Henry P. Burgard, a barge canal contractor, now residing at Fulton, N. Y., has been a lifelong friend of Kennedy. Rumor had it that Mr. Burgard knew the reason why Kennedy should take his life, but on the telephone Mr. Burgard said:

"John Kennedy must have been crazy. I don't know of any reason why he should commit suicide except the worry caused by the Whitman John Doe proceedings, and I don't know why that should have worried him, although Mr. Kennedy was a very nervous man. He is in good financial circumstances, and had money and property that he accumulated in a long and busy life.

that he may have sustained and do not know of any enterprise that he may have lost money in. In the bonding business in Buffalo, he was what is calle resident vice president of the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company, whose home offices are in Baltimore."

Mr. Kennedy had declared to his attorney, as well as to other personal friends, that he did not fear that there was anything upon which Mr. Whitman might indict him, but that the affairs of the state treasurer's office were so intricate that a shrewd attorney might easily place him in an unpleasant position before the public.

Selnator Bacon Dies Suddenly.

Senator A. O. Bacon, of Georgia, died in a hospital in Washington not long after it had been announced that his condition was improved. A bloodclot on the heart was the immediate cause of death.

The senator had been ill a little less than a month. At first it was thought he had fractured a rib by a fall, but an illness attended by a high temperature set in. Later examinations and X-ray photographs showed, however, that an affection of the kidneys was

Several days ago the senator was taken to a hospital, where he got along favorably, and with a recession in temperature thoughts of an oper ation were abandoned.

The scene on the senate floor for several minutes after the announce ment of the death was unusual. Senators paced nervously from one group to another, discussing the unexpected shock. Many of them were so affected by the news that they scarcely spoke. Mr. Bacon, as chairman of the importa power in the senate. He stood fifth in the senate in point of service.

> Those who returned were Captain J. Campbell Besley, an Englishman; Franklin B. Coates, J. K. Holbrook, photographer of the expedition, and J. W. Dunne. They reported the discovery of a new Inca city in Peru, called Plateriyayoc, and visited other regions hitherto unknown to white > Traces were found also of the lost Seljan expedition, which took the same route as the Cromer expedition. Captain Besley thought that the bones might have been the remains of members of either party. The Seljan expedition was in search of rubber and is said to have been financed by F. F. Grundlich, of Chicago.

> Besley said he and his party encountered savage cannibal tribes, who were armed with poisoned arrows, and on one occasion his party were attacked by them. A few gunshots drove them off.

> Considerable scientific work was accomplished. Slides were made of the of jungle life, snakes and members of the cat family particularly.

> "It was one of the most exciting and perilous journeys that a white man has ever undertaken and passed through alive," said a member of the party. "There were times when a wrong move meant death, not only among the savages, but also while traveling the treacherous Huallayo river, full of rapids and whirlpools. We had to divide our nights into four watches as a protection, both against the Indians and wild beasts."

> It was after they crossed over the range to the headwaters of the Amazon that the treal troubles of the expedition began. Both the north and south rivers forming the upper Amazon have been explored, and the party therefore took their course down the middle river, from which no white man ever before has returned.

> Before the descent began eight of the party were stricken with fever and had to remain behind. The four who came through found the middle river, known as the Huallayo, a succession of whirlpools and rapids.

> Many of the natives along its banks never had seen white men before. They were armed with bows and arrows and the arrows were tipped with poison. The members of the party had difficulty in keeping their guides, as the natives frequently attempted to ambush them. Some of the natives had old flintlocks, but the party was equipped with the finest modern repeating rifles, and to this they owe their lives.

Progressives Want Roosevelt. An entire Progressive ticket will be placed in the field at the New York state elections next fall.

The state committee of the National Progressive party decided upon this unanimously. During the discussion of the problems which confront the party in the state, Theodore Roosevelt was suggested in speeches as the Progressive candidate for governor.

The ex-president was not mentioned by name. He was referred to by Jonas S. Van Duser, of Elmira, in launching the boom, "as the gentleman in South America."

Mr. Van Duser urged that the party work without taking that gentleman into its confidence and give him a "surprise" on his return home.

The commission previously had sus pended the increase until March 15, pending investigation as to their fairness. This action is taken as indicating that the hearings, now in progress, will require many months, and that the decision, which had been expected within a few weeks, will be long delayed.

The decision of this question had been looked forward to as having a great effect on general business.

The commission reviewed the formal hearings on the proposed advance. Protests against any increase in the rates on glass were made by concerns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, New York, Ohio and Indiana.

The plan of the fifty-two railroads in the official classification territory, comprising all those operating east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio and the Potomac, for a general advance of five per cent in all class and commodity rates, was brought before the interstate commerce commission nearly a year ago. It was the revival of the effort, which had failed shortly before, to increase the incomes of the roads by freight rate increases, and was made imperative, according to the heads of the chief railways, by the great increase in the labor costs, due to the arbitration of demands by enginemen, firemen and trainmen, and to many other causes of increased expenditures by the various

On May 13, of last year, formal briefs were filed with the interstate commerce commission, and on June 26, acting on its own initiative, the commission issued an order that an investigation into the need of the increase would be held. The decision to investigate was reached by a bare majority, three of the commissioners, Clements, McChord and Marble, dis-

An important incident of the hearings was the recent declaration of the commission that the main steam railroads must charge all industries controlling and operating small branch roads for the services performed. It was set forth that the "allowances" made to such roads, particularly those controlled by steel companies, were practically rebates and operated to the disadvantage of other industries. These "allowances," it was declared, amounted to millions of dollars and

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scoth-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.-Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND.

The House of Parliament now in session, indicates an epoch making one in the history of this great deliberative body.

There is no doubt but that the Bill of "Home Rule for Ireland" will be the storm center, dominating all questions presented at this Session.

The Liberals after a long continued struggle have at last agreed, as a question of pure justice, to grant Home Rule for Ireland.

This long contested fight that has been waged for over a quarter of a century, seems to have at last reached a point where the dogged persistency of its intrepid proponents shall finally be crowned medal presented to Senator Root value, and which rejects rubbish which with triumph.

of this Parliament.

It is not only the automatic action of repeated legislation by the House of Commons, nor again the inability of the House of Lords to squelch Ireland's fond dream, that leads us to premise its eventual inactment; but the underlying tendency to compromise, and the bringing together of contending parties. The speech from the Throne conveyed the hope of compromise, and although the Unionist infer no such agreement is possible with the exclusion of Ulster from the operations of the Law, yet in spite of Lord Carson's bitter campaign against the admittance of Ulster in the scope of the Home Rule propaganda, there is still a source of safety as the Unionist demand that the question be returned to the peoplethe final arbiters after all.

Ulster is but a fraction of Ireland and a comparatively small one--those opposing Home Rule in that province are not proponderant in population. The Government can with ease, through the army, promptly quell the rebellion should an attempt be made to precipitate such a condi-

GEORGE T. EYSTER.

In the death of George T. Eyster, Emmitsburg has lost a good citizen and the family of the deceased a loving husband and a kind and affectionate father. Born here where he spent his entire life, except that period during which he bore arms in defense of his country, "Cap" Eyster, as he was familiarly called by his intimates, was almost a part of Emmitsburg, and his friends and acquaintances included nearly the entire population of the district. He was a modest man, an unassuming man, a gentle man-one who while he respected the opinions of others still held to his own, one who unostentatiously managed his own affairs and conceded the right of others to regulate their own. Moreover - and this is a rare quality, rarely possessed in these days-George Eyster spoke ill of no one. This is the fibre of which good citizens are made, and the death of a citizen like this one makes a void that can not well be filled.

The Economic Side of The Liquor Question.

As showing the tremendous change of public sentiment with reference to the liquor business, all one has to do is read the daily news. There was a time when one rarely heard of anti liquor talk outside of the church and temperance publications, and occasionally from some advocate of Prohibition in a semipolitical way, but now the fight is on packed by industrial and business organizations, with the use of more practical always originating from the best motives but certainly in their conclusions reaching the same end-that the use of liquors is detrimental to efficiency in the individual, consequently to business and the country as a whole.

The old style of temperance speaker arguments, that "Wine is a mocker and said: "The wisdom of Solomon strong drink is raging," and all of the set phrases and time-worn platitudes, have largely disappeared, and in their places we have scientific and economic facts, backed, not by temperance women and a few male enthusiasts, but by represented a personal experience the foremost business minds and hard in his life from which he had headed thinkers and masters of finance in the country. This change in the make-up of the anti-liquor army is forget that Solomon had 300 bound to count for something. In time -just how long we do not know-it will count for much, for as influential men take up the question it is bound to become a vital political issue, and when it does there will be a battle royal, such as the liquor interests have never yet

So much for the Austrian subject. But if the taxpayer happens to be a foreigner, domiciled in Austria, who is irritating habit. Instead of telling her paying to his own government a tax on his entire income, he must also pay to Austria the full tax rate not merely on that portion of his income which he derives from business in Austria or which he spends there, but on the whole of it, which may be accumulating or be spent in his own country. If, therefore, a New Yorker who has investments here which pay him $50,000 a year goes to Vienna to live, he must pay his $760 tax here and $5500 more there.

The Limit.

Mary Jane's master is a slightly eccentric bachelor. He has one most what he wants done by word of mouth he leaves on his desk or on the kitchen table or anywhere else where she is likely to see it a note curtly directing her to "Dust the dining room" or 'Turn out my cupboard," and so on.

The other day he bought some notepaper, with the usual die sunk address imprinted upon it, from the stationer and ordered it to be sent home. Mary Jane took it in, and the first thing that caught her eye was a note attached to the package. She read it open eyed.

"Well," she said, "he's asked me to do a few things in his blessed notes, but this is the limit. I won't stand it no longer!"

For the note read, "Die inside this package."-London Answers.

A President In Shirt Sleeves. The Swiss president's unassuming status has given rise to many stories. Edmund d'Auvergne, visiting the government buildings at Bern, "noticed the word 'Bundespraesident' (president of the confederation) inscribed over an inconspicuous door, just as you might see the word 'Cashier' or 'District Registrar.' I called to mind how an important English railway contractor once knocked at this door and was answered by a man in shirt sleeves, whom he took to be a clerk. It was the president himself." # Pony Express Riders.

In the days of the pony express many wonderful, long rides were made by those engaged in carrying the mails through dangerous country. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) made a round trip of 384 miles without stops, except to change horses and to partake of one meal. It is recorded that Robert H. Haslam (Pony Bob) rode being ten hours on the road. Jack Keetley, a pony express rider, is credited with 340 miles in thirty-one hours, and Jim Moore, another rider, is said to have covered 280 miles in fourteen hours and forty-six minutes. - New York Sun.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish asmany personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who nave guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fall to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

GOODS DEPARTMENT STORE

UR ANNUAL INVENTORY is finished | The New Arrivals and a new business year the 28th—begun with early Spring goods coming in daily, (ahead of most stores). The growth of this store and its business is a natural encomium by our clientele which shows their appreciation, in a substantial way, of the usefulness to them of our great stocks. The many good words of unsought praise, not only for the diversified stock but also for the character of our merchandise, and the feeling of safety enjoyed by our customers in buying from uswe very greatly enjoy. This praise and an ever increasing patronage has encouraged us to sell better merchandise, give better service and a newer and greater selection from season to season—where that is possible. Contracts made for Spring delivery—some of them made months ago-are being consumated and the results are now being shown by us-so if you need or inclination makes it necessary to buy now for Spring we are fully ready with the very newest goods as here listed.

Or should you desire or need any of the Winter's season goods—we have put CLEAR OUT prices on almost every Winter need in wearable-so that by your waiting you will make a handsome saving-enough to more than to pay you to carry a part of their use fulness into next Winter. This is especially the case in the buying of FURS AND COATS for women and children. DRESS SKIRTS, WOOL UNDERWEAR, ETC. Still a very complete stock to choose from.

Also our store inventory has revealed many little lots of goods in every department that have been marked for quick selling, so that this is an interesting and a money saving time to visit this store—the equal of which for the size and variety of its stock can only be found in the larger cities-and where for fairness of price we yield to none.

For a long time there has been differences between the president, the students and members of the faculty which eventually found their way to the trustees. Last year there was an open break between Dr. Warfield and the graduating class over the Mecklin-Warfield controversy, the students going so far as to refuse to make the usual gift of the graduating class to the college.

This dispute was precipitated by the announcement of the resignation of John M. Mecklin, professor of mental and moral philosophy, whose views were said to have been not in accord with the views of Dr. Warfield. The president took the case to the trustees of the institution and is said to have declared that either the resignation of Mecklin or that of himself would have to be accepted.

Crowd In Church Cowed With Gun. All Saint's Holiness church, near Federalsburg, Md., was the scene of a reign of terror at the close of service on Sunday night, when Michael Miller stationed himself at the main exit and threatened to shoot the congregation if they attempted to pass out.

The little church was crowded at the time and men, women and children jumped out of the windows and fled, many of them leaving their convey ances behind. In several instances mothers took infants in their arms and jumped from the windows to the ground. Several women fainted and had to be lifted bodily by their husbands, who managed to escape the half-crazed man.

Miller was fianlly subdued when J. A. Nichols dealt him a blow on the head. He was captured by Edward McCoy and arraigned before Magistrate Waddell, of Hurlock, who fined

Paint----Drouth

The longer the drouth the more rain is required to water the earth.

The longer a building goes without painting the dryer it gets and more paint is required to keep water out. A ten gallon Job this year is a
