SUMMARY OF HIS DICTATORSHIP

An Epoch-Marking Chapter in Mexican History Began With Treachery and Ended With His Inglorious Resignation.

The passing of Victoriano Huerta from the Mexican dictatorship is the last page of an epoch-marking chapter in the history of Mexico and North America, and makes it of interest to recall the whole of his brief reign as military czar as well as the events which made this absolute control pos-

LITTLESTOWN LOSES HERE.

Emmitsburg Wins A Close Game In Tenth Inning.-Hornberger's Error Costly.

Without a regular pitcher Emmitsburg battled with Littlestown on the Firemen's field last Saturday and came off the victors in a ten-inning fray.

George Stokes started the twirling for Emmitsburg, and was hit hard in the opening period. Hornberger got a walk, Kress hit, Bowers doubled, sending two across; Ben Mehring struck out, Runkle followed suit and Rebling drove one to right field scoring Bowers, but was out at third trying to stretch the hit to a triple. Emmitsburg in its turn got two tallies on two errors, a hit and a passed ball. Score 3-2 favor Littles-

In the second neither side scored, although Ned Mehring, first at bat for the visitors, tripled.

In the third Littlestown got two more. Kress went to first on an error, Bowers hit to L. Topper who tried to throw out Kress at second but the ball went through F. Topper. A walk and two passed balls gave the visitors two points and no hands out. Runkle flied to S. Annan in left, and B. Mehring tried to score from third but Annan's throw got him four feet off the plate. Rebling sent another to the left garden for the third out. N. Annan lammed one out in center but the relayed ball reached third before the runner. Flies to the pitcher and the centerfielder ended the inning. Score Littlestown 5, Emmitsburg 2.

About this time the Emmitsburg management saw that something had to be done, so Arthur Stokes was sent in to pitch, Sebold getting in the wire cage and J. Topper decorating the mid-station. This marked the turning point of the game. Read on.

N. Mehring, the first to face Emmitsburg's all-around player as pitcher, got a two-bagger, and Starr drew a pass. Bollinger and Hornberger fanned and Kress knocked a slow one which Annan tossed to J. Topper, covering first. That was the closest the visitors came to scoring on "Johnnie." Not another hit was made off his delivery.

In the fifth, sixth, eight and tenth only three men faced him. He received errorless support from his teammates.

For Emmitsburg in this inning Dr. Joseph E. Rowe got a hit, but was run down between first and second, about 'steen Littlestown men having a hand in the play. F. Rowe flied out, S. Annan sent one to Kress who fumbled, stole second and third and scored on Joe Topper's hit. F. Topper hit to centerfield and J. Topper was out at home on the return throw. Score 5-3 favor Littles-

Emmitsburg 14, Monterey C. C. 4.

The Emmitsburg baseball club journeyed to Monterey on Wednesday and returned with another victory to its credit. Hard hitting and superb base running defeated the Monterey Country Club 14 to 4.

Joe Topper began pitching for the visitors. Although he struck out 2 men in the first inning, two errors and a twobagger gave the vacationists 2 runs. A. Stokes went in the second inning and held his opponents at all times, fanning 16 and allowing but 4 hits, only one of which was for extra bases. Only six men reached first base. There was only one assist in the game for Emmitsburg.

Bower pitched for Monterey. He struck out 13 batters but was hit hard in several innings, especially in the fifth when Emmitsburg got three earned runs, Rosensteel driving out a home run after S. Apnan and J. Topper had singled. In the ninth E. Annan went the whole way around on a two-bagger which the fielders handled listlessly. The score:

note from President Wilson. Huerta rejected all proposals made by the American government, chief of which were the suggestions that he resign and that he not be a candidate on election day. Relations between Mexico and the United States became acute. President Wilson proclaimed his policy in an address before Congress, to which was attached the correspondence between Mr. Lind and the Huerta administration.

Huerta was attacked in the Senate on October 5 by Senator Dominguez, who had the hardihood to speak what was in the minds of himself and some of his colleagues. Dominguez disappeared. The Chamber of Deputies adopted a resolution calling for an investigation.

To this, Huerta's reply was dramatic and swift. He marched a column of troops to the deputies' chamber, seized 110 of them and threw them into prison. Next he dissolved Congress and took to himself the legislative authority, calling for the election of new members on October 26.

Watchful waiting then became the policy of the United States. The Constitutionalists gradually gained battle after battle and Huerta was driven back slowly and surely. Then the situation became intense with the supposed insult to the American flag.

The fleet was at once dispatched to Mexico and Vera Cruz was occupied by United States Marines. War seemed imminent. And still Huerta lost ground.

From this point on it became merely a matter of waiting for the ultimate downfall of the dictator. The nations of the world, whose eyes had long been centered on the ravaged country, waited to see whether he would resign in time to save himself, or die fighting. The answer came with startling suddeness 6 following one of the dictators mock elections and he abdicated "for the good of

Washington, D. C.
A bushel of Crimson Clover Seed sown on four acres of ground will increase the succeeding yield of Corn or Cotton about the same amount as would a ton of complete fertilizer applied at the rate of 500 lbs. per acre. A good stand of Crimson Clover turned under will ordinarily double the yield of the crops which follow. The physical condition of the soil is also materially benefited. The Sandy Soils are increased in Humus and Nitrogen Contents. The Stiff, heavy clay soils are rendered more open and friable.

Crimson Clover makes an excellent grazing crop, hay, ensilege and pasture for all classes of live stock. Milch cows make considerably more milk, when pastured on Crimson Clover. It is also valuable as a honey plant, furnishing an abundant supply of nectar in the spring.

Crimson Clover is valuable as a Winter Cover crop. It is especially valuable in Orchards where it is generally plowed under as a green manure crop. The plants retain for the use of the trees the following season much of the plant food, which would otherwise leach out of the ground during the Winter and early Spring. A good stand of Crimson Clover not only reduces the erosion and the gullying of the fields, but on sandy fields, the blowing of the soil by the wind is greatly lessened. The Plants also serve to hold the snow to a greater extent than if the field was left bare during the Winter. More and more each year farmers are realizing the importance and great value of Crimson Clover.

Glearance S

As is our policy and custom we make the month of July the time for general stock reduction --- that is clearing decks as it were to get ready for Fall---much of which stock has been already contracted for.

In order to insure this CLEARANCE of a very large stock we are compelled to make prices unusually attractive; while the using season on most of the MARKDOWNS is at its height, and will continue until December --- the selling season is short for us.

This general PRICE CUT is not only on Odds and Ends and Remnants but is especially strong on Ready-to-Wear Lines and Yard Goods, much of which we cannot enumerate here for want of space as well as because some lots are small.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the produc-tion of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoc tin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Mary-land Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland-the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State-there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg. No people are more wide-awake, more knowable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatchable; the climate is notedly healthful; its water-pure mountain spring water-cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards.

Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary-with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years-is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies-equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid acheivement-is also here.

There are excellent Schools-Public and Parochial-in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liveries, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oiled streets. There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites availabe. If you contemplate changing your place of residence-come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, actuating many a young man today; this is what is sending hundreds of city youths to the agricultural schools—the desire to apply specially acquired knowledge and science to farming; to cooperate with nature in her effort to aid the individual and mankind in general.

Observe the make-up and the methods of the "farmer" who says "farming doesn't pay." You'll find that he is shiftless, that he doesn't really work his land, that he is opposed to "book ideas" and willing to follow only the obsolete, haphazard processes indulged in by his "grandpap," who, all honor to him, existed in and his lack of opportunity.

"We believe," says the Monitor, "nine tenths of all the poor farming in the United States to- landed in the Monocacy. day is due to popular entertainment of the fallacy that it is only neccessary to know a little about farming in order to farm successfully."

"A little"-there it is. One might just as well attempt to construct a modern office building by applying "a little" knowledge of architecture. One might just as well essay to cure "all the ills that flesh is heir to" with "a little" knowledge of medicine. In the one case bankruptcy would quickly follow; in the other, the death rate would go up by leaps and bounds.

Success in farming, as in everything else, is dependent upon study, science, headwork, application. And the best investment the older class of farmers can make to-day is to send their boys to an agricultural school; the wisest thing for the city-bred boy a producer, an independent being.

A picture which attracts everybody's attention at the Tate gallery by its position, its size and its striking beauty horse through an archway into a courtyard. She is dressed in a green velvet riding habit of the time of Charles II., On her left stands a page in an old gold velvet suit, with a dog by his side. This picture has a remarkable history, as well as numerous titles. The catalogue calls it "Equestrian Portrait." but it is also known as "Nell Gwynne," the name given it by Millais, and also sometimes as "Diana He painted the horse and its trapdied and left the picture unfinished, and it was sent to Sir John Millais, who painted his own daughter in this old riding costume, together with the page, the dog and the background. The picture was begun in 1870 and finished twelve years later .- London

Habits of the Cuckoo.

It is quite a mistake to suppose that the cuckoo neglects her egg after she has deposited it in the nest of another bird, declared Oliver G. Pike, in a lecture at the Camera club. The cuckoo kept a watchful eye upon her treasure and should any accident befall it she laid another egg in another nest. Mr. "Poor Tompkins never gets any credit | Pike said he believed, although it was impossible to prove it, that the cuckoo laid its eggs in the nest of a bird of the same species as that by which it had itself been reared. Thus a cuckoo reared by a sedge warbler laid its egg in turn in a sedge warbler's nest. So wonderful was the spell which the young cuckoo exercised over other birds that he had seen birds other than its foster parents pause in their flight to feed it, giving it the food which was intended for their own young, and once he saw a young cuckoo fed by birds of five different species in succession .-London Spectator.

King Grasshoppers.

The champion aeronaut is the king grasshopper, which has the ability to jump 100 times its length. It can also sail for 1,000 miles before the wind. These grasshoppers sometimes go in such numbers that they make a cloud 2,000 miles in extent. Its great front lip hides a pair of jaws as effective as a hay chopper, and it has an appetite as voracious as that of a hippopotamus. A young 'chick finds itself shut inside the eggshell and must work its way out alone, but the young grasshoppers find themselves-the whole nestful-shut in a hardened case in the ground made by their mother, and it takes a half dozen of them working together to dislodge the lid which shuts them in.-National Geographical Society Bulletin.

Judging Distance.

Most people are unaware that the apparent distance of an object depends upon the use of both eyes. This fact. however, can be strikingly shown. Place a pencil so that two or three inches project over the edge of a table. Then stand alongside the table, close one eye and attempt to knock the pencil off by quickly hitting the projecting end with the tip of the forefinger. Almost invariably the person making the attempt underestimates the distance by an inch or more and, much to his surprise, misses the pencil entirely. One eyed people, accustomed to estimating distances with only one eye, of course have no trouble in hitting the pencil at the first trial.-St. Nicholas.

Straight Talk a Virtue.

Everybody respects the man who talks without circumlocution and who means what he says, whose tongue is not twisted and who goes right to the mark, never seeking to mislead or to misrepresent. Straight talk is a virtue that is practiced all too little. Imagine what a different world this would be if there were no other kind in business, in domestic affairs, in society, in diplomacy - between employers and workers, politicians and people, government and governed and in the professional and the business world! How large a part of many men's occupations would be gone if there was never any thing but perfectly straight talk be tween man and man!-Christian Her Energy In the Sun.

At the distance of the earth from it (93,000,000 miles), the heat energy yearly expended by the sun is as great is that of a lady riding on a white in amount as would be produced by the burning of sixty-six globes of the best anthracite coal, each as heavy as the earth, or 5,346 such globes, each with a long red feather in her gray equal in weight to the moon. But the greater part of this energy is, as far as we can see, expended upon empty space because, except where a planetary body is interposed in the path of the rays, there is nothing for them to act upon. Only about twothousand-millionth of the sen's radiant energy is intercepted by the earth and Vernon." The fact is that Sir Edwin only about one two-hundred-and-twen-Landseer left this picture unfinished. ty-five-millionth by all the planets together. This makes the sun look like pings, intending it for an equestrian a gigantic spendthrift, but if he did not portrait of Queen Victoria. But he radiate in every direction he would not be seen from distant space; he would not be a star among the stars, and who can say that what he expends to make himself known and to maintain his rank in the universe, is not as well spent as the gratuities that he flings to his planets.-Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Review.

How to Win.

This is an age of specialization, my boy, and the only men who succeed in a big way are those who pick outsome particular line of work and live with it until they get to know more about it than most other fellows. Concentration, consistent and persistent effort in one direction is the surest road to success. You'll never win in a big way-except accidentally-if you scatter your energies. The best steam engine in the world would race itself to ruin without its governor. Keep your mind on your job, specialize in your particular business and try to know as much about it as the man who created it, and, barring misfortune, you'll make more out of that knowledge than you will out of any chance success outside of your business.-Maurice Switzer in Leslie's.

Personal Property.

A Cleveland attorney took the Mediterranean trip a month ago. It was his first time across the water, and he stated on his return that he would have had a perfectly glorious time but for the silly questions asked him by customs officials.

It was on the pier at New York that his woes came to a climax. "Open your trunk, please," commanded the custom house officer. "Have you anything in there but personal property? he continued.

"What do you mean by personal property?" countered the lawyer.

"For heaven's sake! Don't you know what personal property is?" The officer looked up in amazement. "I thought I did," answered the attorney, "and I can assure you that there is no real estate in my trunk."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Pepys' Library.

Pepys' library since 1724 has been in the possession of Magdalene college, Cambridge. Pepys directed in his will that his collection of books and manuscripts should be transferred on the death of his nephew, John Jackson, to either Trinity college or Magdalene college, Cambridge, and required that the college which received the books should submit to an annual visitation from the other, the purpose of which should be to ascertain whether the trust was being worthily fulfilled. "Could I be sure." Pepys wrote, "of a constant succession of heirs from my said nephew qualified like himself for the use of such a library, I should not entertain a thought of its ever being alienated from them.'

Potato Juice Cure.

Potato juice as a remedy for sprains, lumbago, gout, rheumatism and bruises is recommended by Dr. Heaton C. Howard of London in an article in the London Lancet. He cites numerous cases in his own practice in which the pain has been relieved quickly, sometimes by the first application, and the fluid that has exuded into the joint or the membranes has been absorbed within a few days.

Potato juice is used as an ointment, a liniment or a plaster. The raw potatoes are squeezed in a hydraulic press. The starch and nitrogenous matter are removed and the juice boiled down until it is made five times as strong as when fresh. Glycerin is added to pre-

The pest may be at our doors and on our lawns at any minute for it has been making headway in the county. A field of 40 acres on the farm of Mr. George Harmon, at Araby, near Frederick was entirely taken possession of by the Turkeys, hogs and chickens are deadly enemies of the "army" but usually can make no impression on the worm because of the immense numbers in which they appear. There are numerous varieties of poisons recommended by the Department of Agriculture, but the great trouble with these remedies for farmer's use is that the poisons will kill chickens, stock and so on. The best method to apply to a field infested by the "army worm" is to set fire to

Most effective of all for lawns, has proved the paris green mixture of 10 pounds of bran or midlings, quarter pound of paris green and a pint of molasses made into a paste and scattered over the infected areas. When this remedy is applied to lawns, dogs and cats must be kept away inasmuch as they might lick their feet and be poisoned by the deadly paris green.

SYNOPSIS.

Book I. CHAPTER I—Rudolph Van Vechten, a young man of leisure, is astonished to see a man enter No. 1313, a house across the street from the Powhatan club. The house has long been unoccupied and is spoken of as the House of Mystery.

CHAPTER II—Several persons at regu-

CHAPTER III—Van Vechten expresses concern to his friend, Tom Phinney, regarding the whereabouts of his cousin and fiancee, Paige Carew. A fashionably attired woman is seen to enter the House of Mystery. A man is forcibly ejected from the house. Van Vechten and Tom follow the man and find him dead in the street.

CHAPTER IV—Van Vechten is attracted by the face of a girl in the crowd of onlookers surrounding the body. Later he discovers the girl gazing at him with a look of scorn from the windows of the mysterious house.

CHAPTER V-Detective Flint calls on Van Vechten to get his version of the tragedy.

CHAPTER VI—Tom Phinney goes alone on a yachting trip. He recognizes among some persons in a passing motor boat two men whom he had seen enter the House of Mystery. He sees one of them, a Mr. Callis, on shore later and follows him. Tom is seized, blindfolded and taken to a house. He hears a girl named Jessie, evidently the daughter of the man in authority, question his captors. A sweetvoiced girl later protests against the roughness of his captors.

CHAPTER I—Van Vechten calls on his uncle, Theodore Van Vechten, big man in Wall street and known as the "Man of Iron," in search of information regarding the whereabouts of Paige Carew.

CHAPTER II—Detective Flint shows Van Vechten a gold mesh purse found in the House of Mystery. Van recognizes it as belonging to Paige Carew.

CHAPTER III—The sweet-voiced girl helps Tom Phinney escape, but refuses to disclose her identity. Tom declares he will meet her again.

CHAPTER IV-Detective Fifth tests ven Vechten he has a theory that Paige has been kidnaped. Van goes to lay the case before his uncle CHAPTER V—Messages are sent to Europe in an effort to trace Paige. Tom tells Van Vechten he is in love and re-lates his adventure.

CHAPTER VI—A message from London reports that two ladies resembling Miss Carew and her companion, Mrs. Devereaux, sailed for New York some time previously. A reward of $2,500 is offered.

ladies visited the English home of Temple Bonner, owner of the House Wwstery. Flint has a theory that they are connected with the mystery of No. 1313.

CHAPTER VIII—It is recalled that Temple Bonner was in love with a daughter of Compton Schuyler, who married Max Willard. The other daughter married a man named Devereaux. Bonner and Willard were intimate friends. A search is started for Willard.

CHAPTER IX—Van Vechten enters the House of Mystery by the back door in time to hear John Callis threaten a girl. He interferes and helps the girl escape, but is rendered unconscious in the struggle with Callis.

Book III.

CHAPTER I—Tom Phinney gets a job as master of Brownlow's yacht Kohinur which has been chartered for some mys-terious mission.

CHAPTER II—The charterer and his friends board the yacht at night and Tom hears the voice of the unknown girl and also of a man involved in his adventure of a few nights previous.

CHAPTER III—Tom finds the girl more beautiful than he had anticipated. The charterer turns out to be Max Willard.

CHAPTER IV—Willard assures Tom that his mission is honorable and intimates that a great wrong is about to be righted. He gives orders that no one is to leave or board the yacht without his permission. Delia, the girl of the voice, insists upon going ashore and while Tom is explaining his orders Callis jumps overboard.

CHAPTER V-With Willard's consent Delia goes ashore to telephone and returns to the yacht in great agitation.

CHAPTER VI—Tom accompanies Delia and Jessie Willard ashore. Tom learns from Detective Flint that Willard has recently invented a powerful explosive.

CHAPTER V11--72n Vechten, recovering from injuries received in his fight with Callis, is visited by Jessie Willard, in whom he recognizes the girl who was the cause of the fight. He declares his love for her. She tells him that if his feelings have not changed one week from that day she will marry him.

CHAPTER VIII—A coffin-shaped box is taken aboard the yacht at night. Delia tells Tom she really is Paige Carew and that she has been interested in him for years through the glowing accounts of Van Vechten.

CHAPTER IX—The coffin-shaped box is taken away in the night, apparently much heavier than when it arrived. Paige Carew is missing and a search of the yacht fails to reveal any clue to her whereabouts.

A Specter at the Feast.

CHAPTER I.

What the Box Contained. Jessie Willard's visit to Rudolph Van Vechten partook more of the nature of a visitation—as of some healing shrine's patron saint; for by Saturday night he had so far recovered that, at his uncle's repeated urgent so- After a moment he went on: licitations, he was able to attire himself in the habiliments of formality find his hat and top-coat, there came a diversion that stayed him. By contrast, any interruption to the oratory was interesting.

The butler noiselessly approached the head of the table and held a whispered colloquy with the host. After a minute or two the Man of Iron nodded, the butler stole away, and the man who was speaking at the time, realizing that something extraordinary was impending, paused, faltered, stopped, and sat down.

Four men, clad in overalls and jumpers, entered, carefully bearing among them a large oblong box. They halted and upheld it with patent effort while Mr. Van Vechten arose and, in his unimpassioned manner, addressed his guests.

"Gentlemen," said he, "some of our friends have not forgotten the occasion we are assembled here tonight to celebrate. We have here, I am assured, something that will commemorate this happy event in a most remarkable and fitting way And much more to the same effect.

Then a space was cleared in the center of the long table, a few of the diners were disturbed, and the box was deposited thereon. The porters withdrew.

Everybody eyed the innovation curiously—and a bit distrustfully, too. The box, suggesting as it did the end of human endeavor, was, not an inspiriting center-piece, nor was it in harmony with the temper of the evening; but after much jocose speculation respecting its likely contents, at the host's command servants appeared with screw-drivers, and, amid an expectant hush, the lid was removed.

The disclosure, coming as it did into the very heart of the company's good humor, was realized only resultantly; for the box did not belie what it sug gested. It really contained a coffin: one distinguished by its elegant creamcolored silk-plush covering and pure rose-gold ornamentation. The long extension handles were of the same metal, as was also the name-plate. Upon this latter was a single engraved

"THE TIME LOCK."

With the injection into the banquet of an element so sensational and startling, Rudolph Van Vechten's desire to depart vanished; he was not unaffected by the excitement that stirred the rest of the company. But presently he observed that the incident conveyed a special meaning to certain of those present-particularly to his uncle.

Was the whole thing a huge practical joke?

The Man of Iron pointed out that if it was, it must have been an expensive one for the perpetrator. Then came the suggestion of an infernal machine, and once more a hush fell upon the gathering.

These men, however, were not lacking in courage. Very cautiously the casket was removed from the box, the box was taken away, and the former was given the place of honor, where it reposed like a beautiful but unattractive epergne.

In the silence that accompanied this operation a distinct ticking sound, emanating from the casket, was plainly audible, and the diners, some of them overturning chairs in their haste, recoiled to the walls, where they stood staring in horror at this unwelcome prefiguration of the grave. At this moment a quiet voi heard to say:

"Carefully, gentlemen; a slight jar might prove disastrous.'

The company turned to behold a man of impressive appearance. He might have been one of them, though none had seen him previously that night. His white hair, his smoothshaven, finely wrinkled face, his magnetic eyes, were all a part of a commanding personality, and it was no more than natural that he should be looked to for an explanation of the episode.

Perfectly composed, there was no mistaking the fact that he completely dominated the situation.

Van Vechten noted that his uncle recognized the man, and that the Man of Iron's attitude all at once became one of tense, alert watchfulness.

With an air that impelled many to follow his example, the stranger consulted his watch; an average declaration of all the watches would have fixed the time at twelve minutes till midnight.

He advanced to the table, from which everybody else shrank as far as the confines of the vast room permitted, and laid a hand upon the casket. Glancing once more at the watch which he still held in the other hand, he quietly remarked:

"Gentlemen, this coffin contains enough willardite to wipe New York off the map. It is connected with one of my time-locks, set to detonate the explosive at midnight precisely." His commanding regard met Theodore Van Vechten's, as he added:

"No one better than you knows how likely it is to work without a hitch." In the ensuing quiet, the ticking, as of a clock, which he plainly heard.

"I shall not take the time to apologize for this interruption of your festivities, because"--another glance at the watch—"only ten minutes stands between this moment and midnight.

"But, as briefly as possible, I want to make it clear to you that I am responsible for the occasion that has brought you together here. "Through my lack of business acumen I was frozen out of the company, and it did not take long to discover that every avenue of legal redress was closed to me. Please bear in mind that fact.

"Then what remained for me?" The brilliant eyes swept the wondering audience. "Why, either to accept the situation as Theodore Van Vechten willed it, or recover my rights by force

"Now, gentlemen, virtually I have been robbed of a fortune. I am not seeking vengeance-no, no; nothing of that kind-only justice and compensation. I have spent months in preparing for tonight; more than once my secret operations have nearly met with shipwreck, and you must realize that I come here fully determined to exact the uttermost farthing of my dues, or else not one of you will live to enjoy them. Call it blackmail, call it a hold-up, call it whatever you will, the fact is that I am here to enforce strike twelve!" -not to beg or ask, mind you-but to enforce a distribution of my share of the profits of the Atlas Safe Company, and my reinstatement into the position of superintendent of which have been unjustly deprived-'

"You all understand. You have just head. six minutes within which to make up your minds.

The Man of Iron was not of the stuff that is easily frightened-else he would not have been the Man of Iron. He was taken unawares and rendered bewildered-as who would not have been?-but he was first to recover himself. His voice rang out with an authoritative command that the casket be removed.

The intruder, with one hand still lying lightly at an end of the handsome casket, the other still holding his watch, calmly interposed:

"Just a moment—if you please. have only to press a trifle harder upon this bit of ornament and the explosion will be precipitated. I trustfor your sakes; I don't care so much for myself-that you will not force me to such an extreme. "However, I have come here prepared for any turn. If my rights are not to be recognized, then it is a matter of indifference to me wether destroy myself along with the rest of I prefer not to do so, of course; but I give you my word, at the first movement of opposition I shall terminate this unpleasant scene."

An impulsive movement of Theodore Van Vechten's was followed by a gasp of horror; for the stranger was so self-possessed and determined that nobody doubted his dispassionate declaration. It was only too obvious that he would do to the last extreme exactly what he said he would.

the speaker. The man's magnetic eyes turned upon him with a steady, inscrutable look.

"Theodore Van Vechten," the quiet voice went on, "it lowers the high feeling of respect and admiration which I entertain for your genius to see you choose the role of fool now."

"Max Willard," retored Van Vechten evenly, "you know me well enough to recognize that I can not be coerced; so it is you who are playing the part of fool. Can't you see that this means your utter ruin?"

Said the other: "Everything that human agency can accomplish toward that end has been done-by you, Theodore. And now, just one more chance. Your niece has been missing for some time, has she not?"

Theodore Van Vechten started. The inventor went on:

"I merely want to add that-in addition to a well-calculated charge of willardite—she too is in this casket alive at this moment." Again he glanced at his watch. "It is precisely two minutes until twelve."

Nothing was to be heard save the regular ticking, each pulsation marking off one more fateful second. The two men-Max Willard, cool and steadfast in his purpose; Theodore Van Vechten, an image of power and indomitability-looked long into each other's eyes.

With a quick movement, Willard's hand slid to another part of the casket. It could be seen that he pressed a trifle harder. The whole thing fell apart into the shape of a davenport thus disclosed, clad in a white yachting costume which, in its present setting might well have been the cerements of the dead, her hands clasped lightly and naturally upon her bosom, reposed a beautiful young girl. Her glowing hair afforded the one mark of vivid color against the ivory and dull gold of the casket and the pallor of the huge table's spotless napery.

The ticking still continued. Pointing to the satin pillow upon which the fair head rested, Max Willard said briefly: "The willardite is there." Once more he glanced at his watch, with an indifferent air, and snapped it shut. "One minute till twelve," he announced. There was a sudden cry from one of the guests, an involuntary outburst of alarm-an indication that strained

He might take any advantage of you in which he was pleased to regard as partaking of the nature of open warfare; but his word once passed, and he was bound irrevocably.

> Whatever of elation Max Willard may have felt, it was not betrayed by any sign. A slow movement of one hand swept back a lock of white hair from his forehead, and again he addressed Mr. Van Vechten, who was watching him narrowly.

Max Willard quietly corrected him: "'Willardite,' you mean." Stooping over the back of the casket, he pressed a hand gently over the soft cushions while he seemed to consider. Presently he continued:

For a moment the Man of Iron JOHN C. MOTTER, J. D. BAKER. seemed to be choking. But at this juncture a disturbance was heard in the hall.

A servant entered hurriedly. Before he could make any announcement he was flung aside. He went sliding helplessly over the polished floor, grasping at every object within reach, pulling down chairs and tables and everything movable in the path of his tornado-like progress, until he brought up against the wall.

Tom Phinney was standing just inside the doorway, taking in the scene. Beside him stood Mr. Flint.
