THE HOUSE ON RICHMOND HILL

A STORY FOR JULY 4—
By
CAPT. F. A. MITCHEL

[Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.]

In old New York during the latter part of the eighteenth century, not far from that part of the city lying near and north of what is now Canal street, there was a rise in the ground called Richmond hill, on which stood what was a handsome residence for that day. To the south lay the Lispenard meadows, and to the west was the North river.

In July, 1775, Washington took command of the Continental armies at Cambridge. The battles of Concord, Lexington and Bunker Hill had been fought, and the next most important struggle was for the possession of New York. The British had command on the water, which gave them a great advantage, and were bound sooner or later to take the city, but Washington went there to put up as good a fight for it as possible. It was during the subsequent operations that Washington occupied the mansion on Richmond hill. The housekeeper was Phoebe

"I AM ANXIOUS TO FIX THIS CRIME UPON THE MAN WHO HAS INSTIGATED IT."

Fraunces, daughter of Samuel Fraunces, who kept the famous tavern. Phoebe was an attractive girl and was not in want of lovers. One of them was Thomas Hickey, a member of the life guard of Washington.

One day when the housekeeper was directing a negro woman who was sweeping the front porch Hickey left his tent and went up to speak to her. She asked him:

"What do you suppose that British warship out there in the river is up to? She's been hovering about ever since the general came here."

"How should I know?" replied Hickey, with a show of irritation that surprised Phoebe.

"How should you know?" she repeated. "One would suppose from the way you take my question that you were in league with her captain."

Hickey still further astonished the girl by turning pale at this random shot. Phoebe looked at him for a while in a sort of curious wonder; then, turning to the negro woman, she said: "That will do, Susan. You may go in now."

The woman disappeared, and Phoebe Fraunces and Tom Hickey were left alone. There was no one nearer than the sentry pacing to and fro in the yard below.

"Now, Tom," said Phoebe, "tell me what's the matter with you."

"What's the matter with me? Why, nothing's the matter with me."

"Tom, I thought you said you loved me."

"I did."

"Then why do you keep a secret from me?"

Tom made no reply. Phoebe studied his countenance for awhile, then said: "Tom, I'm for the king."

"You don't mean it, Phoebe!"

"Yes, I do, and I believe you're really on the same side."

"Are you telling the truth, Phoebe?"

"To be sure I am. I want to make some money myself. I'll divide with you. Together we can make a good deal. Meet me tonight after lights are out on the river bank."

Phoebe, who was trying to worm Tom's secret out of him, let him go reluctantly, fearing that he might gather caution and refuse to trust her. He did regret having placed so much confidence in her, but he realized that he had gone too far to retreat. When she met him on the river bank he gave her the whole story.

When the Revolution broke out and the people of New York rose against the authority of the king, the governor of the province, Tryon, fled to the warship Asia, the vessel of which Phoebe had spoken. There he plotted—or, rather, continued to plot—for Washington's assassination. He bribed Tom Hickey, a member of Washington's life guard, to poison the general's food.

Hickey, as soon as Phoebe had avowed herself a royalist, realizing that she would be able to do the work more easily than he, proposed the scheme to her.

Phoebe was thunderstruck. Fortunately it was dark on the river bank, and Hickey could not see the horror in her face at his proposal. She pretended for awhile to be averse to the plan, but when Hickey held before her the reward they would receive and how it would enable them to marry and live in comfort she feigned to yield and called for the poison. Tom gave her a powder, and she, after enduring his caresses for a few moments, slipped away from him and returned to headquarters.

The general was engaged in dictating dispatches to his aid-de-camp, Captain Hamilton, and as soon as Hamilton left the room Phoebe knocked and was bidden to enter. Closing the door behind her, she revealed the plot she had drawn from Hickey.

"What!" exclaimed Washington. "Are these men, not content with being tyrants, ambitious to be murderers?"

Phoebe, who stood in great awe of the commander, was about to withdraw when he stopped her.

"I am anxious," he said, "to fix this crime upon the man who has instigated it. I shall not arrest this miserable tool till you have drawn all the evidence from him it is possible for you to get. Meet me again tomorrow; pretend to be assured that you will receive the reward for my assassination and have him—if you can prevail upon him to do so—get for you the names of as many persons involved in the plot as you can."

Phoebe signified her willingness to do all in her power. The general took the powder from her and gave it to his medical director with an order to analyze it and report to him concerning it. It proved to be a virulent poison.

The next day Phoebe brought the general considerable evidence, some of it written, involving a number of persons. Having got all the information that seemed to be forthcoming, Washington sent out parties of soldiers to arrest those within his lines who were implicated. Hickey was arrested at the same time. Phoebe saw him led past under guard and said to him:

"You would be murderer! You thought to use me in your effort to kill the finest man in America. You will be hanged, and it will serve you right!"

At his trial Phoebe Fraunces was the principal witness. Washington was especially desirous to fix the intended crime on Governor Tryon, and by Phoebe's testimony, or, rather, the evidence she had drawn from Hickey, he was enabled to do so. Hickey was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. The sentence was executed in due course of time.

What became of Phoebe Fraunces' history does not state. Had she not succeeded in worming the secret out of Tom Hickey, Washington might have gone down under the attempt of the British to eliminate him from the struggle.

The Descendants of the Signers is an organization composed of men and women whose ancestors penned their names to the document that proclaimed American freedom. The society was organized at the Jamestown exposition in 1907 with a membership of upward of 150 persons.

Americans Above All!
Let us always remember that, whatever differences about politics may have existed or still exist, we are all Americans before we are partisans and cherish the welfare of all the people above party or state. God bless every undertaking which revives patriotism and rebukes the indifferent and lawless.—William McKinley, July 4, 1897.

Our Yankee Doodle Boy.

YANKEE DOODLE four-year-old is a hero big and bold,
On his breast a sash of red,
Cap and plume upon his head,
On his thigh a sword of lath,
A red cannon by the path,
The true, stary banner o'er him
And a loud drum hung before him.

Colonel, captain, garrison,
Gunner, drummer, all in one;
Tyrant kings and Hessian foes
Cannot stand before his blows—
Nay, nor any one with ears,
Dear mammas nor grenadiers!

THE YANKEE DOODLE BOY AND HIS SISTER

Give him room and let him bang,
Batter, clatter, crackle, clang,
Rub-a-dub, hurrah and charge,
Strike and wheel and tramp at large,
Fierce with valor, hewing down
Mullein head and thistle crown;
'Tis the fourth day of July,
And his loyal heart beats high.

As the good boy Washington,
Slashing cherry trees for fun,
Drove his hatchet through a throne,
So my Yankee four-year-old,
Now in fancy battles bold,
Shall grow up in courage strong
To smite many a cruel wrong!

THE SPIRIT OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

Let us, standing by our fathers' graves, swear anew and teach the oath to our children that with God's help the American republic, clasping this continent in its embrace, shall stand unmoved, though all the powers of slavery, piracy and European jealousy should combine to overthrow it; that we shall have in the future, as we have had in the past, one country, one constitution and one destiny; that our sons may gather strength from our example in every contest with the despotism that time may have in store to try their virtue, and that they may rally under the stars and stripes to battle for freedom and the rights of man with our old time warry, "Liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable."—John Jay, July 4, 1861.

New England Colonist—What are you celebrating today, Berialah?
Convivial Ditto—Why, this will be the last opportunity we will ever have to celebrate a "quiet Fourth!"—Puck.

FIRST BATTLE OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

UNTIL the news of the fighting at Lexington, Mass., on April 19, 1775, reached London the British government cherished hopes that the rebellion of the American colonists might be put down without force. After that, however, it was seen in England that further fighting was inevitable. The news of the skirmish was received in London on May 29, when Richard Derby, an American messenger with a petition of remonstrance, arrived in London. The official dispatches of General Gage were published in London on June 10. The enemies of the British ministry began immediately to jeer at "the great British army at Boston that has been beaten by a flock of Yankees!"

"OLD GLORY'S" BAPTISM OF FIRE

By
W. H. RICHARDSON

[Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.]

INDEPENDENCE day naturally brings thoughts of Old Glory and its first appearance in the grim business that was engaging the country at the time of its formal adoption as the national emblem. As every child knows, the flag had its statutory beginning on June 14, 1777, when congress agreed upon the design. After the smoke had cleared away from the battle of Oriskany on Aug. 6, 1777, when Sir John Johnson and his Tories and Indians were routed, the victor of the day improvised a flag from the red petticoat of a soldier's wife, a white shirt and an old blue jacket and flung it to the breeze above the captured British standards at Fort Stanwix. That is doubtless the first time the flag appeared in the "danger zone."

When Washington got his clew eventually that Sir William Howe with 18,000 men was sailing up the Chesapeake he started his army southward, and on the way through Philadelphia they were cheered and inspired by the bands playing and "the flags flying"—some of the flags of Betsy Ross' own make, perhaps.

Howe landed twelve miles below Elkton, Md., on Aug. 25, and the fateful campaign of 1777-8 began with a collision at Couch's bridge, only a few miles nearer Philadelphia, his objective point. A division of the British, under Lord Cornwallis, had advanced to Iron hill, an eminence sloping down to Christiana creek and from which a large part of the country toward the Delaware could be observed.

On the part of the Americans a "light advance corps" had been organized under General Maxwell, with instructions to be "constantly near the enemy and give them every possible annoyance." Stedman, an English historian of the "Origin, Progress and Termination of the American War," published his big two volume history in 1794. He was on Cornwallis' staff, and he disposes of this first engagement in seven words, telling of "dispersing the ad-

How To Improve the Dairy Herd

Form a Breeders' Association For Securing Pure Bred Sires.

G. E. WOLCOTT,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The most economical way to establish a herd of high grade dairy cattle is to breed the common cows, such as are found in every locality, to a pure bred bull. This bull should not be merely a pure bred of the breed desired; but he should be the offspring of animals that are known to be large producers of milk and butterfat. His dam should be a large producer; likewise the dam of his sire. These two animals exert a great influence on the young bull. If his sire be an aged bull, it is well to note the production of his daughters. If this dam and his granddam on his sire's side are animals of merit, and his sire has bred daughters that are making large productions, there is reason to believe he will transmit these qualities to his offspring.

The advantage of using a pure bred sire on the grade herd is easily understood when it is seen that the first offspring contain 50 per cent. of his high producing blood. As his breeding is apt to make him prepotent over common cows, his influence on the first cross is really greater than represented by the 50 per cent. When the pure bred sire is bred to the half blood heifers, the progeny will be 75 per cent. pure. This being carried on for several generations, a high grade herd of cows will be developed, which for practical purposes are as good as pure bred.

In localities where one breed is popular, the most economical way to purchase bulls, is to organize a Breeders' Association. The association elects a board of directors who have charge of the affairs of the association. There may be some bulls in the community that are of sufficient merit to be included in the association. By purchasing one or two more a large number of cows could be bred each year.

The community is divided into blocks. When the bull in block No. 1 is no longer desired, he is moved to block No. 2, and one of the other bulls is moved to block No. 1. By this method of co-operation, each farmer has the use of a pure bred bull for a period of six to nine years, at the initial cost of one, or if his herd be small, less than the cost of one.

There is another great advantage to this system of breeding. The bulls are kept in the community for a period of several years. The production of their daughters are known before they are disposed of. If one of the bulls has transmitted to his offspring high producing ability, he is the highly prepotent animal that is worth a fortune to any locality.

Further, the community will become known as a center for a certain breed; and buyers will eagerly purchase the surplus at a higher price than could otherwise be secured.

KEEP THEM TAME.

ROY H. WAITE.

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It certainly pays to keep chickens tame. Aside from the satisfaction and pleasure of working in agreeable surroundings, the chickens, themselves, will grow and develop much better. It's a simple matter to keep them tame. One of the most important steps is to keep them hungry. Chickens that are overfed do not take much interest in their attendant. Then you must be careful in all your movements when going amongst them for quick or sudden motions will set them all adrift. If they are wild, make them come close to you to get their feed. Gradually shorten the distance the feed is thrown each day and soon you will be rewarded by them flying upon you and acting as gentle and fearless as one could wish.

Let your boy or girl have a share in the farm business. Give them a pig, a calf, a few hens or a patch of land to work—a place for a hive of bees if nothing else—anyway to make them feel they have a part in the life of the farm that is their very own.

Boys are natural resources. They can be worked out as soil can be impoverished by forever exacting the same thing of them and never fertilizing them with play.

The country school should teach its pupils the mysteries of the soil, the habits and value of birds, and the marvelous wealth of the vegetable world about them.

CHURCH REUNIONS AT PEN-MAR

July 16, 23 and 30, Are The Dates, For Annual Conventions.

The dates and plans for the annual reunions of the Reformed, Lutheran and Presbyterian churches at Pen-Mar have been definitely announced.

The Reformed reunion will be the first one held this year and will take place on Thursday, July 16. It is expected that it will be attended by about 10,000 persons. Rev. Mr. Le Van, of North Wales, of Montgomery county, will be the principal speaker of the day. He will deliver his address at the morning session. The afternoon will be taken up by the "col lege hour." The graduates of the various colleges of the Reformed Church will gather together in groups when college songs will be sung and yells given. The remainder of the day will be given over to having a good time.

The officers and directors of the Reformed reunion are as follows: President, Emory L. Coblenz, of Middletown, Md.; secretary, Rev. J. B. Shontz, Chambersburg; treasurer, Samuel S. Brenner, Mechanicburg. W. C. Birely, Frederick, is a member of the Board of Directors.

The twenty-eighth annual reunion of the Lutheran denomination will be held at Pen-Mar, Thursday, July 23, Rev. Dr. George W. Enders, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, York, is chairman of the reunion committee. Dr. Enders is the only remaining member of the reunion committee which was elected about 20 years ago and has served as chairman for a number of years past. Rev. Dr. U. S. G. Rupp, of Frederick, is a member of the committee having the event in charge.

The chorus choir of Christ Lutheran Church, York, will attend the reunion in a body and sing a number of anthems. The choir will be directed by Prof. Alfred Hueter, choirster, who will also have charge of the singing at the reunion. The choir will be accompanied by the Bee Hive Sunday school orchestra. The Pen-Mar Orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Bohl, will give a concert at the opening session in the morning. An address to the young women of the denomination will be delivered by Sister Sophia Jepson, formerly deaconess of the Christ Lutheran Church, now head sister in the Lutheran deaconess home, Baltimore. Rev. W. H. Feldmann, who recently took charge of the congregation of the Union Lutheran Church, York, will deliver an address. His subject will be "America, Our Great Lutheran Harvest Field." Rev. J. B. Baker, of Gettysburg, formerly pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, York, will also deliver an address. He will use as his subject, "Our Young Lutherans at York."

The constituency of the reunion is made up as a district within a radius of 100 miles of Pen-Mar. This district includes about 300 Lutheran parishes; 250 pastors and 100,000 communicants. The Pennsylvania college, Gettysburg, and the Lutheran Theological Seminary, also of Gettysburg, are included in the district. Between 15,000 and 20,000 persons are expected to attend the reunion.

The Presbyterian reunion will be held at Pen-Mar, Thursday, July 30. The committee in charge is arranging an interesting program, which will be completed in the near future. Special excursions will be run from a number of cities.

ODDS AND ENDS

Johnson M. Camden, a turfman of Kentucky, and a candidate for governor, entertained 40,000 guests at a barbecue at his home. There were slaughtered 250 sheep and 75 heaves.

To the close of 1913 Alaska had produced known mineral wealth to the value of $248,300,000.

Reading, Pa., has unveiled a tablet in memory of George Washington's visit to that town in 1794.

The wealth of the United States is growing at the rate of about $7,000,000,000 per annum, whereas the investments of Europe in the country rarely exceed $3,000,000 in a single year, and in some years are nothing at all on balance.

The subject of irrigation in India is one of tremendous economic importance to the country, and the remarkable progress which has occurred in recent years in great irrigation projects has furnished a substantial cause for much of the recent increased prosperity in this empire.

vanced guards of the enemy." Captain John Montessoro, Howe's chief of engineers, counted only three dead and twenty wounded among the British at that time, notwithstanding the fact that Morgan's famous riflemen had been shooting at the redcoats. But the cannon planted on Iron hill really did serious damage to Maxwell's men, who, having no such formidable arm, duly retired under pressure of a largely outnumbering foe. Delawares are proud of the fact that the opportunity to wave the stars and stripes at the head of fighting columns came first in their state.

Nearly five hundred cities now have public playgrounds and about half of them receive municipal support.

YOU CAN SHARE IN THE GREAT SAVING

On Commercial Fertilizers By The Use Of

CRIMSON CLOVER

Read Farmers Bulletin No. 579 on Crimson Clover Its Free - Address U. S. Dept. of Agriculture Washington, D. C.

A bushel of Crimson Clover Seed sown on four acres of ground will increase the succeeding yield of Corn or Cotton about the same amount as would a ton of complete fertilizer applied at the rate of 500 lbs. per acre. A good stand of Crimson Clover turned under will ordinarily double the yield of the crops which follow. The physical condition of the soil is also materially benefited. The Sandy Soils are increased in Humus and Nitrogen Contents. The Stiff, heavy clay soils are rendered more open and friable.

Crimson Clover makes an excellent grazing crop, hay, ensilage and pasture for all classes of live stock. Milch cows make considerably more milk, when pastured on Crimson Clover. It is also valuable as a honey plant, furnishing an abundant supply of nectar in the spring.

Crimson Clover is valuable as a Winter Cover crop. It is especially valuable in Orchards where it is generally plowed under as a green manure crop. The plants retain for the use of the trees the following season much of the plant food, which would otherwise leach out of the ground during the Winter and early Spring. A good stand of Crimson Clover not only reduces the erosion and the shelling of the fields, but on sandy fields, the blowing of the soil by the wind is greatly lessened. The plants also serve to hold the snow to a greater extent than if the field was left bare during the Winter. More and more each year farmers are realizing the importance and great value of Crimson Clover.

Wood's Seeds

Seed Potatoes FOR FALL CROP.

The planting of Seed Potatoes in June and July is increasing to a wonderful extent. A great many farmers claim that they give better crops planted at this time than they do when planted in the spring. Potatoes planted in June and July mature in the cool weather of the fall, at a time when they can be harvested to best advantage.

The Seed Potatoes we offer are put in cold storage early in the season, so as to keep in first-class, vigorous condition.

ORDINATION SERMON

Discourse of Rev. G. H. Tragesser on the Occasion of the First Solemn Mass of Rev. C. P. Wassem, in St. Joseph's Church, Hanover, Pa., June 28, 1914.

"I will go unto the altar of God, to God who giveth joy to my youth." Ps. XLII, 4.

These are the words which the Church places on the lips of the priest at the beginning of the holy sacrifice; and, whether the mass be for the living or the dead, the joyful intonation is ever the same. Rightly does this sacrifice bring joy to the priest, for through its merits sinners are brought to repentance, the just are fortified in perseverance, the mournful are comforted, and souls in purgatory are delivered from their sufferings. "I will go unto the altar of God, to God who giveth joy to my youth." But these words have a special significance on this solemn occasion, when a newly-ordained priest ascends the altar of God for the first time. God gives joy to his youth because the fervent prayers of many years are now heard, and the longing aspirations of the priest, his ardent desires and fondest hopes are finally realized. His heart leaps with joy, because at the altar he can make a fitting return to all his loved ones that have contributed in any way towards his elevation. He rejoices, because by his ministry he will illumine many that sit in the darkness and shadow of death, and he will direct their feet into the way of peace.

As time speeds on and brings him, God willing, to the noonday of life, the priest will daily renew the joyous intonation: "I will go unto the altar of God, to God who giveth joy to my youth." But it may be objected: "By that time his youth is passed, and he is in the full growth of manhood, and how will God then give joy to the youth that no longer exists?" Ah! brethren, you know the saying that a man is as young as he feels. The Church would have her ministers ever cheerful in mind and young in heart; and this they will be, if they adhere closely to the Heart of Him Who said: "I am come to cast fire on the earth and what I will, but that it be kindled." Luke XII, 49. The priest will keep young in spirit, if he frequently renews in his heart love for the Divine Master and consequently zeal for souls. The priest will remain young at heart, if he cultivates the ministry of the little ones, of whom Jesus said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God." Mark X, 14.

Once he has run the middle of his course, time will pass more rapidly and the western shadows will fall more thickly and fast. The elastic step with which he first ascended the altar, is now slow and tottering, his erect form is curved and stooped, and the snows of many winters whiten his locks; and still venerable in age and full of merits, and sustained by unflinching hope, he will begin his last mass with the self-same words as the first: "I will go unto the altar of God, to God who giveth joy to my youth." Happy the priest, if, during a long span of life, love for Christ and zeal for souls have grown stronger day by day, and have preserved him cheerful in mind and young and vigorous at heart. When the hour strikes for his last mass and the final summons draws very near, happy the priest who witnesses the fruits of his persevering efforts to bring the children to the knowledge and love of Christ, and who has led to heaven countless souls to plead his cause on the day of reckoning.

This day brings fullness of joy not only to the young priest, but to his family and friends, who now reap the reward of their persevering prayers, affectionate interest and unstinted sacrifices in his behalf. This occasion is one of special joy, satisfaction and congratulation to your beloved pastor who from the time he has known our friend has taken in him a particular interest, encouraged him, and has proved himself a kind father and a loyal friend. The fathers of St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, are with us in spirit to-day and greatly share in our joy, and we owe them heartfelt gratitude and sincere appreciation for all they have done by word, instruction and example to prepare the young levite for the holy priesthood. There are many other absent friends to whom this occasion brings unbounded joy and happiness. Whilst we tender our hearty congratulations to a child of this parish who has been elevated to the holy priesthood, we should remember that he has received the great dignity and powers of his sublime office not for himself but for others. Brethren, we, therefore, are honored by the honor conferred on him. Despite the need of priests at home, this congregation now sends forth its second son to the great work of spreading the gospel in the immense State of Tennessee. This apostolic spirit well deserves commendation, and will, doubtless, bring renewed blessings on priestly labors at home. There is one great truth, brethren, a message of infinite love which this occasion accentuates, and which far outstrips any human consideration. The personal and local circumstances of this solemnity, the fact that the young priest is a child of the parish, that he is known and loved by us, that he may have gifts of nature which appeal to us; all these and like considerations pale ineffectual before the awful dignity of the priesthood of Jesus Christ Whom our faith recognizes as impersonated in the newly-ordained. There is only one great high priest, Christ, Our Lord; and all other priests are but His vicars or representatives, and whatever dignity or power they possess is from Christ and through Christ. If a young man from some foreign shore were to pursue in our country his studies for the priesthood, and in the end were to be ordained and offer his first mass in our midst, even though he should be to us a perfect stranger, destined to exercise his ministry in a distant land, nevertheless, the event would affect us profoundly and our faith would make us discern in him the elect minister and co-worker of Jesus Christ, and make us know and feel that we had a personal interest especially in those functions wherein he represents the Church, such as the holy sacrifice and the divine office.

Therefore, the ordination of every young man to the priesthood in any part of the world intimately concerns all the faithful, and is not without its beneficial effects on every soul outside the pale of the Church. I would strongly impress on you, dear brethren, the personal love of Christ for each and every soul when He first instituted at the last supper His sublime priesthood and also when He perpetuates this institution at the ordination of a priest. When you see a young priest, or for that matter when you meet any priest, each one of you may truly say to himself. It was not merely love for souls in general, but it was also a personal love for me that prompted the Heart of Jesus to raise this man to the office of the priesthood, and this love of the Heart of Jesus for me was as intense as if He had elevated this man to the priesthood for my sake alone.

The Church, in particular, rejoices in the ordination of her ministers because at every ordination she renews her youth and receives an additional pledge of the divine promise that she will endure all ages till the end of time. Human institutions in the world will have, as they always have had, their rise, their zenith and their decline. The Church is a divine institution, counting for her perpetuity on the promise of Christ, and renewing her faith in His promise at every ordination of her ministers.

The priests of the Church though endowed with a divine mission and with divine powers, are after all human, and in a few years they must pass away like other men. Hence the necessity of providing subjects to take their place, and to supply the ever-growing demands of religion. In a few years all of us here present will be found no more among the living; we shall have paid out tribute to the earth whence we came. Let us hope and pray that as generations rapidly follow one another they may often behold a renewal of the beautiful ceremony of to-day, when your sons and grandsons ascend for the first time the altar of God. Let us often pray the Lord of the harvest to send devoted and zealous laborers into His field, and mindful that the dignity and burden of the priesthood rest on human shoulders, let us thus pray frequently and fervently:—"Divine Heart of Jesus look down with love upon Thy priests: inflame them with burning zeal for the conversion of sinners: keep unstained the anointed hands which daily touch Thy immaculate body: keep unsoiled their lips purpled with Thy precious blood: keep pure and unearthy a heart sealed with the sublime marks of Thy glorious priesthood: bless their labors with abundant fruit, and may those to whom they have ministered on earth, be their joy, their crown and glory throughout all eternity."

Freedom From Disease Compulsory.

For the first time in the history of the public schools of Frederick county, a law has been passed and enacted by the Maryland Legislature prohibiting the Frederick County School Board and the school boards of all other counties of the State from employing teachers who have tuberculosis or any other communicable diseases in the schools of the county.

Another section of the act provides that the school boards may in their discretion appoint one or more physicians to examine the pupils of the schools of the county for hearing, sight, or any other physical defects. The board may also if it so desires, appoint special teachers to have supervision over the children who have physical deformities that prohibit them from advancing with the normal pupils of the county schools.

While the County School Board has not taken any action in regard to this law, because copies of this law have only recently been received, the question will be threshed out at a future meeting. The one section of the act is mandatory and will certainly be put into effect this fall.

"THE CHRISTIAN IDEAL"

Essay Delivered by Miss Mary E. Donohue at the Commencement Exercises of St. Joseph's College.

With the advent of Christianity, the whole aspect of the Educational world was changed; new standards gave man a definite ideal—Christ the Savior became Christ, the Teacher, Humanity's exemplar.

That the Catholic Church is the greatest educational authority on earth is not to be questioned; as the Voice of Christ, it continues His mission—"I am with you all days." The Church alone, divinely commissioned tells her teaching body, "Go teach ye all nations;" herein the Christian receives the true idea of education, and understands that nothing short of eternity is worthy of an infinite God or an immortal man.

As the ideal in education dominates and determines the content and method, we shall consider education as Christian and secular.

Patriotism, philanthropy, propriety, recapitulate secular education. Man's soul is of infinite value.

Home life is sacred; childhood is blessed.

There is a life beyond the grave, summarize Christian education.

Education should direct the heart and mind aright; it should speak to the soul of its Godlike powers, and elevating man to the supernatural, should bid him think, speak and act according to Christian dignity. The highest ideal in Christian Education is the spiritual interest of the individual, the soul responsibility to its Creator. Christianity does not withdraw from the school curriculum those secular elements which conduce to culture, refinement, happiness and success; rather she combines with these the transforming elements of spirituality. Has not the world of grace its foundation in the world of nature? A complete education then implies the development of the spiritual, moral, intellectual and physical being to a relative perfection; the Christian Educator alone presents this ideal to the intelligence. The foundation of this ideal is the decalogue, the guardian of the human heart. Any system that excludes Christ or His divine principles cannot endure. From the introduction of Christianity, Christ the true civilizer regenerated the world; His ideal was fostered in the catacombs, preserved through persecution, and rose in triumph to crown education. See, the finished product of Christian training—the individual man! "How noble in reason, how infinite in faculties, in form and moving how express and admirable, in action how like an angel! in apprehension how like a God!"

But secular education would eliminate the Christian ideal, would exclude all religion. Even though daily experience proves Christ to be the "Need of the Nation," the "Need of the Individual," proves religion to be a Conqueror, for "truth is mighty and will prevail." Ideals cease to be ideals when easily attainable, hence the ideal of the Christian is Christ who says "Look and do according to the model shown you upon the mount." Christian education strives to attain this ideal; her province is to cultivate noble sentiments, to discipline minds in the pursuit of useful knowledge, to teach that "in God in whom we live, move, and have our being," must the Christian life begin, continue and end. The sum total of philosophy in Christian Education is "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His justice, and all things else shall be added unto you."

MARYLAND'S NEW HEALTH LAW.

Revised Sanitary Regulations Went Into Effect on July 1.

Division of the State into ten sanitary districts, with an officer in charge of each, who shall be an expert in health and sanitary service, and who shall devote his whole time to his duties. His compensation will range from $1,200 to $2,500 per annum, according to the importance of the district to which he is assigned. Each sanitary officer or deputy will be subject to orders by Dr. Fulton. He will have no term of office. Deputies can be removed only by the State board on proved charges in writing.

More complete and absolute control and supervision of all canneries, bakeries, slaughter houses and other establishments in which food products are turned out. This control extends to hotels, restaurants and eating houses in which prepared food products are served. In brief, the authority is given in order that food is prepared in clean places and by clean employees.

Practically unlimited control of all waters of the State, springs, streams, ponds, the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries and that part of the Atlantic Ocean coming under the jurisdiction of Maryland. This control includes water sheds and water supplies, sewerage disposal, not only of Baltimore, but every town and village. The arrangements for sewerage disposal, including sewerage systems, come under the authority granted the State Board.

Power to order sanitary improvements in a town or county. The State Board may even go so far as to give authority for issue of bonds, without legislative sanction, the funds derived from the sale of bonds to be devoted to sanitary improvements.

Before any land platted for sale is put upon the market and before any permanent buildings are put upon such lands, the owners must file with the board a plat and the plans for supplying the tract with water and sewerage service. If these are not satisfactory, the board may order the owner to install such a system of water and sewerage service as it may deem proper. This power extends even to the case where one man builds a row of small houses for sale or rent.

TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM NOT INJURIOUS TO HEALTH OR PROPERTY.

Convincing proof that tuberculosis sanatoria or hospitals are not a menace to the health nor a detriment to the property of those living near such institutions is given in a pamphlet issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. In an extended study of the subject the Association has not been able to find a single instance where a tuberculosis sanatorium has had an injurious effect on the health of anyone living near it nor where it has had any lasting effect upon property values.

The pamphlet, entitled "The Effect of Tuberculosis Institutions on the Value and Desirability of Surrounding Property," reviews all the studies made on the subject, takes up court decisions bearing on the question, and contributes besides some original investigations of typical hospitals, and the opinions of prominent men, life insurance companies, and others. Nearly 150 different institutions are studied. In all these institutions, not one case could be found where the assertions of opponents to their location, that a tuberculosis sanatorium would spread disease and injure property, could be substantiated. In fact, a number of instances were found where the presence of the sanatorium or hospital promoted outdoor living, tending to lower the death rate, and increased the market for produce and labor, thereby benefitting the community.

Among the most significant opinions expressed are those by five of the largest life insurance companies in the United States. These companies were asked if residence in a tuberculosis sanatorium by a healthy individual was considered an adverse factor in issuing insurance and also if residence in the neighborhood of a sanatorium constituted such an adverse factor. Two of the companies answered the first question in the affirmative and two in the negative, but everyone of them answered that residence near a tuberculosis sanatorium was not considered an adverse factor in issuing life insurance.

Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, who built the first tuberculosis sanatorium in the United States in 1885, says: "When I bought the first land on which the Adirondack Cottage Sanitarium was built, I paid $25 an acre for it, but the price was then thought absurdly high. My last purchase of five acres cost me $5000. To my knowledge, there has never been an employe who came to the sanatorium in sound health who developed tuberculosis while there; and a sanatorium can no more endanger the health of the neighborhood in which it is built, even if the residences are at its very gates, than it could if it were placed on top of a high mountain miles away from habitation."

NEW HEIR TO THRONE POPULAR.

Archduke Charles Francis Liked By All Classes of Austria.

Owing to the recent assassination of the Archduke Ferdinand, who was the heir apparent to the Austrian throne, much interest is attached to the new heir.

Archduke Charles Francis, known popularly as Karl, who becomes heir to the Austrian throne, owing to the morganatic birth of Archduke Francis Ferdinand's children, debarring their succession, has been carefully educated with a view of fitting him for the position of emperor. He is immensely popular in both Austria and Hungary as well as in England and other countries. He represented Austria at the coronation of King George, as Archduke Francis Ferdinand would not attend because his wife could not take her place by his side. Archduke Charles, besides speaking English and German fluently, has a thorough knowledge of the Slav tongue. He is twenty-six years old, of athletic build and carriage, and shows distinct traces of his military training. The close study of Slavonic and Bathan problems to which he has devoted himself should be of good service when he comes to the throne.

He differs from all other members of the imperial family inasmuch as he is the first member of the imperial house to have been educated in the public schools of Vienna, where he mixed with students of every class of society. He associated with workmen and tradespeople and joined them in their games, thus getting into closer touch with the aspirations and ideas of the people than any of the other Hapsburgs. He is a first lieutenant in the Austrian navy. He is a major in the Thirty-Ninth Regiment Infantry a member of the Eleventh Regiment of Prussian Hussars, the Thirteenth Regiment of Bavarian Infantry and is a member of the Order of St. Hubert and of the Black Eagle.

He entered the army as a lieutenant in the Seventh Dragoons. He has since advanced to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the infantry, but he is to join the artillery next in order that he may become proficient in all branches of the service. He is said to have shown much more natural military talent than did Archduke Francis Ferdinand.

The archduke is an excellent shot, is fond of hunting and an enthusiastic motorist and a patron of the opera and the theatre. He is a good linguist, speaking German, Hungarian, French, English, Italian, Czech and Polish. Although he has been trained for the throne from the first, Archduke Charles Francis has been kept rather in the background, being sent to country garrisons and not allowed to undertake representative duties in Vienna to as great an extent as the Viennese would have liked. This, however, has not detracted from his popularity. His wife has won the hearts of all Austria.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county.

FOREST CONSERVATION AND TREE PLANTING.

It is extremely gratifying to note the continued progress that is being made by the nation and the states in the direction of the conservation of our forests.

Formerly, when the country was young and undeveloped, its national resources seemed limitless to our forefathers and the idea of conservation was not dreamed of.

But of recent years conditions have changed so that the use of this timber supply, which at one time seemed so unlimited, has become a very grave national problem.

The first definite steps in this movement for the conservation of forests were taken during the administration of Mr. Roosevelt, when the first National Forestry Commission was created to meet this problem of ever increasing national importance. Since that time the cause of forest conservation has been steadily gaining ground. Many tracts of woodland have been purchased by the government and made into national reserves.

Following the example of the government, the various state legislatures passed many measures of this sort, until the movement has come to our very door in the shape of the Maryland Roadside Tree Law.

One might ask what relation the Roadside Tree Law bears to the conservation of our forests and timber supply. It is just this. We have used and destroyed our timber beyond the proper point and our efforts now must be directed toward conserving what remains and toward replacing what is destroyed.

In the planting of trees along highways and in the streets of a town there is everything to be gained and nothing to be lost. In making a tour of a state what can be more pleasant than to journey by roads which are lined with trees?

But the beautifying of a town or property is not the only advantage to be gained, for tree planting greatly increases the value of a property whether it be a farm or a city lot.

cooperate with the State, or will you be merely indifferent?

MAY IT CONTINUE!

A prominent man, who is an annual visitor to Emmitsburg, recently remarked that each time he returned, there was a very marked improvement to be noticed in both the town and the surrounding district.

To be convinced of this fact a person need merely look around him and recall the many improvements of a substantial and permanent nature which have been made during the past few years.

Never before in its history has the town been as well kept, the property in as good repair or the farms in such a prosperous condition.

A LITTLE MORE OPTIMISM PLEASE.

F. D. Coburn, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture for Kansas, reports that the wheat crop of that state is sixty million bushels greater than any previous Kansas yield.

We have heard too much of the "psychological depression" of the country and have been too willing to attach significance to events which, in other years would go almost unnoticed.

To Each Age Its Problems.

It is not enough that we leave our institutions as our fathers shaped them. They knew little or nothing of the conditions which we face.

Men need not wait until death to realize many of their ideals. They can have things here on earth which their fathers associated with the millennium.

Not For Her.

"What did you say to him, dad?" "I asked him if he could support you in the style to which you had been accustomed."

Paid In His Own Coin.

"John, did you read about this Denver millionaire giving his wife a diamond tiara?" "No."

Hard Work.

"It is a good rule to endeavor hour by hour and week after week to learn to work hard. It is not well to take four minutes to do what we can accomplish in three."

Good Idea.

When they have their pictures taken people try to look pleasant. Why not wear that look all the time? It will shorten no man's life!

Temper, not trouble, makes the misery of most men's and women's lives.

Restless Flat Dwellers.

The restlessness of the flat dweller is a national mystery. Why does he go forth inevitably in the spring to find another flat and to insert his family and furniture therein?

The Sewing Machine.

The invention of the sewing machine is one of the most interesting evolutionary romances in the history of human progress. Stone, Henderson and Greenough had experimented extensively with the double pincer idea.

Had Forty Homes.

Villon, the painter, was a unique personage even among the odd characters of Paris. While he was essentially a bohemian, there were times when even his patience was taxed to the utmost.

The Test of Character.

But responsibility is the great character developer, and very few of us really know what we can do until we are put to the test. The market is long on men who can take orders, but short on those who can intelligently issue them.

Very Red Tape.

A burglar entering a house by a ladder in a small Prussian town fell and broke his leg when making off with his booty.

Taking on Trust.

It is far better that we trust and be deceived occasionally than not to trust at all. Not only must we trust one another, but there are many things in life that we must take on trust—things that we do not understand and are mysteries to us.

When Real Knowledge Comes.

"Mamma," asked a little girl, "how long did you know papa before you married him?" "My dear," replied the mother, "I was acquainted with your father for several years, but I really didn't know him until after we were married."

She Knew Better.

A census taken in Berlin at the dull-est time of the evening, between half past 5 and half past 8, showed that during these three hours ninety-eight drinking places were visited by 23,436 persons.

Ravages of Ants.

The ruins of a splendid city on the north coast of Jamaica remain as evidence of the devastation that red ants are capable of causing.

Bishop Butler's Generosity.

The saintly Bishop Butler, whose "Analogy" is still used as a text book for clerical examinations, kept open house at Durham, where he dispensed hospitality with a lavish hand.

Gentleman.

Gentleman is from the French "gentilhomme" and means one who belongs to the gens, or stock. In old Roman law gens-men, or gentlemen, were those only who had a family name.

Ancient Armor.

In 1515 a battle was fought near Milan, in Italy, and so perfect was the armor of both armies that, although the conflict raged from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., no one on either side was either killed or wounded.

English Walnuts.

The so-called English walnut is almost exclusively the product of France, whence this country imports from 15,000,000 to 25,000,000 pounds annually.

Worshipping a Turtle.

At a place called Kotron, on the French Ivory Coast, the natives believe that to eat or destroy a turtle would mean death to the guilty one or sickness among the family.

Inexhaustible Rome.

"Rome is wonderful," said a man familiar with the historic city. "Rome is inexhaustible. There is a story that describes Rome well."

Our True Moles.

In this country there are five recognized groups of true moles, two of which are confined to the Pacific coast and the other three are distributed over the section east of the one hundredth meridian.

Origin of Life.

The scientific world is not in possession of even one fact as to the origin of life nor of the origin of anything whatever. All animals now start from very minute bodies called cells.

A Boomerang.

"She broke him of smoking so that he could save money." "And did he save money?" "Yes. He got so interested in saving money that he broke off their engagement so that he could save still more."

The Banyan Tree.

A regiment of 1,000 men could readily find shelter under a single banyan tree. In India there is one of these trees which has 400 main trunks and over 8,000 smaller ones.

Not a Bone Picker.

"I say, I've a bone to pick with you." "Pardon me, sir; that's quite impossible for I'm a strict vegetarian."

Not Like Father.

"Do you think Mr. Skinnum's baby will take after its father?" "Not at all. The other day they persuaded it to cough up a nickel it had swallowed."

Ungallant Suggestion.

"What makes you think it should be Mother instead of Father Time?" "Well, you know, time will tell."

MORE BANK TALK

Did it ever occur to you why all good businessmen keep a checking account with a bank? We'll tell you. It enables them to keep their funds in a more secure place than the office safe. It gives them a better standing in the business world. It enables them to pay their bills by check, the returned check being an undisputable receipt.

Individuals find a checking account very convenient and a source of saving. Money in one's pocket is often spent on the spur of the moment, while one is disposed to think twice before drawing on their balance in the bank.

Concrete Silo Is Cheapest in End

Far More Lasting Than Wood and Costs No More To Build.

G. E. WOLCOTT.

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The kind of a silo that a farmer should build will, to some extent, be controlled by circumstances. In a few cases it would seem expedient to construct the cheapest silo that will keep silage. This applies in the case of a renter or where the cost of materials for a permanent silo make it prohibitive.

Ordinarily the concrete silo can be constructed as cheaply as the wooden silo. It will keep silage as well and it is permanent. Where a gravel pit is near at hand so that gravel can be had for the hauling the concrete silo can be constructed at a comparatively small cost, the cement and material for forms representing the chief items.

CEMENT SILO.

Where sand and crushed rock can be had for $1.00 per load the following bill was figured for the cost of a concrete silo 12x30 feet, the wall being six inches thick, reinforced with woven wire.

Silo wall foundation and floor.
22 yds. crushed rock, @ $1.00.	$22.00
13 yds. sand, @ $1.00.	13.00
115 bags cement, @ .37 1/2.	43.12
33 rds. woven wire, @ .20.	6.60
5 pcs. angle iron (2 ft. long), @ .50.	2.50
10 pcs. scrap iron (4 1/2 ft. long), @ .10.	1.00
	$88.22

Roof and Doors.

438 feet B. M., @ .20.	$ 8.76
50 feet B. M., T. G., @ .30.	1.50
2 1/2 squares roofing, @ $2.00.	5.00
36 sq. feet water proof paper.	1.00
55 lbs. nails, @ .05.	2.75
8 bolts, @ .15.	1.20
	$20.51

Material for Forms.

181 ft. B. M., @ .20.	$ 3.62
10 pcs. Gal. iron, No. 22, 8x3, @ $1.09.	10.90
6 pcs. strap iron, @ .15.	.90
40 ft. old tin iron.	.75
Rivets and bolts.	1.00
	$17.17

Total cost of material, $125.90. If the farmer can furnish his own labor, the above figures represent the cash outlay. If all the labor is hired, it will require 13 days to lay the foundation and build the wall. Three more days would be required to make the forms, doors and put the roof on. The labor cost would not exceed $80.00. This would bring the total cost of the silo up to $205.90 which is cheap for a permanent silo.

SECOND SPRAY FOR CODLING MOTH.

T. B. SYMONS.

Maryland Agricultural College.

The second brood of the codling moth appears about July 1st. Unless the first spraying, when the bloom fell, was exceedingly thorough, a spraying with arsenate of lead should be applied at this time.

More important though than the arsenate of lead treatment for the Codling Moth is the application of Bordeaux mixture to prevent Bitter Rot and other diseases developing when the fruit is maturing.

The combination spray recommended for this time is:

Bordeaux Mixture and Arsenate of Lead:
Copper Sulphate, 4 lbs.
Lime (Burned), 5 lbs.
Water, 50 gals.
Arsenate of lead, 2 lbs.

The spray solution is cheap, and it only requires a little extra pains to secure a good crop of clean fruit.

TIME TO SEPARATE.

Do you know that all things being equal the smaller your flock of growing chickens the better the individual birds will grow and develop? Have you stopped to think that you can reduce the size of your flock of pullets approximately one half by taking out the males? The earlier they are removed the better the pullets will be developed, and the stronger and harder the pullets are, the better will be their egg production during the winter. Sell off the cockerels as soon as they get a little size for as a rule prices are higher earlier in the season. However, if you have some exceptional birds and can sell some of the cockerels for breeders in the fall pick out the best and pen them up by themselves being sure to give them the best of care and attention. It is just as important to have the male birds healthy and vigorous as the breeding hens.

crown portion is made of alternate strips of lace insertion and ribbon, but it can be cut from all over lace, net or any similar material. The double frill that finishes the front edge and the coquettish bow of ribbon make an attractive finish.

The plainer round cap is made with a smooth crown and shirred portions attached to it. There is a casing in which the ribbon is inserted to draw the cap up closely about the head.

No 1 will require one and one-half yards of ribbon two inches wide and two yards of lace insertion three inches wide. No. 2 will require one-half yard of net forty-four inches wide, with two and one-fourth yards of ribbon one inch wide.

The May Manton pattern of the caps is cut in one size only. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 833, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

EX-Sheriff Young Dies Suddenly.
Charles T. K. Young, a prominent real estate and insurance agent of Frederick, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and a former sheriff of Frederick County died at his home Court street, Frederick, shortly after 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon, with services at the house at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. U. S. G. Rupp. A special car carried the funeral party to Middletown at 2 o'clock, where interment was made in the Lutheran cemetery.

Frederick County Tax Increased.
At a recent meeting of the County Commissioners, held at Frederick, the tax rate for Frederick County was fixed at $1.10 on the $100, which makes an increase of 25 cents over the rate fixed last year. This rate will enable the County to raise $364,358.20 on a taxable basis of $31,000,000. This new county rate is the highest for a decade with exception of the year 1910, when it was $1.18. This increase was felt to be necessary because of the many improvements, which will be undertaken during the coming year.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Secretary And Mrs. McAdoo Pass Through En Route To Buena Vista.

Secretary of the United States Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo formerly Miss Eleanor Wilson daughter of the President passed through Emmitsburg, en route to Buena Vista Springs Saturday afternoon about 1 o'clock.

From Frederick, where the party stopped at the fruit store of Samuel Marino, North Market street, the news that the party had paid the county a visit spread to Emmitsburg where a crowd had gathered to greet them.

The Secretary was driving his own car, a small roadster, and beside him sat his wife. On a rear seat sat a guard of the secret service. As the party approached the New Hotel Slagle the car slowed down and the Secretary asked the road to Buena Vista. Mr. Michael J. Thompson former athletic director at Mt. St. Mary's was in the crowd and told him the way.

Mt. St. Mary's Alumnus is Married.

The wedding of Miss Regina M. McFarland daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McFarland, of Philadelphia, to Frank L. Devine, of New York City, was celebrated on June 22. The ceremony took place in the Catholic Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Overbrook, Pa. The bride's sister, Mrs. Francis Fitzpatrick, was matron of honor, William Walsh, of Cumberland, Md., was best man.

The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. James A. Mullin, assisted by about half a dozen priests, all of whom belong to the alumni of Mount St. Mary's College, from which the groom, who is assistant secretary of the Merchants' Association, New York city, was graduated in 1908. The ushers and best man were his former classmates at the Mountain.

Memory of Frederick Boy Honored.

Mr. Chas. H. Linthicum, of Frederick, whose son, Paul W. Linthicum, was drowned at Vera Cruz, Mexico, on June 10, while serving as a seaman on the U. S. Ship Vermont, has received from Rev. T. R. Thompson, the chaplain of the ship, a letter telling him the details concerning the accident which cost his son his life. It appears that young Linthicum was assigned to do some work upon the ship, in a dangerous position and that he did not tie the lifeline around his waist, as is customary at such times, evidently thinking all was well. A huge wave swept him overboard and also another man, the latter fortunately being supplied with a lifeline. Funeral services in Linthicum's memory were held on the battleship near the spot where he was washed overboard. The body has not yet been recovered, although every effort has been made.

The Maryland Building at the Panama Exposition at San Francisco will cost $18,000, according to present plans.

MARRIED.

FOGLE-BIDDINGER.—On Tuesday evening June 30, 1914 at the Hotel Biddinger, Mrs. Mary E. Biddinger, of this place, and Mr. John T. Fogle, of Taneytown. Rev. Mr. Wolf pastor of the Reformed Church, Taneytown performed the ceremony.

THE WEEK AT THE COUNTY SEAT

Chronicle of Happenings at Frederick City and in the Courts.

Running for shelter while the violent storm swept over this city on Saturday Walter White, a resident of East Third street, tripped over a pipe on Hood College farm and sustained a fracture of the skull when his head hit upon a cement pavement. Although he is suffering with a concussion of the brain it is believed he has a chance of recovery.

Thousands of dollars in damage was caused to crops and vegetables in Frederick county on Sunday when a hail and rain storm broke, passing almost through the center of the county from west to east. It was almost a repetition of the two-hundred thousand dollar hail storm of just a year ago.

Although the fame of the county police system has traveled far, and none better than the criminals realize its efficiency, the barnacle element of the woolly and Wild West Show, giving the residents of Woodsboro a sample of Wild West life on Saturday, apparently had not heard of it and when they were called down for using profane language they told Justice Miller, that all the sheriffs in this county could not arrest them. A few hours later the sheriff and his two deputies had five of the men.

As Managers-in-chief of Montevue, the County Commissioners on Monday, began what one of the commissioners termed an overhauling of the operative force of that institution by appointing a new clerk, a new tramp boss, and a new manager. The appointments became effective on Wednesday.

Waldo R. Ballou, who died mysteriously last Thursday night in the apartments of Mrs. Helen M. Angle, in Stamford, Conn., a leading actress of New York, presumably by a blow of an electric iron, was about three years ago being seriously considered by the Lingane Copper Company, of this county, to place stocks of the company in Boston, Mass.

On Monday a delegation of Frederick county school appeared before the County Commissioners, relative to the increase in the salaries of the county teachers, authorized by the recent Legislature.

$50,000 LOSS CAUSED BY STORM
Property and Crops Suffer Severely.—
Boy Drowned at Tilghman.

A wind and rain storm rivaling in violence any known for 40 years, swept over the Eastern Shore last Sunday night, leaving a trail of destruction behind it and causing a loss estimated at over $50,000.

Heavy damage was done by the wind to shipping. At Tilghman's harbor four boats, three schooners and one bugeye were swamped, and Emmett E. Klohr, 16 years old, son of William E. Klohr, former chief game warden of Baltimore county was drowned.

The loss was especially heavy at Cambridge. The storm was accompanied by heavy rain, which choked the sewers and flooded the streets. The wind and falling trees put the electric light, telegraph and telephone wires out of commission and Cambridge spent the night in darkness and isolation. No messages could be sent or received by either telegraph or telephone.

The grandstand at the fair ground, just completed at a cost of $6,000, which was to have been turned over to the association was blown flat.

Barns were overturned, buildings unroofed and several houses, which were struck by lightning, were burned to the ground. The damage to crops was general over the Peninsula. Wheat shocked in the fields was scattered and in many cases the bundles torn apart. Much of it was blown into the bay or streams nearby and carried away by the swollen currents. Roads were blocked by fallen trees. Tomatoes and corn were beaten to the ground or twisted off.

The new $5,000 Methodist Episcopal Church at Tilghman was damaged, a number of memorial windows having been blown out. The furniture and carpets were damaged by water.

Builders Take Notice.

Just now, at the height of the building season, we want to call the particular attention of our readers to the advertising of the Cortright Metal Roofing Co., Philadelphia, Pa., which has been appearing in our columns for several months, telling of the merits of the famous Cortright Metal shingles. The Cortright Company advises us that the use of these goods has grown enormously all over the country and they can only attribute this constant growth to the splendid satisfaction the roofing is giving. We heartily recommend this Company's product to any one desiring a perfectly weather-tight, fire-proof, ornamental and durable roof covering at a moderate cost. Mr. Jas. G. Bishop handles these Metal Shingles locally and is always glad to quote prices and give any other desired information concerning them.

city, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and a former sheriff of this county, died suddenly at his home on Court street on Monday, of Bright's disease and heart trouble.

The Republican County Central Committee reorganized at a meeting held at the Courthouse on Saturday. Dr. C. F. Goodell was elected chairman.

A colored domestic employed by Dr. J. R. Grime was committed to jail under a bond of $100 for stealing a handbag containing $17.00. Justice Anders held the girl for the action of the grand jury.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, a large crowd attended the song service and band concert at Braddock Heights on Sunday. Rev. Dr. George W. Smith was the leader and Mr. M. A. Biser had charge of the music.

The question of disposing of Montevue came up on Tuesday when Dr. A. P. Herring, secretary of the State Lunacy Commission, appeared before the board of County Commissioners and asked that the insane of the county be sent to the state asylum.

The Frederick Black Sox won from the Chinese University, of Hawaii at Agricultural Park on Monday with a score 3-2.

The schedule of the Tri-city League for the week of July 6, during the Eagles Convention, was revised. Martinsburg and Frederick will necessarily have to play two games in the same city in a single week.

Fire on Monday night destroyed property belonging to Mr. W. H. Freed with a loss of $450. Mr. Freed lives east of this city.

Fire protection, through the co-operation of the people of the counties, will be assured and a conference between the people and the county heads will be held soon.

The $8,000 for increased salaries for county teachers was refused by the County Commissioners and the School Board received $4,000 less than it asked for. The County Commissioners advised retrenchment.

Raise For Maryland Postmasters.

A recent report from the Post Office Department at Washington states that twenty-four of the sixty-six postmasters of the first, second and third class offices in Maryland will receive increases in salaries this year of at least $100. Three postmasters will receive $200 increases and one a $300 increase.

The salaries in every case are based on the net receipts of their offices and in but three instances will the salaries be reduced. No mention is made of Emmitsburg in the report, which means that the receipts of the local post office is the same as in past years. The following nearby towns will receive an increase:

New Windsor, $1,200 to $1,400; Rockville, $1,800 to $1,900; Woodsboro, $2,000 to $2,300. The office at Thurmont is to be reduced from $1,500 to $1,400.

Dividend Notice.

At the last regular meeting of the Directors of the Emmitsburg Savings Bank, the usual 3 per cent. semi-annual dividend was declared payable on and after July 2, 1914. Checks will be mailed to stockholders.

HERE AND THERE IN THE STATE

Baltimore—Marshall Thomas F. Farman, of the Baltimore Police Department, retired from active duty last Wednesday. The Marshall has completed 47 years of active service in the Baltimore Police Department and, on retiring had the distinction of being the oldest police chief in point of service in the United States.

Baltimore—Dr. M. W. Foster, former dean of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, died on Tuesday morning as a result of injuries received last October. For more than 60 years he was a practicing dentist in this city.

Frederick—Frederick county will no longer care for its own insane patients, the Board of County Commissioners deciding to send all of them to the state institutions. Frederick county has for years been caring for its insane at Montevue, the county home.

Cumberland—Rabbi Morris Baron of the local Jewish congregation has been recommended by the State Board of Law Examiners to the Court of Appeals for admission to the bar. Rabbi Baron is a graduate of Harvard University, Columbia and the New York Theological Seminary, where he obtained his rabbinical degree.

Frederick—Running for shelter during Sunday's storm, Walter White tripped over a water pipe on Hood College Farm and fell, fracturing his skull. His head struck the pavement and he was rendered unconscious. He was taken to the City Hospital. He is suffering from concussion of the brain, but physicians say he will recover.

Hagerstown—The County Commissioners have decided to build a road from Smithsburg through Ringgold to the Pennsylvania line. The new road about 4-1-10 miles long, will be built under the Shoemaker act and will cost about $4,000 a mile.

Crisfield—During a severe thunder storm which visited this section Monday night the barn of Marion Ross, about three miles from Crisfield, was struck by lightning and burned. Mr. Ross saved several horses which were in the barn.

Annapolis—By the extension of the western boundary lines of Annapolis, in accordance with the provisions of an act of the late Legislature, by which the charter was amended, about $75,000 will be added to the taxable basis of the city.

Hagerstown—The large frame and stone barn on the farm of Mrs. Mary Kolbfleish, at Welsh Run, was struck by lightning and burned, together with 30 tons of hay, harness and farming implements. The loss is about $3,000 partly covered by insurance.

Frederick—At a meeting of the State Roads Commission, held June 22nd, 1914, a contract was awarded to the M. J. Grove Lime Company, of Lime Kiln, Maryland, for the construction of a section of State road in Frederick county, from Frederick to Jefferson, a distance of 7.75 miles, construction to be of 14-foot resurfacing. Work on same will be started as soon as conditions permit.

Chestertown—What is regarded as the greatest catch of fish on Swan Point bar was made one day this week by a purse-net crew from Rock Hall. The crew made one dip and caught nine tons of rock weighing from three to nine pounds each.

Cambridge—Mrs. Roy Smith, who was injured in an automobile accident last week near Preston, died Saturday night. Mrs. Smith is the second victim to die from injuries received in the Preston accident.

Baltimore—It is reported that Chairman Phillip D. Laird, of the Public Service Commission, will resign his post on August first. The reason for his resignation is given as poor health. Difficulty is anticipated in the selection of his successor.

Frederick—Charles L. Hickman, the 12-year-old son of Charles D. Hickman, of Doubs, was brought to the City Hospital here Tuesday with a fractured skull caused by a kick of a horse. He walked up behind the animal and received a blow in the forehead, rendering him unconscious. His two sisters witnessed the accident. He regained consciousness after reaching the hospital, but is in a serious condition.

Cumberland—The estate of the late Henry Miller, proprietor of the Brunswick Hotel, here, who died Saturday, is valued at $100,000. Upon the recommendation of the heirs, Albert E. Miller, president of the Hobitzell National Bank, Hyndman, Pa., was appointed administrator.

Hagerstown—The barn on the farm of Dr. Henry C. Foster, tenanted by Archie McAllister, near Clearspring, was burned Tuesday night, with 20 tons of hay, straw, feed, harness and farming implements. Ten cattle and several horses were rescued. The loss is about $3,000, covered by insurance.

Korea has 160,000 native and 22,000 Japanese fisherman. The total catch in 1913 was valued at $6,000,000.

Cardinal Gibbon's Gala Day.

Tuesday was the fifty third anniversary of the ordination of Cardinal Gibbons and the twenty-eight anniversary of his appointment as a cardinal. He quietly celebrated mass in some chapel in England where he is now stopping the exact place being unknown to his close friends. He is expected to sail from Bremen so as to reach Baltimore about July 12, in time to make preparations for the success of the American Federation of Catholic Societies to be held in Baltimore in September.

ACROSS THE LINE

Gettysburg.

Fifty three young men and women, representing all parts of the county, took the teachers' examination in the Meade school building last week. Twelve of these have never taught. The examination was conducted by Supt. Roth. He was assisted by Miss Helen Cope and Prof. M. A. Yeagy. Miss Cope examined in reading.

The pedestal for marking the cavalry hospital site at the Presbyterian Church was placed on last Monday afternoon. The pedestal is of granite, weighing about 3500 pounds and is mounted on a concrete base. There will be a bronze tablet thirty-six inches square placed on the front of the shaft with a descriptive analysis.

Dr. Luther Kuhlman, of Seminary Ridge, received injuries about the head and his new Stanley Steamer touring car was badly damaged at the railroad crossing on Springs Avenue about 11 o'clock last Tuesday when a draught of freight cars struck his automobile. Dr. Kuhlman's injuries are not of a serious character.

A new front is being built for the Photoplay Theatre on Baltimore street which will provide three plate glass double doors. In addition to improving the appearance of the building it will allow better and safe means of entrance and exit.

Fourteen boy scouts, of Harrisburg, under Scout-master, Garfield McAllister, son of Theodore McAllister, are camping at McAllister's Mill. They will stay one week.

A well has been drilled on the C. J. Delone farm which has a depth of 165 feet and at the present time produces five gallons of water per minute.

Town patrons of the United (Cumberland Valley) telephone exchange in Gettysburg need no longer ring their bell when they want to call up central. Rural patrons will continue to call in the old manner. The new system with switch boards and all the modern appliances was put into service last Friday night and all that is now necessary to get the attention of the operator is to lift the receiver from the hook. The new exchange is located in the Masonic building, on the second floor, and is a model in every particular. The wires enter the building through an underground cable and, in addition to the other devices, there is a special safety system to reduce to a minimum the danger from electricity. The new system was put in at a heavy expense and the change was made from the old exchange without any interruption of service.

Ralph M. Weaver, a graduate of Gettysburg College, class of 1914, has accepted a position as chemist for the Wilhelm Company, of Reading, one of the oldest paint manufacturers in the United States. Mr. Weaver will leave for Reading next week.

Miss Mary Witherow fell from a cherry tree on Tuesday and sprained her back severely.

George G. Byers is suffering with a felon on his finger.

Mrs. Charles A. Landis is very ill at this writing.

Mrs. R. S. Reindollar was called to Chambersburg last week on account of the illness of her sister and brother. After arriving there she became indisposed herself and was an over Sunday visitor in Chambersburg.

Messrs. Merle and Paul Haley, of Waynesboro, are plastering the new building of John Peters.

Mrs. Jacob Musselman and daughter Maybert are spending some time in Hagerstown where the latter is undergoing medical treatment.

Harvey Moritz has had a new roof put on his house on Centennial street.

Mildred Reindollar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Reindollar, fell on the pavement and cut a severe gash in her forehead which required a stitch to close.

P. H. Riley, of Liberty township, and daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Reid, of Freedom township, are visiting relatives in Washington, D. C.

Eimer Baumgardner was the first to cut wheat in this vicinity. He began on Monday.

LOYS AND VICINITY.

Mr. Harvey M. Pittenger visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Washington Pittenger, and family.

Misses Minnie Tressler, of Rocky Ridge, and Pansy Tressler, of Westminster, spent a few days of last week with their mother, Mrs. Samuel Martin.

Miss Ruth Fox and sisters, of Creagerstown, spent Sunday with, Mrs. George W. Pittenger and family, of Loys.

30 Historic Trees Are Blown Down. During a severe wind and rain storm recently, thirty venerable trees at Mt. Vernon, the old estate of George Washington, were blown down or uprooted.

Some of these trees were several centuries old, while others had been planted by the Marquis de Lafayette and other distinguished visitors from this and foreign countries, on the occasion of their visits to that hospitable home during Washington's lifetime.

Paint---Drouth

The longer the drouth the more rain is required to water the earth.

The longer a building goes without painting the dryer it gets and more paint is required to keep water out.

SYNOPSIS.

Book I.

CHAPTER I—Rudolph Van Vechten, a young man of leisure, is astonished to see a man enter No. 1313, a house across the street from the Powhatan club. The house has long been unoccupied and is spoken of as the House of Mystery.

CHAPTER II—Several persons at regular intervals enter No. 1313.

CHAPTER III—Van Vechten expresses concern to his friend, Tom Phinney, regarding the mystery. A fashionably attired woman is seen to enter the House of Mystery. A man is forcibly ejected from the house. Van Vechten and Tom follow the man and find him dead in the street.

CHAPTER IV—Van Vechten is attracted by the face of a girl in the crowd of onlookers surrounding the body. Later he discovers the girl gazing at him with a look of scorn from the windows of the mysterious house.

CHAPTER V—Detective Flint calls on Van Vechten to get his version of the tragedy.

CHAPTER VI—Tom Phinney goes alone on a yachting trip. He recognizes among some persons in a passing motor boat two men whom he had seen enter the House of Mystery. He sees one of them, a Mr. Callis, on shore later and follows him. Tom is seized, blindfolded and taken to a house. He hears a girl named Jessie, evidently the daughter of the man in authority, question his captors. A sweet-voiced girl later protests against the roughness of his captors.

Book II.

CHAPTER I—Van Vechten calls on his uncle, Theodore Van Vechten, big man in Wall street and known as the "Man of Iron," in search of information regarding the whereabouts of Paige Carew.

CHAPTER II—Detective Flint shows Van Vechten a gold mesh purse found in the House of Mystery. Van recognizes it as belonging to Paige Carew.

CHAPTER III—The sweet-voiced girl helps Tom Phinney escape, but refuses to disclose her identity. Tom declares he will meet her again.

CHAPTER IV—Detective Flint tells Van Vechten he has a theory that Paige has been kidnapped. Van goes to lay the case before his uncle.

CHAPTER V—Messages are sent to Europe in an effort to trace Paige. Tom tells Van Vechten he is in love and relates his adventure.

CHAPTER VI—A message from London reports that two ladies resembling Miss Carew and her companion, Mrs. Devereaux, sailed for New York some time previously. A reward of $2,500 is offered.

CHAPTER VII—It develops that the ladies whom the English home of Temple Bonner, owner of the House of Mystery, Flint has a theory that they are connected with the mystery of No. 1313.

CHAPTER VIII—It is recalled that Temple Bonner was in love with a daughter of Compton Schuyler, who married Max Willard. The other daughter married a man named Devereaux. Bonner and Willard were intimate friends. A search is started for Willard.

CHAPTER IX—Van Vechten enters the House of Mystery by the back door in time to hear John Callis threaten a girl. He interferes, and helps the girl escape, but is rendered unconscious in the struggle with Callis.

Book III.

CHAPTER I—Tom Phinney gets a job as master of Brownlow's yacht Kohinur which has been chartered for some mysterious mission.

CHAPTER II—The charterer and his friends board the yacht at night and Tom hears the voice of the unknown girl and also of a man involved in his adventure of a few nights previous.

CHAPTER III—Tom finds the girl more beautiful than he had anticipated. The charterer turns out to be Max Willard.

CHAPTER IV—Willard assures Tom that his mission is honorable and intimates that a great wrong is about to be righted. He gives orders that no one is to leave or board the yacht without his permission. Della, the girl of the voice, insists upon going ashore and while Tom is explaining his orders Callis jumps overboard.

CHAPTER V—With Willard's consent Della goes ashore to telephone and returns to the yacht in great agitation.

CHAPTER VI—Tom accompanies Della and Jessie Willard ashore. Tom learns from Detective Flint that Willard has recently invented a powerful explosive.

CHAPTER VII.

The Face Appears Again.

Since late Tuesday night, Rudolph Van Vechten's apartments in the Kenmore had reeked with iodiform, and in various other ways their presentment was not dissimilar to a hospital ward. The one jarring note was Barnicle, whose cadaverousness was become so accentuated that he might have personified Death—or, at least, the undertaker—waiting only until doctor and nurse were through, to perform his own peculiar and melancholy offices. Barnicle never would have been tolerated at a hospital.

Early Thursday morning Van Vechten had insisted to such good purpose that he was able to rise, don his clothes and be shaved, that at eight o'clock he was reclining upon the davenport in his living-room, and the nurse was out taking a much needed airing. Such portions of his bandaged features as were visible were discolored, and a cloth saturated with some soothing lotion hid his swollen eyes.

All the hideous details of the episode in the Silent House remained in his memory like the aftermath of a terrifying nightmare. How, late at night, his senses had returned to him; how he had contrived to drag his battered body down the stairs, fainting more than once with pain and weakness; how he had been found upon the walk by a passing policeman, who, recognizing him, was persuaded to keep his mouth shut and convey him to his rooms—each revolting particular stuck persistently in his mind.

By which it might be inferred that not the least of his present suffering might be ascribed to nervous shock.

At the hour mentioned, he was sleeping fitfully after a restless night.

from his eyes. He stared blankly up at the girl. She gasped and recoiled from the sight of him.

It was patent that Van Vechten doubted the evidence of his senses, or else he concluded that his dreams had taken a pleasanter bent; at any rate, he lay motionless, staring at the vision of her who had occupied so much of his thoughts of late, until it dawned upon him that she was crying. Then with an inarticulate exclamation that ended in a groan, he tried to rise. Instantly she extended her right hand and gently pressed him back.

"No, no!" she protested chokingly. "Don't move. God forbid that I should cause you another second of suffering!"

In a flash he was wholly awake, all his faculties alert.

"But, my dear young lady!" he expostulated. "What is the meaning of this? How did you get here? Where is Barnicle?"

Again he tried to rise, this time deterring her attempt to stop him. It was a slow and painful operation for him to assume a sitting posture. With an impulsive movement, she passed one arm around his shoulders.

"Then I can help you," she said. "Thank you," said Van Vechten at last, rather breathlessly, for movement was still torture for him.

He was quick to perceive that her visit was a matter of no light portent, and in relation to it his appearance was of slight moment, and any excuses he might make would be banal. So he uttered none. It is doubtless unnecessary to add that he was both amazed and profoundly curious.

The girl rose to her feet and moved a bit away from him.

"Will you not be seated?" he invited. She shook her head. He went on: "I realize that some curious purpose has brought you to see me, and that you are agitated. Take your time; I am now, as always, at your service."

"Don't!" the sudden protest might have been a cry of physical pain. "Mr. Van Vechten, I am wholly unworthy of any gentleman's forbearance and courtesy; the most ordinary civility from you but heaps humiliation upon humiliation. I deserve nothing from you but scorn and contumely. That, I can endure; but kindness—?" She was unable to proceed.

At last Van Vechten was beginning to comprehend the motive behind this visit.

"If you don't compose yourself," he said pleasantly, "we are not likely to arrive at any sort of understanding."

"I do," he quietly contradicted. "It is Jessie."

She uttered a surprised little cry. "Why—?"

"Wait, please," he checked her. "I want to add that if you believe the pure, high attributes you ascribe to me, you must know that I could not take such a method of revenge—assuming that I am seeking revenge, or even that any grounds exist to justify revenge, which I deny. It remains, therefore, that I must be sincere."

"You surely know, Jessie, that love laughs at conventionalities as well as at obdurate parents and locksmiths. It is incredible that such a thing could happen—I'll even admit that. But the fact remains that it has happened. I love you; and if you continue in the belief that you owe me some amends, why, we can square matters by your promising to marry me. I shall accept your culpability upon that basis and no other."

For a long time she sat looking into his eyes. Then—

"Do you mean that?" she asked very soberly.

"I was never more earnest in my life," he assured her.

"Then," she said, rising and gently disengaging her hand, "I shall promise this: One week from today—if your feelings have not changed in the meantime—if you can make the request with as much sincerity as you do now—I will marry you any time you say. Good-by."

She moved toward the reception-hall, and his feelings were too overpowering for speech. It all seemed like a joyous dream coming true—or, perhaps, he was still dreaming. If so, the dream was about to end, and he found utterance.

"Jessie," he said.

She paused.

"Come back here a moment, please. There . . . Give me your hand again—both of them. Now look at me." She complied with each request as quickly as it was made. "Tell me," he went on, "is that promise a part of your poor, misguided, self-imposed penance?"

"Don't ask me what urges it," she replied in a shaking voice.

"I shan't accept it in any such warped and distorted spirit of self-sacrifice," he pursued, still speaking very gently, but none the less earnestly. "It is too much to expect that you can entertain a sentiment toward me that anywhere near approaches mine—not now. But I can teach you—girl, I can teach you! I give you as genuine a love as any man can offer a woman. Can't you acknowledge some kindly feeling for me in return?"

"Let me go," she begged in an agitated whisper. "God knows, I anticipated nothing like this!"

"Is the idea so repugnant to you?" "You are killing me with kindness!"

The quivering rise and fall of her bosom betrayed how profoundly she was disturbed, and the light in her handsome dark eyes signified a melting mood. Even the bruises on Van Vechten's face could not disguise the fondness with which he regarded her.

"At least you do not deny it. . . . God!" he broke off in an accession of irritation. "It is intolerable to be at such a tremendous disadvantage at this supreme moment. What a sorry figure of a lover I am! Will you not seal the bargain?"

"I do not understand," she murmured. "Kiss me."

"Without a second's hesitation, she bent down and pressed her lips upon his. His heart leaped up to meet it. Then a chill fell upon him; there was a total lack of warmth in the salute.

"I see," he said humbly, "that the foolish notion of requital is not yet banished from your poor head. How seriously you are taking it! From your viewpoint I must seem a beast. But, Jessie, this hour has been the most genuine and sincere of my life—I wish I could make you believe that."

"I believe you," she said. "Please let me go—I can bear no more."

He released her hands, and she returned to the door, where she stopped and faced him again.

All at once she was transfused; the lovely face was glorified by a shy, half-timid light, inexpressibly alluring, that wrung a groan from the man at her inability to rush over and gather her in his arms.

"How am I to find you again?" he asked anxiously.

"I shall not hide from you," she replied.

"You fly from me," he lamented, leaving me more wretched than I was before, although you have promised to marry me—"

"There are conditions, don't forget," she reminded him.

"I would have imposed them myself, and gladly," he retorted.

The dark eyes met his in a long, maddening light, while the color rose in her cheeks.

"I could learn to love you very easily," she said, and was gone.

Fully ten minutes Van Vechten sat like a man in a trance; then rousing abruptly, he called Barnicle.

"Get me a cigar," he commanded. Barnicle tried to oppose an objection. "Mr. Rudolph, your nerves, you know—Doctor Pottle—"

"Damn Doctor Pottle! Fetch me a cigar!" Barnicle fled.
