SPEAKER JOE "CAME BACK"

BY DEMOCRATIC HELP

House Reverses Its Own Action and Supports Him

DEMOCRATS EXPLAIN THE FLOP

Cannon Repeats The Ruling Which at Last Session Was Overturned by Coalition of Two Parties.—Excuses Given for Action.

Speaker Cannon had his hour of triumph in the House Monday. Badly battered in the three day's storm that swept the House last March and tore from him much of the power that had been his, the Speaker "came back" in a way that brought a grim smile of satisfaction to his rugged countenance and left his ancient enemies, the "insurgents," decidedly discomfited. On Monday the Speaker was sustained by an overwhelming majority on a ruling which was identical with one he made last March when the House angrily overruled his decision through a combination of insurgent Republicans and Democrats. On the eve of their return to power, the Democrats voted almost solidly to sustain the ruling of the chair. The insurgents—27 of them—stood by their guns and fought the Speaker bravely. But robbed of Democratic support their battle was a losing one from the start. It was the first big political maneuver of the present session of Congress and the regular Republicans were elated over the results. They taunted the Democrats unceasingly for their change of front. The House was in its gayest mood and during the three hours that the fight lasted there was an almost continuous gale of laughter.

Taunted for his inconsistency, Representative Fitzgerald, of New York, one of the Democratic leaders in the rules fight, retorted that for the sake of consistency he did not propose to be foolish. When Champ Clark, of Missouri, slated to succeed Speaker Cannon, voted to sustain the chair on the same point of order which furnished the basis for the successful insurgent campaign of last March, the Republicans broke into storms of applause.

Representative Underwood, of Alabama, joined Mr. Fitzgerald in frankly admitting that he through the Speaker was right in his ruling last March, and that he ruled in line with the precedents of the House.

"But," said Mr. Underwood, "we voted to overrule the Speaker because we thought the time had come for a revolution and for the majority of the House to express its will. At that time there was reason to believe the rules committee was attempting to obstruct legislation. No such condition exists today, and consequently, there will be no revolution."

"Then when you voted to overrule the Speaker you admit you engaged in an unlawful enterprise," snapped Representative Mann, of Illinois.

"It was not unlawful, it was necessary," interjected Mr. Fitzgerald.

The insurgents refused to be downcast by their defeat. Twenty-six Democrats voted with them against the Speaker, and they claim these insurgent Democrats will be their allies in all future fights.

COURTS PROBING INTO LOS ANGELES EXPLOSION

Seven Persons Indicted by Grand Jury on Charge of Wholesale Murder.—Union Labor Under Suspicion.

Seven persons have been indicted on twenty-three counts by the grand jury that has been investigating the Los Angeles Times disaster on Oct. 1, 1910. No names have been made public.

Wholesale murder, the outcome of a dynamite plot, is understood to be the charge set forth in all the indictments.

The return of the indictments was a sequel of a disaster that excited the people of Los Angeles to a degree that for a few days bordered upon panic and resulted in the offering of rewards aggregating $100,000.

Union labor, which The Times and its proprietors had opposed, was injected into the situation, and when the special grand jury was impaneled on Oct. 25 it was immediately confronted with two conflicting theories.

One of these, supported by the findings of an investigating committee appointed by Mayor Alexander, was that The Times plant had been blown up by dynamite through a conspiracy. By the other, presented by a committee named by the State Building Trades Convention, then in session, was that a gas explosion had caused the wreck.

Three bags of registered mail containing $50,000, were stolen in San Francisco.

CROTHER'S SUGGESTS

That Less Money Be Used In Our Public Elections

GIVE THE POOR MAN A CHANCE

Cut Out Runners and Conveyances That Now Bring Out Vote.—Arouse The Sense of Duty in Voter.

"Election expenses should be absolutely limited by law to the cost of holding public meetings and the advertising of these same gatherings. A single committee from each party should have charge of the paying of these same expenses and should be made to account strictly for their expenditures."

This is the way Governor Crothers would have it. In the same line he also says:

"Another important amendment that is sadly needed," continued the chief executive, "is a prohibition of relatives and friends of candidates contributing to the campaign expenses. I am now speaking generally and with no candidates in mind. The good effect intended to be brought about by the enforcement of the present law, which limits the contributions by candidates is lost because friends and relatives of these same candidates may contribute with the consent of the law. Change this and prohibit such contributions and another important step in the obtaining of clean elections will be secured."

"Cut out the runners and conveyances that now bring out the vote. Awake the voter to his sense of duty and eliminate the candidate as an issue and substitute his policy. This alone will bring about relief from many of the ills of our present government. Cut out all party election expenses with the exception of the money spent to defray the cost of public meetings, and the relief now so badly needed will be obtained."

"To accomplish this eliminate the needless money that is now spent by the candidates and by the organizations themselves. The present law is well enough in its way, but it is not stringent enough. By eliminating the runners and conveyances that are now used to bring out the voters the latter will be properly awakened."

SCHLEY HAS FAITH IN COOK AND NOT AFRAID TO SAY SO

Writes of The Ungracious Controversy And Says He Believes Both Peary And Cook Reached Goal.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook has received the following letter from Rear Admiral W. S. Schley:

1,828 I Street, Washington, D. C., Jan. 7, 1911.

Dear Dr. Cook: I would assure you that I have never varied in the belief that you and Civil Engineer Peary reached the pole. After reading the published accounts daily and critically of both claimants I was forced to the conclusion from their striking similarity that each of you was the eyewitness of the other's success.

Without collusion it would have been impossible to have written accounts so similar, and yet in view of the ungracious controversy that has occurred since that view would be impossible to imagine.

While I have never believed that either of you got within a pin-point of the pole I have steadfastly held that both got as near the goal as was possible to ascertain, considering the imperfections of the instruments used and the personal errors of individuals under circumstances so adverse to absolute accuracy.

Again I have been broad enough in my view to believe that there was room enough at the pole for two, and never narrow enough to believe that only one man got there.

I believe that both are entitled to the honor of the achievement. Very truly yours, W. S. SCHLEY, Dr. Frederick A. Cook, New York City.

To Honor Lincoln.

A fitting memorial to the memory of Abraham Lincoln is contemplated in a Senate bill passed by the Senate at the instance of Senator Cullom. The bill provides that the monument shall be located in the District of Columbia and limits the cost to $2,000,000. President Taft and Senators Wetmore and Money and Representatives McCall and Champ Clark are designated as a commission to procure plans.

Oklahoma's Buttermilk Reception.

Out of deference to the well-known prohibition scruples of Gov. Lee Cruise, buttermilk was served at the inaugural reception held in his honor at Oklahoma City, instead of the customary punch. Thirty gallons of the beverage were required to supply the crowd which streamed through the reception rooms to shake hands with the new governor.

STANDARD OIL FIGHTS FOR LIFE

LEGAL BATTLE BEGINS IN U. S. SUPREME COURT

Pleaded Not Guilty to Government Charge of Being Most Colossal Monopoly in the Country

ARGUMENT IS THE CULMINATION OF LONG AND HARD FOUGHT CASE

Defendant Concern Represents $500,000,000 of Invested Money.—Trust Alleges Sixty-six Errors in the Decree From Which it Appeals.—Frank B. Kellogg Helps Government Side and John G. Johnson and John G. Mulburn Represent the Trust.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey—the Rockefeller holding company—Wednesday began its fight for life before the Supreme Court of the United States, pleaded not guilty to the government's charge of being the most colossal monopoly in the country, and through costly legal representatives entered into the final battle for the preservation of its corporate existence.

The argument in the case is the culmination of a long and hard-fought legal battle. It has been, all things considered, probably the most costly litigation in which the government has ever been involved. Attorney General Wickersham, in his argument on the same case last year before the court, declared it as his opinion that the Standard Oil suit was "probably the most important ever before the Supreme Court."

Additional interest centers in the argument begun Wednesday by reason of the fact that Justice Willis Van Devanter, one of President Taft's recent appointees to the highest bench, participated as a judge of the Eighth Circuit Court in a decision against the trust. Heretofore a justice of the court who is called upon to sit in an appeal of a case tried before him in a lower court has always refrained from participation in the review, but in the case of Justice Van Devanter, it was President Taft's desire that he should sit.

In brief, the charges which Attorneys John G. Milburn, of New York, and John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia, are seeking to controvert in the day and a half of argument allotted to them include a conspiracy alleged to have had its conception in 1870; a growth into gigantic proportions, fed by illegal rebate, fostered by unfair competition and made almost impregnable through domination of the market.

They must prove to the court, to secure reversal of the lower tribunal, that this growth has been the result of extraordinary business acumen, that the combination of interests was not a trust for evil, and that at present the Standard Oil Company does not control the oil business.

Against their arguments Frank B. Kellogg, special assistant to the Attorney General, and Attorney General Wickersham will relate an amazing story of high finance, market manipulation and oppression of competitors. Kellogg, who will make the main argument for the government, has been counsel in the two suits instituted by the government against the Standard Oil Company. He has been working to accomplish the downfall of the company since early in 1906, first as the government's mainstay in the famous $29,000,000 suit against the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, one of the subsidiary corporations, of the New Jersey Company and since November, 1906, in the present suit.

Attorney General Wickersham has been working on his argument ever since early in the summer. To him will fall the duty of "summing up" for the government. Kellogg is to make the statement following after John G. Milburn, who, as main counsel for the appellant has the right to open the case.

In November, 1906, the suit which is now before the highest court was filed before the United States Court at St. Louis. The bill of complaint covering 220 pages. It was a drastic arraignment of the corporation and its guiding spirits, John D. Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Oliver H. Payne, Charles M. Pratt and others. One hundred and forty three subsidiary corporations were named as codefendants. More than two years were occupied in the taking of testimony. John D. Rockefeller himself was among those examined.

On November 20, 1909, the Circuit Courts sustained practically every contention made by the government, and enjoined the Standard Oil Company, of New Jersey, from voting the stock in any of the subsidiary defendant companies, and from exercising any control over those corporations by virtue of the stock which it held. The subsidiary companies were enjoined from paying any dividends to the parent corporation.

From this decision the Old Trust appealed, alleging 66 errors in the decree. Briefly these were that the court erred in compelling nonresident corporations and individuals to appear at St. Louis; in overruling the plea of the defendants that the court had no jurisdiction; in finding that the 19 corporations absorbed by the Standard of New Jersey, in 1899, were then competitive; in finding that seven individual defendants, including John D. and William G. Rockefeller, H. M. Flagler and H. H. Rogers—in the 10 years prior to 1879 acquired competing companies to suppress competition—that the subsidiary companies were entirely controlled by the parent corporation; and that an exchange of stocks for an interest in a single corporation was illegal.

It is alleged that practically $500,000,000 of capital is invested in the various companies which the present suit seeks to dissolve.

PENNSYLVANIA GETS BACK $1,500,000 OF GRAFT

Constructors and Others Concerned in Keystone State Scandal Make Restitution.

Restitution to the amount of $1,300,000 and the surrender of warrants aggregating $200,000, upon which payment had been stopped, were made in the Dauphin County Court Tuesday by the men convicted or otherwise implicated by the State of Pennsylvania in the Capitol frauds.

The Commonwealth now agrees to drop all further criminal action against the defendants indicted, with the exception of the case of Joseph M. Huston of Philadelphia—under an indeterminate sentence of from six months to two years.

The new State Capitol with its rich furnishings cost approximately $13,000,000. Of this sum the State alleged it had been defrauded out of about $5,000,000. Attorney General M. Hampton Todd, who conducted the prosecutions, said that the total amount received Tuesday and through restitutions heretofore made by certain defendants was $1,595,740. To date the State has spent $1,079,961 in prosecuting.

Among the defendants who participated in the settlement were the following:

Estate of John H. Sanderson of Philadelphia, contractor for the wooden furnishings, &c., who died in New York after he had been convicted and was out on bail pending appeal.

Estate of W. L. Mathues of Media, a former State Treasurer, who died after settlement.

William P. Snyder, of Spring City, a former Auditor General, now serving two years in the penitentiary.

John M. Shumaker of Johnstown, a former Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings, now serving a two year's sentence.

Joseph M. Huston, architect of the Capitol and designer of its furniture, under sentence and awaiting disposition of appeal.

Frank G. Harris of Clearfield, a former State Treasurer, and E. B. Hardenbaugh of Honesdale, a former Auditor General, predecessors of Mathues and Snyder, who were sued civilly to recover money.

Former Congressman H. Burd Cassel of Marietta, Penn., acquitted of a charge of fraud in connection with a metal furniture contract.

The Sanderson estate surrendered warrants amounting to $108,879, and Huston's representative handed over warrants amounting to $50,000. There were two civil actions brought by the State. One was against the contractor for wooden furniture, Sanderson. On this the sum collected was $1,100,000. The other was against the contractors for metal furniture, in which Cassel was involved. On this contract $200,000 was turned back.

The Capitol fraud exposure was one of the indirect results of the political upheaval in Pennsylvania in 1905, after William H. Berry, a Democrat, was elected State Treasurer.

FREDERICK FINANCES

Expert Accountant's Report May Lead to Changes

BETTER BOOKKEEPING PLANNED

Audit of Accounts of City for Three Years Ending June, 1910 Has Been Made and Adopted by Board.

For more than a month an investigation into the finances of Frederick has been going on with the result that an audit of the accounts of the city for three years, from June, 1907, to June, 1910, has been made and adopted by the Board of Aldermen.

The investigation was originally suggested by Alderman Lewis A. Rice, who at a session of the board declared that the system of keeping the books of the city did not show where the funds went that were spent by the previous board, and incidentally hinted at extravagance. The expert, besides auditing the finances, has introduced a new system of bookkeeping.

The report states that the cash account was found correct. The tax books were gone over and compared with the assessors' books, with the assistance of Mr. H. Dorsey Etchison, one of the assessors. Here it was discovered that assessments amounting to $25,295.46 were omitted from the levies of 1908 and 1909 for various reasons.

The omission, as was all along understood, was due to an error in transferring property values from one account book to another. The auditor recommended that an assessor, with the assistance of the City Register, go over these accounts to check them off.

The report broadly hints that more insurance should be taken out on the City Opera House. The books give the estimated value of the property at $83,000, while the insurance amounts to but $20,000.

When the appropriation of $2,000 a year for each of the city fire companies was begun it was stipulated that they should render a report of expenditures. If the companies made reports, says the auditor, none could be found on record where they ought to be.

The centenary of the birth of Charles Sumner was observed in Boston.

$45,000,000 PENSION BILL PASSED IN THE HOUSE

Cannon Makes Speech For It And Forty Democrats Vote to Pass It.—Those Who Are Benefitted.

With the aid of not less than forty Democratic voters, the House to-day in an hour and a half passed the Sulloway Age Pension bill, requiring the annual outgo of at least $45,000,000. The measure will consume about every dollar that President Taft, by the most strenuous efforts at economy, has been able to save in public expenditures for the next year. The most spectacular incident of the day came when the Speaker called Mr. Olmstead of Pennsylvania to the chair, and, going to his seat on the floor, delivered one of his old-time exhortations to the House to support the measure.

As passed, the bill would give every man who served ninety days in the civil war or sixty days in the Mexican war, and who has reached the age of 62, a pension of $15 a month, or $3 more than now paid under the act of 1907. At 65 the bill would give the pensioner $20 a month; at 70 he would receive $25, and at 75 this would be increased to $36 a month.

After the speech the Speaker resumed the chair, and the bill was put on its final passage by a rising vote, which stood 212 to 62.

Among the Democrats who voted for the bill were Champ Clark, who will be the next Speaker; Underwood, who will be the majority leader of the House; Gen. Sherman of Ohio, author of the "dollar-a-day" pension bill, and Goulden of New York.

Robin's Sister in Toils.

Dr. Louise Robinovitch, sister of Joseph G. Robin, the New York banker who is under arrest in connection with the failure of the Northern Bank of New York, has been arrested for perjury in connection with the affidavit which she made in the civil proceedings to declare her brother incompetent to manage his affairs, and is now held in $3,000 bail to answer to the charge.

Camorra Society on Trial.

The trial of 32 members of the Camorra began this week at Viterbo, Italy. It is expected that the conviction of these men will break up the society which exists for murder and blackmail. There is a hope expressed that during the trial evidence will be brought forth that will throw light on the murder of Petrosino, at Palermo, Italy, in March of 1909.

THREATS USED IN LOBBY

LORIMER MEN ACTIVE

Senators Threatened With Other Investigations

MENACES ARE NOT EVEN VEILED

Chief Lobbyist Same Who Was Active Against Free Lumber During Recent Tariff Fight.—Approach Democrats and Republicans.

The report is very persistent that the friends of Lorimer, the Senator from Illinois whose election methods are criticised, are holding up members of the Senate for their vote on the question of Lorimer taking his seat. It is said that the same man who is credited with the collecting and handling of the Springfield bribery fund is the chief lobbyist at Washington. He and his lieutenant are trying to influence the action of Senators not only by argument but also by threats.

They not only ventured to assail the motives of Senators who are insisting that there shall be no action on the case by the senate without a full examination; they declared with specific emphasis that such Senators might find that Lorimer's was not the only election in which money had been used, and that investigation was a game which could be played in more cases than one.

A lobbyist of this variety attempted to carry his arguments further when he was cut short by the Senator to whom he was talking and told without ceremony to get out. Thereupon he flared up angrily and declared that there would be a great deal heard of the matter yet, and that Senators who voted against Lorimer could expect to have their own elections investigated and to be called upon to explain any use of money that might be found.

Much curiosity has been aroused in Washington, according to the correspondent for the New York Times, by this situation, for it is not easy to see on the surface—just where the value of one man comes in, especially when that man is Lorimer. It is true, of course, that when he was in the House his influence was worth more than his mere personal vote. But if he had ever had a higher value in the Senate than that of his personal vote that value has been destroyed by the scandal over his election, and now he counts only one and no more, on any roll call. But it is none the less true that nothing more energetic and scandalous in the way of a lobby has operated in Washington in many a day than the lobby now desperately endeavoring to save Lorimer's seat for him.

It is a fact which has occasioned some surprise in Washington, where the points of Lorimer's service in the House have been rather widely known, that the chief activity in his behalf now is shown by men connected with the Lumber Trust. The man who has made the most strenuous efforts in behalf of Lorimer heretofore is the same man who made himself conspicuous about the Capitol during the tariff fight, especially when the President was endeavoring to have lumber put on the free list.

The Prince of Monaco has issued a proclamation establishing a constitutional government.

INQUIRY INTO TRAVELING EXPENSES OF ROOSEVELT

Rainey Seeks Light on Circumstances Connected With Former President's African Trip.

The Rainey resolution providing for an inquiry into the question of Mr. Roosevelt's traveling expenses while he was President has been modified by another which has been referred to the Committee on Rules.

The modification is intended to widen the scope of the investigation by including the circumstances connected with Mr. Roosevelt's celebrated hunting trip to Africa, many of the arrangements for which were perfected in the last months of his term as President. There seems to be little or no prospect that the Committee on Rules will report the resolution, and as the parliamentary blockade of the calendar now stands there would hardly be any chance of the passage of any motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the resolution.

In the meantime Mr. Rainey, the author of the resolution, is daily receiving letters said to contain interesting information bearing on the general subject embraced in the inquiry.

Between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 will be carried in the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill which the House committee will report.

BILLBOARD TO TEACH TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTION

Twenty-Thousand Colored Posters to be Displayed in Next Three Months—Value of Donations $100,000.

During the next three months, the billboards of the United States will display 20,000 educational posters on tuberculosis, according to an announcement made to-day by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This will conclude the campaign begun a year ago, when the National Billposters Association donated free space to the tuberculosis cause, the Free Printers Association offered free printing, and nine paper manufacturers gave the paper for the posters. The combined value of these several donations for this three-month campaign is nearly $100,000.

The posters are in six different designs and are all printed in three colors. They are 7 feet wide and 9 feet high. Already nearly 2,500 of these posters have been hung on the billboards of 46 different cities, and it is planned to distribute 20,000 more before April 1st in over 400 towns and cities. Any anti-tuberculosis society in the United States may receive free of charge, except for transportation, as many of these posters as can be hung on the boards in its territory. The National Association with Tuberculosis Committee of the National Billposters and Distributors are conducting the campaign.

The posters show in graphic form how fresh air, good food, and rest cure tuberculosis; how bad air, overwork and closed windows lead to consumption; and how the careless consumptive menaces the health of his family by spitting on the floor.

In Maryland two hundred of these posters are being put up in Baltimore, and seventy-seven others are being distributed to bill posters in the following towns: Annapolis, Cambridge, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Havre de Grace, Hyattsville, Laurel, Rockville, Oakland and Salisbury, in each of which the posting company in co-operation with the national association is furnishing the bill board space and putting up paper gratuitously.

IRON COMPANIES MERGE TO ADVANTAGE OF FREDERICK

Pennsylvania Concern Through Influence of Board of Trade Consolidates With Frederick Works.

The consolidation of the Frederick Iron Works with a large Pennsylvania concern, which the Frederick Board of Trade has been trying to effect for some time, was practically assured Saturday, when the incorporation papers of the Morris Iron Company were filed for record in the County Clerk's office.

John Mitchell, Jr., Washington; Elmer P. Morris, East Orange, N. J., and William T. S. Diven, of Frederick, are named as the incorporators and directors for the first year. The company is capitalized at $175,000, divided into 1,750 shares at a par value of $100 each. Of this number 250 shares are to be preferred stock and 1,500 shares are to be common stock.

The office is to be located in Frederick. It is understood that the plant of the present iron works will be greatly enlarged and from the beginning the new industry will employ between 200 and 250 men, with a weekly pay roll of about $1,900.

The Pennsylvania corporation is the Elmer P. Morris Company, manufacturers of electrical supplies.

PLAN TO END COAL LAND CASE EMBODIED IN BILL

House Plan to Throw Cunningham Claims Into Court is Revealed Through Careless Promoters.

A plan to dispose of the troublesome Cunningham claims, by legislating them into the courts has become known through lack of caution on the part of its promoters.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming, introduced in the House last session a bill providing that claimants in land cases before the Department of the Interior might go to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. The bill provided only for appeals on questions of law, and in that form there would have been little opposition to it probably if it had ever come up for consideration. When reported from the Judiciary Committee an amendment was attached to the measure providing for appeals on matters of fact as well.

THOSE LONDON POLICEMEN BALKED BY BULLDOG

Twelve Of Them Have To Call Physician To Help To Get Rid Of Canine At Suicides Door.

These are trying days for the London police. A dozen of them were held at bay for five hours Tuesday outside a bedroom by a bulldog who was guarding the body of his master, who had committed suicide.

After exhausting their resources to capture or kill the dog, the police sent for a doctor. He poisoned some meat, which was thrown into the room through a hole in the door. Not until the animal was dead did the police enter the room. They then removed the body to a mortuary.

Taken in connection with the battle against two Anarchists a few days ago, in which hundreds of police and large detachments of soldiers took part, this incident has served to increase the ridicule to which the police are being subjected.

WASHINGTON'S NEW BUILDINGS TO COST $7,750,000

New York Architects' Plans For State, Commerce and Justice Departments Accepted in Competition.

It has been announced from Washington that three New York architects had won the $3,000,000 Government competition for the three new department buildings which are to be erected on Pennsylvania avenue facing the White House grounds. Arnold W. Brunner, a former member of the Art Commission of New York City, won the award for the State Department Building, to cost $2,290,000; Don Barber was chosen for the Department of Justice Building, costing $1,900,000, and the firm of York & Sawyer captured the big plum for the Commerce and Labor Building, the largest of the three, which is estimated to cost $3,450,000.

The Department of Commerce Building, the largest of the three, will occupy the center, flanked on one side by the State Department and on the other by the Department of Justice Building. The group will occupy the area bounded by Pennsylvania avenue, the Mall, Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. The length of the Commerce Building will be 503 feet, the Department of Justice Building will front 325 feet on Pennsylvania avenue and 300 feet on Fifteenth street, while the State Building will have the same frontage on Pennsylvania avenue and will be a trifle over 300 feet deep. The two end buildings will be three stories high, and the Commerce Building five stories. The Commerce Building will cover an area of 90,000 square feet, the State Building 72,000 square feet, and the Justice Building 57,000 square feet.

SERIOUS FIRE AND PANIC AT CINCINNATI

Several Persons Perished in Million-Dollar Fire.—Business Offices Made Temporary Hospitals.

For the second time within three weeks the city of Cincinnati has suffered from a severe fire. On Tuesday night flames destroyed the Chamber of Commerce Building and adjacent properties. A dozen firemen were injured and possibly several lives were lost not now known.

Only the bare walls of what was Cincinnati's most magnificent architectural building remain. The building had a valuation of $1,000,000, while the fixtures in the various offices were valued at $50,000.

The stocks of several business houses in the block were damaged, but the fire was confined to the Chamber of Commerce Building. Fully 5,000 persons were crowded directly outside the fire lines when the roof collapsed. Smoke and flying sparks filled the streets for two squares and a panic followed. Men and women fought to escape and many were trampled in the rush. Many sustained bruises and cuts; but no one was reported seriously injured.

Owing to the density of the smoke the police were powerless to cope with the situation for fully 10 minutes and nearby office buildings were turned into hospitals for the injured and shelter places for the panic stricken.

BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

Man Frightfully Injured Did Not Lose Consciousness.

With both legs broken, one arm crushed so badly as to require amputation and both eyes blown out, Frank Nichols, aged 40 years, unmarried, lies dying at a hospital in Chambersburg as the result of a dynamite explosion on South Mountain, where he was employed on the extension of the Chambersburg, Greencastle and Waynesboro electric railway from Pen Mar to Blue Ridge Summit. Surgeons say they do not see how Nichols can recover.

Nichols was blasting tree stumps at the Cascades. He had placed a charge in a hole when the fuse which he lighted dropped into a box containing 90 caps which exploded. He was hurled some distance.

Despite his frightful injuries he did not lose consciousness. He was carried on a stretcher to Pen Mar and thence on a car to Chambersburg.

SHAM ATTACK ON COAST BLOCKED BY NAVAL SCOUTS

Without Use of Wireless They Discover Fleet of Battleships.—Only Six Scouts Go Out to Sea.

The naval demonstration against the Atlantic Coast by the returning North Atlantic squadron, under command of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, has been defeated by the defending fleet commanded by Rear Admiral S. A. Stanton, in the opinion of the naval authorities. They learned to-day that the "enemy" had been discovered and located off the coast.

Rear Admiral Schroeder, with sixteen battleships, sailed from Europe ten days ago for Guantanamo, with orders to threaten the Atlantic Coast on the way, the game being to get as close to the coast as possible without being discovered.

Injunction Against Cigarmakers.

Judge Warner, of York county, Pa., granted a permanent injunction restraining the Universal Cigar Makers' and Packers' Union, with headquarters at Hanover, from using a label, declared to be an imitation of Cigarmakers' International Union label. Among those interested in the former union are mentioned Harry Snyder, V. J. Eckenrode and F. J. Sneeringer, manufacturers, at Two Taverns Adams County, Pa., and Harney and Emmitsburg, Md., respectively.

Elkins Left $20,000,000.

The will of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins was filed for probate on Saturday. The value of the estate, or its disposition, is not known, but is said to be worth between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

STATE ECONOMY.

The word "economy" has been made use of as a political campaign slogan on so many occasions and has been juggled in so many different ways by so many different aspirants for high State offices that neither the word itself or the person employing it in a political connection has been taken very seriously in late days. There have been exceptions, of course, and a few of these have, by their sincerity of purpose and by their insistency as well as consistency, made it quite plain that their conception of State government embraces something other than drawing a salary, something above large expenditures for "special" purposes and something higher than the constant maintenance of a clique of "willing workers."

One of these is former Governor Warfield who, while he was governor frequently did and ever since that time, has never ceased to express himself fully and emphatically about the wanton extravagance that has obtained in State government. Another conspicuous exception is Ex-Gov. Frank Brown who never allows an opportunity for just criticism about State extravagance to escape him. Governor Crothers is apparently devoting some attention to the matter also, realizing, as the people long since have realized, that there is the greatest room for reform in all departments under State supervision.

Nor has this criticism been made at random or in a wholesale manner. Specific instances and particular offices and commissions have been cited and practical remedies suggested and the methods recommended for adoption fully explained. Whether any of these will be heeded and followed during the remainder of the present gubernatorial term it is hard to tell; but it is quite within the range of probability that if a forceful and resourceful man of the people comes forward for governor and stands this time on the platform of economy in State administration he will receive the requisite number of votes to elect him.

IF IMPROVEMENTS KEEP UP.

Not many years from now—let's call it twenty, the changes one may note will be a plenty. Airships and auto cars, will be run by electric stars, and rapid rifle guns will shoot hot ice. Welsh rarebits will have fur around the corners; at funerals there'll be only jolly mourners. Bald men will have long hair, and there'll be no more hot air—won't that be nice? The cost of living will be down so far, every man will have a private Pullman car. The poor will have their way, eating fifteen meals a day, and sleeping sixteen hours every night. Mild peace will scatter over all the earth; of warlike words there'll even be a dearth, and arms and ammunition, will be sent straight to perdition, and soldiers will forget the way to fight. The farmer will have thirty crops a season, and they will thrive without a rhyme or reason. The corn will reach so high, it will punch holes in the sky, and cabbages will grow as big as ships. Hotels will be a hundred stories tall, with famous paintings covering every wall. The rooms will all be front, and each waiter'll do his stunt, without the slightest care or thought of tips. The college course will be but two months long, the knowledge will be pumped so very strong. Grand opera then will play, without a single cent to pay, and policemen will wear halos and gold wings. There'll be no courts or lawyers in those days; there'll be nothing but quite straight and narrow ways. Every grouch will wear a smile, and all life will be worth while, and filled with naught but very pleasant things.

If followed, the advice, "less talk and more work," offered by Gen. Lawrason Riggs, new president of the Baltimore School Board, is calculated to prevent any further trouble between teachers, principals and members of Baltimore's educational apparatus. "Less talk and more work" will solve a good many problems not confined to school boards.

THE irony of it! Right under an item in a Baltimore paper depicting marital infelicity and ending with these words: "Mrs. testified that she and her husband had separated three times in eleven years, and that it was impossible for them to be reconciled," appears another item with the caption, "Peace Congress Here."

COMMANDER SIMS is entitled to that reprimand. He, like some other naval officers have done in times past, instead of offering his host the neat little verbal bouquet approved by the Navy Department, presented a large and elaborate assortment of Sim's private stock of gladiolas. Hence the fall down.

"JUDGE'S Daughter Finds Bomb at Door," is the double heading of a Chicago dispatch to a Maryland journal. Which only goes to remind one that many a judge's daughter has found one of those things at her door—spelled bum, however.

NOT a vacant seat for that Democratic National Jackson Day jubilee celebration next Tuesday. Fourteen thousand dollars worth of harmony! That emolument ought to be sufficient to encompass a fair chunk of that desirable commodity, any way you look it.

Of course Admiral Schley believes in Dr. Cook, the artic explorer. The Admiral knows what it is to be up against it and then come out all right.

THE next thing that will happen to Hagerstown in the criminal line will be the larceny of that now celebrated Washington county jail.

IT is fast getting to be the case that unless a senator is "accused" of something nowadays he is not very much in the public eye.

YOU many pass all the laws about voting you will, but the sight of the long green works big wonders still.

THE CUMBERLAND MYSTERY.

The inquest in the case of Charles Edward Twigg and Mary Grace Elosser, who were found seated on a sofa, in the parlor of the residence of the young woman's father, at Cumberland, Md., dead from cyanide poisoning revealed one important fact which, while it does not decrease the mystery of the case, may suggest a clue to the solution of the mystery. Twigg and Grace Elosser were to have been married the next day. Twigg had called on his betrothed, and both seemed to be in good spirits. The woman had nearly completed her preparations for the wedding. A member of the family, entering the room in which they were supposed to be talking over their matrimonial plans, found their bodies. The hands of both were tightly clenched. The poison which killed them must have been taken in a liquid form. Clearly this was not a case of suicide, as death was nearly instantaneous, and if they had held glasses or bottles in their hands after death the hands would not have been clenched. No sinister fact has been divulged touching Twigg's courtship, or his relations with the family, except that he had first paid his addresses to the sister of Grace, May Elosser. There has been no evidence of trouble in the family for that cause. May seems to have accepted Twigg's transference of his affection philosophically.

But at the inquest Dr. Foard, the first physician who reached the house after the bodies had been found, testified that May fell in a convulsion in his presence, and that the convulsion indicated a mild form of cyanide poisoning. He stated positively that it was not an epileptic fit. The young woman herself testified to the convulsion, but declared, with much solemnity and some theatrical effect, that she had borne no ill-will toward her sister or Twigg, and knew nothing of their deaths until she was summoned from her own room upstairs by her mother's screams.

Clearly the theory of the prosecutor is that May Elosser administered poison to her sister and Twigg, in the guise of lemonade or some other refreshing drink, removed the glasses, and then attempted suicide. It is an easy theory to form, but one that requires much more evidence to sustain it than has yet been forthcoming. Cumberland's mystery has not been solved. Whatever the outcome of the inquiry may be, it will go on record as a celebrated case. There are a few confusing details. Twigg, for instance, has a dissolute brother, with whom he was on bad terms, who has declared that cyanide was used for spraying trees in the Twigg orchard and farm. This is flatly contradicted by two other brothers of the dead man. Twigg seems to have had no amatory entanglements. He was well-to-do and a good "catch."—New York Times.

Jeffries Says He Was Doped.

That James J. Jeffries entered the ring with Jack Johnson at Reno July 4 a drugged man and not one suffering from nervous collapse is the pith of a signed article by Barney Oldfield and which has been authorized by the defeated champion. Jeffries, however, would not allow all the details concerning the alleged drugging to be published at this time.

STATE MISCELLANY

Interesting Paragraphic News From Various Sections of Maryland.

Incendiary fires are again alarming the citizens of Annapolis. The fire on Wednesday following another blaze this week have put the authorities on edge.

The Frederick express from Washington ran into a bed of burning leaves nearly 1,000 feet long near Dickerson Station, on the Metropolitan branch, Monday evening, blistering the coaches and almost causing a panic among a number of the passengers.

Waldo C. Bailess, 7-year old school boy, was almost electrocuted last Friday in Hagerstown. He grasped a live wire and was thrown down and rendered unconscious. The wire the boy grasped was a piece of picture frame wire thrown over a guy wire of the street railway.

John Hamilton, John Henry and Frank Fryer, white prisoners in the Hagerstown jail for the action of the grand jury, the charge in each case being larceny, escaped by sawing through an iron bar in a window. With ropes made from blankets they reached the ground. They have all been captured.

A federal inspector visited Middletown, this county, recently to investigate the political activity of a government employe at the recent primary election fight of the Republican party. The officeholder is said to be Maurice Bowlus, a gauger, whose family resides at Middletown, where he is now a voter. Powlus is now stationed in Baltimore.

The National Slavonic Society of the United States for $70,000 cash purchased of J. Wilson Humbird, of Cumberland, 2,800 acres of land in St. Mary's county, Maryland, at the mouth of St. Mary's river, with a harbor and water front of three miles. It is the intention to erect a home for aged and infirm Slavs and for otherwise dependent members and their families.

E. D. Lizer, brakeman on freight train No. 301, of the Western Maryland Railway, was severely, though not dangerously, injured at the freight depot in Westminster, Saturday. The train was shifting cars and he was caught between one of them and a telegraph pole. He was taken to the office of Dr. L. K. Woodward, the company's surgeon in this city, where it was found that in addition to some severe scalp wounds and bruises his body was bruised and several of his ribs fractured. He is a resident of Hagerstown.

Jacob A. Trego, of Hagerstown, 53 years old, ended his life Saturday by firing a .32-calibre bullet from a revolver into his right temple while sitting in a chair in the City Hotel parlor. He and his wife had rooms at the hotel. He was removed to the Washington County Hospital, where he died three hours later without regaining consciousness. Justice Elhas B. Hartle decided an inquest was unnecessary. Trego was in the United States Army for many years. His last service was in the Seventh Infantry at Leavenworth, Kan. He drew a pension of $75 a month. He was obliged to use crutches. Rheumatism was contracted while in the army, and he was a very much afflicted man being a hopeless cripple.

Scarlet fever has again made its appearance at Western Maryland College Westminster. The authorities are alarmed by this second outbreak which has appeared among the students since the long Christmas vacation. There are six cases of fever in the school, which, though of a mild form, have created excitement among the student body. College opened on January 4, after being closed for five weeks because of scarlet fever. The first new cases appeared among the students on January 6. On that morning four of the students complained of being ill and appeared to have the same symptoms of those affected before the holidays. Dr. S. Luther Bare was summoned and pronounced the disease scarlet fever in a mild form. Two additional cases were diagnosed as fever on Monday.

The Old Village.

I've been back to the village, Tom; I've been around to see
The dear old town and all the folks that once knew you and me,
I thought I'd write and tell you, Tom, of some of them you know.
They haven't changed since you were here, some twenty years ago.

There's old Alonzo Wombat, Tom; you'll think of him, I vow.
He used to keep a meat shop then; he keeps a meat shop now.
And Abner Jinks, your old chum, Tom; he's Hetty Podsnap's beau,
Just as he always used to be, some twenty years ago.

I called on my old sweetheart, Tom; the girl I worshiped so;
She's still a blond, just as she was some twenty years ago.

But there has been one trifling change since happy days of yore;
For she was twenty-seven then, and now she's twenty-four.

EDITORIALS FROM MARYLAND EXCHANGES.

Trying To Please 'em.

A Daily News subscriber recently wrote to the business office of this paper threatening to cancel his subscription unless we "printed more foreign news," despite the fact that the Daily News gives its readers every day a full and complete resume of the world's doings in a much more complete form than any newspaper published here or in any city between Washington and Pittsburgh.

For further illumination on this subject, we might say this: Show us a successful editor, and we'll present him to you as an individual who can put it all over the politicians for cleverness, the diplomats for suavity and the hypnotists for persuasiveness. The hardest and at the same time most pleasant job in the world is that of a man who runs a newspaper; for he must please thousands of persons of both sexes, and all ages, social stations, politics, denominations and tastes in general—and he must do it every day. The preacher with a congregation of say a thousand members, finds it difficult to keep himself in favor with his parishioners, yet he is dealing with a public welded together by common beliefs and aims. The politician must do some swift side-stepping and lofty tumbling in order to avert a catastrophe, yet he has to go up against the people only occasionally and usually can avoid loaded subjects by sawing wood or going out of town until peace reigns again. But the luckless editor has a whole heterogeneous community for his parish and must deal with every issue that bobs up.

He is the most troubled over the making of a choice of reading matter. Some readers want racy news of the divorce court sort while others are offended by it. Some want plenty of religious matter while others dub it rot and shout for a couple of pages of sports. Give a column to description of a leading Catholic affair and some injured Protestant rises up to denounce the "Papistic tendencies of the press." Report a sermon by a Protestant minister on the Reformation and some angry Catholic declares he has been insulted. One reader wants to know why the Sam Hill we print those silly pictures and the next correspondent demands more of them. A thoughtful reader asks us to double the space devoted to editorials, then comes another with a statement that the present space might profitably be given over to something else. One subscriber wants more telegraph news while another suggests less of that and more local information. Always there is jealousy by political partisans. One institution that appeals to the public for support accuses us of showing favoritism towards another institution and then that other makes the same charge.

These things worry an editor until he has some years of experience; then they become a part of the necessary routine and his dealings with them become automatic. We do not mean to convey the idea that newspapers do not want their readers to let their wants known; for they do. Often a vigorous kick affords a valuable tip. The editor wishes to know the wishes of the public so that he may give each story a space commensurate with the interest in it. It is just as easy for him to give news of the political situation in England as of the result of a local basketball game. Personally, he doesn't care as long as the news is fresh and clean. We know an editor of a big paper who never reads a line of the sort of news to which it gives the most space for he doesn't know the difference between a forward pass and a half-nelson and doesn't want to know. Every well-conducted paper tries to please—and criticism, as well as compliments, help it to achieve its purpose.—Cumberland News.

Co-operation.

When Rural Delivery was first established in Carroll county, some years ago, there were many Special Agents working hard in order to straighten new ways in order to make them popular with the people, but very often propositions were met that no arguments, nor persuasion, could make acceptable, simply because the "free delivery" could not in all cases be made a "house to house" delivery—all could not be treated alike. One of these "specials" became noted for his use of the word "co-operate." When he had exhausted all other argument; he invariably concluded, "You must co-operate with the system."

The Christian Science Scare.

The rumors of the approaching reincarnation of Mary Baker G. Eddy, the founder of Christian Science, are so plentiful and so varied that nobody would be particularly surprised now if the announcement of its accomplishment should be promulgated to the world by the authorities of the Church in Boston she left headless. It is said that she had prepared her rebirth garments and they are now ready, in a bureau drawer, awaiting her second advent. It is not to be supposed that in her reincarnation she would bear any marked resemblance to her old physical self. Her former body is outworn. She could be reincarnated as a comely young woman.

Preposterous as all this gossip is, it is not much worse than and not nearly as dangerous to the welfare of society as some of the teachings of Christian Science. It makes one marvel over the fatuity, the ignorance, the survival of superstition in an enlightened age only if one is in a mood to be surprised by any such exhibition. Civilization and education are not yet supreme in this world.—New York Times.

And while there was manifested a pretty strong determination not to "co-operate," and while there still exists many cases in which there are real inequalities and objections, it is nevertheless apparent that the advice of this special agent was about the sum total of the best to be done considering the broadness and general satisfaction of the Rural Delivery system.

We need, after all, to do a vast amount of co-operating in this world, whether it pleases us or not. The most of us, no doubt, find means of doing so to our satisfaction and benefit; we "fall in" with the majority, even against our preferences, and in most cases are none the worse off. Even after a thing is done, not to our liking, we are apt to accomplish more by staying close to the thing objected to, watching it and perhaps shaping it, than by standing off and openly opposing.

At best, we must compromise, in a good many instances. Indeed, this is best, for our own single judgments are apt to be faulty; and in not always being able to have things our own way, we enforcedly receive the later benefits of co-operation—of the sounder judgment of the many, or at least the participation in results of the greatest benefit to the many, which is about all one is rightfully entitled to in the correct analysis of things of mutual interest.—Carroll Record.

Governor and Commissioners.

Governor Crothers has announced that the second annual meeting of the county commissioners of the whole State will be held in Baltimore, January 12. The comparison of notes and exchange of views possible at such a gathering ought to be very helpful, not only in the direct suggestions given but in a general broadening which comes from contact with many men engaged in the same work. Last year the county commissioners got together behind the assessment bill and as a consequence it was enacted practically without opposition. The legislature will not meet this winter, but there are many problems on hand, discussion of which should be helpful to those concerned. For instance, the Governor may receive benefit from a full and frank opinion from all the various boards of county commissioners upon the administration of the State roads.—Towson Union.

Constitutional Amendments To Be Voted Upon Next Fall.

Many persons are overlooking the fact that next fall two constitutional amendments must be voted upon by the people. A great many politicians have apparently forgotten this fact but it is true, and it means that the ballot will be more than usually cumbersome and complicated. One of these amendments is the suffrage amendment signed by the Governor at the time he vetoed the Digges disfranchising bills passed at the last session of the Legislature. This amendment provides that only Negroes who own $500 worth of property and have paid taxes thereon for two years prior to the election, or whose wives meet the same requirements, will be allowed to vote. The amendment will allow every white man, whether native or foreignborn, to vote without any property test. It does not provide an educational test for Negroes.

The other amendment is for increased representation for Baltimore in the Legislature. Under its provisions the city will have 6 State Senators and 35 members of the House of Delegates. Its present representation is 4 Senators and 24 members of the House.—Catonville Argus.

Threatened to Blow Up.

Littleman made up his mind that he was not going to be ruled any longer by his wife. So when he went home at noon he called out imperiously—"Mrs. Littleman!"

Mrs. Littleman came out of the kitchen with a dishcloth tied around her head and a rolling-pin in her hand.

"Well, Sir," she said, "what will you have?"

Littleman staggered but braced up. "Jane, I want you to understand"—and he tapped his breast dramatically—"I am the engineer of this establishment."

"Oh, you are, are you? Well William, I want you to understand that I," and she looked dangerous, "I am the boiler that will blow up and throw the engineer over into the next county. Do you hear the steam escaping, William?"

William heard it, and he meekly inquired if there was any assistance he could render in the housework.—Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

PATHS.

HE path that leads to a loaf of bread Winds through the swamps of toil, And the the path that leads to a suit of clothes Goes through a flowerless soil, And the path that leads to a loaf of bread And the suit of clothes is hard to tread.

And the path that leads to a house of your own Climbs over the bouldered hills, And the path that leads to a bank account Is swept by the blast that kills. But the men who start in the paths to-day In the lazy hills may go astray.

In the lazy hills are trees of shade By the dreary brooks of sleep, And the rollicking river of pleasure laughs And gambols down the steep; But when the blasts of Winter come The brooks and the river are frozen dumb.

Then woe to those in the lazy hills When the blasts of Winter moan, Who strayed from the path of a bank account And the path to a home of their own. These paths are hard in the Summer heat, But in Winter they lead to a snug retreat.

PILES OF GOLD COIN STOP RUN ON BANK

New York Institutions Make a Showing of Cash that Gave Scared Depositors New Assurance.

The failure of the Carnegie Trust Company on Saturday morning in New York, started a run on the Madison Trust Company and the Twelfth and Nineteenth ward banks. Heavy withdrawals were made on Saturday and the run continued on Monday but the sight of cash—great stacks of it heaped everywhere—to meet all demands, caused a gradual weakening of the distrust felt by depositors.

The day was a reminder of the famous faith cure syndicate organized at a time of financial stringency several years ago. The members of the syndicate, J. P. Morgan & Company, the National Bank, the National City Bank and other big and strong financial institutions announced publicly that they had raised $20,000,000 for the relief of the money market. Interest rates at once went down. Money that had been hidden came out and the syndicate was not called upon to contribute a dollar. So to-day, stocks went up and money rates went down and the bankers who guaranteed assistance were not called upon.

Gettysburg Population.

The Census Bureau has announced the official population of Gettysburg, Adams county, Pennsylvania. The population in 1910 is 4,030; in 1900, 3,495 and in 1890, 3,225. The increase is 535.

JUMPING AT CONCLUSIONS CONCERNING THE MAINE

Discovery of Coal and Human Bones in Mud Under Vessel Leads to Wild Conjecture of Officials.

The United States battleship Maine, destroyed in Havana harbor in February, 1898, with a loss of many lives, was blown up by an internal explosion, and when the ship is raised it will be shown that the Spaniards in Cuba had absolutely nothing to do with the destruction of the vessel. This is the opinion of officials of the War Department, based upon information conveyed to them by army officers engaged in the work of raising the shattered hull.

Persons who have arrived in Washington recently, and have an intimate knowledge of the work of raising the battleship, it is learned, agree that the destruction of the Maine was due to the explosion of one of the air-tight compartments used for the storage of ammunition. The theory is borne out, it is claimed, by the evidence already developed. It has been found that in the mud and silt surrounding the hull of the Maine there is a great quantity of coal. Human bones have also been picked up outside the hull. This, it is believed, establishes that no outside force could have been used to blow up the vessel.

JUST A REMINDER.

Subscribers for THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE are as a rule—and it is a pleasure to state the fact—very punctual in paying their subscription bills.

Many pay them in advance; others remit the very day their subscriptions fall due. It happens every now and then, however, that some overlook the matter—not intentionally, and not from indifference. They simply forget it.

To the latter this notice is intended to appeal. It is not a dun, simply a reminder made necessary by the ruling of the Post Office Department.

The reason for it has been fully explained and it is taken for granted that all who are still in arrears will be courteous enough to settle promptly.

Mrs. Charles Cline, formerly of Hagerstown, but now of New York City, and Miss Teresa Hopp, of Hagerstown, spent several days in Emmitsburg.

STOCK SALE AUTHORIZED

Frederick Railroad Company Can Take Over Gas Company.

Emory L. Coblenz, president of the Frederick Railroad Company has obtained permission from the Public Service Commission to issue $40,000 worth of preferred stock to take over the Frederick Gas and Electric Company.

Some time ago the railroad asked for authority to issue $72,000 worth of preferred stock and 167,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds. Included in the preferred stock was the $40,000 necessary to secure the Frederick Gas and Electric Company. The remainder of the money was to be used in electrifying the road from Frederick to Thurmont and in providing car barns, repair shops, and terminal facilities.

Last month permission was given to issue the stock and bonds asked, with the exception of the $40,000 with which to buy 1,736 shares of preferred stock and 2,265 shares of common stock of the Frederick Gas and Electric Company, this issue being held up for further investigation.

The railroad company is required to report the sale of the stock authorized, the terms of the sale and the amount realized.

Letters To The Editor.

[The Editor would have it understood that he is not responsible for the views expressed in communications addressed to him and published in THE CHRONICLE.]

No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

FAIRFIELD, PA., Jan. 9, 1911.

MR. EDITOR, Dear Sir:—In last week's issue of THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE we noticed a letter written by "Alpha" concerning the matter of our neighbors sending to distant firms or catalogue houses for their supplies. Very well—one side of a story always appears to be true—until you hear from the other side.

Now, here is our proposition: If "Alpha" will condescend to meet us in joint debate before the public we'll see how many batteries we can line up on the side of the defence. If he agrees to accept the challenge we'll appoint our conferees who will meet his and arrange for the time and place of holding the debate. LIBERTY.

[We would suggest that the proposed debate take the form of a series of letters, pro and con, on the subject referred to, and that the same be sent to THE CHRONICLE. The columns of this paper are always open for a dignified discussion of subjects that are of interest to the people, and we believe that both "Alpha" and "Liberty," or any others holding the view advocated by either, would have a larger audience, so to speak, than at a debate in some public hall.—EDITOR.]

Arrest of Clarence Reese.

"Clarence Reese," of near Emmitsburg, was arrested in Gettysburg as he was about to board a freight train on the charge of burglary. It is supposed that it was he that robbed the saloon of George W. Kettoman near Pen Mar last September. Until this week he has alluded arrest.

No one by the name of "Reese" is known in this community, so it is judged that either an assumed name has been used, or there is a mistake in the address.

Reese is now in jail for twenty days for stealing rides on freights. After he has served this sentence he will be taken to Hagerstown to answer the charge of robbing the Lake Royer saloon.

DRY FARM DECALOGUE.

Ten Commandments Worth Reading by Farmers of All Sections.
Professor W. C. Palmer, agricultural editor of the extension department at the State Agricultural college of North Dakota, gives the following "ten commandments of dry farming."

First.—Thou shalt plow deep. Deep plowing permits rain to penetrate the soil easily and without run off; also provides more feeding space for plant roots and makes available more plant food.

Second.—Thou shalt keep the surface soil loose.

This prevents soil moisture from evaporating and conserves the rainfall. Harrow grain after it is up two inches or use weeder.

Third.—Thou shalt cultivate level.

Level soil affords the least exposure to the air and will take in rainfall faster than ridged soil.

Fourth.—Thou shalt summer fallow.

This should be practiced in all districts where the annual precipitation is less than fifteen inches, as it conserves two years' rain for one crop and kills weeds and plant diseases. Land should be cultivated. Where the yearly rainfall is more than fifteen inches corn is as good a preparation for a crop as the bare fallow.

Fifth.—Thou shalt add organic matter to the soil.

Stable manure is the best form. Plow weeds under while green.

Weeds consume moisture and plant food, crowd plants, shade crops, retard plant life and make work.

Seventh.—Thou shalt grow early maturing crops.

Conditions for growing are best during the early summer. Winter grains are better than those sown in the spring.

Eighth.—Thou shalt grow corn every three to five years.

The cultivation required for corn saves moisture and kills weeds and plant diseases. Corn is the best preparation for a grain crop; it produces more food and fodder per acre than other crops. Do not hill up the corn, as this wastes the moisture.

Ninth.—Thou shalt grow clover or alfalfa every few years.

Rotating with these grasses adds fertility and organic matter to the soil, kills weeds and diseases of plants and produces an excellent hay and valuable seed crops.

Tenth.—Thou shalt keep stock.

The most profitable way of marketing grain and fodder is through stock, which produce the manure necessary to the soil and bring prosperity and plenty to the dry land farmer.

The appearance of the farm often reflects the character of the owner.

FIGHTING THE CLUB ROOT.

Directions For Combating Destructive Disease of Cabbage.

Club root is one of the most destructive diseases affecting plants of the cabbage tribe. It is due to a slime mold disease which lives over as a saprophyte in the soil. The infection is subterranean; hence spray measures are of no avail. Crop rotation is the best means of avoiding this pest. Set only healthy plants. Infested land should not be set again in cabbage for several years.

Do not use manure containing cabbage refuse. Infection may be carried on plows and hoes which have been used in fields of diseased cabbage, therefore clean all implements and dip them in a 2 per cent solution of carbolic acid. If for any reason it is necessary to grow cabbage or allied crops continuously on the same land and the soil becomes infected, it may be largely disinfected by an application of caustic lime at the rate of two to five tons per acre at least six months before the land is set to cabbage. The seed bed should be treated in the same way.—Circular of Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station.

Grass Lands In Grain.

Humus making crops are such grasses as timothy, clover, blue grass, broom grass and alfalfa. It has been found grass land plowed is under better conditions of moisture and freer from weeds than land that has grown grain continuously.

WORK FOR TEAM OF OXEN.

Connecticut Woman Sees Many Virtues In the Patient Animals.

For the small farmer as well as for the man who farms on a larger scale I believe oxen are well nigh indispensable on a New England farm, says a Connecticut woman correspondent of the Rural New Yorker. If a man cannot afford as large and heavy a team of horses as he needs he will do well, instead of buying a cheaper span of horses, to invest in a yoke of working cattle, with a horse for driving besides. The oxen will do all the heavy work and do it well, for, although they are slow, they are sure. The horse can be used for work that the oxen cannot do, such as on the mowing machine, rake, cultivating, etc. In our hill country oxen are constantly proving their value. One large farm has two yoke of cattle, which haul all the wood from the woods over rough, stony lands and apologetic roads. They also haul heavy loads of grain and coal from the station, hay and ice in the season and are being used constantly the year around.

They do not, as a rule, require shoeing when used on the farm alone, but when taken upon the roads they require shoeing if their feet are to be kept in good condition. They require the following ration of grain, which keeps them in first class working order: Two quarts of bran mixed with the same amount of cornmeal or two quarts of shorts mixed with the same amount of meal, fed twice daily, night and morning, making eight quarts a day for each ox. A large forkful of hay given three times a day—morning, noon and night—with plenty of fresh drinking water, constitutes the best bill of fare for a yoke of oxen. Oxen, of course, should receive their ration of salt also. Many farmers believe that their work in the long run is more profitable than that of horses, for unless tuberculosis gets in the herd they are not as liable to spells of sickness as horses are, they have greater strength and more endurance and are not afflicted with "nerves," therefore less liable to take fright and smash things generally. They are not as expensive to keep as horses, and, besides, when their days of working are over they can be fattened easily and die on the right side of the ledger, but when the horse is dead he is dead and a dead loss besides. Since time immemorial the ox has been the faithful servant of man. We do not care for him as we do for the horse. We do not regard him with the same affection nor give him credit for as much intelligence, but nevertheless in these days of aeroplanes and automobiles the ox maintains his place as a profitable and faithful servant of the farm.

WILL JONES The Merchants and the Wise Man

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Wise Man And the Camel

JACK and Evelyn had seen a camel at the circus, so daddy did not need to tell them what sort of animal it is. But they did not know until daddy told them one evening that in some countries camels are used to carry people and things.

"Once upon a time," began daddy, "there was a wise man traveling along in the desert, when he met a party of men who seemed to be searching for something. When he asked them what they sought they said:

"We have lost a camel."

"Was he blind in his right eye and lame in his left fore leg?" the wise man asked. "He was," said the men.

"Was one of his front teeth missing?" was the next question. And the answer was again, "Yes."

"The next question was, 'Was he not loaded with wheat on one side and with honey on the other?'"

"He was," said the owners of the camel.

"Well," said the wise man, "I have not seen your camel!"

"That made the men very angry. They did not believe him and brought him before a judge. When the judge heard how the wise man had described the camel perfectly he believed with the owners of the camel that the wise man had seen the missing animal.

"How did you know the camel was blind in his right eye?" asked the judge.

"Because I saw that the grass was eaten on one side of the road only," said the prisoner.

"How did you know he was lame in his left fore leg?"

"Because I saw the footprints of a camel, and one was fainter than the others."

"But how did you know that the animal had lost a front tooth?"

"And the answer was, 'Because wherever the grass had been eaten a small tuft was left untouched in the middle of the bite.'

"But," said the camel's owners, "how did you know that the animal was loaded on the one side with wheat and on the other with honey?"

"That is a very easy question," answered the wise man. "I noticed that the ants were very busy on one side of the road carrying away grains of wheat, and the flies were buzzing around on the other. And now let me tell you that your camel is not far from where you found me. There were no tracks on the road either in front of or behind his tracks, so he has strayed away only a short distance from the road." And, sure enough, they found the camel near the place where they had met the wise man."

Mated.

Any one with half an eye could see that he was madly in love with her, but he had not courage enough to put his fate to the test. But she was a young lady who knew her way about, as the saying goes, and one night she suggested a game of chess. He, poor fellow, eagerly swallowed the bait. If he was a novice at lovemaking he was certainly no novice at chess, and he soon had the fair maid hopelessly beaten.

"Ah!" he exclaimed as he put her in a hopeless corner. "You're in a tight corner now, Miss Mabel."

She looked at him with those beautiful eyes of hers and then said:

"I hadn't noticed any compression, George. Have I no escape?"

"None whatever," said the guileless George. "I shall mate you next move."

"Oh, George!" said she, with a becoming blush. "Er—hadn't you better ask father first?"

They are married now, and George often wonders if she is as dense at chess as she would make him believe.

Lincoln With His Children.

It was a frequent custom of Lincoln, this of carrying his children on his shoulder. He rarely went down street that he did not have one of his younger boys mounted on his shoulder, while another hung to the tail of his long coat. The antics of the boys with their father and the species of tyranny they exercised over him are still subjects of talk in Springfield. Mr. Roland Diller, who was a neighbor of Mr. Lincoln, told one of the best of the stories. He was called to the door one day by hearing a great noise of children crying, and there was Mr. Lincoln striding by with the boys, both of whom were wailing aloud. "Why, Mr. Lincoln, what's the matter with the boys?" he asked.

"Just what's the matter with the whole world," Lincoln replied. "I've got three walnuts and each wants two."—From Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln."

Paying For Extras.

In one of the luxurious golf club houses in the south of England a visitor approached the steward and asked for a luncheon ticket.

"Five shillings," said the official.

"That's rather a lot, isn't it?" inquired the visitor.

"A lot? Think of the cost of this club. See those pictures? They're worth thousands of pounds. And those tapestries? Their value is simply enormous."

On the following day the visitor again asked for a luncheon ticket and tendered half a crown.

"I've already told you, sir," said the steward. "that the charge is five shillings."

"Yes, I know," was the reply, "but I only want half a crown's worth today. I saw the pictures and the tapestries yesterday."—World of Golf.

Waste of Energy.

"You never change your mind about anything, do you?"

"What's the use?" rejoined the egoist. "I found years ago that I was just as liable to be wrong the second time as I was the first."—Washington Star.

The Elopement.

Muriel—When you eloped with George, did you leave a note telling your people where you had gone? Gabrielle—Why, of course. If I hadn't, how would papa have known where to send us any money?—Illustrated Bits.

The Attraction.

"Miss Skylee appears to have lost her attractiveness for the gentlemen," said one girl.

"Oh, no," replied the other; "she didn't lose it. Her father lost it on the Stock Exchange."

A good and faithful judge prefers the honest to the expedient.—Horace.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Becoming Colors Milady Should Wear. Glove Hints.

The blond with the pink and white, golden or golden brown haired type can wear with success all white furs, all black furs and, where the eyes are dark, chinchilla and blue fox.

The suitability of the fur pelts must be carefully studied and considered if one would appear at her best in furs, for furs either make or mar one's costume.

The wide brimmed hat of soft felt, silk beaver or velvet, poked and pinched in here and there to make the lines becoming to the face, is both artistic and smart.

For young girls coat sleeves are all long, no matter how elaborate the model of the jacket, and their dress sleeves are most of them full length as well.

French designers are using opossum—picking out the palest, most delicate looking skins—in place of chinchilla and are making of it collars to coats and borders to skirts. By carefully picking the skins it is possible to achieve quite a dainty effect with opossum.

The collar of generous size and the round big muff make a combination that is exceedingly smart this season. The set illustrated is easy to make, and it can be used for fur, plush, velvet and other suitable materials.

FUR FASHIONS.

Heads, Tails and Whole Skinned Fur Pieces Barred This Season.

There is a marked tendency among well dressed women this season to do away with heads, tails, paw and whole skin pieces in furs and to replace them with broad bands of fur trimming on the hems and overskirts and by scarfs and muffs of fur made with the addition of some material. Black monkey fur, for instance, is thus used on black velvet with which are to be worn muff and scarf. The muff is made of two wide, large flat circles of monkey fur, separated by a four inch flat band of black liberty satin ribbon.

Skunk, mink, Australian opossum and lynx are all employed in the making of the new neckpieces this winter.

Moleskin has acquired a new popularity and is used not only in coats, but also in neck furs and muffs.

Caracal in white, gray and dark brown, in fawn and in even more unusual tones replaces in many instances the black caracal.

So broad and long and warm are some of the new scarfs or shawls, as they are called, that women do not wear any other wraps with them.

The simple waist that is cut in one with the sleeves in oriental style is the most fashionable of the season. This one may be made just as illustrated or with the yoke making it high at the neck, or it may be made low neck and without the undersleeves.
