BUSY WEEK FOR CANDIDATES

APPEALING TO VOTERS

Wilson Answers Colonel's Free Trade Cry

TAFT CONFERS WITH LEADERS

Colonel, Speaking to Bryan Admirers, Attacks Wilson's Party Regularity.—The Pot Still Calling the Kettle Black.

The week has been a strenuous one for the three candidates for the Presidency. Especially has this been the case with Wilson and Roosevelt, who have been devoting their time to speech making, but Taft, too, has had his hands full, mostly in conferences with his leaders.

Out in McAlester, Okla., the streets were crowded as they had never been before when Theodore Roosevelt entered the city, and 25,000 persons tried to hear him speak, many of them unsuccessfully.

At every small town at which he stopped crowds far exceeding the population of the towns themselves cheered him as he addressed them briefly from the car platform. This astonishing reception and manifestation of friendship and approval on the part of the voters marked Colonel Roosevelt's first day of campaigning in a southern and Democratic territory.

He made Governor Wilson the target of his attacks, referring to the report that the present Democratic candidate for the presidency had not supported the Democratic ticket in 1896 and declaring that the Democratic party represents standpatism, boss control and the beneficiaries of special privilege. Bryan is strong in that section and the reference to Wilson's opposition in the first Bryan campaign was meant to revive some of the hostility which was directed against those Democrats who abandoned their party and aided in the election of McKinley.

President Taft put in eight rainy hours in New York on Tuesday spending the time in conferences with Republican leaders from New England and a session with John Drew in the Empire Theater.

Chairman Hilles was especially enthusiastic concerning the outlook for this fall. Mr. Hilles has just returned from a trip through Michigan and Illinois, and said he didn't think there was a show for the Bull Moose candidate in that part of the country. He conceded that Gov. Wilson would put up a good stiff fight but claimed that there would be a sweeping victory for the Taft forces in November.

The President left New York for Altoona, Pa., where on Wednesday he reviewed a military parade and made an address. Later in the day the President left for Philadelphia, where he and his party entrained for Beverly. It is not expected that Mr. Taft will return to Washington again until after the election.

At Hartford, Conn., Governor Wilson, on Wednesday, addressed 4,000 people, most of whom were beneficiaries of tariff-protected industries, and again at New Haven, where he spoke in the evening at a meeting presided over by Gov. Simeon F. Baldwin, rated as the most conservative Democrat in conspicuous position in the party, the theme of the candidate was a defense of his policies on the ground that they will do no harm to honest business.

"Who said free trade?" he demanded, in ridiculing the claim of Colonel Roosevelt that he aimed at a disturbing and disastrous rearrangement of the tariff. "I know that there are a great many misguided persons present," as soon as he had looked over the substantial business men and employees of firearm, typewriter and automobile manufacturing concerns, who turned out to make him welcome at Hartford, the first important stop on his week's campaign toward Boston and environs. And the Governor did not spare the "misguided"

They Replace Stomachs in Paris.

The hospital at Agen, France, has suddenly become famous on account of a most unusual operation performed there by a Dr. Roulies. This French surgeon successfully substituted an ape's stomach for the worn out digestive apparatus of a patient by the name of Laurent. To test the staying qualities of his reconstructed anatomy Laurent, after a rest of several days, became intoxicated, with no ill effect. The operation is the talk of Paris and it is predicted that Dr. Roulies will soon have all the rouses, gourmets and gourmands of the French capital on his list of professional calls.

A THIRD TERM SECRET

In 1910 Lawrence F. Abbot Wrote 'In 1908'

IN HIS BIOGRAPHY OF COLONEL

Had No Thought of Future When He Furnished Sketch For Encyclopaedia Britannica.

On the 4th of March next I shall have served three and one half years, and these three and one half years constitute my first term. The wise custom which limits the President to two terms regards the substance and not the form and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination.—Announcement by President Roosevelt at the White House on Nov. 8, 1904.

Immediately after his election he publicly declared that he would not accept the nomination for the Presidency in 1908.—Encyclopaedia Britannica. Article Theodore Roosevelt, by Lawrence F. Abbott.

When Lawrence F. Abbott, nineteen months before Col. Roosevelt announced himself as a candidate for third term as President, wrote the statement quoted above in his biographical sketch of the Colonel for the Encyclopaedia Britannica, did he unconsciously reveal a knowledge possessed by himself, and possibly other close personal friends of the Colonel of the mental reservation in Colonel's announcement of Nov. 4, 1904, which left the public unaware that the Colonel meant to limit himself only to two "consecutive" terms? This question was put to The New York Times and The Times sent to ask Mr. Abbott about it.

"Did Col. Roosevelt approve of the biography or even read it before it appeared in the Encyclopaedia?" Mr. Abbott was asked.

"He did not," was the reply. "The biography was written by me, and not in collaboration with Col. Roosevelt. He did not see it before publication. In fact, I wanted to feel that I was perfectly free to make any criticism I felt should be made, and if you will read the biography you will see that there are some criticisms. Col. Roosevelt had nothing to do with it in any way, shape, or manner."

"The very fact that I said what I did in the biography makes it evident that it was clear in my mind that the statement referred to 1908, and had nothing to do with any future election," said Mr. Abbott. "Why, I never even gave a thought to what might happen in the future. I was simply writing history. I think Col. Roosevelt's statements in 1904 and 1907 were accepted universally as applying to 1908; the whole country so regarded them without considering any contingency which might arise in the future."

Here is the statement by Mr. Abbott in the biography expressing his interpretation of the Colonel's 1904 announcement:

He (Colonel Roosevelt) received 7,623,486 popular votes and 336 Electoral votes, to 5,077,971 popular votes and 140 Electoral votes cast for Judge Alton B. Parker, the nominee of the Democratic Party. Immediately after his election he publicly declared that he would not accept the nomination for the Presidency in 1908, and he adhered to that pledge in spite of great popular pressure brought to bear upon him to accept the nomination of the party for another term.

The Colonel, it will be recalled, had emphasized his declaration of 1904, "Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination," by asserting on Dec. 11, 1906:

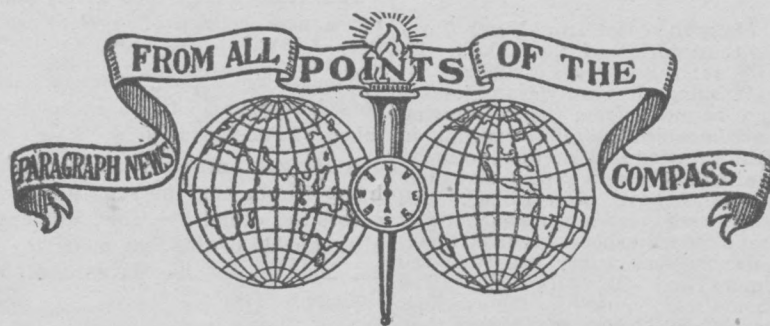

"I have not changed and shall not change that decision thus announced." It was early in 1912 that the Outlook, explaining its contributing editor's mind in terms of breakfast coffee:

"When a man says at breakfast in the morning, 'No, I thank you, I will not take any more coffee,' it does not mean that he will not take any more coffee to-morrow morning or next week or next month or next year."

Postmasters Under Civil Service.

In the near future, it is claimed, fourth-class postmasters, of which there are 36,038, will be placed in the classified service. The object of the change is to take these government officers out of the sphere of politics and place them under civil service. Twenty thousand postmasters sent a monster petition to Washington by a delegation returning from their annual convention at Richmond.

Charles Becker, accused of the murder of Herman Rasenthal, which led them to believe that after Sam Schepps had given his testimony at the Becker trial he might be escorted by Government officers to Portland, Ore., there to face trial on a charge of having smuggled opium from British Columbia. The allegation that Schepps had been arrested for this offense in 1910 and had jumped his bail of $5,000 is not new, but heretofore it has been denied and the explanation given that the Portland man was another person.

Just across the street services were going on in the Reformed Episcopal Dutch Church, and scores of people were passing up and down the thoroughfare, yet so rapidly was the robbery committed that no one noticed anything unusual.

The same club had contributed $100 a few weeks ago, making its total thus far $1,400 sent to the Democratic war chest since the campaign opened.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A SUBSCRIBER.

A court decision has lately been rendered in Massachusetts on what constitutes a subscriber. The judge firmly believed that the man who receives the paper, although he never subscribed for it, is entitled to pay, says the American Press.

James Thompson moved, and William Robinson took immediate possession, and received and accepted a weekly newspaper that was delivered to him through the mails every week. The good natured editor sent accounts frequently, but no attention was paid to them by Mr. Robinson.

Robinson had received the paper for some time, he informed the collector, but he said that he never subscribed and declined to pay for it. The judge personally questioned the defendant, who said that he had read and made use of it and was receiving the accounts, which were frequently enclosed in the paper.

Judgment was rendered in favor of the newspaper. The judge was severe in his criticism of people who are receiving papers and do not think it worth while to pay for what they receive and make use of. It is an act of dishonesty, he said. One should acquaint the publisher and pay for whatever numbers he receives.

HUGHES BEATS SMITH

Result in New Jersey a Wilson Victory

SMITH CARRIES HOME DISTRICT

Governor Opposed Selection of Former Boss, His Old Political Adversary.—Light Vote Polled.

Returns from the primary election in New Jersey on Tuesday indicate that Judge William Hughes, a former Congressman, defeated ex-Senator James Smith, Jr., by more than 2 to 1.

Hughes, on whose candidacy the Wilson supporters had concentrated their forces, after several other prospective candidates had dropped out of the race so as to prevent the ex-boss from slipping in, ran far ahead of Smith in all but a few counties of the State and gave Smith a hard run in Essex county and in Newark, his home stronghold.

There is nothing in the State law which compels the Legislature to select the candidate successful in the Fall primaries to the United States Senate, but the precedent established by Gov. Wilson in calling upon the last Legislature to obey its pledge and elect James Martine, is expected to control.

More than ordinary interest was manifested in the primaries because of the active opposition of Gov. Wilson, the Democratic nominee for President, to the candidacy of Mr. Smith. Both from the stump and in statements issued to the voters the Governor had voiced his disapproval of the former Senator. Owing to the active part taken by the presidential candidate, his hold upon his party in New Jersey was considered to be the real test of the voting.

Bad weather prevailed generally throughout the State during the day and evening and to this fact is attributed the light vote.

The vote in the Republican primaries, where there was no fight along State-wide lines, was light, except in localities where there were neighborhood factional differences.

Though there was a large Republican registration in Lakewood, the vote was so light that the Republican leaders expressed the fear that many of the enrolled Republicans had become followers of Roosevelt.

Fine American Peaches In London.

The triumph of the latest way of transporting peaches from America to London was achieved by packing the peaches in small boxes each peach being wrapped in paper and kept in a freezing atmosphere during the long train and steamer journey. These peaches were raised in the Winatchu Valley, Washington and were found to be fleshy fruit of fine flavors and looked as if just picked. A London fruit dealer in discussing the latest form of American invasion said that the fruit had already a good sale and would become popular particularly with hotels and restaurants. In quality however, the English product is far superior to its rival, and the dealer expressed the opinion that while the American peach promised to open up a new branch of trade, it would never be regarded as likely to displace or injure the business done in the home-grown article.

A $25,000 Legislative Fund.

The members of the Headquarters Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, as the best evidence of their confidence in the management of the Superintendent, have themselves subscribed $10,000, provided the rest of the state will subscribe $15,000 more, over and above the contribution at church services, for a fund to be used between now and the legislative election next fall in the educational and organization work necessary to insure the nomination, election and organization of a Legislature which will pass the local option bill.

Mgr. Devine Pays Tribute to Wilson.

"I have read extracts from Mr. Wilson's writings and have been most favorably impressed by them," said Mgr. George W. Devine, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, the largest parish in Baltimore. "I believe that Wilson is a sincere, straightforward man. I judge him to be broad in his principles and put no stock in the reports that he is biased on religious matters. There was a report that he is anti-Catholic, but his utterances and actions have not proved this."

IS GOV. WILSON A BIGOT?

QUESTION ANSWERED

What His Record, Speeches and Appointments Show

HAS PRAISED CATHOLIC CHURCH

Views Taken by Unquestioned Authority on Catholic Matters.—Leading Roman Clergyman Do Not Believe Wilson Prejudiced.

"There is only one way to handle insinuations and darkly spoken slanders and that is to drag them into the sunlight and destroy them with the Truth."

This is the sentence that stands out challengingly in an open letter by James Charles Monaghan, of Bayonne, N. J., to Hon. Michael J. Drummond, of New York City. Mr. Monaghan has been Professor in the University of Wisconsin, George Washington and Notre Dame Universities, St. John's College, Brooklyn; received the Laetare Medal from the University of Notre Dame in 1908, is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The letter was not written or published as "campaign literature," but was printed in the American Catholic "Who's Who" for the enlightenment of its readers. The letter, like all other honest investigations into the matter, only serves to vindicate Governor Wilson's attitude and purge him of the vile accusations, implied or expressed. The letter, in part, follows:

"My dear Commissioner Drummond: "I was deeply interested in your letter of August 5th with regard to Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey.

"It is especially embarrassing and unjust that there should be any necessity of stating the within facts, because no Governor has ever been so eminently fair in his treatment of men of all races and creeds as has Woodrow Wilson, and it will be an unfortunate day when the masses of our Catholic people can be led astray by the misrepresentations of a few men who, in the field of politics, have not obtained all they desire in the political preferment.

Governor Wilson has named men of the Catholic faith to offices of the greatest dignity and power in this State. The very first appointment he had power to make was that of a Private Secretary. To this important post, Woodrow Wilson appointed Joseph P. Tumulty, who is a graduate of St. Peter's Jesuit College in Jersey City. Later Governor Wilson appointed Mr. Tumulty Clerk of the Supreme Court, one of the most honorable and important places in the State of New Jersey. Mr. Tumulty was not appointed because of his religion, but because for several years he had been, as a member of the Legislature, one of the most aggressive leaders for governmental reforms.

When it came to making other appointments, Governor Wilson resisted all pressure that was brought against the naming of Catholics to office. He selected Catholics where they were qualified just as freely as he selected Presbyterians or any other church men. The result was that he nominated for the Court of Appeals Mark Sullivan, another graduate of St. Peter's College, who resigned to become a candidate for Mayor of Jersey City. To the judicial vacancy thus created John J. Treacy was appointed. Michael P. Dunn was made Prosecutor of Passaic County, and Peter Francis Daly, one of the most brilliant lawyers and orators of the State, Presiding Judge of Middlesex County.

"If any Catholic has a doubt about the broad-mindedness of Governor Wilson, I would advise him to read in Wilson's History of the American people the tribute to the intrepid courage of the French priests and missionaries and the magnificently fair statement of the noble motives which inspired the religious tolerance of the colony of Maryland.

"In public and private life Governor Wilson has always shown the deepest

Has Not Much Faith in Panama Canal. The magnificent work done on the Panama Canal does not appeal to Henry Lovering, mining engineer, of Nicaragua, as being productive of very practical results, judging from his utterances in regard to the big undertaking.

"I do not believe that any vessel will ever pass through the canal," said Lovering. "I believe that Stevens and Shonts quit the canal jobs because they knew the project to be impracticable. They have never struck bottom in the Culebra Cut, and it is doubtful if they ever will."

spirit of religious interest and breadth of view. A few months ago in Tennessee a graduate of Princeton University, himself not a Catholic, exhibited from his notes taken from a lecture course by Woodrow Wilson sixteen years before some magnificent tributes to the power and integrity of the purpose of the Catholic Church."

When the first insinuations began to be mooted about that Woodrow Wilson entertained some prejudice toward Catholics a prominent Catholic citizen of New Jersey in a spirit of justice and inquiry wrote to the International Catholic Truth Society in Brooklyn concerning the rumors, and herewith is the reply that was received from that unquestioned source of authority on Catholic matters.

Dear Sir: In reply to our letters relative to the attitude of Prof. Woodrow Wilson toward the Catholic Church, we have only received answers in his favor.

Father Leahy, the Pastor at Princeton, says he has never heard or known any word or act of President Wilson's that could be construed in any way inimical to our Holy Church.

The Catholic students attending Princeton likewise speak of him as a broad minded and liberal educator and they all seem to esteem him as an ideal gentleman and scholar. Father Wynne, S. J., says that "occasionally he speaks favorably of Catholic affairs, and also considers the Catholic Encyclopedia very highly, saying, it was the best authority on the shelves of the Princeton Library. Father Burke, S. C. P., says that he does not know of any instance where he has expressed any unfairness or bigotry toward the Church. He has criticized 'the Churches' for lack of social activity and for being indifferent to the real welfare of the people, but in this he referred to the Protestant Churches."

In 1905 Prof. Wilson is quoted in the "Church Chimes" as follows:

"The most powerful Church to-day, said Prof. Wilson, of Princeton, in a recent address before the conference of the Philadelphia County Social Union, is that which has retained its dogmatic authority. The Roman Catholic is such. It drives its people, millions abreast, by the counsels of the Church. It says 'you must yield or imperil the safety of your soul.' Men like Cardinal Newman found that there was no rest for their souls save in the bosom of a Church where they had rest. Don't you feel the dramatic power of a church like that? The analytical and doubtful processes of our pulpits cool the process of belief and chill the power of acceptance. Will you believe the preaching of a man who does not himself believe?"

"Youth is moulded by authority. What really gives authority for any utterance in or out of the pulpit is conviction; not words of the lips, but of the heart. Nothing impresses the young so much as a kind of earnestness that means business. I believe we have substituted a lot of music and entertainment in our Church exercises because we've no belief in the deeper things. If music is substituted for the Word of God, we are admitting that the Word of God is not efficacious and cannot stand by itself."

If Prof. Wilson has at any time spoken slightly of the Church, we do not know of it. We trust that this little information will be of service to you and wish we could have given more definite help.

Yours very truly,

INTERNATIONAL CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY.

"In the City of Trenton and in Princeton Governor Wilson is known most intimately. Bishop McFaul, head of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, was among the first to extend earnest congratulations to Woodrow Wilson on his nomination at Baltimore. There were over one hundred Catholics who went with the New Jersey delegation to Baltimore to urge the nomination of Governor Wilson. It is not likely that these men would have made this journey at their own expense to work for the selection of a bigot.

"In the performance of his public duty Governor Wilson shows no uncertain prejudice. Just as he has not hesitated to honor properly qualified Catholics, so he has not hesitated to appoint a Hebrew Judge of the Supreme Court and other Hebrews and others of different races and creeds to high posts of honor. This is the first time that high judicial honors have been bestowed in New Jersey upon Hebrews. He does not 'play politics' in the matter of calling men to public office, but courageously names such men as he feels are fitted for the office to be performed, regardless of race or creed. As an illustration of the innate fairness of Woodrow Wilson in considering or discussing all subjects, I insert an excerpt from an address delivered some years ago by him at Lakewood, N. J.:

"No society is renewed from the top," said Mr. Wilson; "every society is renewed from the bottom. I can give you an illustration concerning that, that has always interested me profoundly. The only reason Government did not suffer dry rot in the Middle Ages under the aristocratic systems which governed them, was that the men who were efficient instruments of Government—most of the officials of Government—the men who were efficient—were drawn from the Church, from that great Church body which was then the only Church, that body which we now distinguish from other Church bodies as the Roman Catholic Church."

"The Roman Catholic Church, then, as now, was a great democracy. There was no peasant so humble that he might not become a priest, and no priest so obscure that he might not become the Pope of Christendom. "Every chancellor in Europe, every court in Europe was ruled by those learned, trained and accomplished men, the priesthood of that great and then dominant Church."

"So, what kept Government alive in the Middle Ages was this constant raise of sap from the bottom, from the ranks, from the rank and file of the great body of the people through the open channels of the Roman Catholic priesthood."

"Governor Wilson must be judged by the evidences already given of his fairness and justice. I am glad to present these facts to you in order that justice may be done."

United States Senator O'Gorman will not be a delegate to the Democratic State Convention at Syracuse, N. Y., on Oct. 1.

persons," after their applause at his remark had discovered them to the rest of the audience.

The people cheered the announcement of the downfall of the New Jersey boss as heartily as if Smith had been a boss of their own and a hated enemy.

Governor Wilson, taking note of the applause, told the people that they cheered with reason, as the downfall of a boss in any part of the country "is added proof that the people are thinking with a single mind the nation over."

Turning to the tariff as the chief bulwark of privilege, Governor Wilson declared that it had survived a long time largely because of its power "to replenish the coffers of the Republican party." He said his proposal was to unearth the special privileges in the tariff and cut them out "without affecting that part of business that is sound and legitimate and which we all wish to see preserved."

Continuing along the lines of progressive principles, Governor Wilson paid high tribute to the political aggressiveness of Senator La Follette and declared himself as closely akin to progressives of his type and those who arose in Iowa in opposition to the protective tariff.

The theatre where the Democratic candidate spoke was jammed and a big crowd was turned away outside.

Col. Powell Wants His Money Back.

Col. William S. Powell, editor of the Ellicott City Times, who had charge of the literary bureau in the last gubernatorial campaign, has notified the Democratic party that he intended to bring suit to recover $2046.09, which he says was advanced by him in that election.

Following is the letter addressed to General Vandiver and the members of the State Central Committee.

"You are hereby notified that if the amount due me for money advanced in the Gorman and Goldsborough campaign of 1911—$2046.09—is not paid in full with interest before November 5 next, on November 6, 1912, suits will be instituted for the recovery of the same against Arthur P. Gorman, Arthur P. Gorman and John F. O'Malley, his political agent and treasurer; John F. O'Malley, individually; Arthur P. Gorman, John F. O'Malley and Murray Vandiver, jointly; Murray Vandiver, treasurer and agent of the Democratic Central Committee of Maryland, and each and every member of said Democratic Central Committee and their estates, if dead, and the American Bonding Company of Baltimore as surety of Murray Vandiver, treasurer. A copy of this letter will be sent to each of the defendants as due notice that the suits will be brought."

RAINFALL IN MARYLAND GREATEST IN YEARS

Many Places in Western Part of State Flooded and Much Damage Done to Crops.—Baltimore Has Greatest Rainfall.

Sixty hours of incessant rainfall, which began on Monday of this week established a new record in Maryland and the adjoining States according to the Weather Bureau report.

Baltimore experienced the greatest precipitation. Philadelphia was second with 3.70 inches. Lynchburg, Va., had 3.50; Atlantic City, 2.6; Washington, 2.20.

All along the coast from North Carolina to the interior of New York, the heaviest rainfall in years occurred.

In Washington county considerable damage resulted from the heavy wind that accompanied the rain, especially in the fruit growing sections of the county. Several fruit growers report that their entire crops have been ruined. All streams were very much swollen, and several serious washouts occurred along the Washington county branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The Washouts were caused by the overflow of Israel Creek, which was higher than since the year of the Johnstown flood.

Frederick county seems to have gotten its share of the rainfall, the amount being a new record in this section and more than in any equal period of time at any previous date, according to the oldest records which go back 30 years. The Monocacy river was out of its banks in a dozen places between Derris Bridge and Frederick Junction. Meadows and fields were inundated a quarter of a mile from the stream. The water came up over the road between Buckeystown and Stoner's Mill, cutting off traffic.

Catoctin creek, between Middletown and Brunswick; Hunting and Owens' creeks, near Thurmont, and Flat run and Toms' creek, near Emmitsburg, were raging torrents. Traffic between Emmitsburg and Thurmont was cut off on account of high water, the streams in one or two places being above the fence tops.

Anthony Consul, a mail carrier with his horse and buggy, was washed 200 feet down stream going from Shooks-town to Braddock Heights. The stream, usually a spring branch, was swollen to a raging torrent when Consul attempted to cross. Before getting half way the vehicle was caught in the current and whirled over fence tops at a rapid rate. Consul was washed through a barbed wire fence and badly cut and bruised about the legs and body. He saved himself by catching to a tree and was rescued in a semi-conscious condition by Anthony Wickless and brought to town. His horse was drowned and the vehicle demolished.

His mailbag which was strapped to the seat of the buggy, was recovered Thursday.

In Frederick many cellars were flooded to a depth of 4 to 5 feet and pumps were necessary to empty them. In some sections the corn crop is still standing in the fields; wherever these fields border even a usually dry water course, they are covered to a depth of several feet. Corn fields lying along small streams and rivers in the county are under six and seven feet of water, and any crops standing before the flood will be a total loss. In the eastern section of the county, where much of the corn has not yet ripened, the loss will be very heavy.

Wheat fields of all low-lying farms are under several feet of water and hundreds of tons of fertilizer, spread in piles over the fields, was swept away by the rainfall.

Everything Booming in the West.

"Conditions in the West this year are better than usual," says L. J. Spence, Director of Traffic for the Southern and Union Pacific Railroads. FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

THE ISSUE.

Our esteemed contemporary, The Cecil Whig, is dipping profoundly into the future and that too with a cocksureness that cannot but be appalling to the Democratic party, for whose candidates now and forevermore it foretells dire disaster. The predictions are based on the proposition that nothing but chronic defeat has followed Democracy's chief issues all these years.

With a conveniently short and unreliable memory, that usually accompanies such hair-trigger vaticinations, The Whig is evidently unaware that the present House of Congress is overwhelmingly Democratic because that very principle of Tariff Reform was presented to the people almost as the only campaign issue two years ago and triumphantly adopted.

It is true the old party has gone down to defeat many a time, but never to dishonor. Through long and desolate years, amid onslaughts of calumny and vituperation unprecedented in our history, the party has borne the standard of Tariff Reform aloft, until now, we think, we are sure—but not having the gift of prophecy like our contemporary, we hesitate to foretell with absolute assurance—that the day of final and permanent victory is awaiting its cause.

And by the way it will be a curious topic for The Whig's prophetic spirit to illuminate: we wonder how long will the G. O. P., now frazzled to a hopeless minority, according to the verdict of some of its members, cling steadfastly and unselfishly to the principle of protection, if, as the signs of the times indicate, it will be shorn of the prestige that comes from the vast Federal patronage and no longer supplied with fat contributions from Oil, Steel and Insurance treasuries!

Now divided against itself, its most energetic members active in forming a new party that is cunningly silent on the question of protection, its chosen champion and representative floundering pitifully between a defense of the Aldrich-Payne monstrosity and promises of substantial reduction in all the features of the tariff, does it not seem to be without a genuine issue, and giving signs of the final decay which inevitably terminates any political organization without a live issue, without a rallying point and which long since seized the party whose name our contemporary bears?

Yes, T. R., Tariff Reform, not Teddy Roosevelt, is the chief issue and the only genuine issue before the voters in this campaign. The mills of the gods grind slowly. The empty dinner pail in contrast with colossal fortunes and law-defying corporations is too big and painful a factor in our civilization to be excused, explained or minimized further by the outworn clap-trap of protective tariff.

The Democratic success of two years ago, the support then extended to its cause by the "best fed, best housed, best clothed, best educated people in the world" at least justifies us in believing that protection of the classes has ceased to appeal to and befool the American electorate and that the protection of the masses is the problem of the future that will be entrusted to the wisdom and statesmanship of the Democratic party.

The New York Evening Post slips a cog and says this about Woodrow Wilson:

If Mr. Wilson were to accumulate for a few important utterances, and marshal in the best possible form the material of political argument which he has at command, the result could not fail to be far more helpful to the building up of genuine public opinion on the issues of the campaign.

To which the Baltimore News adds:

This is the view of a friendly critic, grievously disappointed with Governor Wilson's way of sliding over the big issues of the campaign.

If there is one candidate to-day who is the possessor of a vast accumulation of "important utterances," it is Woodrow Wilson, and because he has marshaled with splendid effect the best possible form of political argument, of which he has much at command, his popularity and strength are growing greater day by day.

Incidentally the only form of sliding the Governor of New Jersey indulges in is the slide forward, into the good graces and the high opinion of the People whose candidate he is.

To those who ask the question, "Does timber cultivation pay?" a question in return might be asked. It is this: "Is 300 per cent. a fair profit to earn on timberland?" George W. Vanderbilt bought a piece of forest land for $136,000. Twenty years after the purchase he sold only the larger trees on the reservation for $816,000. He simply preserved an unimproved area of ground and by intelligence made it yield an enormous profit. To this he is entitled, and, being a public benefactor, he deserves, withal, the reward that is his.

THERE are lots of folks "hunting work," who, at the same time, are praying that they won't find it. Such individuals must be plentiful in Sharptown, judging from this:

The canneries here are overrun with tomatoes and as a result thousands of baskets have rotted because labor could not be procured to prepare the fruit. Never in the history of the canning business here has there been such indifference shown by the labor. Few canned goods have as yet been shipped because labor is not available to label and case the product.

WONDER if it is a sign or symptom of the times that Will Irwin, author of "Confessions of a Con Man," has been placed in charge of a group of copy-smiths whose chief occupation in these pipeless times of peace is to supply the reading public with literature in behalf of Col. Roosevelt's candidacy?

To undermine romance and break the lover's cup of bliss, comes a doctor, Adolph Knopf, who says there's danger in a kiss. Will he conquer in his crusade, this iconoclast, this bore? No! and lovers will keep kissing just as they have done before.

THE OLDEST AVIATOR.

Probably the oldest representation of flying men is that engraved on one of the Babylonian stone seals in the Berlin Asiatic Museum.

This seal dates back to at least 2000 B. C. From the characters depicted it is surmised that the work is of about the period 2800 B. C.

The tale illustrated is of Etana sitting on an eagle and flying from earth to heaven. Beneath Etana are a man with uplifted hand and dogs looking up, on the left a shepherd and his flock, at the top left corner a potter at work, and beyond a baker baking cakes.

It has been a long way from Etana through Icarus and Lucian and Poe to Grahame-White, but this old stone cameo shows that even these seers saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be. And there is still a long way to look forward Rosetti's vision of the birdmen of Nineveh:

"We stare above, from kerb and rut, And see against the dawn about Strong men a-wing, with vans that jut Like those on friezes faintly cut

In long millenniums bygone. We follow flights that have been erst, To pass, till on our sight shall burst That last developed from the first, That best evolving from the worst, New London from Old Babylon."

The County Fair.

And now we have the county fair With pickles on display, And quilted goods and willow ware And hominy and hay.

The massive porker in his pen Now makes his owner proud, While aunty's "Dominicker" hen Attracts a goodly crowd.

The trotting race in many heats Might well excite a clam; And father takes a prize with beets And mother with her jam.

Prize butter, and the biggest squash And other things are there, There is no better fun, by gosh, Than going to the fair.

Crucial Test For Fireproof Theatre.

Under the auspices of the German "Steel Trust and National Association of Master Carpenters," Berlin will shortly apply a unique test to ascertain the fireproofness of theatres. A novel theatre will be built of steel, iron, cement and wood, and after its completion will be ignited. The progress of the fire in its various stages will be observed by a commission of experts representing builders, Fire Departments, architects and insurance companies. Every conceivable sort of theatre fire emergency will be provided for, and the experts hope to arrive at hitherto unimagined efforts of preventing a playhouse holocaust.

Editorials From Maryland Exchanges.

Gov. Goldsborough's Idea of a "Square Deal."

When Gov. Goldsborough made his campaign speech in Middletown, he won many friends by declaring that if he should be elected, he would see to it that all sections of Maryland should have a SQUARE DEAL on the road question.

Like all promises of political speakers, that assertion was for political effect only, for after the Legislature had been prevailed upon to pass the bill compelling the State Roads Commission to continue its road making through incorporated towns and not skip them, Gov. Goldsborough deliberately vetoed this just measure.

As a result, the citizens of Middletown, who are taxed for State roads and pay into this fund $400 or $500 yearly, are deliberately ignored when it comes to rebuilding the old National pike. As a result, the main street of the town, never owned or worked by the town, and now worn out by the speeding automobilists since the toll gates were removed from the pike, is left in its miserable condition, to disgrace our otherwise beautiful town, in the eyes of the tourists. Is this just or honest treatment?—Valley Register.

Gov. Wilson and The Bosses.

J. Y. Bratton, a staff correspondent of the "Baltimore American" writing to that paper from New York concerning Gov. Wilson's attitude toward party bosses states:

"Mr. Murphy knows, and every important city in the Union has a Charley Murphy, that if elected Gov. Wilson will use his power to club him into insensibility. Every Charley Murphy in every city knows the same. All the Charley Murphys know that "boss baiting" is Gov. Wilson's favorite pastime. They know his motto is "Swat the boss." They know that his guiding principle is "down with the political bosses," for he has no rights which any American citizen is bound to respect."

Could anything be written that would more strongly commend Gov. Wilson to the best citizenship of the country than this (?) although Mr. Bratton did not so intend it. He bullded better than he knew.

We were about to suggest his employment by the "Auxiliary Committee," but upon reflection we don't think well of it, as he helps when he wants to hurt, and he would most likely hurt when he wanted to help.—Democratic Advocate, Westminster.

Yellow Journalism.

"I am very tired. . . . I am answerable only to my God. He knows whether it is just for the self-denying work of years to be set at naught by the onslaught of a yellow newspaper against which there is no defense."

Scarcely were the above words penned before their weary author laid down his heavily burdened life, and one whose clear brain, broad vision philanthropic bosom, genial smile and mirthful words were a delight to all who knew him, became a sad memory instead of a valued member of society.

Is the sequel especially surprising? When a man recognized as a genius in business is held up as a fraud, when his reputation for honorable manhood is hooted at as only a shield for deception and chicanery, and when a popular clamor is cultivated to create a victim, it would be strange if he did not exclaim:

"He that flitches from me my good name Robs me of that which not enriches him And leaves me poor indeed."

Value of Local Paper.

The local paper should be found in every home. No children should grow up ignorant who can be taught to appreciate the home paper. It is said to be the stepping stone of intelligence in all those matters not to be found in books. Give your children a foreign paper which contains not a word about any person, place or thing, which they saw or perhaps ever heard of, and how could you expect them to be interested. But let them have the home paper to read of people whom they meet and of places of which they are familiar and soon an interest is awakened which increases with every arrival of the local paper. Thus a habit of reading is formed and those children will read the papers all their lives and become intelligent men and women, a credit to their ancestors, strong in knowledge of the world as it is to-day.—Towson Democrat and Journal.

Whatever the motive behind the furious attack upon the Havre de Grace race track, we believe the result will be to so arouse public sentiment that legalized gambling of this sort will be abolished by the next Legislature. If it is wrong at Havre de Grace it is wrong elsewhere and public sentiment should be directed against the perpetuation of this evil in any part of Maryland.—Bel Air Times.

CURRENT COMMENT FROM LEADING JOURNALS.

The Three Candidates.

Political prophecy would hardly be set down in the census reports as a "gainful occupation." The country is so big, the motives that influence voters in its widely separated divisions are so various, and often so shifting, that a trustworthy forecast is not easy. But we think that the most careful observers are agreed that of the three candidates Mr. Roosevelt is losing ground, Mr. Taft is not gaining very rapidly, and Mr. Wilson is gradually but steadily becoming stronger.

Mr. Roosevelt is having the unpleasant experience which some of his best friends, at the outset, feared for him. To put it bluntly, he is being found out. When he opened his campaign in his characteristic manner, exploding on a curious and interested people, in rapid succession, one after another of his newly discovered or newly invented political principles, there was a natural admiration for his wonderful fertility, and the extreme activity of his imagination, guided always by a certain shrewd, if not intelligent, perception of what would appeal to considerable classes of excited men and women. But as time ran on and people had time to grasp his varied principles and appeals, to examine them, and to compare them, it was found that a number of them disagreeably conflicted with each other. It was like adding up a lot of figures, some plus and some minus and ascertaining that so many of them balanced others that the net total was insignificant. The result is that for the past month the tone of the candidate has notably changed, and he has been obliged to spend a good deal of his valuable time in explaining to one set of his followers what he had previously "handed out" to another set. His general attitude is one of defense, or, at least, of defense as to so many things that he is losing the charm that, for the thoughtless, inheres in rushing aggressiveness. Even the great Napoleon was doomed to failure when he was forced to give more attention to his flanks and his rear guard than to the enemy in his front.

Mr. Taft has suffered in a different way. His main source of strength was in a certain popular confidence in his conservative temper, his devotion to high principle, particularly international relations, and his appreciation of the obligations of National honor. He had shown these qualities in his vigorous attempt to secure the adjudication of all international differences. Men forgave him his weaknesses which were only too plain, because they thought that in matters of real moment his sounder judgment would assert itself. The confidence was rudely shaken by his course as to the Panama bill, the wretched doctrine that he preached and the manner in which he attempted to sustain it. Some Democrats who voted for him in 1908, and were disposed to vote for him this year, changed their intentions on the pitiful showing he made on the Panama question. He seemed to them to have "fallen down" precisely where they expected him to stand most firmly. Such a feeling is a serious element in the campaign. It definitely weakens Mr. Taft where his chief, almost his only, source of strength lay. His yielding opens up such possibilities of grave complications that his value as a bulwark against reckless change is substantially destroyed.

We think that it is clear that the net result of the canvass thus far, as concerns Gov. Wilson, is directly the reverse. He is gaining gradually and materially in popular respect. He has met the exigencies of the campaign with a degree of candor, of self-respect and of deliberate and intelligent independence that have proved very acceptable. It appears to the public, so far as we can judge, that he acts without haste, with careful reflection and consultation, and, when his mind is made up with courage untouched by mere obstinacy. In a general way he impresses the Electorate as devoted to real progress, and profoundly convinced that wise and true reform will be of use to those reformed as well as to the public. His aim is definite and clearly conceived; his conception of the means to attain it is practical and enlightened. Especially, he wastes no time on panaceas, but bends his attention and his energies to concrete ends. Both the other candidates make their professed resentment at special privilege ludicrous by their course as to the one most glaring systems of special privilege, the oppressive tariff. Gov. Wilson shows the Nation what his hatred of special privilege is by attacking the tariff. It is a vital example of the deep difference between him and them.—New York Times.

The United States Himself.

Infamous! Preposterous! A crook and a jackass in New Hampshire, seeking to be made a citizen of the United States, wilfully, falsely and maliciously said that he had never heard of Theodore Roosevelt! Of no matter that he had never heard of George Washington, for he was only an incompetent figurehead. Any man who says that he never heard of "ME" should be described by a short and ugly word and shot for incredible treason. Never heard of the practical President who proposed to inhabit the White House "during a lifetime" and go on until death looking after "me and my people"! Any man who denied knowing "ME" ought to be branded as a high-wayman, a highbinder, a pirate, a desperado and a vile and infamous slanderer, who ought to be drowned in the canal that "I took". Let the low-brow and wicked poltroon be beheaded at once, along with the rest of the crooks and scoundrels and safe blowers and pickpockets and porch-climbers and anarchists who are opposing "ME." Why should I permit for one moment any man to live who does not know that Theodore Roosevelt is the whole United States himself?—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Man With a Grudge.

Every political party has its internal dissensions. Some grow out of honest differences of opinion, some from intense rivalries and some from mere personal spite. The democratic party is no more free from such trouble than other parties, but at this moment it can offer better reasons why strife should be buried than any other party. The democracy has the best opportunity for success that has been presented to it in years. It is offering to the people a programme of needed reform which it has demonstrated that it can carry out. It is putting principles above men and every man's duty is to forget what is personal in politics and look steadfastly at great truths which bind the party together. Small considerations should be given at this time to the man who parades his personal disappointments and berates his personal foes to the detriment of the party. Nursing grief and keeping old wounds fresh is poor business at any time. It is downright party disloyalty to go into that sort of thing now, when every sign points to democratic victory in November. The sorehead should be firmly squelched, rivalries should be dropped, differences reconciled, and an unbroken front presented to the enemy.—St. Louis Republic.

Give Your Farm a Name.

It is a commentary on the business ideals of the town and country that probably no little confectionery or shoe-shining parlor in a city is allowed to go without a name to distinguish it, and enable people to talk about it, for good or bad, while in the country, farms of hundreds of acres, turning over thousands of dollars a year, are deprived of any appellation by which they can be advertised or conveniently remembered. The farmer is over-looking a business asset when he permits his plant to be called "Bob Smith's place," or "the old Brook's Farm." He is sacrificing a lot of valuable advertising and all the effectiveness of having a trademark. For example, it is likely that every farm in Virginia generally famous for any of its products has a name by which its fame has been spread. An attractive and suggestive name is going to be remembered much longer than the often commonplace title of the man who owns it.

The principal gain in having a name is that every success the farm makes adds to its prestige and extends the market for its wares. The constant appearance of this name in the list of prize-winners at the fair or horse show increases the feeling of confidence in its products. A farm name may finally come to be like the sterling mark on silverware. Moreover, endeavor to live up to a good name will react for better things on the owner. His pride in the guarantee carried by his trade-mark will tend to make him keep up the quality. Its reputation will become almost as dear to him as his own honor.

In furnishing food to cities we think a name would add much to the farmer's profits. If a housewife who desired a particularly nice kind of vegetable, fruit or fowl, some special butter or pure milk for the baby, real country honey or vinegar, and ask for something from the Rosedale Farm, or from Sunset Grove, and be assured of getting pure, fresh food, she would be a permanent asset for the farmer. She would spread the fame of his goods among her friends and be willing to pay a higher price for the certainty of stable equality.

The choice of a name should not be finicky or sentimental. It should, if possible represent some product or quality that the owner figures characteristic of his fields. It should be made a permanent feature of all stationery, advertising, labelling, and correspondence. It should be lived up to. The farmer is a business man, and needs all the legitimate methods of business.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Pledges have never been embarrassing to Roosevelt. His pledge that he would not be a candidate this year was broken without a qualm—we suppose in the interest of "the larger good."—Indianapolis Star.

ARMAGEDDON
A Roosevelt Battle Song.
I am the shout and the shout,
Men call me the big noise,
I'm the greatest man beyond all doubt,
I use men as my toys.
I've picked the "decent" ones all out
Who follow at my word,
To stand with me at Armageddon
And do battle for the Lord.

Two trusty men are in my band,
Perkins and wise Medill;
For war needs sinews close to hand
To pay each little bill.
We fight with the cash register
Instead of with the sword,
For we stand at Armageddon
And we battle for the Lord.

We needed bold Tim Woodruff;
He's the kind you can't keep down.
Our right hands knew our left-hand
"stuff"
His scruples for to drown.
And we had two other "corkers,"
Bill F'inn and William Ward,
For I'm agin the bosses
In my battle for the Lord.

And one great-hearted hero,
Dixon—always cock sure,
Whose strength is as the strength of ten
Because his heart is pure.
He hits straight out below the belt,
By honest men abhorred,
He lies and yells and fights for ME,
And also for the Lord.

The Pinchot brothers (pinch with care)
Amos and dear Gif-ford,
Who say I never change my mind
And never break my word;
And Jimmy Garfield (Shady Jim),
All say with one accord
That I must have at least three terms
To battle for the Lord.

I have a "heady" Beveridge
Who follows in my train,
And bearded Lyman Abbott,
A man of brawn and brain;
We quaff great jugs of foaming milk (?)
As we sit around the board;
One gets dry at Armageddon
Doing battle for the Lord.

We took a little bathroom suite,
Furnished with potent drink,
Where delegates were asked to come
And put Taft on the blink.
With soft persuasive arguments
We sought to touch an answering chord,
To try and make them see the light
And battle for the Lord.

They came to our reception,
These "weaklings," "crooks" and
"jays,"
For none (with one exception)
Saw the error of his ways.
What though the generous Perkins
With both hands the shekels poured,
They would not come across and join
Our battle for the Lord.

I'm the one and only man on earth
To uphold the "Pee-pul's" cause,
Moses hasn't got a thing on me
As a giver of just laws.
The many-hued bandana
Which the poorest can afford
I'm using for my emblem
In my battle for the Lord.

"Thou" means the other fellow
When I say "thou shalt not steal;"
We have our little "Steal Trusts"
And the "limited Square Deal."
Their naked thefts of delegates
I greatly have deplored,
But I'm justified in stealing
For I battle for the Lord.

MODERNIZATION OF ANCIENT CITY OF JERUSALEM
Electricity, Water Supply, Tramways
and Fire Stations Improvements Financed by European Capital.
Jerusalem is to take on a modern apspect and in a short while it is expected that this ancient city will be one of the most up-to-date municipalities in the Near East.
An English company which is erecting a large power station will soon supply electric current all over this city.
Even the sacred hill will before long be lighted with electricity. A complete system of trolley lines is under construction by a French company, while a German concern is laying pipes for a house water supply.
To complete the modernization of Jerusalem, a series of fire stations with motor fire engines and ladders is being installed under Austrian management.

Governor Wilson Not for Free Trade.
In reply to a cable from the London Express asking Woodrow Wilson if he was in favor of free trade, the Governor answered:
"No foundation for a statement that I advocate free trade for the United States. Under the present system of the division of the field of taxation between the Federal and State governments free trade will be impossible."
Archbishop Glennon said, when asked about his political views, "The church sentiment in favor of any candidate.

We of the clergy are just like reporters. We vote for anybody we like best."
William F. Davies, ex-lieutenant gov-

THE CAUSE LOSES MILLION DOLLARS BY TUBERCULOSIS
Education Crippled By Virulent Disease.—Open Air Schools Advocated
By National Association.
With the opening of the fall school term, over 200 open air schools and fresh classes for tuberculous, and anaemic children, and also for all children in certain rooms and grades, will be in operation in various parts of the United States, according to a statement published by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

All of these schools, the association says, have been established since January, 1907, when the first institution of this character was opened in Providence R. I. On January 1st, 1910, there were only 13 open air schools in this country and a year later the number had increased only to 29. Thus, the real growth in this movement has been with the last two years.

Massachusetts now leads the states with 86 fresh air schools and classes for tuberculous, anaemic and other school children, Boston alone having over eighty. New York comes next with 29 and Ohio is third with 21. Open air schools have now been established in nearly 50 cities in 19 different states.

Based on figures of population and mortality furnished by the United States Bureau of the Census, it is estimated that not less than 100,000 children now in school in the United States will die of tuberculosis before they are eighteen years of age, or that about 7000 of these children die annually from this one disease. Estimating that on an average each child who dies from tuberculosis has had six years of schooling, the aggregate loss to this country in wasted education each year amounts to well over $1,000,000.

This loss and much of the incident suffering could be materially decreased if open air schools or classes for these children and those who are sickly and anaemic were provided. The National Association estimates that there should be one such school for every 25,000 population, especially in cities.

FLOWER DAY FOR THE BLIND.
Oct. 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th will be celebrated throughout the State as Flower
Days for the benefit of the Maryland
Workshop for the Blind.
Since the inauguration of this noble work for the benefit of the adult blind, it has been developed that there are far more cases of men and women who have lost their sight and are without occupation, therefore dependent upon others,
than was anticipated.
It is distressing to contemplate what the loss of vision means to a person, but with the loss comes lack of occupation, and if the person have those that are dependent upon them, who can imagine what the feelings of such a person are?

The object of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind is to make the blind of our State independent rather than dependent, therefore trades are taught both to the men and women, and they are compensated for their labor. In being given occupation it is a great blessing, but as there is compensation, a blind person realizes that they are, to a certain extent, assisting in making a living, and any one that will assist in such a cause, indicate that they have love in their hearts for those that are afflicted, and that they are grateful for the blessing of vision that they enjoy.

The Maryland Workshop for the Blind is exceedingly anxious to wipe out a debt of $50,000 for the purchase of a building and equipment, and only $5,000 is required to cancel the indebtedness.
On October 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th, it is requested that every person that is interested in the work will wear a flower, and if it cannot be purchased from one of their representatives, that the party securing the flower will lay aside an amount equal to the gratitude that they feel, and their ability to give, and it will be a pleasure for us to receive contributions and forward them to the treasurer, or they can be mailed direct to Mr. George R. Bellows, Manager,
Western Newspaper Union, 414 Water Street, Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Bellows, although blind, has successfully managed a large business.
Where there is one man who can maintain his position after having lost his sight, there are hundreds that cannot.
Any one visiting Baltimore is invited to call and inspect the building of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, at Fayette and Poca Streets, and after doing so, they will be impressed more than ever with the value of the institution to the State.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Messrs. Robert Burdner and Chas. R. Hoke are installing a heating plant near Taneytown.

During the heavy rainfall on Tuesday, Flat Run bridge was completely surrounded by deep water. A five-passenger auto from Gettysburg was caught in the middle of the overflow and the engine choked. Mr. C. E. McCarren came to the rescue with a pair of heavy horses and hauled the car to the garage.

Mr. Meade Fuss is building quite an extensive henry on his place near town. The building is finished in shingle effect like a small cottage and is quite picturesque.

The Lutheran parsonage has been repaired, adding much to the appearance of the church property.

Crocuses are blooming in some of the gardens in Emmitsburg.

Acetylene gas plants, manufactured by the Emmitsburg Generator Co., have been installed in the homes of Messrs. Meade Fuss and Ernest Shriver, near town.

The cool weather of Sunday brought out an unusually large number of auto tourists. Many fine cars from nearby and distant points were seen in Emmitsburg on that day.

Sparrow shooting has become quite popular in Emmitsburg and many local sportsmen are becoming expert with the rifle. It is expected that Dr. Dan Shorb, whose sight is phenomenal, will take a hand in the festivities tomorrow. Dr. Shorb, it is claimed by his admirers, always uses a cat rifle in shooting rabbits and antelopes and can singe the three middle hairs on the head of a flying squirrel at 800 yards.

Dr. John Glass is not in favor of smaller bank notes and he is working on an invention whereby, with the use of rubber and yeast, our present currency can be made to greatly expand.

Over seven hundred head of cattle changed hands in Emmitsburg within the week.

Messrs. Clarence Rider and John Jackson are at work in Gettysburg erecting a new house.

Mr. Olin Moser is putting in an acetylene plant at Hampstead, Md., for the Emmitsburg Generator Co.

The downpour on Monday and Tuesday flooded many cellars in the neighborhood.

Mr. Wm. L. McGinnis, Sr., a much appreciated subscriber living in Minneapolis, sent THE CHRONICLE a monster edition of the Minneapolis Journal in which he had marked an article showing that in progress that thriving western city was "on top" of the "Prosperity Wall."

The creeks were so high after the heavy rainfall of Monday and Tuesday that mail for the College and points on the Pike could not be delivered Tuesday evening. Several persons who had come into town during the day on Tuesday had to remain in Emmitsburg over night, and those who had ventured into the country in the early part of the day were forced to remain until Wednesday morning.

Those who have been over the Littlestown road lately must certainly have been impressed with the substantial improvements made to that thoroughfare. New culverts, with railings, have been erected, side drains have been made more pronounced, and the surface of the road has received very intelligent attention.

Dr. B. I. Jamison took Mrs. J. T. Hays to St. Joseph's Hospital, Baltimore, yesterday.

A son of W. H. Moser who lives near Tom's creek was driving during the storm on Tuesday night. After crossing the bridge at Wilson's ford Mr. Moser alighted to examine the depth of the stream and judging it to be passable continued on his way. Just below the bridge wall the torrent carried him and the team forcibly against a large tree. Cutting the traces and the backing straps Mr. Moser, leaving the buggy in the stream, mounted the horse and rode toward home. At Tom's creek the fording was impassable and he remained at Mr. E. F. Keilholz's over night.

Enjoyed Every Minute of His Visit.

Mr. Edmond Q. R. Smith, brother of Mr. M. Hoke and Mrs. John Tyson, left Baltimore at 4 a. m., Saturday morning on his return trip to his home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, after spending 15 days with his sisters in this place, and visiting the haunts of his early days.

Mr. Smith took great delight in making the acquaintance of the children of both his sisters, some of whom he had never seen, and expressed his appreciation at their kindness to him, each one trying to out-do the other in entertaining him and helping to make his visit, after so many years, a pleasant one. Both sisters were loath to part with their brother and accompanied him as far as Baltimore on his return trip. Mr. Smith said he enjoyed every minute of his trip and felt a much younger person after renewing his boyhood friendships.

MARGARET HELENA MONDORFF.

Margaret Helena Mondorff, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mondorff, died Saturday at noon, after a short illness.

The funeral took place in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Sunday, at 3 P. M.

Four girls dressed in white acted as pall-bearers and three small girls carried handsome bouquets, consisting of roses and carnations. The choir composed of children sang two very sympathetic hymns, "Dear Angel Ever at My Side," and "Mother Dear Oh Pray For Me."

The remains of the little infant were laid to rest in the family lot.

The parents have the sympathy of their many friends in the loss of their only child.

Sixteen Injured At Benwood, W. Va.

A runaway engine on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Benwood, W. Va., on Tuesday, crashed into a day coach and pullman car loaded with passengers from Wheeling. Sixteen persons were injured three of them fatally. The two cars were badly wrecked and all the injured were in them.

The more seriously injured are: Clyde Coffman, Fairmont, W. Va.; Charles Foster, Pellaire, Ohio; Mrs. George Duncan, Woodstock, W. Va.; John Modar, Mannington, W. Va.; Carl Coffman, Fairmont, W. Va.

MATTHEWS.—TYSON.

On Monday morning at 9 o'clock, Mr. John H. Matthews and Miss Euphemia Tyson were married at St. Joseph's Rectory by Rev. J. O. Hayden, C. M. The bride was attired in a blue traveling suit with hat and gloves to match. The couple left for their honeymoon on the ten o'clock train.

MT. ST. MARY'S FOOTBALL NEWS

Squad Practicing For Games to Begin Next Week.—Many Old Men Back. Good New Material.

John McCormick, manager of Mt. St. Mary's college football team for the coming season announced his schedule for the coming year at a meeting of the athletic association held yesterday.

The list is the hardest that the Mountaineers have ever been called upon to face, including teams that have made strong football reputations.

The first game will be played with the strong Georgetown aggregation at Washington next week. An unusually strong attraction for the home grounds will be Gettysburg.

This is the first time in a number of years that these old rivals have met on the gridiron, and it is safe to say at this time that some mighty fine football will be seen.

Villa Nova, another powerful team, will appear here in November. The season will close as usual with the Catholic University at Washington.

This game seems to be a fixture for future years. The University looks upon it as their important game and great interest was manifested in the contest last year at the Capital City.

The past week has been bad on the local squad, as most of the practice had to be taken in the Gynasium on account of the heavy rains.

The first week brought out a large number of candidates, and although light for the show teams they are to play, they show plenty of spirit and eagerness to make good.

It was the intention of Coach Thompson to start scrimmage work this past week, but from present indications he will be lucky if he can get going next week.

This is a source of worry to the Coach, as he realizes the hard proposition he has in Georgetown. Hard work will be the order just as soon as the squad can get on the field again.

All the old men eligible from the last year's squad are now back at college. In Captain Flannery the boys have a good leader and his whole ambition is to have a strong team.

Including the captain, the following old men are back: Dowdle, McHale, McMannus, Rice, Robinson, Sheridan, Mahoney, Haltigan, Hann, Kelly and Cogan.

Among the new men that have been showing up well are Dwyer, May, Quinn, Letter, Whettle, Casey and Roouen. Malloy, the star end of last year, appeared upon the field for the first time Thursday.

He is not in the best of shape as yet, but will be all right by mid-season. Coach Thompson realizing the importance of the games to be played on the home field, will have the best officials in the State to handle the games.

At a meeting of the athletic association of Mt. St. Mary's College yesterday some very important business was transacted.

The first thing was the adoption of a new constitution. It has been felt for some time that the old code had outlived its usefulness.

With the coming of Coach Thompson and the advance that was to be made in this department, not only athletically but also from a business standpoint, it was found that the old constitution would not do.

The new code was carefully read by President Walter Flannery and listened to attentively by the entire student body.

The rules were gone over again and President Flannery called upon Mr. Thompson to answer any of the difficulties that might be presented.

After explaining the results and benefits that the new code would bring forth, a motion was made to adopt the constitution as read.

It is agreed by all that this is one of the best steps taken in some time and a bright future is predicted for the association in the coming years.

Under the new code the athletic committee will be represented by a member of the Council, Rev. James G. Burke; athletic director and faculty member, M. J. Thompson, and student body by the president, Walter Flannery.

This will bring the whole affair under a committee that represents every department of the college. The rules will take effect at once.

Secretary Knox has been royally entertained everywhere in Japan.

MT. ST. MARY'S ITEMS.

Miss Mary Barry and Miss Katherine Seltzer spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Seltzer.

Miss Hazel Ridenour and Mr. Melvin Nussinger, of Thurmont, were married on Saturday.

The total number of students on the College register, exclusive of the Seminary, is 285.

Mr. Edward Craig, of York, Pa., visited his relatives in this place on Monday.

In glancing over the columns of the Johnstown Daily Tribune, we note that Miss Ada Wagner formerly of this locality but now residing in Johnstown, has been awarded first prize for a specimen of embroidery at the Interstate Fair held at Luna Park.

Mr. George Wagner, of Hagerstown, who has been on the sick list with a sprained back, is recovering.

Paint?

There are two good reasons for painting often-enough or even too-often. One, to look prosperous; two, to be so. Nothing does one more credit or gives one more credit than paint, supplemented of course by what goes with it; and paint costs nothing.

ON THE SQUARE

ASKED FOR A CRITICISM.

The Lecturer Got a Reply and a Big Surprise as Well.

Mr. Albon P. Man, the American scientist who invented incandescent lighting by the use of a carbon filament in a vacuum, when he was about seventy years of age looked more like a banker than a scientist and in the subdued light of a lecture room appeared at a distance like a young man.

Some years ago he attended a lecture in Brooklyn upon the higher problems of electrical science, delivered by a "professor" with many titles and degrees. At the close the speaker called for comments and criticisms from the auditors.

Mr. Man, who was sitting well back in the hall arose and, quoting a long statement from the lecture concerning a difficult process, asked if he had heard it correctly.

"With remarkable accuracy, sir," replied the lecturer. "They are almost my very words."

The inventor then clearly but cogently tore the lecturer's argument to pieces, greatly to the latter's astonishment and to the amusement of the audience. As he sat down the lecturer said:

"I can hardly reply at present. You seem to have some information on the subject."

"Yes," replied Mr. Man. "I discovered the process myself nearly thirty years ago."--Pearson's Weekly.

FARMER GETS LESS, BUT--

He Has to Pay More For What He Doesn't Raise.

The United States department of agriculture has just announced that notwithstanding the increased cost of living among the people as a whole there was a greater decline in the prices paid to farmers from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1 this year than there was last year.

The average farm prices of the important crops (corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, potatoes, tobacco, cotton and hay, which represent about three-fourths of the value of all the country's crops) declined 7 per cent during the month, while in that time last year they declined in price only 4.4 per cent, and during the last four years the decline in price averaged 3.8 per cent. The average of farm prices on Sept. 1 was 2.8 per cent lower than on that date last year.

Prices paid to farmers on Sept. 1 this year, with comparison of prices paid on the same date last year, follow:

Corn	1912	1911
Wheat	$0.775	$0.659
Oats	.588	.848
Barley	.350	.404
Rye	.535	.770
Buckwheat	.708	.763
Flaxseed	.769	.740
Potatoes	1.628	2.036
May	.650	1.137
Cotton	12.140	14.610
Butter	.113	.118
Chickens	.242	.231
Eggs	.113	.111
	.191	.174

But the prices on tariff nurtured articles of manufacture which the farmer has to buy continue to soar.

TRAVELING MEN FOR WOODROW WILSON.

He Has a Record of Making Good His Promises to Voters.

The traveling man is a live wire. Traveling men are decided factors in molding public sentiment.

No other class of men come in more forceful contact with the actual condition of the high cost of living without a corresponding increase in salaries.

The traveling men need Governor Wilson for their president because his record is that of making good promises and then honestly fulfilling them. Governor Wilson in his candidacy needs the help of every live traveling man.

Every genuinely progressive commercial man who is willing to help Governor Wilson's candidacy is urged to send his name immediately to the Commercial Men's Wilson committee, Campaign Organization Bureau, Democratic National headquarters, Fifth Avenue building, New York

COURTSHIP IN SPAIN.

A Difficult Business In Which Speaking Tubes Play a Part.

In Spain, as is well known, a rigorous etiquette governs the business of love-making. A young man cannot interview his sweetheart without her parents' consent, and indeed all conversation openly carried on between the couple must be in the presence of the fair one's mother.

Many subterfuges are adopted by the lovers to overcome this difficulty, and the "reja"--the ornamental ironwork on the windows of Spanish houses--has become one of the favorite trysting places. Modern life, however, has imposed fresh barriers. If a young man's sweetheart lives on the third floor of a city building he cannot very well meet her at the "reja."

In this as in other spheres of life necessity is the mother of invention, and some ardent lovers have brought speaking tubes to their assistance. The seniorita, at the appointed hour, lowers this to her lover below, and they are thus able to carry on their love affairs with the assurance that they are not overheard by the people on the intervening flats, as would be the case if the conversation were carried on without such aid.--London Answers

Thackeray's Favorite Books.

In her introduction to the "Roundabout Papers" in the centenary edition of Thackeray, Lady Ritchie speaks of her father's favorite books. Thackeray had an old Montaigne, which he always kept on the table by his bed. He had a second copy, still older, bound in white vellum, on the book shelves in his study. Lady Ritchie cannot remember that he had any particular feeling for special editions. "He used a cheap, battered old Boswell with double columns, the companion with whom, as he said, he could have been quite content to dwell for a year upon that problematical desert island. He loved his 'Don Quixote.' He also liked his shabby, worm eaten copy of Johnson's poets. They had been to India and back, and bookworms are very common out there." Milton's sonnet to Shakespeare in Johnson's poets was, Lady Ritchie adds, one of the last things Thackeray ever read.

Learning His Father's Business.

"What?" exclaimed the wealthy Cleveland papa who had put his son to work in order to teach him a few things. "What? Fired after working one week?"

"Yes, dad; I was discharged." "What was the trouble?"

"They said I was too green for them."

"What was your mistake?"

"I paid a bill the first time the collector called!"

"Ah! And now you see how foolish you were?"

"Yes, dad. I'll never do it again."

"My son, you have served your apprenticeship and learned your lesson. You may now come into the office with me."--Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Composition.

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher after she had explained the meaning of the word, "I wish you would write a sentence containing the word defeat." After a struggle which lasted for about twenty minutes Johnny announced that he was ready to be heard. "Please read your composition," the teacher directed. "When you git shoes dat's too tite," Johnny read. "It's hard on de feet."--Chicago Record-Herald.
