FREDERICK'S PLANS READY

WILL BE A GREAT WEEK

Centennial Committee Decides on Program

ENTHUSIASM IS ENCOURAGING

Frederick County's Resources and Industries Will be Represented During The Gala Week's Events In Great Parade On Sept. 10.

Those who have charge of the preparations for Frederick's greatest week, in which will be held the Star-Spangled Banner centennial and Home-coming, are determined that every effort will be made to insure the success of the six days' celebration which will mean so much to Frederick city and county. Numerous and capable committees of Frederick citizens have been appointed to look after the many details of the various events and these men are already busily engaged.

A delegation from the city called at the White House last Thursday to formally invite President Wilson to attend the celebration. Although he was unable to definitely commit himself, the President gave the committee every assurance of his desire to be present. The city feels much encouraged over this favorable reply and it is thought that if Wilson attends it will not be difficult to draw many cabinet members as well as members of both houses of Congress to the Maryland city for the centennial.

The tentative program of the order of the events has been decided upon and the official programme will soon appear in printed form. The celebration will last from September 9 to September 14, inclusive. By far the most interesting day from the county's standpoint will be September 10 when the great industrial and agriculture parade will be held. Every branch of Agriculture, every industry in the county will be represented in this parade which will show to the world the great resources and productiveness of the garden-spot of Maryland.

From now on the board of managers will call in various committees appointed for specific parts of the work of the celebration for a report. The managers are encouraged by the enthusiasm that is being shown over the county. President Ross said that during the past few days he has been receiving pledges of substantial contributions to the two-thousand dollar fund and believes that the voluntary scheme of collection will be entirely successful.

Nothing stands in the way of making the week a rousing success except the lack of funds and since the county will be greatly benefited it is hoped that it will heartily co-operate and contribute its part toward assuring a complete success to the greatest advertisement that Frederick county has ever had.

The complete program of the six days' events, follows:

Wednesday, September 9—Opening ceremonies; Thursday—Industrial and trade parade; Friday—Fraternal parade; Saturday—Floral parade, in which the civic clubs of the city and county will be represented; Sunday—Divine services in the churches of the city, and Monday, September 14—The centennial of the writing of the Star-Spangled Banner, the address of President Woodrow Wilson, in Mt. Olivet cemetery, the pilgrimage of the Congress of the United States, and the singing of the National Anthem, the world over at high noon, following a proclamation of the President of the United States.

Trans-Atlantic Flight Postponed.

Lieut. John C. Porte will not attempt to fly across the Atlantic until October 1. This decision was reached as the result of a conference between Glen H. Curtiss, Lieutenant Porte and Will Gash, the personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker.

Mr. Curtiss said that it was advisable to take time to rebuild the machine properly and to make changes suggested by the experiments of the past month. He added the boat had been weakened by the rapid temporary alterations and continued storms, and that it would be unfair to Lieutenant Porte, as well as to the entire project, to endanger success by an ill-prepared start.

Lightning Melts Chain; Wearer Lives.

To have the lightning melt a gold chain and locket about her neck and survive the shock was the experience of Miss Margaret Fife, of Canton, Ohio. Miss Fife was stricken by the lightning bolt and it was at first feared she could not be revived. After two hours of artificial respiration she was restored to consciousness and she is expected to recover.

A. S. ABELL DIES.

Member of the Sun Publishing Company Attended Mt. St. Mary's.

Arunah Shepherdson Abell, secretary and treasurer of the A. S. Abell Company, publishers of the Sun and the Evening Sun, died on Tuesday morning at four o'clock at the Union Protestant Infirmary in Baltimore.

Mr. Abell had been a patient at the hospital for more than a month, and underwent a serious operation there some time ago for complication of diseases. After the operation it was thought that Mr. Abell's condition was improving. Monday he began to sink.

Cardinal Gibbons, a great friend of Mr. Abell, was told of the latter's serious condition, and Monday afternoon the prelate visited the hospital. He remained there for more than a half an hour. Monday evening Mr. Abell sank rapidly and when the end came members of his family were at his bedside.

Mr. Abell, was born at Pikesville, Baltimore county, 48 years ago and was the son of the late Edwin F. and Margaret Curley Abell. He was the grandson of the late Arunah S. Abell, founder of the Baltimore Sun and for many years its publisher.

Mr. Abell attended Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, and later Georgetown University, Washington. After his graduation from Georgetown he took up a position in the office of the Sun. Some time later, when the A. S. Abell Company was incorporated and Edwin F. Abell elected president, Mr. Abell was named secretary and treasurer, which position he had since filled under the later presidency of his brother, Walter W. Abell, and the present administration.

In 1892 Mr. Abell married Anna T. Schley who, with seven children, survives him. Mr. Abell's surviving children are: Arunah S. Abell, Margaret Abell, Edwin F. Abell, Walter W. Abell, George W. Abell, Robert L. Abell and Marie Louise Abell. A brother, Walter W. Abell, is at present first vice president of the Crown Cork and Seal Company.

OFFICIAL FLAG FOR BALTIMORE

Will be Used During Centennial Week.

Artist Will Make the Design.

Mayor James H. Preston, of Baltimore, has announced that the Monumental City will soon have an official flag. At a recent meeting of the City Council, the Mayor, who is the father of the idea, had a resolution adopted which authorized the city flag.

A Commission will be named to take the matter up and select an appropriate design. It is the intention of the officials of the City of Baltimore to have the new Penant flying for the first time during the National Star Spangled Banner Centennial celebration, to be held at Baltimore September 6 to 13.

Within 24 hours after the announcement was made that Baltimore was in the market for an official standard, designs began to pour in. All the designs submitted were rejected on Monday and it was unanimously decided to request the Mayor, upon his return, to employ an artist to work out a design in keeping with the views of the Commission.

The proposed flag will embrace the gold and sable colors of Lord Calvert in heraldic colors, with the Battle Monument in appropriate background.

Vast Damage Done By Army Worm.

Losses totaling more than $1,000,000 have been sustained by Michigan farmers as the result of the army-worm pest, according to an estimate made by Prof. Rufus H. Pettit, head of the department of entomology of the Michigan Agricultural College.

He explained that he based his estimate on letters received from farmers in the affected districts.

"Although preventing methods are checking the deadly work of the pest, the crop loss is bound to be much greater before the worms are all killed off," said Professor Pettit.

Simple Way to Prevent Flies.

The Department of Agriculture has announced an effectual method for preventing the breeding of the common household and typhoid fly and thereby assuring the complete extermination of this species of insect. The simplicity of the method, consisting only of the sprinkling of a small amount of ordinary borax daily upon household and stable refuse is said to guarantee its success and greatly reduce the number of diseases originating from the germ-carrying fly.

Lead pencil manufacture in the United States is consuming 73,000,000 feet lumber annually, of which about one-half is estimated to be wasted in sharpening or throwing away short ends.

EMMITSBURG'S BOOSTER WEEK

Big Celebration Will Be Held Here September 14, 15 and 16.—Plenty of Entertainments, Lectures, Games, Etc.

September will be a month of celebrations in Maryland. All over the State will there be festivities of one kind or another. Baltimore will have her Centennial Week, Frederick will have her Key Celebration and Old Home Week, Middletown has a big event planned as have many other towns in the state, and last, but not least Emmitsburg will have a big time that promises to eclipse even Old Home Week. It will be known as Booster's Week and everyone will be asked to help make it a success. The dates are September 14, 15 and 16.

There are ten local guarantors back of the project and committees and sub-committees will soon be appointed. There will be three great, big days of entertainment, games and fun. The main attractions will be under a large weather proof tent, and will be under the direction and supervision of the Radcliffe Attractions, of Washington, D. C. In connection with these will be held baseball games, drills, tournaments, and races of every kind.

The feature on the programs of the tented performances will be lectures—humorous and otherwise; selections by the Metropolitan Glee Club, Trombone Quartet and Swiss Bell Ringers, Magician and Ventriloquist, concerts by the Featherston Novelty Concert Co., and many other special numbers.

This is but a foreword of the big event. Next week's issue of the CHRONICLE will contain a more detailed account of the program as well as the names of the members of the various committees.

Thursday.

Cardinal Gibbons, who celebrated his eightieth birthday, gave an interesting interview, in which he expressed his detestation of the Mexican rebels, suffragettes and agitators in general, and the I. W. W. in particular. The prelate spent his anniversary at Avalon, Carroll county, Md.

At his own request President Wilson withdrew the name of Thomas D. Jones, of Chicago, from the list of nominations for the Federal Reserve Board.

Governor Hiram Johnson, of California, denounced Theodore Roosevelt for not keeping political faith with him.

Nineteen persons died from the heat and eighty became insane in Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit.

Friday.

Austria issued an ultimatum to Servia which, has caused consternation in Europe.

General Huerta and party arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, on the German cruiser Dresden.

Lady Barclay and the Hon. Miss Edith Fitzgerald, suffragettes, belonging to the British nobility, were arrested at Buckingham Palace, where they were attempting to reach the King.

Trustees of the late J. P. Morgan's estate were sued by St. George's Episcopal Church, New York, to seek an accounting of the income on a trust fund of $600,000 bequeathed by Mr. Morgan.

Prince Wesebsky, editor of Groshdanin, of St. Petersburg, who during the war between Russia and Japan advised his government to conclude peace and avert internal shipwreck, died in the Russian capital.

Saturday.

The National American Woman Suffrage Association issued an appeal to the women of the nation to give up their gold and silver trinkets to the cause of equal suffrage.

An Egyptian attempted to shoot the Khephren of Egypt at Constantinople, but was shot down by one of the Khephren's suite.

The National Cash Register Company was adjudged in Lansing, Mich., to have violated the state anti-trust law and fined $10,000.

One man was killed and 10 others seriously hurt when a lifeboat of the steamer Baltic fell from its davits during a fire drill in New York harbor.

President Poincaré, of France, was cordially greeted by the King of Sweden at Stockholm.

Governor Goldsborough saved Harry

Kansas' Colossal Corn.

With a record breaking wheat yield to its credit, the corn crop of Kansas promises to equal any ever harvested, according to the acreage. Corn 15 feet high, the largest growth ever reported at this date, is growing in bottom lands of Smoky Hill and Arkansas rivers, while upland corn is generally doing splendidly.

The State of New Jersey has been offered 8,000 acres of mountain land for the use of a game preserve by Charles C. Worthington, a wealthy lover of birds and animals.

SMITH GETS $75,000 SHAFT.

Wins An Unusual Victory For Heroic Defenders of Fort McHenry.

Senator John Walter Smith achieved a notable victory for Baltimore and The Star-spangled Banner Centennial in the Senate in Washington, when he succeeded, in spite of determined opposition in securing an appropriation of $75,000 for a monument commemorating the battle of North Point, the soldiers who fell in defense of Baltimore, and for Francis Scott Key, the author of The Star-spangled Banner. The appropriation was added to the General Deficiency Bill pending in the United States Senate, an unusual procedure and one which would have aroused the opposition of the Senate as contrary to all precedent had not Senator Smith explained to the Senate the urgent reasons which prompted it.

The Deficiency Bill was laid before the Senate Mr. Smith made a brief explanation. Under ordinary circumstances, he said, he would not ask the Senate to add this item to a deficiency bill. His reason for making the request, he said, was because between September 6 and September 16 there was to be held in Baltimore the celebration commemorating the Battle of North Point and the birth of the national anthem, and unless the bill was passed at this time it would be too late to secure its passage in the regular way in time for the celebration.

There was determined opposition by several Senators, but Senator Smith explained the case so convincingly that these objections were overruled.

He pointed out that the State of Maryland, the city of Baltimore and the citizens of Baltimore had raised approximately $150,000 for the proper celebration and that more than 100,000 people would visit the city during the week of the celebration, and that there could be no more fitting time or a more appropriate action by Congress than to show that the nation joined with Maryland and with Baltimore in doing honor to the memory of the men who fell at North Point and to the man who had given his country its national hymn.

IMPACT OF AUTO WRECKS

Some Figures Showing the Force of Speeds an Hour.

If a motorcar is wrecked when going 40 miles an hour, its occupant is thrown out against a wall, a post or a fence with the same force that he would strike if he fell to the ground from a height of 53.78 feet. To get an idea of what the force of this impact might be, stand on a wall or a house 53.78 feet high, look down and contemplate the jump.

If this car is going 60 miles an hour, the impact is equivalent to a fall of 121 feet. The following table gives the force of various speeds an hour:

10 miles	equals a fall of....	3.36 feet
15 miles	equals a fall of....	7.56 feet
20 miles	equals a fall of....	13.44 feet
25 miles	equals a fall of....	21.01 feet
30 miles	equals a fall of....	30.25 feet
35 miles	equals a fall of....	41.17 feet
40 miles	equals a fall of....	53.78 feet
45 miles	equals a fall of....	68.05 feet
50 miles	equals a fall of....	86.53 feet
55 miles	equals a fall of....	101.67 feet
60 miles	equals a fall of....	121.00 feet
70 miles	equals a fall of....	164.69 feet
80 miles	equals a fall of....	215.10 feet
90 miles	equals a fall of....	272.24 feet
100 miles	equals a fall of....	336.10 feet

TRUE CAUSE OF WAR CRISIS

AUSTRIA FORCED IT

Recent Assassination Only a Good Excuse

SLAVIC PROBLEM IS REAL CAUSE

Austria Has Kept Slavs From Europe and Task is Thought to Have Become Too Much for Her.—Racial Hatred Fans Flames.

Austria has practically created the very grave war crisis that at present threatens to involve all of Europe in a tremendous struggle. This is the opinion of many diplomats who maintain that underneath the recent assassination of the Austrian heir, which that country attributes to Servia and makes the cause for war, there is a more vital and fundamental problem which is the real cause of the crisis.

Austria has had racial troubles for centuries and the Hapsburgs have long maintained a barrier to the invasion of Europe by the Slavic race. Of recent years this problem has become most difficult to solve. Austria has had increasing trouble with the Slavs both within and without her borders. Servia is the stronghold of the Slavic race at present, although many are scattered over Southern Europe, and many authorities on international relations believe that Austria deliberately planned the war with Servia with the object of effacing the nation which has developed so rapidly and has taken such a successfully prominent part in the recent Balkan Wars.

My Affair With a Grand Duchess

By F. A. MITCHEL

I was born in the department of Tula, in Russia, and from a very early age showed a remarkable faculty for acquiring knowledge. At twelve years of age I spoke four languages. At the university I captured most of the prizes and when I finished my course at the age of twenty was retained as a professor.

One day I was called into the private room of the head of the university, who told me that the czar had sent for me to become a tutor for the imperial children and that I was to report at the palace at once.

On arriving I was received by the czarina, who said to me:

"I am too much interested in the welfare of my children to permit any one but myself to give you your instructions. The principal thing I wish to say to you is a warning. You will be thrown in with the imperial family on a familiar footing. You will meet a number of young girls of royal blood. If you are known to speak of love to any one of them you will be severely punished."

I knew very well what that punishment would be. I would be sent to Siberia to work in the mines. In Russia there is no law governing such cases; the emperor being an autocrat, with power over life and death.

I entered upon my duties with no great fear in this respect, for, having been devoted to study, the softer sex had not interested me. I should not have been so confident had I known that one not given to appreciate girls in general is the most liable to succumb when thrown in with one especially girl. I was thrown in with several princesses between fourteen and twenty. I suppose they knew as well as I the danger of falling into an affair with a commoner. At any rate, they all behaved themselves with circumspection, save one girl of seventeen, between whom and me the spark of love flashed at our first meeting.

The Grand Duchess Olga was a daughter of a brother of the czar, consequently his niece. She came frequently to the palace and sometimes remained there for days at a time. After my coming these visits occurred oftener and lasted longer. For some time there was nothing spoken between us that might not have been listened to by any one, but even during this time the Grand Duchess Olga and I knew that we loved each other.

One day she asked me to construe for her an ode of Horace. Standing side by side, holding the same book, I felt her hand touch mine. So much vitality was there in this touch of love that all the ice in Siberia could not freeze it. I was unable to withdraw my hand, and so was the grand duchess.

That was the beginning. Not a word was spoken. There was not even then a glance between us. As for me, I dared not look at her. We were not alone and could be observed by others, but no one could see that touch beneath the cover of the open book or know of the strong current that passed between us. As soon as I had stammered through the reading of the passage and I had no further excuse to remain in that position I turned the book over to her.

It was only when I went to bed that night that I realized the frightful abyss on which I stood. What should I do? I could not fly from my charmer. To leave the czar's service without being dismissed would be revolt. To remain would be to leave a hopeless love for the mines. I slept little that night, but when morning came made resolutions for the future which I considered a solution of the problem. But it was not three days before one of the little princes, aged eight, finding the Grand Duchess Olga and myself in the same room together, for sport locked us in.

This came upon me too suddenly for resolution.

"One kiss," I said—"the first and the last."

I put my arms about her, drew her to me and kissed her, she looking on the floor, frightened, but not resisting. Then I darted to the door and rapped loudly. An attendant unlocked it, and it so happened that when we left the room the czarina passed by. She looked searchingly at us. The grand duchess complained of the little prince, who had locked us in, and his mother reproved him. Then, with a few kind words to the grand duchess and myself that assured us we were not in the least to blame, her majesty passed on.

That night I was awakened from slumber by a shake and, looking up, saw an official standing over me.

"Get up," he said.

I arose and dressed myself, asking no questions. I was quite sure my kiss had been seen and I was to be sent to Siberia. But no, I was taken to a railway station, given a ticket to the border, a passport and 5,000 rubles. "Leave on the first train," said my conductor, "and never show yourself in Russia again."

I have never learned how much of what passed between me and the Grand Duchess Olga had become known. My final opinion was this:

The czarina when we came out of the room in which we had been locked only for a moment read in our faces that there was more between us than our stations warranted. She resolved to break it up, but was too kind hearted to make a more serious matter of it than banishment for me.

EMMITSBURG BEATS MONTEREY

Country Club Loses While The Locals Pile Up A Big Score.

Emmitsburg had some good batting practice last Saturday at the expense of the Monterey Country Club. That the practice was confined to batting is evinced by the box score which gives thirteen of the 27 put-outs to Ben Sebold, 13 to Ned Annan and a lone fly to Dutch Rowe in centerfield. Stokes again had them at his mercy.

The first part of the game was good to witness; so was the latter—as a marathon. Pealing thunder, heavy clouds and a few drops of rain as the contest started, hinted of a downpour, so both sides played fast ball. In fact the locals lost control of their machine and before the skidding stopped four mountain dwellers had crossed the pan. This was in the fifth inning and was the first scoring of the visitors. Just then Old Sol came out from back of the clouds and the locals started to clout the ball to the end of the rainbow, not stopping until 16 runs had been chalked up. The batting of Stokes and Rosensteel and the playing of Grimes and Bower for Monterey were features. The score:

CAPE COD CANAL OPENED

Baltimoreans Prominent In Great $12,000,000 Enterprise.

August Belmont, the noted financier, formally opened the great Cape Cod Canal on Wednesday before thousands of prominent throughout the country.

The opening of this canal is an important event in American business annals because of the remarkable benefit to the trade of the country and especially to the Eastern Seaboard.

The canal is 13 miles in length, 25 feet deep and varies in width from 100 to 250 feet. The cutting of this canal saves the circuitous route of ships around Cape Cod, a distance of some 70 miles. The canal will later be dredged to a depth of 30 feet at low tide so that all ships can be amply accommodated.

Frank A. Furst and former Governor Warfield, were foremost among the prominent Marylanders who helped to finance and construct the $12,000,000 project.

Hans Schmidt Wants New Trial.

Hans Schmidt, one time assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, New York, under death sentence for the murder of Anna Auimuller, whose body he dismembered and cast into the Hudson, has formally applied for a new trial. In an affidavit, filed with the District Attorney, Schmidt's counsel asserts that the girl was not murdered, but died after an operation and that Schmidt cut up the body to prevent a scandal and to protect the surgeon who performed the operation.

HOW TO BAT SUCCESSFULLY.

Few Solid Whacks Better Than a Home Run Once Out of Ten.—Practice the Short Swing.

Believe you can hit the ball; go to the plate with the determination that you will hit the ball; face the pitcher with confidence, and the battle for base hits is half won, says the American boy.

The boy with confidence, watchful eyes and enough persistence to practice steadily will become a hitter, and a team of hitters is a winning aggregation.

The player who doesn't stand up to the plate, and who can't learn to stand up to the plate, will never make a hitter. The player who stands firmly and confidently, steps to the ball when it comes up, and meets it squarely, is a wild swinger.

The wild swinger is as useless as the player who backs away. Take a firm stand close to the plate and stay there. Batting righthanded, you place most of your weight on your right foot with the left foot ready to step forward to the ball, or to one side to enable you to dodge a bad ball. Don't wobble about as the ball comes up. Watch your stride forward to meet the ball and learn to keep it uniform. If you step farther forward than usual, you will lower your body and strike under the ball. Train yourself to a good, firm position close to the plate and a steady stride. As you have opportunity, study the position at the plate of reliable hitters.

"Knock the cover off the ball" may be the cry of the spectators, but it never is the call of the coach to the batter. A short, sharp hit does the work. A wild swing spoils the aim.

It is fun to swing hard at a ball and drive it a "mile"—when you hit it. But mostly you don't hit it. It is more fun, and immensely more valuable, to make three ordinary hits with a short swing of your bat three times in ten and ground out the other seven times, than it is to hit a "hommer" once out of ten times and probably strike out at least four times.

Train your players to hold their bats six or eight inches from the end, and strike at the ball

PENNSYLVANIA COMMODITY LAW

Farmers and Dealers Must Sell By Weight, Not Measure to Obey Regulations.

H. A. Surface, state zoologist, has received many questions concerning the so-called "fruit package law." To answer these he has prepared the following reply, giving needed information on the subject:

"There is no distinct fruit package law in Pennsylvania, but there is a law applying to all commodities sold in package form, and this is, that they must have the quantity of contents plainly and conspicuously marked on the outside of the package. Chief Sweeney, of the bureau of weights and measures, the department of internal affairs, says: 'If you sell peaches in a basket, the law defines that basket as a container when used for that purpose, therefore it will be necessary for you to mark the quantity of the contents on the outside of each package.'

"The law fixes forty-eight pounds as a standard of weight for one bushel of peaches. If your baskets are supposed to contain one-half bushel of peaches, then there should be twenty-four pounds in that basket."

"If you are not able to put twenty-four pounds in the basket, then mark on the outside of the basket the exact amount contained therein."

"The dealer who fails to comply with the requirements of the law, as stated above, subjects himself to the penalties imposed by the act."

"It can be seen that the law is not made for the purpose of applying to fruits alone, and consequently is not a fruit package law, although fruits come under the same regulations, in regard to marking packages, as do other commodities. Prosecutions are liable to follow the sale or delivery of short weights or measures."

"One person has asked if, instead of selling his berries in boxes marked 'one quart' he can sell them in boxes marked 'one pound,' which is less than a full quart, although they are supposed to contain a full quart. This is legal, for the law does not provide for prosecution for over-measure. Another has asked if he can make a contract to sell his potatoes by the measured bushel, without regard to weight. This is not legal, for the reason that the law fixes sixty pounds as a bushel of potatoes; and unless the measure contains sixty pounds, it is not legal to make a contract permitting it to contain less and call it a bushel."

"Another person has asked Professor Surface if it is legal to sell grain or seed in sacks and have the sacks weighed in with the seed, where no other charge is made for them. This is not legal. The weight must represent the net weight of the seed. If the seller wishes to charge an extra price for the sacks, this is merely a personal feature of the contract and not a regulation by law. The main point is that if the sale of a stipulated quantity of any material has been agreed upon, the amount delivered must be the net quantity of that commodity, not including the weight of the container; and if any material is put into a package for sale, it must be marked on the outside of that package the exact quantity of the material expressed either in measure or weight."

ARMY WORM THREATENS INJURY TO CROPS.

Has Appeared in Many Sections of the State During Past Two Weeks.—Farmers Should be on Lookout To Prevent Them From Doing Serious Injury.

The army worms will attack most any grain or forage crop, including grass on lawns. They do their injury by eating the foliage of various crops. When occurring in large numbers, they will usually eat clean, as they travel from place to place.

The insect is controlled by a stomach poison, either Arsenate of Lead or Paris green. Whenever it is possible to use a liquid spray, the paste form of Arsenate of Lead may be used, by dissolving 2 lbs. in 50 gallons of water, in which has been dissolved 3 lbs. of laundry soap. Paris green may be used at the rate of 10 ounces to each 50 gallons. This spray can be used on grasses or lawns which are not pastured or afterwards used for forage.

On forage crops and others where it is dangerous to use the spray, the most effective remedy is the use of poisoned bait. This is made by mixing $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of Paris green or powdered arsenate of lead, 50 lbs. of bran or middlings, one gallon molasses, with sufficient water to make a crumpling mass.

This bait should be spread broadcast on the ground where the worms are at work. They will be attracted to it, feed upon it, and be killed. In some cases it is best to plow one or two furrows around an infested area, so that the worms in passing to a new field will be caught in the furrow. Various means can be employed to kill the worms in the furrows, such as by drawing a log over them, by use of tar or by use of kerosene.

The Army Worm is easily controlled if taken in hand when they first appear. Every one should be on the lookout for this pest, and report made of its occurrence to Thomas B. Symons, State Entomologist, College Park, Md.

J. WILLIAM BAUGHMAN DIES

Was Prominent In Frederick County and the State.

J. William Baughman, the last of the three Baughman brothers of Frederick county, who in their days wielded much influence in Democratic politics in Maryland, died Tuesday morning on a B. & O. train shortly after it left Baltimore en route for Frederick. Mr. Baughman was being brought from Norfolk to Frederick county. Death was due to heart trouble.

His brothers were: Gen. L. Victor Baughman, often mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for governor of Maryland, and Charles H. Baughman, who died about a year ago.

As a young man J. William Baughman was reading clerk of the House of Delegates and later of the Senate. For some years he was tax collector of Frederick county. Mr. Baughman continued to live in Frederick county until the Jamestown Exposition. He was appointed a member of the Maryland Commission, which had charge of the erection of the Maryland Building and Mr. Baughman remained in charge throughout the exposition. Following the close of the event Mr. Baughman continued to live at Jamestown and occupied the Maryland Building. Several months ago Mr. Baughman was taken ill with heart trouble. His condition became such that it was deemed best that he go to a hospital and he entered an institution at Norfolk.

A short time ago Dr. George H. Riggs, a life-long friend, went to see him at Norfolk and then Mr. Baughman expressed a wish to return to his native county, evidently realizing that his end was near. Arrangements were accordingly made to bring him to Frederick and the start from Norfolk was made Monday, Dr. Riggs accompanying him.

Mr. Baughman never married. He leaves two sisters (Mrs. Gertrude de Garmont, of New York, and Miss Louise Baughman, of Maryland).

TAKE HIS ADVICE.

The highest salaried editor in the world, Arthur Brisbane, says:

"As a friend talking to another about a certain kind of goods can influence a friend more than a stranger, so a country newspaper, standing on a footing of friendship with its readers can talk to them about goods for sale or any other topic, and impress upon them more strongly than the big metropolitan newspaper, which is really a stranger."

The judgment of an authority like Brisbane amounts to something. Take his advice, then, and advertise in THE CHRONICLE, the paper that's your friend.

A suit in equity was filed in the United States District Court at Pittsburgh, by George V. Brown, of Cleveland, asking that a receiver be appointed for the Federal National Bank of Pittsburgh. Brown, who is a stockholder, alleges among other charges that the directors "carelessly, negligently and fraudulently" loaned to John H. Jones and the corporation which he owned and controlled $700,000, and that the directors diverted the funds and used them in conducting a lumber manufacturing business with a loss of $300,000 to the bank.

Irene Casey, a militant suffragette, was sentenced at Nottingham, Eng., to 15 months' imprisonment on a charge of being in possession of explosives with the intention of committing a felony. Miss Casey was carrying a dressing bag containing four boxes full of high explosives, besides detonators, fuse, benzine, chisel, pliers and glasses.

HOW TO HOLD THE COUNTRY BOY

Will Be a Live Subject For Maryland Ministers During Country Life Conference At College Park, August 4-6.

If the country is to prosper, it must retain its most important crop—its young men and young women. To do so, it must make the country a pleasant place in which to live. It must make it attractive enough to cause them to look forward to it as a life home. And, again, the Challenge of the Country must be made more, appealing to the ambition and pluck of the country boy than is the Challenge of the City. Urbanites in the ministry, and urbanites in the schools is one great cause of this present exodus. Plans for counteracting this urbanization and its effect on our young life will be presented for discussion at the Country Life Conference as a part of the rural problem in the solving of which the country church and its ministers should take a vital part.

In truth, the Rural Minister has a difficult condition of affairs to meet. Country Life has changed and is still changing. Although some churchmen vaguely realize this, many do not make a study of the problem, nor attempt to analyze it. So there is a complaint that the Church is not fulfilling its obligations to the community, and for that reason is losing ground. Old organizations and customs have died out, and new ones which seem to supplant the Church have taken their place; with the result that the Church to an alarming extent has lost its hold upon the people.

THE MINISTER'S PROBLEM.

But we should not harshly criticize the country minister for this condition. There are hundreds of flourishing churches in Maryland that stand as proof of this good work. His efforts have been of inestimable value and he is still giving more liberally of his labor, his love, and of sacrificed ambitions than should be necessary. He is sacrificing more than ever an emissary of Christ, an example of the Life of Service, should be called upon to sacrifice. A living wage should be his share, a religiously active community his reward.

One of the purposes of the conferences is to throw more light upon practical ideals of country life; to show the possibilities of co-operation; to show how some ministers take advantage of opportunities that others neglect to their sorrow.

It is not the object nor the spirit of the conference to find fault, nor to advise, but to give an opportunity for the exchange of ideas as to the ways and means of "making the Church serve the whole community."

We have faith in the minister. We have faith in the farmer. That the farmer does not appreciate the efforts of the minister as he should, is shown by the fact that he fails to support the Church, and allows it to struggle on as though unworthy of his assistance. Some farmers claim that the Church does not answer a real need, that it is of little use to them, that its message is one which they can do without. The minister replies that the farmer is ungodly, irreligious, or perverted. Are not both to blame for such a condition? Should not the farmer support the minister, and show him how to be of service? And should not the minister study the social and economic life of the farmer, that he may like the Divine Leader teach in terms of God's Great Out-of-doors?

The Agricultural College, like similar institutions in other States, is taking the lead in bringing our ministers together for this discussion of the country problem since of its freedom as a State institution from denominational influence and its deep concern in the welfare of the country neighborhood make it the logical host for such a conference. The visiting ministers will be entertained by the College, leaving to them no other expense than that of car fare to and from College Park at the usual minister's half-fare rate. As a result, ministers of all faiths are responding enthusiastically to the call, and those in charge of the Conference report a very satisfactory and growing registration.

If any minister in the State has failed to receive an invitation, he is nevertheless cordially welcome and is urged to notify B. H. Darrow, Gen. Y. M. C. A. Secretary, College Park, of his intention to attend the Conference.

In most sections of Maryland, west of the coastal plain, inoculation is necessary in most cases when seeding crimson clover on land for the first time. The best way to do this is to scatter over the field 200 or 300 pounds of soil.

Give Your Alfalfa Land Thorough Preparation

Should Be Well Worked Before Seeding—Directions For Soil Inoculation.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Alfalfa requires more than any other farm crop, a thoroughly prepared seed bed for successful germination and early growth. Sowing alfalfa upon loose, freshly plowed land will, even under the most ideal weather conditions, result in little beyond dismal failure.

An ideal seed bed is one obtained by plowing the land in the fall, then in early spring harrowing it until the surface is smooth and thoroughly pulverized to a depth of about 2 inches. Hence, where alfalfa follows small grain, or a clover or timothy sod, the land should be plowed as soon as possible after the crop has been removed, thus allowing plenty of time for at least one or two good soaking rains to settle the soil well before seeding time. It must be remembered that frequent surface workings between the time of plowing and seeding are absolutely necessary to conserve moisture, kill weeds, and properly pulverize the surface.

Unless the land has grown alfalfa or sweet clover successfully within the past five years, it will be necessary to inoculate. The most efficient method of inoculation is to broadcast over the field from 200 to 500 or more pounds of soil taken from a successful alfalfa field or from where sweet clover is growing.

The soil for this purpose should be taken spade deep and applied before sowing the seed. Usually it is better to do this just before sowing, but good results may be expected if applied a week or two before seeding. At all times the soil should be harrowed in immediately after applying to prevent the injurious effects of sunlight. A few hours exposure may kill all the inoculating bacteria.

The manner of applying the soil depends largely upon the convenience with which it can be secured. When near at hand, in unlimited quantities, the easiest way of applying is with the manure spreader or from the back of a wagon with shovels. When the quantity is limited then scattering by hand, the same as sowing seed, is the most economical as well as the most effective way of applying.

There is nothing equal to stable manure for fertilizing alfalfa. Whenever possible the land should be well covered with manure before plowing. The danger of weeds in most manure makes applying it on top of the land after plowing, and working it in undesirable. When manure is not available there should be applied, at the time of seeding, 300 to 500 pounds of acid rock and 50 to 75 pounds of muriate of potash per acre; depending, of course, upon the fertility.

SUMMER SHADE.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

During the hot summer months, chickens simply must have a refuge from the hot rays of the sun. The corn field on the farm makes an almost ideal place for such a refuge and as a place for them to range in.

Aside from furnishing shade the corn field also provides an abundance of insects which to a large extent will take the place of costly beef scrap. The weeds and grass in the rows and about the fences furnish sufficient green feed and the birds get plenty of exercise in such a large range. Furthermore the ground is usually soft and dust walls are easily made by the birds to help them in keeping free of lice in the warm weather. It is necessary, however, to look out for chicken enemies, including hawks, crows, owls, weasels, dogs, etc., although it is doubtful in my mind if the cornfield is a disadvantage in this respect. The additional hiding places furnished the chickens should more than offset the advantages to these enemies especially when the corn has reached some size.

STATE GRANGE DAY at Tolchester Beach on August 7th, will be a great gathering day for farmers and their families from all sections of the State. It is expected that a large number will avail themselves of the special excursion rates provided for the day, which will be entirely given up to proving what an enjoyable occasion a Grange gathering can be. In the afternoon, there will be a discussion of the marketing and distribution of farm products by Congressman D. J. Lewis, known as the father of the Parcels Post; President H. J. Patterson, of the Maryland Agricultural College; Dr. Augustus Stabler, of the Department of Agriculture, and others.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

No people are more wide-awake, more knowable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatched; the climate is notedly healthful; its water—pure mountain spring water—cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards.

Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary—with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years—is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies—equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid achievement—is also here.

There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liveries, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oiled streets.

There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites available. If you contemplate changing your place of residence—come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md.

THE YOUNG MAN AND CREDIT.

"Nurse your credit" is a familiar expression. It is an injunction which every young man—every old man, too, for the matter of that—should follow. Credit is the backbone of business.

Without it, in fact, there would be, could be, no business at all. Character, integrity, industry, represent quite as much as collateral security in the estimation of those who extend credit. The three are really the equivalent of "security." How necessary it is therefore that the young man starting out in life should make his credit good by keeping his character unsullied, by keeping his promise to pay and being industrious.

In a word this week in September will be one long to be remembered by this community if everyone co-operates. But co-operation is absolutely essential. Be ready then, good people of Emmitsburg and farmers of Emmitsburg district to take hold and make the coming event one that will equal if not surpass, the long-to-be-remembered Old Home Week of five years ago.

FACTS AS THEY ARE.

"My belief is that if the American people as a whole, whether they are for or against the administration, whether they are free traders or protectionists, whether they are trust presidents or day laborers, will just stop wasting their time talking about the hard things that have come to us and realize the facts as they are, we will see the largest business that this country has ever had."

This is the advice and prediction of one of the world's largest manufacturers of shoes—the good sense talk of an observant, far-seeing man of affairs. Despite the wail of a clique of subsidized "hard times" writers the business outlook at this very moment of normal mid-season commercial slack is more than encouraging. The bank clearing of the leading cities, re-employment of railroad men and steel mill hands, the shrinkage in the number of idle cars and the reports of expansion in many lines of trades—these are but a few of the indications of actual conditions.

Says an observer of the general business situation: "The large number of failures reported from week to week, although to be regretted, are attributable more to conditions that are past than to the present situation." To explainable causes, in other words; to bad management, over-production, lax collections, over-reaching.

Failures consequent upon policies of that kind are liable—under the law of the survival of the fittest—to occur at any time; so there is no use to wail, to doubt, to throw up the hands or indulge in agitation that is born of credulous fanaticism and encouraged by an unstable mob of irresponsibles.

WE thought the army worm was bad enough, but, ye gods, they're going to turn the Suffragettes loose on Frederick County in the fall. "Back to the mines, boys!"

Music Hath Charms.

Dohnanyi, the famous pianist, tells a story of two Scotchmen who lived in the same flat. Each had a piano, upon which he strummed in his own room, and one day a friend suggested that they should run the two pianos into the same room so that they could play music written for two pianos.

The two men thought it was a good idea, and accordingly the pianos were both placed in the same room. They practiced diligently at a sonata for two pianos, but with little success for some time, the difficulty being that one had generally finished his movement two or three bars before the other.

At last, however, they succeeded in finishing one movement exactly at the same moment, and one said, "Aweel, Donald, now that we've been so successful with the first movement, suppose we try the second?" Donald looked at him in profound astonishment. "Eh, but, Angus," he exclaimed, "that was the second movement that I was playing!"—London Tit-Bits.

American Catacombs and Mummies.

Recent publicity has been given to the wonders of the cliff villages of the Gila canyon in New Mexico, where the lofty pumice or tuft walls of the box canyon are honeycombed with the excavated dwellings of a nation of dwarfs, whose mummies here and there found, preserved by the stone dust for centuries, are clad in woven clothes and ornamented with gay feathers at neck and waist. The remains of an adult man of this people measured only twenty-three inches in height, and the doors and windows of their "homes in the rock" are hardly passable by a half grown girl. Like the dwarf temples of Yucatan—of which Le Plongeon wrote so entertainingly—hovel, mansion, fortress and temple, seem like toys made with infinite pains for the children of a remote past; indeed, an antiquity fixed by the best authorities at least as far back as 6,000 years ago.—National Magazine.

Glorification of Futility.

When General Ben Butler was practicing law in the courts of the District of Columbia he was famous for the striking ideas he evolved and the effective methods he employed in order to get the interests of his clients before the jury in a favorable light.

In one case, in which he had a rather poor show of winning, the time came for him to cross examine a fellow lawyer, who had given testimony extremely favorable to the other side. Everybody listened intently for Butler's onslaught. It was expected that he would go after the witness with gloves off.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said, with an air of confiding familiarity, "I would as soon think of shooting skyrockets into the infernal regions for purposes of illumination as to cross examine this witness in the hope of extracting the truth."—Popular Magazine.

Superstitions of the Cingalese.

An old Cingalese woman who lived in an ordinary native hut but herself died and was buried. On the following day a large iguana (a species of lizard which attains great size) entered the compound of a gentleman living close by and attacked his poultry. Hearing the noise and commotion, he came out and on ascertaining the cause got his gun and shot the iguana. No sooner had he done this than there arose a great uproar from the relatives of the old woman, who declared that he had killed her, because her spirit had passed into the lizard, in proof of which they pointed triumphantly to the fact that it had never before been seen in the vicinity and only appeared after her death. Rupees finally appeased the outraged feelings of the old woman's descendants.—Java Times.

Lee at Vera Cruz.

Robert E Lee, as captain of engineers, arranged the American batteries when the United States forces landed at Vera Cruz in 1847. Lee's brother, a naval lieutenant, served one of the guns, and here are Lee's first impressions of war. "Whenever I turned my eyes reverted to him, and I stood by his gun whenever I was not wanted elsewhere. Oh, I felt awfully, and am at a loss what I should have done had he been cut down before me. * * * He preserved his usual cheerfulness, and I could see his white teeth through all the smoke and din of the fire."—Chicago News.

Women's Stockings By Mail From Baltimore's Best Store

This announcement tells of some especially good values in silk hosiery. We shall be pleased to furnish any information you may desire about any other sort of stockings for women or socks for men and children.

WOMEN'S BOOT SILK STOCKINGS 50c PAIR—SIX PAIRS FOR $2.75.

The top and foot are of plain fine gauge lisle—the balance is a 16-inch boot of pure, bright silk. They look like all-silk and cost no more than a good lisle stocking. We have them in an especially good range of shades, as follows:

White	Sky	Tango
Black	Pink	Fawn
Tan	Emerald	Purple
Dark Gray	Dark Green	Wistaria
Light Gray	Reseda	Lavender
Navy	Olive	Canary
King's Blue	Cardinal	Gold
New Blue	Old Rose	Smoke
Dresden	Mahogany	Bronze

"DURO" SILK STOCKINGS ARE BEST VALUE AT THEIR PRICES

"Duro" Silk Stockings for women are made to our own specifications. They are woven from pure, bright, long fiber silk and are closely inspected for evenness of weave. They are full-fashioned—which means that they fit feet, ankle and leg. And every pair comes to you with our assurance that it will give satisfactory service.

Two grades—$1.00 and $1.50—the $1.50 grade is of finer gauge and the silk is heavier. Either grade with high spliced heel and lisle top, or with double silk top. We carry "Duro" Stockings in black, white and a large variety of popular shades—but, if you cannot find the exact shade you want, we will have stockings dyed to order for you at a slight additional cost—25c a pair.

HERE AND THERE IN THE STATE

Christopher Himmeler, of Cumberland, a traveling salesman for a Pittsburgh mine and mill supply house, has entered a suit for $20,000 damages against the Cumberland Daily News. A short time ago the Daily News published an account of the fining of men for permitting gambling on their premises. A list of witnesses was printed and Himmeler's name was included. Himmeler says he was never summoned and that his name was not on the witness list and that a reporter added his name without warrant.

At a conference of prominent Montgomery county Republicans at Rockville a resolution was unanimously adopted urging Governor Goldsborough to appoint Charles D. Wagaman of Washington county, either to the vacancy or the Public Service Commission caused by the resignation of Philip D. Laird, or to a place on the State Industrial Accident Commission.

When two freight cars, which were being shifted from the Western Maryland to the Northern Central at Key-Mar last Saturday night, left the tracks and toppled over an embankment, John W. Heater, a brakeman, of York, Pa., who was on top of one of the cars, jumped. He was hurled some distance into a field and received a bad fracture of the right leg. He was brought to the Frederick Hospital for treatment.

The cornerstone for the new Summit Bridge Methodist Episcopal Church was laid at Elkton on Sunday afternoon last with special services. District Superintendent E. L. Hoffecker had charge of the services and Rev. Howard Quiggle, of Elkton, preached the sermon. Rev. Asbury Burke is pastor of the church. The church was destroyed by fire over a year ago. Music was rendered by the choir of the Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church.

A large party comprising the staff in the office of Chief of Engineers of the War Department, Washington, arrived in Hagerstown on an outing on Sunday. The party, which was in charge of Col. J. William DeGrange, arrived over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and, after taking dinner at a local hotel, made a tour of the city, leaving in the evening for Braddock Heights, over the Hagerstown and Frederick trolley.

While digging sand out of an embankment near Federalsburg, Leonard F. Covey, an auctioneer, narrowly escaped being buried alive. Covey was getting the sand for the foundation of a house and failed to notice the overhead embankment was going to cave in, until it was too late to escape. The avalanche of dirt buried him several feet in the pit. His cries brought two women living nearby to his rescue, who dug him out of his serious predicament. He was badly crushed by the falling dirt.

The Republican State Central Committee for Anne Arundel County declined to desert Syney E. Mudd and threw its support to Oliver Metzner, his opponent in the coming primaries for the nomination for Congress from the Fifth district.

Overcome by the intense heat of last Friday, shortly after he reached his home, 23 South Chester street, from his office, William J. Garrett, one of the best known attorneys in East Baltimore, died from the effects of the stroke at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday evening.

The State Lunacy Commission is determined to house all insane patients in State Institutions, and with that purpose in view additional hospitals will be erected. The practice of the State paying county hospitals for taking care of the insane will be discontinued.

John Carroll, aged 24 years, employed on the barge Byscane, owned by the Southern Transportation Company, while handling ropes on the boat fell over board into the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal at Chesapeake City on Friday and was drowned.

At a special town election at Hurlock, Saturday to decide whether the town should bond for $45,000 for sewer system and water works the voters overwhelmingly decided in favor of bonding.

Charles W. Boyer, manager of the Academy of Music in Hagerstown and theatres in Annapolis and Martinsburg, W. Va., will secure possession of the New Theatre in Chambersburg next week by the dissolution of an injunction applied for by Capt. J. L. Gerbig to stop the sale of the property.

An addition, 84 feet long by 35 feet wide, is to be built to the Allegany Hospital Cumberland at a cost of between $15,000 and $20,000, and bids will be opened this week. It will contain private and public wards.

The dwelling of John Burris, at Gaithersburg, was destroyed by fire late Tuesday afternoon and nearly all of the furniture was lost.

The series of robberies which have been going on in other parts of Hartford county during the past several weeks was extended to Belair last Sunday night. The homes of Deputy Postmaster William L. Barber and Harvey Coale were entered while the occupants were asleep.

CAPTURED IN EMMITSBURG

Harrison Palmer a Negro Fugitive Arrested at Hotel Slagle.

The mystery surrounding the whereabouts of Harrison Palmer, a negro who is wanted in Frederick on three different charges, was cleared up on Sunday morning when he was arrested at the New Hotel Slagle by deputy sheriff A. P. Adelsberger, of Emmitsburg.

Palmer has gained a good deal of notoriety by successfully eluding Frederick county officers for the past two weeks after escaping from them on July 14 when they were about to put him in jail.

The negro, after his escape, lingered about Frederick for two days before going to Westminster. A few days ago he came to Emmitsburg and sought employment at the Slagle hotel. On Sunday morning Sheriff Conard and deputy Sheriffs Jones and Smith, having gotten news that their man was in Emmitsburg, came up from Frederick. Deputy Sheriff Adelsberger arrested him at the hotel and handed him over to the Frederick men.

At his trial on Monday night held before Justice Posey in Frederick, Palmer stated that he had made arrangements for some one to phone Judge Anders at Frederick and notify that official of his presence in Emmitsburg. He was heavily fined and committed to jail.

E. S. EICHELBERGER DIES

The End Came Very Unexpectedly After Brief Illness.

Edward S. Eichelberger, former state's attorney for Frederick county, died suddenly at his home in Frederick on Wednesday afternoon after a brief illness of angina pectoris.

Mr. Eichelberger was born June 16, 1856. He was educated at the old Frederick College and graduated from Princeton in 1875. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1878. In 1887 he was elected state's attorney on the Republican ticket, receiving the largest majority at election and was re-elected in 1891, being the only successful candidate on his ticket.

In 1912 Mr. Eichelberger was a candidate for the nomination for judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, composed of Frederick and Montgomery counties. In 1894 he was married to Marian Gray, daughter of Charles Warren Gray and Sarah Elizabeth Gray, of Worcester, Mass., who survives him together with two children (Margaret Grayson and Edward Gray Eichelberger). Two sisters (Misses Ella and Effie Eichelberger) also survive.

Mr. Eichelberger's father was Grayson Eichelberger, who for years was one of the leaders of the Frederick bar and who was a staunch Unionist, being for a time secretary of state under Governor Hicks and state senator from this county.

Hagerstown's Unique Sweeping.

Hagerstown insists that her streets be kept clean. There are not sufficient funds in the city treasury to hire the usual street cleaners. So on Saturday night about 20 citizens, armed with brooms and headed by President Palmer Tennant, Secretary Bussard and other members of the Hagerstown Board of Trade began sweeping the principal streets of the city. The operations created great enthusiasm among the large crowd which stood by and cheered the workers.

A Correction.

Through some inadvertence mention was made in these columns recently of the reroofing of several buildings belonging to Mr. J. Thomas Gelwicks with Cortright Metal shingles. It should have been stated that the shingles used were Reeves Metal Shingles for which Mr. Gelwicks is the agent.

The New Meat Market.

The new meat market, Chas. F. Gelwicks, proprietor, will be open Saturday morning and evening. Choice meats of all kinds.

THE WEEK AT THE COUNTY SEAT

Chronicle of Happenings at Frederick City and in the Courts.

Fearing a water famine the authorities of Frederick have notified users of water to curtail their consumption as much as possible, prohibiting sprinkling and washing for any useless waste. Should the drought continue until the canning factories begin operation, the city's supply of water will be in grave danger.

Frederick has enlisted the services of the Boy Scouts in its campaign to break up the practice of spitting on the sidewalks. Every time a person is detected violating the anti-spitting ordinance a scout will present the offender with a pamphlet telling of the menace to the public health caused by expectorating on pavements.

On Tuesday the new order "Board and Leave cars from the right side" went into effect and many a one, unmindful of the newest traffic ordinance of the Mountain City, found a very substantial iron rod barring their unintentional fracture of the law. The new rule is expected to work satisfactorily as soon as the patrons get accustomed to it.

The Prohibition County Committee met at the Frederick Y. M. C. A. on Saturday and organized by electing Rev. H. O. Keene, of Kempton, chairman, and Asst. R. Watkins, of Mount Airy, secretary and treasurer. Edward W. Mills a former prohibition candidate for Governor of West Virginia delivered an address.

SACRIFICE SALE OF Pianos and Organs

The Piano and Organ business formerly conducted by the late J. M. Birely will be closed out and the Palace of Music will be vacated by October first next.

There is now on hand a large stock of medium and high grade Pianos, such as Mr. Birely sold with success for some forty years past, and in order to dispose of same within the required time, they will be sold at a sacrifice. Prices will be made so low that you will be enabled to purchase a strictly first class high grade instrument for less than the price of the lowest grade.

We need no line of commendation as to the instruments, for their names and reputations held for so many years speak for themselves.

Our stock embraces the PACKARD, LEHR, RADLE, BRINKERHOFF, LINDERMANN, YORK and BEHR BROS. Each and every instrument being beautiful in finish, rich and even in tone and durable in construction. You will find these makers in hundreds of homes through Frederick City, Frederick, Carroll, Montgomery, Howard and Washington Counties, and in the upper portion of Virginia, as well as other localities, all giving entire satisfaction and fully measuring up to their merited high reputations.

We have also a line of new Organs and a few second handed Pianos and Organs to dispose of to prompt buyers.

The musical merchandise stock, including Violins, Guitars, Mandolins, Banjos, Accordions, etc., etc., will be included in the sale and you should embrace this exceptional opportunity to save money by purchasing now.

Gettysburg:

New York plans an important event at Gettysburg this fall. The statue that is being placed to the memory of Gen. James Wadsworth, who commanded the First Division of the First Corps in the Battle of Gettysburg, will be dedicated with elaborate ceremony on October 5th, 6th and 7th.

S. H. Kadel, owner of the old Spangler building, southeast corner of the Square, has improved the store room by putting in a glass front and placing the entrance diagonally on the corner. The room has been rented to Gus Varelas formerly proprietor of the Gettysburg Candy kitchen and James Spanas, a restaurant man from Birmingham, Ala.

A huge boulder from the battlefield of Gettysburg will be placed on a pedestal in Clark Park, Philadelphia, as a memorial to Satterlee Hospital, the second largest hospital during the Civil War. More than $200 was spent by a committee of 19 persons in obtaining the boulder here and transporting it to Philadelphia. The boulder will surmount a bronze pedestal set in concrete. On the pedestal will be an inscription of 70 words telling briefly the history of Satterlee Hospital.

The final inspection of the post office building was made last week. L. A. Lewis, chief draughtsman in the office of the Supervising Architect at Washington, Darby and Pierce the contractors who furnished the building, Major Sewell representing the Alabama Marble Company, furnishing the interior marble, and Inspector Lang. The result of the inspection was the decision that four-fifths of the interior marble should be removed. The marble has more color than called for in the contract. The marble along wall of staircase was a sample of the grade ordered. Much time will be required by the company to secure the exact grade wanted and work of removal will not be begun until all of the stone is ready to be put in place.

The TIME LOCK

By CHARLES EDMONDS WALK

Author of "The Silver Blade," "The Paternoster Ruby," etc.

(Copyright 1912 by A. C. McClurg & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

Book I.

CHAPTER I—Rudolph Van Vechten, a young man of leisure, is astonished to see a man enter No. 1313, a house across the street from the Powhatan Club. The house has long been unoccupied and is spoken of as the House of Mystery.

CHAPTER II—Several persons at regular intervals enter No. 1313.

CHAPTER III—Van Vechten expresses concern to his friend, Tom Phinney, regarding the whereabouts of his cousin and fiancee, Paige Carew. A fashionably attired woman is seen entering the House of Mystery. A man is forcibly ejected from the house. Van Vechten and Tom follow the man and find him dead in the street.

CHAPTER IV—Van Vechten is attracted by the face of a girl in the crowd of onlookers surrounding the body. Later he discovers the girl gazing at him with a look of scorn from the windows of the mysterious house.

CHAPTER V—Detective Flint calls on Van Vechten to get his version of the tragedy.

CHAPTER VI—Tom Phinney goes alone on a yachting trip. He recognizes among some persons in a passing motor boat two men whom he had seen enter the House of Mystery. He sees one of them, Mr. Callis, on shore later and follows him. Tom is seized and fowled and carried to a house. He hears a girl named Jessie evidently the daughter of the man in authority, question his captors. A sweet-voiced girl later protests against the roughness of his captors.

Book II.

CHAPTER I—Van Vechten calls on his uncle, Theodore Van Vechten, big man in Wall street and known as the "Man of Iron," in search of information regarding the whereabouts of Paige Carew.

CHAPTER II—Detective Flint shows Van Vechten a gold mesh purse found in the House of Mystery. Van recognizes it as belonging to Paige Carew.

CHAPTER III—The sweet-voiced girl helps Tom Phinney escape, but refuses to disclose her identity. Tom declares he will meet her again.

CHAPTER IV—Detective Flint tells Van Vechten he has a theory that Paige has been kidnapped. Van goes to lay the case before his uncle.

CHAPTER V—Messages are sent to Europe in an effort to trace Paige. Tom's Van Vechten he is in love and relates his adventure.

CHAPTER VI—A message from London reports that two ladies resembling Miss Carew and her companion, Mrs. Devereaux, sailed for New York some time previously. A reward of $2,500 is offered.

CHAPTER VII—It develops that the ladies visited the English home of Temple Bonner, owner of the House of Mystery. Flint has a theory that they are connected with the mystery of No. 1313.

CHAPTER VIII—It is recalled that Temple Bonner was in love with a daughter of Compton Schuyler, who married Max Willard. The other daughter married a man named Devereaux. Bonner and Willard were intimate friends. A search is started for Willard.

CHAPTER IX—Van Vechten enters the House of Mystery by the back door in time to hear John Callis threaten a girl. He interferes and helps the girl escape, but is rendered unconscious in the struggle with Callis.

Book III.

CHAPTER I—Tom Phinney gets a job as master of Brownlow's yacht Kohlmar which has been chartered for some mysterious mission.

CHAPTER II—The charterer and his friends board the yacht at night and Tom bears the voice of the unknown girl and also of a man involved in his adventure of a few nights previous.

CHAPTER III—Tom finds the girl more beautiful than he had anticipated. The charterer turns out to be Max Willard.

CHAPTER IV—Willard assures Tom that his mission is honorable and intimates that a great wrong is about to be righted. He gives orders that no one is to leave or board the yacht without his permission. Delta, the girl of the voice, insists upon going ashore and Tom, in explaining his orders, Callis jumps overboard.

CHAPTER V—With Willard's consent, Delta goes ashore to telephone and returns to the yacht in great agitation.

CHAPTER VI—Tom accompanies Delta and Jessie ashore. Tom learns from Detective Flint that Willard has recently invented a powerful explosive.

CHAPTER VII—Van Vechten, recovering from injuries received in his fight with Callis, is visited by Jessie Willard, in whom he recognises the girl who was the cause of the fight. He confesses his love for her. She tells him that if his feelings have not changed one week from that day she will marry him.

CHAPTER VIII—A coffin-shaped box is taken aboard the yacht at night. Delta tells Tom she really is Paige Carew and that she has been interested in him for years through the glowing accounts of Van Vechten.

CHAPTER IX—The coffin-shaped box is taken away in the night, apparently much heavier than when it arrived. Paige Carew is missing and a search of the yacht fails to reveal any clue to her whereabouts.

Book IV.

CHAPTER I—Willard appears at a directors' feast with a coffin which he declares contains enough of his new explosive to blow up New York. The time lock is intended to explode the charge at 12 o'clock. He declares that unless he receives restitution of a fortune which he was defrauded of by Theodore Van Vechten the whole company will be blown to eternity. He opens the coffin and discloses a small box. It is discovered that Paige is in sympathy with his cause. Van Vechten gives in and Willard then announces that it was all a bluff and that there was no explosive in the coffin.

CHAPTER II.

The Kohinur Goes to Sea.

It was not long until all the loose ends were brought together. Jessie Willard's aunt, Mrs. Devereaux, had been the acting spirit in getting the scheme for restitution under way, because—until she had induced him to do so—Max Willard had been loath to accept his old friend Temple Bonner's assistance.

In the beginning, the one thing clear to all of them had been the fact that the Man of Iron was protected by an invulnerable legal barrier, and that if redress was to be obtained at all it must be accomplished by means of some surprising coup that would catch the magnate amid such conditions that he could not refuse to accede. Thus it was that Josephine Devereaux, on the strength of old ties of sentiment and friendship, had easily enlisted Temple Bonner's financial aid.

This same lady had experienced little difficulty in winning Paige Carew's sympathy—particularly after Paige had met and become acquainted with Jessie. She had consented to lend Willard her moral support, believing that her participation in the plot was to extend no farther than a "mysterious disappearance," which Willard was supposed to utilize in some indefinite manner for his own purposes. The culminating bizarre climax, in which she had played so conspicuous a part, he had kept to himself, knowing that her willing co-operation could not be expected.

Through Barnicle, Paige had kept in touch with her uncle and her cousin, and it was the valet's account of Rudolph's condition that had so agitated her on the night she went to the Claremont accompanied by Phil Merton.

The intelligence that Paige had brought back to Jessie, already remorseful and anxious over her abandonment of Van Vechten to Callis, had driven the girl distracted.

When Paige's purse was missed after the flight from Number 1313, Jessie had volunteered to return and recover it, if possible, as being the one least likely to attract attention or to be interfered with. Callis, who had been annoying her with his attentions, and whose headstrong, ruthless nature had all along been a source of anxiety and alarm to Willard, had followed her.

The death of Jim O'Neill, and Tom Phinney's subsequent accidental intrusion at Rocky Cove—whence the conspirators had fled—had finally thrown them all into a panic. Paige had been the only one to keep her head, and she, after recognizing Tom, had resolved the difficulty in the most practical manner.

It was Jessie whom Van Vechten had seen arrive at the Silent House, Sunday, in a taxi-cab. The death of O'Neill was the first in a sequence of accidents that plunged Max Willard into hot water almost at the moment when he saw success for his undertaking. O'Neill had answered the advertisement blindly; but as soon as he stepped across the threshold of Number 1313 he had been recognized as the traitorous employee of Willard's who had surreptitiously sold the time-lock drawings and metal formulae to Theodore Van Vechten. In the fight that followed Callis struck a blow from which O'Neill, only a few minutes later, had been rendered unconscious. In falling, he had fractured a temple, and thus received his death wound.

Tom had drawn Paige off to the embrasure of one of the library's curtained bay windows.

"What in the world is the matter with you?" the girl remonstrated in amazement. "You are as rough as a pirate."

Tom did not heed. His eyes were unnaturally bright and he was breathing heavily.

"Listen!" he cautioned in a whisper. He could not repress his excitement. "That's Flint talking to Jessie—no, to Miss Willard, I mean. She and Mrs. Devereaux came with us from the Kohinur. . . . Hang it all! Don't make so much noise! I want you to hear what they are saying."

Jessie looked a trifle frightened. She and the detective were standing by one of the big tables. He was holding in one hand a pocket memorandum book, and talking in his quiet way.

Paige, with her head close to Tom's, peered through the curtains. They heard Mr. Flint say:

"I am not often controlled by impulses, Miss Willard, but at the time it struck me that the occasion might come when this would form a rather interesting document."

"What is it?" demanded Jessie. "You frighten me."

"If I have your permission, I will read you something," said he; then he fixed his attention upon the memorandum book, and continued:

"Nothing in the world could be more absurd than to imagine the girl I saw being engaged in anything criminal, or even entertaining a suspicion that she may be surrounded by a criminal atmosphere. She is young; she is beautiful, she is refined and gentle; the stamp of purity and adherence to right ideals is unmistakable in her countenance. Whatever comes of your investigations, you will find to be unqualifiedly true all that I now assert concerning her."

He methodically closed the book, snapped the rubber band around it, and returned it to his pocket, while Jessie stared at him in blank amazement.

"That," Mr. Flint pursued, his eyes crinkling in a smile, "is what Mr. Rudolph Van Vechten told me at a time when I honestly believed you to be a crook."

After reciting the circumstances, he went on:

"You see, I hadn't Mr. Van Vechten's faith. I had never seen you, and appearances were all against you. I might say, the odds were against the correctness of his estimate—in which case I meant to show him these words."

Jessie was breathing fast; her eyes were very bright and their regard was very steady.

"And if you had been wrong?" she asked.

The creases at the corners of Mr. Flint's eyes deepened.

"Why, I felt that he would need a champion, and I determined to bring the memorandum to you. You know now, that from the very first, at least one person has retained a firm belief in the innocence and purity of your motives."

The two in the bay window could see the color rush to Jessie's cheeks; she blushed furiously.

"Have you?" she said falteringly, "shown this to—to him?"

"He doesn't even know that I possess such a thing."

The girl's eyes were dewy. Her voice lowered.

"Then," said she, "this is your way of telling me that all your doubts are removed. Thank you."

"Well," returned the impulsive detective, "that's one way of looking at the matter. If Mr. Rudolph's judgment had been in error, I would just as freely have shown the reminder to him. . . . Here he comes now."

Van Vechten came eagerly forward and took the girl's hands into his. Mr. Flint slipped unobtrusively away.

"Jessie—Jessie Willard," said Van Vechten, "we do not have to wait the week: I am more eager now than ever. I understand everything, dearest."

Very deliberately she disengaged her hands, looking at him desperately.

"Truly?" she said with an evident effort at sarcasm. "You seem indeed to be very sure of yourself."

He caught her hands again, and as her head drooped, drew her toward him.

"Sure of myself!" he exclaimed. "Why, God bless my soul, yes! It's all up to you, girl. . . . What was that?"

It was Paige Carew trying—vainly—to break loose from Tom Phinney's ecstatic bear-like hug. Swinging her clear from the floor and between the curtains, they stood confronting the dumfounded gaze of the other two.

"Look here, Ruddy," said Tom.

"Mr. Willard's got a yacht on his hands, looking at him desperately."

"And listen here," Tom went on eagerly. "She's all ready to put to sea—steam's up this minute—supplies all on board—crew's drawing pay for loafing—why, Moses and green spectacles! it would be an outrage not to take advantage of such an opportunity! What do you think?"

What otherwise could Paige and Jessie think? Here was an argument that even a woman could not successfully oppose. And so, the next day, the Kohinur weighed anchor, dropped down the river, and by sunset had lost the Statue of Liberty behind her.

It would be difficult to find a more modish frock than the one illustrated, which is a combination of silk and velvet. The blouse is just a plain one, with the addition of a straight plaited frill that gives it distinction.

The skirt is made all in one, so that it means literally only one piece. The drooping shoulder lines and the sleeves are cut with shaped upper piece edges. For the frock of two materials nothing better can be found than this treatment could be found.

For the sixteen-year-old size the blouse and peplum will require two and three-quarter yards of material twenty-seven inches wide. The skirt two and three-eighths of fabric of the same width.
