susceptible to a later invasion as we were to the invasion that is just over.—London Spectator.
