On November the 1st, 1909, this Bank increased its interest rate to Four (4%) per cent. per annum on all its special interest bearing deposits, said deposits to remain in all other respects subject to the provis-ions of the contracts under which they were made.

Referring to the above notice, it is not necessary for any depositor to present his or her book to have any change made. The 4% rate, will, of course,o be paid on new deposits made of the same class.

Applies to Every Town.

The best man we have in our town for the general good of the town is the one you will always see on the front seat in the progressive "band wagon." He is the first one to extend an open ord. and warm hand to greet the stranger and welcome him to the best town in the State. He will resent an insult to our town as quickly as he would a slur at a member of his family. He very politely invites the chronic croaker to 'move on." He is ever ready to give his just proportion to public enterprise. He talks up our town at home and abroad and believes it the best place upon God's green earth in which to live and desires to be buried here when he dies. It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this col-umn should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contri-butions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

E. H. S. 1912 Class Social.

The home of Miss Edith Ohler near Four Points was the scene of the second 1912 class social of the year on last Friday evening. The Juniors, although they are the smallest class in the High School have cultivated a loyalty to class and school that is plainly evident upon such an occasion. Walter and Clarence Ohler and Guy Baker were most welcome guests of the class and added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Various games were indulged in. The music of the evening was furnished by Miss Mary Mondorff and Miss Edith Ohler, two young ladies of 1912 who played a duet in a most pleasing way.

At 11.30, the class sat down to a heavily laden table of all the dainties of the season, prepared by that kindliest of hostesses, Mrs. G. A. Ohler. The class had not words enough to express a due appreciation of this and were compelled to call on the Squire, Luther Hahn to help them out of their predicament. It was very soon after this repast that the young folks bid each other good-night and left for their different homes, all having spent a the precaution mentioned above was unnecessary. Many farmers believe that their autumns are so dry that such care is superfluous. Seed corn in every locality gathered at ripening time will be benefited by drying as suggested. If left in the husk long after ripening it may sprout or mildew during warm, wet weather or become infested with weevils.

The vitality of seed is often reduced by leaving it in a sack or in a pile for even a day after gathering. During warm weather, with some moisture in the cobs and kernels, the ears heat or mildew in a remarkably short time.

The best possible treatment immediately after gathering is shown in the illustration. Binder twine will support fifteen or twenty ears on a string arranged in the manner illustrated. Ordinarily the best place to hang these strings of ears is in an open shed or loft.

Permanent seed racks, with a separate compartment for each ear, are more convenient than the use of binder twine, and when they are located in a dry, breezy place the ears dry success fully

At one such banquet, graced by the presence of the royal pair, a lemon was introduced as an elegant novelty. An Architectural Curiosity.

There are many churches throughout England which are without tower or spire, but there are few churches which can boast of having a tower and spire side by side. One of these is the parish church of Ormskirk, in Lancashire. The tower is built over the porch at the west end, and the spire is placed as closely as possible to it. The origin of this architectural freak has not been ascertained, but there is a tradition to the effect that when Orme, the Saxon pirate from whom the town derives its name, decided to construct a kirk, or church, as an explatory offering for his evil deeds his two daughters quarreled over the design for the structure. One determined to have a tower; the other was equally resolved to have a steeple. As neither of them would give way the pirate chief acceded to both their wishes, and the curious may see the tower and spire still keeping watch side by side on the surrounding coun-

The attache of a European embassy was very much attracted by a western girl of great beauty and still greater wealth at a summer resort, and in order to interest her deeply he fell into the habit of discoursing at length on his family tree and telling her that ancestry was of great value to a man. The girl from the west had been brought up in a section of the country where every man was accepted for what he was and not because of what his ancestors had been or done. She began to be bored by the attache's lectures on pedigree.

Contempt For the House of Commons. There is nothing noble or exalted in the history of the house of commons. Indeed, a devil's advocate had he the requisite talent could easily deliver an oration as long and as eloquent as any of Burke's or Sheridan's, taking as his subject the stupidity, cowardice and, until recent times, the corruption of the house of commons. I confess I cannot call to mind a single occasion in its long and remarkable history when the house of commons, as whole, played a part either obviously heroic or conspicuously wise, but e all of us can recall hundreds of occasions when, heroism and wisdom being greatly needed, the house of commons exhibited either selfish indifference, crass ignorance or the vulgar-

Dynamite. The action of dynamite is comparatively precise. The firing point is 180 degrees C. At that temperature it either burns or explodes. If free from all pressure, jar, vibration or force of any kind it merely burns. That is how it comes about that one can burn dynamite safely in the hand if all conditions be wholly favorable. But any least vibration from such requisites will cause an explosion, which is an excellent reason for avoiding too intimate ventures with the compound. When ignited in small quantities in the open air dynamite does nothing more startling than to burn fiercely. When, however, larger quantities are ignited explosion almost invariably results, as the temperature is raised by the flames.-Chicago Record-Herald.

Old Time Carving.

An ancient book on carving says that the only meats that were "carved" were mutton and beef. You had to "break a deer, rear a goose, lift a swan, sauce a capon, spoil a hen, frush a chicken, unbrace a mallard, unlace a cony, dismount a heron, display a crane, disfigure a peacock, unjoint a bittern, untack a curlew, alaye a pheasant, wing a partridge or a quail, mince a plover, thigh a pigeon or any other small bird and border a game pie."

The Swedish Almanac.

The Swedish name almanac differs from English almanacs in giving, besides the usual information, a Christian name for each sex for every day of the year. The names set forth have to receive the approval of the king. The object aimed at is to secure a greater choice of names for parents and to avoid the endless repetition of a dozen or so names. A similar name almanac is issued under royal authority in one of the German states .-- London Graphic.

The Deep Skirt Hem Still a Favorite Finish-Practical School Dress. The deep hem turned on the right side is a favorite finish to the skirt. As a rule, the skirt is slightly fuller than the hem which holds it in place, and sometimes the hem is heavier material than the gown itself.

Daddy's Bedtime The Sleeping Beauty JONES Bent Over to Kiss Her"

NCE upon a time, many years ago," began daddy one evening, "ther? was a king who had a baby daughter whom he loved very much. When it was time for her to be christened he made a grand feast and invited all the chief people of the kingdom. He asked also seven fairies, all he could find in his kingdom, and for each fairy he had made a knife, fork and plate of pure gold.

After the feast began in walked an old fairy who had been thought dead and for whom no place had been set. The king had a place made for her, but he could not give her gold dishes. That made the old fairy angry. One of the other fairles overheard her muttering to herself, so after the dinner the young fairy hid behind a curtain to see what the old fairy would do.

"After the feast all the fairies gave gifts to the little princess. One gave her beauty, one gave her a sweet temper, and so on. Six of them had spoken. Then the old fairy stepped forward and said:

"'When the princess is fifteen years old she shall cut her finger with a spindle and shall die of the wound."

"Every one was shocked, but the young fairy who had hidden herself stepped out and said:

"'Instead of dying the princess shall only fall into a deep sleep for 100 years. Then a prince shall come to wake her.'

"The king ordered all the spindles sent out of the kingdom, but it happened as the old fairy had said. The princess found an old woman spinning in a tower and on taking the spindle into her hand she cut her finger and immediately fell into a deep sleep. And not only that, but all the people of the palace and everything else that was living there also fell asleep at once, just as they were. Around the palace grew a thick forest, filled with thorn bushes.

"A hundred years passed, when one day a handsome young prince saw the thick wood and asked about it. He was told the story of the sleeping princess, but was warned not to try to get through the woods as the thorns would catch and hold him fast until he dled, as they had done to other princes before But this prince was not afraid and rode boldly at the woods.

"Then a strange thing happened. As the prince went on the trees and the thorn bushes all parted before him. He went on to the palace, wondering greatly to see all the people and animals sleeping so soundly, until he reached the room where the princess lay asleep. He thought she was so beautiful that he bent over her to kiss her, and the kiss awoke her. 'I have waited long for you, my prince,' she said. And then every one else in the palace woke also. Later the prince and princess were married and became king and queen of the prince's country.'

"That's right. Just at present I'm down pretty low because I'm hard
