Senate Investigation Still Showing Up Colonel

TAFT SUMS UP THE SITUATION

With the Return of Republican Deserters to Taft the Fight Seems to Narrow Down to Wilson and Taft.—Democratic Ranks Gain.

That there has been a very noticeable change in the tide of the political sea during the past week cannot be gainsaid. Gov. Wilson's stock has not lost a point, and if anything, his chances have been furthered by desertions from the third-term party. Mr. Wilson with William Jennings Bryan have been "doing" Nebraska and the Sun Flower state has not lacked a pouring out of brilliant oratory to swing it into the Democratic column in November.

In his speeches in Topeka and Kansas City, Gov. Wilson replied to Roosevelt's request at Albany, N. Y., that the Democratic nominee "prove or retract the declaration that the United States Steel Corporation is behind the third party programme for regulating trusts."

"I understand from the newspapers" said Gov. Wilson "that Mr. Roosevelt was distressed by my suggestion the other day that the United States Steel Corporation was back of his plan for controlling the trusts."

"He interpreted my remark to mean that they were supporting him with their money. I was not thinking about money. I do not know whether they are supporting him with their money or not; it does not make any difference. What I meant was they are supporting him with their thought, and their thought is not our thought. I meant, and I say again, that the kind of control which he proposes is the kind of control that the United States Steel Corporation wants."

"I am perfectly willing to admit that they think it the best for the country."

"My point is that this is a method conceived from the point of view of the very men who are to be controlled, and that that is just the wrong point of view from which to conceive it."

At Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo., Gov. Wilson and Speaker Champ Clark, made addresses. Fully 15,000 persons crowded the Coliseum at St. Louis, but the great strain of the past few days had spoiled the Governor's voice, and he could not be heard. When introduced by Speaker Clark, the Presidential candidate was cheered for seventeen minutes. It is a red-hot Champ Clark country, and Clark's presence did a good deal in the way of reconciling disgruntled Democrats.

From the evidence submitted to the Clapp committee in its investigation on the figures now stand. Raised for Col. Roosevelt, $611,108; raised for President Taft, $499,527. And there still many States to be heard from.

A large addition to the Roosevelt fund was made Wednesday when Dan R. Hanna testified that he contributed $177,000 to the Colonel's cause. Mr. Hanna is in the coal and iron business, and a close friend of George W. Perkins, with whom he discussed his contributions early in the campaign.

Ship Afloat in a Sea of Old Brandy.

Every seaman likes his nip 'o' rum or good 'whiskey,' but no tar looks with pleasure on a cargo of 'spirits' going overboard, hence the sight of fifty barrels of fine old brandy commingling with waves made the seamen of the good ship Fedora shed tears in reciting the story when they came ashore in New York on Monday.

"When the Fedora left Trieste," the boatman said, "the weather was fine and all was well. This lasted until a week ago, when the ship ran into a stiff gale with heavy head seas which carried away fifty barrels of old brandy that were on the after deck. One by one the barrels went over the side with the crew powerless to prevent it."

"The barrels were dashed against the steel hull of the ship and stood in so that the liquor spread over the surface of the water and the Fedora floated in a sea of brandy."

Speaking of the use of alcoholic drinks in the service, Col. L. Meroin Maus, of the Medical Corps, U. S. A., says: "I have been unable to discover one single beneficial or useful purpose it serves in the human economy."

Because his tragedy had been changed into musical comedy, Nahon Rockow a dramatist of New York sought redress and an injunction against his managers.

TEN MORE CARDINALS

The Question of More Foreigners is Uppermost

DELEGATES IN SACRED COLLEGE

America's Share Low in Proportion to Catholic Population.—Italians Have One For Every Million.

A question that has caused animated and learned discussion during the last thirty years, namely, that of giving to the different Catholic sections of the world better representation in the Sacred College, is again one of the topics of the Vatican according to a confirmed dispatch from Rome.

Leo XIII. was the first pope who gave a large representation of non-Italians in the Sacred College, as under him, for the first time, the foreign Cardinals surpassed the Italians in number. Now the situation is again to the entire advantage of the Italians, there being thirty-four Princes of the Church who are Italians, against twenty-six foreigners, thus making the total sixty Cardinals, which leaves ten hats vacant, as the plenum of the Sacred College, by the present constitution, is seventy. This number, however, has never been reached, a pontiff wishing, in case of unexpected developments, to have a hat or two at his disposition.

As things now stand, Italy has one Cardinal for every million inhabitants, while France has one for every eight million, Austria and Spain one for every three million, Germany one for every twenty-four million, England and Ireland one for every five million, the United States one for every nineteen million, South America only one for her forty million Catholics, while Central America, Canada, Poland, the whole of Africa, the whole of Asia, and the whole of Australia have no representation in the Sacred College.

For the working of the vast and complicated machinery of the Church in Rome, it is necessary to have about twenty-five Cardinals living there.

These, called Cardinals of the Curia, are now Italians, with the exception of four—Merry del Val and Vives Y. Tuto, who are Spanish; Van Rossum, Dutch, and Billot, who is French. Even these Cardinals of the Curia, it is remarked, might do more profitable work for the Church if a larger proportion were foreign.

American interests for instance, have been represented first by the late Cardinal Satoll, who was the original Apostolic Legate at Washington, and now by his two successors, Cardinals Martinelli and Falcoconi; but the need is felt of a born American, and a prominent ecclesiastic, very dear to the present Pope, who is already occupying an important position in Rome, and whose name is mentioned for Archbishop of one of the most important Sees in the United States, is regarded as the most likely American Cardinal of the Curia.

COCKRAN-RAYNER DEBATE OF MONDAY.—BOTH SIDES WON

A Tremendous Audience Listened Intently and Applauded the Hits Made by Each Speaker.—All Satisfied.

Hon. W. Burke Cockran is home again, Senator Rayner is attending to his affairs, the people who heard these men debate are again following their various vocations and everybody is satisfied.

The Bull Moosers say that Cockran flayed Rayner, and the Democrats hold that their champion put it all over the other man—and there you are.

Everybody concludes that the debate of Monday was a magnificent clash between men of big calibre, and all are of the opinion that it was the best thing attempted during the campaign. It brought the issues to the front and gave both sides the opportunity to hear the pros and cons of each salient feature of the fight.

It was a friendly bout and a satisfactory bout for all who heard it, but as to which side won—well, both won, and everybody went home happy.

A Hotel With a Thousand Rooms.

The era for big hotels is at hand and Chicago is going to have the "greatest hotel in the United States." One thousand and rooms is the modest limit and $8,000,000 the modest price for the structure alone which will occupy twenty-eight thousand square feet. It will be in the French style of Architecture throughout, and will be of pink granite for the first two stories and terra cotta above.

President Taft issued a statement at Dalton, Mass., in which he said that most gratifying results have come from all sections, notably Northwest, showing a constantly growing sentiment in favor of continuing Republican policies.

Officials of the New Haven Railroad worked all night tearing loose the charred mass of iron and debris that had been four parlor cars, an engine and baggage car. The death list is seven.

"I've shed the first blood of the campaign," said Gov. Thomas Marshall, of Indiana, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, when he arrived in New York with an extremely sore nose, as a result of being hit with a stone, thrown by a small boy as the Governor and his party were nearing Montville, Conn.

State Senator John J. Blaine, of Bascom, Wis., working hand in hand with Rudolph Spreckels, of California, both Progressive Republicans, who have undertaken the task of converting the Western States to the Democratic cause are satisfied that 50,000 Progressive Republicans of Wisconsin will vote for Woodrow Wilson.

"I stand pat on the campaign fund" said John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil Company, when he arrived home on the Majestic. He insists that the Standard Oil Company gave $100,000 to elect Colonel Roosevelt in 1904, in contradiction to Mr. Roosevelt's testimony.

The most extensive fire in point of loss which has ever occurred at Jamestown, where many Baltimoreans have summer homes, was that of Saturday night, when the Hotel Thorndike, owned by Mary H. Horgan, of Newport, R. I., was burned to the ground and the surrounding property, including the cottages of several Baltimoreans were saved only by great effort on the part of the Jamestown Fire Department.

Two cars one driven by Edgar Shaw, the son of James Shaw, a lumber merchant of Philadelphia, the other driven by Charles Ehler left Riverside mansion on the Schuylkill river shortly after midnight. Ehler, leading saw another motorcar coming north just about to cross the bridge. Ehler's car passed safely but Shaw's car was going at a tremendous speed and dashed off the Thirty-third street bridge, shortly after midnight Monday morning and lay in Obrien's coal yards, a horrid monument to nine youthful lives who threw discretion and caution to the winds.

At the head was Margaret T. Baker, 70 years old, a sister of Colonel Robert Baker, husband of the decedent. Estimates of the value of the estate range from $5,000,000 to $20,000,000. Thirty-six heirs signed the petition for administration.

Thomas J. Ryan, for many years leader of the Democratic party in Philadelphia and a prominent promoter of amusement enterprises, ended his life by shooting himself through the mouth.

SEES PROGRESS HERE

Russian Surgeon Says We Have Done Much

IN FIELD OF MEDICAL RESEARCH

Will Lessen Loss of Life in War.—Our Advanced Hygiene Seems Especially Wonderful to Dr. Zohrt.

Dr. A. A. Zohrt, Surgeon General of the Baltic squadron of the Russian Navy, genially conversed about the work of the recent International Congress of Hygiene in Washington and the great changes he had observed in the application of hygiene and sanitary measures in this country nowadays as compared with twelve years ago.

"The many changes I have observed since the two years I lived over here have been a great surprise," said Dr. Zohrt. "Especially wonderful is the progress that has been made in hygiene I have been about to see many hospitals and I have found in them nothing but methods and appliances to marvel at. Then the laboratory work I have seen done—I cannot apply to it any adjective except 'beautiful.'"

"The sanitary arrangements of the cities and the applications of hygienic rules in the various departments are remarkable. I have been surprised by everything I have seen."

"The hygienic congress was a great success in every way. One of the interesting subjects, in my opinion, was the hookworm disease, about which we learned a great deal. The hookworm you have here comes from Africa. We have another kind in Russia. American medical men have done a great deal in the study of this disease."

"As a naval man I was, of course, tremendously interested to see what has been done for hygiene in your navy. The regulations governing the dining rooms, the cooking, and the preparation of food are very efficient, and I observed that in the army similar regulations as to cleanliness and sanitation are being enforced."

"At a glance, I should say that your vaccination in the army against typhoid is the most striking thing that has come to my attention. Every army surgeon knows that the great loss in war is not from wounds but from this disease, and that is true of all armies. Typhoid vaccination is now being done in the German Army, also, but in ours not yet. We expect it to be begun next year."

THE POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT APPROVES PARCELS POST

The Hon. David J. Lewis Plan Tested by Special Committee in Maryland Cities With Splendid Results.

Much was accomplished in Hagerstown and Frederick with the Parcels Post plan. The Department gave out that "by getting close to the farmers and others who will become patrons of the parcels post system a great amount of most valuable information has been obtained at first hand."

"The meetings were attended by merchants of every class, represented those would utilize the parcels post for outgoing packages to farmers. Presidents and secretaries of granges and individual farmers, living along the rural routes radiating from the cities where the meetings were held, represented the agricultural interests, whose needs Mr. Hitchcock was especially desirous of learning. In all instances they were greatly interested in the details of the system, and by their questions and suggestions gave the members of the committee much information that will prove of great value in working out plans for operation."

New Home For The German Embassy.

In one of the prettiest sections of Washington and in the midst of a grove of magnificent trees will shortly be built the new German Embassy. The ground was bought some time ago and now that the money has been appropriated, building operations will soon be under way. Peter Behrens, imperial German architect, and Herr Kettner, a German Privy Councillor, are en route to this country to decide upon plans for the new building. They will determine whether the Sans Souci style of architecture will fit well with the surroundings of the site.

A Departure In The Way of Joy-Riding.

If chauffeurs can joy-ride in their employer's automobiles, why cannot train engineers do the same in locomotives? This was the argument that led two Chicago railroad employes to hit the pace in a "borrowed railroad engine" the other day. The result was a collision, personal injury, arrest and $1500 damages.

The Public Health Service will make inspection of the sanitary conditions in railroad trains and vessels.

NEWSPAPERS CONTEST LAW

INJUNCTION ASKED FOR

Suit Against Postmaster-General Filed

CLAIM LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Legislation Requiring Newspapers and Periodicals to Publish Circulation Figures Attacked by New York Journal of Commerce.

The protest to the recent Postal Laws that is being made throughout the country has taken the form of a suit instituted by the New York Journal of Commerce to test the right of the government to enforce the federal law of August 24, 1912, requiring newspapers and periodicals to publish their circulation figures twice a year and imposing other publicity requirements.

The suit is directed against Postmaster General Hitchcock, Attorney General Wickersham, United States District Attorney Wise and Postmaster Morgan, of New York. The petitioner charges that the law is unconstitutional and prays for a temporary injunction restraining its enforcement until final adjudication. It also requests that the defendants be required, by subpoena, to answer. The American Newspaper Publishers' Association is back of the action.

The petition alleges that there are upwards of 25,000 newspapers and periodicals in the country affected by the law. It charges that the law is void because it violates the Constitution of the United States and particularly the first and fifth amendments and abridges the freedom of the press. The law is characterized as of no benefit to the postoffice or any other department of the government, in as much as obedience by the periodicals and newspapers would not "aid or assist in the operation of the postoffice department or in the carrying of the mails or the regulation thereof."

In its petition the complainant announced that it will not comply with the law for the reasons given and declares that the defendants are about to enforce the law by denying the complainants the use of the mails. With reference to that portion of the law which requires that all printed matter for which there is any compensation received shall be labeled "advertisement." The petition says:

"All such matters are matters of business arrangement or of favor or otherwise between your complainants and its advertisers and such provision of the act is not necessary or proper to assist the government or any department or official thereof to carry out or perform any power or duty intrusted or granted to the United States by the several states under the Constitution or otherwise."

It is charged also that the law, if enforced, would result in the confiscation of the complainant's property without due process.

"It is not within the power of Congress," the complainant continues, "to enact said act, and it is a usurpation by Congress of powers expressly reserved to the several states, and is legislation affecting matters with which the several states of the United States alone have the right to treat."

A Jury of Noted Baseball Players.

Clerk William Costello of the Cleveland insolvency and juvenile courts has devised a new Winter employment for ballplayers. Costello announced to-day that he is to summon a jury the latter part of this week and that every member of it will be a big league ballplayer or one who has been a big leaguer. All reside in Cleveland.

This will be the venire as Costello announces it: "Rube" Marquard, New York Nationals; "Dode" Paskert, Philadelphia Nationals; William Bradley, Montreal Internationals; Jimmy Austin, St. Louis Americans; Marty Craig, Boston Americans; Napoleon Lajoie, Cleveland Americans; Steve Evans, St. Louis Nationals; Paddy Livingston, Toledo American Association; Frank and James Delehanty, Minneapolis American Association; Billy Evans, American League umpire, and Charles Smith, Chicago Nationals.

Costello says baseball players think fast and should make good jurors. Paddy Livingston made good as a juror this week.

Last Year Was a Great Cotton Year.

Statistics from Manchester, England, show that during the year ended August 31, 13,957,000 bales of American cotton were used, compared with 11,559,000 bales in the previous year. English spinners spun more cotton than in any year since the great boom of 1907.

STATUS OF THECANDIDATES

To the Taft fund total a large amount was added when the President's brother, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, told the committee that he had contributed this year for pre-convention expenses $213,592.41.

Colonel Roosevelt is still explaining, denying and accusing. Speaking in Michigan, Mr. Roosevelt alleged that while there were three tickets in the field, there were only two sides to the campaign, and that the Republicans and Democrats joined hand in the attempt to belittle the third party.

A man who cannot stand on his own record, the Bull Moose leader has devoted a great deal of his time to quoting from Mr. Wilson's labor speeches of several years ago. He declared Woodrow Wilson opposed every effective means of helping the wage-worker, and appealed to the working men and women of the country to support the Progressive party.

In the past, Colonel Roosevelt said, Governor Wilson had displayed "sullen hostility to labor." He quoted from speeches and writings of the Democratic candidate in regard to labor, and said that Governor Wilson had made a "sudden and violent retracing of his steps."

President Taft summed up the political situation, as he sees it, in a statement in which he said:

"I have every reason to be satisfied with political conditions. I have been simply overwhelmed for days past with letters and newspaper clippings, showing the trend of the tide toward the Republican party, its platform and its candidates. I have been especially gratified by the news from the Northwestern States. Chairman Hillis, of the Republican National Committee, who has been visiting the Northwest, tells me reports from all parts of those States bring most gratifying evidence of Republican confidence and activity, with earnest determination to achieve the success of Republican principles and candidates."

By Far The Shortest Electric Road.

The shortest and most exclusive electric railway in the world is being installed in the tunnel between the Capitol and the Senate Office building, and will be ready for the use of the Senators who dislike getting their feet wet when they return to their duties next December. It is a monorail system, 700 feet long. The rolling stock consists of one car, designed to carry twelve Senators and thirty-six pages.

The little car will run on a single rail below, but will be balanced by a broad rail in the roof of the tunnel, from which the power will be gathered by means of a "hinge arm."

The Boston Americans overcame the New York Nationals by a score of 4 to 3 before more than 35,000 persons in the first game of the world's series. The contest was nip-and-tuck all the way. The Giants made a thrilling rally in the ninth inning, when they nearly tied the score, but Smoky Joe Wood's bewildering speed turned two Giant batters back to the bench on strikes for the last two outs and the Red Sox carried off the honors.

"In spite of the fact that we lost the first game today I still feel confident that we will win the series," said John J. McGraw of New York. To my mind the Boston Red Sox are not within 15 per cent. as strong as the Athletics were last year. In my opinion they cannot either bat or field with the team that we met a year ago, and they do not know the same amount of baseball.

Local Option Debate in Baltimore.

Having discussed the legislative record of one Democrat and one Republican Senator the Anti-Saloon League has now challenged the entire opposition to the local option bill in Baltimore City to discuss the merits of the bill, and has proposed, in order not to take any advantage of men not used to debate, that the opponents may get together and hire the best lawyer they can find. The League serves notice unless this challenge is accepted promptly it will periodically single out men prominently identified with the opposition to the bill and call on them to make good or hire someone to do it for them. The propositions in brief are:

- (1) That the proposed bill is fair and reasonable.
- (2) That the ward feature is a proper unit.
- (3) That the people of Baltimore want the bill.
- (4) That its passage will weaken the power of the present corrupt city liquor ring.
- (5) That the bill is actually state-wide.
- (6) That the counties have a legitimate interest in passing it for Baltimore's benefit.

It is proposed that the discussion be held in the Lyric, each side to pay half of the expense and have tickets for half the house.

Paint Put-on

Think of paint put-on and not by the gallon.

A gallon of paint in the can is of no account to anybody. Put it on. Now reckon its cost and value.

The secret is: one paint goes twice as far as another. A good one goes twice as far as a bad one.

You have a job, say an average job. It'll take 10 gallons Devos and 12 or 15 or 18 or 20 of middling poor very poor and trash. You know painter's wages in your town. Put the price of a gallon of paint and the painter's day-wage together. You can, we cant.

Devos costs less than any inferior paint; there are hundreds of them.

One paint is as good as another, so long as it lasts good; one lasts months and another years; and the one that goes furthest lasts longest.

While it is yet too early in the campaign to make a reliable forecast of the probable strength of the presidential candidates with the voters of this county, it is safe to say that Taft is not losing the support of any of those who stood by him in the primaries, when he carried the county over Roosevelt by nearly 100 majority. On the contrary, some who supported the Bull Moose in that contest have declared their intention to vote for Taft and others say they are undecided, but claim to be Republicans. Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingular Hills and the Catoclin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

THE W. M. (WORST MANAGED) RAILWAY—COMMON CARRIER.

He asked for a ticket to Baltimore, and said, "Will I get there to-day?" "Not," said the agent, "if you rely on the old W. M. Railway."

There is one thing to be admired in most of the ticket agents of the W. M. (Worst Managed) Railway—they are frank, they are honest; they tell you just about what you may expect if you risk your life on their road, and, to tell the truth, they seem quite solicitous these days about all passengers who, in asking for a ticket for any point on that line, show that they are rash enough to take a long chance. They look into your eyes earnestly, almost appealingly, in fact, with a tenderness not unmingled with admiration for your nerve—with a look which seems to say, "If you are really going to make the plunge, old man, Good bye." They know that they may never see you again and that is why their big hearts go out to you as they do to all who insist on engaging in perilous pursuits or pleasures.

This much in defense of the agents. But what shall we say of the W. M. (Worst Managed) Railway itself? What, forsooth, can we say that will lighten the knock-out blows which this Company is daily administering to those who are literally forced to patronize its road?

"Common carriers," says Kent in his commentaries, "are those persons who undertake to carry goods generally, and for all persons indifferently for hire." (Vol. ii, pt. v, lect. XI, p. 464.)

According to this definition the W. M. (Worst Managed) Railway is certainly a common carrier. Indeed, we feel that we are not overstating the fact when we say that it is absolutely the commonest carrier extant. It lives up, not only to the spirit of the definition but also to the letter. "Those persons," the directors—and we are informed that they prefer to operate on the long distance plan (remaining in New York)—surely "undertake." They undertake anything and everything, and in consequence, so it is alleged, their loaded freight cars, long overdue, fill their sidings for miles, interfering with passenger traffic all along the line. And moreover, if we eliminate the "under" we find that this road is strong on the take end of it—it has been taking or has allowed to be taken from its cars anything in the freight line capable of being taken. (See Court proceedings.)

And note the word "indifferently" in the definition. Could any common carrier furnish service quite as indifferent as does the W. M. (Worst Managed) Railway?

Going further into the definition we find that a railroad is "a graded road, having one or more tracks," etc., "supported by sleepers." Following this we are forced to admit that the W. M. (Worst Managed) is unquestionably a railroad, and no one will attempt to deny that it is supported by "sleepers." We would go a step farther—even to the point of conceding that those "sleepers" are more than likely blood relatives of the celebrated "Seven Sleepers," and that these gentlemen support, maintain and operate the largest and most varied assortment of wrecking outfits, which are constantly in use, to be found on any railroad in the United States.

The is also something in the definition about "rolling stock." We know that the W. M. (Worst Managed) has a most active lot of this commodity and that it is chiefly engaged in rolling over embankments or off of bridges.

But coming down to brass tacks, where is the Public Service Commission? Is it the intention of that body to permit this W. M. (Worst Managed) to utterly ignore its patrons and to run its road on the Vanderbilt plan of "The public be damned?" The public has rights which even this champion train-wrecking road can be made to respect, and it is up to the Public Service Commission to take a hand in the proceedings, and that quickly.

JUDGE PARKER VINDICATED.

When eight years ago, Judge Alton Parker charged, in a public address in New York, that corporations were financing the Roosevelt campaign, the present Bull Moose herder, who, though accidental President as he was, still retained the congenial swagger of the "broncho buster," accused the distinguished Jurist of lying; subsequently, the investigations carried on by Attorney Charles Hughes, eventually Governor of New York and finally one of the Associate Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, substantiated the correctness of Judge Parker's charges, in the Insurance Company cases at least; for among other facts it was discovered that George Perkins, as one of the vice presidents of the New York Life Insurance Company, had diverted $40,000 of the money of that company to help swell the Roosevelt campaign fund; and now, under the investigations of the Clapp Senatorial Committee, it turns out that Judge Parker's charges were true. For, let the bland, chuckling idealist, J. Pierpont Morgan, say what he may, when he declares that in turning over his fat check for $150,000 to the treasurer of the Roosevelt campaign fund, he did so "without any expectation of any return," it was only for "the good of the people," no sane man can believe such a statement. He, Gould, Frick, Harriman and even the shrewd business man, Archibald, may have made no condition which might be twisted into the dread of reprisals if they had refused to contribute; yet who will believe that the representatives of these great and wealthy corporations subscribed the large sums which they admitted having given, spontaneously, from mere patriotic motives or, to use the reasons given by Perkins at the Hughes investigation, "to save the county from the impending disaster of Bryan's election."

And again, be it remembered, the Rough Rider, who so deftly organized the Ananias Club, did not then foresee that heavy-footed Justice would yet catch up with him, and that the engineer who sent so many whirling into the Temple of Falsehood would himself at last "be hoisted on his own petard." He knew when Harriman asked funds to carry on the New York campaign, that "he could be helped out, inasmuch as there were ample funds 'in the barrel' for the Republican national campaign"—but he never knew where the funds came from—he was too honest, of too high an ideal, to ask anyone to contribute, but it never occurred to him to ask where did all that vast sum come from. It was a matter of course that the Republican barrel should be full, honestly so, he hoped, yet full it must be, though the means by which it was filled were questionable.

Here is your "practical man of high ideals" who always endeavored to put his high ideals into practice ("he doth protest too much") who never blackmailed, never so much as insinuated that unless funds were forthcoming, reprisals would be resorted to. Oh, no, like Dom Basile in Barber of Seville, he closed his eyes, but he kept his ears agog to catch the musical jingle of the dollars.

Here then we are presented with the spectacle of Theodore Roosevelt, the understudy of Providence, the Apostle of the strenuous life, the man who does things, writing to his political manager in 1904 to receive no donations from big corporations or corporators, as being malefactors of great wealth, whereas the said manager received from them and expended something like 74 per cent. of a campaign fund of over a million dollars, all of which Theodore knew, or if he didn't know, he was, to use his own words, a fool or a crook.

Lest there might be any inconsistency in his present campaign in view of the foregoing facts, Theodore is now fighting the battles of the Lord to the accompaniment of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," with munitions and ammunition supplied chiefly by Boss Flinn, of Pittsburgh, Pa., a city ashamed, and by George W. Perkins, of the Harvester Trust, whose prosecution Theodore suspended and finally quashed.

LATEST FASHION NOTES

What Will Be Worn This Season By Those Who Wish To Be In The Swim.

The tight line around the hips and knees in coats to a straight fullness that is unpleasantly reminiscent of an ugly period in fashion has been changed. The costs are gathered to a belt at the waist and hang in folds to the knees. They are cut to a point at the back and are often covered with ornate braid.

Suits and one piece frocks are made from such material as crepe chine, crepe satin and satin itself. The cutaway coat of velvet that reaches to the ankles at the back have been introduced. It is of sapphire blue with black fur and begins its downward slope at the waist line. The width of the trail at the back narrows to eight inches. This may be worn over a very much draped black satin skirt, excessively tight at the ankles and, of course opens far around to the sides. Gowns are high at back of neck, this is decidedly new, the one that runs from the middle of the waist at the back to the very top of the neck.

A very pretty afternoon or theatre gown was shown, in biscuit colored satin with a loose blouse gathered to a deep shoulder yoke that supports a high collar which rolls to the waist. The blouse hangs to the hips at the back, is ornately belted, and has long sleeves that are draped into the shoulders so that the folds hang downward to the elbow, are caught tightly at the wrist with an ornament and flare over the hands. At the belt in front is worn the Burgundy rose.

A sumptuous frock made of white satin with huge Byzantine ornaments in which a blue velvet train is added lined with pink satin. Some evening sleeves are made of blue jet, these are new and attractive.

Another attractive ornament for dress is the rose bow. The rose or wired bow is to be worn on the skirt to catch the long draperies which fashion has decreed must go almost the full length of the dress. This is distinctly new and will probably be worn as big as a chrysanthemum or a saucer, and will be either in harmonizing or contrasting colors. Laces, chiffons, panne velvets, charmeuse, satins and zibelines will be distinctly in favor for evening wear this winter.

The trimming for hats this fall will convince many women that the ostrich plume has come to stay. The ostrich feathers will be used in a variety of ways not only to trim hats but will reappear again in the form of boas long and short, which are being worn more this year than they have been for a decade.

An attractive neck piece is made of natural ostrich feathers combined with collarette of pale satin.

President Taft Endorses Tuberculosis Day.

Cordial approval and endorsement of Tuberculosis Day, which will be observed by the churches of the country on October 27th, is expressed by President Taft in a letter to Homer Folks, of New York, President of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

President Taft, writing from Beverly, says:

"My dear Mr. Folks: 'I have your letter of September 16, and am very glad of an opportunity to testify to my belief in the importance of your campaign of education as to the means of preventing tuberculosis. You do well to enlist the active support of the churches and of all other agencies for the dissemination of information calculated to induce everyone to do his or her part toward the complete eradication of the dread disease. I hope and believe that a 'Tuberculosis Day' in the churches will be productive of great good.

"Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM H. TAFT."

From present indications, Tuberculosis Day will be observed by almost every religious denomination in the United States and not less than 50,000 sermons on tuberculosis will be preached on October 27th, or in the weeks preceding or following that date.

CURRENT COMMENT FROM LEADING JOURNALS.

"Prosperity is Here."

As The Times remarked a month ago, and as the President remarked to The Sun at Beverly, "prosperity is here." There is not the slightest doubt that either of his rivals for electoral favor would be glad to point with pride to such facts as the President recites as the result of his party's policy and his personal efforts. Never were the gross earnings of railways so large, and the earnings of the industrial show an even greater relative improvement. Never was it less true that these earnings inure to a few wealthy malefactors. The number of stockholders in only 242 corporations increased from 394,842 in 1906 to 872,393 in 1911, and almost half of them were women. The country is increasing both its exports of manufactures and its imports of materials for manufacture. There is work for 100,000 more men around Pittsburgh, and an unlimited demand for harvesters of the record crops. It is impossible to remark the magnanimity with which the President refrains from heightening his comparisons by recalling the distress of the administration of his predecessor.

But even Mr. Taft is unable to abstain from remarks based upon general principles. "Social justice" cannot be done without wealth such as is indicated above, and such conditions are not produced by attacks upon wealth. "Prosperity is the broom that sweeps our alleys and cleans our noisome hovels." Social justice is being done now as it was not done in 1907, and as it could not be done if those days of terror and distress were to be recalled by the methods of that unhappy year, whose debris it has fallen to the present President to clean up.

Social justice which shall satisfy those who have nothing is an empty aspiration; but there is a more practical reform within reach. The prosperity which is here is crippled by the obstructions between the farms of the producers and the mouths of the consumers. The railways are working harder for less profit, and they would be glad to work harder yet if their enterprise had not been chilled by unconstitutional State laws, and by Federal discouragement. The Treasury is stuffed with idle gold, while credit is reduced by lack of banking facilities, which remain as barbaric as they were in 1907. Deserving borrowers are compelled to sell out in order that the means may be provided for feeding and clothing the country. Not one of the candidates shows suitable appreciation of the frightful social injustice of these conditions, and not one of them proposes suitable remedies. The cry for more laws to produce happiness, although the shadow on present happiness is produced by laws which also had happiness and prosperity for their aims. Could there be clearer demonstration that the people make and mar prosperity, and that the effect of laws of any sort is at best less than promised, and often the contrary of the promise?

For example, what folly it is to promise cheaper living and higher wages by smashing the trusts when fuel, light, oil, sugar, iron, and other trusted products are all lower than at times within the past decade, and such untrusted products as corn, cotton, wheat are all higher. As the President says, why disturb the prosperity which is here by promises of rainbows by means not adapted to produce the results, however alluring to the unthinking and the credulous? The indifference of the electorate is such as never before was known. It is a sure sign that the people who are being treated as fools are not such fools as they have been taken for. The country knows that the Progressive campaign is one of humbug. People are not so badly off as they are told, and they know it. They never can be so happy as the candidates are promising, and they know that too. They have experienced the effects of legislation, and they have their own ideas of what laws can do for them. They are busy about their own business, and they are willing that the political show should proceed for their amusement. The idea that they are going to give any license for ripping up present conditions is absurd. If it were not absurd the campaign would wear a different aspect.—N. Y. Times.

System, Negligence, or Both?

The assassination of Herman Rosenthal, as he was about to give evidence to District Attorney Whitman against the police partnership with crime, was not a coincidence. Rosenthal was murdered "to stop his mouth." The public believes that the murder was inspired by some men in the police department who wanted to protect themselves from exposure. Rosenthal was to expose Becker. Rosenthal was assassinated. "Big Jack" Zelig was to give testimony that might send Becker to the electric chair. And "Big Jack" Zelig did not live to corroborate the story that Lieut. Becker had procured the murder of Herman Rosenthal by threatening to send gunmen to the penitentiary unless they did Rosenthal to death.

The story of a personal grudge between the murderers and District Attorney Whitman's chief witness does not satisfy. Nearly every one will conclude that Zelig was not killed because he had robbed a scamp of $18. Zelig, who always carried $400 or $500 and turned up at the Morgue with only $2 in his pocket, had earned the hatred of the "gang." Like Rosenthal, he had "squealed."

The police showed unusual alertness in the prompt capture of the murderer, but the crime, whoever was responsible for it, exhibits the contempt in which assassins hold the police in New York City. It was committed in the boldest and most open manner. A community with no police protection at all could not suffer from more high-handed crime than does New York. The murderer used a policeman's revolver. The officer to whom it belongs says that he lost it a year and a half ago and has had none since. Has not the department any means of informing itself whether the officers are properly equipped or not? Is not an officer required to show his revolver daily to his superiors?

If the State's witnesses are not safe, might not the district attorney be the next target for the "system's" assassins? If the gunmen go to the very threshold of the court room, what is to prevent the "system" from killing the judge, if his rulings are not satisfactory?—Washington Herald.

Let it not be forgotten that Woodrow Wilson's political career has been distinguished from its start by war on bossism. He early invited the relentless hostility of Smith, the most powerful Democratic politician of New Jersey. For that the people of that State love their governor. During his official life Governor Wilson has dethroned the machines of two parties—for Republican and Democratic bosses understood each other and were subservient to great corporate interests—and set the government of New Jersey free to serve the people. It was a consummation that men of little faith never expected to see consummated, but courageous leadership brought it about. This is the man and the candidate whom the aspirant for a third term declares would be subservient to the bosses, and so must not be voted for by genuine progressives. Wilson never truckled to them; and Roosevelt did—that's all; and it is likely to prove a sufficient warrant to the voters of the United States.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Can anybody imagine William H. Taft, while he was running for the presidency, writing from the White House such subtle and at the same time such purposeful letters, calculated to wring money from a stone as were written to the late Mr. E. H. Harriman in 1904? Can anybody imagine William McKinley doing it, or Grover Cleveland, Chester A. Arthur, James A. Garfield, Rutherford B. Hayes or Ulysses S. Grant?

Money was needed in the presidential canvass. Mr. Harriman had plenty of it. If he was an "undesirable citizen" the President knew it. His character and his methods in his great enterprises were well known.—N. Y. Herald.

Upon only one point will we add a comment. It is said that Roosevelt made no promises. There was no bargain. But by the men with whom he was dealing this was not thought necessary. Their understandings in such affairs were always tacit. If a man took their money, they expected him to act accordingly. And this must have been perfectly well known to Roosevelt. Yet he took the money and then did not live up to the implied agreement. He sought their help and then sold them out. This is what they have consistently said ever since, and it is an interpretation which the ugly facts bear with ease.—N. Y. Post.

Harriman had many irons in the fire, and the President wanted another certificate of election. They dealt with each other after the fashion of "practical men," who have a habit of making one hand wash the other and both the face. In short, an aeroplane has volplaned. From a rarified atmosphere descent has been sudden. Indeed, violent contact with the earth appears to be imminent.—Brooklyn Eagle.

It is not too much to say, indeed, that in these few brief weeks Gov. Wilson has given a new tone to our public life. He has never lost his temper, never departed from principles to personalities, never assumed infallibility, never disputed the right of any man to differ with him. Even in defeat there would be no bitterness for such a man.—Providence Journal.

Mr. Taft's Surroundings.

Mr. Taft lives in an atmosphere of law-made prosperity. He measures conditions by the millions piled up through privilege. He is surrounded and guided by the men who fatten on Government favor.

He is blind to the necessities, the struggles and the sufferings of the common people.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Campaign Fake is Exposed.

Republican protectionists, who every presidential year work day and night to create the impression that a Democratic tariff-reform victory will mean business depression, are put to route this year by an analysis of export and import figures for merchandise issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

These figures show that despite the fact that this is a presidential year the export and import business is larger for the year ended August 31, 1912, than any corresponding year in the last six years. Business, instead of becoming stagnant in view of the prospective election of Woodrow Wilson on a tariff-reform platform, is gaining by leaps and bounds. The month of August, 1912, itself shows a distinct gain over July and June and ranks even with May of the same year.

For the year ending August 31, 1912,
the imports of merchandise were $1,- 712,847,375; for the corresponding month of 1911 they were $1,515,551,796; for 1910, $1,583,038,894; for 1908, $1,121,- 532,885. The exports of merchandise for the corresponding month of 1912 were $2,249,346,490; for 1911, $2,071,- 508,476; for 1910, $1,775,189,745, and 1909, $1,818,595,995.

These figures tend to show that foreigners who are doing business with American merchants, and the American manufacturers who are shipping goods abroad are not worried by the Republican cry of "hard times," which the protectionists are raising as the probability of Wilson's election becomes greater. Business is going on as usual.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Curtis has given out a statement in which he says the custom revenues are also growing by leaps and bounds and that the prospect of a deficit in the government treasury, which was anticipated last January, is nowhere in sight at this time. He says this presidential year is exceptional in that the campaign has not depressed business.—
Rockville Sentinel.

Give It a Fair Trial.

We suggest that before any opposition is registered to the parcels posts system which is to be put in operation on January 1st, 1913, we all wait and
give it a fair trial.

The law is passed and the plan is to be tried. That is settled, and further discussion at this time as to the merits and demerits is useless and out of place.

We have heard some opposition to it and in the meeting held here yesterday, there were a few who could see no good in it.

Our opinion is, that while at first it may work a hardship on some few, in a short time all will adapt themselves to the new order and the system will be of incalculable benefit to all. Those who look back to the time of the establishment of the rural free delivery will recall the earnest protest made against it by many of our people, but where is the man to-day that would want to do without it?—Westminster Times.

The voters of the Sixth Maryland
district, irrespective of party affiliation are going to stand by David J. Lewis in his congressional contest for the reason that he has done more for the people of his district than any congressman in many years and has faithfully represented every part of the territory.
The matter of the party affiliation or other creed of his constituents, they always got "a square deal" at his hands when he could serve them. If faithfulness and fidelity to official duty counts for anything, no man within the district can accuse "Davy" Lewis of shirking and he never complained of his official duties during his entire service. He stands today just where he stood before his election two years ago as the servant of the people and his return to the halls of congress for a second term will be a reward that he is justly and honorably entitled to.—Garrett Journal.

Years in which a President is elected have come to be regarded as lean years for industry and commerce. Business generally sags while the politicians hold the center of the stage, so those in all lines of trade and manufacture have come to expect dullness at that time.
The world of trade is therefore viewing
the present situation with astonishment, for the year 1912 is a gratifying exception to the accepted rule. Conditions of manufacture and industry promise to make this presidential year almost,
if not quite, unprecedented. Manufacturing concerns, including some of the very largest corporations, are generally loaded up with orders. Some of them now have enough work on hand to keep them running to capacity for six months or a year. The activity in almost every line is not the least remarkable feature of this remarkable presidential campaign.—Cumberland Daily News.

Perfume is now injected by ultra-

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

MT. ST. MARY'S WILL PLAY GETTYSBURG THURSDAY 17th

The Local Boys Have Been Getting Ready For Their Old Time Rivals And a Good, Stiff Game May Be Expected.

The local admirers of foot ball will receive a real treat next Thursday when Gettysburg will be the guests of Mt. St. Mary's on Echo field. This is the first time in a great many years that these two institutions have met on the gridiron, and as the rivalry in former years is well remembered there is every reason to feel that the largest crowd in years will be present. This game as arranged on the schedule was to be played on Saturday, October 19, but as the National Alumni banquet of the Mountaineers will take place on Wednesday, through the kindness of the Gettysburg management the game was changed to Thursday so as to give the old "grads" a chance to see their Alma Mater in action.

Hard work has been the program all week at the Mount and scrimmage has been indulged in every day. The work in the Georgetown game was very satisfactory to Coach Thompson although he saw many faults and these he has been trying to overcome this past week. One great benefit derived from the Georgetown game was that the new men especially gained a great deal of experience and it has been shown very prominently in all the work outs of the past week. Some few changes have been made since the last game and it looks now as though the Mountaineers will have a pretty fast aggregation to meet their old time rivals next week.

McHale who has been doing powerful work at tackle was put in the back field and Carroll of the last year string sent into McHale's vacancy. Loughran a last year's half back returned to college Tuesday and is working hard to regain his old position. The defensive work which has been a source of worry has been picking up gradually and the new men, McManus, Dwyer and Wheatle have shown increased form and should prove a tower of strength in the line. The back field is causing little difficulty as they are without a doubt the fastest set to have ever represented the Mount. Both the quarter backs McManus, a brother of the big guard, and Quinn, use great head work in running the team. They are both quick in finding out the weak spots of their opponents defense and plug the plays accordingly. With McHale, Flannery, Sheridan, Loughran, Mahoney and Letter in the back field the plucky little quarter backs have strong men to call upon to deliver the plays. The game with Gettysburg will start at 3 o'clock. Coach Thompson and Coach Phillip of Gettysburg were in consultation yesterday in regard to officials and although the name of the men selected will not be given until the day of the game, they will be men of ability so that the game will be run along smoothly.

The Annual High School Walk.

On Thursday Oct. 3, with a clear sky and all conditions favorable for an outdoor holiday, the students of the Emmitsburg High School took their annual walk. The clearness of the day suggested a trip to Indian-lookout on Carver's Knob. The party left at 1 o'clock and went by the way of the College and past the Grotto and reached the heights by 2:30 where about an hour was spent on the rock, viewing the picturesque landscape.

The return trip was made by the "Gravel Path" a very interesting scene of nature, and by 4 o'clock, town was reached. That night very little was seen of the students all feeling tired and weary from the climb.

Youthful vandals have so damaged the monument to the forefathers at Plymouth, Mass., that it is thought that the memorial will have to be razed in order to make repairs.

Mr. Joseph Rosensteel was at the York Fair this week exhibiting the Acetylene Generator made by the Emmitsburg Generator Company.

The Ricé Brothers, owners of the mountain orchard farm where Victor E. Kowe formerly lived, shipped last week a carload of the finest potatoes seen in this locality for many a day. Northern Star is the variety and for size weight and appearance this potato is unusual. Three specimens, taken at random from the shipment, weighed 5 pounds, the largest measuring 9½ inches in length and the smallest 8¼ inches.

More broom corn is being grown near here than ever before and of a fine variety, too. None has been seen, however, equal to a stalk left at THE CHRONICLE office this week by Mr. Charles P. Keepers. It measures 12 ft. 11 in. in length and has a brush 25 in. in length. This stalk is from a half acre of broom corn raised this season by Mr. Keepers.

The Emmitt Cornet Band, the musical organization of which all Emmitsburgians are justly proud delighted a big audience on the Square Friday night with a concert that was greatly enjoyed by all who heard it. The repertoire was lengthy, well chosen and splendidly rendered and it is the consensus of opinion of the townspeople that never before had the Band appeared to better advantage and that it should repeat the concert at an early date.

Work on the sewerage system on the South side of Main street is progressing steadily and it is expected that it will be completed very shortly.

Mr. Charles Landers has improved his property on East Main street by a whole glass door. This adds much to the appearance of his property.

On Sunday morning about two o'clock Mrs. Elmer Lingg was aroused by a noise on the kitchen roof which is of tin. Thinking it was raining she got up and looked out and to her surprise saw a man crawling on his hands and knees toward her window. She immediately calling her uncle Mr. George Rider, who also got up and was in time to see a man jump from the roof and hurry down the garden walk toward the barn. Mrs. Lingg was alone at the time, her husband being in Hagerstown.

The corporation has been enriched by several fines this week.

A Small Fortune for One Sable Coat.

Thirty-five thousand dollars for a fur coat! This is the sum a New York belle is to pay for one garment which she will wear this season. One hundred and three imperial Russian sables had to be pieced together to make this coat which is 57 inches long and only weighs seven pounds. The color is rich brown with a sprinkling of white-tipped hairs, so matched as to give the appearance of a one-piece garment.

COCKRAN HAS NO FRIENDS IN THE OLD GUARD IN NEW YORK

The "Modern Pericles," Who Debated With Rayner, Turned His Face On Man Who Made Him, Says One-Time Intimate.

To those who knew him in the early days—knew him intimately as well as all that he stood for—Bourke Cockran like the man without a country, is a man without a party.

Dick Croker, erstwhile Tammany leader, took Cockran, so one of the latter's intimates says, when Cockran was raw material, so to speak, and shaped him into something capable of being a success.

Usually, the one who is given the start, who succeeds because the other helps him, shows gratitude to that helper. Not so Bourke Cockran, so his friend avers. Fortune smiled upon him and he changed, and ingratitude, like "a lump of soot, which falling into the dish of friendship, destroys its flavor" directed his course away from those on whom he once relied.

One of the old Tammany men who was in Baltimore this week recounted to a reporter of the American how he used to lend "small coin" to Cockran, the "modern Pericles."

"Cockran," said this man, "has no friends among the old guard politicians of New York. As soon as Dick Croker set him on his feet and gave him a chance for a great public career he got proud and scornful of his benefactor, and then and there revealed the worst side of human nature—ingratitude. He was never a man to tie to, never a man you would want to cross the plains with for there is a blank in his makeup where there should be constancy and fidelity."

"The old crowd that knows him like a book is not surprised at his espousal of the Roosevelt cause. No other party would have him; and, likewise, it is safe to copper any of his political investments. There is no better augury of Roosevelt's defeat than to see Bourke Cockran enlisted under the Bull Moose flag."

The Inn of the Bear in Rome to Go.

The old Inn of the Bear, a building that has linked "true Rome" with the Rome of to-day, is about to be destroyed, according to dispatches from the ancient city. This old hostelry on the banks of the Tiber, a jewel of mediaeval architecture, is to make way for a new structure of Modern style. Here it was that Rabelais and Montaigne and other distinguished men stayed, and there is even a tradition that Dante lodged there.

All grades of refined sugar were reduced five cents a hundred pounds at New York October 8.

ON THE SQUARE

The Cause Of the Spat

By RUTH GRAHAM

"I have made up my mind to leave you," said the wife to her husband.

"On what ground?"

"Incompatibility."

"Do you mean that I am incompatible with you or you with me?"

"I mean that you are incompatible with me."

"Will you make that a plea for divorce?"

"I shall not apply for a divorce. Do you suppose that I am going to permit
you after ruining my life to walk off with some other woman?"

"What am I to do?"

"Do what you like, only you will not be free to supply the place which you asked me to occupy and which I accepted in good faith."

"Well, then, I shall go to housekeeping. This boarding is in a measure accountable for my irritation."

"My irritation! I like that! But isn't your going to housekeeping locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen?"

"I think it rather a case of runaway.
You have taken the bit in your teeth and are kicking the dashboard to pieces."

"Do you consider that a proper simile
to apply to your wife?"

"When are you going to leave?"

"When I get ready."

"I have the same right. I shall leave when I get ready, and I shall be ready as soon as I can find a house. Wait a minute."

He stepped to the telephone and asked a real estate agent if the house offered a week before was still unrented,
the wife listening to one-half the dialogue.

"All right," he said, hanging up the receiver. "I shall be ready with my part of the separation tomorrow. I have taken that house we were offered last week."

"Who is to keep house for you?"

"A housekeeper."

"What housekeeper?"

"Why should that concern you since you have decided to leave me?"

"It concerns me very much. I don't propose people shall say that I have been turned out to make room for another."

"I shall not discuss that matter with you now. I'm going around to the house to have a look at it."

"I think I'll go with you."

"Very well; if you insist, come on."

They walked past the agent's, got the key and went to the house. Neither spoke a word on the way. The house was furnished. The wife did the talking as to the appointments.

"The sitting room is attractive," she said, "and the little parlor on the other side of the hall is plenty large enough for formal visits. The butler's pantry is nice too. What a roomy kitchen! And the last occupant has left it neat as a pin. Every pot shines.
The upstairs, too, is light and roomy.
I always did like these brass bedsteads. They're so bright and cheerful looking. What a lovely bathroom—tiled all through and not a bit of that elegant porcelain chipped! These bedrooms are all beautifully furnished, and the rugs are not a bit worn. And the hardwood floors—so easy to keep clean!
The outlook from the front bedroom is delightful. I shall have it for my own."

"What's that?"

"I mean I would occupy it if I had not been forced"—tremulously—"by your ill treatment to leave you."

"This will be my housekeeper's room."

"Your housekeeper! Her room should be in the garret."

"It shall be right here."

"Are you going to have your housekeeper roomed better than your wife?"

"My wife makes her own bed, and I suppose she must lie in it."

"H'm. Perhaps, now, you will tell me who is to be your housekeeper."

"Don't bother about whom I select to take care of the premises. I shall have a woman older than myself so that persons will not talk about me."

"Whom, for instance?"

"Well, I think the Widow Scott would like the position."

"The Widow Scott! Well, I declare!"

"What's the matter with her?"

"I wish you to distinctly understand that I don't propose to turn you over to any such person."

"Suppose you name some one."

"To occupy this room?"

"Of course."

"No one occupies this room but me."

"But how can you occupy it if you are going to leave me?"

"Since you've taken this house and it looks so nice and cozy and comfortable, with such pretty furniture and soft rugs and hardwood floors and tiled bathroom—"

"Are you making an inventory?"

"Don't be silly—and lovely curtains, and since I like the outlook from that window so well and would love to exchange that dirty one at the boarding house for it. I have decided to stand your harshness awhile longer."

He put his arm about her. There was no fight left in her. It had vanished.

"I couldn't drive you away with a cat-o'-nine-tails," he said.

"Oh, how happy we shall be here!"
throwing her arm about his neck.

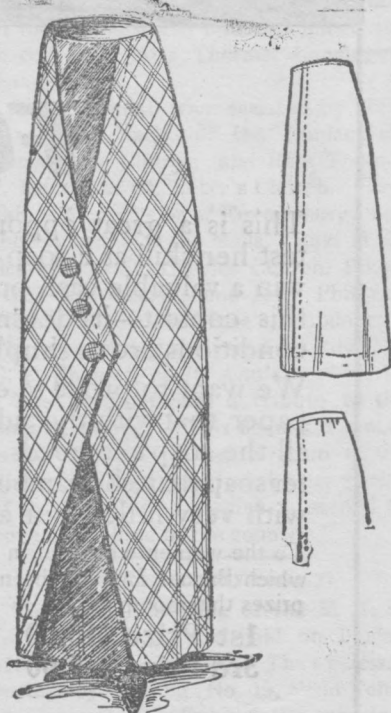

"Yes, and we'll do no more boarding.
It will ruin any couple that ever lived if kept up long enough. We will dine under our own roof-tree in future. If the house is no better than a chicken coop. This one is for sale as it stands, and I shall buy it."

Velvet Coats to Be Much Worn For

A peculiarity of some of the new

they are quite short in front and reach almost to the hem of the skirt in the back.

MODISTIC HINTS.

Milady Will Have Dainty Effects in Shoes This Season.

The new boots for fall have patent leather or dull kid vamps and buttoned tops of dull kid, ox or cloth. The very aristocratic boot is as long and slender in line as it can be and fits its wearer daintily. Anything like a stubby effect is considered cheap and common,
and the slender aristocratic foot has
the day.

quisette, are a pleasant change for autumn.

The fall tailored suit has a vest, and in many models this vest is of white satin.

In woolen stuffs contrasting or striped effects are new.

The peplum blouse is an exceedingly smart one this season. This one gives becoming lines, being made with a panel effect at the front. This panel is excellent for contrasting material.
Round necks and elbow sleeves are still favorites for indoor wear.
