NEW SITUATION IN SENATE

DEMOCRATIC CONTROL

Insurgents Help in Over- throw of Regulars

FAR REACHING CONSEQUENCES

Its Effects Will be Felt in Legislation,
In the Line Up During Long Session of Congress and in the Campaign Next Year.

It is the consensus of opinion in the National Capital that the events of the past week have made the tariff the issue to be fought out by the two great parties in the electoral campaign of 1912, and have also made it likely that a general revision of the tariff will be undertaken during the present extra session of Congress.

A new situation was precipitated by the Insurgents of the Senate when during a prolonged session on the evening of June 20th they yielded to the jibes and charges of inconsistency hurled at them by the Democrats and, joining with the latter, overthrew the program of the Regulars and by a vote of 38 to 18 instructed the heretofore powerful Finance Committee discharged from further consideration of the bill revising the wool schedule which was passed by the Democratic House. Senators Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Brown, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Dixon, Gronna, Jones, Kenyon, LaFollette, Nelson, Poindexter, Townsend and Works caused the control of the Senate to pass out of the hands of the Republican majority for the first time since the Cleveland Administration. Several of these stated openly that they would join with the Democrats in bringing about a general revision. On the following day Senator Penrose, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported the bill unfavorably and it may now be taken up by the Senate at any time.

This action of the Insurgents is fraught, in the opinion of those at the Capital, with more far reaching consequences than any that has taken place in Congress for many years. More important immediate results have been brought about by the action of a single day on many occasions. Laws that meant much to the development of the country have been enacted and stirring scenes have taken place in both House and Senate, but never in the recollection of the old timers has one day brought about such a change without a general election taking place. Its effects will be felt in the legislation enacted at the present session, in the line up during the next and long session of Congress, in the nominating convention in the campaign and on election day of next year.

PELLAGRA AND COTTON SEED TOO CLOSELY RELATED

Dr. Mizell Advances New Theory For Spread of the Scourge Which Affects 50,000 Georgians.

The Journal-Record of Medicine for June contains an article on Pellagra contributed by Dr. George C. Mizell, of the Johnston and Mizell Sanitarium, Atlanta, Ga. Miss Mae Kerrigan, formerly of this place, is head nurse at this institution.

Dr. Mizell upsets several theories concerning this disease which in Georgia has assumed the proportions of a plague. Instead of laying the blame for the malady to the eating of spoiled corn or other vegetables he would have the cause fastened on the consumption of olive oil, lard and all the more expensive oils that are adulterated. It is of interest to know, he says, "that the cotton seed industry parallels the development of pellagra in the United States. Occasional cases may have occurred before this period from eating lard obtained from hogs fattened on cotton seed or through eating adulterated olive oil. (It is here necessary to mention that hogs may be fattened on cotton seed if the seeds are properly prepared. Hogs so fattened in the fall of the year must be killed the following winter or they will die the next summer. Lard rendered from these hogs is of the same chemical composition as cotton seed oil.)"

"Pellagra is a disease due to eating semi-drying oils in quantities that cannot be normally disposed of."

Root's Amendment Defeated.

The amendment to the Reciprocity Bill was defeated in the Senate and the way is clear for the passage of the bill unamended but the date of the vote is problematical.

No more drinks will be served at the bars of Pittsburgh clubs after 1 a. m. This order is due to efforts of wives and mothers of members.

MR. BAKER TALKS POLITICS TO SCHOOL TEACHERS

State Association Told of Evils of Machine Control and Warned of Their Responsibility.

The Maryland State Teachers' Association met in convention at Braddock Heights on Tuesday. Two hundred and thirty of Frederick county's teachers, or within eleven of the total number, are members of this body.

The address of welcome by Hon. Joseph D. Baker, of Frederick, was in part as follows:

"We as a people have been technically exercising the right of suffrage, and it has been presumed that this right has been exercised in reference to the most important matters of state and all of those things which do deeply concern the people, but, as a matter of fact, direct suffrage has not been the real force directing many of the matters that deeply concern the people.

"You know and I know that this State and this country have for a long time been controlled by two dominating parties, and we know that the final right of the people to exercise the right of franchise has simply been reduced to the several opinions and individuals presented by the convention systems of these two parties, and before the issues or the candidates have been presented they have been sifted to a great degree through regulated primaries and conventions, so that it has been impossible for the people at large to give a full and direct expression of their wishes by means of the ballot. For years we have been approaching the point where the people are demanding that they shall retain the power both as to measures and as to men, and it is this point that direct suffrage comes in to play its most important part.

"This being so, we are to be a people controlled more and more by a direct democracy—that is, by the people directly. Now, I need not illustrate the point further in order to show you the important position of the school teacher in molding character so that the coming citizens of this great country of ours shall be able to exercise in their best manner the right of suffrage. You, as school teachers, must at once recognize the important part that you are to play in molding character for the great right of the people to govern themselves."

DISSOLUTION OF OIL TRUST HAS BEGUN

Secret Meeting at 26 Broadway Attended by Rockefeller Who With Others
Will Formulate Plans.

Reorganization of the Standard Oil Company, following its dissolution by order of the Supreme Court of the United States within six months, is already being planned.

The program has advanced so far that the presence of John D. Rockefeller, head of the biggest trust in the world, is necessary, and as a result he has forsaken his country home in Cleveland and is at his office, 26 Broadway, New York.

There is great interest in "the street" in the plans of the big oil monopoly, but it is stated at the offices that none of the details will be given out until after the dissolution is accomplished.

The treasurer of the Standard Oil Company last week signed dividend checks calling for a total payment of $9,000,000 for the second quarter of the year. In three months he will send out to stockholders $6,000,000 more, if the old rate is adhered to. The September disbursement will be the last made by the old Standard Oil Company.

Labor Leader to Apologize.

The District Supreme Court has issued a rule against Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison and John Mitchell, labor leaders, requiring them to show cause why they should not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court. The report concludes with a suggestion that Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison may be prepared to apologize to the court and make promise of further submission, since the United States Supreme Court has decided adversely to their contention that the injunction against the publication of the stove company's name on the unfair list of the American Federationist violated the constitutional prerogative of freedom of the press and speech.

President Threatens a Veto.

President Taft has determined to veto the Canadian Reciprocity bill in case any amendment is added to it. The news that the President undoubtedly would veto any tariff bills passed at this session are accepted by Senators as accurately reflecting the President's attitude.

PUBLIC SERVICE OF BLAIR LEE WHO HE IS AND WHAT HE HAS ACCOMPLISHED

A Representative of the People Seeking Nomination at Their Hands

RECORD ON PRIMARY ELECTIONS AND GOOD ROADS FOR STATE

His Action and Influence Brought About the State Primaries After a Long Fight.—Economy and Better Work on State Roads Made Possible By His Work in Legislature.—Publicity of All Bills Before Both Houses a Reform That is Put to His Credit.

Under the new primary law the people will vote directly for the candidates for Governor and other State officers. This privilege was obtained for the people by Senator Blair Lee who aspires to represent the Democratic party in the election next November for the office of Governor.

State Senator Lee belongs to a family which for generations has been prominent in Maryland public life. Over a century ago there was a Governor Lee of Maryland. Senator Lee belongs to the same family. It is allied with the Virginia family of same name. Senator Lee's father, Samuel Phillips Lee, was an admiral in the United States Navy. One of his closest friends was Paymaster Goldsborough. As a compliment to Admiral Lee the Paymaster named one of his sons for him. That son is Phillips Lee Goldsborough. There is, therefore, a prospect that Senator Lee, the son of the Admiral, and Mr. Phillips Lee Goldsborough, the son of the Paymaster, may be rival candidates for Governor of Maryland.

Mr. Lee is a nephew of Hon. Montgomery Blair, who was Postmaster General in President Lincoln's Cabinet; and who represented Montgomery county in the House of Delegates. Mr. Lee's grandfather was Gen. Francis P. Blair, editor of the National Intelligencer, and an intimate friend of President Andrew Jackson. Mr. Lee is also related to the Gist family of Maryland. Mr. Gist Blair, son of Hon. Montgomery Blair, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth district last year, is a first cousin of Senator Lee.

He is a native of Montgomery county, born 54 years ago. After graduating from Princeton University in 1880 he returned to his home and took up the study of law, graduating from Columbia University, in Washington. He began at once the practice of his profession, which he continued uninterruptedly until 1896, when he was the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Sixth Maryland District. He was defeated. He returned to the practice of his profession but the experience had aroused an interest in politics. In 1905 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the State Senate in Montgomery county. He won the nomination and was elected. His county elected him for another term in 1909.

Blair Lee was nominated for State Senator for Montgomery county in 1905 by direct primaries. He and his associates in the General Assembly from Montgomery county secured a law in 1906 legalizing direct primaries for that county. He also at that session supported Senator Lintieuch in his unsuccessful effort to make direct primaries for Baltimore City compulsory, and not optional.

In 1897 the delegates to the State Convention from Montgomery county were elected by direct vote, and Senator Lee attended that Convention as a member of the only delegation to such Democratic Convention in Maryland, ever elected by direct vote of the people, so far as known.

As a member of the committee on party platform, he earnestly favored a plan committing the Democratic party to the nomination of its candidates, including United States Senators, by direct vote.

At the session of the General Assembly of 1908; he worked for the enactment of a State wide Primary Election Law; and succeeded, against strong opposition, in securing one, which however was optional with the local party committees, as to direct voting.

At the session of 1910, Senator Lee succeeded in securing the passage of the present Primary Election Law.

Another Monument at Antietam.

The State of Pennsylvania has appropriated the sum of $5,000 for a monument to be erected on Antietam Battlefield to the memory of the soldiers from that State who fell in the battle. The location for the monument will be selected by a commission.

The Japanese Admiral Togo will spend seventeen days in this country on his return trip from England where he attended the coronation.

To Marry Embezzler.

Edward Valentine Lee, formerly paymaster's clerk in the Navy, confessed embezzler of $46,000 from the battleship Georgia, and now in a Buffalo jail, obtained a license there to marry Miss Audrey F. Kelsey, of Washington, who, despite vigorous parental objection, went to Buffalo, accompanied by her brother, to wed him. The license was procured by Lee, while a deputy United States marshal stood behind him and his bride-elect.

CARNEGIE FUND SCORED BY BALTIMORE PRIEST

Denounces Foundation as a Scheme to Control Education.—Views Supported in Discussion.

A scathing attack on the aims and alleged tendencies of the Carnegie Foundation was made Tuesday at the opening session of the convention of the National Catholic Educational Association at Chicago.

Rev. Timothy Bresnahan, professor of Loyola College, of Baltimore, arraigned the foundation, and his views were supplemented by a general discussion. In his address Father Bresnahan said:

"A fund of $15,000,000 in bonds of the United States Steel Corporation, providing retaining allowances for certain accepted institutions will enlist the interest of influential personages in the stability of the Pittsburgh millionaire's industrial bairn. These institutions, we may reasonably suppose, would scarcely look impartially on legislative inquiries or enactments that would imperil the value of their securities. The result of investing the United States Steel Corporation bonds in the foundation could scarcely have escaped the acumen of so astute a business man.

"The Carnegie Foundation affords a motive to university and college presidents for discharging professors when they have reached the dead line. Personal or financial reasons may make the professor's retirement desirable to the university president, and make a way for promotion to some younger man.

"If the evils of despotism are in store for us, should we permit monopoly of education by the Government (which, after all, with us, can be called to account) what may we expect from a private, permanent, self-perpetuating corporation, backed by millions of dollars and irresponsible to the public, whose one aim is to bring into disrepute schools under definite religious control, to bond together non-sectarian schools, selected mostly for their prospective strength, through them to get control of the higher education of the country?"

PROHIBITION HELPS EXPRESS COMPANIES

Some 20,000,000 Gallons of Intoxicants
Shipped Into Dry Territory Every Year For Consumers.

In a review of mail-order shipments into prohibition territory from border States, it is shown that the volume of this traffic going entirely to consumers and not to dealers is in excess of 20,000,000 gallons a year.

The proportions of the business throughout the country at the present time can not be estimated with any degree of accuracy, but figures presented by the Southern Express Company may be made the basis of a fair approximation. Jacksonville, Fla., probably the largest shipping point for liquor in the South, sends out between three and four thousand packages of one or two gallons daily, or a total of about one and one-half million gallons a year. Chattanooga ships about 786,000 gallons Richmond, 546,720 gallons; Petersburg, 268,128; Pensacola, 267,760, New Orleans, 255,856; Augusta, 215,150, and Norfolk, Va., Cairo, Ill., Emporia, Va., Louisville, Ky., Portsmouth, Va., Roanoke, Va., and Savannah, Ga., ship more than 100,000 gallons each annually.

Oakland Editor Sued for Libel.

Charles A. Diefenbaugh, editor of the Mountain Democrat, of Oakland, Md., and president of the Garrett County School Board, was arrested last Friday on a warrant sworn out by R. E. Slinger, cashier of the First National Bank, of Oakland, and foreman of the recent grand jury, charging criminal libel. The alleged libel is in the publication of an article signed "Pro Bono Publico," in which Slinger and other members of the grand jury are the subjects of attack, the affair growing out of the present complication in Garrett county school matters.

Prohibition Problem In Georgia.

The Georgia Legislature convened on Wednesday. In the forefront of the problems before that body is the election of a man to fill the four unexpired years of the term of the late United States Senator Clay. Next in interest is the prohibition question, which remains one of the liveliest and most troublesome issues, in spite of the result of the last two elections in the sister-State of Alabama.

The government suit against the Magazine Trust or the Periodical Publishers Association will be based on the result of six months' investigation.

PINCHOT WINS AT LAST.

BY FISHER'S DECISION

Alaska Coal Lands Problems Temporarily Settled.

THE GUGGENHEIMS WILL APPEAL

Cunningham Claims Void.—Former Secretary Ballinger Had Sworn Titles were Perfectly Legal In His Opinion.

The famous Cunningham-Guggenheim coal claims in Alaska, variously estimated to be worth from $100,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 were on Monday ordered cancelled by Commissioner Frederick Dennett, of the General Land Office, with the approval of Secretary of the Interior Fisher.

By this decision it is declared that the alleged effort of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate to "grab Alaska" is frustrated for the present so far as the coal deposits are concerned.

These lands of fabulous value, which caused the Ballinger-Pinchot feud, splitting the Taft Administration into bitter factions and resulting in the dismissal by Taft of Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot, Field Agent L. R. Glavis and several others, will be restored to the public domain and later will be opened for re-entry.

The Pinchot adherents in the conservation fight look upon the decision as a great victory for them, as they fought Richard A. Ballinger to the end on this issue until, after Ballinger's resignation, the President named as his successor as Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, of Chicago. Fisher is vice-president of Pinchot's National Conservation Association and a conservationist of the Pinchot school.

Attorneys for Clarence Cunningham and his associates announced that they would appeal the case to the courts and expect to carry it to the Supreme Court of the United States. In the decision handed down the Government finds:

"That the several locations, filings and entries made pursuant to an understanding and agreement entered into by all the claimants prior to location, to combine the several claims for the joint use and benefit of all the claimants;

"That each location, filing and entry was made with the unlawful purpose and intent that the titles acquired there under should inure to the use and benefit of an association or a corporation formed or to be formed by the several claimants, and That no mine of coal was opened or improved on any of the several tracts located and entered."

It was shown that the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate held a tentative option to finance and take over the development of the lands through a $5,000,000 corporation. This option was not ratified by a majority of the claimants, but the Guggenheims contended that it was binding and were prepared to sue to enforce it if the claims were patented.

Secretary Fisher has announced that all other Alaskan coal claims will be pushed rapidly to conclusion and that Congress will be asked at the next session to enact new laws affecting the Alaskan lands.

Western Maryland Wants Towpath.

The Western Maryland Railway is negotiating with the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, through Hugh L. Bond, one of the trustees, for the purchase of a portion of the canal towpath between Central Station in Cumberland and the point east of Cumberland, where the new tracks will cross the Potomac river. The Company has been making surveys for extensive improvements which will start in Cumberland within a few days and will cost $600,000.

Mad Dog Wounds Five.

A Hagerstown dog went mad last Friday and ran to Magsville where it bit two persons, continuing on toward Greencastle biting Mr. and Mrs. Diel and George Harris. The latter killed the animal with his knife while it had his hand in its jaws. All those living in Pennsylvania who were bitten were sent to a Pasteur institute for treatment.

Forming With $17,000,000 Capital.

A new company, to be known as the Republic Railway and Light Company, with an authorized capital stock of $17,500,000, is now in process of formation. Its purpose is to take over a controlling interest in 28 electric light, power, gas, street railway and other public utility organizations located principally in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

ANNA M. MANAHAN, Plaintiff, vs. FRANK T. MANAHAN, Defendant.

No. 8718 EQUITY. In the Circuit Court for Frederick County, sitting as a Court of Equity.

The object of the Bill of Complaint in the above case is to procure a divorce a mensa et thoro of the Plaintiff from the Defendant. The Bill charges that the Plaintiff and the Defendant were married at Fairfield, Adams county, Pennsylvania, by Rev. C. L. Ritter, a minister of the gospel, on the fourteenth day of September in the year 1909; that they lived together as husband and wife until the year 1910, and on or about the first day of December, in the year 1910, the Defendant abandoned and deserted the Plaintiff and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly ever since and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the Plaintiff has always conducted herself as a chaste and affectionate wife, but the Defendant has treated her in a cruel manner and has contributed nothing toward her support since said abandonment; that the Plaintiff is now and has been ever since her abandonment and desertion by the said Defendant a resident of Frederick county, and the Defendant's residence or whereabouts is unknown but he is believed to be a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 14th day of June, A. D., 1911, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, sitting as a Court of Equity, ordered and decreed that the Plaintiff give notice to the said Defendant, Frank T. Manahan, a non-resident of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of the said Bill of Complaint by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Frederick county once a week for four successive weeks prior to the 15th day of July, A. D., 1911, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 31st day of July, A. D., 1911, and show cause, if any he may have, why a decree shall not pass as prayed, and abide by and perform such decree as may be passed in the premises.

Short Crop of Cow Peas.

Prices Are Going Up.

The enormous demand for Cow Peas last year carried the price very high, and as the crop is very short and the acreage is rapidly extending, there are many indications which point to much higher prices as the sowing season approaches.

Whip-Poor-Will Cow Peas.

The Whip-poor-wills are generally preferred in the Central and Southern States. They are bush form, early maturing and especially desirable for Peas.

New Era Cow Peas.

New Era's are a little earlier and make more winter than the Whip-poor-wills.

Wonderfuls, Clay and Mixed Cow Peas.

For Hay, the Wonderfuls or the Mixed Cow Peas are more productive, they should always be planted with an occasional grain of corn, Sorghum Seed, Kaffir Corn etc., which will prevent the vine from getting damaged by coming in contact with the ground.

Black Cow Peas.

Black Cow Peas are a little later in maturing than the Clays, they make a good growth of vine, are exceptionally good for medium or poor land and will stand almost any amount of wet weather without injury. We can also supply Shiny Peas, Red Rippers, Blackeye Peas and Soja Beans.

REMEMBER BOLGIANO'S COW PEAS ARE UNQUESTIONABLY THE BEST—IF YOUR LOCAL MERCHANT WILL NOT SUPPLY YOU WITH BOLGIANO'S COW PEAS—WRITE US DIRECT AND WE WILL TELL YOU WHERE TO GET THEM.

FREE—Send us 5c. in stamps to pay postage, and mention this paper, and we will send you free a 25c. package of "My Maryland" Tomato Seed, also our 1911 Catalogue of Seeds and our 1911 Poultry Supply Catalogue.

YESTERDAY'S "SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS"

Taneytown Batted All Over the Grounds for Fourteen Hits and Fifteen Runs.

We begin this eventful history with a quotation from the Carol Record of June 16, describing a game played on the Taneytown terraces in which Emmitsburg was defeated, as it exactly fits the game played here:

"Really it would be cruel to indulge in humorous comments on the game. The occasion was rather one to bring sympathetically to mind the command of one of the officers at Santiago, to 'stop cheering, the poor devils are dying;' besides, the 'Willies' are really nice little fellows, and if their lady friends had been present to inspire them they really might have made a tally or two. We would be glad to have them come again, after they have had a little more practice."

The only comment necessary to make of this sympathetic indulgence of the writer of the above is the following account of the game of yesterday when Emmitsburg won by the score of 15 to 5.

The batting eye has come at last. No more long lists of strikeouts. Emmitsburg split the ball all over the grass yesterday afternoon and scored almost at will.

Kerrigan was first up and beat out a bunt to first. Charles Sellers then dove to and put the bat along side the beam end of a Tracey inshoot and it went so high that Mehrling could not see the white sphere. It was a scratch home run. Joseph Rowe, of long ago, drew a base on balls but died on second when Legore was out to center and Malone and Frailey struck out. Two runs were scored. Taneytown did not figure.

In the second inning Tracey allowed four hits. Mondorff croaked one of these and Robert Sellers sacrificed. Sebald got to first on an error and the mighty ones started all over again. Kerrigan found the ball for a hit. So did Sellers, C., and Rowe. Legore was out Tracey to Fuss. Three more runs.

A man from Peoria has invented a whistling bat. We are going to get some if they don't come too high. When these clubs are in use the spectators will be regaled with sweet melody, as they cut through the air. When by chance they meet the ball a flag goes up in center field and the chimes ring. Think of the concert those fifteen strike outs would have given at Fairfield last Saturday afternoon.

There are several things that did not

Two two-baggers in their half of the second scored a run for Taneytown. In the fourth two more hits scored another and in the ease down in the ninth they added two more runs.

There were several incidents that intruded themselves on the score. Crapster hurt his leg in the fourth inning and Fink took his place. As a jungle hunter Fink is a success. He played left field until he made two errors and chased three drives to earth over in the Firemen's pavilions. After this he went to center in time to miss another error.

In the seventh inning Tracey found things slow and he put a little lull-pulzer on the ball with the result that two three-baggers and a single assisted by two errors gave Emmitsburg four runs.

The seventh was also noted for another peculiar feature. Mr. N. Mehrling is a great lad with the bat. Out of four times up he made three hits. In this inning he knew that Taneytown was up in the tall timber so he lined one out into the tree top where it stayed and he was credited with a home run.

Joseph Rowe and Robert Sellers are two good additions to the team. Joseph batted .500 and Sellers .333. Legore looked good too. There is some class to that lad. In this his first appearance nothing was lacking. We sure want to see him again. Malone fielded his position as of yore, which means "good." Messrs. Malone and Legore will both figure in other games this season.

The game was not marred by many debates and when talk figured at all the meeting was speedily called to order and we amended the score by adding a run or two.

The fatalities were Emmitsburg 4, Taneytown 4. Sellers figured in a double play by catching a high one and doubling Crapster at first. The following is the score:

Taneytown	AB	R	H	SH	SO	BB	SB	O	A	E
Emmitsburg	0	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	2	5
Emmitsburg	2	3	3	0	1	2	4	0	x	15

Emmitsburg	AB	R	H	SH	SO	BB	SB	O	A	E
Emmitsburg	0	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	2	5
Emmitsburg	2	3	3	0	1	2	4	0	x	15

Three base hits Legore, Sebald 2. Two base hits J. Rowe, Mehrling, Motter. Home runs Sellers, Mehrling. Passed balls Sebald, Clingan. Wild throws Tracey 2. Double play Sellers R. to Malone. Earned runs Emmitsburg 6, Taneytown 2. Left on bases Taneytown 4, Emmitsburg 4. Time of game 2.05. Umpires Messrs. Duterra, Green.

ner who studied under Old Man Anson back in the 80's hit over 3rd and stole second aided by a fumble. Shryock was hypnotized by Peddicord's dream drop, the Umpire gave him the count and he died smiling. Swope, that stingy, mean fellow that only gave Emmitsburg one hit, sent one to Morrison who held Horner on second. Rock gave the ball a boost to Kerrigan and Horner was out at third. Musselman retired the side by making three unsuccessful efforts to connect with the wilting balls handed him. It looked good. No runs for either side.

The second inning ended like the first with no scoring.

Pull down the blinds and close the doors. There's a storm brewing. This is the third inning. In these three times just nine men for Emmitsburg entertained themselves at the bat. Seven of whom struck out. Fairfield is at the bat with Horner first up. The ball must have been covered with mule hide the way it kicked, bucked, jumped and went up in the air taking Emmitsburg with it. A hit over second, a strike out, then a bunt and error, another hit, a sacrifice, four more fatal stabs, and Peddicord's death, and five runs were scored. Hereafter Sellers pitched.

A gift to Topper together with the mishandling of Kerrigan's bunt and a sacrifice by Cook scored the first run for Emmitsburg in the fourth. In the fifth inning Mondorff got to first on McGlaughlin's error. Kerrigan was coaching and he held the heavy man there until a propitious moment when he cut the string and Mondorff went to second on his watch crystal. It looked like a score. Sebald was out on a fly to Swope and Peddicord was at the bat. This gentleman has the high distinction of being the only batsman whom Swope had not been able to fool. Sure enough he gave the pill a nifty poke and sent it skimming through the azure. But alas there was another skimmer on the job. Horner made a dive which landed him on his ear but he had the ball glued to his mit and recovered himself in time to almost make a double play. There was no scoring for Topper was out short to first.

In the sixth number two runs were scored by Emmitsburg. Sellers drew four balls and Morrison also. When Frailey came to the bat there were two on bases and two out. This lad gets the medal. He smote a mighty smite and the ball tore up by the roots a ball of hay from right garden. It was a clean two bagger and Sellers and Morrison hit the trail while great gobs of glee were manifest to the ear to greet them as they hastened home.

This practically ended the amusement of Swope as free with his money as he was with hits the collection basket went for many years. In the remaining three innings just nine men were allowed to stand for the first time.

To make assurance doubly sure Fairfield scored two more runs in the eighth Swope hit for two bases pushing in Horner and McGlaughlin.

The obituary column shows that seven Fairfield runners died on bases and four of our men did likewise. To those interested in tearful details we have submitted the score.

Quaint Old Emmitsburg, Md.

My lady friend from Washington, D. C., was right when she exclaimed as we crossed the Square some years ago, arriving on the evening train, "Oh, what a quaint old town!"

Yes, it was quaint in former days, before the spirit of improvement changed its aspect. Like comparisons could be made of cities as well, as they have streets as quaint as was the main street of Emmitsburg. Go back to the days of the pioneers who first gazed upon the blue hills of Maryland, and contemplate the scene and consider the hardships of that early date.

Our town was founded in 1785 by the early settlers, pioneers of 1746 and 1757, men and women who bravely struggled amid hardships deprivations and lack of social enjoyments. We of to-day would shrink from no literary advantages, therefore we must withhold criticism for the many errors of that age. They were sheltered under the overhanging trees or tents, their temporary houses until log cabins could be erected from the surrounding forest. Not only beset by all the disadvantages of early pioneer life, they were in the path of the Susquehanna Indians, a warlike tribe, from whom much was to be feared. Yet such was the perseverance of these pioneers amid all the obstacles and dangers. They fought the fight and conquered, and now their descendants can enjoy these hills and vales, while scarcely a memory remains of the ancient tribes of the forest. These early days were the formative period. These early settlers were a patriotic band.

In 1775 two military companies were raised here. Capt. Blair and Capt. Wm. Shields each commanded a company, both doing good service under the command of George Smallwood, to whom General Washington referred in his speech at the home of Mr. Key, near here, when he said to the citizens assembled, "I am about to leave your good land, your beautiful valley, refreshing streams and the blue hills of Maryland which stretch before me. I cannot leave you fellow citizens without thanking you again and again for your greeting, for the true and devoted friendship you have shown me when in the darkest hours of the Revolution, of doubt and gloom. The succor and support I received from the people of Frederick county, Md., always cheers me. It awakens a responsive echo in my breast. I feel my heart is too full to say more. God bless you all."

Some of the descendants of the men to whom Washington paid this glowing tribute still live here, though far removed by the lapse of time and the passing of generations to their long sleep. Still we can treasure the thought that our ancestors heard the sincere expressions of the great General.

These early settlers brought character with them and showed by their church relations they were true to the creeds and principles they brought from the fatherland. In 1757 the Lutherans erected a church at Toms Creek; in 1768 the Reformed Church united with them. In 1797 these two congregations removed to town and built the present Lutheran Church, selling the Toms Creek Church to the Methodists. The Roman Catholics built their first church in town in 1793. Thus the different religious bodies were supplied with houses of worship almost from the first settlement. The town passed from its rudimentary to its present improved condition from decade to decade. Its changed aspect is greater in proportion than almost any town. From the two-story taverns we now have three 3-story hotels, two banks, a high school, public school, parochial school, town library, reservoir on the mountain supplying the town with pure water, well kept streets, many concrete walks and pavements and others in course of construction. A concrete walk from the Square to the Station will soon be laid. We have railroad facilities, all required; telegraph and telephone. We are not behind in any improvement requisite to the welfare of a rural community, and are ever on the alert to adopt any and every device to further the good of the town. We have a fire department second to none when in service or appearance in parade. The town is not as low as some people see it. We live, however, amid quiet scenes and the remembrance of the arts of war. We heard the cannon and musketry at Gettysburg. This has given place to peace and industry.

Our people are cultured and refined. As to style of dress and manners they compare favorably with any locality. As to the ladies, we do not blush when we compare their beauty, nor hang our heads in shame at their lack of modesty.

Should my lady friend from Washington pay me a visit she will not only exclaim, "Oh, what a quaint old town!" but will add, "What a delightful town is old Emmitsburg; what hospitable people dwell in this cosy corner of Maryland."

ODDS AND ENDS

Fifty horses were burned to death in a fire at Annapolis late Friday night at Chaney's livery stable.

Capt. Jarvis, architect, explorer and hero of the Arctic regions, committed suicide at Seattle. His last message said he was tired and worn out.

Attorney-General Straus indorses the proposed plan for a liberal legislative appropriation for Johns Hopkins University.

Every common railway carrier will be required after July 1, 1911, to report to the Inter-State Commerce Commission by telegraph "any collision, derailment, or other accident" resulting in the death of one or more persons.

A suffragette movement has further complicated matters political in Mexico.

Both Taft and Roosevelt will address the third National Conservation Congress in Kansas City, September 25, 26 and 27.

July 2 being "Peace Sunday," 30,000 services are planned throughout the country.

Cornell crews won in the Hudson races.

Lincoln Beachey passed over the Horseshoe Falls, Niagara, in a biplane.

The new capitol of Utah, to cost $2,000,000, will be modeled after the National Capitol.

Reforming Nature.

The proposal to rob the bee of its sting is revived by a professor in one of our universities. It may be a good thing for beekeepers, though they do not appear to be clamoring overhard for the reform; but what about the bee itself? That it needed a sting to establish itself in business, so to speak, is beyond question. Otherwise nature would not have taken the trouble of providing it with one.

The interest of the plan for the non-apianian lover of animal nature lies in the possibilities it suggests in other directions. A noncrowing rooster would be a boon to the suburbanite and the summer vacationer, especially since M. Rostand has demonstrated that the sun would rise none the less. Nonchirping matutinal birds are also much to be desired, and screechless night owls. Bark less seals would be a boon to visitors to the zoo with tender eardrums; but, speaking of barks, the varieties of dogs that least indulge in that method of relieving their emotions are prone to bite. Indeed, a biteless dog is more to be desired than a barkless one. Miauling cats readily respond to treatment with projectiles, and need not detain us. They have troubles of their own, anyhow, just now chiefly connected with their hospitality to microbes. A brayless donkey can be improvised on the moment by tying a weight to its tail.—New York Tribune.

Dangerous New Women.

What is the feminine for insurrectionist? Recent events on the world's broad stage where women are playing a conspicuous part in rioting, attempted assassinations and other dangerous forms of gunplay, seem to call for the coining of a new word. The ancients spoke of amazon when they described militant females, but the term is too mild to be applied to these modern Junos, among the amazons there must have been a skillful drill sergeant, because their press agents always described them as marching in a solid phalanx and with soldierly order and precision. The present day woman who takes up arms is not disciplined in the tactics. She fights like a barbarian. She is a rioter or an assassin.

In the outskirts of the sorrowing City of Mexico the reports say that the women prolonged the fighting after the men showed a willingness to enjoy the general amnesty. When the dogs of war had been returned to the leash, and the country was preparing to celebrate the return of peace by a great fete day, the women of Xochimilco, Atzacapotzalco and other suburbs of the capital led the mobs in attacks on the troops. It is not surprising that a number of women were injured in the melee. At the same time over in Teheran two women rushed into the street and took a few shots at Azad Ul Mulk, the Persian Regent. Their marksmanship was poor and their victim escaped, but there was no denying their purpose.—Exchange.

A Place For Paderewski.

The late Henry Guy Carleton, the noted author, was a severe critic of mediocre work. To a New York magazine editor he once said:

It is no wonder a man of your calibre dislikes the works of Ibsen and Tolstoi and Stephen Crane, for you only like writers who will make money for your magazine. You, in fact, in your outlook on literature, remind me of the farmer at the Paderewski concert.

"A farmer, after hearing Paderewski play the famous Minuet was so impressed with the artist's fingering that he joggled his wife in the side and said: "By crinus, I'd give $5 to have that man pick peas for me this summer!"—Detroit Free Press.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county.

THE SAFE AND SANE FOURTH.

First of all spend your Fourth in Emmitsburg. Why? Because in the first place it is the only sane thing to do, and in the second place it will be worth your while.

merry-go-rounds and playing games; the young people will delight in dancing; at night a fireworks display will illumine the whole park and the bands will serenade the whole assemblage.

THE CORONATION.

They've had the coronation—George and Mary now are it, and a large part of creation will be resting up a bit.

THE VINDICATION.

THE administration, Mr. Ballinger and the Guggenheims had it all their own way for a while and Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Glavis were ousted from their positions for telling the truth and trying to prevent thousands of acres of public lands from wrongfully getting into the hands of a private corporation.

JUDGE PETER.

Judge Edward C. Peter, of Rockville, Montgomery county, an appointee of Governor Crothers, is a candidate to succeed himself as associate judge of this, the Sixth judicial circuit.

refinement and polish and one who has the happy faculty of making and keeping friends. Judge Peter has made a splendid impression in Frederick county and should have no opposition whatever.

CAVE CANEM.

Now is the time to beware of the dog. A pet supposed to be perfectly harmless may in an instant, these hot days, develop hydrophobia and spread havoc in a family and, perhaps, in an entire community.

SEAT BUYING.

In reviewing the proceedings of the various state legislatures for the past few months one cannot fail to be impressed by the scandals connected with the iniquitous practice of seat buying. So common has this procedure become that the immoral aspect of it has seemingly become minimized by the heightened interest manifested in the amount actually spent by the offending member or the interests behind him.

LEE'S CLAIM.

THE moral is: the best advertising for candidates is not the clink of coin, nor the whirlwind tour of talk, but the record of service that can only be written by service. And the best kind of candidate for the people is not the man who prates loudest, or preaches most eloquently, but the fellow whose practice every day and everywhere proves the sincerity of his professions and the genuineness of his principles.

AN able bodied man who refuses to work, who begs from door to door for food and clothes and for "the price of a cup of coffee" (which simply means the price with which to get drunk) ought not to be allowed within the limits of this or any other town.

It does not take any more effort to make known the good qualities of our friends and acquaintances than it does to circulate petty tales of their faults and foibles.

He Knew.

"Squeezem is a mean man." "What makes you think so?" "I saw him put a lead quarter in a blind man's hat this morning."

Feminine Economy.

Mrs. Knicker—the lobster she ate cost her a hundred dollars in doctor's bills. Mrs. Bocker—And she only ate it to keep it from going to waste.

Big Ball Bearings.

A bridge at Yarmouth, England, revolves on a bearing containing balls two inches in diameter.

First English Letter.

The oldest letter written in English of which there is record was that of Sir John Pelham in London by his wife, who was then in Kent. That letter is dated March 22, 1330, and was sent to London by messenger.

Spurious Works Attributed to Sterne. The literary pirate was not the only trouble of the eighteenth century author. There were the concoctors and publishers of spurious works under his name, and Sterne suffered as heavily from these as from the pirates.

The Horse's Hard Corn Spots. Hogs often get droopy in the most mysterious sort of way. Close search will show that the little holes in the skin on the underside of the front legs are plugged up. A good hard rubbing with a cob dipped in vinegar will loosen them up, and mighty soon is hog the old self again after you grease and salve the place with lard.

mad as a Hatter. The phrase "mad as a hatter" has no reference to that respectable artist who designs the crowning article of civilized male attire, but relates back to the Anglo-Saxon word "atter" (an adder, or viper). "Mad" was formerly used as a synonym for violent or venomous and is still used in that sense in some parts of England as well as in this country.

Hopeful. "It was a terrible sensation," says the man who is narrating his experiences while almost drowning. "After I went down for the third time my past life flashed before me in a series of pictures."

"You didn't happen to notice," asks the friend, edging forward with interest, "a picture of me lending you that $10 in the fall of 1908, did you?"—Life.

"Pardon me," said very young Mr. Freshman, making a call, "I'm only thirsty."

"Want a drink of water?" asked Miss Bentham sweetly. "Water? I don't use it," answered the young blood, with a wicked wink. "Oh, you dear boy! So they're bringing you up on milk!"—Cleveland Leader.

A Woman and a Trunk. Griggs—Weren't you surprised that the customs inspector didn't find those things you smuggled in? Briggs—Oh, no. My wife stowed them away. She can pack things in a trunk where she can't even find them herself.—Boston Transcript.

Better Fun. Aunt Sophia—And is Tommy a good little boy at school? Tommy—Yes, auntie. Aunt Sophia—And why is Tommy a good little boy? Tommy—'Cause it's better fun to see the other boys get a tannin' than to get one your self.—London Tit-Bits.

A Vague Impression. "What is your idea of the character of Lady Macbeth?" "Really," replied Mrs. Cumrox, "there is so much gossip about people connected with the stage that one scarcely knows what to believe."—Washington Star.

Varnished Butter. Butter is preserved in France by varnishing it. The varnish is a very strong sirup, which is applied warm. The heat melts the surface of the butter, which mingles with the sirup. The latter sets very rapidly and covers the butter with a crystalline layer.

No Practical Knowledge. Sunday School Teacher—Johnny, what can you tell me about Ham? Little Johnny—Nothin', teacher; I'm a vegetarian.—Exchange.

One For Sure. "Smith is continually boasting that he has no bad habits." "That's one."—Boston Transcript.

Emotion. Emotion turning back on itself and not leading on to thought or action is the element of madness.—J. Sterling.

The National Capitol. President Washington laid the cornerstone of the national capitol on Sept. 18, 1793.

Willing. Bertie—I would kiss you if I thought no one would see me. May—Shall I close my eyes?

A Glimpse of Bismarck.

Lord Goschen was once asked to dinner by the German chancellor and described the occasion in his memoirs: "Bismarck made an excellent dinner, but not so good as I expected. The fish course consisted of lampreys, and Bismarck said that he had once, to his shame, eaten eighty-one at a sitting. Lord Odo, remembering the fate of a British king, asked if he had no reason to regret the feat. 'Yes,' he said, 'I did regret it. I have often regretted what I have eaten, but never what I have drunk.' 'But have you not been the worse for it? I did not say I had not been the worse for my potatoes. I said I had never regretted them.' He spoke in slow but good English and said a number of quaint and good things. Here is a very characteristic specimen: 'I rather envy you English statesmen the excitement of the house of commons. You have the pleasure of being able to call a man a damned infernal scoundrel. Now, I can't do that in diplomacy.'"

History of Smallpox.

That terrible disease, smallpox, appears to have been first described by Rhazes, an Arabian physician who lived about the year 900, but there is no reason to doubt that it has existed in the east from the remotest times. So far as we know, it never originated spontaneously, but is always produced by contact—mediate or immediate—with a person already affected by it. It appears to have been introduced in Europe in the times of the crusades and spread slowly into the more northern regions. In 1733 it appeared in Iceland, where it was so fatal that the country was almost depopulated by it.

Canton's City of the Dead.

In Canton, about eighty miles from Hongkong, there is a place known as the City of the Dead. There are 194 small houses, in each of which a corpse is lodged, at the rate of $25 for the first three months and then at a reduced rate until the geomancers employed by the relatives of the dead person decide when and where the corpse shall be buried. Silk or paper lanterns and imitation fruit are hung from the roof; there are screens in each room between the door and the coffin; tea, fruit and any other kind of food which the dead person liked when on earth are placed on an altar before the coffin each morning. There are card-board servants standing about to wait on him with pipes or cardboard cups of tea. There are also two handsome paper females placed there to guide his spirit on the way to heaven.

Saved by a Dream.

A farmer living at Lapford, England, dreamed thrice in succession that he saw a pit dug in one of his fields and some of his property cast into it. At the third time of dreaming he got up, dressed and went out. He heard the thud of a spade and caught sight of a man digging by lantern light. The digger fled at his approach. It was a grave upon which he had been at work. By its brink lay a huge knife. On his way back the farmer met one of his maldservants. She had had a quarrel with the man to whom she had been engaged, she said, but he had prevailed upon her to meet him for the last time at 2 o'clock that morning, when he had something to show her. "This is what he had to show you," said the farmer, leading her to the grave.—London Tatler.

The Sinews of War.

On the occasion of the annual encampment of a western militia one of the soldiers, a clerk who lived well at home, was experiencing much difficulty in disposing of his rations. A fellow sufferer near by was watching with no little amusement the first soldier's attempts to Fletcherize a piece of meat. "Any trouble, Tom?" asked the second soldier sarcastically. "None in particular," was the response. Then after a sullen survey of the bit of beef he held in his hand the amateur fighter observed: "Bill, I now fully realize what people mean when they speak of the sinews of war."

Lost Bark.

Muggins, seeing a dead dog in the ditch, stopped and, after gazing intently at it, said to his companion, "Another shipwreck."

Where?

"There lies a bark that is lost forever."

His companion growled and navigated on.—Exchange.

Inquisitive Girls.

Bessie—I almost hate Carrie Dyer! She asks such impudent questions, you know. I was telling her if Frank Barnes had asked me to marry him once he had asked me twenty times, and she had the impertinence to ask me if he had asked once. Minnie—The ideal! But has he, Bessie?—Exchange.

Not Popular.

"I don't take much stock in that scheme of yours," said the moneyed man.

"And no one else does, either," responded the promoter.—Amateur Stage.

Wisdom.

Wisdom may be compared to water. As water leaves the heights and gathers in the depths, so is wisdom received from on high and preserved by a lowly soul.—Talmud.

Tell your secrets and become a slave.—Sterne.

Whitewash Brush in Spain.

In Spain, where the ruins of Moorish towers are seen upon the crests of many hills as the express train crawls along at the rate of fifteen or twenty miles an hour, the evidences of surviving Moorish influence upon the people and customs of Andalusia make an interesting study. In the city of Ronda it is plain that the ideas of home building which the Arabs brought into the Iberian peninsula remain vital today. The whitewash brush is the great leveler of distinction between the rich and the poor in Spain. The exteriors of homes—gray manor houses upon the haciendas, huts of mountaineers clinging to the sides of the almost perpendicular hills, handsome homes of rich merchants in the cities and humble tenements—are nearly all of plaster. A few of them are calcined in blue or brown or pink, but the majority are pure white. Ronda is a white city with a few patches of blue and pink and looks as if the whitewash brush had just been applied.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Got Right Down to Business.

James Russell Lowell when ambassador to England contributed liberally to a London society and one day sent a deserving young American there to be assisted home. But the American was told that, though his case was eminently deserving, the society was just then short of funds.

When Lowell heard this he sat down and wrote the society a terse and vigorous letter.

"Dear sirs," he began, "for the last seven years I have contributed annually 25 guineas to your organization. I regret to learn you were unable to assist the young man I recommended to you a few days ago. If you will kindly return to me one of my contributions I will send him to America at my own expense, as I am convinced the case is a most deserving one."

The society did not return any of Mr. Lowell's cash, but it found means somehow to dispatch the young man home by the next boat.

She Could Threaten Too.

"Tickets," said the wily little conductor as he confronted a 300 pound German woman.

"Ach! I haf lost my ticket vhat I should come back by voice."

Conductor—I am sorry, madam, but you will be obliged to pay your fare again.

Woman—Nein, nein. I paid you this morning already. I vill nicht.

Several times the conductor returned to reason with her, but each time was met with a more decided refusal than the last. Finally, losing patience, the conductor said:

"Madam, if you do not pay your fare at once I shall have to stop the train and put you off."

The woman, half rising and shaking her fist at him, said: "Vhat! Put me off, you say? Vhen you say that some more by me I make you the train off and no stop it either."

A Waiter as a Tipper.

Two years ago a guest at a hotel in Frankfort-on-the-Main which has many American patrons became a prime favorite with the waiters in the dining room because of the lavish tips he gave to the man who served him, the boy who helped him on with his coat and the various other employees. Where old customers gave 50 pfennigs he would give a mark and more, besides extras in the way of cigars. In explanation he said one day that when he was at home in St. Louis he was a waiter, and, being far away, he wanted to test the extravagant tip system.

"And how does it work?" he was asked. "Fine. The boys think me a fine gentleman, and I think they are fine waiters."—New York Tribune.

A Sight Unseen.

"I guess I'm just an impressionable woman," she slurred. "I gave a beggar a quarter this afternoon."

"How did he work you for it?" he asked.

"He said, 'Won't this beautiful lady help me a bit?'"

"Well, you can't help giving something to these blind men."

And he can't figure it out yet why the girl is mad at him.—Boston Traveler.

A Literary Life Preserver.

Bookseller—This, sir, is an excellent book on swimming and a very useful one too.

Customer—Useful?

"Yes, sir. If ever you find yourself drowning you have only to turn to pages 88 and 89, and there you will find full instructions how to save yourself."—London Sketch.

Equal to the Occasion.

"Doctor, I am feeling worse today."

"Then stop taking the pills I prescribed for you."

"But I haven't taken any yet."

"Then take them."—Paris Sourire.

Doubled Pointed.

Bess—I'm at a loss to understand just what Mr. Blank meant when I told him my age was twenty-five. Tess—What did he say? Bess—That I didn't look it.—Lippincott's.

C. O. D.

Tommy—Mamma had a lot of things sent home C. O. D. today. What does C. O. D. mean? Tommy's Pop—C. O. D., my son, means "Call on Dad."—Philadelphia Record.

"Take away woman and what would follow?" shouted the orator.

EMPIRE FASHIONS.

They Are Exploited in Narrow Short Waisted Effects.

Fringes of all kinds are in favor. These are seen in beads, pearls, chenille and silk.

There is nothing smarter and few things more handsome than the new bordered foulards.

Linon and pique will be in order for the summer, with mohair for the cooler days.

Black has the first call in cloth and silk suits and skirts, with navy blue, brown and gray also in evidence.

In washable fabrics white is best, with an unusual popularity in natural colored linen and a few pastel shades in favor as well.

This house gown, chic and simple in its lines, may be created of silk or

EMPIRE TEA GOWN.

from net or marquisette over silk. Lawn, batiste or albatross will make a simpler gown. The sleeves may be gathered in at the elbow or left plain. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for a thirty-four, thirty-six, thirty-eight, forty, forty-two and forty-four inch bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 3027, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

GAY NOVELTIES.

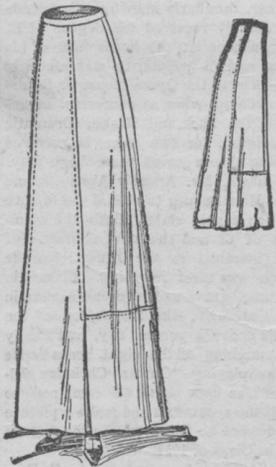

Opalescent Scarfs Give a Charming Color Tone to Neckwear.

Petticoats made of soft silk, sun plaited, are among the prettiest and most popular styles. They may be of messaline or crepe de chine or China or Japanese silk and should be perfectly plain about the hips, the plaits gradually growing in depth till they are quite broad at the bottom.

One of the French novelties is a little leather case containing a folding cane. The cane is affected by women who take to extreme fashions readily, and it is also used for practical purposes in walking excursions.

A dainty hat that makes part of a trousseau is of blue straw with a forgetmenot crown and very pale rose pink facing.

One of the loveliest opalescent scarfs has three layers of mousseline one over the other—black, pale blue and rose color respectively.

MISSIE SIX GORED SKIRT.

A new color blend which one finds on smart tailor makes from the other side is khaki and navy blue.

The six gored type makes a graceful skirt for young girls and small women. The flounce, which is joined to this mode at the sides, forms inverted plaits at the edges of the front and back gores and thus provides a satisfactory fullness, while the narrow effect of the skirt is preserved. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for misses of fourteen, sixteen and eighteen years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 3027, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

THE UNCANNY STRANGER

By SHIELD ESTHER DUNN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

In the good old colony times when travelers, instead of spinning along smoothly in a parlor car, were bumped over dirt roads in a stagecoach on the post road between New York and Boston, in the state of Connecticut, there stood a tavern. Before it swung a sign on which, under a portrait of King George III., were the words "The Royal Arms." In the room which in those days was called "the bar" sat a number of persons, some drinking from pewter mugs.

"The up coach will be late tonight," said the landlord, going to the door and looking out. "The road is bad enough at any time, but on such a night as this it is well nigh impassable."

As he spoke a gust of wind shook the building, and those in the room fortified themselves with a pull at the mugs before them.

"A bad night to be on the road," said a man in a brown coat and buff breeches.

"And a merry one for ghosts," put in a red headed, bear eyed person whose wig, being awry, gave evidence that he had drank too much.

Those about him looked at him protestingly and with something of awe.

"If there's any of 'em about," spoke up a fresh importation from the Emerald Isle, "you're the first of us that they'll be visitin'."

A creaking and a splashing were heard without, and the coach drew up to the door of the tavern. A man of somber appearance descended from the vehicle and stalked into the bar. His eyes were set deep in his head and surrounded by dark circles, his cheek bones high, complexion a whitish gray.

"Luggage, sir?" said the landlord inquiringly.

"Luggage! I need no baggage. I wish lodgings for the night only, and on the morrow I shall proceed on my journey."

The stranger attracted the attention of every one present.

"There's something queer about him," whispered the man in the brown coat to the Irishman, who was crossing himself with his finger under his coat. The landlord, who was looking over the keys to his rooms with a view to selecting one for the stranger, turned and said:

"No chamber vacant tonight, sir. Sorry."

"I sleep tonight," replied the guest, "in No. 12."

His back was turned to all save the landlord, so that no one could see his face, but they all saw the landlord turn pale and take down the key to No. 12. The stranger took it, put it in his pocket and, sitting down at a table, called for a glass of hot punch.

In a corner sat a young man with a hook nose, a little newspaper and a mug of grog before him, who did not seem to share the superstitious dread of the others for the mysterious stranger. Instead of shivering this young man looked at him almost insultingly. The somber man returned his gaze with his great melancholy eyes, but failed to strike terror into him.

"What d'ye mean," whispered the Irishman, "by angerin' the man? Mebbe he's a ghost."

"Ghost!" replied the other contemptuously. "I'll pull his nose for a shilling. There are no such things as ghosts."

The somber man turned. "You would pull my nose for a shilling?" he cried, his deep set eyes lighting up with a flare. "I'll give you a chance to pull your grandfather's nose for £20."

"My grandfather has been dead these thirty years and is not likely to come back to earth for the purpose of getting his nose pulled."

"For £20, I say, I'll have him here. If I fail, £20 is yours."

"I have but 5s. 6d. Will that serve?"

"No. Now cease your talk."

"Come, neighbors," said the man with the hook nose, "can't you help me to show up this pretender?"

The cupidity of those present overbalanced their superstition, and they began to feel in their pockets for coins. Twenty pounds was made up among them, each man to receive as much in addition at the winning of the bet as he put in, and handed to the man with the hook nose. The stranger produced as much.

"Who shall hold the stakes?" asked the hook nosed man.

"Hold them yourself."

"Will not one of the gentlemen do as well?"

"No; you alone will know which wins."

"All right." And the hook nosed man pocketed the money.

"Now," said the stranger, handing him his key, "go to No. 12 and stay there till the bet is won or lost."

The hook nosed man did as he was bid, and the stranger, sitting down in the corner left vacant, apparently sank into a slumber. Presently a terrible shriek was heard on the floor above. It was repeated again and again. When those in the bar had mastered their terror they rushed upstairs to open the door of No. 12. It was locked and bolted. The shrieks had ceased. Then the landlord brought an ax and battered in the door. The room was empty.

Then a mild suspicion began to take hold of those present that they had been swindled. Running downstairs to the bar, they found that vacant also.

"The spalpeens," cried the Irishman, "they've done us illegal."

A FAIR EXCHANGE

MAN Y people have things that they no longer have use for, but keep them in the house taking up room and doing no one any good.

Better sell or trade off things you don't want. Advertise them and you will find that there are people ready to take them and pay cash, or trade for them. You will find it easy through the Columns of

THE CHRONICLE

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

Mrs. D. C. O'Donoghue and sons, of Passaic, N. J., are spending the summer at Mr. Eugene Warthen's, Mt. St. Mary's.

Mr. Bache spent several days in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Annan visited relatives in town.

Mrs. J. B. Kerschner and Miss Constance Kerschner are visiting the Misses Motter.

Miss Lottie Reed and Mr. John Steele were the guests of Miss Fannie Hoke on Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Fannie Hoke is spending some time in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morganthal, of Washington, who have been the guests of Miss Anna Gillelan, have returned.

Mr. Lewis Kimmel, of Baltimore, is visiting relatives in Emmitsburg.

Miss Nellie Rowe is visiting in Hagerstown.

Miss Ella Eichelberger, of Frederick, spent several days with the Misses Motter.

FREDERICK MAYOR HAS VETOED PAVING ORDINANCES

In Retaliation the Aldermen then Refused to Confirm the Mayor's Nominees for Assessors.

Giving as his reason that Frederick is not in financial position to assume the obligations at this time, Mayor Schell vetoed three ordinances passed by the Aldermen for street paving.

The ordinances were passed by a 3-to-2 vote after a stormy debate and called for an expenditure of $15,000 or $20,000. As a 4-to-1 vote is required to pass them over the Mayor's veto, another vote was not taken. The action of the Mayor was not unexpected.

Immediately after vetoing the ordinances the Mayor named Theodore Buesing, John H. Bennett and Edward A. Gittinger, intermediate assessors.

When he asked if there was any second to his nominees the Aldermen sat sphinxlike and made no reply. After waiting some minutes the Mayor adjourned the meeting. The action of the Aldermen in ignoring the appointments is taken as an indication of their disapproval of the Mayor's vetoes.

Bitten by Vicious Bull Dog.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. James McNulty, who is employed at Mr. John M. Roddy's store, was bitten by a bull dog. He went to the "Clairvaux House" for a horse and buggy which had been hired for the morning.

When he arrived at the "Clairvaux House" Mrs. and Miss Bennett were taking several articles from the buggy box and he went to the rear of the buggy, when a large bull dog came rushing out and bit him on the leg.

Dr. Brawner and Joseph McNulty, his brother, who is a nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia, but is at present nursing Rt. Rev. Mgr. Flynn at Mt. St. Mary's College, dressed the wound.

HONORS WON BY PROFESSOR LAGARDE'S GRANDCHILDREN

The Eldest was Valedictorian of His Class.—High Distinction also Given Dr. Feratta's Son.

Prof. Ernest Lagarde, the celebrated educator, and member of the faculty of Mount St. Mary's College, has every reason to take pride in the success that attended the work of his grandchildren in the schools of New Orleans. At the closing exercises of St. Aloysius College two of his grandsons are numbered among the successful students. Ernest T. Lagarde was the valedictorian of his class. Also the son of Dr. G. Ferrata, of Sophie Newcomb College, likewise a grandson of Prof. Lagarde, ranked high, having taken premiums in his English, geography, spelling and Christian Doctrine classes.

Telling of the graduating class and commencement exercises of St. Aloysius the New Orleans Picayune says:

The programme's feature was the sailing of Columbus for the New World, with all his former troubles and all his disappointments at the royal court, and his final triumph when landing on these shores, the latter shown only in tableau. It was a success from the boxes to the pit. A large gathering of St. Aloysius friends saw it through with interest, and those who cared to look deep saw something more there across the footlights than a counterfeit Columbus with his friends and enemies plotting and counterplotting for the New World. They saw men starting out on a quest, not so wonderfully romantic and strange as Columbus', perhaps, yet not different.

E. T. Lagarde's Columbus was good. Big of body and of voice, with magnetic personality, his portrayal was easily one of the best. H. Lagarde, as Columbus' closest friend, the Marquis de Moya, was also strong, and the other characters were uniformly good. Both the Messrs. Lagarde are grandsons of Prof. Ernest Lagarde, of Mount St. Mary's College, Maryland, and sons of Representative Louis D. Lagarde.

Former Emmitsburgian a Benedict.

Dr. Thomas Grier Simonton, son of the late Rev. Dr. Simonton and a native of Emmitsburg was married on last Monday to Miss Luella Munhall, of Pittsburgh. Dr. and Mrs. Simonton will make their home in Pittsburgh.

The following is from the Pittsburgh Dispatch:

Few home weddings this summer have been more beautifully appointed than was the marriage of Miss Luella Munhall, daughter of Mrs. John Munhall of Winebiddle avenue, and Dr. Thomas Grier Simonton, a brother of Mrs. Joseph Buffington of Ellsworth avenue, last evening at the bride's home at 8 o'clock. Rev. John K. McClurkin of the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church tied the nuptial knot in the presence of only the immediate families. The bride wore a toilette of white duchesse satin, fashioned en traine. Her veil fell from a cap of duchesse lace and she carried a shower of valley lilies, Miss Beulah Munhall, as her sister's honor maid, wore a gown of white batiste, trimmed with Irish lace, with overdraperies of pale pink chiffon. She carried a shower of pink sweet peas. Betty Braun, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Braun of Dallas avenue and a niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore a dainty white frock, trimmed with tiny rose buds, and carried a colonial bouquet of pink buds. Dr. Charles H. Hayes was Dr. Simonton's best man, and the ushers were John Munhall, Jr., and Joseph Buffington, Jr.

The choir boys from the Church of the Ascension sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" and "Oh, Perfect Love," as the bridal party came down the stairs. Following the ceremony the little flower girl, standing beside the bride and groom, gave each lady a bouquet of sweetpeas and the gentlemen boutonnières, which she carried in a large French basket tied with broad pink ribbons.

Covers were laid for 16 at the bride's table, which had for a centerpiece a mound of white phlox and iris caught with immense bows of white maline. Showers of these flowers caught with maline and white satin ribbon hung from the chandelier. Farleyense ferns, crotons and potted plants banked the buffet and mantel. Summer blossoms and ferns were used to decorate the other rooms.

Mr. Simonton and his bride will take an extended honeymoon trip. At home cards announce 5412 Ellsworth avenue after December 15.

Don't Take Chances With Your Eyes.

"A stitch in time saves nine" is an old saying, yet a true one. It applies to eyes as well as other things in life. Better have your Optometrist, Dr. O. W. Hines, examine your eyes and you won't suffer pain and annoyance later on in years. Ask any man or woman well advanced in years and they will tell you that if they had only exercised a little forethought in the earlier years of their life they would have saved money and suffering. Dr. Hines' next visit to Emmitsburg, Md., Emmit House, July 5, 1911.

Maryland Christian Endeavor Union.

Maryland is to have a great part in the Twenty-fifth International Christian Endeavor Convention to be held at Atlantic City, July 6 to 12, inclusive. All the railroad lines and steamboat companies have given special rates to Baltimore for the trip, and the official State Transportation Committee have arranged for a special train to leave Baltimore on the afternoon of July 6 at 1:45 o'clock. This train will run via the Delaware Bridge Route without change in Philadelphia. This special train will return from Atlantic City on July 13 at 10 o'clock in the morning stopping in Philadelphia for three hours during which time a trip through the famous Wannamaker's stores will be taken. This special will finally arrive in Baltimore at 4:20 o'clock, in time for the delegates to catch their trains for home.

Maryland will be well represented at the Convention, for, in addition to the large number of delegates from all over the State, a special chorus of 200 voices from Baltimore will sing during the services and will be part of the monster chorus made up of smaller choruses from different cities, which will give a special musical jubilee on the mammoth steel pier.

The best speakers in the country will be on hand to address the large gatherings. President William H. Taft; Speaker of the House of Representatives, Hon. Champ Clark; former Vice-President, Charles W. Fairbanks; Hon. Albert J. Beveridge, Judge "Ben" Lindsey of Denver, Rev. Russell H. Cornwell, D. D., Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, S. T. D., and other prominent ministers and laymen.

Letters To The Editor.

[The Editor would have it understood that he is not responsible for the views expressed in communications addressed to him and published in THE CHRONICLE.]

No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

Dear Chronicle:

Lafayette College has just completed the celebration of her seventy-sixth commencement, and Emmitsburg will be proud to know that she was most creditably represented. Mr. O. A. Horner, familiarly known to his friends as "Jack," received his degree of E. E., was one of the honor men of his class, and his popularity was strongly evidenced at the Opera House on Saturday evening, when as successful manager of the Sock and Buskin Dramatic Association for two years, he received rousing cheers during the college play.

His uncle, Mr. Andrew Annan, came from Emmitsburg to attend the fiftieth reunion of his class. Both the members of '61 and the new Alumnus of 1911 marched in the Alumni parade which was most imposing. Classes in costume, grave and reverend seniors in cap and gown, the inspiration of the music under a perfect sky, and finally the marching of the eight brass bands in line playing "Onward Christian Soldiers" as one man, all combined to thrill the spectators and make a picture not soon to be forgotten by the friends of the Class of 1911.

GETTYSBURG

The first excursion of colored people from Baltimore came to this place Monday and proved to be a tough aggregation. Men and women were drunk and acted disgracefully.

Walter Earl Swope and Miss Hester Dick were married in St. Francis Xavier Church on Monday evening by Rev. Father Whalen. The attendants were Miss Rebecca Cramer, of McSherrystown and Leo Dick, brother of the bride.

The canvassers for the Gettysburg Chautauqua, to be held in August, report the sale of two hundred course tickets.

A charter has been granted to the John C. Lower Company, of this place, to conduct a wholesale grocery business. Capital $25,000.

At the recent commencement exercises of Lafayette College, at Easton, Dr. W. A. Granville, of this place, was given the degree of Doctor of Laws.

A chest of tools was carried away from the new house of John A. Wilson, on Broadway, one night last week.

The following schedule of union services has been arranged by the Ministerial Association:

- July 2—United Brethren. " 9—Methodist Episcopal. " 16—College Lutheran. " 23—Reformed. " 30—Episcopal. Aug. 6—St. James Lutheran. " 13—Presbyterian. " 20—Methodist. " 27—United Brethren.

The cornerstone of the new St. James' Lutheran Church will be laid on Sunday morning, July 9, immediately after Sunday school. In the cornerstone will be placed a bible, hymn book, catechism, list of members of the church at the present time, copies of the St. James' Messenger and the town papers. The contents will be sealed in a copper box to be placed in the stone.

Mrs. H. K. Witherow, a teacher in the public schools here, has been awarded a scholarship in the University of Pennsylvania Summer School.

The grocery and hardware stores in this place will be closed on Tuesday, July 4th.

Mrs. McCammon was driving up Baltimore Hill with her brother-in-law, Lloyd Van Doren, when one of the traces dropped from the single tree. Soon after the trace dropped the horse frightened at a motor cycle. Mr. Van Doren took the lines from Mrs. McCammon who had been driving, and tried to control the horse but it turned suddenly, tilting the light wagon and throwing both the occupants to the road. Mrs. McCammon's head struck the sharp cobblestones and her head and face were severely cut.

On Friday lightning struck the new Lutheran Church at Creagerstown, and some homes and a few trees here. No serious damage was done.

ACROSS THE LINE

Fairfield—A festival for the benefit of the Fairfield baseball team will be held on Saturday evening, July 1st, on the school grounds.

Fairfield is well represented by the baseball team. Twice they have bowled over their opponents of Emmitsburg and once they were defeated by these players but by chance of wet balls and consequent errors. In the last game played here on the 24th Swope was invincible. Fifteen strikeouts are credited to him. Every member of the team deserves encouragement from their fellow townsmen and one of the best ways to express this is by liberally patronizing the festival next Saturday.

John E. Davidson has purchased a motorcycle.

R. B. Cunningham, of Hoboken, N. J., is spending his vacation with his parents here.

Amos Stoner, wife and daughter, Miss Carrie, spent Friday with Peter H. Stoner and family, on Route 3, Gettysburg.

Mrs. Alice Brough, of Uniontown, is visiting J. J. Reindollar and family.

E. Norman Walter, of Hanover, spent Sunday with his brother, H. L. Walter and family.

An infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman was buried in the Catholic cemetery Monday morning.

Miss Janet Cunningham, who taught the past term in Philadelphia, is home for the summer vacation.

Miss Anna Creager, who attended the Normal School at Shippensburg, during the spring term, is home for the summer.

Helen Ogle, of Littlestown, is with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Moore.

Miss Clara K. Musselman and Mrs. Preston Musselman spent last Wednesday in Cashtown.

Mrs. James Musselman and daughter Mary, and son, Samuel, of Harrisburg, are visiting her parents, Samuel Walter and wife, at the station.

The 27th annual reunion of the survivors' association of the 6th United States Cavalry will be held at Fairfield on July 3rd, 1911, at 4 p. m. At the last reunion, held at Atlantic City, a motion prevailed that the proposed dedicatory service of the tablet erected by the association in 1909, be held at the Marshall house, now occupied by Thos. Walter, on the Cashtown road, about 2 1/2 miles north of Fairfield, on Monday, July 3rd, 1911. This house was used as one of the temporary field hospitals at the Fairfield fight on July 3rd, 1863, quite a number of the wounded soldiers being cared for there by the Confederates, while some of them were carried thence to occupy soldiers' graves. The marker erected by the government is located on the Emmitsburg road, about six miles from where this regiment fought in one of the most sanguinary engagements of the war, losing 250 officers and men out of 400 who went into action. It is commemorative of this heroic struggle and in memory of their fallen comrades who participated with them in the fight, that the association of the survivors has designed and erected at their own expense, the marker which it is their purpose to formally dedicate on the 48th anniversary of the great battle. Headquarters will be at the hotel in Fairfield, Saturday, July 1, after 11.30 a. m. Tablet exercises will take Monday, July 3rd, at 10.00 o'clock a. m. All veterans of the Civil War, as well as the general public, are cordially invited to attend these services.

NEW STYLE RURAL MAIL BOX.

Postoffice Urges Farmers to Help Protect Themselves Against Thieves.

The postoffice department, at the suggestion of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General P. V. DeGraw, has issued circulars to postmasters from whose offices rural routes are served, as well as those whose offices are not far distant therefrom, informing them that it is the desire of the department that all patrons of rural delivery be urged to set up neat posts to which their mail boxes should be attached and to paint both boxes and posts white.

This, it is argued, will tend to secure uniformity and at the same time to serve notice that the box is under the protection of the laws which regulate the mail service. In addition, the patrons are urged to paint their names and box numbers in black letters two inches high on the boxes. This will serve the same purpose as the front door plate in the city and make it easy to find any patron living along the line of a rural route.

Postmasters are further urged to endeavor to induce county and other officials to paint on the posts supporting the boxes located at crossroads the names of the towns or villages to which the roads lead and an arrow indicating the direction. Signs will not be permitted to be attached to the posts, but the guiding directions are to be painted in black letters on the posts. As the posts to which the mail boxes are to be attached must be set in an easily accessible position, so as to facilitate the work of the rural carrier, the department recommends that the boxes be fastened to a projecting arm of wood or to a bracket of band iron about three-sixteenths of an inch thick, or, if preferred, an automatic extension arm may be used.

In speaking of the subject General DeGraw says: "We want our rural posts and boxes to look as though they really represented a government service. This will do more to protect them from marauders than anything else. Then, again, with the names of the box owners and the town and village guide directions in plain view one can find his way as easily on a country rural route as in the city, where numbers and door plates on the houses and street names on the lamp-posts are indispensable to strangers in finding their way."

OATS AND CANADA PEAS.

Best Green Crop to Follow Clover. Sow Early in Spring.

In his bulletin on green crops for summer sowing J. B. Lindsey of the Massachusetts station says that oats and Canada field peas make the best green crop to follow clover. Generally it is advisable to make three sowings, the first early as possible in the spring, the second and third fifteen and thirty days later.

One and one-half bushels each of the oats and peas is the usual quantity to the acre. They both may be sown broadcast at the same time after the land is plowed and thoroughly harrowed in with a wheel harrow, or the peas may be first sown and four or five days later the oats, the latter being covered with an Acme or similar harrow. The first sowing will be ready about June 25, and the cutting should begin as soon as the oats show the head.

The average yield from the second and third sowings is likely to be heavy, as the crop matures more quickly during warm weather. Oats and peas will remain in condition to cut for ten or twelve days. The average cow will consume from fifty to eighty pounds daily until that feed becomes tough. One-third of an acre will generally furnish ten cows with sufficient green feed for twelve days. This is figured on a basis from forty to fifty pounds per day in the case of average sized cows, with ten pounds of hay.

Professor Lindsey does not consider it wise to feed more than this amount of coarse green feeds daily for the reason that an excess produces an exceedingly laxative condition of the bowels. Animals fed in excess of fifty pounds are likely to become noticeably thin in flesh. In addition to the hay and green fodder, he believes it will usually prove economical to feed from four to seven quarts of grain mixture composed of one twenty-fifth part of bran and one part of flour middlings and gluten feed.

$100 AN ACRE FROM CABBAGES

Comparatively Little Care Is Needed if Grown Under Farmer's Eye.

There is great profit in raising cabbages, but the farmer should raise them himself, says the Orange Judd Farmer. He can have them grown under contract for about $2 a thousand, but under his own care they should not cost him more than $1. Fall plowed land that has received about ten tons of well rotted manure per acre is best for this crop. As early in the spring as possible the ground is disked once to form a dust mulch for conserving the moisture.

CABBAGES ALMOST LIKE ROSES.

The land is then left untouched until ready for planting, at which time it is disked once each way and harrowed.

There is no definite time for setting out plants, as this is entirely governed by the earliness of the season. The best time is as soon as danger of hard freezing is over.

No special cultivation is needed. Plow at least three times and go over once or twice with a hoe. If the hoeing and plowing are done at the right time very little hard work is required to keep the crop quite free from weeds.

The average price for cabbage on track in recent years has been $8 per ton. An acre will produce at least eighteen tons, which will amount to $144. The cost of producing an acre is about as follows: Rent $8; plowing, harrowing and disking $1.50; planting $2.50; cultivation $2; hoeing $1; cutting and hauling $12; manuring, two years, ten tons, $10; total, $37. This leaves an annual profit of over $100 to the acre.

Map out a plan of intelligent farming and then adhere closely to that plan year in and year out unless your neighbor has what proves to be a more successful plan, in which case follow his methods.

TIME AND MONEY.

What is man's most valuable possession? Time. And what does man say of time? Time, he says, is money. What a betrayal of commercialism! Time is something infinitely better than money. Time is thought. Time is power. Time is knowledge.—Elbert Hubbard.

Saw His Chance.

When all Westchester county was thrilling with the prospect of a railroad competition an agent of the new company that was to build went through Pelham Manor buying property for the right of way. He rang the doorbell of one resident, who was living in a rented house at $50 a month. "Will you take $6,000 for this house?" demanded the agent.

"Oh, no, I couldn't," stammered the tenant.

"Will you take $8,000?"

"I couldn't do it."

"Well, think it over."

Mr. Tenant foxily runs around to the owner of the property and gets an agreement to sell him the property for $6,000 if he can raise the money. The railroad's agent returns.

"Will you take $9,000?"

"No."

"Ten?"

"Yes."

"Done!"

Oh, yes, there is such a thing as luck when a man has the wits to see it coming his way.—New York Press.

Killing an Unfaithful Lover.

When a Japanese girl has been slighted by her lover she revenges herself according to the following quaint custom: In the dawn of the early morning she rises and puts on a white robe and white clogs. Round her neck she hangs a small mirror, which falls to her breast, and on her head she puts a metal crown with three points, each point bearing a lighted candle. In her left hand she carries a small figure of straw or rags—supposed to represent her unfaithful lover—and this she nails to one of the sacred trees surrounding the family shrine. She then prays for the death of the man, vowing that if this comes to pass she will pull out the nails which are hurting the sacred tree and make offerings to comfort her family god. Every night she comes to the shrine, strikes in two more nails and makes the same prayer, her idea being that the god, to save his tree from further injury, will kill her lover.

A Strange Species of Deer.

Just above the buffet in the dining room of a Richmond house there hangs a huge, finely mounted antlered head. This trophy of the owner's hunting prowess is fastened so firmly to the wall that the glistening neck seems to be coming right out through the plaster. When a little boy from the city saw this decoration for the first time he eyed it with considerable curiosity and very evident uneasiness. It looked almost too lifelike for comfort. Finally the youngster asked to be excused and slipped from his chair, going into the next room. He returned to the dining room flushed with embarrassment.

"What's the matter, Harry?" asked his host.

"I wanted to see," explained the child sheepishly, "if that animal's legs were really as long as that or if he were standing on something in the next room."—Lippincott's.

Long Journeys Made by Whales.

The whales that swim about the islands which lie off the coast of Norway and Finland in March and April travel immense distances. In May they turn up at the Azores or even at the Bermudas and sometimes pay a visit to the Antilles. They swim fast, for in June they are back again off Norway. Some of these whales have been known to bring back evidences of where they have been, for harpoons of the peculiar kind used off the coast of South America have been found stuck in them.—St. James' Gazette.

Gems In Verse

A FAREWELL.

[First printed in 1842 and unaltered.]
FLOW down, cold rivulet, to the sea!
Thy tribute wave deliver.
No more by thee my steps shall be
Forever and forever.

FLOW, softly flow, by lawn and lea,
A rivulet, then a river!
Nowhere by thee my steps shall be
Forever and forever.

BUT here will sigh thine alder tree,
And here thine aspen shiver,
And here by thee will hum the bee
Forever and forever.

A THOUSAND suns will stream on thee,
A thousand moons will quiver,
But not by thee my steps shall be Forever and forever. —Tennyson.

THE OLD SWORD.

WHERE the warm spring sunlight, streaming
Through the window, sets
it gleaming
With a softened silver sparkle
In the dim and dusky hall,
With its tassel torn and tattered,
And its blade deep bruised and battered,
Like a veteran scared and weary,
Hangs the old sword on the wall.

None can tell its stirring story;
None can sing its deeds of glory.
None can say which cause it struck for from what limp hand it fell.
On the battlefield they found it,
Where the dead lay thick around it,
Friend and foe—a gory tangle—tossed and torn by shot and shell.

Who, I wonder, was its wearer,
Was its stricken soldier bearer?
Was he some proud southern stripling,
tall and straight and brave and true?
Dusky locks and lashes had he,
Or was he some northern laddie,
Fresh and fair, with cheeks of roses and with eyes and coat of blue?

From New England's fields of daisies
Or from Dixie's bowered mazes
Rode he proudly forth to conflict? What,
I wonder, was his name?
Did some sister, wife or mother
Mourn a husband, son or brother?
Did some sweetheart look with longing for a love who never came?

Fruitless question! Fate forever
Keeps its secret, answering never,
But the grim old blade shall blossom
on this mild Memorial day.
I will wreath its hilt with roses
For the soldier who reposes
Somewhere 'neath the southern grasses
In his garb of blue or gray.

May the flowers be fair above him,
May the bright buds bend and love him,
May his sleep be deep and dreamless till the last great bugle call,
And may north and south be nearer
To each other's heart and dearer
For the memory of their heroes and the old sword on the wall.

—Joe Lincoln.

SONG.

STRINGS in the earth and air
Make music sweet;
Strings by the river where
The willows meet.

THERE'S music along the river,
For love wanders there,
Pale flowers on his mantle,
Dark leaves on his hair.

ALL softly playing,
With head to the music bent
And fingers straying
Upon an instrument. —James Joyce.

THE EAGLE.

He clasps the crag with hooked
hands,
Close to the sun in lonely lands,
Ringed with the azure world, he stands.

The wrinkled sea beneath him
crawls,
He watches from his mountain
walls,
And like a thunderbolt he falls. —Tennyson.

WE'LL SEE.

WHEN we would beg for childish
joys,
For schemes enchanting sigh,
There always was a certain phrase

That made our hopes beat high.
She made no promise, gave no hint,
Yet we were filled with glee,
More than we dreamed would come to pass
When mother said, "We'll see."

So has it held through older years,
As it was proved before,
So may it hold of other worlds
Beyond this mundane shore.
She gives no promise, makes no hint,
Yet bliss will surely be,
More than we dream may come to pass,
For mother says, "We'll see." —McLanburgh Wilson.

ALL ROADS LEAD HOME.

FROM out the valley four roads wind
away
Like pale brown ribbons in a grassy sea,
And one leads south, another north
lies free,
And east and west afar the others stray.

Which shall I follow? East to the old home,
Where once the hand of love held wide
the door?
Westward, where still adventure goes before
And the great prairies welcome feet that roam?

Shall I go south, where winter roses bloom
And spring usurps all months of the bright year,
Or north, where the great pines make music clear
And the long winters robe the world in gloom?

Why should I choose? The home my youth held dear
Is but a shell with strange, unfriendly mien.
Less weary hands adventure's fields may gleam.

Too far, too strange, the west, whose strength I fear.

The south would cloy me with its change-
less sweet;
The north would pierce me with its icy fear.

Roads wind away; but, oh, fear not, my heart!
They all return, and here at home they meet.

Daddy's Bedtime

Florence Nightingale
Story — Was Nurse Even
As Little Girl

Florence Nursing the Wounded Shepherd Dog

"OUR teacher was telling us today about Florence Nightingale," said Evelyn as she snuggled under the coverlid. "Wasn't she a simply wonderful woman?"

"She was, my dear," answered daddy; "so wonderful that the king of England gave her the Order of Merit, one of the greatest distinctions in the world. But of all the stories I have read about her the ones I like best are those that tell of her when she was a little girl like you."

"Oh, please tell me one, daddy!" cried Evelyn.

"Perhaps the nicest one," said daddy, "is about a dog she saved from being hanged. She was out riding one morning on her little pony with her tutor—that is a private teacher, you know—and they came across an old friend of theirs, a shepherd named Andrew, who seemed to be in trouble about keeping his flock together."

"What is the matter, Andrew?" asked the tutor.

"Please, your honor," answered Andrew, "I've lost my dog Cap. Some boys hit him on the leg with a stone two days ago, and he's lying now in the house in such pain that I've got to go home tonight and hang him to put him out of his misery. And he was the finest dog that ever lived!" And here the poor old shepherd broke down and cried.

"Well," said little Florence, "I can't bear to think of dear old Cap being killed. Mr. Jackson and I will ride over to your cottage and see what we can do."

"So they rode over, and there was poor Cap with his left hind leg swollen to the size of an elephant's and moaning in his pain. He let Mr. Jackson and Florence feel it, although it must have hurt him terribly, and they found that no bones were broken. So they heated some water and tore up Florence's apron for bandages and then fixed up the wounded limb.

"All that day Florence sat by him, making new bandages every little while, and when the shepherd came home at sunset, ready to kill his faithful chum, he found him able to limp around and with all the look of pain gone out of his big brown eyes.
