CHRISTIAN X NOW KING

FREDERICK VIII DEAD

End Predicted by Fortune Teller

ALL DENMARK IN DEEP GLOOM

The Dead Monarch Liked Americans.—
Was a Soldier, a Friend of the Working Class, a Man of Culture and Progressive Ideas.

Frederick VIII, King of Denmark died suddenly from a stroke of apoplexy in Hamburg, Germany, on Tuesday night. He had just eaten a hearty dinner and was strolling in the business section of the city and suddenly fell to the sidewalk. A passerby ran to his assistance and with the aid of a policeman the dying monarch was lifted into an auto and rushed to a hospital. Death came, however, before he reached there.

The King, as was his custom, even at home, except on state occasions, was attired in ordinary street dress and as there was nothing to afford a clue to his identification his body was placed in the mortuary of the hospital.

The King's absence from Hamburger Hof, created anxiety and the royal suite accompanied by the proprietor of the hotel began to make inquiries and search for His Majesty. Arriving at the hospital, to which they had been informed an elderly man had recently been brought, they were horrified to discover that the dead man was the King. His body was immediately conveyed to the hotel where it was laid out amid masses of flowers, and his royal relations notified. Among these—and the connection is very large—were Queen Mother Alexandra, the Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, and King George and Queen Mary of England.

It is said that not long ago the late King consulted a fortune-teller who informed him that he would die on May 15.

King Frederick, whose father, King Christian IX., was known as the "Uncle of Europe," was related to nearly all the reigning houses. One of Frederick's brothers, William, is King of the Hellenes, to which honor he was elected under the title of George I. His sister, Alexandra, is the widow of King Edward VII. of Great Britain and mother of King George V., and another sister, Marie, is the widow of Emperor Alexander III. of Russia and mother of the present Emperor. A third sister is the wife of the Duke of Cumberland.

His second son, Prince Charles, was elected King of Norway in November, 1905, under the title of Haakon VII., and married Princess Maud of Great Britain. Another child, Princess Ingeborg, is the wife of Prince Charles of Sweden.

Christian X. was proclaimed King of Denmark on Wednesday amid the cheers of the populace. The new King was born in 1870, and is married to Princess Alexandra of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, thus being a brother-in-law of the Crown Prince of Germany. He is a major general in the Danish army. He has two sons—Prince Christian Frederick, born March 11, 1899, and Prince Knud, born July 27, 1900.

The late King Frederick VIII. was a great friend of America. He was cultured and progressive and took a leading part in public movements for the improvement of the condition of the working classes. He was a man of fine mental attainment and was at one time head of the University of Copenhagen. He took a keen interest in the Danish army and introduced many reforms.

HONEYFUGLE MAY MEAN ONE THING, IT MAY MEAN ANOTHER

Word Used by Mr. Taft in One of His Ohio Speeches in Which, Strange to Say, He Referred to Roosevelt.

During a long political campaign like the one that President Taft and Former President Roosevelt have been waging, many words and expressions arise that attract, more or less, the attention of those who keep tab on the principals who coin or use them. Mr. Roosevelt always had one or two up his sleeve and when on a speechmaking rampage he usually keeps the interested ones digging in the dictionary.

"Honeyfugle" is one given out by Mr. Taft and commented on by the New York Times as follows: In the course of his first day's speechmaking in Ohio President Taft used the queer word "honeyfugle," as descriptive of his former friend's method of seeking popular support. The term has long been familiar to some of us, while others, more numerous perhaps, never heard or saw it before. Its meaning is obvious enough from context, and even from looks and sound, but the derivation is not so easy to figure out.

"To honeyfugle," according to the dictionary, is American slang for "wheedle" or "cajole," but "fugleman" is good old English that was "made in Germany," where it meant originally an expert soldier who led or directed the less skillful in military exercises. Later it was applied to the leader or example-setter in anything, and especially to a person employed by politicians or others to serve their interests while pretending independence. Once the "fugle" was "flugel," a wing.

Whether "honeyfugle" is or is not really related to "fugleman" and "flugelmann" can most safely be left an open question, with the probabilities against it. The chances are that it is just a made-up word with no derivation at all.

Wormy Lard and Impure Water.

Describing his two years' observations of packing-house conditions in Philadelphia a meat inspector testifying before the Moss investigating committee, referred to "lard containing worms, scrapple made of bad meat, hog carcasses that emitted an awful stench and revolting sanitary conditions." He described packing-house conditions in Philadelphia as "something awful."

The former inspector, who appeared as a witness in support of Representative Nelson's resolution for an investigation of the meat inspection service, declared that during his service at Cumberland water pronounced impure by the state and city boards of health had been used in Swift & Co's branch packing house against his protest.

Best Score in Atlantic Fleet.

The battleship Michigan is the honor ship of the Navy in so far as gunnery practice and target shooting is concerned; that is she stood head at the completion of a three month's trial in which sixteen battleships were entered.

The other 15 battleships of the Atlantic fleet fell below 50 per cent, with averages ranging from 47.124 down to 23.606. They stood in the following order at the end of the quarter: North Dakota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Rhode Island, Maryland, Connecticut, Louisiana, North Carolina, Mississippi, Kansas, South Carolina, Minnesota Nebraska and Georgia.

Red Skins Are Not Vanishing.

The redskins now living in the United States number 265,683, as against the 237,196 of a decade ago. The Director of the census reports that 56.5 per cent. of them are full-blooded Indians. There are at least 300,000 Indians in North America, and their number is increasing; they are not "vanishing." Indeed, ethnological experts say that the continent harbors more aborigines than in the days before the white man came. In the hunting stage of civilization the land could not support many Indians.

Pension to Mrs. Schley Too Small.

Senator Rayner's pension bill in behalf of the widow of the late Admiral Schley was cut from $1,800 to $600 a year and in that shape reported favorably by the Senate Pensions Committee. The Maryland Senator proposes to carry the fight to the floor of the Senate and to ask for an increase to $150 a month.

Russia Boycotts U. S. Machinery.

AN ENGINEERING FEAT INVOLVING TWENTY MILLIONS

Great Bridge to Connect San Francisco and Oakland, California.—Eastern Capitalists Interested.

Capitalists in San Francisco and the eastern states, with the consent of the National Government, are about to engage in the erection of a great bridge, four miles in length, which will connect Oakland and San Francisco. It is believed that the project, which will involve the expenditure of $20,000,000, will be well under way by the time the Panama Exposition is held.

A bridge has been the dream of those who look upon San Francisco as the dominant city of the Pacific, and expect her to spread out in time and take in the other municipalities, but it has been thought that such a structure could not be built within reasonable cost.

The problem, however, seems to have been solved by Allan C. Rush, an engineer of Los Angeles. After much study he has patented devices which he declares will meet dangers from storm or earthquake and will also prevent swaying. He has convinced the business Men's Association and Col. Biddle, the ranking army engineer officer in the State, and has the approval of the War Department, which will oversee the work. On this showing he has been able to get the backing necessary, and the consent of Congress is expected this session.

Eight concrete piers, 30 feet in diameter, will support the structure by means of 10 steel cables 20 inches in diameter. The floor will be 150 feet above the water. There will be room for about a dozen railroad tracks for driveways, and for walks. There will also be conduits for wires.

Each of the cities is to have a third interest in the bridge in consideration of franchises and terminals, and the balance of stock is to be held by the backers.

Wireless Telephony Is Success.

Italian naval and military authorities have been carrying on experiments in wireless telephony. A month ago a message was sent from the wireless station on Monte Mario to the Island of Ponza, a distance of about 65 miles. Further experiments produced an improved method of transmission, and last week communication was established between Monte Mario and the wireless station at Becco Di Vela on Magdalena Island, a distance of about 160 miles.

A long extract from a newspaper was read at Rome and heard and repeated at Magdalena. The voices were distinct, so much that a listener detected immediately the substitution of a different speaker half through the message. Further developments may be expected soon.

Money in Airship Manufacturing.

Wright Aeroplane Company has voted an annual dividend of 20 per cent. It is expected that the action of the executive committee will be ratified at an early meeting of the board of directors, of which Wilbur Wright is chairman. This is the third time the company has declared a 20 per cent. dividend.

The Wright company is a $1,000,000 corporation, organized three years ago by the Dayton inventors. There are now but sixteen stockholders, among whom are Cornelius Vanderbilt, Andrew Vreeman, DeLancy Nicoll, and several others prominent in the financial world. A total of almost $600,000 will have been paid to the Wright company stockholders in the past three years if the board approves the dividend.

New Instrument To Detect Icebergs.

The microthermometer, the invention of Prof. H. T. Barnes of McGill University, was satisfactorily tested by its originator in a recent ocean trip from Halifax to Bristol. The vessel left Halifax May 1. The first berg was seen on the afternoon of May 7. During the following night and early morning a number passed at a distance of two or three miles. In addition to the "growlers" low in the water, which the ship had to clear, the proximity of an iceberg had a most perceptible effect on the microthermometer, and the results were electrically recorded on charts in the engineers' quarters.

Rather be Mentioned Than Elected.

George Ade, playwright and author of the well-known "George Ade's Fables," would rather be mentioned for Republican governor of Indiana, so he says, than be elected. He declares it provides mirth in homes lately saddened by the internal dissensions of his party.

Republicans Praise Both Their Candidates

GOLDSBOROUGH IS THE LEADER

His Programme Goes Through.—All
Factional Differences Smothered.—
Wellington a Delegate After Hot Fight.

The Republican State Convention met in Baltimore on Tuesday. Governor Goldsborough carried the day. He succeeded in bringing together both the Roosevelt and Taft factions among the delegates, and a slate was agreed upon which includes sixteen delegates to the National Convention in Chicago. Governor Goldsborough took sides with Col. E. C. Carrington, Jr., and the entire Roosevelt organization, and everything on which he, with the leaders of the two forces, had agreed upon, went through without a hitch. William F. Stone for years undisputed leader of the city machine, was not even considered.

The platform, as adopted, declares faith in both candidates. It follows:

"We, the delegates of the Republican party of Maryland, in convention assembled, declare anew our faith in the great principles of the Republican party, which have for more than 20 years won for it the confidence and support of the people of the nation.

"We reaffirm and adopt the declaration of principles and policies as contained in the Republican national platform of 1908, and declare that all of the great questions which vitally affect the prosperity and happiness of the American people can best be solved in accordance with the principles expressed in that platform, under the guidance of the Republican party.

History of The English Shilling.

The shilling, known in England from the earliest times, is probably the Roman solidus or aureus nummus, the first gold coin of Rome, struck 207 B. C., and worth about $5.10 in American money. Some derive the name from schellen, "to ring," because of the peculiar ring of the coin. The English shilling is silver, being one-twentieth of a pound sterling.

The Pine Tree shilling is American, having been coined in the colony of Massachusetts, when Cromwell was turning England upside down. The Beard Token was a copper coin, struck by Peter the Great, of Russia, in 1724, to be given to those who paid the tax of 50 roubles, every year for privilege of wearing beads. The Russian rouble of 1779 was of gold. That of 1837 was of silver, but both of the same value—about 75 cents.

A 1907 Letter About Roosevelt.

In a will case in New York the other day the following letter from Benjamin Hart, dated Paris, 1907, to E. W. Sheldon, president of the U. S. Trust Co., was introduced as evidence.

Is our President Roosevelt insane, or has he joined that party of politicians who are always ready to sacrifice every interest to obtain certain political ends? His last message would indicate such. Certainly he has dealt a blow to the credit of our industrial enterprises and the rich men of the country which has shaken still more the confidence of people in Europe that will require a long time to overcome. * * * Over here we look upon such actions as Socialistic which strike always favorably the lower classes of voters. I am surprised at Roosevelt, for I believed he was a different man. He evidently has never had any education in political economy. * * * Yet we may have him again for another term.

Saunders, of Michigan, will lead the class which will graduate next month, the members of which will be the first to receive commissions as ensigns immediately upon completion of the Naval Academy course. Midshipman Saunders is the most expert rifle shot in the academy, and the cadet commander of the brigade. He has led his class every year during his course.

Rev. J. Poyntz Tyler, rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, Hagerstown, and archdeacon of Cumberland, has received a call to become general missionary of the Diocese of Alabama, with residence in Birmingham or Montgomery.

Just who are the justices of the peace in Wicomico county is hard to determine at this time. Governor Goldsborough appointed new men to fill the offices of the justices of the peace in the county, taking the ground that the term of the old set expired by constitutional limitation on May 6. This point of view is not accepted by the men who have been in office, who contend that in order for a successor to be legally appointed he must be confirmed by the Senate.

Arrangements for the carnival to be held in West Baltimore during the week that the convention visitors are in the city are being completed by business men of that section. It is planned to spend $10,000 at least on the week's celebration, and it is thought probable that the expenses of the undertaking will reach an amount double that figure.

A meeting of the citizens of Crisfield to nominate a mayor and city councilman was held at Collins's Assembly Hall, Mayor W. F. Hall was elected chairman and Dr. C. E. Collins secretary of the meeting. L. Quinn, editor of the Crisfield Times, was nominated for mayor and L. S. Nock, a well-known young business man, for city council. The election will be held on June 5, Mayor W. Hall and City Councilman Sterling both declined renomination.

First steps were taken yesterday for the erection of a hospital for the insane on the Eastern Shore—the third of its kind in the state. Its cost will be $200,000.

There is a probability that the Washington county School Commissioners will adopt the compulsory education law passed at the recent session of the Legislature. The Commissioners at a meeting discussed the question of adopting the law for the county, but action was postponed until later, the Commissioners and the Superintendent of Schools, W. Merrick Huyett, desiring first to familiarize themselves with the provisions of the law.

INVENTION WILL BE USEFUL IN CAMPAIGNS

Cinematograph and Gramophone Successfully Hitched Up and Wonderful Demonstration Given.

An inventory by means of which cinematograph films and gramophone records taken of a public man making a speech can be presented simultaneously with the sounds and movements in perfect unison, was demonstrated a few days ago in London. Leon Gaumont, to whose genius it is due, comprised two electric motors of identical pattern for driving the gramophone and the cinematograph. There is a special arrangement by which any want of accord between the sound and the movement can be immediately rectified.

As a prelude to the wonderful demonstration there was shown a living picture of a rooster that crowed. It appeared on the screen brilliant in its natural coloring, for all the "chronophone" pictures are in natural colors, so that one saw the bronze sheen of the plumage, the red comb, and pale yellow spurs. It flapped its wings, rolled its eyes, thrust its neck upward and forward, and from its wide-opened beak there came the triumphant crow. The whole audience could watch the characteristic movements of the rooster just as if it were real and living before them.

The picture of the lion tamer in his den was even more remarkable, for here there was a mixture of sounds, the man speaking, the crack of his whip, the thud of an iron bar falling on the floor of the cage, and the terrible snarl and growls of the lions, all so life-like that it seemed impossible that the actual lion cage had not been somehow spirited into the room.

The possibilities of the invention are obvious. At election times, for instance, a great leader can be seen and heard simultaneously in every constituency. The records of famous people will go down to posterity as they appeared and talked. Every town will be able to have its "chronophone" opera house.

Biggest Battleship Ever Built.

Merely as illustrating twenty years' development in battleship building it is interesting to compare the new Texas with the old Texas, which was launched in 1892, and which after having been renamed San Marcos, was shot to pieces and sunk in gun practice last Spring. The old boat cost $2,500,000, was 301 feet long and 64 feet wide; her displacement was 6,315 tons, her draught 22 feet, her coal bunker capacity 850 tons, and her speed 17 knots.

The new Texas is 675 feet long, with 28-foot beam, and a draught of 28 feet. She will take the water at 12,000 tons, and when completed her displacement will be 28,000 tons; her coal bunker capacity is 2,850 tons, and her speed is 21 knots. She will be the first ship to carry fourteen-inch guns, of which she has 14. She cost nearly $6,000,000.

Her building has been remarkably rapid, her keel having been laid on April 17, 1911, and on May 18 she takes the water 70 per cent. complete. Her twin ship, the New York, building in the New York Navy Yard, is two months behind her in construction, and will not be launched until some time in July.

Symphony Inspired by Titanic.

The Russian composer, Glazunoff, is at work on a symphony inspired by the wreck of the Titanic.

It will be called "A Song of Death" and will bring out all the changes in the ill-starred vessel's cruise, beginning with the joyful start from Southampton and ending with the plunge into the depths in the icefields south of Cape Race.

ON THE SQUARE

NEW DAINTY LINGERIE

Far removed from the shirrs and gathers—belts and buttons—of seasons past is the fluffy array of dainty garments designated underwear. In the very elaborate pieces one looks in vain for anything more substantial than a bit of lace, or batiste medallion, on which to place responsibility for wear. The favored garment is the combination of corset cover and drawers, which aids so materially in dispensing with all undesirable fullness about the waist and hips. Many are made in princess style, with lengthwise trimmings of insertion to accentuate the straight line effect. The drawers are wide—very wide—and slashed almost to the belt line on either side, with generous bows of ribbon forming junctures at attractive intervals. Indeed, some of these garments are made almost entirely of laces, embroideries, and ribbons, simulating to a marked degree the fluffy ballot shirt.

Among the petticoats there is one particular model which receives from all enthusiastic admiration, and is eagerly sought by the prospective bride. It is made of a fine quality batiste—straight and narrow—with an eight-inch flounce of Val lace overlaid with Van Dyke points and headed by a two-inch beading, ribbon-drawn.

THE BLACK HAT STAYS.

All black millinery is suited for wear with practically any toilette, and the fancy for black has greatly influenced us to adopt this somber millinery. When the hat itself is not black it is lined with black velvet, or the inner side of the brim is trimmed with velvet bands. The large hat may be wreathed with flowers or with feathers. The toque is nearly always draped with ribbon, which may be relieved by quills or floral sprays.

SUMMER MILLINERY.

Many of the newest summer hats are fashioned of petal straw, so called on account of its fineness and suppleness, and are bordered with a ribbon of straw or lined completely with velvet. Tegal, of course, keeps its place in favor, and is often lined with jedda or Manila straw in a contrasting color. The natural shade of tegal, lined with cerise or parma violet jedda, violet or navy blue lined with turtle gray Manila, or black tegal lined with chamois, are all favorite combinations of color in the spring millinery. And in order to harmonize with the shot taffetas of the season, there are many hats in mingled fancy straw, while tegal is often plaited with very fine straw in a contrasting color arranged in squares, diamonds or lozenges, thus forming a border of bright color on a foundation of dark tegal.

Girl Breaks Swimming Record.

Rose Pitonof, a Boston girl of seventeen, broke the record for swimming, making a mile in 0:23:45 in the Detroit River. The American amateur record for the one mile swim in open water is given as 0:25:40 2-5, held by J. H. Reilly. The professional record is given as more than twenty-six minutes.

A RARE INVENTION

Emmitsburg Genius Devises Unique "Weather Maker."

Professor William Henry Harrison Hardman, local weather maker, with offices and bureau at the kiln, acknowledges that he is more or less responsible for the rain and unsettled atmospheric conditions that have prevailed in this district for the past few weeks. Professor Hardman's time has been so taken up by other duties lately that it has been practically impossible for him to regulate his weather maker to the satisfaction of his numerous patrons. A visit to Professor Hardman's bureau will repay one for the exertion demanded and the time employed. His element-clutcher and atmosphere crate, both invented by him, are marvels of ingenuity. It would be interesting to know the outlay for these intricate bits of delicate mechanism, but all the information one can gather is that $87,593.13 will not buy them. Both machines are shown below.

ELEMENT-CLUTCHER AND ATMOSPHERE CRATE COMBINED.

Board Keeps Vice at a Minimum.

An immense amount of good is being done in Kansas City, according to a resident of that place, by a Board of Public Welfare. "This board is a conservator of the public morals and by its activity keeps vice at a minimum," says this gentleman. "Public dances, for example, that were formerly notorious for disorder and hoodlum conduct, are carried on with as much propriety, thanks to the Welfare Board, as though given at a private residence. The latest move is to open public school buildings in the evenings for the diversion and social improvement of all who dwell in the neighborhood of the schools. Such recreation agencies are a necessity in all big towns, and wherever they have been tried their popularity has been instantaneous. They may be used for dancing, amateur theatricals and all other innocent amusements, and the fathers and mothers of the children are made to feel that they are just as welcome to participate as the youngsters." The average amount of schooling received during the period of school life—from the fifth to the eighteenth year of age—in the United States is only a little more than five years of ten months each.

Counties Put One Over on Baltimore Machine

John Walter Smith Remains the State Leader and Mayor Preston Boosted For Vice President.

The Baltimore City Machine crowd and Mayor Preston each got their bumps at the Democratic State Convention yesterday and when they woke up one John Walter Smith had everything under his thumb. Senator Smith had the counties with him and with their aid slid one over on the Mayor who had prepared a slate of his own, and sent Arthur Pue Gorman to the bench. Soon after the convention was called to order at the Academy by Chairman Murray Vandiver, a resolution endorsing Mayor Preston was adopted. This resolution was as follows:

"Whereas the press of the country and many distinguished leaders of the Democratic party have suggested the name of the Hon. James H. Preston, now Mayor of the city of Baltimore, as Vice-President of the United States, and the suggestion has been received with the warmest approval on the part of the citizens of Maryland as expressed at many meetings and in the local press, and

"Whereas by the honest, fearless, progressive and public-spirited manner in which James H. Preston has conducted the affairs of the city of Baltimore as its Mayor and has shown executive ability of highest order such as fully justifies the confidence of the people of Maryland, and

"Whereas Baltimore is the place of meeting of the Convention and this and the party services of Mr. Preston would render such nomination eminently proper, and

"Whereas the State of Maryland and the city of Baltimore are the gateway between the North and the South, and no Southern State has received recognition on the national ticket for many years, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this Convention recommends to the delegates of Maryland and to the Democratic National Convention that they use every honorable effort to secure the nomination of Hon. James H. Preston as Vice-President of the United States."

Harvard Elms Give Way to Oaks.

The Class of 1912 will be the last to hold its commencement festivities under the Harvard Yard elms. Steps toward making a more beautiful yard have been taken in earnest, and after class day every elm in the Quadrangle will be cut down in order to make room for the sixty-four small red oaks which are now being transplanted.

Letters To The Editor.

[The Editor would have it understood that he is not responsible for the views expressed in communications addressed to him and published in THE CHRONICLE.]

*No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

To The Editor:

The newspapers of the smaller towns throughout the country are frequently solicited to insert reading advertisements for the Philadelphia School for Nurses, located at 2219 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, and as it poses as a beneficent and charitable institution these advertisements are inserted free of charge.

The Visitor of the Pennsylvania State Board of Charities in a report states: "Nothing to be seen worth reporting. No indication of lessons or instruction. Your visitor cannot commend this institution" and in a letter says: "This last places this institution under the head of those we condemn absolutely in our printed report."

It is advisable that the public should know that the young women who enter this school as pupils are sent out after having had the most meagre instruction from incompetent instructors, to nurse in private families for money, eighty per cent. of which is returned to the school treasury. They receive no bedside instruction nor are they under the direction of skilled and competent teachers.

The Chief of the Bureau of Health in his report to the Director of Health and Charities of the City of Philadelphia says: "I feel that it is an imposition on the public to allow this class of nurses to practice their profession, as the following circumstances connected with these cases of typhoid fever prove conclusively to my mind that these nurses are not properly trained to be entrusted with the noble work of nursing the sick."

The graduates of this school are not accepted by the American National Red Cross Society, nor the Nursing corps of the Army and Navy; they are not admitted to the Directory for Nurses connected with the College of Physicians, Philadelphia, nor are they recognized by the Pennsylvania State Board of Examiners for Registration of Nurses.

I have given you this information for the reason that poor and ambitious young women, attracted by the advantages set forth in the free advertisements inserted in the newspapers all over the country, with great effort travel long distances to attend this school, in the hope of becoming trained nurses, only to find after entering that they are giving their time and work to an institution which does not educate and equip them for the profession of nursing.

In the interest of these young women of your locality I would ask that you give this statement as much publicity as possible.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM S. HIGBEE, M. D.
President of the Pennsylvania State Board of Examiners for Registration of Nurses.

To The Editor:

On Friday afternoon, May 10th the baseball team of Emmitsburg High School journeyed to Frederick in automobiles. Arriving about 2.30 P. M. they were at once escorted to the new High School grounds, a place that 110 boys, the enrollment of their high school, could in a very short time make into a ball diamond instead of a pasture.

Frederick appeared on the field at 4.15 accompanied by their fair rooters and town fans. This was very proper. Frederick High School had played eight games and lost but one and was until last Friday considered the best in the county having played and downed such teams as Gettysburg, Thurmont and Brunswick. These fans not only expected another overwhelming victory but the most ridiculous faults in a game. But alas! What faults they did see, were Frederick faults.

And this was the greatest. "If a game must be won by an umpire, let it be an umpire who follows the ball at all times and can distinguish between a foul ball and fair." In the Frederick Post and in the Baltimore Sunday Sun, Thomas is credited with having hit a home run. We will stand by that decision "if over the hedge-fence is out or a home run." Emmitsburg decisively claims this game as much as Frederick and Frederick ought to have reported it 0-0.

We were the stars? If Connie Mack is looking for good material he will find it in the battery of Wm. Rosensteel and Archie Morrison. At no time in the game did these two show the white flag. Not a minute was lost in exchanging signals, but those strikes like cannon-balls whizzed over the plate into that "pillar of back-stop" Morrison. Keeping cool, acting like men and giving the other fellow his dues were indeed characteristic traits of the boys who represented Emmitsburg in Frederick.

We congratulate them on their wonderful game.

By a vote of the faculty, graduates and seniors in physics seminary of Cornell University, it was decided that the seven wonders of the modern world are: wireless telegraphy, synthetic chemistry, radium, antitoxins, aviation, the Panama canal and the telephone.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

A SPLENDID RESULT.

No doubt there were many persons who failed to take seriously the Red Cross seal method of fighting tuberculosis when that method was introduced into this country from Norway and Sweden several years ago. Equally as many to-day, no doubt, are surprised at the splendid results obtained during the four years just past. One million dollars is the return and with that amount a magnificent work has been done. The Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis recognizes no distinction in color, creed or social standing of those whom it faithfully serves. Nor is its work confined to any one section of the country. So large has it become, its branches and allied organizations extending beyond seas and oceans, that its noble work takes in almost the entire civilized world.

A simpler or more modest way of raising funds for stamping out this terrible and quick spreading disease could not have been devised. It taxes no one; it is a drain on no one's purse. It appeals to all humanity to aid humanity, and that the appeal has been so generally responded to speaks well for the age in which we live.

WHEREUPON TEDDY IMPLIES: "I am the center and circumference of all that is best in everything. I am not only the star performer, but the whole cast. The world is my audience, and when I place the crown of the wisdom of the universe upon my head—and I embody all the wisdom in creation—you'll see that I am the Big Noise and Solomon will breathe forth from his tomb, 'I pass.' I don't have to prove it, I admit it, and what I say goes. Step up to the bull ring, then, you voters of the country, and get stunned by the big stick.

There is an outlaw league playing the political game—several leagues, in fact,—but I hold the only valid franchise for the real thing. I gave it to myself and I know all about it. Take it from me, I am the gilded ball on top of the world's flag pole. Gaze up at me and become blinded like all the rest."

"MEMBERSHIP in the House should be a matter of distinction and service and not a job," says the Hon. David J. Lewis. And there's just where he's right. There is nothing of the job hunter about the gentleman from Allegany. Little David has been serving the Sixth district with distinction and honor. His sling, always loaded with brainy ammunition, is ever ready to bowl over any Goliath who comes forward with a crooked scheme, a graft game, a monopolistic measure whereby Maryland or any other State in the Union would be imposed upon.

POLITICS even gets mixed up in the launching festivities of a government vessel. The Texas, the biggest battleship ever built, will be christened to-morrow, but the President will not be there. Neither will the governor of Texas nor the Secretary of the Navy, nor the Texas delegation in Congress. Why? All because the daughter of a political boss was chosen sponsor. A great country, this.

SPECIALISTS in Berlin recommend knitting in bed as a cure for nervousness. We heartily indorse this simple remedy, but would go a step further and suggest a more general knitting habit. "Attend to your knitting" being synonymous with "mind your own business" we would advise all with the gossiping disease, for instance, to carry their knitting with them all the time.

WONDER if those twenty-three Congressmen in that list of members over sixty-five years of age have been making little side trips to Jersey for a pull at Senator Martine's jug of applejack? It will be remembered that the Senator from that State of sand and mosquitoes spoke right out in school and said that that Jersey elixir was a great promoter of longevity.

"POLITICALLY I uphold and work for whichever party happens to be in office," wrote a Colorado citizen to Postmaster-General Hitchcock. Frankness like that ought certainly to be rewarded. Hitchcock will soon need more political henchmen and here's his chance.

GREAT things are going on down there in Washington these days, and Congressmen are showing up in many funny ways. And when not at the big league games out at the baseball park, they're groping 'round the Capitol quite aimless, in the dark.

THE good work begun by the new town administration and the many improvements started and contracted for by property holders in Emmitsburg indicate that the people here take a keen interest in their community. This is as it should be.

AND as a little side-show—not in any way connected with the all-star performance going on in the main tent—Bryan and Harmon are doing a few juggling acts that are attracting some attention.

MR. BONAPARTE, being in an apologetic and a naively would-be convincing mood, has it that "some Roosevelt voters appear to have voted for Taft delegates."

If the Colonel ever talks to himself—and the chances are that he does—it's twenty to one he never calls himself a liar. He could do it with great propriety.

LOOK out for more water in lamp juice and a raise of the price of that commodity! The Standard Oil Company just paid another $50,000 fine.

INSTEAD of a six year term why not make the tenure of the presidential office ten years, followed by life sentence in an asylum?

SWAT the ball! That was the call the captain used to cry. But now we hear, same time each year, be sure to "swat the fly."

Smallest Church in the World.

The little village of St. Lawrence, Isle of Wight, was long notable for its queer little church, "the smallest in the world." It was twenty-five feet long, eleven wide, and about as high as a tall man. Its walls are Saxon and very old. This church has given rise to a curious version of the proverbial saying, "Lazy Lawrence." In Hampshire, England (to which the Isle of Wight belongs,) a lazy man is called an "Isle o' Wight man." This is accounted for, not that the islanders are lazy, but because they have a church dedicated to the "lazy Saint." The legend is that St. Lawrence was roasted on a gridiron. While his martyrdom was going on, he neither groaned, writhed or turned over. "How great must be his faith," said a Christian present, "that he can be so calm!" "Not so," replied the pagan executioner; "he's too lazy to turn over."

This Church of St. Lawrence had originally sittings for twelve people, but it has of late years received the addition of a recess chancel, so that it can no longer be called "the smallest church." In the village of Bonchurch, which derives its name from a church dedicated to St. Boniface, is a little church about thirty feet long and twelve wide; it has seven pews and two galleries, and might possibly hold twenty people. It is about eight centuries old and is very elegant within. The style is Norman, the ceiling circular, and the chancel separated from the body of the building by a low stone partition. The church is still used for public worship, the larger part of the congregation being seated out of the doors, under awnings, and hearing through the doors and windows.

There is no doubt that these small churches scattered over Great Britain and Ireland were originally built as family chapels or chantries. From about the year 1200 A. D., chantries began to be built, each only large enough for one altar, at which a priest could say masses for the soul of its builder; this accounts for their diminutive proportions.

SPRING.

The face of Earth doth seem so wondrous fair,
When budding Spring responds to God's caress,
And Nature's choir with Spring-songs fills the air,
As if the Maker's handiwork to bless.
When slanting sun-rays over dale and hill,
Accent the pale green tints of verdure new,
And mirthful melody of woodland rill,
Seems bidding wintry confines blithe adieu.

When love is young and hearts are fancy free,
And yet unknown is sorrow, want or care,
And on the brow of youth shines purity;
Oh! then the whole of Earth is wondrous fair.

WILSON ON THE TARIFF

"It begins to dawn upon the whole country that the tariff is no longer a statesmanlike plan of protection, but a privately managed game for profits. A big game—a huge scheme—carried out through the votes of enormous numbers of men, who are deceived by the old phrases and do not face the new facts; a game in which the powerful, the subtle, the unscrupulous, are more likely to prevail than any others.

"The most manifest tokens of our stimulated 'prosperity' in recent years have been the growth of trusts and combinations. Something, whether it be the tariff or whatever else it may be, lies behind these monopolistic projects which no law yet passed has been effectual to stop or even to check.

"In brief, Privilege lies armed and secure in the old Bastille. Every avenue of the brilliant, modern life is commanded by its mines and batteries. The face of 'general advantage' worn by the tariff scheme is a mask, and many private jests grin behind it.

"The tariff is the mother of artificial prices because it is the foster-mother of monopoly, and only when these roots of the whole evil thing are touched shall we begin to get control of the forces which have all but mastered us.

"For the serious and sinister thing lying back of all this matter is the fact that particular groups of persons have got control of this whole tariff business by constituting themselves the chief patrons of the party in power, by supplying it with campaign funds, by convincing it that panic will ensue upon any, even the slightest, disregard of their interests and demands. The beneficiaries of the Government's policy have become its masters, and the Government itself is as much under their guidance and control as the stock market and the prices for staple goods"—Woodrow Wilson.

OBJECT OF UNIVERSITIES.

"The university is not especially designed for the purpose of fitting a man directly for the daily duties of his future work in life. It should not attempt to develop a particular talent for any particular task, but the whole man. No faculty of the mind can be satisfactorily trained in isolation. There must be symmetrical growth of all faculties. The high potential of stored energy, moreover, acquired in the process of a fully rounded development of all a man's powers, lends an increased momentum and driving force to the particular activities of his speciality, and thus allows many lines of capability to meet in one point of practical efficiency. Methods of instruction should not narrow down to an anticipation of the customary procedure of the office and counting room. The undergraduate education should not attempt to train specialists, nor to drill the students in any definite routine or rules of practice. It is not the rule of practice, but the fundamental principles and governing laws of a subject which are of supreme value to one who would win his way to the heart of knowledge. Fit a man for the day's work, but at the same time equip him to meet the crises and the emergency which the day's work will inevitably bring forth. He who has laid a broad and secure foundation will have no difficulty in erecting a superstructure. Whatever he builds he will be able to build himself into the work of his hand and brain. Make a man and he will find his work."—President Hibben, of Princeton, in his inaugural address.

CRICHTON-BROWNE ON BRAIN.

When Romanes many years ago showed by experiment that women can read much faster than men, whereas men have more decision of character, he supplied no explanation of his discovery.

Such an explanation was given by Sir James Crichton-Browne, the celebrated physician, in his Presidential address to the Child Study Society at the University of London.

In woman, Sir James said, the posterior region of the brain receives a richer flow of arterial blood, in men the anterior region. The work of the two regions of the brain is different. The posterior region is mainly sensory and concerned with seeing and hearing. The anterior region includes the speech centre, the higher inhibitory centres, which are concerned with will, and the association centres, concerned with appetites and desires based upon internal sensations.

There is, Sir James thinks, a correspondence between the richer blood supply of the posterior region of the brain in women and their delicate powers of sensuous perception, rapidity of thought, and emotional sensibility, and between the richer blood supply of the anterior region in men and their greater originality on higher levels of intellectual work, their calmer judgment, and their stronger will.

A curious fact which Sir James brought out is that the differences between man and woman run through many details of their organisms. The crown of the female skull is less elevated than that of the male. The woman has a plantar arch flatter than that of the man, which accounts for her partiality for high-heeled shoes.

Negroes have been looting many towns in the flood districts of Louisiana.

INDICTMENT AGAINST THE HEN.

The egg is a tabloid by-product of the setting hen, who does most of her setting at a time of the year when everybody is toying with a plate of green corn. A hen will sit around all winter and look at 30 cents a dozen for eggs without moving out of her chair, but just as soon as people begin to associate with rhubarb pie and other summer sweets she will retire to the hay mow and sprinkle its bosom with bright emblems of industry which nobody would give a dime to get acquainted with. If the hen would lay more and lay off less, the oxygen treatment would have to be applied to the cold storage trust. Most of the eggs found in this country were born here, as the Canadian egg finds it hard to climb over the tariff wall. The egg differs from man in one important respect—the older it gets, the stouter it gets. Some very stout eggs were distributed about the country last winter, which on being opened, were found to date back to the free silver campaign of 1896. People who encountered these eggs in their ordinary course of business were not pleased with the results and refused to recommend them for any safe decorative purposes.

In order to prevent any suspecting purchasers from investing in sour eggs of the 1910 model, every farmer should be required to stamp the date of birth, and age at nearest birthday, on every egg produced on his premises. This would wipe out the leather-faced omelet, and save considerable confusion at company dinners. Restaurants carry a very eloquent sample of eggs, which comes through a hard winter with so much vigor that they have to be opened with a hammer. The fresh egg is a natural curiosity, which town people would not recognize if they met it at the breakfast table. Eggs would be used more if their age and general habits were certified to by a notary public.

THE TWO-THIRDS RULE.

When the Baltimore convention convenes next month the Democrats will be face to face with another determined propaganda to abolish the so-called two-thirds rule. There has been an outcropping of this sentiment in various sections of the country, chiefly from those who believe that under the prevailing system the real choice of the party cannot be nominated. They call the rule archaic and of no possible value to Democracy in the present epoch.

The first Democratic National Convention, which met in Baltimore in 1832 and nominated Andrew Jackson for President, adopted the two-thirds rule, and it has been adopted by each subsequent convention during the last eighty years.

"It is a curious fact," says the Baltimore Sun, "that the rule was first adopted by a convention which had no occasion to employ it; for Jackson was nominated by acclamation—a thing that did not occur in a Democratic National Convention again for more than fifty years, the second nomination by acclamation being that of Grover Cleveland."

What the two-thirds rule is certain to do next month will be to block any nomination on the first ballot. Indeed, it is quite conceivable that the convention will be deadlocked for days before any candidate is victorious. According to the present outlook, Champ Clark will go to Baltimore with a strong lead over his rivals, and may possibly have a majority. But it is impossible to forecast who the nominee of the convention will be. The two-thirds rule makes it more and more certain that a "dark horse" will win out—probably some man who goes into the fray with a negligible quota of delegates.

Whether the two-thirds rule is desirable or not all depends upon the point of view. One thing is certain—it makes the outcome of the Baltimore convention a strictly speculative proposition.—Washington Herald.

PROF. LANGLEY NOT FORGOTTEN.

Sixteen years ago Professor Langley of the Smithsonian Institution caused the first flight, —the first flight in the history of the world,—by a heavier-than-air machine. "Langley Day" was celebrated by the Washington Aero Club on May 6th at the Chevy Chase Club, in the suburbs of Washington, just sixteen years after Langley's machine had made its first flight at Widewater, Va., about thirty miles below Washington on the Potomac. The recognized obstacle in those days to aviation was the lack of a light engine. Prof. Langley constructed one which weighed seven pounds and developed 1.34 horse-power, and with the aid of this engine his plane flew a distance of more than half a mile, and Alexander Graham Bell photographed the machine in flight. Afterward, at the request of the War Department, Prof. Langley made a man-carrying machine, but after two attempts to launch it he gave up the attempt because of lack of funds and public ridicule. Being very sensitive, the scientist gave up public demonstrations.

THE SOBER SENTIMENT.

The spectacle that is presented to the country and to the world by the President and the ex-President of the United States at the moment is not one that self-respecting Americans can regard without mortification. We recognize the motives that animate Mr. Taft. We believe that he is both sincere and accurate in his statement that he is defending his Administration and himself from unjust and malicious attack, and that in doing so he is seeking to defend the best interests of his party and of the country. But whatever the result, the Nation is being subjected to an experience which is disheartening and humiliating. The two most eminent political leaders of the party in power—the party that for fifteen years has been continuously trusted with the chief office of the Nation—are going up and down in the land each bent upon proving that the other is dishonest, unfair, self-seeking, and morally and mentally disqualified for that office to which each has in turn been elected by the people. The fact that inevitably only the sharper and more controversial portions of their speeches get published in the daily press serves to make the impression of their general conduct more disagreeable. The picture, on which the eyes of the world are more or less fixed, of a great democracy thus engaged in choosing its Chief Executive, its uncrowned King, is not a pleasing one.

We must remember, however, that the picture is not finished and that the process, undesirable as it is, is only preparatory. And, though it is directed to the nominating convention, it will have a deeper and more decisive effect. If Mr. Taft is nominated, as we think he will be, the final choice of a President will not be determined by the impression his current speeches as reported in the press will make, but by the estimate of his character and ability that will prevail next November as compared with that which will be made of his opponent, whoever that may prove to be. This estimate will be formed by the majority of the voters of the country, not by the insignificant fraction who happen to control the preparatory process. The voters of the whole country are one-sixth of the population. The voters who have taken part, or will take part, in the primary elections are not one thirtieth of the population. These latter are moved largely by factional motives, and though their action may decide a nomination, it will do very little toward deciding an election. That will be done by the sober sentiment and opinion of the great body of voters in all sections.

Of one thing we may, we think, be fairly sure. The pretensions of Mr. Roosevelt will not stand the test of six months discussion, if they be not, as probably they will be, disposed of at the convention of what he still ventures to call his party. He cannot for that length of time avoid defining the "job" to which he claims that he is called and for which he alone is adequately inspired. Even in the month between the close of the campaign in Ohio and the meeting of the Republican Convention, the country will do a good deal of thinking, and thinking is a process which Mr. Roosevelt's passionate but vague appeals are not calculated to withstand. When his denunciation of those who differ from him is forgotten and his platitudes are sifted, there will remain the one distinct contribution he has essayed to the reform of our political life, the recall of judicial decisions as to the Constitution. On all other matters he is declamatory and hazy. On the tariff he is practically silent. On the trusts he can only claim to have begun what has been carried much farther by the Taft Administration. His one original, personal, affirmative, and constructive idea is popular revision of the courts' decisions, not in the orderly, deliberate, safe fashion of constitutional amendment, but by a popular majority in an election, general or special. That, with the mental make-up capable of giving birth to such a preposterous notion, will be the issue on which the people will decide if a decision is thrust upon them.

We are convinced that neither he nor any man that can stand with him in this mad proposition can have the confidence of the American people when they have had time to form their real judgment. It is not easy to divine the mixed motives that spur Mr. Roosevelt to action, but it is plain that he is as vindictive as he is ambitious. He may succeed in defeating the nomination of Mr. Taft, though we do not think so, but if he does we are persuaded that he will advance no further, that the verdict of the American people upon his lofty designs and his dangerous methods will be adverse.—New York Times.

A Critical Employer
Pretty, winsome Harriett Lennox had been clerking at Marston's department store for nearly two months. Already she had lost the pretty color from her cheeks and she found it much harder to sell a waist than she imagined it could be when formerly she had the money to purchase whatever she desired.
"Did that woman buy the waist she was looking at?" questioned Nora.
"No, after I had wasted a quarter of an hour showing her everything in stock she said: 'These waists are beautiful, but I haven't the money, my dear.'"
"That's the way it is with those 'old hens,'" commented Nora. "They seem to have nothing on earth to do but to pester salesladies, and some women think because they have plenty of money it's their privilege to leave their manners at home."
"The very words 'lingerie waists' gives me a pain," admitted Harriett. "I'm weary of trying to make a thirty-six waist fit a woman who takes size forty-four, when we happen to be out of her size."
"No, madam," she said, turning around, "we haven't any blue chiffon waists with chenille trimming and gold braid. I'm sure she wouldn't buy one if we had it."
"What's the trouble with you? You seem so disheartened," asked Nora sympathetically.
"This is the first position I ever had, but I presume I can stand the customers. I try my best, but the way a girl is treated just because she has to earn her living is disgraceful."
"You're too haughty," advised Nora. "Be a little more agreeable. If the manager tells you to sell a waist for all silk, sell it for that, and don't explain to the would-be customer that it is only near-silk, sewed with near-silk thread, not made in a union shop, and that it is embroidered by machinery and not by hand."
"Possibly I'm wrong, but no difference what I do or say he, Mr. Marston, the proprietor, always finds fault when he goes by this department. Either the boxes aren't straight, or the waists are laid on the table crooked, or I should have made a sale; I went to lunch or came back too late. If my mother wasn't dependent upon me I'd leave this instant."
"Strange, Mr. Marston should be so critical. He is so full of business that he usually leaves the minor details to his managers. Cheer up, you'll get used to it twenty years from now; you'll even wonder that you noticed such things as impatient shoppers and critical employers."
"Twenty years from now, gracious! Don't mention waists in connection with the future to me. I'd like to waste my time that long selling waists marked down from $3 to $2.98, and others marked up from $2.98 to $3.98."
"If you continue to dress in that convent fashion," said the other girl, glancing admiringly at her own over-trimmed gown, "dress your hair in that absurd simple style, never put any color on your face when you look ghastly pale, and not make the least effort to please the men."
"Thank you for your well-meant advice, but the men I'm likely to meet in this business are not the men I care to know socially," commenced Harriett, who was interrupted by a young boy who said: "Mr. Marston wishes to see you in his private office immediately."
"Poor thing," said Nora to one of the girls as Harriett, shaking like an aspen leaf, started for the third floor. "She is so refined. I wanted to help her, but I guess she is going to lose her position. Only recently they lost all their money. It breaks her mother's heart that she has to work."
As Harriett entered the spacious office, Mr. Marston arose saying kindly: "Why are you trembling?"
"I'm sorry I didn't suit you," began Harriett, gaining courage.
"But you did. I know all about you. I've watched you since the first day you came. Grasped every opportunity to talk with you without making it evident. Now I want to ask you how would you like to become the owner of this store?"
"Sir," said Harriett, "how dare you ask me to come to your office to insult me?"
"I'm not insulting you. I'm asking you to marry me. I'm a lonely man, and I want you for my wife. Don't answer me; go home, talk it over with your mother, and all I ask is for you to give me a chance for us to become acquainted."
When Harriett left the office she had promised to "think it over."
"Are you going to leave?" asked Nora, when she appeared with her hat and cloak on.
"Yes. Some day you'll know why. If I should tell you today you'd never believe it any way, because I don't hardly believe it myself."

Hitherto the vegetables of the ordinary cook have been a byword for all that is "flat, stale and unprofitable," and so they have been robbed of the prestige which their food value entitles them.
The mineral matter, salts and flavors are boiled out in the water and thrown away, the valuable constituents which are so necessary in the blood.
Now in cooking vegetables in bags
nothing is lost.
The cooking is easier, no odor to penetrate the house, and the result is a tasty, well-flavored dish. As the evaporation is less in the closely confined bag, it is not necessary to add as much water when cooking.
A pint of green peas and a cup of water with a head of lettuce, a teaspoonful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of butter; mix together and place in a bag and cook for thirty minutes in a moderate oven.
To cook asparagus, tie up and put into a greased bag with a quarter of a cup of water; cook for forty minutes in a hot oven.
Onions cooked with a very little water, or none at all, and a cup of milk added to cook them in, seasoning of salt and pepper and cook forty minutes on a hot oven.
Potatoes, peel, halve and put sufficient for the family into a bag with a few tablespoonfuls of water, a leaf of mint and a little salt. Cook from thirty to forty minutes.
Spinach is washed and put into the bag without further water for cooking. Cook thirty to forty minutes and place the bag in a dish into which drain off the juice by piercing with a fork.
Cutlets.—Take a teaspoonful of salted flour, mix with it two tablespoonfuls of curry powder, grease a bag very thoroughly. Have ready a few cutlets, dust them with flour, put into the bag with a tablespoonful of minced onion and a cup of chicken stock, which may be made from the bones of a roasted fowl. Fold and seal the bag and cook for forty-five minutes. Dish up on a hot platter and pour the sauce over the cutlets.

COOKERY REVIEWS.

Here are a few savory mouthfuls to be served on different occasions:
Take a good rich pastry, puff paste is the best, but the plain will do nicely. Cut in three-inch squares and put on each some cooked chicken, minced olives seasoned with butter and lemon juice. Use only a bit of the filling, fold over paste, pinch tight and bake. The nice things about these "bon bouches" is that so many different kinds of filling may be used, almost anything in the meat line.
Ham shaved or chopped and mixed with finely sliced pickle; salmon and sour cucumber pickles chopped, and a little lemon juice or vinegar; roast mutton minced and mixed with currant jelly.
For a change and an appetizing sandwich filling, scrape a well-flavored apple, mix with French dressing which has been mixed with two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a dash of salt and pepper and a half tablespoonful of lemon juice; spread on the buttered bread. Brown bread is especially good for this sandwich and one slice may be spread with cream cheese and the other with the apple.
Pastry left-overs are easily converted into toothsome mouthfuls like tarts, cheese straws and cakes to serve with tea. A delicious little accompaniment to salad is prepared by rolling the pastry, sprinkling thickly with grated rich cheese, fold and roll and sprinkle again, then cut in diamonds and bake. Serve either hot or cold with a salad.
Delicious little tarts may be made of the merest scraps, and after baking fill with any jelly or jam that is at hand.
Pastry baked around the wooden molds and filled with sweetened, flavored whipped cream is another nice dessert which may be prepared, all but the filling, and kept for several days.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

Mr. Jenkins Talks on Crops.

Mr. B. S. Jenkins, formerly of Emmitsburg, but now of Howard county, was in Emmitsburg on Wednesday and in speaking of the crops on his estate, about six miles from the old Carroll Manor, said "the prospects are for tremendous crops in our part of the State. We are way ahead of Frederick county in this respect, I already have wheat in head and clover in bloom and my corn is up several inches. We expect a bumper hay crop and it looks as though all the fruit will turn out splendidly."

BIG PREMIUMS OFFERED BY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

For Maryland Week Show, November 18-23, 1912, in Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Md.

The preliminary schedule of premiums for the annual fruit, floral and vegetable show, held in connection with the Annual Meeting of the State Horticultural Society, has been issued. The meeting and show will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, a little earlier this year than heretofore, the date being November 18-23.

The premiums in all classes have been greatly increased and the show this year promises to be even greater than last. All growers of fruit should be sure to spray to produce quality, as a special rule made by the Executive Board prohibits exhibiting fruit that is cloudy or infected by fungus or insect pests.

Growers of fruit and vegetables should decide now the class in which they expect to enter, and give special attention to these crops.

The class of home-made horticultural products has been re-classified and the premiums increased. The aim of the Society is to make this exhibit especially educational and attractive to women. This show is the greatest advertisement of Maryland horticultural resources and all growers should plan to compete for the prizes. Copies of the premium list and further information can be secured by addressing T. B. Symons, Secretary, College Park, Md.

Town Fathers Organize.

At their meeting on Tuesday evening at Fireman's Hall the Burgess and Commissioners, of Emmitsburg, after organizing for the fiscal year which ends May 4th 1913 by the election of Dr. John McForeman as president and Edward H. Rowe as Clerk transacted current business. The Burgess with the advice and consent of the Commissioners re-appointed Mr. Oscar D. Frailey, Treasurer and appointed Mr. I. Frederick Dukehart, Constable and Lamp-lighter. After being told by the Burgess what was expected of him, Mr. Dukehart qualified and is now patrolling the town. The Burgess' Office will be in the room along Frederick Street at the southwest corner of Hotel Spangler and will be at once fitted up for use.

Enough Cars if No Blockade.

While the equipment companies have felt that few of the big transportation systems have been ordering new cars as rapidly as they should to keep pace with business, well-informed railway men say that they have enough cars if they can be kept out of blockades. James J. Hill says that a good crop season and Fall merchandise shipments bring about congestion this year it will not be due to lack of equipment, but cramped terminal facilities. When traffic begins to pile up some of the important points, such as Buffalo, Chicago, and Omaha, become veritable graveyards for freight cars.

Death of W. I. Snouffer.

William I. Snouffer, a pioneer resident of Cedar Rapids, passed away at his home at the advanced age of 81 years, the cause of death being paralysis of the heart. Mr. Snouffer went to Cedar Rapids from Maryland, December 17, 1864, and had been a resident of that city ever since. Besides his wife he is survived by five children: John T. Snouffer of What Cheer, Iowa; S. S., J. J. and Frank Snouffer and Miss Tillie Snouffer, all of Cedar Rapids. Mrs. John Tyson and Mrs. Michael Hoke, of Emmitsburg, are nieces of the deceased.

The Passing of Goethe's Haunt.

Goethe, the German poet, during his Leipzig days—1765 to 1768—used to frequent a drinking place called Auerbach's Cellar. Here, it is said he located the scene in "Faust" in which Mephistopheles, standing upon a wine cask takes his flight into space, to the stupefaction of the drinkers. The old building was erected by Dr. Stromer D'Auerbachs about 1535, is about to be destroyed to make way for improvement.

Gone to Get Things Ready.

William F. Stone, Collector of the Port of Baltimore and sergeant-at-arms of the Republican National Convention, has gone to Chicago to arrange for the big time on June 18th. Crowds of friends were at the station to bid him farewell and the rousing cheers given him indicated that he is still some boss.

Improvements at Braddock Heights.

In anticipation of a very prosperous season, improvements have been begun on the Braddock Heights casino and will be finished in time for the opening of the resort on Whitmonday. The building will be repainted and refurbished, and the grounds will be beautified by planting of flowers.

Mountaineers Lose Good Game.

In probably the best game played on the local field this year, Mount St. Mary's lost to Notre Dame by one point. The score was 6 to 5. The game was nip and tuck all the way through. The visitors, although outplayed, won in the last inning of the game.

An alarm of fire was sounded Sunday afternoon about half-past one. A blaze was discovered in a room at the McCarran stables on Gettysburg street. The fire company responded, but a bucket brigade quenched the flames. On Monday morning before 7 o'clock there was another fire, this time at the home of Mr. Charles Long, on Gettysburg street. Fire from the chimney had ignited a partition. It was not necessary to use the fire company's hose. Little damage was done in either fire.

The heavy winds the past few days blew down branches from many trees in town.

Main street has been thoroughly cleaned this week. All the mud and dirt have been scraped up and removed and in many places the road has been regraded and resurfaced.

Mother's Day was generally observed in Emmitsburg and white carnations were much in evidence.

Extensive improvements are nearing completion at Joseph E. Hoke's store. More floor space has been added, a new stairway installed and many other betterments have been made. Hereafter this well-known merchandising establishment will be known as Hoke's New Store.

Indications are that the season at the mountain resorts will open early this year. Many parties on their way to places on the mountain, have passed through Emmitsburg.

Ascension Day was generally observed in the churches of Emmitsburg. Special services were held at St. Joseph's College and Academy when Bishop Monahan, of Wilmington, officiated and confirmed a class of the student body.

A new concrete pavement has been laid in front of the Baker property on Frederick street.

The Emmitsburg Railroad will begin its Sunday schedule on May 19th. The trains leave at 9.55 A. M., connecting with train from Baltimore; and at 4.50 P. M. connecting with train to Baltimore.

Several fines were added to the town treasury yesterday, three offenders having over indulged in merry mullage.

Mr. Michael Hoke is having his house on Main Street painted.

Preston For Vice President.

In the opinion of good judges the placing of Mr. Preston on the national ticket means the sure capture of Maryland's eight electoral votes by the Democrats next November, says the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer. Last year a Republican governor was elected, and in recent years Maryland has gone Republican in National elections, but no such fate can befall the staunch old commonwealth in this year of grace, 1912, if its own militant and virile son should be chosen for companion to Democracy's standard bearer.

Bristow Defines His Measure.

Senator Bristow, author of the six-year presidential term resolution defines it as "a clean-cut reform for popularizing Senatorial elections to make Senators directly responsive to the will of the people. It has no entangling alliances that will precipitate political debate or log rolling. The provision for Congressional supervision of the elections leaves the Federal Government in control of such Federal elections—as intended by the fathers—and yet gives the people a direct untrammeled voice in selecting their representatives in the upper body of Congress."

Valuable New Cure Discovered.

Conspuchgeary is the name given to a new substance found in Frederick county, said by local scientists to be a sure cure for flap of the gastrics.

Firemen's Convention at Waynesboro, Pa., June 4th, 5th and 6th, 1912.

The people of Waynesboro, Pa., are making great preparations for a big time in Waynesboro, the occasion being the Eleventh Annual Convention of The Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen, which will continue for three days June 4th, 5th and 6th. The convention will be somewhat of an Old Home Week for Waynesboro, and with this in view nearly every family in the town will invite their friends from a distance to come home and share the festivities. The convention proper will be held in the forenoon of Tuesday, the opening day, and at two o'clock P. M. there will be an automobile parade with more than 150 automobiles in line, beautifully decorated not only with June roses but the fair maidens of Waynesboro. The parade will cover all the prominent streets of the town. At seven o'clock in the evening the Wayne Band of forty-five pieces will give a free concert in the public square. The Wayne Band is considered one of the best concert bands.

Wednesday morning will be devoted to receiving visiting firemen, and at 1.30 the firemen's parade will take place, participated in by probably the greatest number of companies ever assembled in the valley at one time. At four o'clock Wednesday afternoon the Steam Engine contest will take place and at seven in the evening band contests in the public square, open to the world.

Thursday will also be devoted to contests. Thursday morning at nine o'clock the prize drill will take place. At ten o'clock the Hook and Ladder contest. At one o'clock the Hose Races and at seven in the evening another concert by the famous Wayne Band.

About $2,000.00 have been set aside for prizes. These prizes will not only be awarded to the Firemen but several hundred dollars have been allowed for band contest and $100.00 for automobile contests.

Arrangements will be made with all the railroads for reduced rates which will be announced later. As the hotels will be filled to overflowing many private families will arrange to entertain firemen during their stay at nominal rates.

Waynesboro is one of the leading manufacturing towns of the State and its close proximity to Pen-Mar Park and the Blue Ridge Summit Resort Region will make it an attractive point to visit for a few days. Any person desiring an official program or any information relative to the occasion should correspond with H. E. D. Gray, corresponding secretary.

Euche Indians To Weep For Month.

For many years the Eucheas, Creek Indians, buried their dead children in hollow trees, fastening bands of bark over the openings in the tree trunks to seal the graves. The white have purchased the creek land belonging to the Eucheas and in clearing them settlers cut down the grave trees and burned them. Bands of these Indians are now engaged in a mourning ceremony because the bones of papooses buried in hollow trees have been burned by white settlers. With solemn dances, fasting and incantations the women have inaugurated their "weeks of weeping." The mourning will last more than a month.

German Makes Marble From Ashes.

Recently a German engineer invented a way to transform ashes into marble of exceptional beauty, which is susceptible to the highest polish. He refuses to divulge his secret, though large inducements have been made to him by owners of marble quarries. It is a matter of chemical synthesis, of course, but it is said that his only visible apparatus is a small gas stove together with a kettle that resembles a copying press. With these implements plus the secret he holds, he has manufactured a medium-sized slab of marble in half an hour.

A Congress of Ex-Convicts.

Constantin Danisco who has himself served various sentences of imprisonment and who declares that society is cruelly unjust to ex-convicts, is arranging for a public congress of ex-convicts to be held at Buchanest next fall. The only qualification for membership must be a certificate showing that the candidate has served at least two years in prison and that he is desirous of leading an honest life.

For Lutheran Church in Rome.

For a long time the Lutherans in Germany, especially Saxony, have been gathering funds for the erection of a church building in Rome and it has also been proposed that the so-called Lutherstadt, that is, the cities with whose history the name of Luther is connected, should contribute a special donation to the decoration of the great temple.

The results so far have been most encouraging, as Wittenberg has given three magnificent bells; Madgeburg, a monumental and beautiful pulpit; Eisenleben, where Luther was born and baptized, a magnificent baptismal font; Mansfield, where he studied, a silver baptismal basin; Erfurt, where, at the monastery of St. Augustine, he was ordained, an altar, while other towns, less rich but equally generous, will complete the tale of gifts.

Five Thousand Carloads of Peaches.

J. H. Hall, a Connecticut and Georgia peach grower says: "The cold wet Winter and late Spring put in some good work on the peach trees of Georgia. Never in the twenty years of my orcharding have I seen trees look as well at this time of the year. They are so full of vigor that although blooming was a month late the fruit has grown rapidly and is now up to full size. The drop is over and a big crop is assured. "The Georgia Fruit Exchange estimates the season's crop at 5,000 carloads, but I am told that the Fruit Growers' Express counts on handling nearer 7,000. The Georgia Central Railroad officials are going through the territory estimating the output of each variety and the time of ripening, and by June 1 should have an accurate estimate of the entire crop. Excessive rains in logging camps have restricted the activities of crate and basket manufacturers, and a crate famine is expected in some sections."

Could It Have Been a Treasure Ship?

Men who were dredging for a sewer outlet in the Anacostia River, Washington, D. C., brought to the surface a mast head in which was imbedded an old Spanish coin, dated 1774. The hull of an old Spanish vessel was then dredged from the river bottom in pieces. But treasure was not found. Only the one coin could be brought to the surface. The oak of which the hull was constructed was in excellent condition. More than 500 pounds of zinc were removed from the old vessel.

Puzzling Epidemic Among Horses.

Pathological experts of the Bureau of Animal Industry have been called into consultation by the government departments to try to ward off a puzzling epidemic which has been affecting horses in the Eastern States, especially New York, has swept to Washington. A number of government horses already have been killed by the disease, which, in its more virulent form, seems to be influenza, developing into pneumonia. Probably 500 horses in Washington have been stricken.

Not Paint

With linseed oil at $1, what sort of oil do you think they use in "paint" at $1.75 and $1.50?

That stuff is counterfeit paint. You can cheat yourself; you can't cheat Time or Weather.

Paint is a rubbery coat over wood and iron to keep-out water.

Counterfeit paint may look like it; counterfeit money looks like money.

What are all counterfeits for? They are all alike.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey
 YOU SHOULD HAVE IT IN YOUR HOME.

It is one of the finest and most reliable tonic stimulants used by the medical fraternity and public in general. Doctors who have used and prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in their practice cannot say too much in its praise.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been on the market for more than fifty years and the splendid record it has attained is due to the absolute purity of the product and its great medicinal value. ## Advertising Talks

GUARANTEE OF GOOD FAITH

Average Merchant Too Shrewd to Make Misstatements in Cold Type of Advertising Columns.

Advertising is a guarantee of good faith.

Retail trade attracts a substantial class of men who prefer to tell the truth for its own sake, and would not cheat their neighbors if they could.

Of course motives of self interest also warn them to take pains to make advertising accurate.

Misstatements produce disgruntled customers who can make a lot of trouble for a store which depends for success very largely on its own townspeople.

If men of less responsible character sometimes go into retail trade, usually they are too shrewd to make misstatements in the cold publicity of advertising type.

The public thus learns from experience that local store advertising is trustworthy.

As it deals with such subjects of surpassing interest as cost of living and the fashions of the day, every line of it is read with the most discriminating attention.

People like to read and think about shopping before visiting a store.

A great many purchases are practically made from the newspaper before the buyer leaves home.

Furthermore, liberal advertising tells the public that a merchant is making good.

Lack of it is interpreted as lack of confidence in one's business.

The firm that does not advertise is classed with the firm that seeks an obscure location in some remote side street, as too small to serve the public efficiently.

When a firm advertises freely, it gives the idea that it has a large trade to pay the expenses of its publicity.

A big breezy impression of achievement is conveyed.

Nothing succeeds like success.

Human nature is such, that to succeed, one must often give the impression that he already has succeeded.

The public is slow to deal with propositions that do not suggest successful efficiency.

The man who has faith enough to discount the future a little, to put his earnings into his business, and by liberal advertising give the impression of having a big trade already, is sure to get it if only his goods are right.—Springfield (Ill.) Register.

KEEP UP THE ADVERTISING

Wise Merchant Will Do Much Thinking Before He Cuts Down on Publicity Campaign.

If any business man, in New Year resolutions, has declared for less advertising, or perhaps entire discontinuation of the same, the greatest mistake of his life has been entered upon.

Existing conditions sometimes render imperative a reduction of expenses, but the wise individual will do much thinking and investigation before deciding upon making a cut in the advertising expense. The average business man expects to have more trade in 1912 than came to him the preceding year, but if he reckons on this without aid of the advertising columns of the newspaper, disappointment and regret is surely in store for him.

In order to increase business, there must be a reaching out, not by hand bills, to be lost or destroyed by atmospheric conditions, not by show windows through which comparatively few look, but by constant, steady advertising in the local paper, which is the surest, safest and best medium for acquiring trade and retaining it.

A cloudburst may deluge things but a steady rain is the thing that does the work. IT SOAKS IN.

Quality in Advertising.

"Advertising," says an expert who has made a life-long study of this ever-broadening field, "has lessened labor by showing us ways to do our work more easily. It has lessened housework by giving us prepared foods which are clean, nourishing and economical; the attractive ready-to-wear clothing; the low-priced heating, lighting and water systems.

"Advertising has standardized quality, so when you buy advertised goods you know you are getting all your money's worth."

Force of Advertising.

"First attract the reader's attention, then arouse his interest and make him read your advertisement, but don't stop there, but go a step farther and make the consumer desire what you advertise, and have him make a resolve to go and buy it," said Prof. R. S. Butler, assistant professor of business administration of the University of Wisconsin, in his lecture on "Printed Salesmanship," before the Club at the St. Charles hotel, Milwaukee.

A Tragic Possibility.

Uncle Leven, a grizzled old wood sawyer, was told by a lady for whom he had been working to wait in the kitchen for his supper. Aunt Caroline, the cook, filled his plate with choice bits from the "great house" table, and Uncle Leven fell upon them with relish. Soon, however, a cloud crossed his face.

"What all you, Unc' Leven?" asked Aunt Caroline solicitously. "Is you got er pain?"

"Tain't dat, Sis' Calline," said Uncle Leven, "but I's 'feared I'll git filled up befo' I eats all I wants."—Youth's Companion.

After Sizing Him Up.

The jury in the breach of promise case had just filed in.

The Judge—What is your verdict, gentlemen?

The Foreman—We award the plaintiff $250.

The Judge—Will the defendant stand up? I request the jury to look him over. And now I want to ask your foreman if he punctuated that amount properly? Wasn't it $250? Very well; next case.

Not Tender All Over.

A beggar had been for a long time besieging an old, gouty, testy, limping gentleman, who refused his mite with great irritability, upon which the mendicant said:

"Ah, please your honor's honor, I wish providence had made your heart half as tender as your feet."—Tit-Bits.

HIS AMBITION.

Tim—Gee! I wish I owned one of dem machines.

Mickey—What's youse talkin' erbout; dem's only fer rich people.

Tim—I know, but I wuz thinkin' wot a figure I could cut wid de goils.

Why Not?

The days are growing longer. The nights begin to shrink; Why not let your hopes be stronger, And put doubt upon the blink?

The Only Place to Escape.

"Where is he from?" "I don't know, but I think he was raised on a desert island."

"What in the world makes you think that?"

"He says no woman ever made a fool of him."

Sweet Innocence.

"I never am at my best," he said, "unless I get at least eight hours of sleep every night."

"What late hours you must be in the habit of keeping," she innocently replied.—Judge.

Wonders.

"We have a stenographer in our office who turns up her nose at chocolate creams."

"That's nothing—nothing at all. We have an office boy who reads the Bible to acquire a literary style."

Visible Misfortune.

"Cashit tries hard to hide the fact that he is ashamed of his misfortune in having a father in such a humble walk in life."

"Well, he needn't, for his misfortune is a parent."

Cockney Strategy.

First Londoner—How did you keep the suffragists from breaking your windows?

Second Londoner—Put some perfectly lovely hats in 'em, duncherno.

Hen Fruit for Hamlet.

Waitress—How will you have your eggs?

Arthur Footlight (who has been playing Hamlet)—If I must have eggs, by all means let them be hard boiled.

Their Overworked Mother

"Read that, Bess," said Jane, passing a household magazine to her sister and pointing to an article entitled "The Overworked Mother."

"Do you think that applies to our mother?" asked Bess, with a little anxious frown, as she closed the magazine.

"Yes, I do. I think mother is overworked."

"But, Jane, she appears to like managing our little flat."

"Yes, she does appear to, but I believe she needs a rest. We should do all the work for a while, at least. Let's go out into the kitchen now and tell her to lie down or read and we'll finish whatever she's doing."

"What a reflection it is on us, Jane, that half the time we don't even know what she's doing!"

"It's just as the article says—daughters become entirely blind to the uncomplaining drudgery of their mothers."

Mrs. Crandall was lifting a tin of beautifully browned cookies from the oven when Jane and Bess entered the kitchen.

"Did you smell them?" she asked, stopping midway in the verse of "Killarney" she was humming. "As I was finishing the breakfast dishes I happened to think how long it had been since I made any raisin cookies for you girls. I meant to surprise you with them."

"Mother, I think you do too much for us," said Jane.

"Nonsense! You know I like to potter around."

"Yes, we know," said Bess, in response to a look from her sister, "but Jane and I feel that you are overworked."

"And we intend," said Jane, "to relieve you of the burden of housekeeping. You're to have a much needed rest."

"Much needed nothing!" Mrs. Crandall's tone was scornful.

"You overdo all the time. I'll finish the baking of these cookies."

"How ridiculous you are, Jane! I'll bake these cookies myself, of course."

"No, dear," Bess spoke firmly. "You must go into the living room and rest."

"Yes, every one should have leisure for quiet contemplation," supplemented Jane.

Mrs. Crandall, somewhat awed, left the kitchen without further protest. Half an hour later her daughters discovered her deep in soapsuds in the bathroom.

"I just thought this was a good chance to clean these gas globes," she explained. "You know, Mrs. Dexter never polishes them well when she cleans on Fridays."

"If they must be washed, I'll do it," remarked Jane, gently pushing her mother aside. "You know we want you to rest."

Mrs. Crandall looked perplexed, but she went to her own room. There an hour afterward her daughters found her darning.

"We have an engagement for luncheon downtown, mother—" began Jane.

"Yes, I know," interrupted Mrs. Crandall, "I'm glad you're going out."

"There's nothing to do for dinner," Jane proceeded. "I've got the roast, the potatoes and the pudding in the fireless cooker and we'll get home in time to take them out and make the salad, so you needn't go near the kitchen." She spoke conclusively and her mother sighed.

"Why don't you go out somewhere?" asked Bess. "It's too bright a day to stay indoors."

"I can't see to darn on a dark day," was the somewhat testy answer.

At five o'clock the girls came home and found their mother in the kitchen canning preserves.

"Why, what are you doing now?" asked Bess.

"Well, I thought the peaches I put up last month weren't rich enough, so I've stewed them over again with a little more sugar."

"Oh, mother!" exclaimed her daughters.

"Now, my dears," Mrs. Crandall laughed, "don't reproach me for enjoying myself. Don't worry about my belonging to the class of overworked mothers."

Jane and Bess exchanged startled glances.

"Yes, I read that article this afternoon, girls, and it was a relief to my mind to find out what had caused this sudden anxiety on your part, for I really was afraid that both of you were getting a little—well, queer, with all that talk about quiet contemplation. Why, I can think better when I'm peeling potatoes or chopping meat than I can any other time. Now run out of the kitchen, both of you. It's no place for those nice clothes you're wearing. I'll get dinner on the table the way I always do. You girls help me a lot—when you don't interfere."

Eligible.

The magnate was asking about a certain man whom he thought of employing in a confidential capacity.

"Well, there's this about the fellow," replied he whose advice was sought; "the truth certainly is not in him!"

"Just the thing—then it can't be dragged out of him!" exclaimed the magnate enthusiastically. — Lippincott's.

WHEN IS A EWE DOING WELL?

General Sprightliness and Behavior of Animal Are Good Indication of General Condition.

It sometimes puzzles the sheep grower, especially the beginner, to know when his ewes are doing well. Many a man is so anxious that they do well that he overdoes the matter while of course, there are those whose ewes do not do well enough.

It is impossible to gauge a ewe's well being by the number of pounds she is gaining, yet this is one of the first indices of her condition and the one most commonly adopted by sheep growers. In general a ewe ought to be gaining about six pounds a month. If she was uncommonly thin to begin with she should be gaining even more, while if she was fat, she ought to be gaining a pound or two less.

To be in good condition a ewe ought also to be enjoying an easy and thorough digestion and an active circulation of blood. These things depend in part on the amount of exercise given her also. A pregnant ewe ought to be given some succulent food which helps to keep her digestion in good order and her feed should contain a goodly portion of the protein elements which are necessary in tissue building and in the growth of the foetus. She ought to have plenty of exercise every day as this keeps the muscles of her digestive apparatus in good play and her circulation active.

A ewe is doing well when she is making a fair steady gain, and when all her organs are functioning properly, and when her appetite seems keen. Her general sprightliness and behavior are a good indication of her feelings. A ewe that is dull and dumpy is usually ailing in some way. Oftentimes it is only too much feed and too little exercise that is accountable for this condition, however.

HARNES FOR DRIVING HOGS

Excellent Method Described and Illustrated for Leading Sows—Comfort for Yourself and Pig.

Many people drive their sows by a rope tied to the hind leg when taking them to the service boar. Don't, writes Jesse B. Hastings in Practical Farming. Take a half or three-quarter-inch rope, tie a rather large knot near the end, make a slip knot about three feet from the end knot and place over the end knot.

Place over the sow's head and draw taut, so that it ties in a hard knot. Then place the rest of the rope under the body and tie on top. You can now lead your pig anywhere with comfort, both for yourself and pig.

Colt at Weaning Time.

After the colt has been permanently removed from the mare, her teats and udder should be given a thin coating of homemade soap, which will assist in the drying up process, and also prevent inflammation of the teats and udder. Again if the colt should chance to break out and get with the mare the soap would not be at all inviting for it to take hold of, and is apt to prevent it from suckling.

Colt in Winter.

You cannot expect much from a colt that is kept tied in a stall continually. The sharp winter air will not hurt the colt, provided it is given room to move about. This does not mean that it should be left exposed to storms, however.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Don't neglect to commence feeding the colts some grain before they are weaned.

Is the slobbering horse in need of more grain, or may it not be that its teeth need filing?

The spring colt should be as gentle as a kitten by this time and know what a halter is for.

A good draft horse is a good farm horse either to wear out in the field or to sell when mature.

There are a good many breeders who still believe that it is profitable to grind corn for the hogs.

Hold on to some of the clover for spring feeding. It is great when the sheep get tired of timothy.

The backs of swine are often injured by juvenile "rough riders" who choose hogs for their mounts.

In the purchase of new horse always purchase a mare. She will raise you some colts, which will increase the farm profits.

Whether you should breed your two-year-old filly depends somewhat upon the care she has had and the condition she is in.

Waiting to teach the colt to eat grain until it is weaned is poor economy, as the colt will surely receive a bad setback.

Horses with tender feet need lots of attention. It should be remembered that a horse can do more than his feet will stand.
