President Makes Plea For Foreign Policies

WANTS A BROADER DIPLOMACY

Reviews His Administration.—A Note of Warning Sounded to European Powers.—Would Eliminate Revolutions in Latin America.

Serving notice upon the country and to the world at large that the United States now stands full grown as a peer of the greatest nations and that the Government must be prepared for the new era in international life which will come with the opening of the Panama Canal, President Taft, in the annual message which he sent to both houses of Congress on Tuesday, deals entirely with foreign relations.

Some of the salient points made in this, President Taft's last message, are as follows:

The President declares that the fundamental foreign policies of the United States should be raised high above partisanship and should be wholly dissociated from differences as to domestic policy.

He maintains that the American Government should present a united front to the world in its foreign affairs.

The reorganization of the State Department is pointed to as a great step forward in making the diplomatic machinery more effective.

The recommendations for legislation, making permanent the merit system in the diplomatic and consular services are renewed.

Government-owned buildings for residences and offices of American diplomatic are urged, the President also taking the view that the salary appropriations should be placed upon a better basis.

A strong defense of "dollar diplomacy" is made, and in this connection various important and far-reaching results are claimed for the new policy.

$200,000,000 For Pensions.

Appropriations of nearly $200,000,000 for pensions to veterans of American wars will be necessary at the short session of Congress. The unusual sum, exceeding all appropriations of former years, will be necessary to make up a deficit of nearly $20,000,000 resulting from the increase of pensions under the Sherwood law of last Summer and the proportionate increase of the general pension budget occasioned by this act.

Estimates secured by members of Congress indicate that the regular Pension bill probably will carry about $175,000,000. This in itself will be a record-breaking total, as the Sherwood law materially increased many pensions. It has not yet been determined whether the deficit of approximately $20,000,000 will be added to the regular appropriation bill or put into some other measure. The Pension Bureau has enough money for the present, but will run short between March 4 and July 1, when the new fiscal year begins, unless it gets the extra $20,000,000.

Will Resort To Prize Ring For Funds.

A. J. Drexel Biddle, millionaire Philadelphia society leader and amateur heavy-weight boxer, is contemplating spreading his Bible classes to New York City.

By way of financing the movement, Mr. Biddle proposes to hold one of his famous combined boxing and musical entertainments, at which he will box first with Charles Delmores, the well-known French tenor, of the Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company, who is also an expert with the gloves. Both men weigh close to 190 pounds, and are always in the pink of condition.

"Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, erstwhile aspirant for the professional heavy-weight championship, and Mr. Biddle's sparing partner, will take up where Delmores leaves off. Several other bouts are to be staged.

By way of variety Mr. Biddle and Mr. Delmores will sing. Several other singers will be engaged for the occasion. Just who they are is not yet known, but it is said that they will be recruited from the Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company. According to present plans the affair will be held at either the Hotel Astor or the Waldorf. The date is likewise held in abeyance.

S. Ebara, for some time the floor leader of the dominant party of the House of Commons in Japan, is the first Christian in the island empire to be promoted to the House of Peers.

R. R. CONTROL ILLEGAL

Union Pacific Holdings in Violation of Law

SO DECREES U. S. SUPREME COURT

Stock in Southern Pacific to be Disposed Of.—Must Submit Dissolution Plan to Law Body.

By a decision handed down by the United States Supreme Court, the union that has existed for several years between the Union Pacific Railroad as controlling factor of the Southern Pacific, through the ownership of the former of $126,650,000 of the common stock of the latter, is declared illegal, a violation of the Sherman act, and a decree will issue ordering the Union Pacific to be eliminated as a factor in Southern Pacific matters.

The Supreme Court declares also that the evening-up process, the liquidation of the holdings of Union Pacific in Southern Pacific, must be complete, and must have its approval.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company operates 9,947 miles of lines, from New Orleans and Galveston to San Francisco and Portland, Ore.

The court holds that the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific were competing roads before the merger, and that as such the merger was illegal.

In handing down this decision the court completely overrules the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Utah, which dismissed the matter and sanctioned the merger, the vote being two to one.

The Union Pacific cannot vote its holdings at Southern Pacific meetings, nor can it receive dividends on the stock it owns, except to a receiver, who shall collect and hold dividends until the case is disposed of.

Not only did the case involve the right of the Union Pacific to dominate the Southern Pacific, but it involved friendly relations between the Salt Lake (Atcnison, later abandoned) and Northern Pacific, through purchases of stock in these companies. The court made no changes in these latter relations, simply splitting wide open the merger of the two lines.

REV. CHAUNCEY J. HAWKINS ADVERTISES FOR NURSE GIRL

Has Been Forced to Give Up Famous Bear Blitzen on Account of Indignant Nurse Girls.

Last week's issue of the CHRONICLE contained an article about the famous bear Blitzen who has acted as nurse maid and playmate to the four-year-old son of Rev. Chauncey J. Hawkins, of Jamaica Plain.

Dr. Hawkins has been forced to give up his bear to the Franklin Park Zoo and advertizes for a real nurse girl. From all over the country came letters of protest from indignant nurse girls.

A Worcester nurse girl wrote: "I think this thing ought to be taken up by the I. W. W. The idea of your introducing animals into competition with we poor girls. It is the nerviest thing I have read about in all my life. I am going to write to Ettor and see what can be done about it."

A New York girl thus objected: "Permit me to say that I consider your solution of the nurse girl problem absolutely foolhardy, and for you to allow such stuff to be printed is an insult to our profession, being a real live up-to-date nurse myself."

Fire Destroys Race Track Stables.

Fire destroyed about 75 of the race track stables at the Rockville fair grounds, entailing a loss of about $2,000, well covered by insurance. The race mare, Miss Flinch, belonging to C. C. Fawcett, of Montgomery county, was probably fatally injured. The animal's head was badly burned, and pneumonia developed. The mare's keeper, Alexander Folk, had a close shave. He was forced to leave the stable he occupied as a sleeping place in his light clothes and lost all his outer clothing and belongings.

A bucket brigade prevented the flames from reaching other buildings on the grounds. The volunteer fire company did good work and succeeded in saving as many stables as were burned.

Ear Rings on French Poodle.

About the latest thing in dog fashion reached New York last week by way of Ithaca. It was first noticed in the lobby of the Knickerbocker Hotel. Those who were sitting about at that hour seen a black French poodle pass, lead by a handsomely dressed woman. From the dog's ears hung earrings of sapphires set in gold. The owner of the dog was said to be a Mrs. Henderson, of Ithaca.

Code dispatches received from St. Petersburg say that the Czarina attempted to commit suicide on Wednesday after being informed by court physicians that there was no hope for the complete recovery of Grand Duke Alexis, the young Czarévitch.

Cable messages from Peking, China, announce the engagement of Miss Louise Warfield, daughter of former Governor Warfield, and one of the best-known girls in Baltimore society, to Count C. Ledochowski, a member of the Polish nobility. The announcement caused much surprise among Miss Warfield's many Baltimore friends.

Four masked yeggmen held up two clerks in the Canadian Northern Railway freight offices at Edmonton. They blew the safe, securing several thousand dollars.

Mrs. Anne Elizabeth Magill, who is in her one hundred and fifth year, and who six weeks ago was reported to be dying insisted that she participate in Thanksgiving festivities at her home, 3059 North Sixteenth street, Philadelphia. A number of relatives and friends had gathered, and one was about to go to her apartment and inquire when the remarkable woman could receive them. Before the messenger had reached the top of the stairs, Mrs. Magill had left her room.

Congressman Frank P. Woods, of the Tenth Iowa district, is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

Pensions for all future Presidents of the United States at a rate of $2,000 a month; their widows at the rate of $1,000 a month, and all minor children, in case their parents are dead, at $200 a month, were recommended in a bill introduced by Representative DeForest (Dem., N. Y.). He also proposed a Constitutional amendment fixing the President's term at six years and making him ineligible for re-election.

There are indications that the Democrats in Congress—particularly in the Senate, will eagerly seize upon the war President Taft has declared against Roosevelt supporters in office as a pretext for holding up nominations and saving vacant Federal offices for Democratic appointments after Governor Wilson's inauguration.

CONGRESS CONVENES

Lively Scenes Mark Opening In House

ADJOURN EARLY OUT OF RESPECT

Democrats Are Jubilant.—New Members Qualify.—President Taft's Message Read to Both Houses.

The Sixty-second Congress turned in to the home stretch on Monday. At noon in the Senate, President Pro Tempore Bacon safely brought that already orderly body to order, with a few light taps from an ivory gavel head. At the same time, in the House, Speaker Clark banged noisily on a brand new sounding board with a husky mallet, and informed his colleagues that a suspension of their jollification was in order. The third and last session of the present Congress was under way.

In the two Houses the scenes were as different as the natural feelings of the members would justify. The dominant party in the House congratulated itself on becoming a component part of a politically uniform administration. The Republican party in the Senate, besides regretting the death of two of its most picturesque leaders, the late Vice President and the senior Senator from Idaho, faced the realization that they were preparing for the final period of a domination which has been unbroken for sixteen years.

The scenes in the Senate were more solemn even than usual. Added to gloom caused by vacant chairs of the Vice President and Senators Heyburn of Idaho and Rayner of Maryland, was the general depression among the Republicans over the fact that they would soon be called upon to hand the control of the Senate over to the Democrats. A number of the Republican lame ducks—the venerable Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois, Charles Curtis of Kansas, and others wandered about and greeted their old colleagues, but there seemed to be little joy in the air.

The proceedings in both houses were brief, new Representatives being sworn in and feeling references made to members who have died since the last session, and adjournment being taken as a mark of respect.

On Tuesday, President Taft's annual message was sent to both houses. It consisted mainly in a review of American foreign relations and urged that the fundamental foreign policies of the nation be raised above the conflict of partisanship. The same day, William P. Jackson, of Maryland, was sworn in as a member of the Senate.

DAVID J. LEWIS QUILTS LAW PRACTICE AT CUMBERLAND

Cannot Serve Two Masters Says Congressman Lewis, Who Was Re-Elected in November.

Congressman David J. Lewis has abandoned his law practice and sold his home in Cumberland and left for Washington. Mr. Lewis says he cannot serve two masters. He has received many applications from persons desiring appointment to office, but he has resolved not to take up any applications until within one month of the time the appointments would be made.

It will be remembered that in the November election Mr. Lewis won by an overwhelming majority which shows that the people of the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland appreciate what he did for them during his former term.

To Rehabilitate the G. O. P.

As a sequel to the recent conference between President Taft and William Barnes, Jr., it is announced that a still more imposing gathering will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York, on December 14. With President Taft this time are to be Senators Root, Lodge, Burton and Crane; President Hadley, of Yale; President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia; Harry New, of Indiana; Seth Low, of New York, and others. They are to devise a program for the rehabilitation of the Republican party, reduced by their policies to its present lamentable condition.

It will consist of thirty group buildings, eighteen of which have already been finished, all planned according to the latest ideas of hospital construction. MAY POSTPONE CELEBRATION

WILSON FAVORS PLAN

President-Elect Will Take Oath on March 4

PROPOSAL UPSETS WASHINGTON

Formal Ceremonies That Mark The Inauguration of The President May Be Postponed Until Latter Part of April.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson is willing to take the oath of office as President of the United States without ostentation March 4, and that the formal ceremonies that every fourth year attract thousands of citizens to Washington be postponed until the last Thursday in April. To that extent he has endorsed the propaganda in favor of a later inauguration, which has been advocated in and out of Congress in order that the event might be conducted at a time when the weather usually is propitious at the national capital.

Many persons have urged the President-elect to sanction a postponement of the inaugural ceremonies without realization that this cannot be done without an act of Congress and that it is impossible now to change the forthcoming ceremony so far as the taking of oath is concerned. Mr. Wilson's statement, however, indicates his sympathy with the later inauguration movement and implies that he will gladly assent to a delay of the show features of the event, if an agreement to this end can be reached.

Washington does not know whether or not it favors the suggestion for the postponement until April of the inauguration pageant that has so frequently proceeded through snow and slush from the Capitol to the White House. Plans have proceeded under the expectation that March 4 would witness all of the inaugural ceremonies connected with the assumption of power by the Democratic President; but business men and officials are considering the suggestions mentioned in dispatches from Bermuda to see whether it is practicable and possible to make the change.

Justine Masson Weighed 780 Pounds.

No ordinary room was strong enough to contain and restrain the massive bulk of Justine Masson, the largest woman in the world, who died in Montreal in a circular house specially constructed for her at the insane asylum. She weighed 780 pounds.

The only person that is known to have exceeded her in size was Chauncey Morlan, 853 pounds, who died on May 28 last at Elkwood, Ind.

Miss Alpine Blitch, who was on exhibition last summer at Coney Island, weighed 650 pounds.

When Justine Masson was taken to the asylum several months ago she grew violent and smashed her way through the walls of the ward. Fearing that, with her Samson-like strength, she would pull down the building in one of her spells of anger the officials built a circular house outside the main structure. No matter how she raged she merely rolled round and round and there were no corners or flat surfaces to give way.

A special built coffin was necessary to inter the remains. No undertaker in Montreal would risk his hearse with the big woman's body, so it was removed from the institution in an express truck.

Discovery of Mongolian Remains.

A sensation has been created in British scientific circles by advices received from Sir Martin Conway, Prof. William Niven, and Senor Ramon Mena of the discovery of absolute Mongolian remains only a couple of hours' walk from the City of Mexico, thereby confirming the hypothesis that has long been held that the most ancient civilization of Mexico and Peru preceding that of the Toltecs and the Aztecs was of Mongolian origin.

Close to and partly beneath the ruins of the ancient city of Teotihuacan, about nineteen miles northeast of the City of Mexico, the scientists uncovered the still more ancient city of Otumba, which flourished with a wondrous civilization centuries before the Aztecs or Toltecs rose to power, possibly even before Babylon and Nineveh swayed the destinies of Western Asia.

According to estimates which have been made, covering approximately the past 12 months, the motor omnibus in London has made a phenomenal advance, while the street-car systems have declined.

THE RAISING OF CATTLE AND OTHER LIVE STOCK IS WANING

Cattle Decreased More Than 2,000,000 Head In Texas, While The Population Increased 1,000,000.

The raising of cattle and other live stock, which was for many years the chief industry in Texas, is waning.

The Texas Welfare Commission has found that in the last decade the supply of cattle in Texas decreased more than 2,000,000 head, while in the same period the population of the State increased nearly 1,000,000.

There also has been a heavy decline in the number of sheep in Texas, and the State has barely held its own in the number of hogs. The Welfare Commission believes "there is no valid reason why there should be a pound of meat shipped into Texas." Nevertheless Texas is importing $52,000,000 worth of meats annually, and the packing houses are showing a decrease in the number of hogs handled. The commission is urging the farmers of Texas to raise more livestock; to improve the breeds and grades to best possible standard; to build silos for the better feeding and finishing of live stock for the markets, and to discontinue the wholesale marketing of calves.

LAST MESSAGE IS READ

The relation with China and with the Central and South American republics are discussed in a tone of self-satisfaction, and Secretary Knox's tour of good will comes in for congratulatory comment.

With reference to Nicaragua, the President expresses the belief that "the terrible events recorded there during the revolution of the past summer might have been averted had the State Department, through approval of the loan convention by the Senate, been permitted to carry its well-developed policy of encouraging the extending of financial aid to weak Central American states."

The message states that neutrality has been observed toward Mexico as well as in Turkey.

The increase in foreign trade is credited to the new diplomacy, and in this connection Taft asks for authority to apply graded duties rather than the maximum rates in return for tariff discrimination against the United States.

The plan of agricultural credits before explained is again indorsed.

The claims and fisheries arbitration with Great Britain is commented on.

The opening of the Panama Canal is pointed out as creating new world-wide conditions which this country must prepare to meet.

Why Buy Red Cross Seals.

Why you should buy Red Cross Christmas Seals, may be answered most effectively in the words of a twelve-year-old boy in the Duluth (Minn.) schools, who gave the following as his reason in a composition on this subject:

"The reason I put Red Cross Seals on my Christmas gifts is because every seal I use counts one cent toward stamping out tuberculosis in the city and for the maintenance of hospitals for that purpose. The seals are also used to raise funds to teach people the value of fresh air. Another reason I buy them is because my father died of tuberculosis and I buy them so that other little boys and girls won't lose their father as I did. Another reason is that if I am ever threatened with tuberculosis the doctors will have a fund to try to prevent it."

Daddy's Bedtime Story

When the Sandman Comes to See The Children

JACK and Evelyn were hoping that the sandman would come around early that night.

You see, the next day was Saturday, and grandpa had promised to take them on a nice trip to the city if they would get up in time to meet him at the village station for the 8 o'clock train.

The children were going to bed as soon as they had their supper so that they might be able to turn out bright and early in the morning.

"Ah," said daddy, "the way to please the sandman is to go to bed early every night. He is a regular old soul is the sandman and gets into a way of coming back to the same house at about the same time every night."

"You see, the sandman has his sleeping time in the day when the children are wide awake. When the dusk comes on, the silver bells all over his silver palace in the moon ring out to him that it is the children's sleepy time."

"Then the sandman crawls out of his nice soft bed, throws off his night-cap and nightgown and gets into his working clothes as fast as ever he can. Last of all he claps on his invisible cap. Then human eyes, no matter how they may stare, cannot see him."

"Stepping out through his beautiful garden of poppies, he calls for his dream horses and, harnessing them to his silver dream chariot, darts down to earth, where the little boys and girls in their white nighties are crawling into their soft little beds."

"Very quietly the sandman creeps in at each window and, putting his hand into one of the bags which he wears at his side, sprinkles some of his magic sand into their eyes. Each grain of sand is a beautiful dream that unfolds in lovely colors as the little one sinks deeper and deeper asleep."

"There are nice dreams for the good children, but for the naughty ones he has a bag filled with black sand, each grain of which is a horrid dream."

"For the boy or girl who eats too much he has another bag of sand. The grains from it are ugly dreams called nightmares. The larger the piece of cake or pie or the richer the candy they have gobbled just before hopping into bed, the uglier the nightmare is."

"When the sandman has gone all his rounds he is very tired and hurries home to sink into his own soft bed of poppy leaves, which the elves pick fresh every day."

"No one has ever seen the sandman any more than he has St. Nicholas, but of course every little boy and girl believes in him."

But just then the sandman sprinkled a big handful of sand into Jack and Evelyn's eyes, and they were off to sleep before daddy could get an answer.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

PUT IN AN "AD"

BY RUSSEL E. SMITH.

IF YOUR business doesn't "go," and the sales are mighty low, And things begin to look a trifle bad; While the things that looked "immense" now resemble "thirty cents" Just try the "stunt" of putting in an "ad." You will find that it will pay, you can see it every day— And you'll admit it was the proper caper. So get a pad and chalk, work out a line of talk. And put an advertisement in the paper.

PUT it to 'em good and hard, whether selling gems or lard, And try and hit 'em plumb between the eyes; Make your "copy" good and strong, and you'll see 'fore very long That it really pays for you to advertise. Play your main points up in style—then hustle for a while, And you'll find this talk is more than idle vapor. The orders will flow in and you'll always wear a grin. If you put your advertisement in the paper.

SUCCESSFUL men to-day will endorse all that I say, "That much is truth and all the rest is lies"— You will not sell goods and you'd best take to the woods Unless you hurry up and advertise. It simply can't be done and the race will soon be run— Whether you be banker, cook or draper— Till you find out what it means to dig down in your jeans And put an advertisement in the paper.

NEW CARDINAL CREATED AT CONSISTORY ON MONDAY

Contrary to Expectations Pope Did Not Announce Elevation of Primate of Lisbon.—Americans Present.

In addition to creating a new Cardinal, Charles Baron Hornig, Bishop of Veszprem, Hungary, Pope Pius X of Rome at a public consistory of the Sacred College conferred the red hat on the last five of the 18 Cardinals created a year ago, who as yet had not received the final insignia of their rank as princes of the church.

His Holiness also announced the appointments of the following American prelates: Rt. Rev. Patrick A. McGovern, Bishop of Cheyenne; Rt. Rev. Austin Dowling, Bishop of Des Moines; Rt. Rev. Edward J. Hanna, Auxiliary Bishop of San Francisco.

The five on whom the conferring of the red hat had been delayed were three Spanish Cardinals and two Austrians, who at the time of their elevation, November 27, 1911, instead of coming to the Vatican for the red biretta and red hat, received the biretta from the King of Spain and the Emperor of Austria and waited for their hats until summoned to Rome by the Pope.

The five honored Monday were Giuseppe Maria de Cosy Macho, Archbishop of Valladolid; Antonia Vico, Apostolic Nunzio to the Court of Madrid; Enrico Almaraz y Santos, Archbishop of Seville; Francesco Bauer, Archbishop of Olmutz, and Francesco Nagel, Archbishop of Vienna.

Contrary to expectations, the Pope failed to announce the elevation to the Sacred College of Mgr. Mendes Bello, primate of Lisbon. At last fall's consistory Mgr. Bello was created a Cardinal "in pectore;" that is, it was made known that he was to be a Cardinal when his duties at the Portuguese capital would permit. Pope Pius is believed to have preferred that he remain at his post until the present conflict between church and state in Portugal becomes more settled.

The final elevation of the five Cardinals and this elevation of a new one brings the membership of the Sacred College to 61. Of these Pope Pius has created 36 since November 3, 1903, when he held his first consistory. Thirty-three of the Cardinals are Italians and 28 of other nations. Since the 18 Cardinals were created, a year ago, four members of the Sacred College have died, Cardinal Fisher, of Cologne, Cardinal Samassa, of Austria, Cardinal Coullie, of France, and Cardinal Capece-latro, of Italy.

The ceremony was carried out in the Hall of Beatification of the Vatican with all the pomp and pageantry that has marked Papal functions for centuries. The hall was divided according to the rank of the brilliant audience, including members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican, all in full uniform and decorations, the superiors and high officers of the various religious orders and the members of the Roman aristocracy who have refused to ally themselves with King Victor Emmanuel.

Preceding the public consistory the five Cardinals met in the Sistine Chapel and took the oath, and then the Papal cortege moved into the public hall.

Several hundred Americans were present at the ceremony, and there was some disappointment among them because Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, was not named as a Cardinal, which had been considered a possibility.

Frederick College to Change Name.

The announcement has been made that the Frederick College will change its name to the Hood College after Mrs. Margaret E. Hood, who has given generously to it, and who is now a resident in the college. It was in 1897 that Mrs. Hood announced her intention of giving the college $20,000 as a memorial to her husband, John Mifflin Hood. The gift was accepted and it was decided to make it, in addition to its valuable assistance, an encouragement to the work of the college an inspiration to the raising of an additional amount. The sum, now more than doubled is safely invested, and its interest is paid regularly into the college treasury.

PICKS AN ALL AMERICAN FOOTBALL TEAM

"Bud" Wymard, Formerly of Mount St. Mary's Makes a Selection.—A Gridiron Player Himself.

Mr. Charles F. Wymard, who is attending Georgetown University, spent several days in Emmitsburg this week. "Bud," as he is familiarly known, is a football enthusiast, having been Captain on Mount St. Mary's eleven the early part of last year's season.

"Picking an all American team is not the easiest task in football," said Mr. Wymard when asked his opinion as to a line-up of stars. "In order to make a selection a man must have seen all the big teams play and as the season is so short it is almost impossible to see each eleven in action more than once. It frequently happens that a player who may be a star shows up in bad form in the very game at which a selection is made. So you will readily understand how difficult it is to do justice to all."

Mr. Wymard's selection is as follows: Ends, Bomeisler, Yale; Very, Penn State. Tackles, Devore, West Point; Storer, Harvard. Guards, Schenk, Princeton; Brown, Navy. Center, Ketcham, Yale. Quarter back, Costello, Georgetown. Half-backs, Thorpe, Carlisle; Brickley, Harvard. Full-back, Wendell, Harvard.

"In this line-up Wendell would be my choice for Captain, while Thorpe would do the punting with Brickley and Costello doing the drop kicking."

Complying With The Law.

In complying with the recent act of congress requiring newspapers to publish information as to ownership, circulation, etc., Fred Newall, editor of the Canton (Pa.) Sentinel, adds this statement: "We also own a lawn mower and have a limited amount of stock in two telephone companies. A dog, locally known as 'Nigger,' tags us around sometimes, but we disclaim ownership, or responsibility for him. Said dog sleeps on the mat by our front door when he don't sleep somewhere else. He comes to our house when we have chicken for dinner and climbs up and licks our hands and face when he wants a favor. At other times he don't know us. Said dog is a politician. We don't know what he is running for, but the last we saw him he was running from a chunk of wood we threw after him because he played tag with our undershirt hanging on the clothes line. We are a Taft man and we wear false teeth. We used to go to Sunday school. If there is any further information that the postmaster general wants in regard to us on the Canton Sentinel, he is referred to the police."

PATRIOTISM VS. SECTIONALISM.

"The Gentleman from Mississippi," Gen. James Gordon, who died the other day, only served two months in the United States Senate; but he made one speech the echo of which is likely to be heard for many a year to come.

"I want to wipe out all lines," said Gen. Gordon, "I am tired of sectionalism. God knows I have seen enough of it. I don't want any more of it."

"I am an old Confederate. You are old Union men, perhaps. We disagreed. And you are the victors."

"But our people were good people, and we do not dispute that yours were just as good. Not at all; our people are not quarreling over these things down South."

Referring to his colleagues, Gen. Gordon said:

"I am proud to-day to be associated with the men whom I see around me. I have heard you all abused and censured. But I find that this is about the finest working body of men I was ever associated with."

fought for the Southland the beautiful tribute of Corporal James Tanner, of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the chivalry of the new world is crystallized.

"To-day children pick flowers where the shells of battle tore the earth; cannon that once belched forth death and destruction, now rust on those fields, the rose leaves twined about them, and the little birds in safety build their nests in the cannon's mouth. I thank God that I have lived to see this day."

"We are through fighting; we quit at Appomattox, and we don't make war on dead men. No language of mine is sufficient to speak the scorn and contempt I feel for that nation or that people who refuse to honor the memory of those who died in battle for the principles in which they firmly believed."

THE WELL OF WISDOM.

Experience, reading, travel, intercourse with other men, and daily employment of one's faculties—these are what educate a man and broaden him and make his advice, his opinion of some value.

"BRIDGEY" WEBBER, ex-gunner has gone to Cuba "in the hope of getting his nerves back in normal condition," and the rest of the New York gang has landed in Salt Lake City.

THE news that the U. S. Public Health Service will inspect all trains and vessels engaged in interstate traffic, with the purpose in view of compelling these roads and lines to use every sanitary precaution, is encouraging to the travelling public.

RED tape will no longer be used in the United States Senate. "By direction of Secretary Bennett a delicate shade of blue tape has been substituted."

MARCUS AURELIUS, in his "Meditations," says of his tutor, "He taught me to be industrious, to mind my own business, and to despise slander."

CHAMP CLARK got this one off at the White House the other day: "Well, Mr. President, there's one thing about it, we are better looking than the others, anyway."

THIS pension business seems to have taken a strangle hold on a good many people. It has even reached "Tom" Parran. Why not pension everybody and be done with it?

THE worm the early bird doth get, so runs the adage old; the Christmas shopper if he's wise will buy ere the best is sold.

OLD HYMN AGAINST TURKS

Written in Eighth Century Composed by a Patriot Under Circumstances That Are Peculiar Interest At The Present Time.

Few of the worshippers who have noticed "Christian, Dost Thou See Them?" among the Episcopalians Lenten hymns knew that it was the old battle hymn of the Byzantine Greeks at the time the Turks first began to oppress them, and that it was composed by a patriot under circumstances of peculiar interest at the present time.

In the course of a little volume, "A Study of the Eastern Orthodox Church," the Rev. T. J. Lacey, Ph. D., tells its interesting story. He says: "Andrew of Crete in the eighth century crystallized the history of the age in the hymn, 'Christian, Dost Thou See Them?'"

Christian, dost thou see them, On the holy ground, How the troops of Midian Prowl and prowl around? Christian, up and smite them, Counting gain but loss; Smite them by the merit Of the holy Cross.

Christian, dost thou feel them, How they work within, Striving, tempting, luring, Goading into sin? Christian, never tremble; Never be downcast; Smite them by the virtue Of the Lenten fast.

Christian, dost thou hear them, How they speak three fair? "Always fast and vigil? Always watch and prayer?" Christian, answer boldly. "While I breathe I pray," Peace shall follow battle. Night shall end the day.

"Well, I know thy trouble, O, My servant true; Thou art very weary, I was weary too; But that toil shall make thee Some day all Mine own, And the end of sorrow Shall be near My Throne."

Friends. I had a friend, I loaned him ten; I haven't seen My friend since then.

Another friend, He borrowed five; I doubt if he Is still alive.

For one more friend I signed a note; He disappeared; I was the goat.

I'm not convinced That, in the end, A fellow is His own best friend.

Store Operated By Military Men. A co-operative store for the members of the army, navy, marine corps, national guard and revenue cutter service was opened in Washington.

The establishment is the third of the kind to be opened in the United States for members of the services named. At first only uniforms, furnishings and equipment will be sold, but it is planned to deal eventually in all sorts of wares.

Dizzying. "In this great and glorious country of ours," exclaimed the political orator, "there is no north, no south, no east, no west."

"No wonder we don't know where we are at," came a querulous voice from the outskirts of the crowd.—Town Topics.

The Bequest. "Yes, Ike has left everything he had to the parish." "What was it he left, then?" "Five children."

Editorials From Maryland Exchanges.

A Much Needed Law.

There should be passed at the next session of the Legislature a law requiring the State Sanitarium to receive all persons affected with tuberculosis, who are incarcerated in our jails and almshouses, and if the annual appropriation from the State is not sufficient to do this, then in our judgment it should be made so.

Although not every line of business is producing results entirely satisfactory to those engaged in it, there is little room for pessimism anywhere. Now that the party conventions are over and commercial interests know what to expect so far as platform promises and declarations are concerned, business should continue to make gains during the remaining six months of the year.

The case of Albert T. Patrick, to whom Gov. Dix has granted a pardon, is one of comparatively few murder cases in which there is really room for doubt as to the guilt of a convicted defendant.

The American Woman.

To some people the picture of the American woman in politics is ridiculous in the extreme. They can see nothing but the sacrifice of home and family in this mad fancy of the female suffragette.

Is Jackson Big Enough?

If there were the least probability of influencing Governor Goldsborough to regard the welfare of his party and State more than the claims of personal and financial ties, in the appointment of a successor to Senator Rayner, if any word of ours could stay his purpose to appoint Mr. William P. Jackson to that seat, we would speak that word in stentorian tones.

Wages in Japan have arisen on the average over 50 per cent. in the last 10 years. During that time the average price of commodities has increased about 33 per cent.

CURRENT COMMENT FROM LEADING JOURNALS.

Co-operation Among Farmers.

Co-operations, community of effort, is a phrase that should be driven deep into the minds of Virginia farmers by constant repetition. The very conditions of farming demand co-operative effort, yet the farmers are the very last of all the great producers to learn its advantages.

Take the simple business of plowing. In the West much of this fundamental process is done by steam plows. It is profitable to run a plow because large acreages are cultivated by one owner.

The steam plow may cost about $1,600. No individual can afford to own one. But in one district of Virginia the farmers have guaranteed at least 3,000 acres to the man who will buy a plow.

The advantages of community endeavor are becoming clear in certain lines. The consolidated and graded school for a whole region, instead of the separate and inadequate singleroom schools, is responsible for much of the marvelous advance in education in Virginia recently.

The Patrick Case.

Patrick was convicted upon testimony that convinced the jury, but left some doubt in the minds of many readers of the evidence. That doubt remained long after the case had come to an end and the condemned man sent to prison is evident from the fact that this "cause celebre" has been a fruitful theme for discussion for a dozen years.

That doubt remained long after the case had come to an end and the condemned man sent to prison is evident from the fact that this "cause celebre" has been a fruitful theme for discussion for a dozen years.

Gov. Dix may be in error in granting a pardon to Patrick, but there are so few cases of this kind that such a pardon can hardly be criticised as an encouragement of crime through executive weakness.

Cardinal Gibbons and the Industrial Workers of the World.

In his denunciation of the Industrial Workers of the World Cardinal Gibbons used words as chosen as they are timely. They come with peculiar force from a priest of that church which particularly represents democracy and stability.

"I know of the Industrial Workers of the World. They are demagogues, the leaders of the organization you refer to; demagogues unstable and dangerous who are leading the poor workingman into labyrinths of strife from which he will find it hard to extricate himself.

"Let the laboring man beware the demagogues represented by the Industrial Workers of the World."

At the moment Cardinal Gibbons, speaking from full knowledge and ripe experience, was using this language, the leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World were seeking to deceive their ignorant dupes by telling them that the acquittal of their comrades charged in Massachusetts with murder was due, not to the orderly process of justice, but to terror inspired by the might of their organization.

Cardinal Gibbons took advantage of an opportune moment to utter his warning against the revolutionists who lead the Industrial Workers of the World, and from no man could condemnation come with greater force and dignity.—New York Sun.

The Short Session.

The so-called "short" session of the Sixty-second Congress, which convened Monday, is not expected to attempt a great deal of constructive legislation, nor to enact any important laws. It will be kept busy with routine measures, such as leading appropriation bills.

And, then, this Congress is nearing its end. Another soon will be on hand, with a changed membership—the expression of the latest will of the people. The anomaly of our electoral system by which the members of the House chosen last month do not take their seats in a regular session until a year from now is apparent, and Mr. Wilson's decision to call an extra session as soon as possible after his inauguration can only be accepted as an effort to give speedy expression to his policies, which, presumably, were endorsed by the voters at the polls.

Mr. Taft's budget proposals will come in for consideration at the present session. His ideas of the need of a system in making estimates of the running expenses of the governmental departments is convincing and merits consideration alike from Republicans, Democrats, and Progressives.

What is expected to puzzle the Democrats most, however, is to work out a plan by which the high and the low tariff men within their own party may be brought together on common ground.

The Inauguration Festival.

Nearly four years have passed since the last suggestion to change the date of the inauguration of our Presidents until a later Spring day so that the outdoor festival which custom has associated with that formality might not be so frequently spoiled by wintry weather.

The Democrats returning to power after sixteen years, will surely go in with enthusiasm. The parade and the other shows will be held in spite of bad weather. There is, of course, no reason why the President should be inaugurated with so much fuss. He might take the oath indoors. The forms of delivering the inaugural address out of doors to a vast throng which cannot hear a word of it, of having a military escort for the President between the Capitol and the White House, and an official ball at night might all be disregarded without detracting from the dignity of the new Chief Magistrate's entrance upon office.

FIRST CONVENT OF GOOD SHEPHERDS TO BE ABANDONED
Handsome Convent Home and Industrial School to Cost $250,000.—Work on Institution to Begin in Spring.
At the corner of Eighth and Madison streets, Richmond, Virginia, stands an extensive but low-set group of brick buildings which are entirely enclosed by a large wall. Although they have been well preserved by industry and care, the unusual type of the architecture bespeaks their age. An air of peace hovers about the place and the only sounds that reach the ears of passersby is the laugh of children at play or an evening hymn. In keeping with the spirit of the work being done inside, there is little to attract the busy throng.
But above the gate in the wall stands a beautiful statue that tells the whole story. It is a representation of the Good Shepherd, returning with the stray sheep, to seek whom he had left the whole flock. The gate below leads to the Convent of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, where more than 200 women and girls, through the gentle care and loving kindness of these modern Good Shepherds, are learning the way to the better life.
To-day there are more than fifty such havens for womanhood in the United States, but this quaint old convent in Eighth street is the mother of them all. On December 1, seventy years ago, there arrived in Louisville a little band of five nuns from the Motherhouse in Angers, France, to erect the first convent of the Good Shepherd in the New World. One year later the house in Eighth street was opened and the first penitent received. For the past year it has been used entirely for colored girls and women and reformed girls who do not wish to return to the world, but to lead a retired life. The white girls and women have all been removed to the large house at Twenty-third and Bank streets.

After laboring within those hallowed walls of the Eighth-street convent for seventy years the Good shepherd sisters have decided to abandon it. Two reasons caused this decision. First, the buildings have grown inadequate for the ever increasing number of girls and women who are put in charge of the sisters by the courts or their families, or who come of their own volition. Secondly, a part of the Good shepherd plan in reforming penitents is to remove them from even the slightest suggestion of the old life. To-day many of the penitents within the convent walls are scarcely a stone's throw from dance halls and the wine-rooms, and often noise from them disturbs the nuns and their charges while at prayer. Sorrowfully they are to desert the mother house, but their sorrow is mingled with joy, for the story of the Good Shepherd who "gives His life for His sheep is to be brought to many more stray souls."
Out on the Newberg road, near the Passionist Retreat, fifteen acres of land have been purchased and with the aid of men and women of all denominations Mother Mary Compassion, who has charge of the work among the colored people, is going to build a large convent home and industrial school to cost $250,000. It will be one of the finest Good Shepherd institutions in the United States. The work will begin next spring. Thus is the first foundation in America to celebrate its seventieth anniversary. The house in Bank street also is to have a new building for the little tots of the Preservation class.
The idea of the new institute is original with Mother Mary Compassion, superior of the Eighth-street convent, who drew all the plans. The building is to be five stories high and of brick, stone and cement work. It will be the shape of a Latin cross, that is with four arms of equal length with the sanctuary in the center. There will be four departments, the sisters', childrens', Magdalenes' and girls' reformatory, and each department will occupy one of the four wings, with its own dormitory, infirmary and chapel. These four chapels will be grouped about the sanctuary. The altar is to be on an elevation so that all may take part in the services.
Each of the children's departments will have its own class, work and recreation rooms in its respective wing. There also will be balconies out from the infirmaries over the sanctuary, so that even the sick may attend worship. The altar, costing $5,000 and of onyx and marble, with a golden tabernacle for the Blessed Sacrament, already has been donated.
At the opening of the Eighteenth century there were seven houses of the religious of Our Lady of Refuge, as Rather Eudes called his order, among these being one at Tours, France. Near this convent was an academy for young women of wealthy families. One of its pupils was a beautiful girl, Rose Virginie Pelletier, who was born at Noirmontiers in 1796. In her eighteenth year she was graduated from the academy, and possessing such graces of mind and body her family looked forward to her entrance into the brilliant social life. She returned home, but only to bid them farewell forever. She had seen the white-robed nuns of the Refuge and her woman heart was touched with pity and with zeal for the poor unfortunates, to save whom they had left all. Upon her entrance into the convent Mademoiselle Pelletier received the name of Sister Mary of St. Euphra-

People who in buying Groceries, make price and cheapness the standard instead of quality, will sooner or later, come to a realizing sense of the falseness of their economy. asia. So wonderful was her success among the penitents that before she was 21 years of age she was placed in charge of them. Although she had not reached the canonical age, dispensation was received from the Pope and she was elected Superior of the Refuge a short time later.
The novitiate at Angers was crowded with recruits from every part of France and even foreign countries. Mother Mary remained at the head of the order until her death, April 24, 1868, while in her seventy-second year, and the fifty-third year of her life as a religious.
During her life time she founded 110 houses scattered throughout every European country, Asia, Africa, South America, Canada, Australia and the United States. In 1842 she sent her little band of five to found the convent on Eighth street the first in the New World.

"Since Hec was a pup" Uncle Joe Cannon has represented the Danville district in the lower house. A number of his neighbors called on him a few days ago and he is credited with saying:
"I don't know as there is much for me to say. The voters of the district have spoken and I abide by the result, but when I think of some of those XXXXXXXX it makes me hot under the collar. "Three cheers for 'Uncle Joe!' " yelled a man in the back of the crowd. The cheers were given with a will.
"If I had been willing to stand for the recall and all the rest of the patent medicine policies I would have been elected," he went on. "I guess I've got too much horse sense to stand for such a lot of _____ ZZZZ-

Romaine Brown Farm For Consumption.
The much-discussed tuberculosis hospital for Westchester County will be erected close to the home of John D. Rockefeller in Pocantico Hills, if the offer made to the Supervisors of the county by John F. Carroll, the New York broker of the J. Romaine Brown estate, is accepted. The Supervisors have been invited to buy the seventy-seven acres of the Brown farm, which adjoins the Rockefeller estate on the north and comes to within a quarter of a mile of the Rockefeller residence.
When the offer of the sale of the Romaine Brown farm for this purpose was made known, it was suggested it was not likely that Mr. Rockefeller would be willing to permit a tuberculosis hospital to be erected so close to his estate and that he would be likely to offer to purchase the land himself in order to protect his present holdings. Mr. Brown denied that he had ever approached Mr. Rockefeller regarding the purchase of the farm, or that he had ever discussed the question of the hospital with him or his representatives.
Mr. Brown explained that his estate touched the Rockefeller property at only one corner, abutting on the estate of Walter W. Law, on the other end. From the line of intersection, moreover, between the Rockefeller and the Brown estates, to the private residence of the oil king, he said there intervened a quarter of a mile. Therefore, he continued, even if the proposed sanitarium were erected on the corner of the estate nearest the Rockefeller home, which was extremely unlikely, a stretch of a quarter of a mile would remain to separate them.

The fire started in a fodder stack, but the flames spread rapidly and in getting the last horse out he was badly burned about the feet.

All his machinery was lost in the fire. All his hay and entire wheat crop was in the barn. The total loss will no doubt be $4,000 or more, partly covered by insurance. It is thought the fire was of incendiary origin. Mr. Adams will rebuild.

HOSIERY FACTORY OPENED

Emmitsburg Branch of Union Knitting Mills Opened Yesterday.—Twenty Persons Begin Work.

The Emmitsburg branch factory of the Union Manufacturing Company was opened on Thursday morning at nine o'clock. Twenty operators reported for work, they being the former employees of the Emmitsburg Manufacturing Company, no longer existing.

Under the supervision of Mr. John J. Johnson, of the Union Manufacturing Company, Frederick, thirty machines were installed in the company's branch here last week. Additional machines will be placed as the increase in help warrants it.

This branch is the second one started within the past year by this firm. The first branch was opened in Thurmont some time ago and now gives employment to 50 persons. Scarcity of labor in Frederick and the increased demand for the company's product are given as reasons for the establishment of the branches.

Mr. Johnson stated that the wages range from $3.50 per week to $12.00 or more. The company pays according to the work done, and as an operator becomes proficient the rate of pay increases.

The output of the Thurmont branch increases every week and this is expected to continue. At Emmitsburg, as at Thurmont, the plant will have to be run for some time before the operators become familiar with the machines and can operate them at fair speed.

Everything appropriate for Christmas Gifts will be found on the Second Floor of Jos. E. HOKE'S establishment. Saturday, tomorrow, is the day of the formal opening.

JAMISON-BIGGS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's Rectory on Saturday, Nov. 30, when Mrs. Emma Chapman Biggs, of Rocky Ridge, became the wife of Dr. Brooke Ignatius Jamison, of this place. Rev. Fr. Hayden performed the ceremony. The wedding was very quiet, only a few intimate friends being present. Dr. J. B. Brawner, of this place, and Mr. Robert Biggs, of Baltimore, were the witnesses. Immediately after the wedding Dr. and Mrs. Jamison left for a trip to Baltimore, Philadelphia and other points. Both are popular young people and are well known in the communities in which they have resided. Dr. Jamison is a native of Walkersville, and since coming to Emmitsburg, six years ago, has built up a large and lucrative practice.

Big Celebration at Creagerstown.

On Tuesday night, December 3rd, Creagerstown held a big celebration in honor of the recent Democratic victory. The houses of the Democrats were illuminated and very prettily decorated and also the stores and hotels. People from all parts of the surrounding country gathered together to witness the carnival. Taft was well represented in the parade as was also the Bull Moose. One very pretty feature was particularly noticed, several very pretty girls who were dressed as surfragettes in a very gayly decorated wagon with the sign "We'll help soon." Several decorated teams came from Woodsboro and joined in the parade. The floats were well illuminated and decorated. The Monocacy Valley Band and the Emmitt Cornet Band rendered very appropriate music for the occasion.

Grape-growing in the United States is on the increase.

A FAST TEN ROUND GO AT SPANGLER OPERA HOUSE

Gardner and Winters. The one From Washington, the Other From Baltimore, Mix It Up In Good Style.

Last Saturday night in the presence of a small but very appreciative audience composed of those who value rightly the science of the manly art of self-defense, Mr. James McGreevy "pulled off" in the Spangler Opera House the first sparring contest ever given in Emmitsburg.

The initial bout was between two local boys, Grant Long and Emory Eyer. It was a three-round go and as the contestants were very evenly matched in height, weight and "science" much delight was afforded those who were fortunate enough to be present.

Thomas Redmond and Harry Eyer were the next on the programme. There was a slight disparity between the two in the matter of height and weight but both of them were right there with the goods. This was also a three-round set to governed by the Marquis of Goosberry rules. These preliminaries afforded a great deal of amusement and gave genuine pleasure to the onlookers.

The star bout of the evening was the ten-round go between Charlie Gardner, of Washington, D. C., and Tommy Winters of Baltimore, two lads that had plenty of cleverness, science and staying power. These boxers represented two different schools of sparring, the former being a croucher, the latter an adept in the open style of attack and defense. From the moment Mr. Lloyd Jeffries sounded the gong for the first round until the bell rang for the tenth both Gardner and Winters were on their toes. Referee McGreevy was on the job at every stage of the game and saw to it that the rules of the contest were strictly observed. There was no sparing for an opening. It was nip and tuck from start to finish. Every one in the audience proclaimed it one of the best exhibitions of sparring they had ever seen.

REEVES-KAUFFMAN.

Edward R. Reeves, of Waynesboro, Pa. and Miss Lyda Kauffman, of Fayetteville, Pa., were united in marriage at the home of the groom, Thanksgiving morning at 5.30 o'clock, Miss Zella Currens, of Virginia Mills, Pa., was bridesmaid and Mr. Glenn Byers, of Waynesboro was best man. The ceremony was performed by their pastor, Rev. Thomas S. Wilcox, D. D. After a sumptuous wedding breakfast the newly wedded couple left on the 6.50 trolley for Highfield where they took the train for Emmitsburg. After a two weeks wedding tour they will be at home to their friends on Chestnut St. Waynesboro, Pa. Mr. Reeves is a machinist in the employ of the Landis Machine Co., of Waynesboro, Pa. Their many friends wish them much happiness.

To the Public.

I will sincerely appreciate the vote in said primary of every Democrat who will help me in securing this nomination. dec 6-2ts JOHN H. FRAZIER.

MR. JOHN WANTZ MET WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT TUESDAY

Unintentionally Shot By Companion While Hunting Partridges Near Town.—Body Riddled With Shot.—Doctor Summoned.

Mr. John Wantz met with a very serious accident on Tuesday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock while hunting on the farm of Mrs. Catherine Welty of near town. Mr. Wantz was on the hill while Mr. Russell Whitmore his companion was on the level land below him. The dogs flushed a convey of partridges and as they rose Mr. Wantz received the load in his body.

Mr. Wantz staggered and called to his companion that he had shot him. Mr. Whitmore did all he could to make the wounded man comfortable and went for his brother Mr. Robert Wantz who lives a short distance away. Mr. Wantz was brought to town in Mrs. Welty's team, but before reaching there he was met by Drs. Jamison and Sefton in an automobile. He was hurried to Dr. Jamison's office where his wounds were dressed and later taken to his home. The shot was scattered through his body most of it lodging in the lower part of his body and legs.

The shooting was altogether unintentional and Mr. Whitmore feels very bad to have been the cause of it.

JUDGE WORTHINGTON QUALIFIED

New Associate Judge of Sixth Judicial Circuit Sworn in on Monday.—Congratulated by Friends.

Judge Glenn H. Worthington, who was elected by such an overwhelming majority on November 5th last, was sworn in as associate judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland on Monday morning.

Judge Worthington accompanied by Mrs. Worthington came to the Court House about 10 o'clock. In the clerk's office were gathered most of the members of the Frederick Bar and a number of the Judge-elect's friends. Deputy Clerk Adolphus Fearhake administered the oath. Hon. Milton G. Urner was the first to congratulate the new Judge, then Chief Judge Hammond Urner, Mrs. Worthington and others.

After receiving the congratulations of his friends, Judge Worthington conferred with Judge Urner over a number of matters pertaining to the conduct of the Court and spent some time thoroughly acquainting himself with the unfinished business of the Court. Later Judge Worthington had under consideration a matter connected with the receivership of the White Cross Milk Company, and this constituted his first official act as an associate judge.

Judge Worthington is 54 years of age. In 1907 he was appointed Chief Judge of this circuit, to succeed Chief Judge McSherry, deceased, and served about two years. He is a graduate of the law school of the University of Maryland and has been School examiner and also State's attorney of Frederick county, and a member of the State Board of Education.

Judge Motter, who retires in favor of Judge Worthington, will return to the practice of law. He will appear in several cases in the December term of court which begins next Monday.

JAVA'S ISLAND OF FIRE.

It Is Really a Lake of Boiling, Bubbling Mud and Slime.

The greatest natural wonder in Java,
if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated "Gheko Kamdka Gumko," or "Home of the Hot Devils," known to the world as the Island of Fire. This geological singularity is really a lake of boiling mud situated at about the center of the plains of Grobogana and is called an island because the great emerald sea of vegetation which surrounds it gives it that appearance.

The "island" is about two miles in circumference and is situated at a distance of almost exactly fifty miles from Solo. Near the center of this geological freak immense columns of soft, hot mud may be seen continually rising and falling like great timbers thrust through the boiling substratum by giant hands and then again quickly withdrawn. Besides the phenomenon of the boiling mud columns there are scores of gigantic bubbles of hot slime that fill up like huge balloons and keep up a series of constant explosions, the intensity of the detonations varying with the size of the bubble.

In time past, so the Javanese authorities say, there was a tall spirelike column of baked mud on the west edge of the lake which constantly belched a pure stream of cold water, but this has long been obliterated, and everything is now a seething mass of bubbling mud and slime.

THE HISTORY OF ZINC.

Introduced Into Europe From India
Under Several Names.

Zinc was introduced into Europe in the seventeenth or eighteenth century by men from India. It was known then as calaem, splauter or tuttanego and was the same metal which the famous alchemist, Andreas Lebarius, described in 1606 and which he declared consisted of silver, cadmia, mercury and arsenic.

Late in the sixteenth century keen competition was going on between the Portuguese and the Dutch in the Indian seas, and a Portuguese ship having been captured by the Dutch, her cargo of calaem or "Indian tin" found its way into Europe. Nobody at that time knew what it was, and it was a piece of this cargo that became the subject of analysis by Lebarius.

Zinc, it seems, was first produced in India, but soon became an important industry in China. The first Chinese book which mentions zinc, calling it ya-yuen, according to the Engineering and Mining Journal, is the Tienkonggaou, or Technical Encyclopedia. China was the sole producer of zinc until the middle of the eighteenth century, disregarding a minute quantity of that metal which was occasionally obtained as a byproduct in the lead furnaces of Goslar in the Harz mountains.—New York Post.

Strangers In Fez.

"The people of Fez are charming," declares J. F. Legard in the Pall Mall Magazine. "During one's walks or rides through the town it is quite the exception to be spat at, as is often the case in other ultra-Mohammedan towns, and the crowd is, on the whole, merely smiling and inquisitive, like a crowd in Naples or any other south Italian town. Now and then some fanatic—generally an epileptic—will try to raise a disturbance and will be gently removed by his friends—the Moors are kindness itself in the face of poverty or affliction—but, except for these and a few casual curses from the old and soured, the Christian dog may pursue his way in comparative peace, provided he does not attempt to enter a mosque or pass the barriers placed in front of those streets leading up to the tomb of Moulaï Idriss, the founder and patron saint of Fez."

Mistakes of Authors.

The author of "Don Quixote" makes the party at the Crescent tavern eat two suppers in one evening. Scott in one chapter of "Ivanhoe" gives the Christian name of Malvoisin as Richard, subsequently altering it to Phillip.
Pope makes a weasel eat corn. Kingsley makes John Brumblecombe read the prayer for "all sorts and conditions of men," though in the time of Elizabeth the prayer book did not contain it. Sir Archibald Allison speaks of "Sir Peregrine Pickle"
when he means Sir Peregrine Maitland, and the same author translated "droit de timbre" as timber duty, "a howler," which is only equaled by Victor Hugo's translation of "Firth of Forth," "premier de quatre."

Lions as Watchdogs.

A Rhodesian farmer is reported to have trained two African lions to protect his premises. They act as night patrols, and are keenly on the alert to every sound. For a considerable time he had employed dogs, but they were invariably poisoned. He tried the experiment with lions as the result of his knowledge that the "king of the forest" will not touch poisoned food.—
London Globe.

Threats.

I consider it a mark of great prudence in a man to abstain from threats or any contemptuous expressions, for neither of these weaken the enemy,
but threats make him more cautious and the other excites his hatred and a desire to revenge himself.—Machiavelli.

The Right Thing.

"What did you do with your book whose leaf you found loosened?"
"Put it through a legal process."
"What do you mean?"
"Had it bound over to keep the piece."—Baltimore American.

A Scientific Experiment

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

When the Franco-Prussian war broke out Edward Penton, a young American medical student who, on account of youth, had escaped being either killed by ammunition or disease in the great struggle that had ended five years before in his own country, went to Germany and through the influence of the American minister was accepted as assistant surgeon with rank of lieutenant.

After the battle of Gravelotte, when all the medical staff was most needed, word was brought to Dr. Snedicker, medical director of the Prussian army, that the American had deliberately in-sulted a medical officer of his own rank and that a duel was to be fought between the two.

"This is very wrong," exclaimed the doctor with a scowl. "These two young men may both be disabled, and we have not now enough physicians to take care of the wounded."

"And yet, doctor, the challenge having passed, there is no way out of it.
Both would have to leave the army if they did not fight."

"They don't fight duels in America,"
said Dr. Snedicker. "Send this American to me."

Penton reported, and the doctor endeavored to persuade him to apologize.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, doctor," Penton replied. "I'll agree to fire an imaginary shot at him, and if he is not killed at the first fire I will apologize to him."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Permit the duel on the following terms: Make two tablets, both harmless. Announce that one contains a deadly poison. The principals each choose a tablet. Convince my opponent, Lieutenant Berkhalter, that he has chosen the poisoned one."

"If that will satisfy you, proceed."

As soon as the wounded were at least temporarily provided for Dr.
Snedicker called a number of medical officers into his tent and, last of all, the participants of the duel. He showed them two pellets exactly alike in appearance, announcing that one was harmless while the other contained prussic acid. The one containing the poison would have the taste of the kernel of peach stones. "And now, gentlemen," concluded the doctor,
"choose. It is better for this army to have one live surgeon than two disabled ones."

Berkhalter bravely stepped up to his superior, put his hand into a glass tumbler and took out one of two tablets. Penton took the remaining one.
Then at a word from the commander each put his tablet in his mouth. An officer handed each a glass of water, which he was required to drink in order to make sure that he had swallowed his dose.

Berkhalter turned pale. He had recognized the taste of prussic acid given him by his superior. One of the officers stepped up to the doomed man
and said:
"If you have anything to say, say it quick. The poison acts at once."
"I have only to say that I propose to die as an officer of the Prussian army should," replied the plucky doctor.

At the same time he felt his legs giving way under him, and he sank into the arms of his second, who carried him to an army cot and laid him upon it. Penton went to him and offered him his hand.
"I envy you," he said, "your opportunity to show your bravery. I would not have you die without withdrawing the offensive words I spoke to you."

But Berkhalter had passed into an unconsciousness.
"Are you satisfied?" asked Dr. Snedicker to Penton.

"Wait a moment. His imagination cannot act while he is unconscious. He will revive presently."

Snedicker was disposed to put an end to the matter before it should be too late, but a German is nothing if not an investigator, and he was content to grant the request on the ground of science.

Presently Berkhalter opened his eyes;
but, seeing a group of officers standing over him, watching him die, he closed them again.

One of the medical men present went to the cot and placed his hand on Berkhalter's heart, then looked anxiously at the American.

"A few minutes," he said, "will place him beyond the pale of revival."

Penton whipped a vial from his pocket and, removing the stopper, held it under his antagonist's nose. Berkhal-ter again opened his eyes.

"Tell him," said Penton and immediately left the tent.

"Doctor," said Snedicker, "you have not swallowed poison. The duel has been turned into a scientific demonstration. Neither tablet contained poison."

"Where is the cursed American?"
cried Berkhalter, standing erect. "I shall kill him!"

"Here is a written apology."

"I want no apology. I shall kill!"

A corporal came in, but Berkhalter had no mind to be handled by an enlisted man and subsided.

Penton received a warning from his commander that he had better keep out of his late opponent's way if he didn't wish to die a violent death. In stead of doing so, the next time he saw his enemy he approached him with outstretched hand.

"These Americans," said Berkhalter
"have no sentiment."

ARIZONA BRONCHOS.

Like the Little Girl With a Curl In the Center of Her Forehead.

When the Arizona broncho wishes to be safe for you and for himself he is the safest thing in the world, and when he wishes to be unsafe life is a merry chance.

I went up and down trails in Arizona which were almost perpendicular and rough and stone strewn too. But there was little danger, for the broncho has, not the "ten pound," but the "thousand pound" look. His nose is to the ground, his eyes fastened on the trail, his footstep the most beautifully careful thing the mind can conceive.
One foot placed before the other eases and preserves the balance, adjusts the weight for another, and all this wonderful machinery of equipoise, stability and safety you feel working under you like a delicate machine.

Yet this sage pioneer of the trail, with his meticulous care of you and himself, was just a wild ruffie pony,
hunted down by the range rider, driven, coaxed or duped into a corral, broken, saddled, bridled and ridden all in one hour; wrenched out of his wildness, having his heart broken and made into a slave while you would eat your breakfast.

He is not a beauty; he is just a mongrel. But his legs and his feet are made of iron and steel, and the work he does over awful trails, in a rough and ragged country, strewn with stones and flints and bowlders and lava and scrub, week after week, month
after month and year after year, would spoil the legs of a thoroughbred in three days.—Gilbert Parker in August Metropolitan.

A FORTUNATE BLUNDER.

The Result of Putting a Couple of Wires In Wrong Terminals.

A large number of the world's greatest inventions have been the result of some accidental union of forces, the nature of which the person who started them neither understood nor suspected. The working of dynamos at long distances apart when properly connected was discovered by accident.

A scientific journal says: "Soon after the opening of the Vienna exposition, in 1873, a careless workman picked up the ends of a couple of wires which he found trailing along the ground. He fastened them in the terminals of a dynamo, to which he thought they belonged, while they were really attached to another dynamo that was running in another part of the grounds.

"The dynamo to which he fastened the wires was not running, but as soon as the wires were placed in its terminals it revolved as if a steam engine was driving it. The workman was amazed. The engineers and electricians were astonished by the discovery that a dynamo electric machine (turned by steam power) would turn another similar machine a long distance away if properly connected to it by electric wires. Thus originated one of the most revolutionary applications of electricity."

The fact that power can be transmitted for miles by electric wires is one of the most important factors in modern civil engineering achievements.

Foiled.

The lovers whispered together before
the doors of her father's hangar, planning the last details of their elopement.

"Hurry, dearest," he urged. "We will wheel our runabout monoplane and together we'll fly away on the wings of the night, nevermore to be separated!"

"Wait," she exclaimed. "I have a better plan. We will run it out and hide in the old stable; then we will walk to the trolley and papa will never suspect us."

They were hardly half a mile on their way down the road when from overhead came the roar of the triple propellers of the racing monoplane as papa dashed out into the darkness in hot pursuit.—Puck.

Solid Gold.

For many years the term "solid gold" has been a commercial misnomer.
Some of the ancient Roman jewelry
as well as that of the renaissance period was indeed made of pure gold, worked up by hand with the crudest of tools, but since the old day there has been a constantly increasing employment of alloys, for the reason that jewelers found that the harder the gold was rendered by good alloys the greater its wearing qualities and the more secure, therefore, was the setting of the gems it contained.—Argonaut.

The Hard Part First.

"I hear you've got a government job
now," one man said to another.

The other answered gayly:
"That's what."

The first man gave an envious sigh
and asked:

"Is it hard work?"

"Not after you get it," was the reply.

Her Possessions.

"I have two lovely little puppies," said Mrs. Tawckley.

"I have met your husband," replied
the man. "Who is the other one?"— Exchange.

Final Decision.

courting a rich old widow."

"He seems to be up against a court of last resort."—Boston Record.
