NEXT MEETING OF GOVERNORS AT SPRING LAKE BEACH

To Be Less Entertainment and More Real Work

GOVERNOR WILSON CHAIRMAN

Large Attendance Promised, Even the Chief Executive of Hawaii May Be There.—Governor Crothers Has Accepted Invitation.

That the approaching conference of the Governors of the States of the Union, which is to be held in the New Monmouth Hotel, Springfield Beach, N. J., from September 12 to the 16, will be one of the greatest since the annual conclaves were begun by former President Theodore Roosevelt, is apparent from facts which were made known by former Governor John Franklin Fort. Judge Fort is the chairman of the committee in charge of the reception to the visiting executives, and is assisted by about fifteen of the resort's leading summer citizens.

This year there will be less entertainment than at the previous gatherings of this nature, it having been requested at last year's convocation that more time be devoted to the program of work. But two social occasions will mark the coming meeting. One of these will be tendered the visiting governors, their wives and friends who accompany them by Governor and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson at the New Jersey summer capital at Sea Girt. On Thursday night the entertainment committee will play host to the visitors at a dinner to be given at the Spring Lake Casino. For the enjoyment of the ladies there are many receptions being planned and they will probably be kept busy while the heads of the Nation's states are talking "shop."

Governor Wilson is, by position, the chairman of the committee of arrangements for the event and he is working with William George Jordan, of New York, secretary of last year's conference at Louisville and Frankfort, Ky. Mr. Jordan has received but seven regrets while still nine Governors are to be heard from. Of those who have not signified attention in either way there are several from eastern states and it is expected that these will in all probability forward their acceptance within a few days.

Former Governor Fort, while on his tour of the world, talked with several of the Governors of the country on the return trip and he has stated that everyone with whom he had conversed was sure to attend the conference, barring accidents. One of the most enthusiastic with whom he talked was Governor Walter F. Freer, of Hawaii, who tendered the Fort party a reception at Honolulu. The Governor of our cousin in the Pacific will be here for the conference. Among those who have forwarded their acceptances are Emmett O'Neil, of Alabama; Richard E. Sloan, of Arizona; John P. Shafroth of Colorado; Simeon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut; Albert W. Gilchrist, of Florida; James H. Hawley, of Idaho; Charles S. Dineen, of Illinois; Jared Y. Sanders, of Louisiana; Austin L. Crothers, of Maryland; Chase S. Osborn, of Michigan; Herbert S. Hadley, of Missouri; Tasker L. Oddio, of Nevada; Robert P. Bass, of New Hampshire; William J. Mills, New Mexico; John Burke, of North Dakota; Aram J. Pothier, of Rhode Island; Robert S. Vasssey, of South Dakota; O. B. Colquitt, of Texas; William Spry, of Utah; William H. Mann, of Virginia; Marion E. Hay, of Washington; William E. Glasscock, of West Virginia, and Francois E. McGovern, of Wisconsin.

What the entire program of speeches will include has not been fully determined but there will be more addresses than at previous meetings it is supposed. One talker will be Governor Eugene N. Foss, of Massachusetts. Governor Chester H. Aldrich, of Nebraska, is also to speak and invitations to address the conference have been accepted by Governor Augustus E. Willson, of Kentucky; Governor Edwin L. Norris, of Montana; Governor John A. Dix, of New York and Governor Joseph M. Caray, of Wyoming. Governor Adolph Eberhardt, of Minnesota will be kept away on account of business conditions and Governor Hiram W. Johnson, of California will be absent owing to a campaign for constitutional amendments which he will work on with the public of his state. Whether Governor Judson Harmon, of Ohio, will be here is not yet known; no acceptance having been received as yet.

There is considerable uncertainty as to whether President Taft will attend during the conference or not.

MARYLAND'S COAL OUTPUT MATERIALLY INCREASED

Mines Have Been Worked Since 1782 and There Still Remains Over Seven Billion Tons in the Field.

The production of coal in Maryland in 1910 was 5,217,125 short tons, with a spot value of $5,835,058, according to statistics collected by the United States Geological Survey. Maryland, like Virginia, benefited indirectly from the six months' strike among the miners in the Central or Mississippi Valley States. Owing to the shortage of fuel in the Western States a large amount of West Virginia coal, particularly from the southern part of the State, was diverted from the seaboard to the temporarily more profitable markets in the West. Profiting by this diversion, Virginia's production, shipped principally to Lambert Point piers near Norfolk, increased over 1,750,000 tons, or 37 per cent.

Maryland's coal production, which because of the approaching exhaustion of the famous "Big vein," had been showing a declining tendency for the last two years, was also given an impetus by the trade conditions in 1910 and increased from that of 1909 by 1,193,884 tons, or 29.67 per cent. The value increased $1,363,327, or 30.5 per cent.

Although coal was discovered in the Georges Creek basin as early as 1782, the first eastern shipments from the Maryland coal district were not made until 1830, when small quantities were transported by barges down Potomac River. The first company was incorporated in 1836. "After the construction of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in 1842, and of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal in 1850, the output from the Maryland mines increased rapidly.

Maryland and the adjoining counties in West Virginia which make up what is known as the Cumberland region constitute the only districts outside of the anthracite region of Pennsylvania where records of coal production have been kept from the earliest years. On deducting the total exhaustion from the original supply, it was found that at the close of 1907 there still remained in the coal fields of Maryland 7,802,000,000 tons, which is 1,400 times the production of 1910 and over 900 times the exhaustion represented by that production.

TO GET ENTIRELY WELL THE POPE MUST LEAVE ROME

"Prisoner of the Vatican" Advised by Doctors to Break the Precedent. Set on September 20, 1870.

Prof. Marchiafava and Dr. Petacci, the two celebrated physicians, who for months have unceasingly and assiduously attended the Pontiff and studied profoundly his condition, say that notwithstanding his 77 years, his rundown state, and his overworked, strenuous life, he could recover entirely on certain essential conditions, chief among which would be a change of air.

This would mean moving out of the Vatican, thus renouncing one of those forms of protest which the Holy See adopted at the fall of the temporal power in order to maintain its claims for the civil possession of Rome. There is a strong party which declares that so precious a life as that of Pius X must not be risked as a sacrifice to what is really a simple form, as the essence of the protest is not represented by voluntary and, to a certain extent, useless imprisonment in the Vatican, but has been solemnly contained in every word, in every statement, in all official documents which for the last forty-one years have emanated from the three men who have sat in the Chair of St. Peter since Sept. 20, 1870.

A BATTLESHIP NOT COLLIER TO CONVEY MAINE BODIES

President Orders That Bones of Seamen Be Brought Home on a Vessel Suitable For Such Heroes.

Hearing that the bones of seamen found on the wreck of the Maine were to be shipped to this country on a collier, President Taft issued an order that they be conveyed on a battleship. He remembered that the remains of Lieutenant Merritt, an engineer officer on the Maine, were brought to this country on the armored cruiser North Carolina.

The President takes the position that the enlisted men who went down with the Maine are entitled to all honor that the United States can give them. Mr. Taft did not know whether the Navy Department had officially directed a collier to be used for bringing back the bones of the sailors.

Col. Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, has ordered that no profanity be used by formans or others in addressing subordinates.

TAFT TO APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE

WILL SWING AROUND THE CIRCLE EXPLAINING

Journey Fraught With Wider Political Significance Than Any He Has Taken Since Inauguration

AN INVASION OF THE TERRITORY OF HIS POLITICAL ENEMIES

President Expected To Gain Considerable Strength by Advocacy of Treaties of Arbitration With Great Britain and France.—Will Defend Statehood Veto and Attempt to Nullify Charges of Alliance Between Republicans and Capital.

With the adjournment of the special session of Congress and the departure of the legislators to their respective homes, announcement has been made from the White House that President Taft will make another "swing around the circle" in September and October, starting from Beverly September 17 and returning about November 1, and will defend the course pursued by him the last few months.

This journey of the President is regarded as fraught with wider political significance than any he has taken since he was inaugurated two and a half years ago. He will invade the territory of his political enemies—the Insurgents—in the Middle and Far West and try to convince their respective constituencies that they have not supported his progressive reciprocity policy. He will journey through most of the states which he must hold next year if he should be returned to the presidency and, as public opinion in regard to the issues of next year is rapidly forming, his speeches will take on an almost purely political character. In the Rocky Mountain and Coast states it is understood that he will outline his future attitude toward conservation; as it will be the first time he has visited that section since Secretary Ballinger left the Cabinet. Assured of the nomination by his party, it is understood he will make the effort to gain the favor of the electorate and thereby gain nearly a year upon his opponent, whoever he may be.

In this, it is conceded, he has his political future in his own hands, for the reason that he has no Republican record in the new Congress at his back. The Republican House in control during the first half of his term was repudiated at the polls last November. The Republican control in the Senate during those first two years was decimated by death, resignation and defeat to a bare paper majority of eight votes and, if New Mexico and Arizona come into the Union, this will be reduced to four. In the last session the party was

MOST IMPORTANT TO VOTERS

Some misapprehension having arisen over the qualification necessary for a vote in the Primary the following, which is the opinion of the Attorney-General of the State of Maryland, is published in order that all who are qualified to vote may fully understand their rights:

"The qualification of voters in the primaries in the counties under the Acts of 1910 are that they be registered and that they declare that they are members of the party in whose primaries they offer to vote, and that they will vote for the candidates of that party in the following State or county election. This is all the law requires and nothing more can be expected of voters.

WHAT CANNOT BE REQUIRED.

"They cannot be required to take any oath at all, their declaration or statement, as above stated, being all that can be demanded of them.

"They cannot be asked by the judges or challengers whether they will vote at the next State or county election for this candidate or that candidate, or for any particular set of candidates, their general statement to the effect above given being absolutely sufficient to entitle them to vote.

"The sincerity and truthfulness of their statement or declaration that they will vote for the candidates of the party is a matter entirely within the breast and conscience of the voters. If, in accordance with the law, the voter declares that he is a member of the party in whose primaries he seeks to vote and will vote for its candidates at the next State or county election that is sufficient to entitle him to vote. He cannot be made to declare specifically that he will vote for all or for any particular number of the candidates of the party in whose primaries he desires to take part.

"I am convinced that the law does not contemplate that every voter who seeks to take part in the primaries of a particular party must absolutely bind himself unflinchingly to vote (without any exception whatsoever, which, in his conscience and duty, he may feel called upon to make) for all the candidates of the party in whose primaries he has taken part. Such a construction would drive thousands of the membership of both parties away from the primaries and practically rob them of their suffrage in the selection of the party candidates.

"On the other hand, the law, in my judgment, will not permit a man to take part in the party primaries who proposes to support only one candidate, or only certain particular candidates of the party, if he himself sees fit to voluntarily state that such is his purpose.

"I think both the purpose and policy of the law and sound public policy as well are gratified and subserved by the construction which I have indicated above as, in my judgment, the correct one, that voters proposing to take part in the primaries of any party may establish their title to do so by declaring that they belong to such party and intend to support its candidates at the next State or county election, without particularizing as to how many or which special candidates they intend to vote for at the State or county election."

ONE WORD MORE.

Where there is no contest, where the nominee on either ticket is unopposed, his name will not appear on the primary ballot. Such nominee will simply be declared the candidate. Only on the complete ballot for the election in November will such a name appear, that one ballot naming all candidates for both parties as heretofore.

SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS ADJOURNED

Speaker Clark Congratulates the House on the Work Done.—Closing Scenes Disappoint Crowd.

The special session of the Sixty-Second Congress closed on Tuesday afternoon. The crowd that thronged the galleries was disappointed at the order maintained at this time, for it has been the custom to have quite a time of it when Congress adjourns.

Speaker Clark's valedictory complimented the members on their industry during the special session.

"The members have contended for what they believed to be right, with courage, energy and capacity," said Speaker Clark. "It is to be hoped that any personal disagreements which have arisen in the excitement of debate will be speedily forgotten.

"I desire particularly to thank all the members of the House without regard to political affiliation for the uniform kindness, friendliness and consideration which they have shown the Speaker. Without the cordial assistance of the membership I could not have succeeded in discharging the duties of the Speakership in a satisfactory manner."

ARRESTS IN COATESVILLE LYNCHING HORROR

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Arranged For To-Morrow.—Four Prominent Men Held in $1,000 Bail Each.

At the instance of Assistant District Attorney H. L. Sprout four arrests have been made in connection with the recent Coatesville lynching. The accused men were held as witnesses.

Richard S. Tucker, assistant superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company and a prominent citizen of Coatesville, was the first arrested and was released under bail of $1,000. W. D. Hadley, who was driving an ice cream wagon; Chester Bostic, a mill hand of Marietta, Lancaster county, and A. Berry, a balloonist, who was brought there last week to make an ascension at the Harvest Home demonstration, were also arrested and held in $1,000 bail each.

Stahl of Marietta, Schofield of Parkersburg, and Price of Thorndale, will be arraigned on Aug. 26, and counsel for the accused will ask the court for a writ of habeas corpus.

THREE MESSAGES SENT TO CONGRESS BY TAFT

On the Maine Spanish Wrecks, and Great Lakes Survey.—Also Signs Statehood Act Without Clause.

President Taft sent three short messages to Congress on Monday, one urging a further appropriation to complete the work of raising the wreck of the battleship Maine, a second asking Congress to determine whether the wrecks of the Spanish vessels sunk by the American navy shall be given away, and the third transmitting reports of engineers of surveys on the Great Lakes.

The Maine re-recommendation was by way of transmittal of the report of Secretary of War Stimson, who has recently investigated the work on the Maine and has urged an appropriation to complete it. He also signed the joint resolution for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona into the Union.

The resolution signed by the President provides that Arizona shall eliminate the judicial recall clause in its Constitution.

GETTYSBURG TURNPIKE PART OF STATE SYSTEM

Additional $17,000 Asked for by Congressman Lafean for Gettysburg Memorial Building.

The old Gettysburg and Harrisburg turnpike, over which the Confederate and Union forces passed during the Civil War, will be taken over the first of next month as a part of the Pennsylvania State highway system.

This is the first highway to be taken by the Commonwealth in the 8,000-mile system to be created.

For the State road through Glen Rock, in the Southern part of the county, State Highway Commissioner E. M. Bigelow has awarded the contract for the construction of 3,780 feet in the borough to the Continental Public Works Company for $14,221.46.

The bill of Congressman Lafean, introduced a few days ago asking for an additional appropriation of $17,000, having been signed by President Taft, the Gettysburg memorial Building will now be constructed of Pennsylvania marble instead of limestone, as was first intended. The entire cost of the building will be $143,000.

Philip Max Shultz, a German Army officer, was arrested at Plymouth, England, charged with espionage.

FAVORS A ROAD AS MEMORIAL

FITTING APPRECIATION

Landscape Fine and Engineering Not Difficult

STRONG ENDORSEMENT OF PLAN

Lincoln Memorial Should be a Great Highway Rather Than Statue, Bridge, Arch or Any Other Structure.

Strong endorsement of the plan to have the Lincoln memorial in the form of a road from Washington, D. C., to the battlefield of Gettysburg, was given by Benjamin Briscoe, president of the United States Motor Co. in an interview on the subject of American road building and its needs in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"The Lincoln Memorial Road Association" said Mr. Briscoe, "is rendering an excellent service in its advocacy of such a road. In studying the question how to express in the most fitting manner our appreciation of Lincoln's life work, I am forced to the conclusion that the memorial should be a great highway rather than a monument, statue, bridge, arch or any other structure. Even if we take from the question every argument or motive that might be prompted by the use of an automobile, or the ownership of one, disassociate it entirely from our national good roads movement and admit nothing but that which determines the fitness of the memorial, the road still seems to be the logical and inevitable choice.

"The reasons are sound, if not obvious. The greatest memorial the world has ever known is the Appian Way in Italy, built by Appius Claudius 313 years B. C. It was celebrated for its beautiful monuments, its temples and the sumptuous villas that arose on either side of it. Throughout the ages it has been called the 'Queen of Roads.'

"The temples have fallen; the monuments have been destroyed; the villas are in ruins but, to-day, twenty-two centuries after Appius Claudius built it, the road is still in use bearing the burdens of commerce and the name of its founder. What memorial could be more worthy—more enduring? What could give Appius Claudius such permanent fame?

"Congress has decided that the Lincoln memorial shall be paid for by the United States government and a fund of $2,000,000 has been provided to cover the cost. A commission has been created to prepare plans and execute the work. The form of memorial most desired by the people undoubtedly will be adopted.

"A shaft should be excluded, because," continued Mr. Briscoe, "with such as the Washington monument it invites contrast. An equestrian, the statue should be rejected because Washington now has one-tenth of all equestrian statues in the world. An arch possibly would make a good feature of a general design, but of itself it would not be complete. An art gallery, a museum or any other building, however beautiful, would scarcely meet the requirement. Lincoln's fame is growing—not fading. To use any fixed or completed memorial would be to ignore the vital fact about his fame. For these reasons a great road seems to meet all the conditions of fitness.

"Lincoln went from the White House to Gettysburg to make an address which is on the tongue of every schoolboy and will be recited for a thousand years. Gettysburg is itself a memorial, a magnificent park on which $7,000,000 have been expended. It is seventy-two miles from Washington in a northerly direction and the suggestion of a splendid boulevard from the White House to this famous battleground seems most deserving.

"No particular engineering difficulties would be encountered. The country is rolling and offers fine landscape effects. The plan submitted by the Lincoln Memorial Road association suggests a Road 200 feet wide with a greensward forty or fifty feet wide in the center and smooth highways on each side, forty or fifty feet wide, one to be used by swift moving vehicles like automobiles—the other for carriages and wagons.

"Electric railways could be built on each side. Horticultural development could be carried on to a high plane and by apportioning sections of the 'Lincoln Way' to individual states it would be possible for the people of all parts of the country to express their regard for Lincoln by developing their allotted portion in accordance with their taste and their means; all plans, however, being subject to the approval of the national commission created by Congress.

badly split and reciprocity was put through mainly by Democratic votes. Statehood was made possible only after what is looked upon as a very strong Presidential repudiation of the judicial recall proposition. As amended the statehood bill crashed through both houses without opposition from either party. The campaign publicity bill was non-partisan in its sources, the Republican Senate going to more drastic lengths than the Democratic House. The peace treaties with Great Britain and France were met with indifference on the part of the Senate. Hence the President will be able to appeal to the country only for himself and not for the deeds of his Republican party colleagues in the House and Senate.

This is made even more manifest when it is considered that the President is directly in opposition to the Democratic party, as presented by its members of Congress, in regard to the tariff while his Republican followers are divided and the majority of them are lacking in the constructive policy in regard to revision that the Chief Executive has now adopted. The Democrats reduced the duties on cotton and woolen goods, iron and steel and farm implements. His message vetoing those reductions have, in the opinion of members of Congress, not only definitely made the tariff the issue in the next campaign, but have clearly marked out the lines along which the tariff issue will be fought. Revision of the tariff along scientific lines after recommendation by the tariff board is the remedy for extraordinarily high rates in the opinion of the President. Any other revision, especially at this time, would according to the President, be ill considered and harmful to the business interests of the country. This remedy, as opposed to the present specific and later general proposals of the Democrats for big cuts in tariff rates, will be advocated in all its phases by Mr. Taft in his speeches during the forty days and nights he will spend on his private car while journeying through the country.

Because of the tariff situation it is believed in Washington that the President will have an important advantage over his insurgent opponent when he reaches the balliwicks which they expect to vote against him in the next national convention. Reciprocity is the big and successful achievement of the Taft administration up to this time. The Insurgents opposed its admittedly statesmanlike provisions and thereby fell into unpopularity. The National Capital believes that they were being used as tools by the Democrats in the House and Senate but were returning themselves somewhat in power if not in popularity by voting for wool and farm implement reductions when they were thrown overboard bag and baggage by the Democrats in the Senate, made to vote against their own pet measures, and then presented before the country as entirely inconsistent in their attitude towards the tariff. The friends of the President say that the Insurgents will be unable to answer effectually his attacks upon them for their opposition to reciprocity. His favoring revision is implied by his argument that the tariff board should first make its scientific recommendation. He will tell the country they were unwilling to bring about revision when they could get results, so far as Canada is concerned, and voted for it when they could get no results and then by a combination with the Democrats who are seeking a revenue tariff. It is true that the discomfiture of the Insurgents during the vote on the cotton bill when they were left completely in the lurch was helped along by the absent Regular Republican Senators, but this does not detract from the fact that the Insurgents added to their previous record of inconsistency in the reciprocity fight by voting against their own proposals merely because they were submitted by the Democrats and passed.

With how much favor the President will meet in his tariff policy as opposed to the Democratic proposals will not, of course, be fully known until a year from November, but it is anticipated by political observers that he will be able to practically unite the rank and file of his own party for the fight because he has taken what is considered to be the only possible ground upon which all factions can get together. The La Follette opposition in the convention will not get more than 100 votes at the outside, it is thought, and then the Progressive following, which is essentially and therefore protectively Republican, will find no difficulty in voting for a platform which pledges revision by a permanent tariff board, mainly Republican.

Throughout his entire journey the President is expected to gain considerable strength by his advocacy of the treaties of arbitration with Great Britain and France. He will defend his statehood vote. He will attempt to nullify the charges of the existence of an alliance between the Republican party and capital by pointing out that the new and drastic publicity law will compel the National Committee in the next campaign to lay all the cards on the table so that the voters may see them before the election takes place. He will defend his own attitude toward capital by pointing to the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States brought about by the work of his Attorney General and his appointment of progressive members of the court. He can show that the Standard Oil and Tobacco trusts are actually in process of dissolution, legal dissolution at any rate.

Altogether it is considered in Washington that the President has come out of the special session of Congress and will start upon his long journey next month after his vacation at Beverly in the meantime with the advantage considerably on his side. In his speeches he is expected to make his position so clear that he will add to that advantage. Next winter when the Tariff Board reports he will make recommendations to Congress in consonance with that report. Nobody knows what sort of a report the Board will make but, as it is controlled by Republicans, it is not anticipated that it will recommend anything below the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad and a reasonable profit besides. Of course, there may be a difference of opinion in Congress in construing what a "reasonable" profit consists of, and for that reason the report may meet with Republican opposition. But it is certain that the Presidents and the Republicans in Congress will support the findings of the Board. The Democrats as indicated by present preparations, will offer a bill revising the tariff generally. If the Senate does not defeat the House measure because of the Insurgents and Democrats in the Senate getting together again, the President will veto the measure and the situation will be the same as now. The latter contingency is not likely to arise, however, because it is not believed that the Democrats and Insurgents in the Senate could get together on a revision that would satisfy the House. With the campaign so near at hand the Democrats, it is thought, will be for genuine Democratic revision and not half-way insurgent overhauling of the schedules. At any rate, so far as the President is concerned, his attitude will be the same all the way through from this time forth until election day. Now that the end of the session has been reached the Republican members of the House and Senate will proceed at once to the work of preparing for next year. They will watch the journey of the President and his reception with more than ordinary interest, because upon its success or failure, depends in no small measure the result of the next campaign, in their opinion. Before he starts he is expected to help his interests by sustaining Dr. Wiley. Meanwhile the Democrats are preparing for aggressive fighting all along the line next winter.

Wayne MacVeagh on Speed Devils.

Former Attorney-General Wayne MacVeagh in a letter to the Philadelphia Ledger says that three times in the last fortnight he had narrowly escaped death or maiming "while using a public highway with the utmost precaution," and asks, "Is it not possible that murderers in automobiles are taking an undue advantage of the immunity they have secured for their crimes?" He then summarizes the casualties of the previous day in and close about New York city as follows:

In New York yesterday a man drove himself and wife to death in front of an express train rather than stop and listen. Another speed maniac lost control of his car, killed the girl with him and narrowly escaped death himself. A manufacturer of automobiles knocked a man down on a street crossing and ran away from the victim of his crime. A civilian of Newark was knocked down, also on a street crossing. A boy 14 years of age was killed on Long Island; the owner of the automobile contributed $25 toward the funeral expenses. A motor truck killed a boy and a motor tender to a fire engine killed a colored man riding a bicycle.

Meanwhile a most useful and beneficent invention, calculated to add to the enjoyment of its possessors, if properly used, without danger to other lawful users of the highway, is allowed to become "a devil's wagon" and to make our highways red with the blood of better people than its occupants. Can nothing be done to stop these murders, or must they go on until a day of reckoning arrives—as history shows it always does arrive—which will make such miscreants wish they had never been born. Indeed, sooner or later men with red blood in their veins will be driven by the refusal of the officers of the law to do their duty, to take that duty on themselves and to kill the speed maniacs who call it pleasure to kill other people.

Negroes Persecuted in Georgia.

Marshall Newberry, of Georgia, was killed by a Negro preacher and for three days and nights following the deed bands of white men scoured the country, killing and whipping Negroes and burning their churches, lodge rooms, and schoolhouses, and the enraged whites seem determined to run every Negro out of the country.

Eight Dead, Hundred Hurt in Tornado. A tornado swept over a section of North Dakota on Sunday. Eight persons are known to have been killed and more than a hundred were injured.

A FISHING PARTY AND FEW FISH

Ladies and Gentlemen Spend an Enjoyable Day Along the Monocacy.

A party of fifty-two ladies and gentlemen, constituting a fishing party, spent the 17th along the Monocacy. While the fish that were caught did not deplete the stream's stock to any appreciable extent, yet the party enjoyed themselves to the limit. Luncheon of chicken, cakes and other good things prepared by the ladies helped the six fish that were caught to feed the multitude.

The time not devoted to fishing was pleasantly spent in singing, games and carriage driving, the latter probably the most enjoyable to a few who seldom have the opportunity for such sport. Late in the afternoon the party journeyed home. Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Byers, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harner, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seiss, Mr. and Mrs. George Warthen, Mrs. Marshall Saylor, Mrs. Eli Knipple, Mrs. David Wetzel; Mrs. Anna Whitmore, Mrs. Harry Knipple, Mrs. Mary Valentine; Misses Mary Saylor, Luella Valentine, Orpha and Fern Byers, Ruth, Viola and Alice Orndorff, Ethel Norfolk, Emma Stone-sifer, Flora Welty, Ora Whitmore, Grace Kiffle, Daisy Angel, Anna Eigenbrode, Glydis and Enda Wetzel, Jessie Boustead, Anna Mallan, Lulu Ellingsworth, Ella Knipple; Messrs. Boustead, William Walter, Fisher, James and Roy Saylor, Isaac Fisher, Roy Sharrer, Charles and Maurice Knipple, Allen and Claude Seiss, Frederick and William Byers, James Orndorff, Gordon Nelson, Charles Clabaugh, Wayne Smith, Earl Whitmore, Earl Welty, Paul Valentine.

ODDS AND ENDS

Jose Villaverde, general manager of the newspaper Cuba, published in Havana, and his nephew, Manuel, an editor, were deported on a steamer sailing for Spain, President Gomez having declared them to be pernicious foreigners.

It will cost $1,700,000 to conduct the United States Military Academy during the next fiscal year, according to estimates received by the War Department.

Andrew Toth, the Pittsburgh steel mill hand, who served 20 years in prison for a murder he did not commit and was pardoned when the real murderer made a dying confession, sailed for Hungary to pass his declining years with his wife in their old home, Andrew Carnegie having given him a life pension of $40 a month.

The Ecuadorean Congress declared Emilio Estrada legally elected president by 100,000 plurality over General Alfaro.

The Portuguese National Assembly completed and signed the constitution of the republic.

Prof. Thomas Hall, of Harvard University, who was recognized as a scholar of rare attainments, and who had been confined to the Johns Hopkins University for the past two weeks suffering with a brain tumor, died Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Edmund Richter, the German engineer captured May 25 while carrying on topographical studies on Mount Olympus, the fabled home of the Greek gods, in the wild frontier region between Turkey and Greece, and held for ransom, was not released, in spite of the united efforts of the German and Turkish Governments, until late this week.

The Catholic party has endorsed the candidacy of Francisco I. Madero for the Presidency of Mexico and nominated Provisional President De La Barra for the Vice-Presidency. Madero's was the only name placed before the convention. The vote was unanimous.

Whiskey Poured Into Sewers.

The people of Linton, Indiana, voted to have a dry town, and they celebrated their first real victory over the wets by raiding three drug stores, which had been closed by the arrests of the proprietors for running blind tigers. Sixteen hundred bottles of beer and one thousand half-pint bottles of whiskey were emptied into the sewer. Two 50-gallon barrels of gin were also relieved of their contents. It is estimated that $3,000 of "wet" goods has been confiscated there this year.

Road from Bigg's Ford.

A petition signed by 45 persons has been presented to the Board of County Commissioners asking that the road from Bigg's Ford to the road leading from Walkersville to the Emmitsburg Turnpike, be relocated and widened. No action has been taken by the commissioners.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Meek Smith, of Baltimore, died on Saturday from injuries received in a fall. Mrs. Smith was the mother of Paul R. Smith, who spent several summers here with Rev. Fr. Tragesser.

Mail by Fast Freight.

Arrangements have been perfected by the Postoffice Department whereby second-class mail matter, consisting of magazines and periodicals, heretofore transported in railway mail cars, will be carried by fast freight, beginning September 1.

The books for sale dates have been opened at this office. Those contemplating sales in the Winter or Spring can have their date registered and avoid the conflicting of time and changes thereby made necessary. Previous seasons, especially the last, when our sale list was unusually large, this proved to be a convenience and obviated the annoyance so often felt when such a book is not opened.

GOVERNOR OF SOUTH CAROLINA USES INTEMPERATE LANGUAGE

Calls General Sherman an "Infamous Scoundrel" and Waves The Bloody Shirt to Confederate Vets.

Addressing the Confederate veterans of South Carolina, who are holding their annual reunion at Columbia, S. C., Governor Cole L. Blease referred to Gen. William T. Sherman as an "infamous scoundrel." He told the veterans of his recent order changing the phraseology of the history textbooks used in the public schools, so as to place the blame for the burning of Columbia on Sherman.

"And yet," said the Governor, "when I saw fit to criticize a history that did not place the responsibility for the burning of your capital city, some of the newspapers said that I was trying to dictate to the writer. I insisted upon putting into your histories in your schools that that infamous scoundrel Sherman and his army burned Columbia."

Governor Blease also denounced Senator Heyburn, of Idaho. He said he did not see how any Southerner could sit in Congress and hear the Southern cause referred to as an "infamous cause," and not get up and call the speaker a liar.

Frederick Lighting System Sold.

The Frederick Railroad Company has purchased all the stock of the Gas and Electric Company and has asked the Public Service Commission to ratify the sale.

The holdings consist of 1,734 shares of common stock and 3,265 shares of preferred stock. The purchase was made principally from Philadelphia capitalists. A better lighting system is promised for the city.

Easton's Fire Bug Insane.

At a special hearing before Judge Philomen H. Hopper at Easton Dr. James L. McCormick, the well-known Trappe physician who was arrested August 4 charged with an attempt to burn the town of Trappe, was adjudged insane at the time of the alleged offense and it was also found that he is still insane.

Leader of Coatesville Mob Arrested.

What is supposed to be the most important action of the authorities in connection with the Coatesville lynching was the arrest of H. Smith, supposed to be the leader of the mob. He resisted arrest.

Partridge Raises Brood of Guineas.

An old partridge, deprived of its young, adopted a few Guinea peeps and has been taking care of them for some time. The adopted birds belong to Mrs. Shellman on the Gettysburg road and it was she that reported the fact.

FORMER CITIZEN WRITES OF HIS TRAVELS

Series of Interesting Accounts of a Swing Through the United States.
 Fire Hole River, Yellowstone Park, Friday, August 11, 1911.

I had not left the vehicle after finishing my last on Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock, when the ladies of the party came running in excitement. They had been sitting on camp chairs nearby, writing home, when one looked up and there was a mighty brown bear smiling at her. The smile was too much for her nerves. Mr. Larson fed it some bones and scraps and then drove it away with a carriage whip. Not long after a black bear came near, and a herd of beautiful deer to graze for the night on the lovely meadow lands.

A party of nabobs from Philadelphia who had come in a private car to Cody, camped very near and we made some delightful acquaintances. They were Dr. Morris and family, Mr. Williams and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Brennan, of Shamokin. A roaring fire was made after supper and we formed a circle around it for thoughts of home by singing the old songs: "Maryland, My Maryland," "Anne Laurie," "My Old Kentucky Home," etc.

I slept under the heaviest bed clothes of my life and needed them all; but just now we found everything frozen; ice which held its form when turned out of drinking cups and basins. The sun rose (forninst) due east from the opening of our tent, and the flap being lifted all enjoyed the beauty of it from bed. It shone in on us at breakfast. I boiled my rainbow trout, about ten inches long, caught in the river, in a hot spring some ten feet in diameter, separated from the river into which it flows by a four-inch crust. It took just three minutes (watch in hand) to finish it and I reached camp in time to eat it warm for my breakfast. Where I stand writing this, awaiting the start, I see the steam rising from the same spring fifty feet high. When we camped last evening I went to a warm creek near us and had the bath of my life. Water blood heat, soft, clear as crystal, running so swiftly a stream as to pass over the prostrate body. Before dark our camp looked like wash day: every one's laundry.

6:55 a. m.—Nearly ready for the start so I cannot write further this morning. We passed the Norris basin of geysers but cannot no them justice this morning.

Our first stop was at the Norris basin, where many square miles are covered with hot springs and geysers until the mind becomes bewildered. Just now I am sitting under pine trees, one minute's walk from the "Old Faithful," which just threw a stream of water one hundred and twenty feet and in fifty-nine minutes will repeat, hence we will all be on hand for one more action and then on. We spent the morning visiting geyser basins until I am at a loss to even name them. The Fire Hole basin is so called because you can see the blue sulphurous flame many feet under the clear water. The Lower basin, the Biscuit basin, now on the Upper basin. This afternoon we pass the Continental Divide and sleep on the Pacific slope. We saw many mud lakes and boiling paint pots of every shade of the spectrum. We dropped soiled linen into a small boiler and down it went, and after some minutes came up clean. Again we dashed a twenty-foot log into another until it disappeared, when after a time up it came shooting out of the water. The country was clouded in steam and warm vapor from running hot water. The party just came up from the stream at the foot of this hill, where they saw a large black bear taking a bath. Last night two black bears brought their cubs to our camp.

Our delightful trip is drawing to a close. I will be off to the farther West, my companions to Iowa for the remainder of their vacation. We passed the large and beautiful Yellowstone Lake, covering many square miles, so deep in places as to be unsounded, surrounded by mountains with snow on them in August. It runs a mighty river at its outlet, which we followed many miles. We stopped at a favorable spot, caught grasshoppers and horse flies, baited a hook on a green pine branch and pulled seventeen two pound salmon trout out in a few minutes. You can imagine the excitement and pleasures of this sport for all of us, especially the ladies who had never thrown a fish from the water. We have feasted on brook trout, rainbow and salmon to our heart's content. After some time the river became very rapid in its descent; were then some 8,300 feet up. We passed the upper falls, and not far below the magnificent fall of three hundred and sixty feet into the canyon which deepens until it reaches twelve hundred feet. I will not attempt to describe the wild grandeur of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone. We camped there all day drinking in its wonders from either side. We are now in our last camp for luncheon. The ladies just brought me the most tempting red strawberries which they are picking. Ice again in camp this morning. We all felt the daily change of temperature from thirty at 6 a. m. to eighty at noon unenjoyable. Yet with three undergarments, one of them woolen, and two light coats I did no sweating, as the air is so dry in this high region. People coming must expect this daily tremendous change of temperature and prepare for it or suffer. I cannot resist giving our outfitter, the Larson Bros., another puff. Their service is perfect and their kindness and intelligence something to be ever remembered. Their table is beyond all expectation. Many hotels are left in the shade. Their price, I am now convinced, is the lowest that a six days' trip of one hundred and about sixty miles can be done. Thirty dollars and show you everything—no extras. Every member of the party is enthusiastic over their treatment. They will make dates with parties of ten or more, and if a person gets up a party of ten they will take the eleventh one through free. Parties of less than ten must take their chance, as we did, to find them at home when they arrive.

Reached Gardiner dusty but happy over our experience in this wonderland. Refreshing bath, good supper, and at 7 same evening in a train load of four full cars we were off to Langston. Our guide thought that at this period of the season there are something like twenty-five hundred in the park every day, but they divide up into seven groups and spread over one hundred and sixty miles. He told us that last winter was so severe that in November the elk were forced by hunger out of the park to the lower land and that even then thousands of them perished; that he could take us near town and show the skeletons of hundreds. Coming out of the park into Montana, each man can shoot one. He and his brother each got a young doe, dressing over five hundred, which hung frozen until April.

I spent some time in devotions with Father Blair, after which I came to Helena. The run was interesting. For the first hour out we puffed up a heavy grade, passed through two tunnels, then made up our time flying down grade into the splendid Gallatin Valley—loudly advertised at the depot as the "greatest agricultural valley in the world." That sounds rather loud, does it not? Wonderful crops of wheat, oats and alfalfa were in course of reaping, automobiles appeared on country roads, the towns in the valley had mighty grain elevators, and irrigation was making old earth go crazy. Oh, how much I missed that dear old Maryland gives us. No corn, no fruit, no trees except the pines on the mountains and scraggy growth along the water courses, no homes, or rather the poorest attempt at a one-story make-shift; absolutely no attempt at barn building. I will say right here, without knowing that I am bragging, that I have not seen Maryland since I left, and I commence to think that I will not until my return. Out here they are now harvesting winter wheat. Leaving this rich valley, which took nearly an hour to run across, we followed a stream to the headwaters of the great Missouri, the meeting of the three rivers—Gallatin, Madison and Jefferson. We followed the new formed river quite a way down grade, finally crossed it ran through a mighty valley or open prairie that has never seen a plow. Great horse and cattle ranges, wire fenced, with scarcely the smallest shack in sight. No protection in sight for wintering. That led us almost in sight of Helena.

CANDIDATE W. SCOTT KEFAUVER.

W. Scott Kefauver, a candidate for judge of the Orphans' Court, is a son of Jacob and Lenora Kefauver, a large family of 13 children, nine sons and four daughters, all living. The youngest is 50 years old, 27 of the family vote the Republican ticket in the county. Not one has been before the County Convention for office in the eight districts where they live. Mr. Kefauver now offers himself for the nomination at the coming primary. He is a self-made man. Started as an apprentice at wagon making 1865 with Lewis Main, in Frederick and worked for O. P. Anderson, of Frederick, then Broadrum and Burkittsville until 1871, when he married and commenced farming on a very small capital. No one to assist him financially, it took hard work and good management with the help of his noble wife to make the start. He cut the greater part of the first five wheat crops himself with the grain cradle. After eleven years of hard toiling on rented farms he purchased a small farm where he lived a number of years. He had the misfortune to break his leg, which caused him to lie on his back for more than three months, and his wife's health failing, he moved to Burkittsville where he still resides. He has been a consistent member of the Reformed church, Sunday School and church choir for more than 40 years, and is still at his post. As an elder in the church, he has been elected to Maryland Classis and the higher bodies of the church frequently. He was appointed assessor at large 15 years ago for the three lower districts of Middletown Valley. His many friends think he is well qualified and entitled to the nomination, for the past service he rendered the party. aug 18-2ts.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

The Equal Franchise League of Emmitsburg assumes responsibility for all statements, facts and arguments published under this heading.

Why Prominent Wisconsin Men Want Women to Vote.

"It is only the high-minded to whom equality is really agreeable."

To the everlasting glory of Wisconsin be it known that the women of that State are not fighting for political rights unaided. Progressive thinking men in all walks of life are strongly supporting their efforts. We print below a few authorized statements to illustrate what intelligent, wholehearted endorsement the cause of woman suffrage has had from some of the best men in the State. Senator Robert M. La Follette:—"I hope the time will come when this great body of intelligent people, these women, will no longer have to petition Congress for what is theirs by right, in a land which boasts of equal opportunities to all."

Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Watrous:—"There are several reasons, which I deem good ones, for hoping that women will be given the right of suffrage."

"First: Because I believe that my mother would have voted fully as intelligently as her sons have done, and that my wife and four daughters would have exercised the right with as much care and as wisely, if not more so, than the men of the family."

"Second: For thirty or forty years I have said, repeatedly, that when a large number of real women of the state expressed a desire for the right to vote, I should favor extending that right. When the legislature of Wisconsin, by a large majority, voted in favor of submitting the question to the people, it afforded good evidence that a large number of the women desire the right of suffrage."

"Third: To-day there are millions of bread winners, those who win not only for themselves, but many who win for the whole family, among the women. To this vast number many are being added every year, with a prospect of a steady increase in the number of those who have entered the new and old fields. These millions of independent, womanly bread winners should have a voice in public affairs, not only in their own interest, but for the general welfare of the public, the same as the men in like classes of endeavor, the same as the men bread winners in all the walks of life."

Dr. George W. Peckham of Milwaukee:—"I believe in suffrage for women for the same reasons that I believe in suffrage for men."

The old stock argument (against woman suffrage) of brain weight is as prevalent to-day as of yore. Though the brain of the elephant is much heavier in weight than any human male's, never yet did I hear the argument from any man that the elephant thereby was his superior.

MRS. JAMES FERGUSON.

The Equal Franchise League of Emmitsburg will hold their next regular meeting at the home of the treasurer, Miss Belle Rowe, Friday, Sept. 1st.

Statement from Mr. Hogarth.

"As there has been some talk about the third term, it seems to me it is due the people of the county and myself that I make a statement at this time. When I first came into office there was $25,000 floating debt and $313,000 bonded debt. The floating debt has been paid off, and we are now calling in $38,000 worth of the bonded debt making $63,000 indebtedness of the county paid off since I have been commissioner, and other things such as steel bridges over streams and Monocacy river that were impassable in winter, steel joist that have taken the place of old wooden joist, new public roads through out the county. Eight years ago the School Commissioners got $55,000 from the county, now they get $95,000 by an act of the Legislature which is no fault of the County Commissioners. The election of the county used to cost the tax payers three or four thousand dollars, now it costs about nine thousand dollars which is no fault of the Commissioners. "One year ago there was another bonded debt put on the county of $75,000. These things we have no control over. The new assessment cost the county over $27,000; notwithstanding all these things we have been able to keep the taxes down to a normal figure."

"I would ask the people has there been a board that has made a record like this? So I think it is due the board some consideration especially those of us who want the renomination so I hope the people of the county will consider these things and myself on the 29th of August. I leave myself in your hands. "Your obedient servant," "WM. H. HOGARTH."

Confession in Ohio Bribery Case.

To receive promised immunity Rodney J. Diegel, Sergeant at Arms of the Ohio State Senate, who was recently convicted of bribery, agreed to tell all he knows in regard to alleged corruption on the part of members of the Legislature and lobbyists. Diegel will be allowed one week in which to put his confession in writing. Had he not agreed to turn State's evidence he would have been an inmate of the penitentiary.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO SELECT CANDIDATES.

The necessity that gave birth to the primary election law, or rather one of the conditions that gave rise to the necessity for such an election is almost too well known to be dwelt upon, but it may be wise to point it out with the risk of being tiresome.

usurpation of a popular prerogative to a semi-private clique. Everything was so easy; it was like bartering away a birthright for a mess of pottage.

If the remedy is to be given a fair test it must be taken and its use must be according to directions. If the people are to select their candidates, if they are to come into their own, they must be interested enough to reach out their hand and grasp the opportunity.

One of our greatest living statesmen, a politician too, says: "It is not rightly a matter of choice whether a man shall trouble himself about affairs of government in his community, or confine himself to his business, his profession, or his pleasure, and leave others to govern; it is a matter of peremptory obligation which cannot be avoided by any intelligent man who has any understanding of the conditions under which he lives.

The duty is plain, the obligation heavy, and the performance light. On August 29th no trivial excuse should keep any from taking part in the primary election.

HELP FOR THE STATE ROADS COMMISSION.

Down in Georgia they are constructing about ten miles of improved highways a day. Up here we are feeding about ten hoboes for each mile of road. Down there they use their criminals; up here we abuse them. The comparison is appropriate.

Very Sensitive. "I don't know what I am going to do with that kid of mine. He's always getting into fights. I jerked him up for it the other day. 'What do you mean by fighting on the public streets like this?' I asked.

A Taste For Soap. Surely one of the queerest of tastes was that of the historian Prescott, of whose life in Rome Mrs. Hugh Fraser tells in "A Diplomatist's Wife in Many Lands."

Still More Necessary. "Could you give me a raise, sir? You know, I am married."

Princes at School. Dr. Marks tells some amusing stories of the early days of the school in Burma of which he was for so many years the head. Shortly after the school was opened King Thebaw said, "Will you teach some of my sons?"

The Old Man Reformed. "I've a sight o' sons—thirteen altogether," remarked a prosperous old farmer, "and all of 'em's done me credit save the three eldest, who sowed wild oats at a pretty rapid rate and then came home and saddled my shoulders with the harvest.

A Hasty Government. "The postmaster here was removed the other day for incivility to the patrons of the office," said the landlord of the tavern.

A Wise Provision. Did you ever notice when a man smites his thumb with a hammer while putting down a carpet under his wife's supervision how quickly he thrusts the bruised and throbbing member into his mouth?

French Humor. A man who possessed much land and had many younger brothers was asked why he did not go out hunting, as his brothers did.

Her Compliment. A popular English comedian and music hall singer, asked what his funniest experience was, said: "One time I drove up to the theater in Dublin and was humming a tune when I got out. An old Irishwoman who had failed to get in the theater heard me and said, 'Begorra, if that is how he sings I am glad I didn't go in.'"—London Mail.

Here and on the Moon. Things are six times heavier on the earth than they would be in the moon. A man weighing 150 pounds on the earth would weigh only twenty-five pounds on the moon.

Spoiling It. Wife—What a darling you are to admit that you are in the wrong! Hubby—Yes; my mother taught me that it was easier in the long run to give in to a woman than to argue.—Toledo Blade.

Just the Opposite. "He appears to love his wife very much?" "Yes." "She must be a charming talker?" "No, she is a charming keep stiller."—Houston Post.

Believe in the better side of men. It is optimism that really saves people.—Maclaren.

Had Reason to Be Silent. An ingenuous young man once took his fiancée to church in a small country village, and when the time for "collection" came around he rather ostentatiously displayed a silver dollar.

The Origin of Dunce. A dunce is named after Duns Scotus, the chief and leader of the schoolmen who were in opposition to what was called "the new learning" in the sixteenth century.

A Matter of Breed. "Them fellers in the office of the Bee are what I call fresh," Deacon Ezra Bullock remarked to his wife at the supper table on his return from his monthly visit to the town of Balston.

Molded by Circumstances. Yoshio Markino in McClure's tells the following anecdote of his literal-mindedness:

Postgraduate Course. Pretty Daughter—Now that I have graduated, mamma, don't you think I ought to take a postgraduate course?

An Old Testament Verse. The twenty-first verse of the seventh chapter of Ezra in the Old Testament contains all the letters of the alphabet.

Not the Same Meaning. Nervous Old Lady (in saloon of steamer)—Oh, steward, where do I sleep?

One Reason. Teacher—And why should we begin at the foot of the ladder? Willie—So if any of the guys at the top falls we'll be near enough to give 'em the laugh when they hit the bottom.—Puck.

Too Uncertain. Salvation Lassie (whose laddie is on top of the bus)—You'll get my fare above. Conductor—Sorry, miss, but I can't wait till I get there!—Everybody's Weekly.

Thin as a Rail. "Is he as thin as I have heard?" "He's thinner. Say, when he tried on a double breasted coat one row of buttons was up his back."—Exchange.

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence.

Death From Imagination. How faith may kill as well as cure is shown by one of the cases mentioned by Dr. Charles Reinhardt in "Faith, Medicine and the Mind."

The Panama Hat. A popular comedian at a Lambs club gambol in New York told a panama hat story.

Whistler Before Whistler. Mortimer Menpes told the following story of Whistler, who was to deliver an address one day to the Society of British Artists:

King's Queer Present For a Queen. In all probability the king of Dahomey's present of pipes and loin cloths never reached Buckingham palace.

Her Good Advice. They had been courting for only four years when Silas spoke as follows: "I think you oughter give me jest one kiss, Sary, you know; it's far better to give than receive."

Descriptive. One little girl was telling her mother how another little girl was dressed at a party. "And would you believe it, mamma," she concluded, "her slippers were so tight I could see all the knuckles on her toes."—Chicago News.

He Was Playing. First Actress—You say you are hard up. Isn't your husband playing this season, then? Second Actress—Yes, he is. That's just the trouble. First A.—Why, what's he playing—Hamlet? Second A.—No; cards!

The Other Extreme. Parke—Poor Piter! His wife is a spendthrift. Is there anything worse, I wonder, than a wife that's too extravagant? Tame—Oh, yes; one that's too economical.—Brooklyn Life.

Thin as a Rail. "Is he as thin as I have heard?" "He's thinner. Say, when he tried on a double breasted coat one row of buttons was up his back."—Exchange.

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence.

Liszt Fooled Them. Wrapped in his dressing gown and with feet incased in slippers, Franz Liszt was sitting comfortably one evening in his armchair ready for work and inviting inspiration.

A HOT TIME

You are familiar with the "sweet refrain" are you not?
 You know also that the weather is hot, do you not?
 But do you know that

"THE OLD RELIABLE"

is hotter after your banking business than all out door--than all the rag-time "hot-times" ever composed or written--than all the burning, seething chunks of red hot stuff that ought not to have been composed or written.
 That it offers conservative, experienced management of your business of whatever nature entrusted, and as security its ample capital and surplus fund.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

The Newest Girdles Are Composed of Beads.
 Girdles of strands of beads are seen. A new type of morning hat is of white straw piped with black. Straight up from the center of the hat in front, producing the effect of a feather, is a ruche of platted net, with a thin black center line.
 Ribbon girdles are out of place with a tailored suit or shirt waist. The cord girdles are nearly as dressy and more appropriate.
 Ball fringe in the crocheted and gimp variety is seen on evening gown.

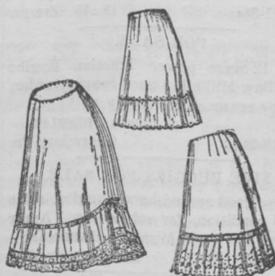

SURAH SERGE WITH TRIMMING OF SILK.
 and lingerie dresses. It is used with the heavy monk's cord that finishes the waist line. Beaded and bugle fringes are also used.
 For cool days nothing is nicer than a frock of surah serge in white or colors. Such a frock is seen in the cut trimmed with dotted silk collar, cuffs and band.
JUDIC CHOLLET.

These May Manton patterns are cut in sizes for the skirt from 22 to 30 inches waist measure and blouse from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents each for these patterns to this office, giving numbers—skirt 7048, blouse 7049—and they will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

FADS OF THE MOMENT.

The Side Frill Loses None of Its Popularity This Season.
 So feminine, so dainty and so charming is the side frill that the popularity of this adornment is increasing rather than diminishing. Even the blouse buttoned down the back shows the side trimming.
 The waist line is outlined by flowers on many lingerie frocks for young girls. These are either made of bias bands of silk or are bought in bunches, separated and attached to the band.
 On blouses the sailor collar and cuffs are of contrasting material. There is the ever popular foulard, dotted, striped and plain, that is combined with linen, batiste, challie and silk.
 Some of the new blouses are made wholly of shaped pieces of embroidery joined together with lace.
 A citron colored voile blouse shown in one of the shops had a striped effect in steel beads. A yoke was outlined in silver thread over a peacock blue foundation.
 For evening and afternoon functions gloves are less and less worn by many fashionables, yet there are many others who will have nothing to do with such a fad, declaring it excessively vulgar.

 The drawers that fit snugly over the hips are the ones most in demand. The model pictured are dart fitted at the sides and can be fitted in the same manner in the back or drawn up by means of tape.

"CLOSED FOR REPAIRS"

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

There was a rather curious situation in school district No. 3 in the county of Greenfield. There were six widowers living there and all of them farmers, and three of the six were the school trustees. For several years men teachers had been employed and had given good satisfaction, but now they were to change to the other sex. Widower Thomas, the moderator, had suggested the change, and he hadn't looked the other two in the face as he did it. He had simply said that he thought a schoolma'am would teach the scholars manners as well as geography. Mr. Williams had agreed, but had at the same time said to himself:
 "I understand his little game."
 And Mr. Burt had agreed with him, but at the same time had said to himself:

"The cute old rascal! But I see through him as if he was made of glass. If anybody around here marries that schoolteacher it will be me!"
 The three other widowers heard of the plan, and each one said it was a good thing and each one had his whiskers trimmed and his hair dyed and made ready for the struggle. A seminary was written to and a teacher sent on. It was for Widower Thomas to drive across the country in a horse and buggy to the railroad and meet her and bring her on.

Widower Thomas had hopes that the schoolma'am would be about twenty-two and good looking. The arriving teacher turned out to be all he had hoped for. He felt so well acquainted with her before they had driven half a mile that he began:
 "Now, Miss White, you are coming among strangers, and I want to post you about them. There's old Jim Williams to begin with. He's one of the trustees and a widower with four children."

"And there's Moses Burt. He's another widower. Claims to be forty-eight years old, but will never see sixty again. Looking around for a young wife and ought to be ashamed of himself. Great hand to laugh at his own jokes, but if you laugh with him he'll sure think you are in love with him and pop the question."
 "Then I shall not laugh."

"Then there's Joab Tyler. Mebbe he's only fifty next birthday, as he claims, but he's sopping on the hair dye to beat the band. Five children for a second wife to take care of."
 "That's dreadful!"
 "Then there is Henry Stevens," continued the moderator. "I can't say that Henry is over forty years old, and his wife only left three children, but you can judge what sort of a man he is when I tell you that he never shed a tear at the funeral. He never even sniffled. Seemed just as unconcerned as if he was hoeing taters. I wouldn't advise no woman to marry a man like that."

"Then comes Levi Schemerhorn. He was to Chicago once, and he'll brag of it to you and try to make out that he is a hero. Don't you let on that you think he's anything great or you'll be a goner."

"No, I won't," answered the girl, "but are there any more?"
 "Ahem! One more, Miss White. It's me. I'm a widower with a hundred acre farm and only one child. My tater crop alone last year brought me $500. Rising of forty is my age, and I can run down a calf. Got a melodeon in the house and am willing to buy a red ingrain carpet and lace curtains for the parlor. In case I get married I shall go on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and not mind the expense."

"And are there no young men in the neighborhood?" asked Miss White.
 "Jest one, and he's a hired man who don't amount to shucks—eats with his knife and fork and says that Boston is in New Jersey. If I was you I wouldn't let him get the idea that you was a kindred spirit."
 "No, I won't."

Miss White was left at the house of the Widow Harkness, which was to be her first boarding place. Supper was not yet finished when the widowers began to gather, and in the course of half an hour the whole six were there. Their excuses were various, but the fact was apparent that they had come to size the schoolma'am up. Once there no one would go and leave the others behind to get some advantage. The clock had struck midnight when the widow turned them all out in a bunch. There wasn't exactly a fight outside the gate, but the six told each other what they thought of hair dye and old galoots. When they were gone the schoolma'am turned to the widow and asked:

"Don't any of those men want you for a wife?"
 "Not if they can get you," was the doleful reply.

Ten minutes of confidential talk settled things. The schoolhouse was close by, and on its door was tacked the notice:

"This place closed for repairs."

At daylight next morning the widow harnessed a horse to her democrat wagon, and within two hours Miss White was landed at the spot where the moderator had found her. When the community learned that she had gone those six old widowers looked at each other and said:

"Durn your buttons, but it was your grab and your hair dye that driv her away and you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

MANY people have things that they no longer have use for, but keep them in the house taking up room and doing no one any good.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

THE "RIDING MILLER'S" PASS THROUGH EMMITSBURG

Both Declare That the Emmitsburg—Frederick Pike Best Road Between Here and Toronto, Canada.

"The Riding Millers" passed through town on Wednesday on their way from Frederick to Gettysburg. This gentleman and his wife, "The Riding Millers" as they are called left Toronto, Canada on June 3, 1911, on bicycles, not motor driven, for a 10,000 mile tour on a wager of $1000 in gold. The conditions of the wager are that they are to have no means of support except what they can derive from the sale of post cards bearing their picture, they are to ride the whole distance on bicycles driven by foot power and are to complete the trip in one year.

So far they have complied with the terms and have ridden over 4000 miles. When they left Toronto they carried a message from the Governor-General of Canada to the President of the United States. This they delivered and are now bearing a message from Mr. Taft to the Governor-General.

When Mr. and Mrs. Miller left Emmitsburg they went to Gettysburg and from there to Harrisburg. Before leaving they both acknowledged that in all their travels they have never ridden over a better road than the pike between here and Frederick.

MARYLAND WEEK EXPOSITION

Products of Farms, the Dairy To Exceed Any Yet Given.—Some $2000 in Prizes.

Arrangements are rapidly progressing for the "Maryland Week" exposition to be held in the 5th Regiment Armory, Baltimore, December 4th to 9th under the auspices of the Maryland Horticultural Society, the Cereal & Forage Crop Breeders' Association, The Maryland State Dairymen's Association and the Maryland Bee Keepers' Association. The annual meetings of these associations, as well as those of the Maryland State Grange and the Maryland Farmers' will be held at the same time in the Armory.

Already the indications are that the exhibits of all products of the farm, the dairy, etc., will far exceed any before shown in Maryland along this line. Besides the beauty and attractiveness of the exhibit, it will be highly educational for the farmer, fruit grower and others. The time for holding the exposition is believed to be best suited for the country and city people to join together and exchange ideas on the growing of crops and the best way to market them, and to become closer linked socially.

More than $2,000 in prizes will be awarded to the farmers, fruit growers, florists, dairymen and bee-keepers of the State for best exhibits.

BRUNSWICK SAVINGS BANK

DEPOSITORS GET ONE THIRD About $80,000 Distributed Among Those Having $230,000 Deposited.—Bank Closed Last December.

Receivers of the closed Brunswick Savings Bank started Wednesday to pay 83½ per cent. of claims. About $80,000 will be distributed among depositors having about $230,000 in bank.

Since the court passed an order on August 17, authorizing the first distribution, the receivers have made out more than 800 checks which are now ready at the People's Bank.

The bank was closed last December, tying up all the funds. The receivers hope to make another distribution soon. It is thought the bank will eventually pay 50 to 60 per cent. of claims.

GARDEN CURIOSITIES.

The vegetables and fruits on the well-worked farm of Mr. John F. Adelsberger in Eyley's Valley are not content to grow singly and numerous freak specimens are the result. The latest plant on the above farm to do overwork was a cymlin vine which produced several twin cymlins. The specimen sent to this office was unusually large and of fine flavor; but this can be said of everything

GETTYSBURG

A largely attended and well patronized picnic and dance was held at Round Top last Wednesday afternoon and evening by Gettys Lodge I. O. O. F.

Gettysburg Lodge, No. 1045, B. P. O. E., held a corn bake at the home of W. B. McIlhenny, near Hunterstown, on Thursday evening.

The first season of the Gettysburg Chautauqua opened on Friday evening with an audience of over a thousand people. The Citizens band gave an open air concert from seven to eight o'clock, when the real work of the chautauqua was taken up. Prof. C. F. Sanders made the inaugural address; Rev. Dr. J. A. Sigmaster offered prayer, Mrs. Scorer gave two whistling selections. The lecture for the evening was by Dr. John S. Scorer, his subject being "The Story of Old Glory."

At the close of the song service on Sunday Evening, Rev. Lamar complimented Mr. Taylor on the singing by his chorus, saying that it was superior to that rendered by chautauqua choirs in much larger towns.

On Monday afternoon Rev. Lamar gave a lecture on "Human Electricity." In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bornschein gave a musical prelude; after which Rev. Lamar lectured on "Dixie After the War."

A chapter in the history of Gettysburg was brought to a close at 11.15 Sunday night by the death of Captain James T. Long. For a period of twenty years tourists have associated the name of Captain Long with the world's most famous battleground. Most of them studied the field from the text of his "Red Book" and none left without a knowledge of him.

Captain Long was 68 years, 7 months and 26 days old. He was born near Little Britain, Lancaster county, the son of Robert H. and Sarah (McDowell) Long. His early education was acquired in the public schools and at Union Academy, near his home.

He had barely completed a course here when the Civil War broke out and like many other patriotic men he did not hesitate taking up arms for the defense of his flag. In June, 1871, he donned the uniform of a private in Co. B. 99th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He quickly rose to the rank of corporal, but in November, 1861, after having been injured by falling timber, he contracted typhoid fever and for a time was incapacitated, as it was thought, for further service. He was therefore discharged April 1862 on account of physical disability. The impulse to serve his country was however too great to remain inactive and after being rejected on account of disabilities several times he succeeded in enlisting in Company G. 21st Pennsylvania Cavalry in June 1863. Here his high qualities as a soldier were soon recognized and he was in turn promoted to the rank of sergeant major of the regiment before being mustered out of service. In February, 1864, he enlisted for the third time as a private in Company G. 21st Pennsylvania Cavalry for three years. He served until November, during which time he attained the rank of sergeant major and was then mustered out of service to be commissioned second lieutenant of Company A. 21st Pennsylvania Cavalry. From this position he was promoted to first lieutenant and for heroism in the last campaign was made Brevet Captain.

After having engaged in business at Chambersburg, Philadelphia and Montgomery, Alabama, Captain Long came to Gettysburg in 1884 as the traveling passenger agent for the Gettysburg and Harrisburg Railroad. In this capacity he made a study of and began lecturing on the battlefield. In 1886 he began to devote his entire time to his battle field work and in 1891 published the now famous "Capt Long's Red Book," descriptive of the battle.

ACROSS THE LINE

Fairfield.—W. F. Watson, of Fairfield lost a valuable horse. Mr. Watson in company with his family drove to Gettysburg to take the train for New The driver instead of returning home with the team immediately, met some friends and lingered in Gettysburg. He neglected to feed the horses at the noon hour and started for home, on arriving at Fairfield, the one, a heavy farm horse died from colic before a veterinary surgeon could be summoned.

An East bound freight, extra No. 609, heavily loaded, had two coal cars, derailed a few hundred yards East of Tom's Creek Trestle. The wreck occurred at the same place where two other derailments have been reported within two weeks. Traffic was delayed for about five hours owing to the failure of a wrecking crew to respond from Hagerstown. The crew was telegraphed for immediately after the wreck occurred, but were slow in reaching the scene of trouble.

County Commissioner Cashman, Kane and Weikert, accompanied by S. Mile Miller, made an inspection trip through a section of the southern end of the country. A number of bridges that have recently been repaired were carefully looked over and others were examined with a view to seeing what repairs are necessary. The black bridge, on the Emmitsburg road, over Tom's Creek, which has had a new coat of paint and some new flooring laid, was found to be in good condition. The bridge near Zora, over Tom's Creek, has had an entire new floor and is now in fine shape.

At the bridge crossing Marsh Creek on the Emmitsburg road, near Greenmount, considerable work was found to be necessary. Some weeks ago an automobile accident occurred at this point. The driver lost control of his car on the hill running up from the creek. The car ran down the hill backwards, and demolished a section of the stone abutment adjoining the bridge, about eight feet in length. In addition to rebuilding the abutment it was also decided to lay new flooring and give a fresh coat of paint to this structure.

On the Fairfield road the bridge crossing Marsh creek at Bream's has been damaged by some of the heavy storms passing over the country this summer. Among other minor damages a great part of the coping has been blown away. The appearance of the bridge, at Rhode's Mill has been greatly improved by repainting, no other repairs having been necessary there, at this time. The Commissioners will continue to visit bridges in different parts of the county and make an effort to have all of them in good condition before the arrival of the winter season.

MT. ST. MARY'S ITEMS.

The air that blows around "The Hill-side" and the vicinity of Mt. St. Mary's is most bracing and the home-grown vegetables most nourishing. This has become painfully evident in the fact that several of Miss Corry's boarders have launched so much on the shady side of obesity, that a mixed diet of crackers and water is urged. We wish them a speedy return to a bean pole, so that in the future mountain rides, the springs of the carriages need not be so heavily insured.

Gems In Verse

THE SHIP OF DREAMS. In the silver trail there's a sail tonight. And a ship stands in the far sea line-- A shape that never is seen by day, In mist enshrouded and veiled in spray, Bearing no store of mart or mine.

Out of the haven of heart's desire Many a year's she overdue; Dreams forgotten and visions old, Yearnings bartered away for gold-- These are the wares she brings to you.

Spoil of the lands of long ago, Treasure of years when the heart was young, Tears she bringeth and childish woe, Wistful longing and kiss of snow, The hope untold and the song unsung.

You never shall hear her anchor chains Nor ever the sound of her flapping sail, Yet eyes that are weary and old and dim Have seen her far on the ocean rim, Sailing across the silver trail. --Charles W. Kennedy in Ainslee's.

THE HILLS. Joy dwells amid the morning hills. Why must we seek the dreary plain To plod beneath the burning sun Toward the far reaches of the main? Fair hills of youth, dear, happy hills, Oh, to be with you once again And not thus journeying on and on Toward the inevitable main! --Clinton Scollard.

TONGUE COUPLETS. THE boneless tongue, so small and weak, Can crush and kill," declared the Greek.

"The tongue destroys a greater horde," The Turk asserts, "than does the sword."

THE Persian proverb wisely saith, "A lengthy tongue--an early death."

OR sometimes takes this form instead: "Don't let your tongue cut off your head."

"The tongue can speak a word whose speed," Says the Chinese, "outstrips the steed."

WHILE Arab sages this impart: "The tongue's great storehouse is the heart."

FROM Hebrew wit the maxim sprung, "Though feet should slip, ne'er let the tongue."

THE sacred writer crowns the whole-- "Who keeps the tongue doth keep his soul." --Spurgeon.

BETWEEN JOY AND SORROW. BETWEEN joy and sorrow, As 'twixt day and morrow, I lay for a space, And I heard, so lying, My old grief sighing From her faroff place.

I said: "Thou art over, And where dreams hover 'Thou hoverest now, In the land of thy dwelling What waters are welling And blossoms what bough? "

"Old tears are its rivers, The wind that there quivers Is breath of old sighs; Wreck strewn are the shores there, And sunset endures there Through infinite skies.

"But all there is quiet, There no wave makes riot On the waif cumbered coasts, Where thou movest banished, But not quite vanished-- A ghost among ghosts." --Philip Bourke Marston.

JOYS OF HOME. Sweet are the joys of home, And pure as sweet, for they Like dews of morn and evening come To make and close the day.

The world hath its delights And its delusions too, But home to banish bliss invites More tranquil and more true. --Anonymous.

TEARS THAT SWEETEN WOE. THERE is no thing in love or song To match the tears that sweeten woe;

Not gems that deck the ornate throng May meetly unto them belong, But what the sage knows not, they know.

Not charmed vision of romance That rises like a god afar; Yes, like a god of fiery glance Who comes with golden sword and lance Returning from a Titan war.

Not a still hook in nature's breast Wherein the dreamer flits dreams And where the soft leaves droop in rest At evening's delicate behest, Wrapped in a mantle of moonbeams.

And not the dark, wind haunted sea Nor in the loved one's eyes--in vain Are all the fantasies of art, The moonlit groves of witchery, The babble of the forest rills.

Nay, poet, seek not in your heart Nor in the loved one's eyes--in vain Are all the fantasies of art, From them the mysteries depart To wait upon the tears of pain.

Lone is the road they take and long, Gently they come and gently go, Far from the mart, far from the throng, Far from desire, far from song, The perfect tears that sweeten woe. --R. T. Chandler in Westminster Gazette.

THE NEW THOUGHT. WHEN Hope recedes I clear a path For mortals where the road is hard I reap from failure's aftermath; I enter where the gates are barred.

O'er seas unsailed I hold the helm; I cleave a passage through the air; I find the goal of every realm; My questing foot is everywhere.

I raise the burden for the faint And press his shoulder to the wheel; Train him to scorn the weak complaint And bruse distrust beneath his heel.

WHO woos me finds his boon at length, Unaided, while for others' sakes He shares the brotherhood of strength And to his helpful self awakes. --John Treland

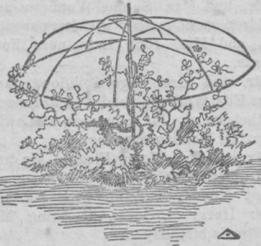

Farm and Garden

GOOD LAWN BEAUTIFIER.

Its Foundation Is Only an Old Umbrella Frame, but It's Most Artistic.

One does not need the services of an expensive landscape gardener to make one's lawn a thing of beauty. Of course, thick, well rolled and well cropped turf is the prime necessity, but there is always needed some bit of color to accentuate the eye resting beauty of the long sweep of green.

Here is the way one ingenious woman secured a centerpiece for her sword, according to Popular Mechanics: She dug up an old umbrella from the attic, cut away the faded silk covering, ran a piece of thin wire through the top of each rib, taking a turn around each eye, so as to keep the ribs apart at regular intervals, and then sunk the handle deep into the ground in a small circle cut out of the sod in the middle of the lawn.

Then she planted some sweet peas in a variety of colors, and now she has a Joseph's coat mound of color that is an absolute delight. And, obeying the old adage, "the more sweet peas you pick the more you'll have," she has her vases all through the house filled all the time.

THE VALUABLE TURNIP.

Worth Growing if Only For Its Effect on Dairy Cows.

While the real food value of turnips is considered somewhat low, they are wonderful appetizers, especially for dairy cows, not only toning up their systems, but increasing the flow of milk.

Then there are several tempting dishes for the table that can be formed from turnips, and by storing a goodly supply of them for winter their use will save considerable of the higher priced products, both around the feed stalls and table.

Turnips for winter storage should not be sown till in July, from the 10th to the 20th, or even a few days later will not be too late. Where they are sown earlier than this the hot weather causes them to become strong and pithy, but if sown as above stated they mature when the weather is cooler, which greatly enhances their flavor, gives them a firm, solid flesh and adds to their keeping qualities.

A rich, sandy loam or fresh soil is best adapted to turnip raising and they may be sown either broadcast or drilled. If sown broadcast it may be done just before a shower, and there will then be no necessity for covering the seed, as the raindrops will do the work better, a light covering being all that is required. If the seeds are drilled one can arrange so the plants may be cultivated by hand, the rows being placed about eighteen inches apart. Put in plenty of seed

The Little Shad Flopping Along After Mr. Waltmack

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How a Loving Little Pet Shad Was Drowned

"DADDY," said Jack as he turned his pillow over to get the cool side, "do you believe everything you see in the newspapers?" "My, but that's a hard question, son," answered daddy. "I'm afraid it would take me a year to answer that. But tell me just why you ask, and maybe I can help you out."

"I saw in our paper this evening," said Jack, "a story about how pickered like blueberries and will jump as high as eight feet out of water to get at the fruit that overhangs the borders of the pond."

"Well," said daddy, "I certainly never saw any such sight as the newspaper describes, but you must remember, my son, that fish are queer things. Whales have calves like cows, and shad lay eggs like hens. But if you told a man who had seen only whales about shad eggs or a man who had seen only shad about whale calves there would be much trouble in town."

"And then, besides, fishermen are peculiar. They never can see quite straight, and, furthermore, the poor fish can't talk, while fishermen can talk longer and faster than any other set of men. So when I hear a story like that one you read and know that there is no possible way of proving it I simply shut my eyes and say, 'Well, let's hope it's so.'"

"For instance, there's that Mr. Waltmack in my office, whose dog pulled the plug out of the bathtub the other day and saved the house from being flooded. You remember?"

"Surely," laughed the children.

"Well," said daddy, "he tells a story about a tame shad that nobody believes, but that nobody can deny. He lived in Philadelphia once (only once), and his cottage stood near the river. One morning when he was all dressed up to go to the office he strolled down to the river and saw a little shad looking at him admiringly. Mr. Waltmack reached down to scratch it, but the shad caught his finger and made the gentleman pull him to land."

"Mr. Waltmack grew a little bit frightened and walked back to his house, and the shad followed him, flopping along as fast as he could walk."

"After this exhibition of affection he kept the shad. It would stay in the kitchen and never tried to go back to the river. But--and to give him credit, children, Mr. Waltmack tells this with tears in his eyes--one night the maid left the kitchen window open, a heavy rainstorm blew in, and there in the morning was poor little Mr. Shad drowned."

"As soon as you go downstairs, daddy," said Evelyn, "I'm going to say my prayers all over again."

at the time of drilling and thin out the plants when they come up till they are from three to four inches apart, thus giving them ample room to grow. --Homestead.

Rape Seed For Hogs. If a little rape seed is sprinkled in with the rye a variety of feed will be provided and the hogs will do even better than upon rye alone.

Brief Suggestions.

Go over the orchard and see that all the wounds are well painted.

The golden wax bean is a favorite with many garden makers. It is tender, of good quality and stringless.

If a small pig is chilled it can be revived by dipping it in water as hot as you can bear your hand in, then wrapping it in warm flannel.

Don't keep your horse in an overheated stable and then stand him for hours in a freezing atmosphere and wonder how he became paralyzed.

The durability of the mule is a strong point in his favor. He lives and works to a good old age. His "sense" of self protection is strong, and he avoids many injuries.

Never get the idea in your head that drugs and health are inseparable, for in most cases it will be found that what we keep out of the pig's stomach has more to do with its health than what we put in.

Blackberries are very prolific and ripen at the time they can be economically gathered and marketed. They are seldom injured by late frosts and for this reason are surer than some other berries that ripen earlier.

The wheel hoes are great labor savers. A plow attachment is very convenient for opening furrows and to cover the larger seeds, as peas, beans and sweet corn. Some of the combination wheel tools with drills, cultivating teeth, plows and rakes are very satisfactory.

Beyond Doubt.

When Ikey entered the shop with a limp, dejected air, carrying a pair of checked trousers over his arm, Mr. Solomon looked at him with displeasure.

"Ikey, why do you bring those pants back?" he inquired severely.

"He would not to keep them," said Ikey sorrowfully. "He said they not of any wool pants."

"He did?" cried Mr. Solomon indignantly. "Here, Ikey, see those mot' holes in dis right leg, my son? Take those pants right away back and show him dose mot' holes!"--Youth's Companion.

LIFE'S CIRCLE.

In the journey of life we often travel in circles; therefore do today the good that is in you. Plant your blossoms. You will come back to them by and by. It is the beauty of the things you do today that has most to do with making beautiful your tomorrow. One of the blessings of sunset is the memory of what was planted in the morning.
