MEDIATORS HOLD PARLEY MAY 18

The Meetings to Be Held at Niagara Falls, Canada.

CARRANZA IS ELIMINATED

Mexican Rebels Will Not Be Represented, Because They Refused to Agree to an Armistice.

Secretary of State Bryan announced in Washington Tuesday that the three South American mediators in the Mexican difficulty would meet at Niagara Falls, Canada, May 18, to receive representatives of the parties to the controversy.

The sessions of the mediators continue with the three Huerta delegates now named and understood to be on the way, the United States delegates not yet named and Carranza definitely eliminated from mediation so long as he persists in his present attitude.

The destination of the Huerta delegates was not clear. It became known that Huerta wished the negotiations to take place in neutral territory, suggesting Canada as a suitable location. It was said that ten days might elapse before definite work on a settlement could begin with the arrival of the Mexican delegates.

The text of the note from the mediators to General Carranza stated definitely for the first time that "all the difficulties which contributed toward the present situation in Mexico bear either directly or indirectly on the solution of the pending conflict between Mexico and the United States." The mediators therefore announced that all these difficulties "should be made the subject of consideration in the negotiations." They also informed Carranza that they considered a suspension of hostilities as "indispensable" to his participation in the mediation.

Provisional President Huerta cabled to Senator Riano, the Spanish ambassador, who is acting in Washington for the Huerta government, that he would be represented before the mediators by four men. The fourth representative, whose name has not been mentioned heretofore, is Rafael Elguero. The other three, whose names already have been made public through the mediators, are Louis Elguero, Augustin Rodriguez and Emilio Rabasa.

The mediators consider it essential that there be an avoidance of hostile acts, and so long as there is no resumption of hostilities they will continue to feel that their efforts are tending in the direction of a peaceful settlement. Outside of the mediators, some of the foreign diplomats took the view that the elimination of Carranza and the limitation of negotiations to amendments for indignities to American sailors and marines at Tampico and Vera Cruz, would be a step in advance. They pointed out that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan had insisted that the troops were sent to Vera Cruz solely to redress these indignities. If, therefore, the mediators could furnish a formula for this redress there was no reason, they declared, why the troops should not be withdrawn and the present crisis as between Huerta and the United States ended. Other diplomats, familiar with European procedure when foreign territory has been occupied, were doubtful whether the troops, once at Vera Cruz, would or could be withdrawn until a complete settlement had been effected.

DR. RYAN IN MEXICO CITY

Scranton Physician, Condemned to Die as a Spy, Arrives Safely.

Dr. Edward W. Ryan, of Scranton, Pa., who was sentenced to be executed as a spy by the Federalists at Zacatecas, Mex., has arrived in Mexico City.

Dr. Ryan is at the Brazilian legation in Mexico City, according to information in Washington. Dr. Ryan's release was ordered by General Huerta on demand of the state department.

Dr. Ryan is an intimate friend of Secretary Bryan. It is said that he is charged with spying while ostensibly doing Red Cross work. He had confidential codes of the United States government, and was sentenced to die when he refused to translate them for the Mexican officials. It is admitted that Dr. Ryan had performed invaluable service for this government in caring for Americans in turbulent Mexico, but it was vigorously denied that any of his work was of the nature of spying.

Two others are also in peril at Zacatecas. They are Augustus B. Emery, of Boston, manager of a mine at Guadalupe, near Zacatecas, and C. A. Smith, an Englishman, employed as an engineer in the mine. They are held by the rebels for $100,000 ransom. The British consul at Zacatecas is interceding for all three men.

MEXICANS MINE RAILROAD

General Funston Said to Favor Advance on Mexico City.

Information has come to Washington from Vera Cruz that the Mexican Federal troops have mined the railroad tracks from Vera Cruz to Mexico City in preparation for the utter destruction of the road if the American forces attempt a march on the capital.

No confirmation has been received of reports that the San Francisco bridge on the Inter-Oceanic railroad had been damaged.

The mines are reported to be located a half mile apart, and Mexican soldiers have been detailed to touch off the fuses.

These preparations and the throwing up of defenses by the Mexican Federal troops are known to be a source of worry to General Funston, and it is understood that he would welcome orders to start for the Mexican capital at once.

Admiral Mayo at Tampico has informed the navy department he would have no trouble in taking Tampico with his present forces and it was learned that he has more than once hinted in his dispatchs that it would be advisable to take such action.

Refugees from Mexico City bring conflicting reports concerning the purposes of Huerta. Some say that, realizing the hopelessness of the situation, he has agreed to retire from the presidency Thursday.

Other reports declare that Huerta, instead of yielding, has determined to play out the game.

A number of prominent Mexicans of Vera Cruz held a meeting to give impetus to the organization of certain subsidiary civic departments and to assist generally in the re-establishment of municipal institutions.

PANAMA EXPLOSION KILLS 8

Nineteen Others Injured When Dynamite Magazine Blows Up.

Eight persons were killed and nineteen others injured when the government of Panama's dynamite magazine blew up.

The explosion destroyed the building and wrecked surrounding structures. The explosion was caused by a brushfire, which made its way to the interior of the magazine building.

Six of the dead and most of the wounded are firemen who had been summoned to combat the flames. A man and a woman who were watching the blaze from a distance were torn to pieces. The concussion of the explosion shook Panama.

4968 Banks in Reserve System.

Advices to the United States treasury department indicate that 4968 national banks have subscribed to the federal reserve banks in their respective districts. The increase was 215 banks and $818,721 in subscriptions. The total subscriptions of stock in reserve banks to date are $84,002,200.

White House Dog Hurt.

Jacaban, a pet collie belonging to Mrs. Eleanor Wilson, daughter of the president, came to grief at the White House. While running near an automobile the dog slipped and one of his hind legs was crushed by the machine. A veterinary was summoned and set the broken leg.

Bulgarian Queen Cancels Visit.

Queen neanore, of Bulgaria, is not coming to the United States, for the present at least. An official statement says: "In view of events in America, which Queen neanore follows with especial interest, her majesty's visit has been postponed until the circumstances are more favorable."

MAD SON SLAYS HIS FATHER

General Duryea Was Sleeping When Attacked.

SLAYER RAVES IN CELL

Says He Received a Message From George Washington and Then Shot His Father—Fired Seven Bullets Into Body.

General Hiram Duryea, millionaire starch manufacturer, was shot and killed by his son, Chester Duryea.

General Duryea, who was eighty-one years old, was attacked as he slept at his home in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn. Seven shots were fired into his body.

The murder occurred on the porch at the rear of the Duryea home, where both father and son were in the habit of sleeping.

Chester Duryea, who is forty-three years old, slipped from his cot into the house, where he kept a number of rifles, revolvers and shotguns for hunting purposes. He selected an automatic pistol and a magazine rifle, both of which he loaded, and returned to the open-air porch. Standing within a few feet of his sleeping father he first fired from the rifle and then emptied the revolver.

After his arrest and detention in the Fort Hamilton police station, Chester Duryea kept muttering to himself, "I was justified."

The crack of the shots, fired in rapid succession, awakened the housekeeper, Ann Lewis, and two maids, Della Hallan and Anna Hallaran. They hurried to the room and found Chester Duryea sitting in a chair at the side of his father's bed. The general's body, face downward, was upon the bed.

As the frightened women fled, Duryea walked to the telephone and called up the Brooklyn police headquarters. After identifying himself, he said: "There has been a serious accident at my home."

When policemen arrived, Duryea did not deny shooting his father and made no protest against going to jail. All the way he kept repeating to the policeman that he felt he had been justified in shooting.

Although servants said there had been no quarrel between General Duryea and his son before they retired for the night, an overturned table, a broken screen and books scattered about the floor of the sleeping porch led the police to believe that Chester had awakened his father and that a struggle had ensued before the shots were fired.

In his cell at the police station Duryea talked incoherently of the events leading up to the shooting and gave evidences of being stark mad. While talking he dug his fingernails into the palms of his hand until they bled. He said he shot his father when he received a "spiritual message from George Washington."

Before his arraignment in court Duryea became violent and beat on the doors of his cell with his bare knuckles. A policeman was stationed outside the door to prevent him from injuring himself seriously.

Chester's mental condition, said a cousin, was due to over-study. For two years, he said, the prisoner had been constantly engaged in the study of a formula by which he believed the process of the manufacture of starch could be revolutionized. Lately he had been brooding over a suit that he had brought against the Corn Products company, charging infringement.

Vincent Astor Weds Miss Huntington.

Vincent Astor, great-grandson of the first John Jacob Astor, and master of the Astor millions, and Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington were married in Staatsburg, N. Y., at Hopeland house, the home of the bride.

Only members of the families of the contracting parties and their intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles H. Duncan, of St. Margaret's Episcopal church.

The bride was attended by Miss Alice Huntington, her sister, while Herman Oelrichs, a long time chum of Mr. Astor, was best man.

Get Many Bodies From W. Va. Mine.

Over one hundred of the bodies of miners who perished in the gas explosion in the mines of the New River Collieries company at Eccles, W. Va., on Tuesday, were found piled in heaps at the foot of shaft No. 5 by a government rescue party.

As most of the bodies were burned beyond recognition, mining experts have abandoned all hope of finding any of the 172 men entombed by the explosion alive.

BIG MEXICAN FORCE IS NEAR VERA CRUZ

10,500 Federals Hold Strong Positions.

A refugee train, with seventy-five Americans on board, arrived in Vera Cruz. They left Mexico City on Sunday morning.

They were not molested on the way down. Most of the refugees made their way into Mexico City from Real Del Monte and Pachuca, important mining towns north of the capital.

Field pieces and rapid fire guns of the United States warships in the harbor were brought ashore and parked on the San Lad wharf for distribution to repel an attack which might be made by the 10,500 Federals under General Gustavo Maas, reported near the city.

Reconnoitering parties and aviators reported to Brigadier General Funston, the military governor, that there are 4000 Federals at Soledad, 5000 more at Jalapa and 1500 at El Palma. Jalapa and El Palma are on the Inter-oceanic railway, respectively eighty and fifty-five miles northwest of Vera Cruz.

The artillery was placed within the lines of the Twenty-eighth regiment, which is stationed along the harbor front. Sailors were sent ashore with each field piece and rapid-fire gun to operate it if quick action is necessary.

W. W. Canada, the United States consul, received a report from a Mexican refugee that General Maas has been receiving reinforcements of artillery and that a rumor is current that he will move against Vera Cruz and bombard the city.

The outposts guarding the water works at El Tejara has been strengthened as a result of the demand by Mexicans that the pumping station be surrendered. It is probable that a cavalry patrol will be established along the other lines to reinforce the outposts, as Mexican guerrillas are becoming bolder and have now cut off the shipments of provisions which were formerly brought into the city from the land side.

The outpost under Major Smedley D. Butler at El Tejara, which has been increased to 600 men, with field and machine guns, since the alarm, is in a naturally strong position, easy to defend, but is isolated from the city.

President to Camp Out.

In anticipation of a strenuous summer the president has made arrangements for a big open air tent just south of the White House, where he will transact business.

The White House tent will be equipped with a telephone, push buttons, electric lights and other conveniences. It will be the headquarters of the president in the afternoons and evenings, and probably Secretary Tumulty will have his desk there.

While the president is in good health, Dr. Carey Grayson, his physician, advised that he remain in the open air as much as possible, and for this reason the offices in the tent were planned. The president will not sleep in the tent.

10,000 West Virginia Miners Strike.

Ten thousand miners in the Kanawha coal field near Charleston, W. Va., quit work, and it is expected that the 3000 who remained at work will also go out.

When negotiations between the union leaders and the operators began several weeks ago the men made twenty-four demands, which were later reduced to seven. Further discussion of the points at issue cut this number to three, and on these the operators refused to yield, and the men declared they could go no further in the direction of peace.

It is reported that many miners of the Cabin Creek and Paint Creek districts also will quit work.

Oleo Maker Jailed and Fined.

John F. Jelke, the oleomargarine manufacturer, of Chicago, was fined $10,000 and sentenced to two years in jail, the maximum penalty, for conspiracy to defraud the government of taxes on illicitly colored oleomargarine.

Seven other defendants in the oleomargarine cases, most of them connected with the John F. Jelke company, were fined $2500 each by Judge Geiger in the United States district court.

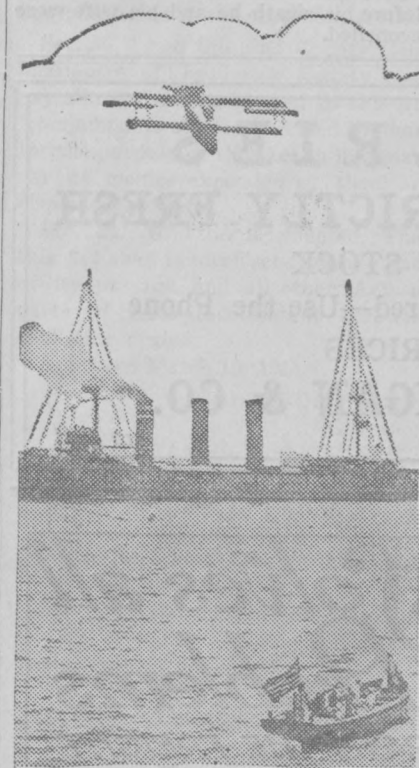

The government charged all the defendants with entering into a conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws by selling white oleomargarine to retailers and teaching them how to color it illicitly and with selling it at retail without paying the federal tax of 10 cents a pound.

Loot Maryland Postoffice.

Burglars blew open the safe in the postoffice at New Windsor, near Hagerstown, Md., and secured $35 in cash and more than $200 worth of stamps.

NAVY AEROPLANE.

Leaving Vera Cruz to Locate Position of General Maas.

© 1914, by American Press Association.

Not since the invention of the aeroplane has it been put to such a severe test as at Vera Cruz. The results have proved the efficiency of air craft in time of war. Navy aviators keep a sharp lookout over the troops of General Maas, and American officers are cognizant all the time of the exact location of the enemy. This picture shows an American aviator flying over Vera Cruz harbor. He is directly above the British cruiser Essex.

MOVE TO ATTACK SALTILLO

Villa Expected to Hurl 18,000 Against Federal Garrison.

The Federal troops are strongly fortifying Saltillo and preparing to make a desperate stand against the rebel forces of General Villa.

Advices from the front say that 1800 Federal reinforcements have reported to Saltillo, bringing the strength of the garrison up to more than 12,000 men.

Federal deserters say conditions in Saltillo are growing desperate, as the large garrison has exhausted the food supplies and there is suffering among the people.

The rebel advance against Saltillo has become general. General Villa has begun entraining troops at Torreon for San Pedro de las Colonias. Villa has 18,000 men to send against Saltillo and virtually the whole force is moving to the attack.

ARREST MEXICAN WOMAN

She Is Accused of Killing Eight United States Seamen.

A woman said to have killed eight American bluejackets and marines by "sniping" them in the streets during the first day of the American occupation, was given into custody of the military authorities in Vera Cruz.

A Mexican had informed army officials of her whereabouts, upon which her house was searched and a quantity of arms were found. She is to be tried by a military court charges of murder.

Pottsville Girl Ends Life.

Prevented by her father from eloping, Margaret Disc, eighteen years of age, ended her life by sending a bullet through her heart. The girl left her home near Pottsville, Pa., on Friday to meet her sweetheart. Before she reached the trying place she was overtaken by her father, who compelled her to return home. The girl locked herself in her room, obtained a revolver and committed suicide.

Young Morgan Betrothed.

Announcement of the engagement of Julius Spencer Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan, of New York, to Miss Louise Converse, daughter of Frederick Shepherd Converse, of Boston, was made by the young woman's parents.

The announcement was not unexpected, although a few days ago Mrs. Converse said that a report of the engagement was unauthorized. Young Morgan is a senior at Harvard.

Mother and Baby Burned.

An unidentified man about fifty-three years old, leaped to his death from High Bridge into the Harlem river at New York. Four of his ribs were broken by the impact with the water, one puncturing the heart.

SEEK TO JAIL MILITIA HEADS

Responsible For Deaths in Colorado Mine War.

MAY IMPEACH GOV. AMMON

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is Accused of Preventing Peace and Trying to Shift Responsibility.

The arrest and imprisonment of the militia heads declared responsible for the deaths of women and children in the Colorado strike horrors is regarded as the outcome of the findings of the coroner's jury and the statement of Secretary of War Garrison, which, based on the findings of federal officers, declares the state troops committed excesses and had made conditions worse instead of better in the strike districts.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict holding the state militia and the mine guards responsible for the deaths of the two women and fourteen children in the Ludlow tent colony.

As a result of the burning of the colony and the resultant cremation of helpless non-combatants, it is expected that criminal actions will be lodged against Major Hamrock and Lieutenant Linderfelt, of the Colorado state militia.

Members of the Colorado state legislature openly threaten to impeach Governor Ammons for his seeming acquiescence in the outrages perpetrated by the troops under his command.

Indignation against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., already at fever heat, has been greatly increased by the publication of copies of telegraphic correspondence between that individual and Chairman Foster, of the house committee on mines and mining. In this correspondence Rockefeller refuses to accept arbitration and tries to shift the responsibility.

Rockefeller's attitude throughout the whole terrible situation has deeply incensed the federal authorities, and the latter are determined to exert pressure to force a settlement.

According to reports from Colorado the president's proclamation calling for the laying down of arms is being obeyed throughout the strike zone.

Two more troops of United States cavalry are already on their way to Colorado from Fort Robinson, Neb.

General Sickles Dies in New York.

Major General Daniel E. Sickles died at his home in New York.

He had been quite ill since March, when he suffered a hemorrhage. About two weeks ago there was another hemorrhage and the aged general was confined to his bed.

Mrs. Sickles and her son, George Stanton Sickles, moved into the house two weeks ago, and while they are reticent, it is understood that a complete reconciliation was effected.

The last rites of the Roman Catholic church had been administered on Saturday by Rev. Father Avard, of St. Joseph's church.

Daniel Edgar Sickles, major general, was the last of the great commanders of the Civil War. He responded to Lincoln's first call for volunteers. He raised regiment after regiment. He led them into battle, always with consummate bravery and distinction. At last he turned the tide at Gettysburg and earned a soldier's immortality.

Two Hurt In Strike Riot.

Crowds and Deputies Clash at Freeland Pa., When New Crews Take Charge.

Hazleton, Pa., May 4.—Serious trouble occurred at Freeland over the running of cars by the Lehigh Traction company with crews who have taken the places of the striking motormen and conductors.

Two bystanders were wounded when crowds and sheriff's deputies and friends of the crews clashed. John Gallagher was struck in the right knee by a bullet, said to have been fired by a deputy. The wound is not dangerous.

This incident inflamed the crowds and large assemblages were at the end of the line as the cars came and went. It is alleged that three foreigners, friends of the crews, opened fire on the crowd with revolvers. It is estimated that at least fifty shots were fired. Peter Tuddy, a bystander, was wounded in the abdomen, but the bullet merely grazed the flesh.

Caesarean Operation Restores Sight.

A remarkable case of the recovery of a woman from blindness was reported by Dr. William Posey, at a lecture at the Wills Eye hospital in Philadelphia. The blindness was caused by a kidney ailment. After the performance of a Caesarean operation the woman recovered her vision and became entirely well.

A large fire broke out in the mountain between Edgemont and where the Blue Mountain House formerly stood, Monday afternoon. The fire burned briskly all afternoon and up until late Monday night when it was finally gotten under control. The origin of the fire is not known. #### Panama Toll Rates.

Notice has been received from Washington by the shipping companies that the tolls for the Panama canal will be $1.20 a ton based upon the canal measurement, which is close to gross registered tonnage. This means that any enclosed space on the promenade deck like a lounging room, gymnasium, or drawing room will have to be paid for at that rate. A vessel in ballast will pay about 60 per cent of the duty, but if there is one passenger on board, the full rate of $1.20 a ton will be charged according to the notification sent out by the officials at Washington.

A Dangerous Fuel.

The chemists insist that alcohol made from corn will eventually take the place of gasoline. An automobile propelled by insidious draughts of corn juice will be a dangerous thing to meet on the public highway.—Adams County Independent.

Mexico Has Poor Navy.

The Mexican navy consists of three cruisers, four gunboats and three harbor service craft. The men who man these vessels are said to be the most poorly trained in the world. Although Mexico boasts some clever generals and brave soldiers the reputation of her naval officers and marines is most unenviable.

Such a skirt as this one is perfectly adapted to washable material, consequently is sure to be in demand at this season.

The tuck gives a tunic suggestion, and the fullness gives breadth where in one straight piece.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingular Hills and the Catocin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

FARM IMPROVEMENT.

The marked improvement to farm properties in Emmitsburg district this year is an earnest of greater improvement yet to come. New fences are noticeable everywhere; new buildings and additions to existing structures are observable in many places and the free use of paint has beautified quite a number of dwellings and barns. The farmers are seemingly taking more pride in their properties than ever before—a move decidedly commendable in them and complimentary to the community in which they live.

A farm with substantial fences and well cared for buildings is a goodly sight to see. These are indices of the character of the owner. Elaborateness, pretension, display are far from necessary in producing a good result. Nor does the lack of paint, although paint is always desirable, make a pleasing effect impossible. A group of small houses—one house, in fact—carefully whitened or tinted with wash, and with straight fences similarly treated is very picturesque in a setting of green; much more so, in fact, than a pretentious dwelling out of repair and rusty from inattention.

It is neatness and attention that count. This means not great expense but on the other hand only the exercise of a little judgment and the best use of material at hand during properly chosen time.

Be it in city, town or country conservation and improvement of property is a source of continual enjoyment to the public. It is the best advertisement for a community or neighborhood and the most economical for the owner himself.

THE TANEYTOWN-EMMITSBURG ROAD.

Only by "keeping constantly at it" can the people of Taneytown and Emmitsburg hope to impress the Good Roads Commission with the desirability of including the road between these two thriving towns in the scheme for road improvement in this section of Maryland. If they do not want this improvement; if they are indifferent as to whether it shall come this way or not, little will the Good Roads Commission do in the matter. It may be, however, that, in spite of lukewarmness on the part of the people, the members of that Commission—level headed and far-seeing men they are—will still decide that this old National Road is the logical link in the chain of thoroughfares to Gettysburg. A decision in favor of this particular route, which is and ever has been a natural artery of travel, will mean a great deal to Westminster, Taneytown, Emmitsburg, Gettysburg, Thurmont and every town west of Emmitsburg. It should even interest Baltimore.

DR. EGAN'S VIEW.

The opinion of Maurice F. Egan, U. S. Minister to Denmark, on the Mexican situation is of particular interest just at this juncture. In his judgment the good offices of the South American Republics opened a way toward "a goal which our wisest diplomats have long been endeavoring to attain."

"The existing Pan-American Union," he states, "is at best a ground-breaker, it cannot build the structure of safe and sure diplomatic relations with South America. The entente which now seems possible is an engine of construction. From the storm-proof materials of co-operation and mutual understanding, it may build a refuge to house the Monroe Doctrine and preserve it in contented peace as an instrument of true usefulness."

The United States in good faith accepted the mediation proffered of Argentine, Brazil and Chili, and if the Mexicans at this stage of the proceeding disregard the findings of these friendly powers they themselves must bear the burden of their action.

"To Beat Mr. Lewis." Do the people of the Sixth Congressional District really want to beat the little man who has done so much for them? Has the Sixth ever had a representative whose interest in its behalf has been greater than Mr. Lewis? Has Maryland ever had a Congressman who has kept the name of the State so constantly before the country in respect of constructive legislation? When the time comes we take it that David J. will have behind him a solid democracy and many a vote from the erstwhile opposition.

COL. BAUGHMAN'S idea of having permanent quarters for the Democrats of Frederick County will undoubtedly meet the approval of the committees of the various districts as well as that of the rank and file of the party. A central gathering place at the county seat where voters from different localities may come together for an interchange of ideas, where men may meet who never met before, will do much to cement party feeling and will aid materially in carrying out any given plan of action.

COLE BLEASE, governor (in name only) of South Carolina, will not be the next senator from the state which he has disgraced. The "To h— with the Constitution" principle may have suited this vulgarian—it no doubt did—but neither he nor his creed suited the people of South Carolina and they are to be congratulated in getting rid of him so soon.

Now Isaac Lobe Straus, is it fact or a myth? Has gone forth (machts nichts aus) to down John Walter Smith. "Oh say can you see by the dawn's early light," where Isaac will be at the end of the fight?

You've heard the expression, "following the flag." Isn't trailing old Huerta following the jag?

"LINGERIE DE LUXE." Would not lingerie de looks be more appropriate?

Shakespeare Notwithstanding. "Is there anything in a name?" inquired the man with mouse colored whiskers. "You can bet there is. Name a boy Stuyvesant or Van Rensselaer or Gouverneur and he'll never hold anything but a first class job. Nobody will ever dare ask him to swab windows or mop floors. And by the time he's forty he'll be head of a trust company and director in twenty-seven prominent concerns. Oh, yes; there's a heap in a name, lemme tell you."—Washington Herald.

Hogarth Forgot.

Hogarth, the famous artist, was very vain and very absent minded. When the sale of his prints had made him prosperous he set up a carriage and one day went in it to visit the lord mayor. While he was in the Mansion House the weather became stormy, and Hogarth, who happened to go out at a different door, after vainly searching for a hackney coach, walked home through the rain and was soaked to the skin. He had entirely forgotten his carriage.

A Long Drought.

They were discussing the drought in a small town, says Everybody's Magazine, and some one asked an old farmer: "How would you like to see it rain, Hiram?" "I don't care about it myself," he replied, "but I've got a boy six years old who would like to see it rain."

Wrong.

A man recently entered a restaurant and ordered a steak. When the waiter served him with it the customer said, "I'm afraid you'll have to take it back, for I find I've come out without my—"

"Purse," of course interrupted the waiter.

"No," replied the man, "my false teeth!"

A Chinese Story.

A Chinese barber while shaving a customer's head drew blood and put one of his fingers on the place. Again he made a cut and put down another finger, and so on until he had no more fingers free. "Ah," said he as he paused in his work, "a barber's trade is difficult. We ought to have a thousand fingers."

Sensitive.

"She's getting rather plump." "Yes, but don't you dare to tell her so. She nearly sued her husband for a divorce on account of her plumpness." "Why, he isn't to blame." "No, but she heard that he was complaining that he had an elephant upon his hands, and she thought he meant her, and he only meant a house he was trying to rent."—Houston Post.

His Kind Heart.

Master of the House (sternly)—You told my tailor when he came to collect his bill yesterday that I owed you six months' wages. How came you to be so indiscreet?

The Servant—I meant no harm, sir—I only wanted to console him a bit, sir, 'e seemed that downhearted, sir.—New York Post.

Saul of Spitalfields.

There was at one time a weaver in Spitalfields named Saul, concerning whom a gravestone in St. Dunstan's churchyard was inscribed:

Here lies the Body of Daniel Saul, Spitalfields Weaver, and that's all.

Editorials From Maryland Exchanges.

Rest Necessary.

Some folks wear themselves out; some worry themselves to death; some work themselves into the grave before they have lived out half their days. The latter, however, is a very difficult thing to do. A man's work must be ungenial and he must go about it in a very awkward and arduous manner. Still it has been done and we suspect it will occur again before the end of all things earthly comes. The wise man conserves his strength. He does not toil steadily and laboriously from day to day throughout the year, never relaxing to take a full breath or to permit his eyes to wander carelessly and luxuriously over the face of the earth. Every man needs a few rest spots in the course of his daily journey toward another country. Genuine rest, wisely taken, keeps a man young and vigorous and happy.—Cumberland Daily News.

Immodest Apparel.

In walking down Fifth avenue, New York, these spring days you see worse spectacles than in a second class variety performance ten years ago.

Much of the prevailing style of women's dress is a violation of the spirit of the seventh Commandment. Its vulgar sex appeal represents a reversion to a lower type more compatible with a primitive and decadent era than with twentieth century Christian enlightenment.

This style of dress bids fair to rob both sexes of that modest reserve which is the safeguard of morality.—Annapolis Capital.

Swat the Fly.

The national movement for the extermination of the fly is no idle enterprise. It may take years to reach anything like complete success, but it is progressing with great hopefulness. It is one of the most profitable propagandas promoted in this country in late years, and we have promoted a good many. Its extreme sanity rests on the fact that it seeks to deal with causes more than effects, to prevent rather than remedy.—Midland Journal.

Work an Hour—This Evening.

When you arrive home this evening, walk up and down in front of your house TWICE and ask yourself the question: "How does this look to strangers? Is your yard clean? Are there broken tools or smashed up boxes or litter of any sort cluttering the open spaces? Are there unsightly water holes that need filling in?" Now is the time to spruce-up. Work an hour this evening and another hour tomorrow evening, and another hour the next evening, and then you need not be ashamed of your door-yard when the unexpected guest arrives.—Towson New Era.

The United States Supreme Court, Monday, handed down its decision in the Nebraska case, in which it affirmed the State Court's decision giving a wife $5,000 damages against a saloonkeeper responsible for making her husband a habitual drunkard. This decision will be approved by those who have noted the many ill effects on the families of men who are debauched by the too free use of the drinking habit permitted, if not encouraged, by the saloonkeepers.—Harford Democrat.

The new Registration this year, is one of the best acts of the Governor, but it is a pity that the election and registration laws were not simplified. There will be considerable expense attached to the new registration, but as the present books were made out in 1896—or 18 years ago, it is time to start with clean pages. The new registration for 1914 was already a law, having been provided by a preceding legislature, and the Governor simply vetoed a bill repealing this law.—Carroll Record.

Clean-Up Time.

Every household in the land, whether residing in town, village or country, should at once, on the threshold of the warm season, put his premises in sanitary condition. Now is the time, before decay of organic matter sets in and germs begin to multiply. If a clean-up is postponed until warm weather actually arrives it not infrequently does more harm than would ensue were it neglected entirely, as breeding places of disease are uncovered and stirred up.

Scientists tell us that filth is not dangerous to health itself, but the menace is in its peculiar adaptability as a breeding place for the germs of disease. While a household may be surrounded by decaying matter and escape disease, the chance of immunity is small, and the price of safety is so little it is a wonder that any one would hesitate to pay it. Premises are, of course, not wilfully permitted to remain insanitary; the evil health officers have to contend with is simply neglect. And to obtain sure results it is necessary for the whole community to participate in the cleaning process, for one family may have their premises in the perfection of cleanliness, yet contract disease because of the carelessness of a neighbor.—Annapolis Capital.

Land Leeches of Ceylon.

Beautiful Ceylon has mosquitoes said to be the most adroit and audacious in the world and snakes and a thousand more plagues of poor human beings, but the worst of them all is a species of leech. The Ceylon land leech is a thin creature about two inches long and very nimble and flexible. It will crawl up a man's leg and, traveling underneath the clothing, will climb as high as the throat. These leeches do not crawl like the leeches that are known to medicine, but rear themselves up on their tails to watch for prey and walk off to attack it with amazing rapidity. In walking through the jungle hosts of them may be seen by the roadside, where they wait to victimize cattle. Horses, it is said, are driven half wild by them, as also are palanquin bearers and coolies, whose bare legs are their favorite resort, the men's hands being too engaged to pull them off. The leeches may be seen hanging round their ankles, from which tiny trickles of blood run over the foot.—London Standard.

One of His Own Books.

At the height of his vogue Dumas could not turn out his tales fast enough to satisfy his clamoring publishers, and it became necessary for him to employ collaborators, to whom he sketched the plot, perhaps, leaving them to do the rest. Among the most distinguished was Paul Meurice.

Thus it came about that Meurice was the author of one of the most amusing novels of Dumas. Dumas when traveling found this novel in a hotel and opened it to pass away the time. He began reading it seriously, got interested in it and was amused. Presently some one came to his room and found him with his own book in his hand.

"I am reading," said Dumas in response to a question, "a novel of my own which I did not know and which pleases me vastly."

It was Dumas who said when left to himself, "I am never bored when I have my own company."—New York Tribune.

The Selfish Skipper.

"I will not stop to tow you off. I have fish aboard."

This was the answer returned by the captain of a fishing steamer to the signal of distress from a pilot boat on the rocks at the entrance of the Golden Gate. No one will deny that it was a heartless answer, but it is an answer that is being constantly given in all the relations of life. All around pilot boats are on the rocks or suffering pain, but the fishing boat sails by unheeding because it has fish aboard and has no time to stop and throw out a towline. How many fishing boats there are that refuse a word of kindness and counsel, a friendly hand, a smile of encouragement! How many fishing boats there are that are blind, deaf or indifferent to the hopes, aspirations and struggles of those who are on the rocks!

"We can't stop. We have fish on board."—Portland (Ore.) Journal.

The Effort of His Life a Failure.

W. S. Gilbert had a novel experience before he wrote for the stage, when he was a barrister waiting for his first brief. It was long in coming, and when it did come Mr. Gilbert determined, of course, to make the effort of his life.

He was intrusted with the prosecution of an old Irish woman for stealing a coat, and when he began the speech that he had prepared and rehearsed so carefully the old dame at once began to interject: "Oh, ye devil! Sit down!" "Sure, now, he's a liar, yer honor!" "Sit down, ye spalpeen!" "He's known to all the perlice, yer honor!" After some minutes of this abuse Gilbert asked the recorder's intervention, but that official was too busy laughing. So the effort of his life was not a success.

Women Barbers.

In Gay's "Journey to Exeter," published in 1715, it is told how after passing Moxcombe the lake the travelers reach Axminster, where they sleep. The next morning—

We rise; our beards demand the barber's art. A female enters and performs the part. The wealthy golden chain adorns her neck, And three gold rings her skillful hands bedeck. Smooth o'er our chin her easy fingers move, Soft as when Venus stroked the beard of Jove.

—London Notes and Queries.

Ear Wagging.

Only animals with long and drooping ears are able to wag them. A rabbit, for instance, can do what it likes with its ears, dropping one or both and laying them flat along its back when dashing through thick cover. Hares are still more brisk in ear movements. But short eared beasts, like weasels and stoats, are unable to wag their ears in any degree, although they have enough ear to wag if they had the power.

Wise Mexican Mules.

"The mule in Mexico is a wise animal," says a man who has studied the animal in that country. "A Mexican mule will do just so much work and not a bit more. The riding mule, for instance, is fully aware of the distance, down to a rod, he is supposed and required to traverse in the progress of one traveling day, and all the sharp sticks or goads or dynamite on earth won't get him to do a bit more than what he knows to be the correct distance. The Mexicans have got a peculiar saying in connection with this characteristic of the Mexican mule. You ask a Mexican how far it is by muleback to such and such a point.

"Two days' journey if you are not rushed, but three days if you are in a hurry," the Mexican will reply.

"His meaning is that if you don't ask more of your mule than you should ask of him the mule will be able to make the trip in two days. But if you attempt to drive the brute he'll soldier on you, and in consequence the journey will take you three days."

Cairo's Corkscrew Tower.

Writing of the ancient mosque of Ibn-Tulun, Cairo, John A. Todd in "The Banks of the Nile" shows how accidental was the design of its odd looking tower. Ahmed Ibn-Tulun was one day holding a council of state when he allowed his attention to wander and sat idly twiddling a piece of paper between his fingers, shaping it into a whorl. Suddenly he realized that the councilors were waiting for his decision to a question. But what question?

At his wits' end to avoid confession of such discourtesy, he continued in silence to twiddle the whorl of paper. Suddenly he spoke: "Call my architect" for the plans of his new mosque were under consideration. The Copt appeared in fear and trembling no doubt. "You see this paper. Make me a tower for my mosque like that." The situation was saved, and the shape of the tower, with its corkscrew outside stair, is there to this day to confirm the story.

The Deceased Wife's Sister.

The law against marrying a deceased wife's sister, which caused so much discussion in England at one time, grew out of an ancient tribal law forbidding a father to sell more than one daughter to the same man when the Briton was emerging from polygamy and when for just 21 shillings of the present money a man might dismiss his wife or kill her if she would not go. As civil law it was to protect the living wife and knit tribes closer together by intermarriage. When ecclesiastical law became supreme a misreading of some scripture text was used to put the sister of a man's wife among the prohibited degrees of relationship. This was the act of 1541 (32 Henry VIII.): "A man may not marry his deceased wife's sister or her daughter, but he may marry his first cousin."—London Standard.

Tearing Cards.

At the Halterophile club in Paris not long ago a man achieved a record by tearing a pack of playing cards in one pull—time, 2 minutes 32 seconds. The events in this card tearing contest were:

Tearing the greatest possible number of cards tied together top and bottom—time allowance, three minutes; tearing a pack of eighty cards in the quickest possible time; tearing the greatest possible number of cards in four.

This is a form of "sport" wherein many Frenchmen specialize. The men who enter the contests are not necessarily powerful, but they possess enormous strength in their fingers, a strength that is further developed by careful training.—Washington Star.

A Nice Point.

None of the maids of honor to the queen of England is allowed to keep a diary. A young lady who did not know of this rule was congratulating a newly made maid of honor.

"And what interesting things you'll be able to write in your diary!" she said.

"But it is an understood thing that a maid of honor does not keep a diary," the other pointed out.

"But I think I should keep one all the same," said her friend.

"Then you wouldn't be a maid of honor!" was the retort.—London Answers.

A Bit of Sarcasm.

"The late Dr. Morgan Dix," said a clergyman of New York, "had a droll way of lightening grave subjects with little humorous asides. Once I heard him addressing a graduating class at a medical school. He began in this way: 'Physiologists tell us, gentlemen, that the older a man grows the smaller his brain becomes. This explains why the old man knows nothing and the young one everything.'"

It Grew and Grew.

"My pa caught a wonderful fish," said little Willie. "After it was dead it kept on growing."

"It couldn't do such a thing." "Oh, yes, it did, for every time pa told about it it was bigger than it was before."

An Intricate Story.

"Before my marriage I told her all my past life. Don't you think I showed a wonderful courage?"

"Yes, and a still more wonderful memory."—London Opinion.

The Squeeze.

Wife—I got into an awful jam at that bargain sale. Hubby—Indeed! Wife—Yes; all the money I had was squeezed out of my purse.—Exchange.

NO WAR CHEST NECESSARY

Credit And Resources of Country In Excellent Condition.

The Government of the United States has no war chest. Its resources are scattered among its ninety millions of thrifty citizens. Machinery to make available those vast resources in time of war is simple and effective because the credit of the Government is of the best, says the Philadelphia Press. In an emergency Congress would vote an appropriation of not less than $50,000,000 without hesitation and if more funds were needed arrangements would promptly be made for the floating of a war loan and bonds bearing probably three per cent interest would meet with a ready sale.

Banks throughout the country are overflowing with deposits. The investment market is in excellent condition to receive an issue of Government bonds if their sale shall become necessary.

If the Government at this time finds it necessary to increase its funded debt provision to pay the interest and to retire the principal may be made either by an increase in the income tax, by a stamp tax, or by raising the duties on imports, as was done during the time of the Spanish War, or a moderate use of each one of these three methods might be made to provide an increased revenue.

Without question both the credit and the resources of the country are in excellent condition to meet any requirements that the action of Congress may exact.

MEXICO AS IT REALLY IS

Never Had Constitutional Government In Real Sense.

Men who do not know Mexico talk of the return of "normal conditions" but the conditions now prevailing there are merely an intensification of ordinary conditions, the only really abnormal years having been those when that powerful dictator Porfirio Diaz enforced an outward calm, says Montgomery Schuyler, a diplomat of long service. Mexico was colonized by pirates, criminals and adventurers eager to make a speedy fortune in the mines or by Indian slavery. They brought no women with them, and 95 per cent of the present Mexican population is made up of mixed negro, Indian and buccaneer blood. Elections are farces, not three voters in a hundred going to the polls; and rarely is anyone so bold or so anxious to invite trouble as to oppose the official candidates.

The Mexican will fight like a wildcat when he is cornered, for he looks for nothing short of torture and death if he surrenders. He may be forced into the army or hired to enlist, but he never fights for an ideal, a principle or a cause. The bandits who compose the so called Constitutional forces have taken scores of villages of from 500 to 5,000 inhabitants the first act of the raiders being to carry off the young girls from their homes. Yet there is no case on record where a Mexican has been killed in defence of his sister, his daughter or his wife.

That is the Mexico of today, wholly unfitted for self-government. A wise and humane dictator ruling with a hand of iron is what the country needs; and it is quite as absurd to demand that the Mexicans establish or respect a constitutional government like our own as to expect it of a pack of Eskimo dogs.

Mistakes In Business.

According to the philosophic statistician of a large business house downtown the proportion of mistakes made every day in the business world of New York averages twenty-five per cent, to every one hundred transactions. This does not mean twenty-five per cent. of serious errors, but that one-quarter of the business transactions of New York show an error large or small in judgment or action.

The Female Reserve.

It is announced that Mrs. James J. Brown of Newport is preparing to leave her "cottage" there to take command as colonel of a regiment of women soldiers organized in Colorado, her native State, for service in the expected war with Mexico.

Once in six years the big turret guns of the American battleships must be relined, due to erosion, the result of firing. The government, at its several navy yards, is now relining about 26 of these guns every year, at a cost of $10,000 each.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. ## STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING

Election of Officers of Emmitsburg Electric Company.

The first annual meeting of the stockholders of the Emmitsburg Electric Company was held at the office of THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE on the 4th inst. More than 80 per cent. of the total holdings was represented either in person or by proxy. It was shown that there are 40 stock-holders, 30 of them residents of Emmitsburg.

The financial statement shown was regarded as very encouraging for so young a company; assets being estimated at $9368 against total liabilities of $9070. The earnings of the Company have been growing fast and steadily since it began business on the 30th of December last and are now well over the $1500 a year mark and still going upward.

The Company reports 54 consumers connected, including approximately 2500 lamps and 13 horsepower of motors. Over 10 per cent. of the total earnings for the month of April were from power sold and it is expected that with the increasing use of fans, electric irons and washing machines and other small domestic labor-savers, will keep this end of the business growing for some time to come. About 60 per cent. of the total earnings are from private lighting.

The company now furnishes an all-night and emergency service to the Sisterhood and has one patron out on the State Road, with more in prospect. The old Board of Directors was re-elected for the ensuing year, without any changes.

Now Paint

Strike when the iron is hot and paint when the property needs it.

They paint ships a dozen times a year yes, some of them, every voyage. What for do you think? To look nice and get business.

A livery keeps its carriages painted and varnished and washed, to look nice and get business.

A man with a house for sale or to let, "does it up," and Devoe is the paint.

There's more in paint than to keep-out water. Paint for looks and you needn't think about water. A fresh coat of paint once a year is about as good for his credit as paying his debts. But the man whose buildings and fences look new, very likely has no debts.

DEVOE

ROAD MEETING SATURDAY

Large Gathering to Meet Delegation From Taneytown Here.

Saturday at one o'clock, in accordance with the published notice in the CHRONICLE the day before, quite a number of farmers from this district and many towns people met the delegation from Taneytown for the purpose of taking some action that would have weight with the Good Roads Commission in determining the route from Taneytown to Emmitsburg in the contemplated scheme of road improvement for this section of the State.

The meeting was organized by the election of Mr. John Stewart Annan as chairman and Mr. F. Harry Gross as secretary. There was not a dissenting voice as to the proper route to be selected. All present were unqualifiedly in favor of disapproving the course from Taneytown to Gettysburg by the way of Harney.

In order that the claims of Taneytown and Emmitsburg might be clearly and practically put before the Commission a motion was made and carried to have the chairman appoint a committee of twelve from Emmitsburg and vicinity to again meet with the committee from Taneytown, at Pine Hill School House to-morrow, the 9th inst—each committee in the meantime to prepare a tentative brief containing its reasons for advocating the Taneytown-Emmitsburg link. The committee appointed by Chairman Annan is as follows:

The chairman ex-officio, Albert Patterson, Monsignor Bradley, Bishop Murray, Rev. J. O. Hayden, Augustus Eckenrode, Ernest Shriver, J. Rowe Ohler, William T. Smith, Daniel F. Roddy, John T. Gelwicks and Sterling Galt

Results at Sabillasville.

Commenting upon the most gratifying results being obtained in the treatment of tuberculosis at the State Sanatorium at Sabillasville, Senator John Walter Smith, one of its originators and president of its board of managers, says:

"The good done these men and women while here, in my judgment, does not approximate in value to the State the good these men and women themselves do when they leave us to mingle again with the people in the outworld. Each year we will graduate 400 or more people from the hospital who will have learned to protect themselves and others and who will practice and preach the medical truth they acquired here.

"The energies of 10,000 people—people as a class of average talents and promise—are impaired or paralyzed in Maryland by this one disease. In addition, the services of the well are diverted from productive employments to minister to the sick, so that it is well nigh impossible to calculate the pecuniary loss from tuberculosis resulting to the people of the State. The inauguration of this sanatorium marks the beginning of an era of progress and light which must bring inexpressible relief and happiness to mankind after the ages of darkness spent in hopeless submission to the conquering scourge."

SYNOPSIS.

Book I.

CHAPTER I—Rudolph Van Vechten, a young man of leisure, is astonished to see a man enter No. 1313, a house across the street from the Powhatan club. The house has long been unoccupied and is spoken of as the House of Mystery.

CHAPTER II—Several persons at regular intervals enter No. 1313.

CHAPTER III—Van Vechten expresses concern to his friend, Tom Phinney, regarding the whereabouts of his cousin and fiancée, Paige Carew. A fashionably attired woman is seen to enter the House of Mystery. A man is forcibly ejected from the house. Van Vechten and Tom follow the man and find him dead in the street.

CHAPTER IV—Van Vechten is attracted by the face of a girl in the crowd of onlookers surrounding the body. Later he discovers the girl gazing at him with a look of scorn from the windows of the mysterious house.

CHAPTER V—Detective Flint calls on Van Vechten to get his version of the tragedy.

CHAPTER VI—Tom Phinney goes alone on a yachting trip. He recognizes among some persons in a passing motor boat two men whom he had seen enter the House of Mystery. He sees one of them, a Mr. Callis, on shore later and follows him. Tom is seized, blindfolded and taken to a house. He hears a girl named Jessie, evidently the daughter of the man in authority, question his captors. A sweet-voiced girl later protests against the roughness of his captors.

Book II.

CHAPTER I—Van Vechten calls on his uncle, Theodore Van Vechten, big man in Wall street and known as the "Man of Iron," in search of information regarding the whereabouts of Paige Carew.

CHAPTER II—Detective Flint shows Van Vechten a gold mesh purse found in the House of Mystery. Van recognizes it as belonging to Paige Carew.

CHAPTER III—The sweet-voiced girl helps Tom Phinney escape, but refuses to disclose her identity. Tom declares he will meet her again.

CHAPTER IV—Detective Flint tells Van Vechten he has a theory that Paige has been kidnapped. Van goes to lay the case before his uncle.

CHAPTER V—Messages are sent to Europe in an effort to trace Paige. Tom tells Van Vechten he is in love and relates his adventure.

CHAPTER VI—A message from London reports that two ladies resembling Miss Carew and her companion, Mrs. Devereaux, sailed for New York some time previously. A reward of $2,500 is offered.

CHAPTER VII—It develops that the ladies visited the English home of Temple Bonner, owner of the "House of Mystery." Flint has a theory that they are connected with the mystery of No. 1313.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Ghost of Romance.

Van Vechten's admission was accepted by Mr. Flint quite as a matter of course; as if he would have been exceedingly surprised if the young man had identified the lady of the taxi cab with some other entirely different person. Said he:

"I shall sketch briefly as much of the Schuyler-Bonner history as I have learned; then, Mr. Van Vechten, you will see what I want to know.

"In the seventies and early eighties, Compton Schuyler was a prominent figure, a man of affairs, in the New York commercial world, and as fortunes went in those days, a wealthy man. Besides, he was of the old Dutch stock; his home was a center of the fashionable life of the city. Two beautiful, charming daughters greatly enhanced this attraction, so that the name was really better known socially than in a business way. At that period his home was looked upon as a mansion, and that young man who stood in the family's good graces counted himself fortunate indeed.

"It was only an inevitable consequence that the two Schuyler sisters carried a long string of suitors in their train, they were social favorites and enjoyed the supremacy which for several years discouraged all idea of matrimony.

"Then conditions began to change. One misfortune followed another so that in a remarkably short time the family sank into comparative obscurity, and, in the cruel way society has of giving her erstwhile favorites the cold shoulder, speedily forgotten.

"First, through a series of bad investments, Schuyler lost the bulk of his fortune. A few months previously Josephine had married against her father's consent, and her husband, Percy Devereaux, showed the sort of specimen he was by promptly deserting her when the loss became known. Next, Mrs. Schuyler died suddenly.

"Hope of rehabilitating the family and of recouping its dwindling fortunes was now all centered in the remaining sister—Henrietta. Among her suitors was one young man who was not only her social equal, but heir to one of the largest fortunes in the world. Every mother in New York with a marriageable daughter, to say nothing of many abroad—especially in England—had marked this young man for her legitimate prey; but he loved Henrietta Schuyler and was so devoted and open in his preference that the matrimonial schemers were one and all discouraged.

"But with all his wealth and superior position, the course of true love did not run smooth for Temple Bonner. The facts would make a plot for a novel. There was yet another young man among those who came a-courting at the old brownstone mansion, but one vastly different in many respects from Bonner. This man's name was Willard—Max Willard."

"I've heard the name," muttered Van Vechten.

"It was an irony of Fate," pursued Mr. Flint, "that Bonner and Willard should not only be friends, but the closest sort of intimacy existed between them, a genuine Damon and Pythias attachment.

"Willard lacked about every advantage possessed by his rival; he was poor, unattractive in appearance, and had many peculiar traits which made enemies where Temple Bonner won friends. He was regarded as a visionary, a crank, a man who would never make his mark. However, he must have possessed some unusual quality, because Temple Bonner had implicit faith in him—believed that he was a genius of some sort; but it was characteristic of Willard that he would accept no assistance from his more fortunate rival.

"Bonner, it would seem, felt his own position keenly. He realized that his friend was almost overwhelmingly handicapped, and as well as I can piece out from what actually happened, he withdrew temporarily from the field and gave Max Willard every opportunity to advance his suit. I suppose the idea was, that if Willard was successful, Bonner would abide by the consequences; if not, then Willard was to stand aside and give Bonner his chance. Much of this is guesswork; it is hard to arrive at the truth at this late day; but certain circumstances exist which indicate that what I am telling you is what actually happened.

"It would appear from the sequel that Max Willard had been the favored one all along. Temple Bonner went abroad; within two months Willard and Miss Henrietta had eloped and were married; within ten minutes after he received news of the runaway wedding Compton Schuyler had blown out his brains.

"There are the naked facts.

"Temple Bonner never returned to America, and Max Willard, instead of justifying his friend's confidence in his talents—whatever their bent might have been—had dropped entirely from sight. His wife, you tell me, has been dead a long time; but were there no children? Is Max Willard still alive, where is he, has he any family, what is his occupation? Those are the things I want you to find out. I fancy the runaway match, with all its attendant circumstances, created something of a stir at the time; some of your older friends should be able and willing to supply you with the facts."

"Oh, I have no doubt that I can learn all you want to know," agreed Van Vechten. "Most of what you have just told me is not exactly news; but I had forgotten it—it all happened before my time, you know. Josephine is generally regarded by her friends as a woman who has suffered much, one deserving pity and sympathy; but—heavens and earth—she is no martyr to tribulation; she's the jolliest sort imaginable. . . . But how will this help you to solve your murder problem, or—what more nearly concerns me—find some trace of my cousin?"

For some moments Mr. Flint sat silent, gazing meditatively through the window. Number 1313's dingy front loomed dingier than ever in the late afternoon sunshine; but Mr. Flint had no eyes for the old house just at present. After a bit he turned to Van Vechten.

"Before answering your question, Mr. Van Vechten, I am going to lay another matter before you," said he gravely; "it may seem impertinently personal, but there are occasions when the ordinary civilities and amenities must be laid aside and disregarded. I know that you and Miss Carew are engaged to be married; I do not mention the sentiment that usually accompanies such a conventionality, for perhaps I shall pain you; but isn't there a possibility that she has become interested in another more recent love affair?"

"Flint," was the prompt response, "you are not trespassing upon my feelings in the least, and I am going to be frank with you. The engagement you speak of has always been more or less of a tacit understanding in our family. Paige is only a distant cousin, you know; but we are a clanish set, we Van Vechtens, and she and I have always been awfully fond of each other.

"But as for love. That's another matter. In strictest confidence, Flint, I have an idea that we shall never marry—simply. I am convinced, because I could not insist without forcing myself upon her. No, no; I am much too fond of her for that. And as for another love affair, what earthly reason is there for her making a secret of it? She is not a girl given to romantic fancies or school-girl sentimentality; she is of age, her own mistress; and were she to learn, as I have, that it is possible for either of us to care for somebody else in a way different from our present feelings toward each other, why, she couldn't let me know it fast enough. That's Paige—if anybody must be hurt, have it over and done with as soon as possible."

"I am beginning to form a pretty fair idea of your cousin," observed Mr. Flint. "Her intelligence, courage and independent character make it all the more necessary that I learn everything possible about Max Willard. I suppose that she and Mrs. Devereaux are very much attached to each other?"

"Paige and Josephine? I can't say they are like mother and daughter—Josephine's heart is much too young for that—chums would be more nearly accurate. Yet Mrs. Devereaux has been a mother to Paige, and the very strongest ties of affection and confidence bind them together."

Mr. Flint slowly nodded his head, as if these disclosures were right in harmony with whatever theory he was evolving.

"One thing more," said he. "It is strange that it has never occurred to you, with your intimate understanding of your cousin, that nothing at all has happened to her; that her prolonged absence without communicating with relatives or friends is an act of her own free will."

"But it did occur to me," Van Vechten contradicted. "And it is my knowledge of Paige that renders such a hypothesis wholly absurd."

Again Mr. Flint nodded understandingly.

"Now," said he, "I'll answer your question as to why I attach so much importance to finding Max Willard; although what I have already told you should supply the explanation. I want to discover the motive that influenced Temple Bonner to disregard his own iron-bound system of doing business and establish a precedent by interposing personally in the case of the house across the street. It is remarkable that he should do such a thing for anybody. If Max Willard is alive, the old friendship would supply that motive. Then it would be high time to get in touch with Willard and learn what he's up to."

"Until I Realized My Mistake I Believed the Veiled Lady to Be Josephine Devereaux."

"Perhaps," Van Vechten reflectively offered, "Temple Bonner's sentiment about the house extended to preserving everything just as it was when he was attentive to Miss Henrietta. But he has never come back to it."

"That was precisely the impression I gathered. Aside from the gold purse, I found nothing whatever of any interest to my investigation."

Van Vechten asked carelessly: "If one were minded to, could one get in?"

The detective smiled. "Are you thinking of attempting it?"

"Maybe I shall—if the obstacles in the way are not insurmountable. You see, Flint, I may stumble upon something of value as a clue; something that was meaningless to you with your scant knowledge of family traditions."

The detective passed a flat key across the table, saying merely: "The back door; you reach it through the alley."

Van Vechten pocketed the key. Turning to Tom, Mr. Flint had just asked him to recount his Rocky Cove experience, when the arrival of another messenger boy with a fresh bundle of cablegrams interrupted him.

These messages were the remaining replies to those sent by Van Vechten in the morning, and, in addition, a notification from the telegraph company of failure to deliver the cablegram to Paige at Paris.

They proved to be similar in tenor to those received earlier in the day—one and all they declared entire ignorance of Paige Carew's whereabouts.
