ROOSEVELT IN TO FINISH

ACCEPT NOMINATION

Says "Yes" in a Letter to "The Seven Governors"

HIS "NO THIRD TERM" PLEDGE

Executives from West Virginia, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Wyoming, Michigan, Kansas and Missouri Pleased.

New York, Feb. 24, 1912.

Gentlemen: I deeply appreciate your letter, and I realize to the full the heavy responsibility it puts upon me, expressing as it does the carefully considered convictions of the men elected by popular vote to stand as the heads of government in their several States.

I absolutely agree with you that this matter is not one to be decided with any reference to the personal preferences or interests of any man, but purely from the standpoint of the interests of the people as a whole.

I will accept the nomination for President if it is tendered to me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference.

One of the chief principles for which I have stood, and for which I now stand, and which I have always endeavored and always shall endeavor to reduce to action, is the genuine rule of the people, and therefore I hope that so far as possible the people may be given the chance, through direct primaries, to express their preference as to who shall be the nominee of the Republican Presidential Convention.

Very truly yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The Hon. William E. Glasscock, Governor of the State of West Virginia, Charleston, W. Va.

The Hon. Chester H. Aldrich, Governor of the State of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.

The Hon. Robert P. Bass, Governor of the State of New Hampshire, Concord, N. H.

The Hon. Joseph M. Carey, Governor of the State of Wyoming, Cheyenne, Wyo.

The Hon. Chase S. Osborn, Governor of the State of Michigan, Lansing, Mich.

The Hon. W. R. Stubbs, Governor of the State of Kansas, Topeka, Kan.

The Hon. Herbert S. Hadley, Governor of the State of Missouri, Jefferson, Mo.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt's announcement of his willingness to accept the Republican nomination for President, printed above, was handed out at The Outlook office by Secretary Frank Harper, in the absence of the Colonel, who was in Boston. The Roosevelt letter was in answer to the following:

Chicago, Feb. 10, 1912.

We, the undersigned Republican Governors, assembled for the purpose of considering what will best insure the continuation of the Republican Party as a useful agency of good government, declare it our belief, after a careful investigation of the facts, that a large majority of the Republican voters of the country favor your nomination and a large majority of the people favor your election as the next President of the United States.

We believe that your candidacy will insure success in the next campaign. We believe that you represent as no other man represents those principles and policies upon which we must appeal for a majority of the votes of the American people, and which, in our opinion, are necessary for the happiness and prosperity of the country.

We believe that, in view of this public demand, you should soon declare whether, if the nomination for the Presidency comes to you unsolicited and unsought, you will accept it.

In submitting this request we are not considering your personal interests. We do not regard it as proper to consider either the interests or the preference of any man as regards the nomination for the Presidency. We are expressing our sincere belief and best judgment as to what is demanded of you in the interests of the people as a whole. And we feel that you would be Another Cuban Crisis Due.

Another crisis in Cuban affairs apparently is at hand. Reports from the island indicate that the unrest temporarily quieted by Secretary Knox's recent note of warning is about to break out anew as a result of the Cuban Supreme Court decision invalidating the law ousting office holders who were Spanish sympathizers during the revolution.

SHUSTER BLAMES ENGLAND MORE THAN RUSSIA IN PERSIA

The Latter Acted the Part of a Brigand While the Former Stood Aside and Shared the Plunder.

W. Morgan Shuster delivered an address in New York, Monday night on recent history in Persia, and began his talk with a reference to the day's news dispatches of the complete division of Persia into two spheres of influence and the passing of the neutral zone.

"I have been wondering ever since I left Persia," said Mr. Shuster, "whether she had the power of self-redemption left in her. If the open announcement of what was very well understood has really been made, it of course means the end of Persia as a sovereignty."

Mr. Shuster's speech, which lasted about an hour and a half, was an open and severe arraignment of Russia and Great Britain. Russia was compared to a brigand, and Great Britain, he said, stood quietly aside, expecting to escape the blame and yet to profit in the theft. Of the two Mr. Shuster was inclined to think that Russia's attitude had been the more honorable.

Celebrated Taxi Robbers Captured.

On Tuesday the New York police began rounding up those responsible for the hold up when two messengers of the East River National Bank were beaten into insensibility and then robbed of $25,000 in cash. The three men, Gino Mantani, Edward Kinsman and Jesse Albrozzi, are all under arrest, and two women are held as material witnesses.

To-night the Colombian Legation was closed and the Minister declined to be seen.

ROOSEVELT TO THOSE WHO CRY "REVOLUTION"

"If Recall of Judicial Decisions be Revolution, Make the Most of It." —Is Fighting for a Principle.

The Progressives of Massachusetts had Colonel Roosevelt before the State Legislature, where he made a speech on the line of his Columbus address, and dramatically exclaimed, paraphrasing Patrick Henry: "If that be revolution, make the most of it."

While the Colonel refrained from naming President Taft, many of the legislators said it was plain to whom he referred when, in concluding his address, he said:

"It has been stated in the last few days that the Constitution is a shield to guard against the passions of the people. Any one who holds that view does not know what democracy is. If you don't believe in the people, say so and abandon your system of government. But above all things, don't claim that you trust the people and underhandedly try to trick them out of the right of self-government."

Not Eager to Hear Watterson.

The Democrats of the Maryland House of Delegates declined to extend an invitation to Col. Henry Watterson, the famous Kentucky editor, to make an address before that body. The declaration was expressed in a year-and-a-half vote. On a roll-call the House, by a vote of 70 to 10, extended an invitation to Hon. William Randolph Hearst, editor of the New York American, to make an address. He is thus placed in the same class with Governor Harmon, Gov. Woodrow Wilson, Hon. Oscar Underwood and Speaker Champ Clark, who have been previously invited. Governors Harmon and Wilson, having accepted.

COLONEL'S YES IN THE PRESS

COMMENTS BY LEADERS

New Rooseveltism Cheers Only Seven Friends

VERY GENERALLY CRITICISED

New York Sun, New York Herald, Los Angeles Times, Governor Goldsborough and Others on The Political Significance of Move.

Few people were surprised at the announcement of Roosevelt's willingness to be the nominee for President but his indulgent friends were a little shocked at the reception this announcement had at the hands of the press and leaders in political circles. The following editorials will give an idea of the stand against the Colonel:

An Object of Pity.

From The New York Sun.

Theodore Roosevelt, twice President of the United States, is the possessor this morning of our profound commiseration. With all his native force he has been unable to master the boyish impulses that are so marked a feature of his very interesting character. This is purely a matter of personal psychology. Neither the very distinctly recorded pledge not again to be a candidate for and under no circumstances again to accept a nomination for President nor the ordinary obligations of decent behavior toward the loyal friend who for some not yet written reason now incurs his jealous resentment has prevailed over the selfish considerations, the hunger for the ears and eyes of the multitude, the invincible ambition to be at the centre of things, the lust for power and primacy.

We give Col. Roosevelt credit for semi-unconsciousness of the despicable nature of his performance. He is probably able to persuade himself for the moment that he is sacrificing himself rather than sacrificing another. Such palliatives of conscience are easily procurable by a man of his resources. Nevertheless, we pity him for the weakness he has shown; pity him on account of the place he has deliberately elected to hold in the pages of history.

The political consequences will probably be less appalling than the direct effect upon Col. Roosevelt individually. If he should fail to wrest from the President that which is Mr. Taft's by every right of reason and every rule of fair play and square dealing, Colonel Roosevelt will be one of the most ridiculous figures upon which posterity can bestow its amused contemplation. If by any unlikely chance he should succeed in his enterprise, it will be at the cost of much that men of honor and magnanimity hold dearer than even office for power. The third term question will become vital and decisive. The question of gratifying indefinitely one man's ambition to rule will produce an alignment of sober patriotic common sense against hysterical personal adulation; and he must despair of the Republic's future who can for a moment doubt the issue of that test.

Get Out The Big Posters.

From The New York Herald.

Get out the big posters! Have the streets cleared for the parade! Wave the flags and ring the bells! How about the dynamite? See that it is ready! Will the big balloon hold the hot air? Make her stanch and tight! Where are the Abernathy kids? Is the aeroplane ready, and how about the hydroplane, to say nothing of the submarine? Americans, all who are out of office and have a score to settle with Taft, listen! I have braved the perils of sea and land in the campaign of 1910. I have kept quiet while they have been smoking me out, and feel like a Susquehanna herring. I am well smoked and am now back from Elba to fight for the heritage, which is also yours.

"So, let her rip," as they say when they shoot off the skyrocket. True, a solemn promise was made in 1904 that, under no circumstances would another nomination be accepted, but at that time nobody was angry with Taft. True another solemn promise adhering to the first was made in 1907, but what of that? The tennis Cabinet were out of jobs. Surely, little things like that should not stand in the way.

Airmen for British Army.

The British Government proposes to spend $850,000 on the development of aviation in its army. Accompanying the estimate is the detail for a complete military aviation school, with a full complement of aeroplanes and all the workshops necessary thoroughly to train officers of both the army and the navy.

PARAGRAPH NEWS.

The Lawrence mill workers' strike, now in its seventh week, was marked today by a recurrence of the riotous scenes of yesterday.

Gov. John F. Shafroth was projected into the ring of Democratic Presidential possibilities by William J. Bryan, who, in a public address, said: "I would rather see Governor Shafroth, of Colorado, nominated for the Presidency than any Democrat yet mentioned."

Senator Reed, of Missouri, today introduced his resolution for an investigation of the election of Senator Henry A. du Pont, of Delaware.

The Chinese Republic has threatened to cancel the Chinese treaty relations with Holland and handing the Netherlands Minister his passports because of alleged ill treatment of Chinese residents by the Dutch authorities in Java. It is stated that three Chinese have been killed and hundreds of others, arrested and imprisoned in that place because they celebrated the abdication of the Chinese throne.

Ten persons were killed in a tornado in Arkansas, and twenty-five were injured. Six persons in one house were killed when the wind carried it forty feet from its foundations.

Senator Rayner said in the Senate today that in discussing Theodore Roosevelt, who is again a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, he did not speak as a partisan; because he believed the Republicans could nominate no man who would be easier to defeat.

Ciudad Juarez is now the provisional capital of the Vasquista revolution in Mexico. A bloodless battle, which lasted 20 minutes and included the firing of 300 volleys from the rifles of the attacking force, shots from the rebel cannon stationed on Rojas Hill and a skirmish in the streets resulted in the taking of one of the two machine guns defending the town.

Marylanders and Virginians fought together today in an effort to amend the fortification bill so as to provide $150,000 for a site at Cape Henry. The amendment was offered by Mr. Holland of the Norfolk district, but it was ruled out on a point of order made by Mr. Sherley, of Kentucky.

restraint of trade, through this price control and its domination of raw material, were the conclusions reported to the Stanley Steel Committee of the House today by Farquhar J. MacRae, the committee's expert accountant.

The Independent Citizens' Union of Baltimore, 1500 strong, were in Annapolis to-day hammering the local option bill.

Attorney-General Wickersham is seeking to prevent the American Bar Association from ousting W. M. Lewis, his Negro assistant, from membership.

So do not get hysterical. It is not as serious as it looks. For, please notice, the Colonel only says: "I will accept the nomination if it is tendered to me."

Roosevelt In The Ring.

From The New York Press.

Theodore Roosevelt's announcement that he stands before the Republican Party as a candidate for its nomination is gratefully received. It clears the air of doubt, and it is fair alike to his followers and to those of President Taft.

When the Colonel asserts that he will stay in the ring until the convention expresses its preference, he gives the party a wider opportunity to show where it stands with regard to the ambition of President Taft. Where the Republican voters have the means to say what is their Presidential choice, as in some States through direct primaries, it is necessary for rivals to be in the field if the delegates are not to be committed to Mr. Taft by default. With Mr. La Follette practically out of the race, the formal candidacy of Colonel Roosevelt affords to those voters who feel sure that Mr. Taft can never be elected, or who do not want him re-elected, the means of declaring their opposition.

The New York Press doubts that Mr. Roosevelt can get a majority of the delegates away from Mr. Taft on the platform he has presented to the people. But his contest with the President is fortunate for the Republican Party if it serves to convince the National convention that the renomination of Mr. Taft would be a sorry mistake. If Mr. Roosevelt achieves that object, and no more, he will do his party a higher service than he could possibly do for it by going into the convention with a majority of the delegates instructed to vote for himself.

A Near Anarchist.

From The Los Angeles Times.

When Col. Roosevelt advocated taking an appeal from a court decision to a popular election and urged "the recall of specific decisions as more necessary even than the recall of Judges," he doubtless thought he was making a point for himself with the National Republican Convention, when he was in truth making a far-reaching, a dense and an incomparable ass of himself. Roosevelt is not yet an anarchist, but he is drifting that way. Surely some unkindly disposed deities are qualifying Teddie the Terrible for the bug house.

Some personal comments on Roosevelt's platform as outlined in his Columbus speech are here given. I do not share views of Col. Roosevelt as expressed in his Columbus speech on recall of Judges and judicial decisions.

P. L. GOLDSBOROUGH,

Governor of Maryland, (Republican) In my opinion Roosevelt's speech at Columbus has weakened him as a Presidential candidate, and my opinion is confirmed by personal interviews I have had with several of his ardent admirers.

I do not indorse his views on recall of Judges and judicial decisions.

W. P. JACKSON,

National Republican Committeeman from Maryland.

I could not approve of the Colonel's speech at Columbus because I am a Republican, not a populist.

NATHAN B. SCOTT,

National Republican Committeeman from West Virginia.

Roosevelt's strength lies in his character as so thoroughly understood by the common people. His Columbus speech serves to inform the people that he is the same courageous, independent, constructive, sympathetic Roosevelt that he has always been, and I agree with him exactly upon his attitude as to recall of court decisions involving constitutional questions.

Big people and big business may expect a square deal from Roosevelt and little people and little business are always insured a square deal plus protection from him. His Columbus speech unquestionably strengthens him.

unresponsive to a plain public duty if you should decline to accept the nomination coming as the voluntary expression of the wishes of a majority of the Republican voters of the United States through the action of their delegates in the next National Convention. Yours truly,

WILLIAM E. GLASSCOCK, CHESTER H. ALDRICH, ROBERT P. BASS, JOSEPH M. CAREY, CHASE S. OSBORN, W. R. STUBBS, HERBERT S. HADLEY, The Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, New York City, N. Y.

On Nov. 8, 1904, Col. Roosevelt made this announcement at the White House: "On the 4th of March next I shall have served three and a half years, and this three and a half years constitute my first term. The wise custom which limits the President to two terms regards the substance and not the form, and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination."

On Dec. 11, 1907, he declared: "I have not changed and shall not change that decision thus announced."

In an editorial article two weeks ago The Outlook paved the way for the Colonel's present attitude by declaring that his announcement in 1904 was to be interpreted as referring to a consecutive third term. It gave this illustration: "When a man says at breakfast in the morning, 'No, thank you, I will not take any more coffee,' it does not mean that he will not take any more coffee to-morrow morning or next week or next month or next year."

DAIRY NOTES

The dairy increases the crop yield. As a soiling crop for milk and brood sows alfalfa is superior to the clovers.

Three feeds a day for the new calf are better than the same amount in two feeds.

Doesn't it look as though the cows would never get enough when hay is up to $15 or $18?

Why not find out just how many of the herd are boarders, and then get rid of the boarders?

Sometimes it is well to improve the man with the cows while working for improvement among the cows.

Why should the horse be curried and brushed any more than the cow that produces a part of what we eat?

Cows giving milk should have one quart of corn chop and one quart of wheat bran mixed with the cut fodder three times a day.

If you have six cows and no separator sell one of the cows and buy a separator. You will save work and make money by the deal.

Selecting the best heifer calves from the best cows and keeping a first-class sire, are methods of building up a dairy herd within the reach of all of us.

One of our dairy farmers writes that he has been keeping some records and finds that since feeding silage his profits have increased about 30 per cent.

A canvas or oilcloth cover for the separator is one of the little things that helps keep the machine in good running order and prolongs its usefulness.

Two pounds of butter will soon be worth as much as a bushel of wheat. One way of increasing profits in many dairy herds would be to sell some of the cows for beef.

FEW RECORD-BREAKING COWS

Remarkable Strides Made by Dairy Cattle During Past Half Dozen Years—Few Results.

It would startle a dairyman of 40 years ago to look at some of the records established recently by leading dairy breeds in America. Then a cow that would produce 27,432 pounds milk in a year would have been considered as prosperous as the old world looked upon Columbus' idea of the earth being round. However, Colantha 4th Johanna, the famous Holstein cow, produced that amount of milk under careful supervision. It tested 3.64 per cent butter fat, being a total of 998 pounds butter fat for the year.

Another Holstein, Lunde Korndyke, was a close second, with 26,192 pounds milk to her credit for a year, which tested 3.33 per cent, or a total of 872 pounds butter fat.

However, all good cows are not Holsteins. Readers will recall the remarkable record of the Guernsey cow, Dolly Dimple. She produced 18,808 pounds milk in a year which tested out 878 pounds fat.

Jersey breeders have something to brag about. Jacoba Irene produced 17,253 pounds milk in a year, which yielded 952 pounds butter fat. Another Jersey cow, Olga 4th's Pride, gave 16,275 pounds milk, producing 871 pounds butter fat in a year. A third Jersey, Sophie 19th, while giving only 14,373 pounds milk, made 854 pounds butter fat. There are a half dozen or more well-known Jersey cows that have exceeded the 800-pound mark for butter fat in 365 days. When the average farmer gets a cow that will produce 300 pounds butter fat he thinks he has something pretty good.

Then again, Ayrshires are not to be ignored. Netherhall Brownie 9th, an Jersey Heifer.

Ayrshire cow, has a record of 18,110 pounds milk which produced 820 pounds butter fat.

Other breeds like Brown Swiss and the dairy strain of Shorthorn have interesting records back of them. When a dairyman gets out of sorts with the world and thinks little progress is being made let him contemplate some of these facts and note the really remarkable strides dairy cattle breeding has experienced the past half dozen years.

Cleaning the Separator.

In cleaning the separator be sure and see that the parts are dried rapidly so they will not rust; still the drying should not be done with a cloth, as much lint will be left, and on this will be large number of bacteria. Boiling water will cause the parts to dry rapidly and evenly, and will be death to many of the bacteria.

Records Are Essential.

It is impossible to build up and maintain a dairy herd except through discriminating selection, and this can only be attained where careful records are kept and a high standard of excellence sought.

Test for Quality.

When you test your cows for quantity, you must also test for quality in order to determine definite results. Some cows give a greater per cent of butter fat than others.

Paint---Drouth

The longer the drouth the more rain is required to water the earth.

The longer a building goes without painting the dryer it gets and more paint is required to keep water out.

A ten gallon Job this year is a eleven gallon Job next year—you will save money by using the best paint.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingore Hills and the Catoclin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

THE COLONEL.

He digged a pit, he digged it deep,
He digged it for his brother,
But he, himself, fell in the pit
He digged for the 'tother.

—Old Rhyme.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" Bret Harte's "Chinee" once held the championship medal; but by the side of Colonel Roosevelt that wily celestial fades into utter insignificance. As an appropriator of other men's ideas; as a political presdignitateur; as a side-stepper and evader of direct evidence; as a handler of the double entendre; as a juggler of equivocation Theodore Roosevelt is entitled to the palm.

"We, the people of England," said the three tailors of Tooley Street in their petition. "We, the people of the United States," said the seven governors (under their principal's direction) who urged the Colonel to answer to Duty's call.

The call has been heeded and the man who said "under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination" is in the field ready to fight against his friend, his protegee who now holds the highest office in the land and to whom the Republican party would, judging from evidence very apparent on the surface and the comment of Republican newspapers, again entrust the reins of government.

The Colonel remained in ambush for a long time, carrying on guerrilla warfare against his friends, stirring up strife in his own party and now and then sending forth iconoclastic bulletins to keep himself in remembrance; but at last he has come forth from his lair with a fresh supply of pyrotechnic policies, more radical than those of the most radical of his adversaries, and from now on until the hour for the Republican convention the air will be full of Roosevelt phrases and the papers full of Roosevelt criminations, recriminations, repudiations and explanations and Roosevelt's praise of Roosevelt.

Cunningly guarded is the Colonel's willingness to serve his country—wisely included is his promise to support the nominee of his party.

ORPHANS' COURT UNNECESSARILY EXPENSIVE.

Many who would not favor a new constitution for Maryland would nevertheless be more than glad to have the Orphans' Courts of the counties, as now constituted, done away with. Why forsooth should the people be taxed to support three lay judges who of matters legal know little or nothing, to pass upon the preliminaries in testamentary proceedings when the very judges to whom questions of law involved in wills are finally referred by these laymen, could themselves attend to the whole business? In other words why should the taxpayer be gouged for the expenses of regularly and perpetually maintaining three laymen and then, as beneficiary, paying special and additional fees in probate business when judges, "learned in the law" could, without hardship to themselves, without extra taxation to the people, and with much more dispatch pass upon all testamentary matters? There may have been some warrant for orphans' courts, as now constituted, in ages past, but in these times and under present day conditions the custom of having three or any number of laymen review testamentary cases is unnecessary and far too great an expense to the people.

In the District of Columbia—and most of the laws in force in the District are based upon Maryland law—there is no orphans' court composed of laymen. There the judges, lawyers by profession, one at a time and in turn sit for probate business, for which duty they receive no extra salary, and to whom the people pay no extra fee.

Speaker Trippe may be a little radical in his idea of an entirely new constitution, but he is absolutely correct and he voices the sentiment of the people when he stands for the abolishment of the orphans' court—the old ecclesiastical court—made up of laymen.

HONOR LINCOLN WITH THE HIGHWAY.

Of course the American Institute of Architects prefers a monument to Lincoln rather than a memorial highway. This is quite natural. A monument in stone and bronze with a highly ornamented plaza approach would be very imposing and would no doubt afford an opportunity for the exploitation on a large scale of many individualistic architectural treatments. Nevertheless the road, the highway idea, would be more in keeping with the character of the man the nation would honor. Lincoln was essentially a man of the people. He was not an aristocrat, an autocrat, a war lord nor an admirer of martial splendor. He loved the people and was happiest when the greatest number enjoyed the greatest benefits. In what better or more appropriate way, then, could Congress honor Lincoln than by deciding upon a memorial road which thousands upon thousands of the plain people could enjoy for all time?

TO FATHER.

Oil up the old lawn mower, repair the window screens, get down the garden rake and hoe, likewise your working jeans. O'erhaul the whitewash brushes, have your hammer, tacks and nails, all ready for repairing all the palings and the rails. And have the seeds quite handy, ball of cord and everything; winter loafing is all over and you'll know full soon it's spring.

ARTHUR BRISBANE says that people swallow rubber with every breath. Perhaps this accounts for the remarkable elasticity of some folks' tongues.

GAINS FROM IMPROVED NUTRITION.

Remarkable results have followed improvement in the nutrition of children of the public schools of Cleveland, by caring for the teeth and teaching them how to eat properly, for six months. Tests showed that memory had been improved 111 per cent. in one instance; power of spontaneous association, 84 per cent.; association by opposites, 48 per cent.; quickness and accuracy of perception, 22 per cent.; an average improvement in mental capacity of 52 per cent. Persons in middle life do not improve so remarkably by improving nutrition but there is invariably an improvement in working capacity when the general nutrition is improved, especially by saving vitality commonly expended in excessive mixing of incompatible foods. The case of a man at Economy, Ind., has been mentioned, who had decided to give up his general store, but after becoming adapted to a regime advocated in the Hints organized a bank and was elected its president and now conducts the store while performing the duties of bank officer and Sunday School superintendent; also that of a man past seventy, at Aurora, Ill., who having sold his store and retired from business, is again in business, the leader in his line. Many such cases could be cited.

"COLDS."

It is a well demonstrated fact that when one has fasted for several days, reducing the weight below the standard and eliminating the waste matter in the system which supports all disease, it is impossible to contract a cold. Therefore the germ is not the cause of colds, although specific germs (with certain other conditions) differentiate cold, typhoid, pneumonia and other diseases. If the system is overloaded with waste matter, produced by wrong diet, bad mental conditions and defective elimination, resulting from defective action of the skin, kidneys, lungs, liver, bad diet, insufficient exercise, bad mental conditions—all interrelated—"cold," typhoid, pneumonia, or other disease, is established when vitality is lowered beyond the point of successful resistance, but the essential fundamental cause of germ diseases is defective nutrition, with lowered resistance and certain other contributory factors.

TO COOK STUFFED PIGEONS

Most Important Item is the Stuffing, Follow These Directions and Success is Certain.

Take two pigeons, cleaned and singed, and prepare the following stuffing: A soup-portion of butter, three soup-portionfuls of lean bacon; the livers of the pigeons, chopped up; three tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs, white and fresh; half a soup-portionful of chopped onion, a coffee-portionful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper, spice and two yolks of eggs.

Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the onion, let it cook gently six to eight minutes and then add the bacon. As soon as this is slightly heated, add the pigeon's livers and, if possible, two or three chickens' livers, the bread crumbs, the chopped parsley, salt, pepper and yolks of eggs. Stuff the pigeons, tie them up with the feet turned in, and cook them in a saucepan 30 to 35 minutes at a gentle fire. At the moment of serving, untie the pigeons, put them back in the saucepan, with several soup-portionfuls of good gravy or simply hot water. Give them several seconds' boiling so that the gravy and the cooking butter may be well mixed.

BEST OF ALL FRUIT CAKE

Recipe That Has Been Tried and Proven and Will Assure Success If Followed.

One pound flour, browned and sifted; one pound butter, one pound sugar, 12 eggs, four pounds raisins, one pound citron, one pound crystallized cherries and pineapple mixed, one pound almonds cut fine and soaked over night in rosewater, one pound pecan meats cut small, one glass grape jelly, half glass good cordial, one glass best whisky or brandy, tablespoon each powdered allspice, cinnamon and nutmeg and teaspoon powdered cloves. Soak all the fruit 12 hours in the whisky, cream together butter and sugar, add to them egg yolks beaten very light, then the cordial, spices and jelly. Put in next two teaspoons melted chocolate, next add the whites of eggs beaten stiff and part of flour. Roll the fruit in the rest of the flour and add to the mixture. Put in nuts last of all. Bake several hours, keeping a vessel of water in the oven until almost done.

Pecan Salad.

A tasty variation of the pecan salad, where the nuts are molded in lemon jelly, is the following with walnuts: Four cucumbers are sliced and covered, not more, with water. Add a slice of onion minced fine, salt, cayenne and a little lemon juice. Simmer all for five minutes, add a small tablespoonful of gelatin and cool. When it has cooled add a cup of English walnuts and put all on the ice to harden. To serve the salad have ready a bed of white lettuce leaves, break the jellied nuts in small pieces and place a portion on each little nest of hearts. Add a stiff mayonnaise and it is ready to serve. This salad requires rather careful adjustment on the dish, as it must not look "scrambled."

Ironing Hint.

All hand embroidery should be ironed wrong side out over folded thick material. The nicest thing for the purpose is a piece of white homespun flannel; those who possess it are fortunate indeed. White outing flannel folded so it is of several thicknesses makes a good substitute for the modern housekeeper. It is also well to lay a piece of old muslin over the wrong side of the article, as the irons, which never should be very hot, sometimes soil or scratch the work, which must be pressed slowly.

Apple Sauce Baked in Casserole.

I had a casserole for a wedding present, and could not do without it, I am sure. Often I bake beans in it, but more often apple sauce (or meats) which we like better than cooking on top of the stove. Cut the apples in quarters, then put in a buttered casserole and cook until you can pierce them. Then take out and sprinkle as much sugar over them as you like, which will melt and run through the hot apples.—Boston Globe.

Lemon Jelly Cake.

Two cups of sugar, one-half cup butter, one cup sweet milk, three cups flour, three eggs, three tablespoonful baking powder. Jelly part: One lemon, grated, one cup white sugar, one egg, one tablespoonful butter, beat together and boil three minutes.

How to Prepare Lime Water.

Get a piece of stone lime or unslaked lime, about as large as an English walnut, put into two quarts of cold water, stir until dissolved, then let it settle and pour off the clear water into bottles to keep. Will keep until used up.

Cider Sauce.

Mix two tablespoons of butter with an even tablespoon of flour; stir in one-half pint of brown sugar and one-half gill of boiled cider; add a gill of boiling water. Mix well, let it simmer a few minutes. Serve hot.

Mince Pie With Edam Cheese.

Grate Edam cheese very thickly all over top of a cold baked mince pie. Put pie in oven until cheese is quite soft and the pie well heated. This gives mince pie the flavor liked and always wanted afterward.

TASTY GERMAN DINNER

Wholesome and Appetizing Dishes of the Fatherland Are Easily Prepared and Worth the Trouble for Variety They Afford.

MENU THAT EVEN AN AMERICAN WILL ENJOY.

Wholesome and Appetizing Dishes of the Fatherland Are Easily Prepared and Worth the Trouble for Variety They Afford.

Noodle Soup—Take a nice piece of short rib and a shin bone and cook slowly for about two hours. Then strain. Then take three eggs, one and a half cups of flour and make a stiff dough. Work it well until the dough is very smooth, then roll out very thin and let dry medium. Cut in long strips and fold; then cut very fine some parsley, add a few dashes of nutmeg to soup. Now the noodles are added and all is to be boiled 10 minutes, then served.

Bread Dumplings—Take some stale white bread and cut in small squares, then pour over them a half cup of very hot drippings and stir; then cover and let stand for a while so that the bread softens. Beat four eggs lightly, add salt and nutmeg and about one cup of bread crumbs (not cracker crumbs). Stir thoroughly and make into balls. Drop these into boiling water and let boil 20 minutes. Then serve with meat gravy. They will be very light and delicious.

Sauerkraut—Take as much sauerkraut as wished and if too sour put in collander and let a little cold water run through it. Put in pot with a little water, add caraway seeds and let cook slowly until soft. Then grate a raw potato and mix with a little flour, then beat quickly into sauerkraut. Pour about two tablespoons of grease from the pork roast over this. This will be a dish that even an American will enjoy.

Pork Roast—Take a nice roast of pork from the end of the loin, wash well, then rub salt and pepper in and let stand a while before roasting. Cut half of an onion and a small piece of garlic and two leaves of fresh sage, not ground, into it. Then add some water, enough for gravy. Roast slowly and baste often. Serve on well heated plates.

Mashed Potatoes—Take the best potatoes, peel and boil, then strain and mash them. Add butter and salt and beat with a spoon to a cream.

Coffee Cake—Two cups flour with one yeast cake dissolved in lukewarm milk. Put in a warm place to raise. Melt a half pound of butter, cup of sugar and beat to a cream; add two eggs, a half teaspoon cinnamon, half teaspoon lemon flavoring and a little salt. Add to raised dough and beat well. Then place in pan with a little sugar, cinnamon and small pieces of butter over it. Let it raise once before baking.

Coffee—Take as much coffee as needed, place in a sack and pour boiling water over it slowly. This takes the bitter taste away. Let stand on back of hot stove. Serve with cream.

Worth Knowing.

A tape loop on the apron band is a convenience and will save the apron from being torn if hung on a hook. Sew the loop on the "wrong" side of the band.

Remember when frying fish that if the fat in which it is fried is not quite boiling the fish will be greasy, sodden and unwholesome. Never put in the fish till a blue smoke is rising from the fat.

The next time you wish to beat the yolk and white of an egg separately try this plan: Break the egg, leaving the yolk in the half shell. Beat the white stiff, then drop in the yolk and beat together. It is not only done better, but you save washing an extra dish and losing a large proportion of the egg yolk that sticks to dish and egg beater.

Spice Cake.

A recipe for making spice cake is sent in by Sunbeam of the Buckeye state. Stir one cup of butter, two cups of granulated sugar and the yolks of three eggs until very light. Add two teaspoons of cinnamon, one of allspice, one of cloves, one-half teaspoon of ginger, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg, one cup of buttermilk, one teaspoon of soda dissolved in one-third of a cup of hot water, and three cups of flour. To this add the beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in three layers and use icing.

Care of Lamps.

When the burners become dark and dirty put them in lye water and boil until the black will rub off; then moisten salt with vinegar and rub thoroughly. Then take a dry piece of wool cloth and polish. Take the old wicks that have been in use quite a while and boil them in a strong suds and rub and rinse in several waters, then soak in vinegar and hang out and dry and when you put all together and light you will have as brilliant light as if all were new.

A Cold Weather Help.

Heating clothespins well in the oven before going out in the wind to hang out washing prevents much chilling to the fingers. Two or three thicknesses of dry cotton cloth spread over the basket of wet clothes will prevent them from becoming unmanageable.

Gingerbread.

Half cup molasses, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup of shortening, 1 teaspoon of ginger, a little salt, 1 cup of boiling water, 1 teaspoon of soda, 2½ cups of flour. Bake in a large pan.

NEWSPAPER IS BEST MEDIUM

No Other Form of Advertising Brings Such Certain and Profitable Results.

A curious sidelight on the change in modern business methods is involved in the declaration that the "Equitable will in all probability not rebuild its magnificent structure recently destroyed in New York. The reason given is that the day has passed when insurance companies find it profitable to spend huge sums in erecting a building for advertising purposes and that experience has shown that newspapers are a much more profitable advertising medium, says the Lansing (Mich.) Journal. One does not have to be patriarchal in the matter of years to recall the time when it was the insurance companies that built the biggest buildings in a great many cities. Aside from the fact that such structures were lucrative investments they were excellent advertisements, constituting a visible evidence of prosperity that impressed those who had their attention called to the fact. Every time the building was mentioned in any connection in the newspapers the insurance companies derived publicity that was valuable, and in many ways the name of the company owning the building was kept prominently in the public eye.

But that was in the days when the lines of the insurance "magnates" were cast in pleasanter places than today—the halcyon days of huge salaries, colossal profits and a delightful irresponsibility to the authorities. Those days have passed, and today there is a policeman standing beside every policyholder to see that his money goes into proper channels. It all goes to make insurance safer for the man who pays the premiums, probably, but the "magnates" have considerably harder sledding than formerly. On the whole, it doubtless is better that the insurance business should be placed upon the same safe and sane basis as any other business and, being placed upon that sort of a basis, the "magnates" must realize that its interests will be best furthered by conforming to the laws of ordinary business. Those laws prescribe newspaper advertising for the business man who would enjoy the greatest success.

The tendency to restrict and regulate the expenditure of the funds of insurance companies is operating through laws prohibiting the investment of those funds in buildings not occupied entirely by the companies, and this fact will contribute materially to the confinement of insurance advertising to the channels that are most legitimate because most profitable—the prime purpose of all these laws being to compel the highest possible protection of policyholders by securing the largest possible returns upon the money they spend in premiums. Formerly the transaction was merely one of paying a certain sum in premiums and getting a promised sum in return. Today the law is recognizing that the policyholder has an equity in the wisest possible disbursement of these funds, and the wisest method of advertising is one of the forms of such disbursement.

"When business is good advertise—to let the world know what you have to offer. When business is dull advertise—to let people know you are still selling goods."—Printers' Ink.

The Neglected Emotions.

Much advertising fails to get at the feelings and emotions, the instincts and sentiments. It must not only convince the public that they ought to act, but it must present its proposition so that it will make them want to act.

We are late in reaching the pew, but early at the bleachers. We put off writing to cousins and aunts, but the fiancée is answered by "return mail." The dictates of reason may be resisted, but not the promptings of sentiment and emotions.

We put off the things we know we ought to do, but not the things we want to do.—Walter Dill Scott, in "Influencing Men in Business."

The Strong Arm of Advertising.

Service—service to the customer—that is the strong right arm of advertising. You can hire the cleverest advertising man the sun ever shone on, but if the clerks in your store are grouches, if your values aren't just what they are advertised to be, if real service to the customer is something that you have heard of only in books, if your interest in the customer ceases the moment money has exchanged hands—why, your advertising man can't make your printed message worth its cost.

Government to Advertise Parks.

The department of the interior intends to advertise the government's national parks by having large photographs put on exhibition in libraries and other public institutions throughout the country, in the hope that the "See America First" movement will be considerably accelerated.

Nearing End of Remarkable Life.

Frau Dutkiewicz, residing at Posen, has celebrated her one hundred and twenty-fifth birthday. So far as official records go, she is the oldest woman in the world. She is tall and thin, but bent and very feeble, although not absolutely bedridden. Her face is full of wrinkles of twelve and a half decades. She is almost blind and deaf, and suffers rheumatic pains.

HUMOR

An Ear for Melody.
"Here's yer boy, lady," the policeman said, leading the urchin in by the ear.
"O Bobby!" exclaimed the overjoyed mother, clasping him fondly to her heart. "Where have you been all day?"
"Ridin' up an' down in Becker & Ryan's elevator," answered Bobby.
"What have you been doing that for?"
"Cause they's a steam cally-ope that plays when the elevator starts up, an' I like t' hear the music."

Missed Real Grown Man.
Mary, aged 14, was found one day
by an elder sister, sobbing and crying.
"What is the matter?" asked sister
with great concern.
"Two boys asked me to go to the dance tonight," she the unexpected reply.
"Well, my dear child, certainly that is not such a terrible misfortune."
"Yes, but I told the first one I would go with him, and the last one was a long-panter!"

A Barometer.
"Bliggins' friendship seems to flatter you."
"It doesn't flatter me," said the cynical statesman, "but it encourages me. He is one of those people who never trouble themselves to be affable except to those who are regarded as liable to have some pull."

TAKEN AT HER WORD.
Evelyn—Really, George, I'm shocked to hear you confess such behavior in your business dealings. You should always "do unto others as you would have others do unto you."
George—You wouldn't have me do that always?
Evelyn—Certainly, always.
George (kissing her)—All right.
Here goes!

And he was wondrous wise;
He sought the public library,
And read out both his eyes!

The Natural Result.
"I see when the laundries went on strike in New York the Chinamen worked harder than ever."
"Naturally. When the others stopped taking orders, that was the Chinamen's cue."

Naturally So.
"The Maid of Orleans certainly achieved a success in war which must have electrified the men of her time and made her a shining light."
"Of course it did. She was naturally an Arc light."

Progress.
"Why is it that men never seem to care to go to weddings?"
"Madame, men are progressive. I have no doubt that the time will come when hardly any man will care to witness a hanging."

Not Correct.
She—They don't use large checks
for stylish costumes now.
He—Don't they! Did you see the size of the last one I sent to your dressmaker?

Natural Way.
"Was the club resolution about the bad odors in the alleys carried by the eyes and nays?"
"Naturally, the noes decided it."

Consolation.
"I fear I am losing my mind."
"Well, don't worry. Nobody who finds it will want to keep it."

Reaching a Compromise

Putting Jeffrey Webber and Jeffrey together in one thought would have struck all his friends as a most startling act of lunacy, something in the light of touching a match to a bundle of excelsior and daring it to burn.
All his life he had shied at neckties on the theory that if the benefi-cent powers above had dowered a man with chin whiskers it was rank extravagance for him to adorn himself with unseemly finery. Likewise he could not understand the blind foolishness of masculine individuals who turned from celluloid collars which one could wash daily and thus save unnecessary laundry bills. As for clothes—they were merely required for covering.
This, then, was the problem Antoinette Webber had to wrestle with when she came back from boarding school and began to get the family arranged for her wedding.
Being a woman, her mother was quite amenable to new ideas, but when Antoinette tackled Jeffrey he figuratively stood up on his hind legs and roared a war cry.
"Dress suit!" he choked. "Me! At my age! Cracky! Never!"
"Now, father," Antoinette began soothingly, quite as though she held a tablespoonful of bitter medicine in one hand and was prying open his teeth with the other, "I want you to look your best when Horace and his friends get here."
"Look my best!" her father roared again. "Dressed up like a monkey on a stick!"
"And you've got to wear a tie," Antoinette broke in, firmly.

They revived Antoinette's father with tender care, but he never was the same man after that. He gloomed around the premises, surveying with a hostile eye the housecleaning preparations for the coming wedding and he developed a jumpiness at everything unusual and suspicious.
Antoinette was in despair. She was marrying into rather a fashionable family and the thought of Horace's college friends and his family arriving to find that while her father had a heavy bank account he had no sense of sartorial values was a tragedy.
"Horace and his party won't get here till the day itself," Antoinette told her mother in one of her hopeless confidences. "They won't notice dad so much then, but in the evening, at the wedding—mother, I'll just die if he wears that baggy old gray sack suit and his celluloid collar and no tie!"
"Then I'm afraid you're due to die, daughter," said Mrs. Webber, who had been married to Antoinette's father long enough to know.
"I won't!" snapped Antoinette, with the blind faith of youth in its powers.
"I'll manage it somehow. I'm not going to have the only wedding I'll have in my whole life spoiled by father's ridiculous stubbornness!"
She and her father eyed each other warily toward the last, like gladiators before the fight. Her father ostentatiously bought a new celluloid collar and a fresh ten cent collar button and a new pair of calfskin boots.
The day of the wedding Antoinette's father, the only incongruous spot in a refurbished, decorated house, filled with frills and fluff, went upstairs to get ready for the evening's fray. Laying out his new collar and collar button and simply tossing his old gray clothes over a chair, he stepped into the bathroom for his ablutions. He was absent 20 minutes.
When he came back to his room he blinked. On the bed were spread some strange black things. The coat was low cut and had long tails. Patent leather pumps stood fiendishly beside a pair of silk socks. There were also some weird stand-up linen collars and a box of white ties and a large bosomed shirt. There was nothing else in the way of clothes in the room.
Nobody paid any attention to his ravings and poundings, for everybody was dressing the bride or was getting dressed. Choking, gasping, hectic with rage, Antoinette's father danced in his bathrobe, poking a finger now and then at the hated garments.

Finally the wedding went on. Everybody was present but the bride's father. After the ceremony and congratulations the bride herself headed a search party for him.
Holding her trailing satin skirt in one hand, Antoinette, accompanied by Horace, ran him down at last in the most secluded corner of the haymow.
There he sat, hunched up, smoking a pipe fiercely. He had on the clothes, swathed, bunched around him, the dress shirt and the high collar and all —but the collar button gleamed defiantly between the strands of his wiskers, proclaiming his last stand—no necktie! He glared at his daughter and his newly achieved son-in-law.
"Father," begged the bride tremulously, "come down, please! It's time to go in to supper. There's scalloped oysters and—"
"I've put on these clothes," her father interrupted her sternly, "because I'm a law abiding citizen and you took the others away, but I'll be everlastingly glad if I'm going to exhibit myself in 'em before sensible human beings! If you want the wedding check I've written out for you, Antoinette, you see that I git them oysters and other dewdads right on here."
So they compromised on that basis.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

Mrs. Catherine M. Welty is on an extended visit to her son, Mr. J. Frederic Welty, in Philadelphia.

Mrs. J. M. Adelsberger is visiting her son, Mr. James Adelsberger, in Philadelphia.

Mr. Eckenrode was born and raised on a farm in the neighborhood of Conewago Chapel. He learned the cigar-making trade and has worked at it ever since. He helped to organize the McSherrystown Fire Company and has been chief of the organization for the past 15 years. He was also a member of the School Board for a period of 15 years and for the last ten years served as treasurer of that body. Alternately for 12 years he has been president of St. Mary's Beneficial Society. Also for the last three years he has been a member of the Executive Board of Cigarmakers' Union No. 316. The entire community joins in wishing him abundant success in his new field of labor."

The demurrer filed by the defendant in the case of Harry G. Gouker vs. the President and Council of Mount Saint Mary's College, and Dr. John B. Brawner, was argued before the court. The demurrer was upheld. J. F. R. Heagy represented the plaintiff and Stoner & Weinberg the defendant.

County Real Estate Man Gets 2 Years.

TAX RATE TO BE HIGHEST IN HISTORY OF MARYLAND

According to Estimates Made by Financial Officers it Will Jump from 23 to 30 Cents This Year.

According to estimates made by the financial officers of the State, the tax rate will take a jump this year from 23 cents to certainly not less than 30 cents, the highest in the state's history. Even should the various proposed revenue producers be accepted, these would not reduce the rate appreciably. Never before has there been such a demand for assistance, and in nearly every instance this is of a character that cannot be ignored.

All of the great state aid institutions are clamoring for help, while the public improvements under way are bound to be provided for. Among other appropriations the legislature is called upon to make are the $5,000,000 road loan, that of $800,000 for the pauper insane, $600,000 for state normal school, $90,000 per annum for the Maryland Agricultural School, $1,250,000 for Fourth Regiment Army, $50,000 for State Consumptive Hospital, $50,000 for Eudowood, $100,000 addition for State oiled roads, $100,000 for the House of Correction and money that must be spent in other directions.

Various means are now being considered to swell the income, but up to date there is nothing tangible in sight. Industries that should bring in a revenue like the oyster industry are not even self-supporting and there is no way of making them so.

High School is Alive.

The enrollment of scholars is equal to the average about this time last year. The graduating class only numbers seven and probably not all of these will be graduated. This is quite a contrast to the large class graduated last year. Seventy-five per cent. of last year's class are doing very well at the institutions where they are now studying. Midyear examinations show that all of these are industrious and ranking high. Messrs. Black, Colliflower, Eichelberger and Cook, and the Misses Beam, Dorsey and Boller are all representing E. H. S. very well.

The play, entitled "A High School Freshman," which was given on Feb. 16, 1912 and repeated at Fairfield, netted the school $43.40. It has been requested that the scholars repeat this play sometime in the Spring but as this would not only interfere with regular work but with plans for the close of the present year, such a repetition cannot be considered. In the near future the Literary Society will make their first attempt at a "Mock Trial," which will prove very interesting to those who have never attended any. The baseball team has reorganized and have ordered their new equipment for the season. Messrs. Archie and William Morrison have been elected to captain and manage the team, respectively. Return games have been scheduled thus far with the schools in Frederick and Gettysburg. A five-act comedy has been selected for the Commencement Week play and promises to be a lively and interesting one.

Lake View Wants College.

C. J. Remsburg, owner of the Lake View Hotel, midway between Thurmont and Frederick, has entered the race for the location of Blue Ridge College, Union Bridge, which is considering moving from its present site on account of the proximity of the Tidewater Cement Company's plant. This makes the fourth place that is bidding for the Church of the Brethren institution, and a hot fight will be waged. Mr. Remsburg announced that he had gone in to win and said that if Blue Ridge College was to stay in this part of the State he felt confident that he would be able to convince the authorities of the preferableness of his site.

EYE EXAMINATION.

When the eyes need attention, always consult an Optometrist. You can not afford to be careless with so important a faculty as the sense of vision. Our Objective and Subjective method for examining eyes enables us to detect with perfect accuracy all latent and manifest defects of the eye, and has always proven a most remarkable success. Difficult cases, which but a short time ago were given up as hopeless, can be fitted by our painstaking examination. When in doubt about your eyes consult our graduate Optometrist O. W. Hines, who gives his personal attention to every case. Emmitt House, Emmitsburg, Md., March 6, 1912.

Letters To The Editor.

(The Editor would have it understood that he is not responsible for the views expressed in communications addressed to him and published in THE CHRONICLE.) No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

THE EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE:

The Supervisors of City Charities believe that many of the homes of your readers that are at times dull and very lonely can be brightened and enlivened in a way so simple as to cause surprise. Loneliness causes an unhappiness in thousands of families, that would be transformed by the sweet companionship of a little girl or the sprightly voice of a tiny boy, and did they know it, joy would come to many a lonely couple if a dear little child were adopted into the family, to be raised as their very own.

During the past few years the Supervisors of City Charities have been instrumental in brightening homes from one end of the state to the other. The Supervisors have under their care at all times attractive and interesting little orphan children that they are glad to place in respectable private homes on trial, with a view to remaining permanently if the little one is congenial. Very truly yours,

NATHANIEL G. GRASTY,
Sec'y to Supervisors of City Charities,
Baltimore, Md.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

In justice to ourselves as contractors, we want to correct a statement relative to the cost of the one and half miles of Shoemaker road built at Monrovia in 1900, for which we, the M. J. Grove Lime Co., received $8,875.48 instead of between thirteen and fourteen thousand dollars, as has been stated, and the County Commissioners give the cost of this road as a reason for their not taking advantage of the money derived from the Shoemaker road law. I have stated before, in my opinion it was a great mistake, and a serious loss to our County, but to impress the tax payers further as to the great amount of work done on this road, the part leading from New Market to Monrovia was low and marshy, and it was necessary to put in a quantity of under drain pipe, while the part leading from Monrovia to Kempton a 19 per cent. grade was reduced to an 8 per cent. grade, and about 9000 yards of excavation was necessary to lower this big hill, which enabled two horses to pull as much as six before the road was graded and macadam. We also built three concrete bridges, and several culverts. This work is all of a permanent character, and the bridges and culverts will not need any repairs, preventing part of the expense putting down new plank. As one of the County Commissioners told me several years ago it cost that year four thousand dollars for boards for floors on the bridges, this big item of expense will no longer be necessary.

This road was built very low, but in a good substantial manner and I feel sure there isn't one in that section who would have the old road back at any price. It has been a boom to the village of Monrovia which since its construction a bank, and many other improvements have been made, and there is ten times as much business as before the road was built. This is an evidence of what good roads do to help any section that is fortunate enough to have them, another illustration is the mile of Shoemaker road built between Mt. Airy and Ridgeville the same year by Mr. James M. Mount which was free from any under draining, very little grading, and one small culvert cost $4,208.30. This road was built by Carroll County, although it was on the dividing line of Frederick and Carroll Counties. The road has certainly proved of wonderful value to that section, and while Frederick County did not pay one cent towards its construction it has derived immense benefit. The improvements made on the west side of the road which is in Frederick County, and the whole mile between Mt. Airy and Ridgeville has been built up with many fine residences costing from two to five thousand dollars each, thereby largely increasing Frederick County's tax basis.

My Father being an apostle of good roads, it was through his influence we went into road building, and in this way I became familiar with the many improvements that were sure to follow a good road, is why I am so anxious for our counties to improve the highways by modern methods, as we have excellent material, and believe by applying practical business methods, a good road can be built at a reasonable cost.

Lime Kiln, Md., Feb. 17th, 1912.

Another Enemy of Standard Oil. The German Imperial Government is about to create a German oil monopoly, the confessed purpose of which is to smash the present power of the Standard Oil Company in Germany. Official denials continue to be made of Government plans for a State monopoly, but it is said, nevertheless, that definite arrangements are practically completed.

We want to get below the surface in buying and selling our merchandise and hope at all times to give every man more than he expects we are going to sell him.

We realize that any business institution that would grow must stand for more than mere money making.

We believe thoroughly in the merchandise we sell and that belief is based on a broad experience and knowledge of what is offered in all the principal markets.

We sell only what we can recommend to you and if for any reason any article you purchase from us proves unsatisfactory we are ready and willing at all times to make good your purchase. We do not consider your money our money until you are satisfied. If you like to deal with a store like this see us. SWASTIKA CLUB'S LATEST SUCCESS AT ST. ANTHONY'S

"Who is the Bravest Daughter of the West" Pleasingly Presented.—Miss Margaret Grant a Favorite.

The story of the drama entitled "Who is the Bravest Daughter of the West," as produced by the Swastika Dramatic Club at St. Anthony's, on Monday, Feb. 19, 1912. The scenes of the play are located in Arizona at the time of the Apache Indian raids of 1882. Six years previously Mr. Arlington, father of Ruth, (Miss Margaret Grant) had been mysteriously assassinated, her mother dying from grief a few weeks later. Ruth swears vengeance upon her father's murderer of whose identity she is ignorant. Three months prior to the opening scene Ruth had met and loved Harold Morton (William Seltzer), a railroad surveyor, Pedro Silvera (Edw. Seltzer), a Mexican of polish, though a ruffian, seeks to win Ruth's love. Finding she treats his avowals with disdain he resolves to ruin Morton in her eyes by charging that Morton's father slew her own. Although her love for Morton, by reason of this charge, is shaken when he admits that he is the father of the accused, she holds her answer in abeyance until Morton is given an opportunity of clearing his dead father's name of the stigma cast upon it.

Meanwhile news of the Apache raid is received at the ranch house and Morton leaves Ruth to go the rescue of his imperiled surveying crew. In Morton's absence Silvera secures a warrant for Morton's arrest on a trumped charge of highway robbery. The warrant is served by Sheriff Bill Jones (Geo. Hemler) on Morton's return from his battle with the Apaches. He denies his guilt and Ruth is prostrated at the calamity that has befallen her, until she learns from "White Bird," (Veronica Knott) an Indian girl, that Silvera's sole purpose in causing Morton's arrest was to secure upon him for purpose of his own. Ruth follows Morton to Tombstone and after vainly seeking to have him make his escape, she plots with Clarence Ogden (Ernest Seltzer) and Jim Parker, (Joseph Hemler) a gambler, to have Morton rushed across the Mexican border by two cowboys, (Felix Hemler and Harry Fox.) This is done and after Morton is freed from the necessity of going to trial without witness, Parker and Ruth hunt up the only man who is able to prove an alibi for Morton. Upon his affidavit the charge against Morton is dismissed and he returns to Arizona. Baffled, Silvera pursues Morton to the Arlington ranch and kills Black Panther, the only eye witness to the murder of Ruth's father. Silvera appears before Ruth and Lucy Hopkins (Mary Jordan) and threatens them with death. He admits he has come to kill Morton, but the premature arrival of the sheriff balks his purpose and Silvera is slain while running away. He confesses to the crime of murdering Arlington and gives up a deed to mining property which makes Ruth the richest girl in Arizona. The turbulent course of Ruth and Morton's love thus is changed to serenity, and happiness ensues.

The comedy element is supplied by Clarence Ogden and Lucy Hopkins, who love each other, and by Samuel Hopkins (John Jordan) whose fondness for Mrs. Ogden's (Mary Knott) eustard pies brings him to a realization that his happiness lies in forming a life partnership with the widow.

Mr. Jordan and Miss Knott were a credit to the Club, their friends and to themselves. Without a doubt this was the best play of its kind ever given at St. Anthony's, and I here before all wish to extend my congratulations to all who took part in the drama. They one and all cannot be too highly complimented. They are capable of producing any drama written for amateurs. Miss Margaret Grant, who was seen in the title role, was the best actress ever seen on the local stage. This young lady deserves high praise for her heavy acts, especially when Morton reveals to her that he is the son of the accused, also in the third act when she and Jim Parker, by the aid of the cowboys, rush Morton to the Mexican line. The Swastikians I feel sure are all very proud of their success in Miss Grant. Morton, played by William Seltzer, was excellent; his voice, along with his expressions, are worthy of mention. Silvera, by Edw. Seltzer, was a difficult part, but I must bespeak him well. Clarence Ogden, by Ernest Seltzer, and Lucy Hopkins, by Mary Jordan, were excellent. These two young folks have gained a great reputation in this play their actions alone were the life of the play. Mrs. Ogden, a poor widow, was excellently carried out by Miss Mary Knott. Miss Knott's actions and voice has won for her a splendid reputation. Samuel Hopkins, a rich widower, was filled by John Jordan. Along with the above mentioned Mr. Jordan cannot be too highly complimented. Veronica Knott took the part of "White Bird," an Indian girl, and I have the honor and pleasure to say she could not have been surpassed. And now with fear I come to Jim Parker, the gambler. On the square this role was perfectly carried out by Joseph Hemler. He was without a doubt the best of this kind ever seen in this section of the country. Bill Jones, the sheriff, by George Hemler, deserves valuable mention. Harry Fox and Felix Hemler as cowboys played their parts well. The musical program was beautifully carried out by Miss Mary Grant. The singing by the members of the Club is worthy of praise. All in all the drama, "Who is the Bravest Daughter of the West?" was a great moral drama given by high class amateurs and with pleasure and profit to all who saw it.

In conclusion I beg to add that from what I have seen elsewhere I do not believe that any other organization could have done better. All understood their parts and were easily able to make the spectators and auditors understand the same. All entered into the spirit of the play and communicated that spirit to the audience. More than this no amateurs may do. Hoping I shall have the honor and pleasure of seeing this Club before long making another appearance, I remain,

A SPECTATOR.

DEVOE TAKES LEAST GALLONS: ALWAYS

Paint Devoe; its the cheapest paint in the world; never mind the price; it may or may not be more. Less gallons will paint the house; and the paint will outwear anything.

Skip wear; you've got to wait, to find that out. It covers more; you haven't got to wait to find that out.

It's the cheapest of all; no matter about the price.

M. A. Thomas, painter, Lynchburg, Va., writes: "The first job I did with your paint I estimated 37 gallons; had 12 gallons left. Since then I have used Devoe altogether and recommend it to all my customers. When I commence a job, I tack up a card reading as follows: M. A. Thomas, contractor; Devoe Paint."

TO PREVENT SOIL WASHING

Brush in the Gullies With the Tops Turned Upstream Will Save Fields From Spring Floods.

Soil erosion can be controlled if you understand the principles of soil formation and will take a little time to attend to the rapidly forming ditches.

Place brush in the gully with the tops upstream and it will catch and hold the material washed down. Be certain that you place enough brush in the ditch so that the spring rains will not wash it away. It would be well, also, to throw some hay on the brush, to aid in catching the finer material. And, if you prefer, the woven-wire dam also may be used. Place a stake on each side of the gully in the ground three feet from the bank and fasten a piece of woven wire to them. Be sure that they are firmly in the ground. Put straw, old hay or fine brush above this dam and it will catch most of the material washed down by the water. As the gully fills up add another strand of woven wire and repeat the process.

Humus, the decaying vegetable matter of the soil, tends to prevent soil erosion. Humus absorbs and retains moisture. When the ground contains an abundance of moisture the rains are absorbed and carried into the sub-soil. Therefore the rain is not left on the surface to wash ditches. Keep the soil full of humus if you desire to stop the soil washing. Have the grasses and legumes occupy a prominent place in the rotation for those hillside fields.

Soil erosion can never be prevented entirely, but it can be greatly reduced if you manage the fields as you should.

HANDY TOOL IS NEGLECTED

The old-fashioned shaving horse is one of the handiest tools used on the farm, but is rarely seen at the present time. It is easily constructed and nothing else really takes its place in the work it is intended to do.

Lettuce Is Quite Hardy.

A hardy plant that meets the smiles and frowns of the weather with a good grace is lettuce. The seed may be sown very early, if the ground is not frozen, and treated like beets or onions. It is one of the cool plants, so called. With the first warm weather it will be ready to grow, and will soon be large enough for use.

None of the salad plants is more welcome. Besides its uses as a salad plant it makes a good pot herb, though its value for this purpose is not well known.

Gardening With a Wheel Hoe.

The real pleasures of gardening remain unknown to the person who has never used a wheel hoe. This modern invention stimulates good gardening. By its use a person can cultivate his whole garden before breakfast, and feel proud of the accomplishment. The experienced gardener will use it often, and thus keep the soil of his garden in ideal condition.

GOOD ROADS & FARM NOTES

The disk will never take the place of the plow.

Many pastures fail because they are not made right.

Good seed is an integral part of success in potato growing.

Legumes should be included in every well-planned rotation.

Straw is much too valuable to be allowed to rot in the stack.

There is a poor farmer around when you see poor live stock on the farm.

Thoroughly air dried seed corn will stand almost any temperature, no matter how low.

Heavy clay soils that puddle and bake after a rain are benefited by the addition of lime.

One way to ease the work on the farm and make it more attractive is to systematize it.

Clean up the yard and farmstead generally. Plan to set out a few more ornaments next spring.

Those farmers who have roots to feed their stock this winter (whether they have a silo or not) are lucky.

Going to join the Good Roads club? No such club in the neighborhood, eh? Then get to work and organize one.

Rotation is as necessary to the growing of profitable crops as variety of food is essential to the health of the individual.

Manure is the prime necessity of the gardener, and as the hauling and composting can be done at the least cost during cold weather, the manure should be hauled then.

The manure for the vegetables must be hauled and piled during the winter so as to be well rotted when it is time to use it in the spring.

Alfalfa should not be pastured or cut so close to the ground as to injure the crowns. On good, rich land two and often three crops, can be cut each season.

No Telegraph Poles in Town.

The use of telegraph poles has been dispensed with entirely by the officials of one Welsh town, by making an arrangement with the property owners to allow the wires to be strung from house to house. There was some hesitation on the part of quite a considerable number, but the desired permission was quite generally secured conditionally in one portion of the town, and the improved appearance was so great that there was little trouble in securing the permission of all property holders. Now the new condition is a source of great pride on the part of the residents.

Used to It.

He—If we separate, why are you so anxious to have the dog? You never seemed to care for the beast.

She—I don't, but it will seem unnatural like not to have something growling about the house.

Her Disarranging Plans

"How nice to meet you, Martha Shaw!" exclaimed the little woman with her hat awry as she sank into the vacant seat on the elevated train beside a serene faced young woman. "I suppose you also are bound on that necessary errand. Don't you absolutely dread Christmas shopping?"

"Not in the least, you funny Josie Graham," Mrs. Shaw answered with a superior air, "I don't believe in rushing madly around at the eleventh hour to select gifts that invariably prove unsuitable and oftentimes are unappreciated. I'm giving only to my Sunday school class and the children in the family. For the girls I have made dainty little fancy things during the summer; for the children I bought books away back in September. Today I'm going downtown to lunch with a dear friend."

"Fortunate creature!" Mrs. Graham sighed, enviously, another wrinkle appearing in her forehead as she opened her bag, drew forth a list and hurriedly added another line of cramped writing. "I've just remembered that I must get something for the little girl next door. Last year her mother sent the baby a book, and, of course, she'll expect something for Betty this year."

"Don't you think that is a wrong conception of the Christmas spirit, giving because one gets?" Mrs. Shaw asked. "I never will be a party to such a mercenary arrangement."

"It doesn't seem quite right, but I hate to hurt any one's feelings by seeming to slight her," Mrs. Graham replied, looking out of the window anxiously. "Mercy! How this train crawls. I know I won't have time to buy half the things on my list."

"I wish I could persuade you to try my plan," Mrs. Shaw said. "Outside the children and the Sunday school class not a single soul will receive anything from me but a card expressing a Christmas sentiment. You know, that is the custom abroad, and it is a very convenient and pretty one."

"But I'd feel awfully embarrassed on receiving gifts, especially if they happened to be things I really wanted, knowing that I had sent the donor merely a trifling card," Mrs. Graham demurred. "Wouldn't you feel embarrassed under similar circumstances?"

"Not in the least," Mrs. Shaw answered, placidly.

Mrs. Graham looked dubious as she removed a needle from the front of her shirt waist and picked a strand of red silk thread from her skirt. "If one could only make up one's mind to begin one's Christmas work early in the year!" she mused. "Some of my friends did and— That reminds me; can you keep a secret? I can't, I'm afraid. When we were at the lake last summer Mrs. Kemper knit you the most exquisite pale pink porch shawl for a Christmas gift."

"How sweet of her!" Mrs. Shaw exclaimed delightedly. "And pink, too! She knows that pink is my favorite color." A thoughtful look came into her eyes.

At the next stop the two arose and left the car together, parting when they reached the sidewalk.

Late in the afternoon when Mrs. Graham paused beside a handkerchief counter she bumped elbows with Mrs. Shaw, who was frantically inspecting the contents of various boxes. Her calm appearance of the morning had vanished and she was disheveled and wild eyed.

"If it isn't the luckiest thing to meet you now!" Mrs. Shaw exclaimed. "Do you think Mrs. Kemper would like a lace handkerchief for a gift? I've racked my brains and I can't think of another thing. There, that's my bundle that dropped—all these are mine. I must have them made into one. You never know when you'll get things if you have them sent at this busy season."

"But I thought—" began Mrs. Graham wonderingly.

"Something fine and exquisite, of course," Mrs. Shaw said. "She has taken so many love-stitches for me in the pink shawl. By the way, I had a delightful visit today with my friend. She brought me an exquisite centerpiece, her own handiwork. I've just bought her a dainty short silk kimono. I met Mrs. Horton after I left you; she said that Fanny had made me the sweetest little Irish crochet jabot; I just love them. I got Fanny a belt buckle—young girls love pretty things."

"I think this is the prettiest handkerchief. It is the last thing I'm going to buy today. I'm completely worn out, aren't you? I'm going to run down again tomorrow and buy the other gifts. I caught a glimpse of my brother Jack's wife at the fancy work counter matching a cord to a pillow top that I know is for me; I have always openly admired hers. I think I'll give Fanny and Jack a piece of cut glass; they are starting housekeeping, you know."

"Haven't your Christmas plans become a little disarranged, my dear?" Mrs. Graham asked, unkindly.

"No, indeed," Mrs. Shaw returned quickly, giving her hat a push which landed it over the left eye instead of the right. She held out her hand encased in a soiled white kid glove for her package and added with dignity, "I am simply elaborating on my plans."

The KITCHEN CABINET

IT IS never hard to do the right thing; it is in deciding to do it that the tug comes.

Let us try to make it a little easier for the child to do right and a little harder for it to do wrong.

DAINTY THINGS FOR THE TABLE.

A perfectly delicious and most attractive dessert is:

Fruit Sponge Drops With Cream.—Beat thoroughly a cup of sugar and three eggs, add a third of a cup of water and a cup of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add salt and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in patty pans and when cool scoop out the center carefully and fill the cavities with peaches, pears or any desired fruit. Place a spoonful of whipped cream on each, garnish with a piece of fruit used for the filling, and serve. Or they may be rolled in boiled frosting and sprinkled with cocoanut.

Cottage Cheese Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of cottage cheese with half a cup of walnut meats, a teaspoonful of chopped chives or onion. Season highly with salt and paprika, and arrange in balls, three in a nest of lettuce. Pour around them mayonnaise to which has been added some chopped olives or capers.

Mock Clam Soup.—Wash free from salt a half pound of salt codfish, cover with a quart of cold water, and bring to the boiling point and simmer for one-half hour. Remove the fish, which may be saved for balls and strain the water, add a thickening of a tablespoonful of butter which has been cooked with a tablespoonful of flour. Add a pint of milk and bring to the boiling point. Into the soup dish place a piece of buttered toast, pour in the soup and garnish with finely-cut parsley.

Graham Bread.—Mix two cupfuls of scalded milk, one-third of a cup of molasses, two teaspoonfuls of salt, and when luke warm a fourth of a yeast cake dissolved in warm water, and two cupfuls of flour, four cupfuls of graham. Beat well, let rise until double its bulk, beat again, place in buttered pans and when well risen, bake in a moderate oven.

Prune Pudding.—Make a small mold of lemon jelly. Cook until tender a cup of large prunes, place in a glass dish and pour over the lemon jelly. Set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream.

Who would be loved be capable of love

Beyond the utmost he receives; who claims

The rod of power must first have bowed his head,

And being honored, honor what's above. This know the men who leave the world their names. —Bayard Taylor.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

During the cold weather we are able to digest heartier foods and they are most necessary to keep up the body heat. An occasional dish, not so rich in fat, is relished. Here is a recipe rather unusual:

Indian Doughnuts.—Pour a cup of boiling milk over a cup of white cornmeal, two tablespoonfuls of butter and half a teaspoonful of salt. When cool add one and a half cups of sugar, two beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of allspice and two cups of flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Handle as soft as possible. Cut and fry in deep fat. If the dough is well chilled before rolling the cakes may be handled much softer.

Marshmallow Grape Juice.—Add the juice of a lemon to a quart of grape juice and sweeten as desired. Boil with a stick of cinnamon and a few cloves. Serve hot in glasses with two marshmallows in each glass. This is a nice hot drink on a cold day.

Mutton in Green Grape Sauce.—Brown two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour in a saucepan; add salt, pepper and a cup of gravy. As soon as well blended add a third of a cup of green grape jelly. When melted, lay in a few slices of roast mutton, and when thoroughly hot add five tablespoonfuls of unsweetened grape juice, and serve.

Oysters Sauted.—Pour a quart of boiling water over a pint of oysters, then drain and chop fine. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, turn in the oysters and season well; add two tablespoonfuls of rolled crackers and three-fourths of a cup of cream, stir and cook five minutes. Serve on toast strips with parsley.

Baked custards are greatly improved by the addition of a few spoonfuls of cocoanut. The same is true of custard pie.
