COMMISSION

CONGRESS NEEDS ONE

Further Step Towards National Aid For Highways

A Growing Tendency In Congress to Think That the National Government Should Concern Itself With Roadbuilding.

If Congress creates a Committee on Post Roads another important move will have been made toward the participation of the National Government in the highways progress of the country. Such action is considered probable in the special session now in progress through the adoption of a resolution introduced by Representative R. L. Henry, of Texas, who is Chairman Resigns From Presidency of Princeton of the Committee on Rules. It will be remembered that following the first there resulted the passing by Congress from the Princeton Theological Semicommittee of the two branches to make logical Seminary at Chicago. Letters of Introduction.

In Rubinstein's reminiscences in the Paris Annales we read how the illustrious pianist went from Berlin to settle at Vienna, fortified by letters of introduction to various celebrities given to him by the Russian ambassador at the Prussian court. He presented several of them without any beneficial result, and it then occurred to him to tear open those which remained and read them. They all ran, he says, roughly speaking, as follows:

Dear Countess-Our position as ambas-sador and ambassadress imposes upon us the tiresome duty of patronizing and in-troducing all kinds of compatriots, who are often most importunate in their solicitations. I therefore now venture to in-troduce to you a certain Rubinstein, the hearer of this communication.

After that experience, Rubinstein says, he threw all his letters of introduction into the fire and found that he got on a great deal better without them.

Easing Your Burden.

One hot summer day I was driving along when I overtook a woman who carried a heavy basket. She gladly accepted my offer of a ride, but sat with the heavy basket still on her arm.

"My good woman." I said. "your basket will ride just as well in the bottom of the carriage and you would be mu more comfortable."

"So it would, sir, thank you," sai. she; "I never thought of that." "That is what I do very often too."

I said. The woman looked up inquiringly

"Yes, I do the same thing. The Lord has taken me up in his chariot, and I rejoice to ride in it. But very often 1 carry a burden of care on my back that would ride just as well if I put it down. If the Lord is willing to carry me he is willing to carry my cares."-Mark Guy Pearse.

Chopin's Superstition.

Chopin, unlike most musical geniuses, was a late riser. He practiced so long at the piano. with his back unsupported, that his spine was permanently injured. He never composed except when seated at the piano, and he always had the lights turned out when he was improvising. A public audience unnerved him to such an extent that he could not properly interpret the music before him. Seated in the midst of a small select circle, he easily extemporized and improvised. Le "talked" to his piano whenever he was melancholy. He thought more of his manservant and his cat than he did of his intimate friends. Chopin had a superstitious dread of the figure seven and would not live in a house bearing that number or start upon a journey on that date.

Rings and Pledges.

There was an ancient Norse custom according to which when an oath was imposed the person by whom it was pledged passed his hand through a silver ring, which was held sacred to the ceremony. In Iceland the bridegroom when plighting his troth used to pass his four fingers and thumb through a large ring and in this manner receive the hand of his bride. And even as lately as the end of the eighteenth century in Orkney a man and woman pledged their faith at the standing stones of Stennis by joining their hands through the perforated stone of Odin.

"Yes Sir! Studebaker wagons are made to back up a reputation."

"I know, because wagons of every make come into my shop for repairs, and I have a chance to see how few are Studebakers."

That's the opinion of thousands of blacksmiths who know the quality of Studebaker wagons.

The owners never regretted that they bought Studebakers.

Tested materials, accurate workmanship insure a wagon unequaled for durability, and this careful selection of wood, iron, steel, paint and varnish has been a fixed rule with the Studebaker Company for sixty years. That is why a Studebaker wagon runs easiest and lasts longest. It is built on honor.

Whether you live in town or country, there is a Studebaker vehicle to fill your requirements for business or pleasure - and harness of every description made as carefully as are Studebaker vehicles.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scoth-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and producSeptember, 1774, a commission was appointed to draft an ad-Adams, Thomas Johnson and Patrick Henry.

Woman?

The very active campaign in favor of conveying the elective franchise upon woman, which has been waged in those times that tried men's Maryland during the past year or so, has been conducted on the basis that no doubt exists that the sex at large undoubtedly desires the privilege just as Our people should demand a eagerly as do its militant promoters. Illuminating Gas.

In 1792 a manumacturer of Redruth. in Cornwall, named Murdoch made gas to light his home and factory. Pall Mall, in London, 1807, was the first street to be lighted by gas. Philadelphia introduced it in 1815, Boston in 1822 and New York in 1825. Gas is obtained from coal, which is heated in large retorts. The heavy gas drawn off passes by a pipe, called the hydraulic main, through a number of curved pipes called condensers, in which process coal tar and ammoniacal liquor condense and fall into a well. gas passes to purifiers over slaked lime, which takes up sulphureted hydrogen and carbonic acid. It is then headed downward to the gas holder, a large tank having its base resting on water and from which the gas is distributed to the consumers. Certain byproducts are obtained in the course of manufacture which are more valuable than the gas itself. These include coke, ammonia, aniline, phenol or carbolic acid; naphthalene dyes, various artificial drugs and basic perfumes .-Christian Herald.

The Actor's Triumph.

In 1845 the Boulevarde du Temple was the heart of the theatrical world of Paris. In the ten theaters that lined that comparatively short thoroughfare so much blood was shed on the stage every evening at the popular plays that it was known as the Boulevarde du Crime.

The audience became so passionately devoted to some of the characters interpreted for their pleasure that they sometimes showed quite fierce hostility to the actors who had to take parts inimical to them. One night, for instance, Briand, who had represented Hudson Lowe in a scene on the island of St. Helena when Napoleon was imprisoned there, was seized by some roughs as he left the theater and flung into the basin of the Chateau d'Eau. This quite delighted him, and he gloated over it as a triumph when he was telling the tragic-comic incident the next day.-Bookman.

Making an Army Sword.

Army swords are tempered in oil. After the blade, pounded, rolled and hammered to the right length, is ground it is subjected to severe tests. The point is caught under a staple, and the blade is bent over a block of wood. making the arc of circle about thirtyfive inches in diameter. It is then bent in the opposite direction. Afterward the blade is struck on an oak block and tested on sides and edges. Finally it is dipped in oil and bent. While it is bent the oil is wiped off. If the blade is cracked, even though the defects might be otherwise invisible to the eye, the oil in the minute crevices will be forced to the surface when the blade is straightened, and the defects will instantly be revealed by slight streaks of oil little wider than a hair.

Birely's Palace of Music, FREDERICK, MD. PROF. LYNN STEPHENS, Representative.

Warner and Moses Stansell originated, but it was generally concluded that it lasted twenty-nine years before Providence put an end to it. One fall evening, when Delhi consisted of only seven houses and a huckleberry patch, Joab and Moses met at the postoffice, and after a little talk Joab said:

"Moses, I'm told that you've got a tolerable appetite for cider." "Yes, tolerable," admitted Moses.

"You allus lay in a bar'l for winter?" "I surely do."

"And what do you put into it to keep it from gettin' hard and twangy?" "I allus use a little peppermint."

"I've heard you did, and I'm goin' to tell you of a better thing. Put in sassafras instead of peppermint, and you'll have a bar'l of cider equal to champagne. You know how folks cry for my cider along in the winter, and it's the sassafras what does it." "Sassafras couldn't beat peppermint," says Moses as he shakes his head. "But it does beat it all holler," says

"You use it once and you'll be Joab. grateful to me all the rest of your life.'

"I don't doubt you mean well, Joab, but I shall stick to peppermint." "I'm givin' you sassafras, Moses."

"And I'm givin' you peppermint, Joab.'

"Waal, I wouldn't give peppermint to a grubby calf!"

"And I wouldn't give sassafras to an ailin' hog!"

That was the beginning of the dispute. They didn't lay hands on each other, but they felt edgeways, and they never met without bringing up the question. They had it all to themselves at first, but after a bit other folks were dragged into it, and a good share of the county was divided into "peppermints" and "sassafrasers." Both disputants were church members and belonged to the same church, and the pastor finally called them before him and said: "See here, brethren, why this dispute?"

'Cause Mose is a mule," replied

Joab. "'Cause Joab is an idiot," replied Moses.

"That is not Christian talk." "Let him give up, then, and say he's wrong.

"He's the one that's got to give up." "But you will divide the church if you keep this up," warned the pastor. "I'd hate to see it," replied Moses, "but peppermint's the thing to preserve cider.

"And I will never divide a church if I kin help it," added Joab, "but nobody but a idiot would use peppermint. Sassafras is the thing, parson-sassafras!'

"Peppermint, parson-peppermint!"

"But if both are good"-"But they hain't!"

'Almost every night in the year Joab and Moses met at the postoffice, and History of the Horse.

The Weekly Chronicle

All a gift it a get it a get

The horse has been employed in the service of mankind, both in peace and . war, since earliest times. Indeed, his origin is traditional, antedating history many years. They were kept in Syria, for in Genesis it speaks of Joseph giving his brethren bread in exchange for horses. They were also very plentiful in ancient Egypt, as there were "horsemen" and "chariots" in Pharoah's army when he chased the children of Israel into the Red sea. In Kings we read of "Solomon, who had 40,000 stalls of horses," so Palestine was well supplied. As to color. horses were of various colors in ancient times, the same as now, for in Zechariah i, 8, and vi, 2, we find "white horses, black hoses, red horses, bay horses and speckled horses" are mentioned. In James iii, 3, is this: "Behold, we put bits in the horses' mouths that they may obey us." The native habitation of the horse is supposed to have been Tartary, and from whose herds have spread the horses of the world.-Gleaner.

Mr. Shaw and a Poet.

Mr. Bernard Shaw was to speak at the dinner of the Society of Authors. and a place had been set apart for him next to Mrs. Tweedie. But Sh w, being a vegetarian, did not put in an appearance until the meat course was over. Meanwhile his place was taken by another author. A gushing lady who sat opposite poured out praise upon this gentleman all through the meal telling him how greatly she admired his writings. Finally she begged for his autograph and asked him to write under his name, "Man and Superman." "Don't you love it the best?" she asked. "Never read it in my life." "What! You do not mean to say that you are not Bernard Shaw?" "No." was the disconsolate admission. "I'm only Lewis Morris, the poet." The lady was disposed to be generously forgiv ing. "Never mind," she said; "you had better sign your autograph all the same."-From Mrs. Alec Tweedie's "Book of Reminiscences."

Canine Habits.

Dogs when watching things keep one of their fore paws doubled up because in their wild state they were used to approaching their prey step by step and kept one paw doubled up to be ready to advance it with all possible caution at the next opportune moment. This habit of crawling toward their prey, advancing cautiously while preparing to rush or spring, may be observed in the meeting of two dogs. strangers to each other, any day. particularly in the country. The dog who sees the other first, after giving him a cautious look, invariably lowers his head and tries to conceal himself by crouching, a maneuver necessary in the wild state. It's continued nowadays either in play or as a matter of expedient. Either the dog is preparing for an attack or by lying down gives notice to the other dog that he is friendly and doesn't care to fight .--Boston Herald.

Address, VERY REV. B. J. BRADLEY, LL. D., Emmitsburg, Maryland. after sort of elbowing each other around for a spell Joab would say: "Why, hello, Moses, is that you? thought I smelt peppermint around here!

"And I smelt sassafras as soon as you left home!" Moses would reply. "Still stickin' to it, are you, that peppermint is the right thing to keep cider from gettin' too hard?"

"I am, and allus I shall, and so would any one else but a born fool!"

There would be more to it, and a dozen men would go over the question and call each other fools and liars, and the trouble kept spreading. It beat Joab when he ran for supervisor, and it downed Moses when he wanted to be a deacon of his church. If a lightning rod man or a tin peddler showed up within ten miles of Jericho he was asked for his opinion on the cider question, and the man who favored peppermint couldn't do business with the sassafrasers. Many people tried to smooth over the quarrel, but when they went to Joab he said: "I'm willin' enough to be friends with Moses, but, durn his hide, he's got to drop that peppermint business fust!"

Then they would go to Moses and talk and argue and point out his duty, but he would shake his head and reply: "It's no use talkin' till Joab lets go of sassafras. He's stickin' to it jest because he's pigheaded and wants to come out on top."

The thing had been going on for nearly forty years, and Joab and Moses had got to be grandfathers and old men, when they met at the postoffice for the last time. Both were tottering and feeble, and as they caught sight of each other Joab called out:

"It's that blamed peppermint workin' in your system, and I don't care how soon it takes you off!"

"It's that sassafras in your blood." replied Moses, "and your folks needn't expect me to come to your funeral!" The next day both of them were in bed, and after looking them over the doctor said their time had come to go. They lasted two weeks and died on the same day, but before dying Joab sent word to Moses:

"I ain't got no pity for such a critter. If you'd used sassafras you might have lived to be 100 years old."

When Moses received the message he braced up and sent back word:

"Nobody wants any pity from you. If that's cider in heaven they'll use peppermint to keep it from grown hard twentieth of the distance walked. If the person walk one mile at the rate mentioned the amount of work done would be equivalent to lifting the body perpendicularly through a distance of 264 feet. Supposing a person weighing 150 pounds walks five miles, he is doing work which equals the lifting of nearly eighty-eight tons one foot high. Yet all the movements of walking are. in the case of a healthy person, performed quite subconsciously, so that all the muscles employed in the act are actually exercising and develop ing themselves.

PROSPERIT Advertisements Are the

Guideposts Showing Way

By HOLLAND.

WOULD you travel the road that leads to Prosperity? Then read the advertisements. They are the guideposts pointing the way. Disregard the advertisements and you are likely to go wrong, and even if you finally reach your destination you do so only after needless delays and unnecessary traveling.

The traveler who would disregard guideposts, who would not examine them at every opportunity, would be called foolish. He would get little sympathy when he complained of time lost going the wrong direction.

The man who neglects to read the advertisements is disregarding guideposts and is taking unnecessary chances and is delaying his own progress.

ADVERTISEMENTS OFFER WAYS TO SAVE DOLLARS.

If you fail to read and profit by the advertisements you are giving your neighbor who does read them an advantage.

A Prescription For Spring. To an anxious health seeker who wants to know his opinion of sulphur and molasses as a spring blood purifier, Dr. William A. Evans responds in Monday's Courier-Journal as follows: "There is no spring blood purifier equal to fruits and vegetables to eat, plenty Humanity long has cherished the idea that about this season of the year it needs "a spring tonic" or a 'blood purifier." Fruits and vegetables are much to be preferred to sulphur and molasses and the man who buys his "blood purifier" from the remedy. The best physicians in the world to-day agree that there is no better "tonic" than fresh air, sunshine and good food, mixed with a proper amount of exercise. Fresh air and sunshine are free and food is cheaper than medicine and the man who elects to live on drugs makes a most unwise

Persons who are tempted to take sarsaparilla or sulphur and molasses to overcome "that tired feeling" should read Dr. Evans' admirable prescription. -Louisville Courier Journal.

HOME COURSE IN SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE

FOURTH ARTICLE-TYPE OF MODEL FARMING.

By W. J. SPILLMAN, Agriculturist In Charge of Farm Management, Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture.

HE method of management on a fifteen acre farm that raises all the roughage for thirty head of stock, seventeen of which are cows in milk, cannot fail to be of interest to farmers in all parts of the country. The farm in question is situated in southeastern Pennsylvania, near a large city. About thirteen acres are in cultivation, the remaining two acres being occupied by buildings, yard, etc. This farm was purchased in 1881 with a mortgage of $7,200 upon it. For the first year the farm lacked $46 of paying expenses. During the next six years the mortgage was paid.

The soil of the farm is a reddish, somewhat gravelly clay. It was so run down in 1881 that it did not support the two cows and one horse kept upon it. It has been brought up to its present remarkable state of fertility solely by the use of stable manure applied directly from the barn as it was produced. The system of handling manure is such that not an ounce is lost, either liquid or solid. No commercial fertilizers have ever been used, and no manure has been hauled from the city. The crops are ordinarily all fed and are thus largely returned to the land in the manure. Of course much valuable fertilizer is added to the farm an-

MILKING AT THE MODEL FARM. the cows. The roughage is all raised on the farm, but all the grain is bought. The owner, a minister with no previous experience in farming, has read whatever agricultural literature has been available. The writer has never seen a farm on which system is more pronounced a feature. A peculiar feature of the management is that each of the principal operations is performed on a fixed day each succeeding year or as near to it as the weather will permit. The farm is more nearly independent of the weather than any other soil the writer has ever seen. The farm is strictly a dairy farm, the only products regularly sold being milk and a few head of young cattle each year. The cows are mainly registered Jerseys, not only pure bred, but well bred. Scrupulous cleanliness is observed. One man and a boy do the labor of the farm, except in hay harvest and during the cutting of silage, but these have all they can do. On a farm of this size, with high priced land, pastures are out of the question. There is not even a barn lot. The thirty head of stock remain in the barn the year round. better kept herd of cows. They are fed balanced rations every day in the year. Every feed consists of three parts. A portion of it is some succulent material-silage in winter and rye, timothy and clover, corn, peas and oats or some other green crop in summer. A second portion consists of dry hay or fodder. This is used to give the manure proper consistency and at once. In summer it is spread on adds much to the convenience of caring for the cows. A third portion consists of mill products, of which three kinds are used-bran, oilmeal and gluten. The proportion of concentrates cow and is regulated by the flow of grass lands, but the second and third milk and the manure consistency. The soiling crops used are as fol- winter. lows: Green rye, beginning about May 1 and continuing about four weeks or until the rye is ready to cut for hay; then timothy and clover are fed till peas and oats are ready. When the latter is cut for hay the silo is opened (about July 4), and silage is fed till early corn (planted May 8) is ready. Enough of this is planted (about onefourth acre) to last till late corn (planted about June 22) is ready. Late corn is then fed till it is time to put it in the silo. From this time forward silage is fed daily till green rye is available in the spring. No abrupt change is ever made.

four ounces of salt each, daily, mixed with their feed. The cows are fed three tlmes a day, and the salt is divided among the three feeds. Fine table salt is invariably used. Every particle of roughage fed on this farm, including hay and all soiling crops, is cut in quarter inch lengths. Even the bedding is cut thus. There are two round silos on the farm, each ten feet in diameter and thirty-four feet high. These together hold about 100 tons of silage, and this quantity of corn silage is produced on four acres, planted about June 22. Eleven men, three teams and a traction engine to run the cutter are employed in filling the silos.

There is no systematic rotation of place is utilized for soiling purposes, more or less, the surplus being converted into hay or silage. The crops grown are rye, timothy and clover. corn, peas and oats and millet. At least two crops a year are harvested from most of the fields. The grass crop is a mixture, the seed sown being as follows: Red clover, six quarts; timothy, five quarts; alsike, two and one-half pounds; redtop, one pound. The farm is divided into twelve small parcels, varying in size from onefourth acre to two and one-quarter acres. In April, 1903, six of these (five or six acres in all) were in grass. About half of this was sown the last week in August, 1900, one-fourth in 1901 and one-fourth in 1902. That sown in 1900 was cut once for hay in the spring of 1903 and then plowed for late corn. The crops which preceded these plats of grass were in two cases rye, grown the preceding winter.

When this was cut for soiling or for hay the ground was plowed and harrowed into fine tilth. One and a half bushels per acre of German millet were then sown. This was cut for hay before it had made seed. The land was plowed again and harrowed into fine tilth. Grass seed was then sown broadcast late in August. Sowing thus early, using no nurse crop, gives a full crop the next year. In fact, because of the farm's fertility, three large crops are cut the next year after sowing grass in August. Two cuttings are made the second year. In the spring of the third season, if the crop promises to be abundant, a crop of hay is taken before breaking up the sod for late corn. If the grass crop is scanty the sod is broken earlier for any crop for which it may be needed. The sod is always heavily top dressed during the winter before it is broken up. Some of the fields are kept in rye in winter and corn in summer indefinitely. Rye is sown broadcast at the rate of two bushels per acre, the seed being covered by a spring tooth harrow. The hay made from this rye is readily eaten by the stock, but a part of it is used for bedding. Three of the twelve subdivisions of the farm are thus devoted regularly to rye in winter and late corn in summer. Oats and peas are sometimes sown in early spring on land sown in rye the previous fall, the rye being turned under in spring. Sometimes a piece of corn land is left bare

It was during the early part of the nineteenth century that a young man far south of New York city. That armholes. region is now taken up with summer residences and hotels, but it was then crops on this farm. It is not necessary a desolate ocean shore, inhabited only since every foot of land receives an by country people who dwelt there all abundance of manure every year of the year round. That the pair strolling two. Every green crop grown on the on the beach were lovers was evident, for at times they walked hand in hand and at times the man's arm encircled the girl's waist. They were soon to be married and were talking over their > plans. The young man, Edgar Hart, was to go the next day to New York to a business position; the girl, Dorothy Ten Eyck, was to begin preparations for her marriage, which was to take place in a few weeks. It was dusk when they finished their walk, Edgar Hart starting to walk northward to his home, a mile away; Dorothy Ten Eyck to go to her father's house up on the bluff, a short distance back of the beach. On the way she passed the house of Mother Van Gaasback, who stood in the door.

> "It's bad luck for you, Dorothy," said the old woman, "that you've taken up with Edgar Hart. who is going to the city, where he'll meet finer birds than you. You'll not see him again in these parts.'

"You will prove a false prophet, Mother Gaasback. Edgar is true as steel.

"Just wait and see." replied the other, and, turning her back on the girl, who was struggling to repress tears at the malicious thrust, she went into the house

Edgar had agreed to post a letter to his sweetheart as soon as it would be convenient for him to do so after reaching the city. He was to start at daylight the next morning and hoped to reach New York by evening. If he wrote the next day Dorothy might get a letter from him by the post on the fourth day after he left her.

The morning after their parting Dorothy stole away from home to go to the place where Edgar had given her his last kiss. She reached the edge of the bluff and stood looking down on the ocean. The crew of a British vessel anchored not far from the shore was making preparations for sailing. She was a man-of-war, and had the couple not been absorbed in each other the evening before they would have noticed her standing down the coast from the direction of New York. Dorothy saw a man on the deck waving something white, but only for a moment, since an officer ordered him to join those engaged in hoisting the sails. Dorothy surmised that a sailor seeing a woman on the shore was inclined to salute her. The ship sailed away. When the fourth day after Edgar's during the winter and sown to oats departure came round the post rider nually from the rich mill products fed and peas the next spring. Grass is oc- left no letter for Dorothy. She was for her the next casionally sown on land from which soiling corn has been cut. One small field was devoted to oats and peas for several years and then put down in grass, to be followed by corn. Oats and peas do not fit very well into the cropping systems followed on any of these small fields. They must be sown in early spring and are off early in July, yet they yield so much nutritious hay or soiling material that a small area is usually grown.

The method of handling manure on this farm can be used only on farms on which stock is kept in stalls. Be hind each row of cows is a gutter eighteen inches wide and seven inches deep. These gutters have no outlet-They are thoroughly cleaned daily (The whole barn is disinfected twice a week, and the interior is frequently whitewashed.) When cleaned the gutters are sprinkled with ashes or dry dirt to absorb what moisture may be present. During the day a quantity of absorbent, consisting of leaf mold. rotten sod. etc., is placed in them. Each gutter ends near a door. The manure is lifted from the gutter into a cart backed up to the door. The end of the gutter next the door is The writer has never seen a thriftier, slightly lower than the other end. One man lifts the manure with a fork and places it in the lower end of the trench. A second man then lifts it into the cart. In this manner the liquid ma nure is all got into the cart. Finally the fragments that remain in the trench are swept to the lower end and removed. The cart goes immediately to the field, and the manure is spread the land from which the soiling crops are removed. In winter it is spread on the rye and grass fields, on the lat ter particularly when the ground is too soft to place it upon the rye fields fed depends on the condition of the No manure is used on newly seeded year grass fields are top dressed in

> Since this account was first present ed in 1903 marked economic changes have occurred, which, if this farm were still in operation as it was then would materially affect the profit ob tained. Most of these changes relate to the price of concentrated feeding The writer is of opinion that stuffs under present conditions this farm is smaller than a dairy farm ought to be, especially before the land has been made exceedingly fertile. It is now very desirable to have the dairy farm quite a sum of prize money, with large' enough to permit growing at least a part of the concentrated feed used, and the larger the proportion of this class of feed grown the better.

day, but she was again disappointed. When a week had passed and no letter came Dorothy was much troubled. Passing the house of Mother Ten Eyck. the old woman called to her, asking what word she had heard from Edgar, and Dorothy was obliged to say that she had not heard at all.

"I didn't think he'd go back on you so soon," said Mother Ten Eyck. "Well, you'd better choose some young man who is content to stick to the plow and not waste your time waiting for one who is ambitious to become citified.'

Dorothy, stung to the quick, was about to hurl the words back at the old woman, but repressed the impulse and, turning her back, went her way. Weeks, months passed and no word came from Edgar. Dorothy was too proud to seek him, but at last one of the neighbors, who had business in New York, when there went to the place where Edgar was to have been employed and learned that the young man had not appeared according to appointment. When Dorothy heard this she was filled with forebodings worse than her distress at being neglected. She feared that her lover had been murdered.

"He went away to get rid of her," said Mother Ten Eyck. "He never intended to stop in New York. He's gone back to his folks in England." Every one except Dorothy accepted this explanation. But Dorothy had faith in her lover. She told of having seen a man on a ship wave to her the day after Edgar's departure, and this was interpreted by her neighbors to mean a farewell from her lover to her. Eighteen months passed, when one day the missing man walked into Dorothy's home alive and well and caught her up in his arms.

This was his story. The night he left Dorothy, while walking on the beach, he saw a boat approaching. When it touched the shore half a dozen men sprang out, took him forcibly into the boat and out to a ship that had just dropped her anchor. He had been captured by a press gang for the British navy.

The next morning he saw Dorothy on the beach and tried to attract her attention, but was ordered to duty in hoisting sails. He had been compelled to serve the interval since his capture in the British navy and had received which he had at last succeeded in making his escape. He married Dorothy,
