SHORT HISTORY OF JOHNSON

THE FIRST GOVERNOR PROMINENTLY CONNECTED WITH FREDERICK COUNTY

IMPORTANT FACTS NOT KNOWN

Tardy Recognition Of One Of Maryland's Greatest Men Assured In A Bill For a $10,000 Memorial Now Before Legislature.

The bill in the Maryland Legislature to appropriate $10,000 for a monument to "Tom" Johnson, first Governor of Maryland, should make the too little known history of this early patriot of peculiar interest to every resident of the state. The need of a suitable memorial to perpetuate the name of this illustrious man has long been recognized and it is hoped that the present project will be brought to fruition in the near future.

Says the Baltimore News:

Johnson is rightly called a Marylander. In a greater degree than any of his contemporaries his career is linked with the whole State, Southern Maryland, Western Maryland and the Eastern Shore all have an individual interest in his fame. He was born at St. Leonard's, in Calvert, on November 4, 1732; he died at Rose Hill, in Frederick on October 26, 1819; for nearly 10 Colonial years he represented Anne Arundel county in the lower House; he sat for her in the Provincial Conventions; and when, in 1776, his thoroughgoing conviction that the colony should cast off the English yoke, and his uncompromising expressions made him persona non grata with some electors at home, he was chosen to the Convention at a special election in Caroline county. He went to Annapolis at an early age and became a lawyer of note. His family had removed to Frederick, and here he settled in 1780. He was one of Frederick's delegates to the Convention of 1788, which ratified the Constitution of the United States, and another was the second Governor, Thomas Sim Lee. As a member of the House of Delegates, of the Provincial Conventions and Councils of Safety, of the Committee on Correspondence of the Continental Congress Johnson gained the title—bestowed by Massachusetts—"The Fire Brand of the Revolution." On June 15, in the year 1775, in the Continental Congress, he nominated George Washington of Virginia to be commander-in-chief of the American Army. Repeatedly selected from his colony to the Continental Congress, Johnson's ardor could not be confined within the council chamber when the greatest need of the day was for action in the field. He centered his energy, when the infant nation was born, in organizing and equipping troops for the conflict. Senior brigadier-general of militia, he was with Washington in the Jerseys when he was elected Governor of Maryland in February, 1777. Twice re-elected, he was the civil and military head of the State during the three crucial years of the Revolution, and stands as its most colossal figure for that period. In the darkest days of war he raised, equipped and personally led reinforcements to Washington when the patience and courage of the chief was strained to the utmost. It is little wonder that the first President wanted him to head his Cabinet.

After retiring as Governor, Johnson made his home in Frederick. He served in the Legislature from that county, as Chief Judge of the Provincial Court, and as an Associate Judge of the United States Supreme Court. He was on the commission that laid out the District of Columbia, and his last public act was to deliver a eulogy on Washington at Frederick in 1800. He died at the ripe age of 87 years, having been born in the same year with Washington and having survived him 20 years.

Five Hundred Acres Of Spinach.

What is said to be the largest spinach farm in the country is in the valley of the Colorado river, three miles below Austin, Tex., says the Country Gentleman. It contains 500 acres, all in one field. The spinach sells for from $3 to $5 a barrel and the proceeds will run from $60,000 to $100,000. To provide plenty of laborers a large colony of Mexicans has been established on the farm, and men, women and children are kept constantly employed, summer and winter. Mexican chili peppers have also been successfully grown to the extent of 200 acres and an equal area is in cucumbers.

Last week Chief Justice White observed the twentieth anniversary of his appointment to the Supreme Court bench.

WALSH AND RAILROAD SITUATION

Has the Ear of the Administration and a Say in All Deliberations.

It is clearly evident as a result of the conference in Washington on the railroad situation during the past week that Governor Walsh has the confidence of the Wilson administration to a greater degree than any other Democratic leader in Massachusetts, says the Boston Post.

Throughout all the deliberations between the federal department of justice and the New Haven, he has been kept in touch with developments through correspondence, and several times Special Agent Gregory, who has the matter in charge, has come to Massachusetts to interview him.

For some months some of the ablest legal talent in the country has been employed on the matter by the New Haven. But no point in the agreement has been settled without the confirmation of Governor Walsh, and whoever may be selected finally for the board of trustees will need to be approved by him.

The Governor succeeded in carrying the principle that the men who are to attempt to reconstruct the road shall command the confidence of the public and not be identified with the banking and financial interests who have been responsible for the lamentable condition of the Boston & Maine.

It will be some weeks before the agreement is finally decided upon, and the board of trustees named. The activity of Governor Walsh has stirred the public officials of both Maine and New Hampshire to action, and this is one of the best results of the conferences, since they have waked up all northern New England to a sense of the importance of the situation.

FRAT HOUSE DESTROYED.

Alpha Tau Omega's Home at Gettysburg Now a Mass of Ashes.

The large chapter-house of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity Gettysburg, was destroyed at an early hour Sunday morning, together with all of the contents, including personal effects of a number of the members and all the chapter records. No one was in the house at the time and no one was hurt, though firemen had narrow escapes from falling walls.

The building, a large three-story structure, was the most recently built, most modern and most valuable fraternity-house at Gettysburg College. Starting either on the first floor or in the basement of the building, the blaze gained headway before it was discovered, about 4 o'clock.

The fire came as a tragic ending to the festivities of junior "prom" week at Gettysburg. Only last night the fraternity entertained a number of guests following a class play and when the house was closed at midnight everything was apparently alright. A smoldering fire in an open hearth is given as the only possible cause of the blaze, but that is considered unlikely by members. The building was erected in 1903 and was located opposite the college campus. The fact that students are not allowed to room in fraternity-houses at Gettysburg College accounted for the building being vacant at the time of the fire.

Busses To Supplant Railways.

An interesting and significant development is under way in England in the matter of passenger transportation. The motor bus is preparing to engage in competition with the steam railway, one of the smaller companies having entered into preliminary contracts to take over local traffic and link up 40 different cities and towns, requiring the placing of over 1,000 motor busses on the public highways of the country. A challenge is out on the part of the principal omnibus company—Greater Omnibus Services (Ltd.)—addressed to the Royal Commission on British Railways, to carry a given number of passengers over a certain distance (an average railway journey) at a superior speed and at less cost than can be done by the railways.

Railroad Fined $402,000.

The Louisville & Nashville railroad was fined $402,000 and enjoined from doing intrastate business in Mississippi by a decision based on the charge that the railroad company had failed to obey an order of the Mississippi railroad commission to the effect that its trains should stop at Bay St. Louis. The company gave a supersedeas bond for double the amount of bond pending appeal.

Decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposed freight rate increases is expected to be reached probably within three months, and certainly before the Commission adjourns for its summer recess on July 1.

U. S. NEEDS MERCHANT MARINE

This Country Pays Foreign Companies Millions for Carrying Her Freight.

The United States has just paid $12,000,000,000 as tribute to European commercial masters for carrying her freight and as much again is about to be paid unless there is an awakening of American business men to the need of an American merchant marine, according to a statement by Rear Admiral W. W. Kimball, U. S. N., retired. The statement was issued through the Navy League. The rear admiral thus sums up the United States on the eve of the opening of the Panama Canal. He recounts the situation at Seattle during the Boer War, when the foreign trade of that city was helpless because of the withdrawal of the foreign vessels for war purposes.

"Were a general European war to withdraw the vessels of Germany, Great Britain, France and Italy the trade of the whole nation not only would suffer, as did Seattle," he says, "but would be entirely without transportation facilities at any price. When the American business men awake they will give us a commerce of our own based upon an American merchant marine. They will change us from a lopsided, tribute bearing community to a great, symmetrical, independent nation, a maritime nation owning and controlling its maritime affairs. They will teach us, the great American superintelligent people, what the general run of British, Teutons and Latins in Europe already know, namely, that no nation with a seaboard can be a real nation without a commerce—without sea power."

WILSON WAY WITH NEWSPAPERS

President Allows Reporters Half Hour a Week for Questioning.

Unlike either President Roosevelt or President Taft, Mr. Wilson has no recognized newspaper cabinet. All properly accredited newspaper men in Washington have exactly the same opportunity to converse with the President and to learn his attitude on whatever they may be interested, but the knowledge which they secure necessarily becomes the property of all the other correspondents.

There is only one rule at all such conferences with the President, and that is that he is never quoted. In order that there may be no mistakes made, the Washington correspondents are given a typewritten statement of the questions and answers of the interview at its conclusion.

The fine mental alertness of President Wilson, his keen sense of humor and quick-wittedness are never put to a more strenuous test than on any Thursday afternoon when the Washington correspondents gather in the White House to interrogate him on every sort of subject.

The grilling lasts for 15 minutes to a half hour. When the newspaper correspondents have exhausted their questions, the President bows and all file out.

Within a few minutes the wires and cables are busy carrying the news of the President's attitude to all parts of the world.

Government Ownership Already.

It is not generally known that the United States Government owns and operates a railroad which has proved to be an exceedingly profitable investment.

The Panama Railroad, which Uncle Sam purchased as a necessary tool for the construction of the Panama Canal, shows net profits for the last fiscal year of $2,180,000, representing about 31 per cent. on the company's capital stock of $7,000,000. Uncle Sam, however, does not use these profits to pay himself dividends, but allows them to accumulate as surplus. The total assets over liabilities now amount to over $15,379,000.

A New Brake Record.

Tests by the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Westinghouse Air Brake Company show that a train of twelve steel cars going at a rate of sixty miles per hour can actually be stopped within its own length. A train of this weight stores up 224,000,000 feet-pounds of energy. This is sufficient to raise the entire train 120 feet. With prevailing brake equipment such a train would be stopped by an emergency application in a distance of 1600 to 2200 feet, according to the truck rigging and brake-shoe design.

Friend Of Anti-Slavery Leader Dead.

Lemuel E. Webb, aged eighty-one is dead in Tabor Iowa. Mr. Webb was a personal friend of John Brown of Ossawatimie, and often assisted him in operating his "underground railroad" for runaway slaves, Tabor being one of the important points on the line.

PEOPLE WANT "HANK" BACK

EXILED BY A LETTER

Cumberland Writer Was Once a Convict

REFORMED, WAS MAKING GOOD

Editor of Daily News Will Scour the Country to Get Him.—Position Open to Him.—Whole State Aroused.

Out of Cumberland there came this week a story in which there was mingled so much of pathos and manliness, villification and charity, cowardice and bravery, that busy men paused to read it, reread it and dwell upon it, and kindly folk, and generous, to come forward to register their condemnation of the dastardliness that brought it to light, and to extend the handclasp of sympathy, of goodwill and admiration for a hounded man, a victim once, but now, unwittingly on his part, a modest hero.

Because "Hank"—Harry S. Hayward of the Cumberland News—was fearless in his work and by his trenchant stories offended certain people in Cumberland, his past was looked up by some of his enemies and it was discovered by them that at one time he had served a term in the Maryland penitentiary. Anonymous threatening letters were sent to him.

Fearing that an exposure of his former status might reflect upon the paper with which he was connected (he had never divulged his record to his employer, yet the latter knew it, it seemed), he suddenly disappeared, leaving behind him a pathetic letter disclosing his past and giving his reasons for departing.

The News published Hanks letter and also a reproduction of the anonymous communication threatening "Hank" with exposure. This brought out the ire of the Cumberland people and at the same time a demonstrative appeal to "Hank" to return.

"Hank" must come back," said W. W. Brown, who went to Baltimore in search of his former staff assistant, "Cumberland is now his home, he has made his place there and the people want him back. I will travel all over this country or go to Europe to get him and bring him back if necessary because no matter what has happened in the past, we believe him to be square and he belongs with us. We are not going to let any bulldozer or blackmailer drive him away from us permanently by threats of revealing his mistakes of the past."

"He made this sacrifice for me—this giving up of the home he had made for himself in our community, and the place he had won among the people—because he thought that I and the paper would be hurt if his secret should be made known. He made the mistake of not speaking to me about it before leaving. The whole matter could have been straightened out in two minutes."

Commenting on the case the Cumberland Times says:

"That this community indignantly condemns such an effort to ruin a man who is manfully trying to do right, and is apparently succeeding, is all to its credit. Moreover, it is ready and anxious to welcome 'Hank' back to his adopted home and show by such action its confidence in him and its condemnation of the creature who is guilty of such gross violation of every principle of manhood, justice or mercy."

"Cumberland is probably not the best city in the world, but it has no place or tolerance for so vile a thing as an anonymous coward who seeks to destroy under the cover of darkness."

This is the comment of the Baltimore Evening Sun:

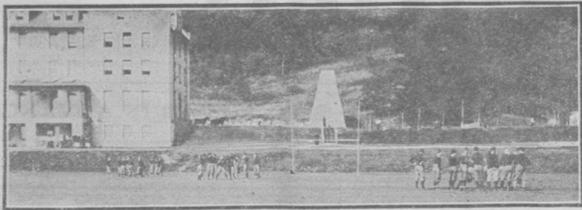

"Jean Valjean is constantly reappearing in real life, though for many years he seemed too strange even for fiction. The journalist who has made Cumberland famous and has been helping to redeem it had a story of his own as pathetic and as appealing as the hero of the French novelist. And he proves once more to a doubting world that good can come out of Nazareth."

Postal Inspector Mensch has been ordered by the Postoffice Department at Washington to make an investigation into the case of H. S. Hayward, better known as "Hank," political writer of the Cumberland News.

Editor Brown appealed to the Washington authorities Tuesday. He was accompanied by Congressman David J. Lewis, and after an interview with the authorities he came to Baltimore in search of Hayward.

A bill prohibiting all race track betting is before the Legislature.

MOUNT SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

Terrace Talk

Mr. Ralph Keating, 14, editor of the Mountaineer, announces that a substantial sum of money in gold will be forthcoming to the student who will have furnished him by April 1, the best article on the Return of Augustine to England.

George J. Goldsborough, '14, is concocting a Mountaineer story for March that is as wild as a March hare. It has several earmarks of plausibility, however, and ought to prove of interest as a tale. If it be accepted by the editor of the college monthly Mr. Goldsborough will try his hand at journalism in Mobile, Ala., during the summer vacation.

Coach John L. Day will go to Baltimore tomorrow in the expectation of hearing His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, preach at the Cathedral on Sunday.

The Spanish colony at the Mountain is particularly interesting this year. And they are all clever students, as witness the way they handle English. Six months ago the Senores Casares, Cerveza Lynch and Camino applied for admission to the school, arrangements for their tuition had to be made in Spanish. Now, it may not be long before we find one or two of them in the Mountaineer.

Ernesto Madero and his brother, Enrique, are striving to emulate the example of their distinguished forbears who have left notable records of their college days at Mt. St. Mary's. In classroom and in the gymnasium the work of the Maderos is steadily improving. Luis Madero, who has been away for several months on account of illness, will return shortly to Emmitsburg.

The Varsity team journeyed to Westminster on Saturday where they defeated Western Maryland College by a score of 33 to 11. The game was not a very good exhibition of basketball science, the immoderate size of the court and backboards tending to puzzle the men of both sides. For Mountaineers, the boys were rather slow and sluggish in the first period, but in the final session, displayed their wonted energy, skill, and aggressiveness, and carried off the victory. Previous to this game, the Mountain quint had defeated the same team on the home court by a score of 26 to 10. The line-up was as follows:

M. S. M. Position W. M. Costello L.F. Arthur Phillips R.F. Collision May C. Numbers Leary L.G. Thomas Lally R.G. Adkins

Score: M. S. M. 33; W. M. 11. Goals from floor: Costello 4, Phillips 2, May 2, Lally 2, Donovan 1, Sutton 2, Arthur 2, Collision 1, Numbers 2. Goals from foul: Costello 7, Collision 1. Substitutions for M. S. M.—Donovan for Phillips, Sutton for Lally, Rogers for Costello, Costello for May. For W. M.—Graebe for Adkins. Referee, Mr. Kaufman. Time of periods 20 minutes. Scorer, Cogan. Timer, Mahoney.

Two interclass games that proved close and exciting were played during the week in the gymnasium. The Seniors defeated the Juniors by a score of 22 to 21 on Friday and on Monday the Sophomores nosed out the Prep quint by the close score of 17 to 16. The Seniors now lead the league with four games to their winning list and one to their losing.

Bucknell University's basketball team fell an easy prey to the Varsity tilters on February 19 when the latter scored 41 points to 14 for the visitors. At the beginning of the game Leary secured the ball from the centre and caged a field goal. The Mountaineers held the lead throughout and their opponents were always kept in the rear. In the first period both teams resorted to long shots from the floor, but in the final session M. S. M., displayed more team work and their caging was done principally on close shots.

The line up was: M. S. M. Position Bucknell. Costello L.F. Breuner Phillips R.F. Schaffer May C. Welchons Leary L.G. Archer Lally R.G. Golanic

Baskets from floor: Costello 6, Phillips 5, Leary 3, Donovan 4, Rogers 1, Breuner 3, Schaffer 2, Welchons 1. Goals from fouls: Breuner 1, Murray 1, Costello 3. Subs. for M. S. M., Donovan for Phillips, Sutton for Lally, Sheridan for Leary, Rogers for Costello. For Bucknell: Murray for Archer, Bell for Welchons. Referee, Kaufman. Timer, Cogan. Scorer, Keating. Time of periods, 20 minutes.

DOES IT PAY?

Business men—big business men who make big money by attending strictly to business—do not spend big lump sums of money "for the fun of it." When they spend big money for advertising, for instance, they know that they will get big returns.

To show what faith one advertising firm has in printers ink, read this:

For the car and station advertising privileges on New York subway and elevated lines, together with the news stand rights, an advertising firm offered the Interborough Rapid Transit Company $14,000,000

The February Mountaineer.

Several well-written and well-conceived papers add very materially to the interest of this month's Mountaineer, which publication still maintains the high standard set for it this year by Mr. Keating, its editor, and his staff. Mr. Collier's article on the "Governmental Ownership of Public Utilities" treats the subject very comprehensively and shows diligent preparation. In "Trial by Jury and Some of Its Earlier Peculiarities" we find many interesting facts regarding the dispensing of justice in the dim past.

The verse in the same number is of unusual merit. Mr. Kelly's "Mountain Churchyard" deserving particular mention; the editorials are timely and telling; while the regular departments, the book review, alumni and local news, all evidence the progressive spirit that characterizes the whole magazine.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingonore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

A BASIS FOR SMALL INDUSTRIES.

Now that electrical power is available in this community, it is interesting to note that the establishment of any long list of small industries becomes possible, and we suppose it will not be long before some such business proportions are put under way.

By "small industries" we mean such as can be carried on by one or two men with small investment of capital. Glancing over a few of these we think of a number of typical examples. Take sawing wood, for instance. There are a good many cords of wood sawed up in this town in a year. Most of it is done in the old back-breaking way. Now the man who gets a small motor that can be directly connected to a saw, along with 150 feet of cable, and mounts the outfit on a hand-truck, can saw wood in almost any back yard in the burg at a price that will leave the man before the buck gasping.

Take the business of grinding and polishing tools as another example. With his shop equipped with a little motor-driven grinding set the operation can do all kinds of grinding and polishing and buffing with a fraction of the time and labor required by the old hand methods. Or with a small portable set he can go around to the houses of his customers and do all the work required for a family for six months or a year in an hour or two.

Take washing. Electrically operated washing machines for family or small laundry use are being sold by the thousands. Then there are the ironing mangles and electric iron—the boys that put the "dry" in "laundry."

In the plumbing and cabinet makers shop one cent's worth of electricity, at the price at which it is sold in Emmitsburg, will keep a pound soldering iron hot for a half hour; will keep a half-pint glue kettle hot for four hours; will operate an ordinary grindstone or emery wheel for half an hour; will drive a small forge blower for nearly two hours; will operate a portable drill for from twenty to fifty minutes, depending on how much the drill has to do.

Who will be the first one to start in the electric vacuum cleaner business in this town taking this outfit from house to house in the spring and fall and saving the house wife the wear and tear of house cleaning—not to forget saving the house man the soul-depressing task of castigating the carpets? Who?

Whoever he is we hope he will "get busy" ere the gentle spring returns.

TO "HANK"

Brave "Hank" wherever you may be, return! A welcome for you beats in many a heart.

Nor does the torch of justice cease to burn In admiration of your manly part.

The past? We draw oblivion's curtain o'er it all.

You fell, but ah you rose and made amend;

You did what many fail to do who fall,

And zealous was your purpose to the end.

The skulking "coyotes," on foul carrion fed,

May roam the hills and gnash their teeth and bark,

You need not fear, their prey's the cowardly, the dead;

They shun the light, they grovel neath the dark.

You left, full noble was your motive, true,

You left that no opprobrium should descend

Upon the men who had played fair with you,

Who hailed you as their comrade and their friend.

Return, old frat, and "muse" again, we beg,

Come back with head erect and heart aglow;

Come, hang your hat upon the same old peg,—

That you have friends, and warm, we'll let you know.

BLOCKADED ROADS.

The Frederick county road laws, insofar as they pertain to the non-opening of roads blockaded by snow, are not only unjust, but pitifully lacking in reasonableness and common sense. We have had a glaring example of their failure as benefits to local people within the past ten days. Pennsylvania has opened its roads to the Maryland line; Frederick county has allowed its roads, by the operation of a fool law, to remain closed. If you are ill, do without medicine and the doctor, or die. If you need a priest or minister keep on needing him. You pay taxes, its true—that's a privilege. The appropriation of them is only for fair weather.

The fact that some county roads have been opened, under the supervision of Pennsylvania road commissioners and with money obtained by private subscription from local people, is a fine commentary on Frederick county's beneficent regulations applicable to public thoroughfares.

GOVERNOR COX of Ohio complains that "there is more money in the treasury than we know what to do with." The Massachusetts Legislature would show him if it had the chance.—New Bedford Standard.

La, man! If the Maryland Legislature had a crack at the treasury it would make it look like a child's penny bank, after the old man had hit it Saturday night for the wherewithal to supply "suds" for the kitchen party.

A WOMAN thinks a bird on the hat is worth two in the bush.—Washington Herald.

That's where the woman differs from the man. The latter thinks a hot bird (with the proverbial "cold bottle") far better than either.

WE will wager a set of sleigh bells against a pair of ice creepers—and the Star Spangled Banner celebration only a few months off—that not one Marylander in a thousand knows the words of Key's immortal song.

In the language of Abe Martin, what has become of the fellow who always asked, "Is it cold enough for you?"

BE A BOOSTER ROOSTER.

Do you know there's lots o' people, 'Settin' 'round in every town, Growin' like a broody chicken, Knockin' every good thing down? Don't you be that kind o' cattle, 'Cause they ain't no use on earth. You just be a booster rooster, Crow and boost for all you're worth.

If your town needs boostin' boost 'er, Don't hold back and wait to see If some other feller's willin', Sail right in, this country's free; No one's got a mortgage on it, It's just yours as much as his, If your town is shy on boosters, You get in the boostin' biz.

If things don't just seem to suit you, An' the world seems kinder wrong, What's the matter with a boostin', Just to help things along; 'Cause if things should stop agoin', We'd be in a sorry plight. You just keep that horn a-blowin', Boost her up with all your might.

If you know some feller's failin's, Just forget 'em, cause you know That some feller's got some good points— Them's the ones you want to show; Cast your loves out on the waters, They'll come back, 's a saying true, Mebbe they will come back 'battered' When some good soul boosts you.—EX.

COMMUNITY COURTESY.

Courtesy in the home is a mark of good breeding. Courtesy in the community is an evidence of good citizenship. The exercise of courtesy produces profitable relations in society, in business, in community life. Why do people patronize a particular store in your town? One reason is because the owner and his associates appreciate the value of the pleasant smile and the kindly word.

Why is one town a better trading town than another? One reason—perhaps the principal reason—is because the people are graciously disposed to the stranger, the street car conductors are pleasant mannered, the policeman on the corner solicitous of the public welfare and ease. Think now, the best town of your acquaintance is the town where you have had the best treatment, where your experience with the people has been the most agreeable.

Is that town, your town?—From the Efficient Citizen.

A safe containing $50,000 was removed from the ruins of the New Haven Railroad Station, which was burned on Saturday, with a loss of $300,000. Officials of the Company said the contents were intact.

The Maryland House of Delegates turned down the Suffrage amendment proposition.

AN HISTORIC BELL.

Hidden in an old New England mill is an object older than the oldest title of the English peerage, an object made before the English Parliament was formed. It is a bell, still in daily use in a factory at Saylesville, Rhode Island. Around the bell, about four inches from the crown, is this superscription, "Peter Secest Amsterdam, Anno 1263, me fecit."

The date, together with other well authenticated facts, leads to the belief that the bell was long used in a convent belfry in England and was taken therefrom for public use during the Reformation. But the connecting link between its life in the Old World and its advent to America is the famous naval battle between the Guerriere and the Constitution.

The Guerriere, a helpless wreck, was rolling in the trough of the sea, while her brave but defeated commander, Captain Dacres of the Royal Navy, on the deck of the American frigate, the Constitution, was offering his sword to gallant Captain Hull.

The two officers had been friends in time of peace, having often exchanged hospitalities at the Mediterranean ports and now Hull's magnanimity shone out. "I'll not take your sword, Dacres," said he. "Keep it."

In the meantime the boats of the Constitution were busily engaged in transporting the crew of the defeated ship to the deck of the victor. A midshipman reported to the first lieutenant that the ship's bell had been carried away by a grapeshot from the Guerriere and that there was no way of announcing the time to the ship's company.

At that moment the Guerriere gave a succession of heavy plunges, and the clear tones of a fine bell rang over the water.

"Go get the Englishman's bell," said the lieutenant to the midshipman. "There will be no further use for it on board that craft."

The Guerriere surrendered at seven o'clock in the evening of Aug. 19, 1812, and at eight o'clock the same evening Peter Secest's bell in sonorous tones, rang out the hour on board "Old Ironsides."

With the lapse of time, the bell amid the confusion and debris common to a great navy yard, became misplaced, lost its identity, and was thrust carelessly to one side. It found its way to the scrapheap, was afterward sold by the United States, and finally came to rest in its present quarters.—New York Tribune.

HAVE YOU EVER HELD THEM.

"Has any whist player ever held the thirteen trumps in one hand? The phenomenon was seen at the United Service Club, Calcutta, on the evening of the ninth inst. The players were Mr. Justice Norris, Dr. Harvey, Dr. Sanders and Dr. Reeves. Two new packs were opened and were "trayed" and shuffled in the usual way. Dr. Sanders had one of the packs cut to him, and proceeded to deal. He turned up the Knave of Clubs, and on sorting his hand found that he had the other twelve trumps. The other suits were unevenly divided in the other hands, but in the excitement of the moment no record was taken of them. The fact was duly recorded in writing, six gentlemen signing their names to the document. The odds against this combination are, we believe, according to Dr. Pole, 153,750,000,000 to one; the probability of a given player holding thirteen cards of a particular suit, named before the deal is concluded, is put by the same authority as one in 635,000,000,000 deals."

TAKING IT LITERALLY.

Youth is ever literal. "Children," said the teacher, while instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but simply be yourselves, and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspirations from outside sources." As a result of this advice, Johnny Wise turned in the following composition: "We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but write what is in us. In me there is my stummick, lungs, hart, livver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick of barley, and my dinner."—Western Mail.

EQUAL RESPONSIBILITY.

Parents make a grave mistake, as we regard it, when they leave everything to the school in the training of their children; teachers, we believe, make as grave a mistake when they throw off all responsibility for the pupil at the close of the school day. Teachers and parents have distinct and well-defined duties to perform in relation to the child. It is true, but nothing that concerns the child's welfare can be without common interest to home and school.—Christian Science Monitor.

Cotton Growing in Panama.

Consul General Alban G. Snyder writes that an experimental cotton-growing farm is being conducted at Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, by a practical cotton grower from North Carolina. It is stated that a 15 square yard plot yielded about 15 pounds of bolls, or at the rate of 4,800 pounds of seed cotton per acre, the lint being 2 to 3 inches long. The grower has also hybridized wild cotton with United States cotton, and believes he also has an ever-bearing variety, which is pruned to produce a new growth.

Current Comment From Leading Journals.

How About Loss Sharing.

It is to be shown that any scheme of profit-sharing can be made to work which does not take into account lean as well as fat years. In principle, anyway, if a manufacturer is to make a division with his employes when the income is large owing to good times, the employes ought to share with him in the distress of bad times. It is quite likely that if labor should voluntarily take that attitude, which is fair, profit-sharing schemes would begin to multiply. Meantime, it is obvious that the gradual consideration of profit sharing schemes is making more and more for industrial peace. They do not exactly revive the intimate relations of master and man, as they existed in the earlier years, but they do establish a relationship of the most significant character. Indeed the United States has developed a new vision and it is bound to work to the greater contentment of the country.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

In Civilized New York.

The 580 persons killed by vehicles in New York last year equal the local death rate of a population as large as Salem, Mass. Add 194 homicides and we have the death rate for a Mobile, Ala., or a Canton, O. Add 453 suicides and we have the death rate for a Trenton or a Hartford. As in the general mortality lists, these victims of violence were of all ages, of both sexes, of every walk in life. They formed a died violent deaths less culpable, the total of 2356 furnished the death rate for a Paterson and Passaic combined.

The homicides alone are more than half the record of all England in 1906. Nearly 200 human lives are part of the price we pay yearly for our toleration of the gunman, the bomb-planter, the welder of knife and stiletto. Yet the New Yorker has a fifty-five per cent. greater chance of being killed by an automobile than by a murderer; the preponderance is much greater if he is of steady habits. Automobile killings in 1913 were 302, against 112 in 1910. The rapid increase was due solely to careless driving. If greater carelessness of pedestrians were at fault, the figures of deaths by trolley cars and wagons would show it; but they declined from 659 in 1910 to 278 in 1913. Pedestrians apparently grow more careful, yet are killed at the rate of almost one a day by motor cars.

For a city standing so high in many of the attributes of civilization, New York's record of deaths by violence is a shameful one. Suicide no public care can prevent. For the rest, the remedy is in strict enforcement of the law, and there is no other remedy.—New York World.

A Very Nervous Man.

Every time Governor Bleashe hears freedom shriek he opens the doors of the South Carolina penitentiary and turns somebody loose.—Toledo Blade.

Can't Let The Tango Go Alone.

The trouble is, you see, that to take the "tang" out of the tango would also take the "go" out of it, and then, of course, there would be nothing whatever left.—Indianapolis News.

"Country Above Party."

Senator Lodge's appeal to the body of which he is one of the most experienced and learned members to support the President's foreign policy is notable for two reasons, because Mr. Lodge is a stalwart Republican and because he has the stature of a statesman. When Mr. Lodge makes such a speech upon the relation of the United States with other Powers, no Democrat, and certainly no Republican, can question his sincerity and patriotism. It is no party matter with Mr. Lodge, although he can be an uncompromising partisan on occasion. When duty called him he has invariably put country above party.—New York Sun.

A Timely Anniversary.

There is peculiar timeliness in the observance at this time of the centenary of the birth of Samuel J. Tilden.

While Tilden peculiarly belongs to New York, it is well for all Americans to honor the memory of the man who killed the greatest political corruption of his day, and who later ended civil discord by commanding the acceptance of the partisan verdict of an extraordinary court which reversed the people's choice and deprived him of the Presidency.—Cleveland Plain Dealer, Ind't Dem.

A Need Of The Hour.

A girl may know nothing whatever about white slavery or white slaves and their tricks and guiles and yet escape all harm by simply having character, but if the character is lacking all the knowledge of things formerly unknown will not save her. Less prurient literature and more instruction in sound principles is the need of the hour.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Now For An Ass Serum.

Now that a horse serum has been found to possess healing qualities, it remains to push the homeopathic doctrine to the point where the blood of the mule is good for the kick.—Washington Post.

Editorials From Maryland Exchanges.

Annapolis Should Be The State Capital In Fact As Well As In Name.

It is stated that a bill will be introduced in the legislature soon to make Annapolis the state capital in fact as well as in name. The chief feature of the bill will be to remove all state offices, now located in Baltimore, to Annapolis. The legislature, of course meets at Annapolis the Court of Appeals sits at the capital, the Comptroller, State Tax Commissioner and the Commissioner of the Land Office have offices there, but about all other state business is transacted in Baltimore. While the Governor resides at Annapolis, it has been customary for many years to maintain an office for His Excellency in the big town at the head of the Chesapeake. Other state offices in Baltimore are those of the Attorney General, State Roads Commission, Public Service Commission, State Board of Health, Shell Fish Commission, Bureau of Statistics, Automobile Commissioner, and other important state departments.

It may be that a real estate movement is back of the bill to remove these offices from Baltimore to the capital, nevertheless, Annapolis is a wonderfully interesting town, with a history reaching back through three centuries, and the citizens of the state may well take pride in contributing to the glory of the ancient city on the Severn by a law requiring that, so far as practicable all state business be transacted at the capital.—Montgomery Press.

It is becoming quite popular in Frederick county for relatives to file protests against the wills of deceased members of the family. After while the only safe plan will be for persons to distribute their property before they die if they want to see their desire carried out.—Since Dec. 8, five wills have been attacked.—Middleton Valley Register.

A Good Sport.

The good sport is the man who not only grins and bears defeat, but also endures a triumph without too much grinning. He is the fellow who is always considerate of the other fellow's feelings and is always willing to lend a helping hand to a less fortunate brother. He is the fellow who would scorn to take advantage of any chance unfairly presented to him. He is frank and above board in all things, and does not try to shift the blame where it does not belong. When at work, he puts his best into his work and when at play he always plays fairly. He can always be depended upon to do what is set before him to the best of his ability. In other words, a good sport is the kind of fellow every young man should like to be, and is surely a good worth striving for.—Havre de Grace Republican.

'Congressman Lewis for the U. S. Senate' is the slogan of his admirers. Let us hope he doesn't see it that way. No better service can be rendered by him than that which he is doing just where he is, and we believe 'Davy' is more desirous of an opportunity to do the most good rather than to have the title of Senator.—Hampstead Enterprise.

Kill The Bill.

Of course we are not oyster dredgers, nor do we own any oyster beds, nor have we any personal interest in the matter one way or the other. But we think that it would be an outrage to try to kill the oyster industry in Maryland, and it appears to us that the bill now pending is for that purpose, at any rate it will accomplish that end.

Almost all of us feel proud, or ought to, that Maryland ranks first in the oyster industry. Almost any State in the Union would be glad to have this industry. So it stands to reason that one of the worst things that could be done would be to kill this lucrative business.

Many a man on the Peninsula would be poorer, many a man would lose his way for making a living and much money would be lost through the passage of this bill. We hope that this bill will be killed without further argument.—Exchange.

This year Easter day falls on April 12. During the twentieth century the date of Easter ranges from April 3, in 1903, to April 2, in 1943. During the century Easter days have come and will come 78 times in April and 22 times in March. March 23, 1913, marked the earliest date for the century.—Caroline Sun.

Monson, Mass., is not a great manufacturing centre, but it is a typical mill village of New England, and conditions there are not likely to be very different from what they are in other factory towns. A dispatch from there says the town is enjoying unusual prosperity. One woolen mill which began night work last week is now running 24 hours a day. The carding department of another woolen mill is also running night and day. A hat factory is running at full capacity, and employes have been asked not to lose any time if they can help it. Several weeks ago a woolen mill in North Adams, Mass., started up on a 24-hour-a-day schedule.—Cumberland News.

AT NEW ORLEAN'S MARDI GRAS

Interesting Account of Carnival in the Historic Southern City by Professor Lagarde.

Professor Ernest Lagarde, of Mount St. Mary's College, who is sojourning in his native land and city, sends the following account of the festivities of the recent Mardi Gras, in New Orleans:

Truly may I exclaim that "time with its whirligig brings many revenges," as I stand to-night where I stood 42 years ago, feasting my eyes then on the brilliant pageant of the Knights of Comus of Auld Lang Syne. Was it Aristophanes' Battle of the Frogs or the "Iliad" of Homer that passed dazlingly along when electric lights were but dissolving views in the dreams of the seer? for the panoply of the past has "hidden its diminished head" before the outburst of the supreme light which now heightens the beauty of the pageantry as the Revellers move along like visions of Dreamland.

As I stand under the broad porches—galleries, as they are called here, stretching from building to curb, I still see the old stained walls of old buildings in this old Spanish town, where Alexander O'Reilly came as a conqueror to quell the incipient Revolution of Lafreniere and Villere, who vainly fought to establish an independent government of the people; and there is the Catholic Cathedral, erstwhile the site of the first Cathedral, whose Moorish arches and flat roof spoke of the traditions of old Spain. This Cathedral was the pious gift of Don Andres Roxas y Almonaster, whose remains are entombed under the tessellated pavement, before the main altar. In front of it is what is now Jackson Square, but I remember when it was called Plaza de Armas—Drill Grounds, as we might say.

Memory recalls the fact that the Irish-Spanish Governor, Alexander O'Reilly drew up in this very square his 3,000 soldiers when he came to subdue the "Revolutionists" of 1768. About 45 years later, this square became the scene of patriotic enthusiasm and outpouring, as Andrew Jackson drew up his own victorious army to receive the ovation for his triumph over the English on the plains of Chalmette.

I ramble through the murky streets of the old Spanish town, aglow now with electric lights, and the clustered colors of the Past, green, yellow, red and white which barely glimmered under the pale rays of the flickering street lamps, and now replaced by the royal colors, purple and old gold, for His Majesty, Rex; these Imperial Colors are radiant now under the effulgence of electric lights.

Then as I look on the flowing river in front, the Father of Waters—old River—Mesachebe—as the children of the forest called it, I behold no longer the four or five tiers of three masted and three deck ships, but lo! there stands in the channel our navy's largest transport, the "Hancock"—which with its 1,300 men Mariners and sailors, have come to lend emphasis and a tang of power to the festivities of the day which gather an undertone of national greatness as we distinguish the impressive and frowning outlines of the battleship "Ohio," and its escort of attendant war craft.

In the days of the Past, Rex, the Lord of Misrule, came up the river on a steamboat plying between the Crescent city and the Queen of the West mayhap; today he sails on the great stream in majesty on a United States Revenue Cutter, the "Windom" which has been assigned as his Royal Yacht.

It was Thursday night that "Momus," god of mirth, appeared in a gorgeous pageant, representing "Mother Goose" and "Alice in Wonderland." This parade marked the opening of the public spectacles attendant on the Mardi Gras season.

After the street review of this brilliant pageantry, Momus appeared at the ancient temple of music, in Bourbon street, where he held high revel with his court of Dukes and a long retinue of attendants, all wonderfully masked and richly costumed, representing the subjects presented on each float.

The Knights of Momus entertained with gorgeous tableaux, and a sumptuous ball. King Momus robed in blue and silver, was seated upon a throne of gold. Flanking him on either side were his Knights. The ladies of the Court were announced by heralds who bore great scrolls writ in old English, naming the ladies of the Court. Upon the brow of a fair debutante was placed the royal diadem of the Queen, and the Queens Jewels were given her. Lesser jewels were bestowed upon the four beautiful maidens who completed the Royal Court, each maid being attended by a gallant Knight, members of the Kings own Royal household.

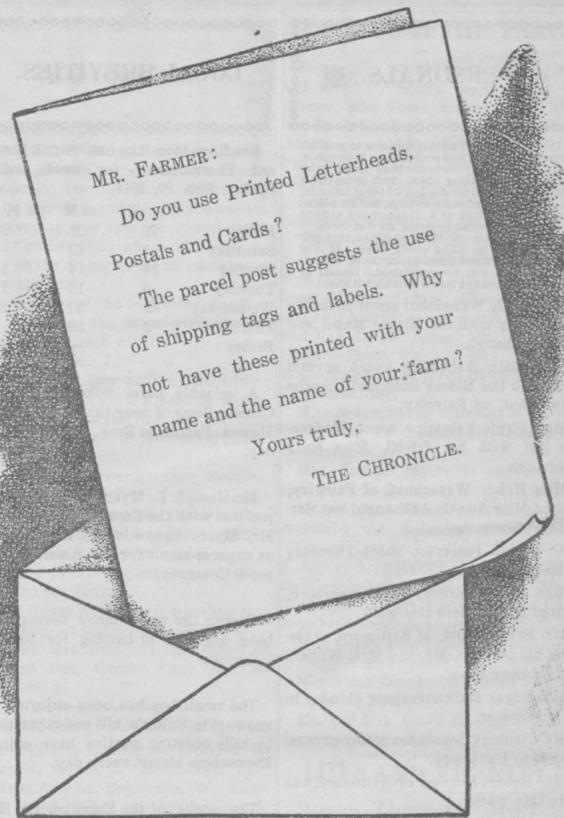

Jeweled women, richly gowned, and men in conventional evening frock, made a fitting background to the brilliant scene presented from the stage that for the occasion was enlarged by flooring the parquette, making a stage and ballroom of befitting size.

Entrancing music turned to terpsichorean tread, is watted out upon a scene of fairy-land, into the air of an almost summer night.

As the "wee sma' hours" announce the approach of the coming day, the strains of "Home Sweet Home" are heard, and this scene of beauty, revelry and gorgeous mirth is stopped—maskers with lingering adieux to reluctant maidens, at ending so soon those gay hours, slip silently behind the scenes and disappear leaving some troubled maiden to fathom the identity of her gallant Knight.

The house is soon emptied of its guests—and the doors are closed upon another triumph in Carnival display, in dear, old New Orleans.

The funeral of Mr. George T. Eyster which was in charge of the Grand Army of the Republic, was held at his late residence on Friday afternoon, February 20, 1914. The latest meeting of the Lyres Club was, by far, the best, from many viewpoints, since its existence. Music seemed to reign supreme during the fleeting but enjoyable hours of the assembly, but later gave way to quite a convivial social chat. Although the erudite members of the association have not many of their affairs, anent the club, undisclosed; the society profits immensely by its esoteric qualities. Readings and anecdotes that have caused many to rejoice, and topics of great moment were subsequently indulged in with unheard of success. The complacency of those present was gratified by edibles that would be acceptable to one of kingly lineage.

Friends Surprise Mr. and Mrs. Ohler. Wednesday a very jolly evening was spent at Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Ohler's, the occasion being a surprise tendered them by a number of their friends. In the party were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Zentz, Mr. and Mrs. G. Zentz, Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilhide, Mrs. Ed. Dewees, Misses Rose Gelwicks, Carrie Fuss, Lillian Zentz, Mildred Zentz, Grace Warner, Dorothy and Beatrice Zentz, Messrs. Estey Zentz, Harry Fox, Charles Fuss, Roy Eyer. At a late hour they were invited to the dining room, where refreshments were served in abundance.

Paint or Not

Is a horse worth more or less after feed?

Hay and oats are high today; shall I wait today and feed him tomorrow?

That's how men do about painting their houses and barns and fences. Paint has been high for several years; and so they have waited. Some are still waiting.

Their property drops a trifle a year and the next job of paint creeps-up; it'll take more paint by a gallon a year; they don't save a cent, and the property goes on suffering.

DEVOE J. THOS. GELWICKS sells it.

Former Governor St. John, of Kansas predicts that within five years or possibly ten there will be no saloons in the United States.

LAST STORM MOST SEVERE

Below Zero Weather Prevails; Traffic Interfered With.

The last snow storm was one of the worst experienced in this State in several years. It started in Monday and kept up until a late hour at night. Baltimore felt the effect of it as did every county in the state. The weather was rough and the upper bay shipping was tied up and two inbound steamers went aground.

In the counties zero weather prevailed and the depth of snow varied from eight to twenty-one inches, the latter in the neighborhood of Cumberland.

In Hagerstown the snow was blown by a strong north wind and some of the roads were badly drifted. The electric cars were running but much behind time.

The freeze-up stopped the rise in the Potomac river at Williamsport and all danger of high water passed.

For the second time within two weeks, the railroads of Frederick county were tied up to some extent on account of the severe blizzard which prevailed throughout the county. The first indication that the blizzard would cause trouble was when a Middletown car was stalled Monday evening for over an hour. The Valley division from Frederick to Braddock Heights was stalled the greater part of the evening. The incoming train on the Emmitsburg Railroad which usually reaches here about nine o'clock, A. M. did not arrive until nearly eleven.

The coldest day of the winter proved to be Wednesday when the thermometer registered twelve degrees below zero at seven o'clock. At Bridgeport between Taneytown and Emmitsburg twenty degrees was the report.

Another Gay Week in Emmitsburg.

Mrs. Harry Gross entertained her friends at Five Hundred on last Wednesday evening at her home on East Main Street. Those present were: Mrs. J. Brooke Boyle, Mrs. Harry Boyle, Mrs. Andrew Annan, Misses Margaret Boyle, Helen Hoke, Marion Hoke, Ann Codori Helen Shuff, Mary Shuff, Ruth Gillelan, Harriet Beam, Eloise Gross, L. Keller, of Frederick, and Elythe Nunemaker.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 19, Miss Marion Hoke entertained at Auction Bridge. The guests present were Mrs. J. Stewart Annan, Mrs. J. Brooke Boyle, Mrs. E. Cora Rowe, Mrs. A. A. Horner; Misses Helen and Bessie Hoke, Margaret Boyle, Ruth Gillelan, Ann and Estelle Codori and L. Keller, of Frederick. The prize winners were, Mrs. J. Stewart Annan, Misses L. Keller and Margaret Boyle.

Mrs. Harry Boyle entertained at 500 on Tuesday evening. A number of young people were present.

Minister Brings Libel Suit.

Rev. Paul H. Ketterman formerly located at Doubs, Frederick county, has brought suit against 15 residents of Lilly, Pa., for slander. He charges the defendants with attacking his character by circulating false reports and breaking up a number of his meetings.

Mr. Ketterman has been tried on charges made against him before a committee of the West Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church and vindicated. While located in Frederick county he brought suit against a neighbor which he lost.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

Miss Ruth Wenschhof spent Saturday and Sunday with the Misses Mabel and Ruth Ashbaugh.

Miss Ruth Ashbaugh spent several days with the Misses Ruth and Blanche Wenschhof, of Fairplay.

Miss Virgie Valentine spent Wednesday last with her friend, Miss Ruth Ashbaugh.

Mrs. S. T. Jamison, of Friendship, Maine, who has been visiting her sister Mrs. E. Lewis Higbee, left for her home on Monday.

WILL YOU?

There is nothing quite so easy to overlook as a subscription. Each week when you take up your paper to read the chances are that you think—sometimes say aloud to yourself—"I must pay my subscription."

You fully intend to pay it; it is on your mind for the time being, but something else engages your attention and—well, you just fail to do it.

This is a courteous reminder to those who are in arrears. It is not a dun. It is just an equivalent for "Won't you kindly send us your check for this year's subscription to THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE."

Miss Lulu Kretzer, who spent a fortnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril F. Rotering, returned to Hagerstown on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bell returned from a visit to Baltimore, lately.

Mr. Roger V. Mitchell, of Hagerstown, Md., visited here on Saturday.

Superintendent Samuel V. Gregg and Mr. Sol Stern, of the Frederick County Board of Charities, attended the funeral of Mr. George T. Eyster, who was also a member of the Board, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Landers spent Thursday in Frederick.

Miss Frances Rowe, of Sabillasville, was in Emmitsburg last week.

Misses Ruth Patterson, Estelle Codori, Grace Rowe, Margaret Boyle, Messrs. Clarence Fraley and Herbert Gingell spent last Friday evening in Fairfield.

Mrs. Walter Ziegler, of Frederick, visited her father, Mr. Adolphus Harner this week.

Mr. Robert Gihelan spent several days in Hendricks, W. Va.

An Unexpected Pleasure.

Tuesday night was a particularly pleasant one for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wagerman when a number of their friends gave them a totally and unexpected surprise. Music was indulged in and games were played, after which a delightful supper was served.

Charities Board Appointed.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES. BUY GOODS OF KNOWN QUALITY

By HOLLAND.

HISTORY is full of warnings about buying a pig in a poke. This is only another way of saying that one should buy articles of known merit—articles that will bear inspection.

The manufacturer who advertises his goods thereby shows his confidence in them. He would not spend money to tell of their merits unless they had merits. His advertisement is an invitation to you to test his sincerity by testing his goods.

You take no chances in purchasing goods advertised in this paper. The advertisement is a guarantee of quality. Insist on having the genuine articles. Something said to be "just as good" is never so good. Get the genuine—the kind that is advertised.

Is R. K. Shriver Dead?

Because his family has given him up as dead, after an absence of thirteen years, during which time no word has been received of his whereabouts, the Orphans' Court, of Frederick County, was asked to issue letters of administration upon the estate of Rowe K. Shriver, formerly of Emmitsburg. Ellen M. Shriver, the missing man's sister, was the applicant. Under the law, a person missing for seven years, with no trace of his existence available, is presumed to be dead, and his estate can be disposed of in the same way as though he had died intestate.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD

Improvement Noticed in Every Branch of Industry.—Money Easier Than for Years.

From every quarter comes concrete evidence of business improvement throughout the industrial world. Especially is this betterment of conditions noticeable in the steel industry which showed new business last month exceeding out by 331,572 tons. The steel corporations report is significant in that it indicates the upward trend generally. The improvement in bank clearings shows that there is a moderate expansion in general business. Railroads alone do not seem to be making encouraging reports as to net earnings and hence are withholding orders for equipment.

While the improvement is not confined to any one place, it is particularly noticeable in the United States. It is predicted that money will be more abundant in 1914 than has been the case in many years.

Bolgiano's New Tomato.

The firm of J. Bolgiano and Son, well-known, reliable seed growers of Baltimore, Md. are this year offering for sale a wonderful Tomato called "John Baer," which they say is the result of fifteen generations of improvement and selection for earliness, quality, shape, fruit, color and shipping quality. It is claimed to be the earliest tomato on earth; as it produces large, beautiful, solid shipping Tomatoes in thirty days from plants grown in Veneer or Paper bands with roots undisturbed.

There are from fifty to one hundred fruit to each plant. All the fruit ripens evenly up to the stem and when even dead ripe will not burst. It is a beautiful, glistening, bright red color and has a mild, delicious, sweet, flavor. It is almost seedless.

It is claimed to be the most perfect shipping tomato ever grown—twenty-four fruit exactly filling a six carrier basket. Each of the fruit weighs six and one-half ounces. As a packing tomato, "John Baer" is a wonder. They all pack fancy and all pack whole. Peelers can prepare three bushels of "John Baer" Tomatoes to one bushel of any other tomato. Being such a tremendous yielder, a bushel of "John Baer" Tomatoes can be gathered in one-third of the time of any other tomato.

A large Baltimore Tomato Packer had all the "John Baer" Tomatoes he could pack separately, running them through a special process for his fanciest trade and private use. This is the first year this seed has been offered publicly for sale; and, on account of the short supply, the price is Pkt. $1.00, 1/2 oz. $2.50, oz. $4.00, 1 lb. $15.00, lb. $50.00. While this seems an enormous price to pay for a tomato, with all the advantages of this wonderful tomato, it seems well worth a trial.

Don't Try to Plant

—full-grown trees loaded with fruit. They won't grow. Advertising is simply seed. Plant it, nurture it, care for the tree as it grows and money will be the result. THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE is the best soil to plant in.

$300,000 For Memorial to Washington.

Nearly $300,000 has been raised by the George Washington Memorial Association for a memorial to the Father of his country in the Mall, Washington, D. C., according to the report of those in charge of the project.

Plans for the memorial are out, and ten architects, scattered all over the country, have been selected to compete.

The auditorium is to be in commemoration of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. The building will be either Georgian or Italian renaissance in character. A large auditorium will be its chief feature. It will be four stories high and the exterior will be faced on all sides with light granite.

Maps Will Aid Travelers.

These framed maps, showing all the principal points of interest, the names of important waterfalls, their height, the elevation of various peaks, and other useful information will be framed and hung up in the observation cars of a western railroad. Maps prepared by the United States Geological Survey will be used.

The manager of the road believes that travelers who are strangers in this territory will find these maps and the information that they carry of much helpful interest.

The U. S. And France In The Toy Industry.

For years Germany has had practically a monopoly in the manufacture of toys, leading all other countries in this industry. Recent reports however are to the effect that France is making great inroads on this business her production being represented by nearly $10,000,000. The United States is now also to be reckoned with, the output of the latter being equal to that of France.

Congressman Linthicum asserted that the bill pending in the House of Representatives providing for the transfer of Fort McHenry to the city of Baltimore would be passed. He said that the old frigate Constellation would be fitted up at a cost of $50,000 and be brought to Baltimore for the centennial.

Three armed and masked men entered the Academy of Music, Baltimore early Tuesday morning, and after surprising George F. Goll, night watchman handcuffed him to a pillar in the back of the auditorium, found their way into the box-office, blew open the safe with a charge of nitroglycerin and departed, taking with them between $5,000 and $6,000 in cash.

Fire early Tuesday morning destroyed St. Patrick's Hall, connected with St. Patrick's Church, Mount Savage, entailing a loss of $5,000.

Dr. Charles Irwin Hill, former assistant surgeon in the Fourth Infantry, Maryland National Guard, and active in the several medical fraternities of Baltimore city and county, died Tuesday at his home on Wylie avenue, near Park Heights avenue, Baltimore. He was the son of Dr. Charles G. Hill, superintendent of Mount Hope Retreat and surgeon of Troop A, Maryland National Guard.

The tax of 1 cent a bushel on oysters shipped from Maryland, which is devoted to the support of the oyster navy, was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

The State Senate adopted the unfavorable report of the Committee of Finance on Senator Maloy's bill to increase automobile licenses, making the license for a Ford car $100 a year.

A farmers' institute, under the auspices of Maryland Agricultural College will be held March 2 at Darlington, when expert instructors will discuss dairying, silos, sugar corn, tomatoes, fruit and poultry.

John Drummer, of Weverton, was sent to jail for court by Justice Runkles, of Knoxville, on the charge of cruelty to animals by stabbing a mule. The animal balked and Drummer, enraged, drew the knife and stabbed it four times. The animal will recover.

David Baker, of Union Bridge, recently purchased a cow which a day or two later gave birth to three calves that appear strong and healthy.
