> By the tables it appears that the manufacture of clothing is by far the most important industry of the state. The two branches, men's clothing and women's clothing, combined gave employment in 1909 to an average of 22,-425 wage earners and turned out products valued at $41,272,000. These figures represent 20.8 per cent. and 13.1 per cent., respectively, of the totals for the state. In 1904 and in 1099 Maryland ranked fourth among the states in the production of men's clothing and ninth and eighth, respectively, in women's clothing.

> For the cities of over 10,000 inhabitants, Baltimore, Cumberland, Hagerstown and Frederick, many interesting figures are given. > Those who overdraw their bank account will have to be careful if the bill introduced by Mr. Newman, of Baltimore, in the House is enacted into law.

It provides that any person who draws a check "without knowing or having reasonable ground to believe that sufficient funds are at that time on deposit" shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be liable to a fine of not more than $100 or not more than a year in jail.

Stringent legislation against lynching with severe penalties for lynchers and jail officials permitting lynching is proposed in a bill.

'The bill is a direct result of the recent lynching in Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, and had it been in force at been liable to 10 years' imprisonment in the penitentiary, the authorities in charge of the Brooklyn jail would have been subject to immediate removal from Edwin Hawley, the railroad magnate, office by the Governor, and the survivors of the man lynched would have held a damage claim not exceeding $5000 against the town of Brooklyn.

The bill describes a "mob" within the meaning of the law as any collection of three or more individuals assembled for the purpose of offering violence Two Americans were wounded at to the person or property of anyone supposed to have been guilty of the violation of the criminal law, or for the strikers at Lawrence occurred to-day purpose of exercising correctional or such person. Any act of such a mob resulting in death to any person or persons is regarded under the bill as lynch-

Fr. Vaughan Flays Divorce Law. Father Bernard Vaughan, the noted

English Jesuit priest and orator, told an audience that crowded Carnegie Hall, New York, Wednesday night that the greatest dangers threatening society to-day are a lax system of divorce and marriage, cradleless nurseries and a Christ from the rank of headmaster to a place on a back seat and instead of drilling an army is only arming a mob. Only by restoring Christian principles in all things, he said, can society be saved from approaching the low level of pagan Rome in the muddiest stage of its "muddy Golden Age."

CARDINAL O'CONNELL

WELCOMED TO BOSTON

Women Kneel in Boston Streets In Blinding Snow Storm as Prince of Church Passes By.

The welcome home given His Eminence William, Cardinal O'Connell on Wednesday was in no wise lessened in magnitude and in enthusiasm by the dense snowstorm which prevailed, and came from Naples, reached Quarantine before dawn, and it may be added remained there until Thursday because of small pox in the steerage.

The municipal steamers were allowed by courtesy of Collector Curtis to go down to the ship and the reception committee met the Cardinal in the library, where Mayor Fitzperald extended a welcome home in behalf of the million and a half of Catholics who he said are in New England.

The Cardinal, in his response, alluded feelingly to the good-will manifested toward him by non-Catholics as well as by church members, and said that when he mentioned this to the Holy Father the latter exclaimed: "That is good, because I know that many of the good Americans who are not Catholics are better than some of our Europeans who are so-called Catholics."
Cardinal O'Connell told the commit-

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scoth-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.-Mary-Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

An association of this kind can readily be formed and it should take its rise at the county seat.

THE JUDGESHIP.

For months speculation has been rife concerning the judgeship of the Sixth judicial district -Judge John C. Motter's term expiring next fall. It is conceded that should Judge Motter take the nomination he would be the strongest Republican candidate in the field. Judge Motter declines the nomination, however, and as it stands now there are three Republican aspirants for the position, Edward S. Eichelberger, Arthur D. Willard and Frank C. #### CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A HEROIC SPANISH MAIDEN.

By A. W. MACY.

A woman helped to give Napoleon his first check and to show Europe that he was not invincible. Her name was Agustina, and she is known in history as the Maid of Saragossa. In the Peninsular war the city of Saragossa was twice besieged by the French army; once in the summer of 1808 and again the following winter. The city had no fortifications but crumbling walls, behind which were a few ancient cannon; but the whole population, men women and children, rushed to its defense. Bravest of them all was Agustina. She was not a woman of quality, only a lemonade seller in the streets; but she performed mighty deeds of valor and by her example encouraged others to acts of bravery. Once when a cannoneer fell mortally wounded she snatched the fuse from his hand and herself fired the cannon. For her brave actions she was made an officer in the Spanish army, and presented with many decorations. Saragossa fell, but only after 50,000 of her citizens had perished from war and pestilence. Her heroic defense staggered Napoleon for a time, for it revealed the intrepid spirit of a people when fighting for their homes. Agustina lived to be very old, dying in 1857.

MUSHROOMS.

Frequent cases of poisoning from eating mushrooms, fresh and canned, are reported. There are more than 5,000 varieties of mushroom, only a few of which are edible. Some poisonous varieties resemble the edible so closely that it is not safe for one unacquainted with their distinguishing features to eat them as they may be found in the fields. Since the mushroom has been cultivated extensively for canning it can be found in the grocery stores. There is no special nutritive quality in the mushroom to warrant the risk and expense of using it. A nor-

Wall Street's Name.

Wall street got its name from a military wall or earthworks that was thrown up by the Dutch in 1654. The English colonists in Connecticut, laying claim to all the land "as far as the ocean," moved down and settled on Westchester creek in what is now Bronx borough. The Dutch of New Amsterdam were in great fear of a by a dray, and some other negroes hostile move down on them and sent | hired a hack to take him home. With his last ounce of ance if the enemy should decide to energy he stuck his head out of the make a hostile move against New Amsterdam. For a time a regular patrol of soldiers was distributed along the military wall, detachments being assigned to keep close guard over the two gates in the wall, one at what is now Broadway and the other at the East river end. At that period the wall marked the northern boundary of the town of New Amsterdam.-New York

"Overhang" Houses.

By the year 1670 wooden chimneys and log houses of the Plymouth and Bay colonies were replaced by more sightly houses of two stories, which frequently built with the second story jutting out a foot or two over the first and sometimes with the attic story still further extending over the second story. This "overhang" is popularly supposed to have been built for the purpose of affording a convenient shooting place from which to repel the Indians. This is, however, an historic fable. The overhanging second story was a common form of building in England in the time of Queen Elizabeth, and the Massachusetts and Rhode Island settlers simply and naturally copied their old homes.

Making Her Trunk Safe,

Saved. A lazy negro who let his wife take in washing without demur had a dream one night and a policy dream at that. He borrowed money from her to play the combination, and before he left home he stated his conviction.

Before the sandy plains of our southwestern states and territories were converted into verdant fields by the ingenuity and tireless energy of man mirages were very common in those regions, the Indians regarding the phenomenon as being the work of evil

The Horse's Pedometers.

The whorls of hair on the coats of horses and other animals are natural pedometers, inasmuch as they register a title like mine, you know, I can find the locomotive activities of the animals on whose bodies they are found. The best examples and the greatest number of these hairy whorls and crests are found on the domestic horse. A notable instance is the graceful feathering that extends along the hollow of the flank, dividing the trunk. of the animal from the hind quarters. There are also crests and whorls or the horse's chest and other parts of its body. A study of the action of the underlying muscles explains the origin of these peculiarities in the lay of the hair and furnishes the justification for calling them pedometers, although the analogy is, of course, merely superficial.-St. Louis Republic.

Pittsburgh In 1784.

When General Forbes captured Fort Duquesne in 1758 he renamed it Pittsburgh in honor of the great English inspirer of victory. Later it dropped the "h" and became Pittsburg, only finally to tack the "h" on officially and revert to the original spelling. In 1784 Arthur Lee described the place in language which seems strange to those who know "the Smoky City" of today: "Pittsburgh is inhabited almost entirely by Scots and Irish, who live in paltry log houses. There are in the town four attorneys, two doctors and not a priest of any persuasion, nor church or chapel, so that they are likely to be damned without the benewill never be very considerable."

Cheaping.
In parts of Switzerland the baker's wife carries round the bread in a sort of hamper, and she has not a fixed, immutable charge, but chaffers for a price with the customers. The old English word for this process was "cheaping," which in many places in England has been corrupted into chipping. Chipping Norton, for instance, is really Cheaping Norton, or the place where goods were cheapened-that is, sold by

They Sink Backward.

"Hippopotamuses are the only water animals that sink backward when going under the surface of the water,' said a keeper in the Central park menagerie to a group of visitors in front of the animals' tank.

"Aquatic animals, as a rule, dive into the water head first and make more or less splashing. But the hippo goes down so quietly that if a hunter were standing near the edge of an African pool the big river horse would disappear without attracting attention. They keep up the custom in captivity. where there is no necessity of guarding against enemies. As they go down they throw up their noses and fill their lungs. I have timed this specimen and found that she can stay under water for five minutes. She then comes up with a snort and takes a fresh supply of air. Perhaps she could stay down longer if she was trying to avoid danger."-New York

cences of President Noah Porter, recalled a talk the kindly gentleman gave to his freshman class. "Young gentlemen," said the president, "the air of New Haven is especially heavy and damp at night, owing to the proximity of the city to the sea, and I wish to advise you always to keep your windows closed at night; otherwise your health will be likely to suffer." That was the advice of the president of the institution. It is significant of the extent to which ideas change with the years. Now everybody is for out of doors air, and the person who followed the advice of President Porter would be condemned out of hand; and yet, if we are not mistaken, that gentleman managed to live out his threescore years and ten and do them about eleven better. He was born in 1811 and died in 1892. He believed in closed windows.-Hartford Courant.

Whistler Was a Dandy.
If taking infinite pains with his appearance means dandyism, then Whistler was a dandy. The very word pleased him, and he used it often, in American fashion, to express perfection or charm or beauty. Never was son and his dress. He was as careful of his hair as a woman, though there was no need of the curling tongs with which he has been reproached: the difficulty was to restrain his curls and keep them in order. The white lock gave just the right touch. However fashion changed, he always wore the mustache and little imperial which other West Point men of his generation retained through life. Even his thick, bushy eyebrows were trained, and they added to the humorous or sardonic expression of the deep blue eyes from which many shrank.-Pen-

Welsh Bulls.

nell's "Life of Whistler."

Ireland's position as the country in which "bulls" blossom best is being seriously challenged. It was a Welsh member of parliament who crushingly remarked to an opposition member: "The honorable member has attempted to throw a bombshell at the government, but in the hands of the chancellor of the exchequer it was turned into a cocked hat long before it was thrown.'

It was also a Welsh member, though not the same one, who, against a proposal to fortify London. began earnestly with: "Our navy is our only defense. If our navy temporarily left the seas" - And then he had to stop. Delighted members, with visions of battleships swooping over green fields or climbing over housetops, were in a roar, and it was some minutes before business could proceed.-London Answers.

Ions Are Very Small.

The smallest piece of matter is called the ion. It is so small that a person could not imagine that anything could be smaller. It is so small that its identity is lost in its effect. It is the point where solid matter resolves itself into a form of electricity. Now, think how small that is from this experiment: If the ions in a toy balloon, full of gas, were counted out at the rate of a hundred per minute it would take 100.-000,000 persons 4,000,000 years to count them. The fact that the human intellect can discover this fact is quite as startling as the fact itself. This seems fit of clergy. The place, I believe, to be getting on the edge of material creation, and if the ion could be further divided we would have to get over into the spirit world to do it, for there possibly its last analysis only can be reached.-Ohio State Journal.

Over the Phone.

"He hasn't slept all night, doctor," said Mrs. Blinks over the phone, describing her husband's symptoms, "and this morning he complains of aches in his bones and a general headachy feeling. Is there anything I can do?" Just then the wires crossed with the phone connection of the dog fancier. "Sure!" came the response. "Bring him in this afternoon and I'll cut his

Living Up to an Ideal

"There were three teachers in the building," remarked the eighth-grade teacher to the sympathetic friend, whose interest in the new principal last year was purely professional.

"The first of the three was Miss Smiley, who recently had become engaged to what she called 'the best and dearest man in the whole wide world;' the second was Mrs. Allen, who had a worthless husband to support, and the third was Miss Ball, who is now instructing the children of the boys and girls to whom she taught the alphabet at the beginning of her career.

"The rest of us, however, being young and free from serious entanglements, couldn't be expected to ignore the fact that the new principal was handsome and under 30, now, could

"Of course not," murmured the sympathetic friend.

"But isn't it astonishing," continued the young woman who presides over the eighth grade, "how easily some girls can modify their tastes and opinions to accord with those of a more or less attractive member of the op-

"It is," agreed the friend, "until we remember that it is one of the surest ways of arousing the interest of the average man.'

"That accounts for it, of course," said the eighth-grade teacher.
"At any rate," she went on, "no one had any trouble in discovering just what this particular young man did and didn't admire. He was just out of college and stood ready to deliver a well-formed opinion upon any subject you could mention, from vanity bags to vivisection. "The very first week of school he proclaimed himself an ardent admirer of Wagner; whereupon, Miss Flickersham, who had been in the habit of dismissing Wagner's music with the remark, 'Difficult, yes, but why should one want to do it?'-forsook Italian opera on the spot and declared that it would be a good thing for real music if Caruso should lose his voice permanently! Some women positively have no opinions that an attractive man couldn't undermine in five minutes! But of course the young man was pleased; they used to discuss Wagner by the hour!

"A few days later, the first primary teacher, who had passed her entire vacation on the links, heard him say that he didn't approve of athletic women; so she promptly concealed her golf clubs, reformed her swinging stride and began to apply to her nutbrown face and hands every bleach, cream and lotion known to the beauty

"Then Miss Smith happened to see two or three reproductions of Paul Helleu's pictures in the principal's office and, as somebody once had told her that she was the perfect image of the 'Helleu girl,' she concluded that all she had to do was simply to exist -but she's that kind of girl anyway.

"The girl in the room next to mine actually bought $28 worth of false braids and puffs; just because he made a remark about abundant

"How absurd," murmured the sympathetic friend.

"I must admit," continued the other, 'that he talked very interestingly on some subjects and one is always glad to be set right. Of course, I wasn't a suffragette, but I did think that women ought to vote until I heard him talk about woman's true sphere and how much more influence she might wield through-well, in other waysand then I saw that I had really been open to conviction. I think it's important to keep one's mind in a receptive state."

"Oh, very important," declared her riend. "Well?" she added, expectfriend. antly.

"Oh," replied the eighth-grade teacher, "he was perfectly lovely to all of us-even to old Miss Ball-but he was married at the end of the summer vacation to a girl he'd known since they were children."

"Have you called on the bride?" asked the friend, after a brief silence. "After a proper interval," was the reply. "I didn't go too soon, because that would look as though I was trying to show that I didn't care, and I didn't wait too long, because that would look as though I did care."

"I suppose you were curious—" "Not in the least. You see, we all knew exactly what his ideal wasslender, with a mass of dusky hair and very feminine and devoted to Wagner-

The Board of Charities and Correction, which has charge of the expenditures for Montevue Hospital and the Jail has submitted to the Board of County Commissioners the report of the receipts and expenditures made by the Board for supplies and for maintaining Montevue and the Jail. The total expenditures for both institutions for the past year amounted to about $68,000. Postmaster W. C. Birely was for some years treasurer of the Board of Charities and Correction, and resigned the position to accept the appointment of postmaster. Upon his resignation, Jacob B. Tyson was appointed treasurer. On account of this change in the treasureship, the annual report has been divided into two sections, one covered by the period of which Mr. Birely was treasurer, and the other by the time in which Mr. Tyson has held the office.

Mr. Birely's report covers the time from January 22, 1911, to March 21, 1911. It shows that in this time $13,-521.51 was received and the sum of $13,285.36 was expended, leaving $236.-15 on hand which he turned over to Treasurer Tyson.

Mr. Tyson's report begins with March 21, 1911 and runs until January 30, 1912. In that time the board has received the sum of $55,072.23 and has expended $54,862.64, leaving on hand a balance of ó00000000000000000000 Guyon H. Buehler, proprietor and editor of the Star and Sentinel, died at his home on Carlisle street Sunday morning, after an illness of six weeks, aged 56 years, 7 months and 24 days.

Mr. Buehler was well-known and popular in Gettysburg, a son of the late David A. and Fanny J. Buehler, having spent his entire life in this place.

He passed much of his life in the printing and publishing business, having learned the trade in the office of which he was the late owner. He attended the public schools of his native town and for a time attended Pennsylvania College.

In 1896 he became sole owner of the Star and Sentinel, with which the Buehler family had been affiliated for many years. His father was at one time the owner and editor of this wellknown paper, which has been recognised as the Republican organ of Adams county. In the demise of Guyon H. Buehler the paper loses its control by the Buehler family, which has long been considered one of the most influential in the town.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Caroline Edwards, of Hagerstown; two sons, Guyon Edwards and Arthur Rainger, several brothers and sisters.

His remains were taken to the Episcopal church at 1 P. M. Tuesday, from which place the funeral was held at 2, Rev. W. B. Hooper conducting the services. At the grave the Masonic burial rites were observed. A committee from Gettys Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Gettysburg Lodge, B. P. O. E., of which organizations he was a member, also attended the funeral. Interment was made in Evergreen Cemetery.

The Gettysburg Board of Health reorganized last week by electing the following officers: President-H. B. Bender, Secretary-Dr. Henry Stewart, Medical Inspector-Dr. J. P. Dalbey, Health Officer-Wm. Wavil.

Rothhaupt's Mill owned by Mrs. H. E. Rothhaupt and operated by C. H. Wenchof, located along Marsh creek in Freedom township at the Natural Dam was totally destroyed by fire between three and four o'clock Saturday morning, together with all the contents, which included one hundred bushels of wheat which had been received at the mill on Friday. All the goods in a general store which had been started recently in connection with the mill were also destroyed with the cider press which was connected with the mill. The loss is estimated at about $3000. The mill was insured for $1,000 in the Liberty and Independent Fire Insurance Company.

The flames were first discovered by Mrs. Rothhaupt who lives in the house immediately across the road from the mill. Duck raisers can remove this prejudice by judicious advertising in the local papers, setting forth the advantages of duck eggs and advising as to their palatability.

The Indian Runner is almost as large as the Pekin at ten weeks, although the latter is more heavily feathered and this gives it a larger appearance.

Runner ducks do not need water to swim in but should always be provided with clean water for drinking and if this can be running water so much the better.

Perfectly Good Grievance

"Good afternoon," said the woman with the sharp chin, who had just walked into the dentist's office with her hat on one side, addressing the man who sat at the desk writing.

Before he could do more than look up she had drawn out the chair opposite and was looking forward earnestly. "I want to say," she bagon, "that Dr. Pribble, two blocks down the street, may be a particular friend of yours for all I know, but he ought to have his diploma taken away from him and the police ought to shut up his office before more innocent, unsuspecting people get taken in just because he has a smile like a Cheshire cat and looks as though he passed the any of the money. Though, to be try: sure, you don't look as though you'd be taken in by that sort of thing and I've no doubt, being in the same line of business, you hate each other like poison and are only too glad to get a customer away-

Bread Crumb Pudding.-Soak half a pint of bread crumbs in one pint of sweet milk; add the yolks of two eggs, half a cup of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and any flavoring desired. Mix well and add a few raisins and bake one hour. Cover with his pen still held at a surprised with a meringue, using the whites of the eggs and sugar. Bake a light

> Chocolate Bread Pudding.—Scald two cups of milk and pour over two cups of bread crumbs; melt one square of chocolate over hot water. Dip out a little of the milk, add to the chocolate with a third of a cup of sugar. Add an egg, beaten; add the crumbs and flavoring desired and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes. Serve warm with a sauce made by creaming a half cup of butter and adding a cup of sugar and flavoring

Queen of Puddings .- Mix together pint of milk and a pint of bread crumbs and a cup of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, a tablespoonful of melted butter and the rind of a lemon. Bake slowly a half hour, then remove and spread with jam, jelly or preserves, and cover with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs, a half cup of sugar and the juice of the lemon. Cover the pudding and brown. Serve with or without cream.

A Delicious Bread Pudding.—Butter several slices of bread and lay in the bottom of a baking dish; pour any stewed sauce, like prunes, peaches or canned fruit, then another layer of bread, and bake with or without a meringue. This may be eaten with cream and sugar for a sauce or, if the fruit is juicy, it will need none

TRYING TO BE OBLIGING

Before a blazing fire Miss Belinda and her brother were passing their last evening of the season in their summer home. Miss Belinda, smiling a little wistfully at her own thoughts, watched the leaping flames.

"Ben," she said, "without being the least cynical, I've come to the conclusion that gratuitous helpfulness isn'twell, isn't appreciated."

"Oh, did you just find that out?" inquired her brother. "How have you gained this long-deferred knowledge?"

"This morning," began Miss Belinda, "when I was putting so many of our things away for the winter, it oc curred to me that several of our be longings might be enjoyed by some of our neighbors, who seem to have so little to make their lives bright. It seemed to me, for instance, that it would be a pity to leave my reading lamp locked up here all winter when it might make the long evenings at the Dodds' more cheerful. So I had Mattie fill and clean it and then I carried it up the hill to the farmhouse myself and offered it to Mrs. Dodd.

"'Well,' she said, 'of course if you'd like to leave it here for safe keeping you can, just as well as not. It won't look bad on the center table in the parlor and anyway we shut up that room in cold weather.'

"But I wish you to have the use of it,' I explained.

'Oh, I don't set any store by those big fancy lamps—they burn too much oil,' she answered, as she opened the door of the sepulchral parlor and set the despised object on the center table next to the photograph album.

"Did you leave it there?" asked Ben "Yes, for I hadn't the courage to say that, as she didn't like it, I'd take it home.

"Probably she's reading by its bright refulgence at this moment," laughed Ben.

"I determined not to be discour aged," proceeded Miss Belinda, "so I took the basketful of magazines I had gathered together for the Stewarts over to their place. I met Mr. Stewart at the gate.

"I thought perhaps you and the boys would enjoy some light reading," I said.

"'I never read anything myself,' he replied, 'except the weekly paper. ] s'pose maybe the boys will look over them magazines after the fall work is done. But I don't think much of have ing a lot of reading stuff in the house, It's liable to take up the time the boys ought to give to their regular chores.

"I humbly suggested that the boys must have some leisure on rainy days and winter evenings, and he said could leave the magazines if I wanted to. I saw Miss Stewart when I went into the house to avail myself of this gracious permission, and I asked her if she wouldn't like the use of my sew ing machine during the winter. When I went to her 'quilting' last spring I saw what an old thrashing machine

"'No, thank you, Miss Belinda,' she T've used our machine ever since I came here to keep house for my brother and the boys and I wouldn't know how to make their shirts on any other kind. You're real kind, but it would be an awful bother for me to learn the tricks of a new fangled machine."

"She's a dear old stand-patter, isn't she?" said Ben. "Yes, and I didn't mind her refusal at all, but I was quite angry for a moment at Mrs. Merton's way of de clining a large package of macaroni, which I thought she'd like, for one day, when I kept her to lunch she ate-some with great relish. "'I know it's not for sale in the village groceries,' I said by way of explanation, as I gave it to her.

'Not much would be sold if it was,' she remarked, 'for it ain't good with out cheese, is it?'

"'Most people like it cooked with cheese,' I admitted, meekly. "'Well,' she said, 'it would cost more than it would come to for meto try to use it, for cheese is expensive, and I ain't one of the extravagant kind." 'This day's experiences ought to make you happier," remarked Ben. "You have found our neighbors around here content with what they have and certainly contentment is worth a great deal more than any modern conveniences, periodical literature or foreign food products. Isn't that so?" "Yes, I suppose so," reluctantly agreed Miss Belinda, "but I wanted the fun of helping."

Mrs. Barlow Brings Tommy to Tears. "The camel," answered Mr. Barlow, "is chiefly found in those burning climates which you have heard described. His height is very great, rising to 14 or 15 feet, reckoning to the top of his head; his legs are long and slender, his body not large, and his neck of amazing length. This animal is found in no part of the world that we are acquainted with, wild or free; but the whole race is enslaved by man and brought up to drudgery from
