NO. 25

I. C. C. TO PLAY A BIG PART

TO BE FEWER WRECKS

The Passengers Lives To Be Safeguarded

DRASTIC BILL IS BEING DRAFTED

The Commission Will Ask For Plenary Power to Prescribe Standard, Tested Equipment and Safety Appliances of all Kinds.

If the Interstate Commerce Commission succeeds in its plan to have the House and Senate pass the bill which the Commission is now having drafted, there will be Federal supervision enough so it is expected to prevent serious wrecks, such as the recent one on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad and the continuous smash-ups that have prevailed on the Western Maryland for instance.

The recommendation of the Interstate Commerce Commission are of far reaching importance in regard to safeguarding the lives of passengers on the railroads of the United States.

The Commission will ask Congress for legislation giving it plenary power, just as it now has plenary power, over the fixing of interstate rates.

At present the commission's authority in regard to the safety of passenger traffic is limited nearly to the making of recommendation, which the railroads may accept or reject as they see fit.

The contemplated bill will empower the commission to prescribe standard and tested equipment and safety appliances of all kinds. It also is likely that it will provide that the commission shall have a voice in determining the weight and composition of steel rails.

The commission will ask authority to prescribe the speed of trains. The bill now in course of preparation also will provide that trains in interstate commerce shall be manned by crews as prescribed by the commission.

Experts of the commission believe that a grant of authority to the commission to prescribe the speed of trains will be effective in compelling carriers to install safety devices. Such a provision contemplates the conferring of authority upon the commission to penalize railroads for running their trains beyond a certain speed, except under conditions to be prescribed by the commission. Competition, it is contended, would compel all the railroads to meet the condition imposed if any one should be able to run at the maximum speed.

Officials of the commission say that they have received assurances from members of the House and Senate that there will be no delay in the consideration of such legislation.

The Commission now is considering the advisability of calling a conference of the officials of the construction departments of the big railroads and of the makers of steel rails to determine what step shall be taken to meet the defects in rails caused by the increased weight of locomotives and cars, which creates a wheel pressure far greater than was the case when the standards of steel rails were terminated years ago. The new defect, which is called a transverse fissure, cannot be detected by tests before the rail is laid, inasmuch as it is caused solely by the high wheel pressure.

FIRST PRESIDENT OWNED A HOUSE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

It, With Other Buildings, to be Demolished in Order to Provide Space For New Park

An interesting bit of history is connected with the site for the new park in Washington, mention of which was made in the Chronicle last week. It is that the only building in that city ever owned by George Washington stands there.

It was once known as the Washington Inn, previous to that as the Kenmore House and still earlier as the Hillman House.

"In its present form," says the Christian Science Monitor, it is a reconstruction of two houses built by George Washington and all but the lower portion retains the original walls. All around this old inn are houses of the colonial period, which, too, are to be torn down to provide space for the new park. Many of these houses, as in the case with the Washington inn, are exceedingly well built and contain carved mantels and other adornments peculiar to the colonial era.

Washington paid $936 for the two lots on which the house was built and valued the houses at $15,000.

The U. S. is about to buy two dirigibles of foreign make at a cost of $300,000.

WILLIAM EYLER IS REFUSED PARDON IN SPITE OF PLEAS

John D. Keith, Esq., District Attorney At the Time and Robert E. Wible, Esq., Opposed it.

Application for the pardon of William Eyler, convicted of first degree murder in the Adams County Court and later sent to the Eastern Penitentiary for life after his sentence was commuted by the Board of Pardons, was last week refused further consideration by that body.

There appeared for Eyler, Rev. Kenneth M. Craig of Brooklyn, Md., formerly of Emmitsburg, near which town Eyler resided prior to the crime which cost the life of Howard Miller of Mt. Joy township.

Mr. Craig pleaded earnestly for Eyler's pardon, presenting a widely signed petition and letters from Eyler and his family. The prisoner, he said, had repented sincerely of his crime, had become thoroughly converted to the Christian faith and was now one of the best prisoners in the penitentiary.

A member of the Board, following Mr. Craig, said that he recalled distinctly the details of the case and that he regarded it as one of the most horrible murders that had been committed in this section and saw no reason why any pardon should be granted at this time.

John D. Keith, Esq., district attorney who tried the Eyler case for the Commonwealth, presented briefly the evidence produced at that time and Robert E. Wible, Esq., offered further objections to the granting of a pardon.

HAVRE DE GRACE TRACK KEPT UP BY OUTSIDE CAPITAL

Harford County Gets a Small Rake-off. Dry Territory Made Wet For A Consideration

The race track at Havre de Grace is coming in for its annual quota of adverse criticism. To keep in with the state Harford county gets 50 percent of the gate receipts for the improvement of its roads. That is about all the representation Maryland seems to have if reports are true.

The track is owned and operated by New York and Philadelphia people. There are thirty-three bookmakers who have an easy thing of it and, although the territory is "dry," you can buy memberships in the "club" for one dollar and drink yourself to death. Speaking of the way things are run in Havre de Grace the News sums the matter up as follows:

"Under the charter of the Harford Agricultural and Breeders' Association there is now in full swing one of the biggest gambling establishments the State of Maryland has ever harbored.

The charter gives the corporation the right to conduct experiments in agriculture, such as increasing the size of turnips and improving the breed of live stock. The Association has turned its attention exclusively to live stock, and in so doing has left out pigs, cows and sheep, and is devoting its attention solely to horses and two-legged goats."

Game This Year Played in New York.

The annual game between West Point and Annapolis at the Polo grounds, New York on Nov. 29 will be the greatest football spectacle that has ever been held in this country. With the extra stands and field boxes which the club plans to erect it will be possible to accommodate a crowd of nearly 45,000 people in the Brush Stadium, which will be a larger number than has ever witnessed a football match there.

New York Getting Richer Every Day.

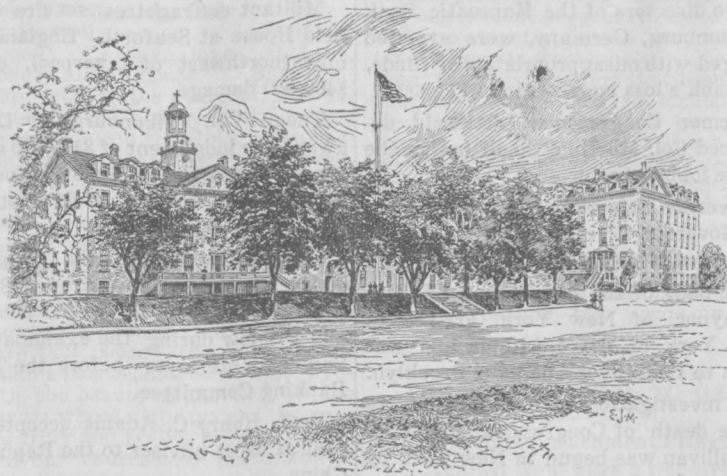

The assessed valuation of real estate in New York City this year passes the eight billion mark. The exact figures, made public, are $8,010,000,000. This is an increase over last year of $150,000,000. The bulk of the increase comes from new hotels and office buildings erected on the West Side in the neighborhood of Forty-second street. The increased assessment enlarges the city's borrowing capacity to $15,000,000.

To Samoa Islands By Wireless.

Wireless and cable communication with the American Naval Station at Tutuila, Samoa Islands, was established Sunday by the receipt of a message from that point. The message was sent originally by the station ship Princeton, and relayed to Suva, in the Fiji Islands, by a vessel somewhere between the two stations. Thence it was transmitted by cable to Washington.

This year for the first time Frederick County will be represented at the Maryland Week celebration of the State Horticultural Society to be held Baltimore November 17 to 26. A committee from the Farmers' Association, with Lewis F. Kefauver, Middletown, chairman, will arrange for the display.

MOUNT SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

Terrace Talk

The Mountaineer will appear on the fifteenth of October.

Great enthusiasm marked the first meeting of the German class.

Capt. McManus, who played at quarterback last year, has been shifted to halfback.

Some of the heavyweights on the eleven are: Fritz, 197; Cogan, 178; and Dwyer, 172.

Coach Day is aiming to develop a speedy team and will lay special emphasis on open play.

Entrance examinations are practically over and everyone that's wise is settling down to hard work.

With the squad increased to thirty-seven men the struggle for berths on the team will be interesting to watch.

Short scrimmages have been held since the first of the week and the squad is rapidly getting into condition.

Finding that his men need more practice in tackling, Coach Day has ordered the "dummy" set up at the edge of the field.

A goodly representation from Emmitsburg is expected to see the opening game to-morrow. Frederick will no doubt have its usual large following along.

"Patsy" Donovan '16, of New York City, lined up a strong eleven against the Freshman yesterday. Some of the new men displayed considerable ability in pigskin tactics.

This is the open season for signing up for dance engagements. The price of the tickets range from fifty cents to $2.00, according to the verdancy of the prospective buyer.

Quinn and Mahoney will make their first varsity appearance in tomorrow's game. Both men have played well in practice and their work Saturday will be noted closely.

No one can mistake a 1914 man these days. At a recent meeting of the class it was decided that the distinguishing mark of the "grave and reverend" senior should be the hirsute growth on the upper lip.

Two new professors have been added to the faculty. Professor Heltzel, formerly of Gettysburg, succeeds the late Dr. Charles H. Jourdan in Mathematics and Rev. Dr. O'Neill will be assistant in Latin and Greek.

The absence of John J. Dowdle, more familiarly known as "Bear" Dowdle, of Chicago, hefty left tackle on last year's eleven, is very much felt. Coach Day is priming John D. Kelly, of Wilmington, for that position.

"Shorty" Fitzpatrick's failure to return to the Mount will necessitate the election of a new cheer leader. Shorty's

Henry Noble MacCracken has resigned as assistant professor of English in Yale University and has accepted the chair of English literature in Smith College to begin in February.

General Bramwell Booth new head of the Salvation Army is coming to America.

ability in this role was never questioned and the Mount will be fortunate if she can find another who will be able to accomplish the results he did.

The training table for football was formed on Monday. Those on the table are: Capt. Leo McManus, Joseph McManus, Sheridan, Gilroy, Breslin, W. and J. Carroll, Sutton, Dwyer, John D. Kelly, Mahoney, M. Cogan, Long, Letters, Talbott, Haltigan, Quinn, John C. Kelly, Leary, and Asst. Mgr. McDermott.

Frederick will oppose the 'varsity to-morrow on Echo Field when most of the squad will be given a chance to show their ability. The following men will probably start the game: Haltigan, I. e., J. D. Kelly, I. t., J. McManus, I. g., Rice, c., Dwyer, r. g., Carroll, r. t., Sutton, r. e. Quinn, q. b., Sheridan, I. h. b., L. McManus, r. h. b., Mahoney, f. b.

The Staff of the Mountaineer as appointed by the Faculty is, in full, as follows: Editor in Chief, Ralph Keating; Business Manager, George J. Goldsborough; Asst. Business Manager, A. Joseph Schmidt; Alumni Editor, Joseph Boyd; Sporting Editor, John F. Cogan, Jr.; Local Editor, Edward T. Hogan; Associate Editors, Leo T. Collier, D. Joseph Boyle, J. Ward Kerrigan, Simon A. Klosey, Daniel A. Tierney, John M. Stanton, John W. Jennings.

Dr. Henry G. Munoz, '07, spent the past week at the College. Dr. Munoz, who is a prominent practicing physician in his home city, Merida, Yucatan, recently entered his younger brother as a student at the Mount, the occasion being his first visit to his Alma Mater since graduation. Dr. Munoz was familiarly nicknamed "Bunch" during his college days, and it is not surprising that his brother, who weighs almost 200, has received the same appellation. "Bunch" holds forth on the nimble side where he has made a host of friends.

Some of the best teams in this section of the country are included in the football schedule, which, is as follows: September 27, Frederick High School, at Emmitsburg; October 4, St. Johns Academy, at Annapolis; October 18, Catholic University at Emmitsburg; October 26, Temple University, at Emmitsburg; November 1, open; November 8, Gettysburg College, at Gettysburg; November 15, Delaware College, at Newark; October 22, Villa Nova, at Emmitsburg; October 27, Maryland Agricultural College, at College Park.

Although football "dope" reigns supreme in the gossip on the campus, interest is gradually centering on the world series. The Philadelphia representation outnumbers the New York contingent and for this reason more comment is heard concerning the Athletics. The Giants, however, do not lack supporters among the "fans" by any means. The majority of those who are identified by place of residence with neither side view the situation with a leaning towards New York, saying that the Champions of the National League will have by far the better of the argument this year.

Until this year open golf honors in America have been almost exclusively reserved for players of British birth, but the victory of Francis Ouimet has upset all precedents and marks a new chapter in American golfing annals.

In the next four years $220,000,000 will be spent for education in New York City.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE LATE DOCTOR JOSHUA HERING

He was a Prominent Democrat and Held Offices of Trust in the State and Church

Dr. Joshua Webster Hering, who died Tuesday afternoon, was born near Johnsville, Frederick county, March 8, 1833. He was the son of Daniel S. and Margaret Hering. When eighteen years of age he went to Westminster where he engaged in mercantile pursuits. In 1853 he began the study of medicine under a local physician. Later he studied under Professor Miltonberger in Baltimore, at the same time taking a course in a medical school of the Maryland University from which he graduated in 1855. Dr. Hering practiced in his home city and became a leading physician in Carroll county.

In 1895 he was elected to the State Senate. In 1899 he was elected State Comptroller, to which office he was re-elected in 1901, 1907 and again in 1909. The late Governor Crothers appointed him on the public service commission.

Dr. Hering took an active part in religious matters. He was a leading national layman of the Methodist church and the only layman to hold the office of president of the General Conference.

In 1899 he was elected president of the Maryland Bankers' Association. In 1900 he received the degree of LL. D. from St. John's College.

Dr. Hering was always regarded as one of the leading democrats of the state and at all times his opinion was sought on things political.

STATISTICS GIVE INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT INCOMES

Data Shows That Many Persons Manage to Worry Along on $20,000 to $30,000 a Year

In round numbers there are two hundred thousand people whose incomes range from $5,000 to $10,000 a year. These facts and many others quite as interesting have come to light as a result of the discussion in Congress of the income tax amendment.

Investigation disclosed that there are approximately 5,000,000 Americans who have incomes ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 a year. There are one hundred thousand people who receive from $10,000 to $20,000 a year and seventy-five thousand people who have incomes varying from $20,000 to $30,000.

"It is interesting to know" says the St. Paul Dispatch, "that there are 2,000 who have to plan their expense accounts to keep within $100,000 to $500,000, if they would not exceed their incomes. There are 500 more to whom $500,000 a year would be a modest allowance and some of whom can afford to spend $1,000,000. There are 100 who do not have a deficit at the end of twelve months even if their expenditures range from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000. The congressional investigators disclosed to the rest of the world that there are 20 who can spend more than $10,000,000 a year without touching their principal.

December 7th Tuberculosis Day.

Churches, schools, labor unions, fraternal orders and other organizations to the number of 200,000 at least will be asked to join the anti-tuberculosis workers of the country in the observance of the Fourth National Tuberculosis Day, which has been designated for December 7th, according to an announcement issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Bryan Will Continue to Lecture.

"I lectured before I was nominated for president. I lectured between campaigns. I shall continue to lecture and I shall not believe that any person whose opinion is worth having will think the less of me for so doing," said Secretary Bryan as he finished his Chattanooga series on Saturday. The Secretary's net receipts amounted to $6,500.

The Heart of Philadelphia Thirsts?

Tracing a direct line of descendency from Betsey Ross, Mrs. G. A. Wilwohl, Mrs. Bertha Dodson, and Mrs. Michael Ross Shea, Pittsburgh women possess a clear title, according to Philadelphia attorneys, to the land on which the Wanamaker store the United States Mint and the Reading Terminal stand. The actual value of the property, it is said, is conservatively claimed to be worth $10,000,000.

Colonel Roosevelt on Marble.

For some years Col. Roosevelt, that is a bust of him has been mounted on a wooden imitation of a marble pillar in the Senate corridor of the Capitol. As Teddy is likely to stick around for some time as Big Ball Moose they substituted a marble shaft for the old wooden box last Tuesday.

MT. ST. MARY'S AND PROGRESS

WILL KEEP ABREAST

To be Foremost Among Christian Colleges

AMPLE GROUNDS—IDEAL SITE

Plans to be Realized Within the Present Year.—Policy of Publicity Adopted.—Work Toward That End Already Begun.

Old Mt. St. Mary's College has entered upon a year of unusual activity that gives promise of notable achievement in the sciences, athletics and arts. Dr. Bernard Bradley, president and treasurer, under whose direction the college has been steadily advancing with the progress of the times, has, in conjunction with the faculty, made it clear that the plans he has formulated for making this college "facile princeps" among the leading Christian colleges of the country are to be realized within the year on a score never before attempted. An organizer, financier and director of skill and experience, Dr. Bradley utilized the holidays of the latest vacation in comparing the methods of the best schools in the States, and the results of his activities are calculated to add materially to the worth of the training for which over three hundred students have made application in the present year.

Probably no institution of higher education in the States has ever claimed precedence over Mt. St. Mary's in the classical and modern language courses. For years the classics have been handled by secular clergy who know how to vivify Latin and Greek in the light of modern interpretation. A veteran professor, Dr. Ernest Lagarde, whose name is synonymous with linguistics, has entered upon his forty-fourth year at The Mountain, and the students who follow his courses will undoubtedly achieve that fluency in the modern languages which he knows so well how to impart. The natural sciences come under the supervision of Mr. John Rauth, whose tested ability to turn out chemists and physicists will find ample expression in the well-equipped laboratory of the institution.

The grounds comprise an area of 1,200 acres, over 600 of which are under practical cultivation. It has been suggested to Dr. Bradley that the natural resources of the place would justify the establishing and insure the success of an agricultural plant with courses in dairying, horticulture and up-to-date farming. It is believed that a course of this kind, supplemented by experimental stations such as obtain at Cornell, would make its appeal to young men of the practical bent who may find it necessary or expedient to curtail their academic course.

Unusual facilities have been provided for the pursuit of athletics, a gymnasium equipped with all the modern apparatus being a prominent feature of the outdoor life that enters largely into the training of the young men. The motto of the "Mountaineers" is "Sana mens in sano corpore." And certainly, in this respect, no expense has been spared to help the students of Mt. St. Mary's to the perfect fruition of robust physical health.

FIFTH AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT FOR THE ATHLETICS

Fight Will Now be Between Mack's men and McGraw's Giants. Latter Appear to be the Favorites

Should Cleveland win all of its games and the Athletics lose every one of the eleven remaining games, Connie Mack's team will still be the champions in the American League series. That was decided on Tuesday when the Philadelphiaans took both games of a double header against the Tigers for the fifth time since the American League has been organized.

Connie Mack has piloted his club to a pennant, and as McGraw has virtually cinched the flag for the New York Giants in the National League race the little Napoleon, as he has been called, will win his fifth bunting.

Manager Mack won championships for Philadelphia in 1902, 1905, 1910, 1911 and 1913. McGraw led the Giants to victory in 1904, 1905, 1911 and 1912 and there isn't much chance to keep him from doing so again this season.

It is a question with a large number of fans as to which is the greatest manager, Mack or McGraw. New York is well satisfied with its John J. and the fans of Philadelphia are more than delighted with Cornelius the First.

These teams have met only twice in the World's series, but they are now being groomed for a third struggle.

Power of the Country Press

The country press does not need any defense from us, says the American Press. It stands on its own merits as the greatest power in the United States. It could, if organized, make or unmake a president of the United States. It is the most effective molder of public opinion in existence.

THE COUNTRY PAPERS AS A WHOLE REACH A VASTLY GREATER PROPORTION OF THE POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES THAN DO THE METROPOLITAN DAILIES AS A WHOLE.

The country papers reach upward of 65,000,000 people, and the entire population, exclusive of the Philippines and Hawaii, is 91,000,000.

The papers reaching more than two-thirds of our population are, collectively, certainly more important than papers reaching only one-third of the population.

The National advertisers are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in space in the country papers. They are increasing their volume each year. They have learned that the metropolitan dailies and magazines do not reach an immense mass of people of purchasing power.

Hitherto the policy of the institution has been to shrink from publicity, every student that has come and gone being regarded as a better recommendation than the press notices that are a regular feature of the regular college's activities. But times change and customs with them, and the advantages that are available for youth at Mt. St. Mary's are of so superior an order that anything that pertains to the inner life and activities of the school will, it is believed, interest all who are interested in the higher education of young men.

It may be a mistake of the publisher in thinking he has been done a favor, but as a rule whenever a newspaper loses one subscriber on account of pique there are usually two or three others gained for the very reason that the one feels aggrieved.

DISCOURSE OF REV. G. H. TRAGESSER AT THE FUNERAL OF MRS. SARAH A. BAKER.

St. Anthony's Church, September 22

"I have loved, O Lord the beauty of thy house and the place where thy glory dwelleth." Psalm xxv, 8.

The beauty of the home reposes in father and mother, brother and sister. Withdraw from the home the sunshine of loved ones and there remains little of beauty that appeals to the soul. The royal prophet had a zeal for the construction of the material temple that would be built by his son Solomon, and with prophetic instinct King David beheld the splendor of the structure that would contain the Holy of Holies, he could well render to himself the testimony: "I have loved, O Lord, the beauty of thy house." But what most appealed to the Psalmist, was not the vision of the beauty of the temple that would contain the Holy of Holies; he was far more captivated by the beauty of God's glory in the Holy of Holies, that ravished his soul, enlightened by faith. Now, if the psalmist was enraptured by the beauty of that place before which the Jews worshipped and from which they received the divine instructions and commands, far greater must be the transport of admiration and love that seizes the soul of the Christian as he beholds with the eyes of faith, the beauty of the God of the Eucharist, whose divinity and humanity are truly and really present on the altar of our churches. The material structure may be as poor as the huts of the poorest, but the devout Catholic with the eyes of his soul will discern in the sacramental presence, a beauty infinitely surpassing all earthly beauty. Seventy-eight years ago the soul that only a few hours ago departed from this lifeless body, lived in an infant and was brought for the first time to the house of God to receive holy Baptism. The regenerating waters imparted to that soul something of the very beauty of God and he delighted in this manifestation of his beauty. Angels beheld in that soul a beauty that emulated their own. Soon, the years of childhood passed and the girl was anointed by the Bishop with the chrism of salvation and for the first time.

She was permitted to partake of the Living Bread that came down from heaven to be the life of the world and new beauty was infused into her soul by every reception of the sacraments. With a faith that grew stronger by every successive visit to the church, she was permitted to recognize more and more fully, as time went on, the beauty of God's glory in the sacrament of his love. Her respect for the house of God, her prayerful attitude, her devout assistance at the divine Sacrifice and her fervent reception of holy communion, attested more forcibly than words: "I have loved, O Lord, the beauty of thy house and the place where thy glory dwelleth." The beauty of her soul was manifest, not only in church, but shone resplendent in her daily routine of her long life. Her kindly countenance, her gentle speech, her humble and retired life, reflected the beauty of her soul. Her highest praise is the place that she holds in your minds and hearts. Her genuine worth best appears by the admiration, esteem and affection of those who knew her best. You recognized in her a sturdy character and a high type of Christian womanhood. Love for home, affectionate devotion to her husband and children, charity towards her neighbor, loyalty to friends, were notable traits of her life. To these she added simplicity of manner, industry, constant labor and fortitude of soul. She adhered to God as well in adversity as in prosperity. "Because thou was acceptable to God it was necessary that temptation should prove thee." Tob. xii, 13. "Assuredly is tried by fire and gold in the furnace, so the Lord trieth the hearts." Prov. xvii, 3. Trials and tribulations only served to draw her more closely to God and to chasten her soul. God so disposed that for some time past Mrs. Baker should be more free than ever to gratify her pious desire of assisting daily at holy mass. Last Friday morning after hearing mass for the last time, she returned home and very soon she was heard to recite the "Hail Mary" and without exciting alarm she left the house and became the messenger of her own sick call. How true it is that the ruling passion is mighty in death. During life prayer and assistance at divine service had become a strong, enduring habit, and now that the fatal stroke begins to affect her mind, her first impulse is to pray and to wend her way to the church. When she could no longer answer any question, she continued to repeat the prayer that she had counted thousands of times on her beads. The "Hail Mary" was her last prayer, her final word. This edifying life that has just come to a close, is only one of many that have sanctified the mountain during over a century. During her long life Mrs. Baker had followed to their last resting place many noble and just women. She had a great devotion to the faithful departed; and if her soul is not yet purified from every defilement of sin, I believe that the many souls that she helped by her prayers, will obtain for her a speedy entrance into the sight of God. In praising her and the splendid type of womanhood that the mountain has produced, I have followed the example of the Holy Spirit who exclaimed by the mouth of the inspired writer, "Who shall find a valiant woman?" Far and from the uttermost coasts is the price of her. The heart of her husband trusteth in her, and he shall have no need of spoils. She will render him good and not evil, all the days of her life. She hath opened her hand to the needy and stretched out her hands to the poor. She hath opened her mouth to wisdom and the law of clemency is on her tongue. She hath looked well to the paths of her house and hath not eaten her bread idle. Her children rose up and called her blessed: her husband, and he praised her. Favour is deceitful and beauty is vain; the woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised." Proverbs, ch. xxxi. It is true that the soul of the departed cannot be affected by our words of praise or blame; but, if we have seemed to dwell at length on the example of her good life, if we have alluded to the grand specimens of womanhood that have trod these mountains, it is for the sake of the young maidens who must soon take the place of these noble women; it is in order that you, fathers and mothers, may be induced to rear girls after the bright models that have shone in your midst. When your girls and young maidens assume the responsibilities of life, and when they shall have run their course, and when in turn their remains are carried to the foot of the altar, will another priest standing in this place, be able to say truly, that your daughters measured up worthily to the many grand women who have lived and passed away at the mountain? I shall not play the prophet, but I must observe that times, conditions and circumstances have wonderfully changed at the mountain during the life of this good woman, and many of the changes that have occurred are not in line of true progress. Our age boasts of its progress and it has made certain progress along material lines, but has it made progress in those things that are essential to the formation of true, Christian womanhood? Knowing then, the great dangers that beset your daughters, teach them to emulate the lives and the virtues of a generation that is fast departing. Teach your girls that the brightest ornaments of womanhood are purity, simplicity, self denial, industry, labor and love of home. Let me, in fine, beg you to keep alive the memory of this good woman, and to remember her long in your prayers. May thy place be this day in peace and thy abode in holy Sio

THE SULZER TRIAL TO DATE

Events in the Impeachment Proceedings Against New York's Deposed Governor

Friday, Sept. 19—The challenges by Governor Sulzer were thrown out by the New York court of impeachment. Governor Sulzer recognized Governor Glynn as Acting Governor of New York.

Monday, Sept. 22—The motion of counsel for Governor Sulzer to dismiss the impeachment proceedings brought against him was overruled by the high court of impeachment. All members of the court, except Senator Wendt of Buffalo, a democrat, voted against the motion.

Tuesday, Sept. 23—The High Court of Impeachment heard arguments from both sides on the motion to dismiss the three articles of impeachment dealing with campaign funds, on the grounds that the acts therein charged against the Governor, were committed, if committed at all, before Mr. Sulzer took office, and therefore were not impeachable.

Wednesday, Sept. 24—Jacob H. Schiff, a New York banker, declared on the witness stand, that Governor Sulzer was free to use the $2,500 check given him in any way he choose and Henry Morganthau, ambassador to Turkey, formerly chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic National Committee, testified that when he gave the Governor a check for $1,000—a personal contribution—he had placed no limitations on its use.

This testimony and the ruling of the presiding judge thereon marked the opening of the actual trial of the impeached Executive, which up until noon had been delayed by arguments and objections of counsel for the defense. At that hour all obstacles to the taking of testimony had been swept aside by vote of the court, thereby permitting Eugene Lamb Richards, of counsel for the managers of the impeachment, to outline the evidence against the Governor. This opened the case.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catocin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

THE YELLOW PERIL THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

From the days of the Gary Law Americans have been wide-awake as to the dangers of the yellow peril. It has been with us, unfortunately, but a question of economics, and whatever racial antipathy has been excited by its discussion, the main issue has been constantly one to safeguard the rights of the American laborer. As a fact, however, the issue involved goes deeper than mere cheap labor competition; in that particular it is a mere trifle when we think of the true peril to which the whole races are exposed from the steady and persistent aggression of Eastern races, not only including the Japanese and Chinese but even the great swarming races of the East Indies. If the United States find danger in allowing the yellow men of the East to invade their territory and form a part of their permanent population, England also begins to awaken to the great peril she is exposed to by the aggressions of her subdued colonists in the eastern, western, and south-eastern sections of her Empire. The problem of developing forces which will bring about a new Asiatic nationality that will enter the lists of strife with the old nations of the West for ethnic supremacy, is a vital one, for it involves not only the "survival of the fittest" but the prevalence and permanence of the world's supremacy by the master race.

The "powers," as they are called, are pondering over the puzzling question that grows out of the "fortunes of Montenegro or the fate of the sick man of Turkey," but they are blind to the advance of a greater peril which will soon break forth over the world; for events are rapidly taking shape on the other side of the world which go to show that a dire struggle will inevitably engage the mighty efforts of the whole races against the yellow hordes of Asia. The very fact of England's obligations to Japan by her defensive alliance with the Government of the Mikado, give rise to fear on the part of her people that are living along the Pacific coasts. There comes a warning note of danger which has been sounded by the anti-Asiatic antagonism which is filling the mind of the white people everywhere. A racial war is impending, whether the tocsin has been sounded on the western coast of Canada, or that of our land. The settlement of Japanese on Queen Charlotte Island in the Pacific or off Vancouver is no less ominous of danger than the same movement from Oregon to Mexico on our Pacific coast and that of our Latin-American neighbor. Shall we be warned in time? The facts speak loudly. British Columbia is occupied by Japanese who "settle down in solid phalanxes of 10,000 or more at a time or place," says B. F. Nrooman, of British Columbia. The same writer says: "If these emigrants had their families they would represent permanent population, giving over half the population of Vancouver as Oriental."

The Japanese Government will not allow a foreigner to own or even work a mine in Japan; but she insists that her subjects should own mines and land in Canada and the United States. She allows no foreigner to engage in fisheries in Japanese waters, but she demands the right for Japanese to fish in American and Canadian waters. The fisheries of Canada are now wholly in Japanese hands, yielding 10,500 Japanese laborers $500 to $3,000 a year apiece. Must Americans or Englishmen yield to the pride of Japan when she claims that our opposition to her demands are inimical and treaty-breaking? Let us guard our coasts and see whether so-called agriculturists or fishermen from Japan are not so many military cohorts that come to us in the wooden horse that floats to our shores.

ROAD BUILDING AND MAINTENANCE.

The question of highway maintenance as presented by the office of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture is an all-absorbing one today. While ten of millions of dollars are to be expended in improvement of the highways before the present year is out; and that plans are making for expenditures which will run high into hundreds of millions in the near future—New York State alone being engaged in distributing fifty millions of dollars for roadway improvement in the different counties of that State—there is above all the great question which should predominate over road building merely; it is the maintenance of the roads as they are throughout the country. It is the duty of the States and the various counties, with such help as the United States Government can legally afford, to see to it that great and intelligent care be taken of the roads now constructed and that the vast sums appropriated for the purpose shall not be diverted to tentative road construction or wasted in the maintenance of those actually in existence.

Let the principle be that the road now built shall not be allowed to get out of repair. It is not so much road construction at this initial period of the movement that demands earnest and well-directed efforts, but the maintenance of our roads by an intelligent system of unremitting upkeep. See how matters stand in Europe regarding public roads which in some cases have stood for centuries. Their ideal condition is the result of a maintenance and upkeep which has enlisted the thought and skill of the best engineers of the country. Let this be our present and most urgent problem and road construction will come up in due time and the road congresses which are assembling in various sections of the country will take up the matter of new road building when that question of far deeper concern at the present—road upkeep—has been satisfactorily settled.

COL. BAUGHMAN FOR CHAIRMAN.

The fact that during the past ten days district after district has formally endorsed Col. E. Austin Baughman for chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee, proves beyond a doubt that Colonel Baughman's qualifications for this important position are fully recognized by the Frederick County Democracy.

While this should be most gratifying to the new chairman—and Col. Baughman is not a man to be unappreciative of an honor of this kind, bestowed, as it is, in a manner so gracious and whole-souled—the party, of which he is such a faithful and consistent exponent, is to be congratulated in having within it ranks one who is in every way capable of guiding its destinies.

He is of a family of leaders, in touch with the people, and as in the past his father led the forlorn hope of the Democracy of Frederick county to honorable struggle, the Colonel will now prove himself the worthy son of a worthy sire.

Colonel Baughman needs no encomium. To say that he is the man for the place explains everything.

"FARM HELPS" DOPE.

The papers metropolitan essay full many a trick, and try to fool the farmers with a scheme they think is slick. The man who writes their "Farm Helps" is a city chap you know, and doesn't ken the difference 'twixt a harrow and a hoe. He takes his encyclopedia, copies stuff to beat the band, and palms it off as knowledge that he's gotten at first hand. He gets it wrong at that, but then the artist takes a shy, and paints all kinds of pictures of big crops that reach the sky. The poet adds a verse or two of "how to make it pay"—of how the eggs from just ten hens will keep the wolf away. But all this dope is dream stuff, and if followed you can bet, every farmer for his life time would be hopelessly in debt.

THE Cumberland Daily News says: "One-half the world buys drinks for the other half." Which leads us to request that, if the buying half is loitering around Cumberland, the generous editor of the News will bid it come hitherward.

WRECKS, wrecks, wrecks on the bum old W. M., no being alive can figure the infinite number of them.

THE jobbers are talking of "dollar eggs." May it end in talk.

Editorials From Maryland Exchanges.

The Proper Spirit.

There is a general "get together" feeling among the defeated candidates at the primaries. Several published individual cards in the Democrat pledging their hearty support to the ticket nominated. All should do this and show to the electorate that they bow to the will of the majority and are in hearty accord for a decisive Democratic victory in November. A candidate who enters the primaries and is not broad-minded enough with good grace to abide by the result and publicly declare his allegiance, is unworthy of public confidence. And this is true whether they class themselves as Progressives or Reactionaries. From now on until after the polls close in November they should be known as Democrats only, and without qualification. This is the only way to be honest with themselves and their party.—Harford Democrat.

The Marbury-Lee faction, which assumes to be next to President Wilson, apparently is not the majority faction in the state. Had this faction won, it is a pretty sure conclusion that Mr. Lee, whether he be elected or not, would have had considerable influence in the appointments, especially as so doing would presumably help Marbury in his fight to secure Senator Smith's when his time expires.—Carroll Record.

With the Democratic party united throughout the state, it is predicted by political observers that it will win a most sanguinary victory at the November election. Seldom in the history of the party has it on the whole presented to the voters of the state a stronger or more efficient list of candidates and because of the ability and qualifications of the nominees the people will rally to their support. Although the primaries for different nominations were hotly contested in Baltimore City and several counties, the contests have not left any sore spots or discontent.—Cecil Democrat.

The true Democrats of this county and State have one paramount duty to perform this fall, and that is to stand by and maintain the harmony and the supremacy of the old Democratic party, and we believe that they will do it.

Don't forget, Democrats, that our victory last fall was a victory for old Thomas Jefferson Democracy, pure and simple. The word progressive was not in our hearts and minds. It was old time Democracy that inspired the hearts and nerved the arm of every Democrat that voted for Wilson and Marshall.

It was not the names nor the men for whom we voted, but it was for the Democratic principles which they represented which the Democrats voted for. By those principles let every true Democrat stand now, and the grand, old Democratic party will be still stronger in this great Nation and State.—Frederick Citizen.

The platform committee of the State Democratic convention voted down a resolution favoring the submission of a constitutional amendment, giving the right of suffrage to women, to a vote of the electors. It couldn't well have done otherwise, after defeating the initiative and referendum resolution; but there does not seem to be any good reason why such an amendment should not be submitted to the direct decision of the voters. To be sure, it might be regarded as a waste of time, effort and money, as it isn't likely such an amendment would secure a majority; but then the people have a right to know how the voters stand on the question.—American Sentinel.

Don't be in a hurry to reckon on a Democratic majority at the election in this county on November fourth. It has been so long since we have had a strict party contest, and the changes in population have been so many, that no one really knows how many Republican voters there are, and there may be a surprising lot this fall.—Montgomery Press.

CURRENT COMMENT FROM LEADING JOURNALS.

Prices of practically everything are found to be higher now than they were a year ago. This being settled, the country may take up another little matter, that of figuring where the $2,000,000 a day spent upon motion pictures in the United States comes from and is going to.—Christian Science Monitor.

Efficiency in Business.

Efficiency is the last word in modern business methods. It stands for the new work of securing maximum results with minimum energy. Harrington Emerson has made a large contribution toward this new science. He defines it as "the elimination of all needless wastes, in material, labor and equipment, so as to reduce costs, increase profits and raise wages." Former President Roosevelt referred to it as "the application of the conservation principle to production." Louis Brandeis defined it as "universal preparedness." Canadians can well regard it as . . . success. Mere greatness of natural resources yields place as a factor in industrial development to the efficiency of methods used, and the men who use them. Technical education finds here its greatest work. Not only must things be done, but they must be done well. Whatever country does them best, has best chance of industrial success and commercial supremacy. In Canada there are ample resources. But there is yet need of that efficiency by which these resources can be made to serve their highest purpose. In every place that men work or children learn let the watchword be 'Efficiency.'—Ottawa Citizen.

Mr. Bryan's Statement.

Having finished his lecturing tour in the tents of the Chautauquas, in which his net profits, according to his own statement, amounted $6,500, Mr. W. J. Bryan, Secretary of State in the Cabinet of President Wilson, announces his intention of continuing his practice of lecturing, asserting that the public criticism of his employment in that manner of time paid for by the Government is malicious, partisan, or based on misinformation. Against the accusation of malice and partisanship the critics of Mr. Bryan's course must defend themselves, if they think defense is necessary, as best they can. The charge of misinformation, however, will not hold. Mr. Bryan has absented himself from the State Department to deliver lectures on the Chautauqua circuits. That fact he cheerfully admits. The judgment of him is based on no other charge.

Mr. Bryan's statement is an admission of what a large majority of his fellow-countrymen regard as an error of taste and judgment and a neglect of public duty. It contains no shadow of excuse. We must infer from his own words that if he had been elected President of the United States he would still have continued his lectures to the Chautauqua crowds. Mr. Bryan believes that no person whose opinion is worth having will think the less of him because he neglects grave public duties for the sake of self-advertisement and private gain. That depends, of course, upon the kind of persons whose favorable opinion he thinks worth having. We have neither seen nor heard any proof of public approval of Mr. Bryan's course; on the contrary, the consensus of opinion of persons whose opinion is generally thought to be worth having is that Mr. Bryan ought to be compelled to choose quickly between serving the nation as Secretary of State and lecturing on the rural circuits.—New York Times.

Our Mistakes in Mexico.

There is precious little in the way of pride which Americans at home or abroad, especially abroad, may extract from the policy of this administration in its relations to Mexico, so far as they pertain to the citizens of this country in the neighboring republic. It is difficult to estimate the real harm which has been wrought by the impression conveyed to foreigners that the United States is unable, or certainly unwilling, to protect its citizens who are in Mexico at this time or who may be in any other country when trouble is brewing. It is that aspect of the Mexican situation which has given occasion for something like shame. It is proper to enquire whether England, for example, would pursue such a course under circumstances which found its citizens menaced by disturbing conditions in a country where Englishmen had gone in good faith, invested their money, established their business and conducted themselves according to law. Would they be warned to leave their property to the ravages of bandits? Would they be offered the hospitable shelter of a government steamer proudly flying the Red Cross emblem instead of the British flag? Would they learn that their government had assumed the exalted position of non-interference, introducing a novelty in diplomatic procedure and find that they must abandon their homes and interests to scurry back to their native land for protection? It requires no vivid imagination to establish the certainty of mind that no such combination of events would confront the Englishman.

The spectacle presented in the Mexican situation is intolerable and it is an inevitable sequel of the refusal to recognize the Huerta government. The mistake has been made of trying to conduct negotiations without a preliminary recognition of the one authority which has the semblance of stability and which, in any event, can be held accountable for insults to Americans and danger to their property. The course of the administration has left nothing but humiliation before the rest of the civilized world. We have lost standing with little chance of restoring ourselves to the dignified position which we have a right to occupy among other nations. There may be some unexpected development which will enable this government to emerge with national glory from the Mexican muddle, but, for the present, we seem to have attempted a bluff and failed egregiously. European observers are entitled to believe that protection of Americans does not extend beyond our continental limits unless our citizens are willing to accept of alien hospitality and subscribe to foreign allegiance.—Army and Navy Register.

Ouimet's Triumph.

An awful blow to British golfing pride, worse even than the triumph on English soil in the amateur championship games of Mr. Travis a few years ago, is the victory of Francis Ouimet in the open championship tournament at Brookline. For the renowned Travers a year ago to beat Hilton at Wheaton was all very well; but, as amateurs, and it was tit for tat, as Mr. Hilton had then held the American championship for a year. But for Vardon and Ray, Britain's professional cracks, to be downed by an almost unheard-of American youth is enough to cause great excitement. Ouimet surpassed himself yesterday with his score of 72. On the other hand it must be frankly admitted that 77 and 78 are only fair scores for Vardon and Ray. The latter had an average of about 36 for each nine holes in the British open championship last year. Both Vardon and Ray have played 18 holes in fewer than 70 strokes. Nevertheless, young Mr. Ouimet's triumph was substantial and astonishing, something to crow about. But let us crow moderately.

It is the first time in American golfing history that an amateur has won an open championship, and in no other American open championship tournament have two British professionals of the stature of Vardon and Ray been entered.—New York Times.

We should like to hear an explanation from senators and representatives why a private citizen able to devote some of his earnings to bringing to the country the product of a higher culture than is on the whole to be found here, must be fined 25 cents on every dollar that he spends in doing so. A duty on foreign art is as much a tax on education as a duty on books. It puts a handicap on every art collection and museum in the country.—Indianapolis News.

"My Maryland."

Even now, writing of it after so many, many years, I seem to feel again the pulse of that thrilling time. And it was here that there came immediately into my life one of the strongest influences in the radiant person of my cousin, Hetty Cary, daughter of my uncle, Wilson Miles Carey, of Baltimore, my father's elder and only brother. She, with her younger sister, Jennie, had taken the lead in the secessionist movement among the young girls in Baltimore, who, having seen all their best men march across the border to enlist with the Confederates for the war, relieved their strained feelings by over-resentment of the Union officers and troops placed in possession of their city.

It was Jennie Cary who set Randall's stirring poem, "Maryland," to the air of "Lauriger Horatius" (brought to her by Burton Harrison when a student at Yale College), and first sang it with a chorus of her friends in a drawing-room in Baltimore. She tells me that the refrain as originally printed in the copy of versus cut by them out of a newspaper, was simply "Maryland," and that she added the word "My" in obedience to the exigency of the music. As the song thus boldly chanted by young Confederate sympathizers in a city occupied by their enemy and under strict martial rule was to drift over the border, to be caught eagerly by the troops of the Maryland line, and to echo down the ages as the most famous battle song of the Confederacy, it is fitting that to Miss Jennie Cary should be awarded all the honors of the achievement. We both sang it among a little group of visitors in September, 1861, standing in the doorway of Capt. Sterrett's tent at Manassas, the men of the Maryland line facing us in the dusk of evening. This was in answer to the request sent in from the soldiers to their friend, Capt. Sterrett, "that they might hear a woman's voice again." I can hear now the swing of that grand chorus as the men gradually caught up the refrain and echoed it, and by next day to our joy and pride, the whole camp at Manassas was resounding with "My Maryland."—From Mrs. Burton Harrison's Recollections.

A Double Game

By HARRY VAN AMBURG

"Mighty dull this lounging about a hotel waiting for something," said a man to another who occupied a chair
beside him.

"Well, yes, rather. Cards is about the only way to pass the time. And the difficulty about cards is you must get up a party to play 'em."

"I couldn't do that," said the other,
"for I don't know a soul socially in the town. I expected to finish my business here today and get out this evening, but I didn't succeed."

"I know several men who board
here," said the other. "I was thinking of getting up a little game of poker
this evening in my room, five cent ante or something like that."

"I wish you would and let me in."
The party met, and the man who didn't know anybody was introduced by his friend to the others as Mr.
Wheelock, the introducer's name being Jones. They sat down to play with a five cent ante, but kept raising it till it reached a dollar. Mr. Wheelock didn't object and bet as high as any of the party, sometimes winning and sometimes losing.

It was not long before Wheelock discovered that, though he neither lost nor won much, the money he staked was gradually passing out of his hands and was supplied by new five dollar bills, all on the same bank. The fact didn't seem to surprise him, nor did he object to it. He did not even comment upon it. But Mr. Jones, from whom the bills came, remarked that he had had $1,000 paid him that afternoon at a bank and it had been given him all in these new five dollar bills
on the bank from which he had received the money. This explained his having so much of it all of the same denomination.

While the game was in progress a bell rang rapped at the door and asked if Mr. Wheelock was in the room. On being told that he was he handed in a bouquet of flowers. Wheelock received the flowers with evident astonishment. When the others rallied him at having a sweetheart near at hand he looked embarrassed and declared that he didn't know a woman in the place, and if he had "made a mash" he was entirely unconscious of it.

"However," he said, "gentlemen, I trust that you will drink to the lady, whoever she may be, with me." And rising, he pressed the electric button and on the arrival of a waiter ordered a bottle of wine. The quaffing of wine and the game went on together after this, but none of the men present seemed to care to drink to excess. Mr.
Jones, in whose room the party were
was especially abstemious, barely sip-ping his wine.

But Mr. Wheelock and one or two of the others having finished the bottle,
the first named ordered another, and when it had been left in the room Wheelock followed the waiter out for some purpose and when he returned shut the door and turned the key unknown to the others. He then deftly slipped it up his sleeve and after resuming his seat, being hidden by the table, transferred it to his pocket.

"It seems to me," remarked one of the party, "that those flowers have a very decided perfume."

"Very decided," chimed in another.
"It makes me feel like turning in,"
said a third.

"Perhaps we'd better open a window," observed the host, "and get some air. Would you object, Mr. Wheelock?"

"Certainly not."

Jones went to a window and tried to open it. It seemed to be stuck. He went to another, which also resisted his efforts. Mr. Wheelock seemed to be intent on the cards, but his mind was on the windows. He had gained access to that very room during the day and had driven a nail into the sash
of each window.

Jones turned away with a frightened look on his face. There were two games being played in his room—one by himself, the other by Mr. Wheelock. Jones staggered to the door and tried to open it. Finding it locked, he looked more frightened still.

"Some one has locked us in here,"
he said. "We must get out."

He caught on to the back of a chair
The perfume from the flowers was overcoming him. He returned to the window and made another effort to lift the sash. He failed and was or his way to the other window when he sank down unconscious.

Meanwhile the others of the party were also giving way to the effects of the flowers and one by one either rolled down to the floor or bent over unconscious on the table. Wheelock counteracted the fumes by holding a vial under his nose. When all except himself had succumbed he summoned a waiter and directed him to bring the police as quick as possible. They arrived in a few minutes and were much surprised at the scene before them—several men asleep and money in heaps on the table.

"That man," said Wheelock, pointing to Jones, "is a counterfeiter. I am Parkinson, a detective. I tracked him here, and the others, I fancy, are his colleagues. He has been trying to shove his stuff on me for my good money. Better put the bracelets on him before he comes to himself."

When the party woke up they found themselves in the hands of the police.
But the only one "wanted" was Mr.
Jones.

Smoking Postmen of Korea.

A decidedly quaint character is the Korean postman, says a writer in the Wide World. You come across these gentry in the morning, delivering the letters. They appear to recognize the dignity of their office and fulfill their duties in a very quiet and grave manner. In wet weather he dons his "rain clothes" to protect him from the heavy showers. Over his white kaftan he wears a light mackintosh, provided by a thoughtful government, while his head is covered with a waterproof hat made of oil paper. He is further fortified against the wet by an umbrella.
Like most Koreans, the postman could not possibly work without his pipe,
and as he strolls from house to house
he is invariably smoking. The letters are carried in a leather satchel strapped to his back. This individual may be taken as a typical example of the physical characteristics of these interesting people. They are tall—over a head higher than the Japanese—well built and fair complexioned.

When Critics Disagreed

Professor Lounsbury tells a good story which seems to show that in the matter of poetry critics hold diverse opinions and that one man's opinion is as good as another's. According to the professor, Aubrey De Vere, the Irish poet, collected on the same day
the opinion of three of his brother poets on the poetical standing of Burns.

One of these poets, who was Tenny-son, said Burns' songs were perfect,
but that one had to forget his serious pieces to enjoy them. The second, who was Wordsworth, said that Burns' "serious efforts" showed great genius, but that his foolish little amatory poems were worthy only of oblivion. The third was Sir Henry Taylor, who said that he found Burns' songs and his serious poems alike—tedious and disagreeable.

Spoonerisms.

Even history has its charms. As one follows the events of the day start echoes from the past, and sometimes laughter. Example:

Here is a quaint fellow in Tay Pay's Weekly revealing marvels about the signs and names of English inns.
Creditable performance, doubtless, though drowsy withal. But we have conned the pages of history, so remember Spooner—the great, great Spooner
—he who got run over while "boiling
his icicle" at the side of the road, yet recovered and went home by "the town drain." To Spooner we owe a criticism
—by deeds, not words—of the names they give inns. Surely you recall his agreeing to meet a friend at the Green Man, Dulwich, and, with his usual aptitude, hunting all afternoon for the Dull Man, Greenwich.—New York Tribune.

Nothing Like System.

"There's nothing like system," said a New York official. "System will accomplish the impossible."

"The director of a recent art show was a fine chap for system. One day he arrived at the show without his pass and the gateman, a stranger, held him up."

"I have no pass nor ticket," said the system exponent, "but I am the director of the show."

"You'll have to produce your ticket,
sir."

"But I tell you I'm the director—
high mucky-muck—boss."

"I can't help it, sir; I'm forbidden to let—"

"Yes, I know," said the director impatiently, "but, my good fellow, as the director, I give you permission to let me pass."—Washington Star.

Scientific Uses of the Radish.

An alcoholic solution of the skin of a red radish serves as an excellent indicator or test for acids and bases. In the presence of acids the colorless solution turns pink, while with bases—alkaline solutions—it turns yellow. It is well known that many plant extracts, such as litmus, and animal products, like cochineal, possess this property of developing marked colors with acids and bases, but no other indicator is so simply made.

Ready to Take a Chance.

"All right, dear. Now, if you can going for half price I'll buy the thing."

Giving Him Away.

"Ma," inquired Bobby, "hasn't pa a shore seemed like heaven to him."—

TRAGIC DEATH OF
TALENTED YOUNG LADY

Miss Kathleen Beard, Wife Ill, Wanders Along W. M. Tracks and is Struck by Train.—Daughter of Rev. M. L. Beard.

The tragic death of Miss Kathleen Beard, aged about 30 years, daughter of Rev. Mr. M. L. Beard, of Thurmont, was a shock not only to Thurmont, but to the surrounding communities, where Mr. Beard is so well known.

Miss Beard's ailment, a nervous break-down, required the attendance of a trained nurse. Eluding the watchfulness of her nurse last Tuesday night Miss Beard wandered from the house. As soon as her absence was noted searching parties were formed and at an early hour Wednesday morning the young lady's body was found along the Western Maryland Railroad tracks. Death was probably instantaneous. With the exception of one foot being crushed and several broken bones, the body was not mutilated. It is supposed that Miss Beard was struck by the Pittsburgh Express which passes through Thurmont at 11 o'clock.

Miss Beard was an accomplished musician and elocutionist and a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music. She had been instructing a large number of pupils on the piano.

Miss Beard is survived by her father, three sisters—Mrs. Lester Birely, Miss Haidee Beard and Mrs. Maud Mumford, who is the wife of the Rev. Carl Mumford, of North Union, Pa. Two brothers—John and Paul Beard, of Thurmont, also survive.

The funeral took place this morning at Thurmont. Services were conducted by Rev. Charles Reinwald, of Emmitsburg, and the interment being beside that of Miss Beard's mother at Middletown.

The funeral took place in the Chapel of Greenmount Cemetery at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. Edward F. Bagby, a former friend of Mr. Grimes conducted the services.

Mr. Grimes is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Katherine Brady, and one son, Gerald E. Grimes, who is a student at Mt. St. Mary's College.

In a few minutes Mrs. Hammond heard Mrs. Hann scream and rushing to the room found the aged man dying in the arms of his wife. Physicians were hastily summoned but he was dead before anything could be done. Besides his wife, three children and Mrs. Hammond, a step-daughter, survive him. Just a Card About the W. M.

A passenger who took the early morning train for Baltimore writes: "The W. M. is absolutely punk. The Blue Mountain was two hours late at Emmitsburg Junction and we have been hung up at Westminster for another two hours. Our train is made up of two smokers and a bum engine." Later: "I did not arrive in Baltimore until 12.30."

Cheap Paint

There are 1000 "cheap" paints and a dozen really cheap ones.

That double word "cheap" is the cause of wasting more money than good paint costs, two or three times over.

Cheap paint is good paint; there is no other; no other is cheap.

The two words sound alike but their meanings are opposite. "Cheap" costs double. Cheap is Devoe.

Miss Katherine Seltzer, of Baltimore, is visiting relatives and friends in Emmitsburg and vicinity.

One day the past week, a gentleman who prides himself on being a fine pedestrian, and also as having the faculty of finding his way from place to place, started for a walk to Indian Lookout and Carrick's Knob. He succeeded in getting to those points without any trouble. On his way home, however, Mr. G. followed a path which he thought would lead him homeward; but, alas! paths are many and confusing in the mountain. He lost his way entirely for awhile and wandered through bushes, briars, stones and rocks. After three hours' tramping he finally landed in the back yard of one of the farmers living close to the foot of the mountain and was met, not by the family dog, but by the family cow, which, being unused to strangers, proceeded with lowered head to chase the intruder to the public road. Mr. G. says he is naturally afraid of dogs, but that such an inoffensive animal as the family pet should resent his sudden appearance in her master's yard, was totally unexpected. He did not stand on ceremony; but made good time in reaching the road and placing a fence between himself and Mistress Cow.

JEROME HURLS INVECTIVE AT THAW HEARING

Eloquent Assault Comes as a Complete Surprise to Everyone. Ex-Gov. Stone Replies in Kind.

The hearing at Concord, N. H., on Tuesday, before Gov. S. D. Felker, on application of New York State, for the extradition of Harry Kendall Thaw, took a sensational turn.

Stung by the charges of bad faith made against him by Thaw's lawyers, William Travers Jerome put aside his prepared brief, and after first shattering much of his opponents' arguments by stating that an indictment against the fugitive had been found by the Dutchess county grand jury, launched forth into a bitter attack on the prisoner and the efforts of his wealthy relatives and friends to prevent his incarceration at Matteawan.

Ex-Gov. W. A. Stone of Pennsylvania, of Thaw's counsel, replied in as severe language as he could muster on the spur of the moment, referring ironically to the "oratorical powers" of Jerome, and the hearing closed, the lawyers for the prisoner obtaining permission to file supplementary briefs on or before Monday.

That Gov. Felker will grant extradition is generally thought likely. If he does, Thaw's case will then go to the Federal courts on the habeas corpus writ.

CORTRIGHT METAL SLATE

Roofs put on twenty-six years ago are as good as new to-day, and have never needed repairs. What is the result? Why practically every other shingle manufacturer is trying to imitate it, so be not deceived—look for the words "Cortright Reg. U. S. Pat. Off." embossed on the corrugation. It is put there for your protection. Accept no substitute.

KNOWLEDGE

Is a Better Guide Than Instinct When Buying ::

By HOLLAND.

KNOWLEDGE is more widespread today than ever before. Twenty-five years ago much buying was done by instinct—done in a haphazard way that is a thing of the past like the spinning wheel and the tallow candle.

Your grandmother trusted largely to luck—you depend on knowledge when it comes to spending money. What causes the difference? Advertising.

Publicity has revolutionized business. It has increased business honesty, has advanced business ethics and has ended slipshod methods.

To gain the advantage of these changed conditions you must have knowledge. You must know values. You can learn them only by studying advertising. In no other way can you learn what is best
 and what the best is worth.

CARELESS BUYING
 OFTEN MEANS
 DISAPPOINTMENT.

Equip yourself with the knowledge necessary for economical buying. If you have money to spend you owe this to yourself and to those for whom you buy.

"Bob White" Likes Music.

A baby quail was captured and brought to the house. The large cage provided for him stood upon a square of oilcloth, and this was little Bob White's ranch. The door of his house was always open, but he seldom wandered beyond the limits of his own domain. One thing invariably tempted this little recluse to venture forth, this was the sound of music. Like a small boy racing after the band, the moment the tones of the piano reached his quick ear he started on a run, and the quick patting of his tiny feet announced his approach. He would circle about the piano and, with a pufffluff of his short wings, mount to the keyboard. The little square corner at its end was his opera chair, where he cuddled down contentedly as long as the music continued, at times expressing his appreciation by a contented
 soft, purring sound.—Suburban Life.

Money Value of a Woodpecker.

The slaughter of migratory birds is surely followed by the increase of destructive insects. Among the best of the farmer's bird friends are the woodpeckers, especially the redheaded members of the species. In proof one careful observer says: "A pair of them nested in a dead cottonwood tree near my uncle's orchard one year. One day
 I watched them through a pair of opera glasses. The young birds were about half grown. The parents made ninety-six trips in one hour, each time with a worm. It is safe to say that they saved ninety-six apples in that hour—
 a box worth, say, $1. If the birds worked ten hours a day they were worth $10 to my uncle, or in the three weeks the birds were in the nest $210.
 Can a farmer afford to kill a woodpecker?"—Youth's Companion.

How Capital Grows:

Two centuries ago the sum of $5
 was bequeathed for the education of the children of poor inhabitants of Lytham. In course of time the fund grew to nearly £500, and this sum was invested by the trustees of the Lytham charities in a plot of land which now forms the center of Blackpool. Within the last fifty years the corporation of Blackpool has paid about £100,000 for the freehold rights of small sections of this estate, and it is believed that in course of time the value of the property owned by the charities will reach £500,000.—London Express

Naturally.

An American motoring through a small Scotch town was pulled up for excessive speed.

"Didn't you see that notice, 'Dead
 slow?' " inquired the policeman.
 "Course, I did," returned the Yankee.
 "but I thought it referred to your bloomin' town"—London Answers.

Faith, Hope and Charity.

"How did that ne'er do well manage to live?"

"In hope that if he inspired enough faith he might live on charity."—Baltimore American

Game.

Mother—Now, children, I want you to kiss Miss Lemon goodbye. Elder Brother—Come on, Billy, be a sport.
 It'll be over in a second.—Life.

Man, Petty Man.

Knicker—There's plenty of room at the top. Bocker—Yes, but your wife lets you have only the bottom bureau
 drawer.—New York Sun

So She Did.

"Jack proposed to me while turning the music for me at the piano."

"Ah, I see! You played right into his hands."

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

Here is one of the latest things in house gowns boasting a Roman sash.
 The waist line is slightly raised, suggesting the empire effect, and the deep pointed frills of the sleeves seem to belong therewith.

The three piece skirt and the simple blouse are joined one to the other and lapped and closed at the left side.
 There is a chemisette that can be made
 low or high.

For the medium size the gown will take seven yards of material twenty-seven inches wide, with two yards of lace nine inches wide for the sleeve frills and one-half yard of silk for the bands.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7882,

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

Fancy collars and pretty fichus make an important feature of the season's fashions. Fichus take every possible variation of the familiar form, and collars appear in constantly increasing variety.

The wired collar suggests the medical idea and is combined with prettily shaped revers. If a simpler effect is wanted the wired or medical collar can be used without the flat one over the shoulder, or the flat collar can be used without the wired collar. Either of these collars will at once transform a plain blouse. Every woman knows the value of such an accessory.

To make No. 1 will require three-quarters of a yard of material twenty-one inches wide; to make No. 2, two and three-quarter yards of lace or embroidery five inches wide and one yard

 of plaited ruffling.

This May Manton pattern is cut in one size only. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7880, and it will be promptly

Frequently it pays one to be of an investigating turn of mind.

Thousands of Housekeepers have investigated its merits and now would not think of using any other flour. If you are not using Challenge Flour try a
