SAFETY FIRST CONGRESS

NEXT WEEK IN OHIO

Devices to Save Life and Limb to be Shown

ECONOMIC AND HUMANE SIDES

Every Kind of Mechanical Invention to Guard Employees on Exhibition.—Other States Interested in the Movement.

Of late years much has been heard of "safety first." Laws have been passed requiring the adoption of construction and of systems calculated to reduce the danger to life and limb to a minimum. That their efforts in this respect have been more than fairly successful, the State Industrial Commission of Ohio, will take up the broader economic and humane side of the question, when it meets in Columbus from January 13 to 16. The commission believes it has brought to a high state of perfection the award side of the workmen's compensation law. The meeting next week will be known as the "big safety congress."

After a tour of a large part of the state it is declared by Safety Director Victor T. Noonan in immediate charge of the preparations, that practically all the available space in the exposition already has been taken. It is not to be used to give publicity to anything save devices which may save life and limb of workmen.

Since the project was launched three states, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Wisconsin, have sent word that they will send representatives and will copy the idea if success is indicated. The Ohio Manufacturers' Association and the Ohio State Federation of Labor have lent their aid to the Industrial Commission and will send delegations of visitors.

At the big congress every kind of mechanical device invented for safeguarding employees in the shops on the railroads, in mines, the traveling public, etc., will be shown. There will be more than 100 booths having exhibits such as photographs, mechanical devices, charts and other methods of illustrating a particular company's scientific method of reducing the number of accidents.

One particular exhibit which is certain to be of interest to all, even if they were never in a shop or never expect to be, is the one that the United States Postoffice Department will have. This will be a parcel post exhibit in which will be shown many "safety first" methods in handling almost everything that may be sent by mail. This includes most farm products and many things used on farms, even as to a wagon wheel and a plow.

Life-saving devices of the Ohio Bureau of Mines, Ohio State Department of Blind, the Marblehead life-saving station, at Marblehead, and many other exhibits are also to be shown.

During the exposition there will be a series of mass meetings in the cause of safety in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Among the speakers will be President F. W. Campbell, of the National Safety Council, an organization which represents hundreds of companies engaged in accident prevention work throughout the United States.

Propagation of the Faith.

Apart from supporting Pope Benedict XV. in all of his plans looking to European peace, according to the Boston Transcript, Roman Catholics in America will enter upon campaigns early this year to relieve the financial stress of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, heretofore supported in largest measure by France, and in securing justice for alleged wrongs to Catholics in Mexico. On the latter subject they are more vigorous than on the former. It is the leading question before Catholics of the United States at the moment.

To Be Made a Cardinal.

A special cablegram from London announces that the correspondent of the New York Sun is assured by a person who is in position to know that Archbishop John Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., will be created cardinal at the next Consistory, the date of which has not yet been fixed.

This information comes through diplomatic channels, relations between Great Britain and the Vatican having recently been resumed.

Data compiled by the Department of Commerce shows that for the first four weeks of December, in which is included the last day of November, the excess of exports over imports has amounted to $88,777,898 at the principal customs districts of the United States.

A TUBERCULOSIS CONFERENCE

To Be Held At The State House, Annapolis, January 22 and 23.

Governor Goldsborough in a proclamation says in part: The records of the State Department of Health show that two thousand and sixteen citizens, men, women and children, died from tuberculosis last year.

The facts and figures of that Department also indicate that more than eight thousand, of the people of this State are today suffering from this terrible scourge, and more than four thousand new cases have been recorded in 1914.

The State is spending nearly $200,000 annually in maintaining sanatoria for the treatment of citizens who are ill with this preventable disease and we are annually losing many times that amount in potential wealth and earning power.

Pursuant to this State-wide conference on tuberculosis will be held in the State House at Annapolis, Friday evening, January 22nd, and Saturday morning, January 23rd. This promises to be one of the most significant incidents in the long fight against the White Plague in this state. Delegations from every county in the state and Baltimore City are expected.

The Maryland Association for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis is composed of the following prominent men: Henry Borton Jacobs, M. D., Sir William Osler, M. D., John M. Glenn, W. Bladen Lowndes, Joseph S. Ames, His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons, Hon. P. L. Goldsborough, Hon. John Walter Smith, Hon. Edwin Warfield, Eugene Levering, Michael Jenkins.

The Cardinal's Reception.

Protestants united with Roman Catholics in greeting Cardinal Gibbons at his New Year's reception. Hundreds of Baltimore's citizens, including men and women high in social and professional life, paid their respects. The Cardinal was assisted by Mgr. Fletcher and other clerical members of his household. To each person in the long line he gave a warm shake of the hand. A card containing a New Year greeting also was handed to each visitor. The reception followed the Cardinal's New Year sermon in the cathedral.

"God holds the nation in the palm of his hand," the Cardinal said in his sermon. "He alone can bring an end to the war in Europe. Christianity rescued the world from the chaos and dark era. Christianity alone is a religion that appeals to the whole human family without regard to race, nation, or previous condition. Christianity is all-embracing, cosmopolitan, world wide."

On the Upward Trend.

January is a period in which a return to easy money is usually looked for after the stress of the December money market when preparations go forward for the financing of the heavy first of the year payments. This year there was no stress in December. The tendency throughout the month was down rather than up. This is not without precedent, nor is it altogether surprising in view of the known factors contributing to that result, but it is at least ground for counting with increased assurance on a comfortable money market during the early part of this new year. Other things being equal, that will mean a better market for high-grade securities and an easier command by borrowing corporations of the money which they need to take up the large amount of obligations which mature in the near future.

Roads Reopening Their Shops.

Information that seven leading Eastern and Western railroad systems in the United States have reopened their shops at various points, thus giving employment to between 15,000 and 20,000 men, is contained in a dispatch from Chicago.

Western railroads as a group reported the first increase in the general volume of freight handled during December that was shown in any month in 1914, compared with the corresponding months in 1913.

More purchases of steel rails and track supplies were announced last week than in any similar time since the war began. No important orders for rolling stock developed, but the railroads are making more inquiries than heretofore.

Bachelors Pay War Tax.

From Rotterdam, by way of London, comes word that to get money enough to satisfy the Germans Ghent has compelled its unmarried men to pay impositions ranging from 5 francs in the cases of bachelors of 27 years of age to 20 francs in the cases of those of 50 years. Even celibates in monasteries have not been exempted from this tax.

In Russia only 200 out of 1,000 can read or write.

New Year messages today came to President Wilson from all sections of the world, among them greetings from a number of the rulers of Europe.

The Rev. Stephen F. Makara, 42 years old, pastor of St. John's Greek Catholic Church, Scovill avenue and East Twenty-second street, Cleveland, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Fedor, were burned to death early today, when fire practically destroyed the parish house directly at the rear of the church. Police believe the fire was of incendiary origin.

Governor Blease, of South Carolina, wound up a week of activity as a pardon Governor by exercising executive clemency this afternoon in 71 cases. This brings the total of the Governor's paroles and pardons to 1,615 during his four years in office.

Monday.

The Duchess of Manchester, who was Miss Helen Zimmerman, of Cincinnati, arrived in New York on the St. Paul from England. She is in this country to settle the estate of her father, Eugene Zimmerman, who died suddenly recently.

Published reports of a big plot of "significant and ominous proportions" to secure American passports for German reservists in this country, hinting at implication of the German Embassy and consuls in the "plot," were scoffed at by officials today. Arrest in a few cases at New York was said to be the sole basis for sensational rumors.

Two negroes—Ed and Will Smith—were taken from the Wetumpka (Ala.) jail early this morning by a masked mob of 50 men and lynched in woods nearby. Militia ordered from Montgomery by Governor O'Neal failed to arrive in time to prevent the lynching, the third in the immediate vicinity in 10 days.

PLEDGES ON CATHEDRAL DEBT

Bishop Murray Makes Important Announcement at Meeting.

At the missionary massmeeting at the Lyric Theatre, Baltimore, on Monday, Bishop John Gardner Murray, who has his summer home in Emmitsburg, announced that he has secured pledges aggregating $22,500 to meet the interest charges on the debt of the Episcopal Cathedral, University Parkway, during the next five years. He is now working to secure pledges for $7,500 additional, as a total of $30,000 would meet the entire needs along these lines for a period of five years and leave the cathedral trustees free to develop the general plan and to devote their energies to wiping out the debt.

Bishop Murray has appealed for 15 laymen to pledge $100 each annually for this purpose for three years, with a further promise to continue payment for two years longer, if necessary. Fifteen such pledges would yield $1,500 annually or $7,500 for a period of five years.

In making the announcement Bishop Murray stated that one layman had pledged $3,000 annually for five years and that he has secured additional pledges, bringing the total up to $4,500 annually, or a total of $22,500. The announcement was a surprise to the board of trustees, according to the Bishop, who explained that there is a debt of $110,000 outstanding against the Cathedral property, which has increased wonderfully in value since it was purchased. The interest charge of this debt is about $6,000 a year.

Another Gubernatorial Aspirant.

In Baltimore the impression seems to be growing every day that Senator Blair Lee will get into the Gubernatorial fight and that if he does so he will have the support of Mayor Preston and perhaps that faction of the Democratic organization which follows him.

Notwithstanding this and the reports from the counties to the effect that a good many of the organization people therein are rather favorable to the prospective candidacy of State Comptroller Emerson C. Harrington, former State Senator Johnnie E. Beasman, of Carroll county, is on the list of possible Gubernatorial candidates in the primaries to be held next September. So far as is known, Senator Beasman has never said that he will be a candidate, but his Carroll county friends are reported to be grooming him and express the opinion that they will have him in fine shape when the race begins.

House Increases Pay of Rural Carriers.

After a lively debate in the House of Representatives last week, in which Congressman Linthicum of Maryland took an active part, it was voted to definitely fix the salaries of rural carriers under the law so that every carrier serving a route of 24 miles will be paid $1200 a year.

In the preceding appropriation bill passed by Congress provision was made for the promotion of 43,325 rural carriers $100 each, and the necessary amount was authorized for the increase. The Post Office Department so interpreted the law that only a fraction of them received more money. This action aroused much indignation on the part of members of Congress and the statement was freely heard that when the next Post Office appropriation bill came up these promotions of rural carriers would be made mandatory.

Failures During The Year.

According to the R. G. Dun & Co., the number of failures during 1914 reported to them is 18,280, with $357,908,859 of defaulted indebtedness. This contrasts with 16,037 suspensions in the preceding year for $272,672,288, and in both respects the returns compared adversely with all earlier periods. The unusually heavy liabilities, however, were largely due to a comparatively few insolventcies of exceptional size, the financial difficulties of a prominent dry goods house, with its various affiliations, alone accounting for more than one-tenth of the total amount involved. In regard to the numerical increase, this in a measure was traceable to the effects of the European war.

A Gigantic Hen's Egg.

A gigantic egg, twenty-four inches in diameter, which Utah Agricultural College has placed in the Utah state exhibit, is one of the most curious displays at the Panama-California Exposition, San Diego. Dr. E. G. Titus, professor of etymology at the college declares that the egg was laid by a hen, but how it came to be so large is a secret which he will not reveal.

It is estimated that there are, approximately, 1,000,000 automobiles in use in this country, and that they consume $100,000,000 worth of gasoline in a year.

SURVEY OF THE YEAR 1914

IN FINANCE AND TRADE

With Prospect for Future After Flurry Passes

BUSINESS AS RULE CONFIDENT

Early Improvement Looked For.—Bankers and Business Men Find Readjustment to New Conditions Well Under Way.

In a survey of finance and trade in 1914, the New York Times, said in part: Nineteen-fourteen was a year of contrasts. The most pleasing was the contrast which the improved and improving conditions at the close of December offered to the industrial and financial confusion which at mid-year was brought about by the outbreak of the war in Europe.

The conditions imposed by the war are the outstanding feature of the year's record; the outstanding phase of the situation as the old year passes into the new is the noteworthy progress toward improvement which is under way.

These are some of the tangible signs of this betterment:

1.—The steel trade, the depression in which long antedated the outbreak of the war, is improving. Prices are hardening and the volume of business offering is growing. The Steel Corporation's new orders during the last three weeks of December showed a 50 per cent. increase over the orders which came to hand during the corresponding weeks of the previous month.

2.—The position of the railroads has been improved by the grant of the rate increase, and preparations are going forward for increased purchases by the railways, which will benefit many trades.

3.—The country's new banking system, which is designed to facilitate trade, has been established and is already giving indications of the advantages which in due course will be derived from this long-needed change.

4.—The money market, after months of stress, has resumed normal status, and gives promise of greatly facilitating the large amount of financing which has to be done this year.

5.—Foreign exchange rates, whose abrupt rise at the end of July was one of the war's storm signals, have not only lost all of their abnormal advance, but have returned, so far at least as sterling exchange is concerned, to the lowest level reached in a year. The danger of further gold exports has thereby been converted into the possibility of gold imports.

6.—The Stock Exchange, after having been closed four months, has reopened for both bonds and stocks without untoward happenings. The heavy liquidation which had been feared did not occur and instead there are signs of renewed investment demand. Even Europe has bought a little.

Merchants and manufacturers generally speak with a confident tone of the immediate future. Several of them think the public, through fear of hard times, has gone too far in the direction of economy and that a disposition is already apparent to increase expenditures. With the exception of the cotton States, good crops and good prices for them are reported and the increase of railroad rates, especially if extended to the West, is counted on as an important factor in the prospective revival of buying.

Germans Admit They Can't Win.

A special cable to the New York Times says: According to information received from two distinct neutral sources, Germany has already come to the realization that she cannot conquer in this war. The New York correspondent has seen a letter from a Danish banker, written to the head of one of the world's greatest financial houses, in which it was stated that a Berlin magnate of finance had admitted to the writer that the ruling powers of Germany had acknowledged that it was impossible to win.

Maryland Convicts Earn Money.

Convicts in the Maryland Penitentiary for the year ended November 30, says the Democratic Advocate, earned for themselves by performing over-tasks $37,975.79, according to a report made to the board of directors of the institution at its annual meeting by Warden John F. Leonard. The earnings of the institution through the prison shops were $149,902.75, while its disbursements for all purposes were $149,005.97, the directors returning to the state treasury $896.76. The amount returned to the state is more than twice that given in 1913.

BLOUSE GROWING TRIM

BAGGY EFFECTS ARE BECOMING PERCEPTIBLY LESS.

French Models That Have Arrived in This Country Show Plainly That There Is to Be a Decided Change in Styles.

Less and less the blouse is inclined to bag under the arms and over the waist lines. More and more trim grows its effects, and by the introduction of puckered seams, darts and flat front panels, and with wide, shaped girdles and sashes the blouse idea is carried out. By and by the separate waist will have to be called a blouse rather than a blouse, for the blouse character is fast disappearing in favor of trim lines at the waist.

Many of the new models, however, are cut to blouse at the waist line still, though the bagginess is held up by the wide, fitted girdle that the waist line is clearly defined and gradually but surely is growing smaller—or at least it appears smaller, because of its trimmer effect.

Fortunately the blouse question for autumn was almost entirely settled before the outbreak of trouble in Europe. Thousands of new blouse models were in America prior to August 1, and from these Paris models the new blouses were being constructed of American-made fabrics chiefly of the softer silken stuffs like pussy willow taffeta in plain and striped effects, tango crepe, which is much like crepe de chine in texture, and the beautiful daphne silk, which is soft and sheer as some of the imported lousines and liberty silk of high degree.

Many of the new waists are white, for white serge and mohair tailors will continue to be popular all through the warm weeks of autumn, and many women choose to wear white in the house all winter long. The white waist, after September 1, however, usually denotes an informal costume, the dressy blouse being of silk or chiffon in a color matching, or contrasting strikingly with the skirt. The one exception to this rule is the white lace or chiffon blouse which often accompanies the dark tailleur at the matinee or restaurant meal. A lovely white blouse for matinee wear is of white indestructible voile—much like chiffon, but more sturdy in character in spite of its filmy sheerness—and of white lace and white daphne silk. The surplined blouse of daphne silk is sleeveless and is fitted by groups of pin tucks at the shoulder, and again below the bust in front—an unmistakable token that fitted waists are on the way. The soft silk, sleeveless blouse opens in front to show a surplined chemisette or vest of lace, gathered at the shoulders and crossing the bust in soft folds. This lace vest is attached to a guimpe of the chiffon-like indestructible voile and long sleeves of the latter fabrics, with two rows of colored shirring down the length of the arm, to the wrist, frills of lace falling over the hand. Part of this blouse, which is made to go outside of the skirtband, is a wide sash of soft silk which ties in a big, loose bow at one side of the front.

FOR A DURABLE BUTTONHOLE

Suggestions Worth While Where It Is to Be Worked Into Material That Is Heavy.

To work a durable buttonhole in heavy material such as linen, duck or madras, mark with a thread the place and size with a row of machine stitching on both sides as close as possible, then cut with a pair of sharp scissors and work in the usual way.

Not only does this help in wearing out is very much easier to work and does not need fine stitches. In sewing on buttons in goods that have a great deal of wear, try sewing them on by placing a toothpick under the button and then sewing in the usual way, being careful to fasten the ends firmly.

DAINTY LITTLE CUSHIONS

Our Curious Brain.

A wonderful piece of self analysis, worthy of St. Augustine, which occurs in one of John Donne's funeral sermons gives poignant expression to what must doubtless have been a common condition of so sensitive a brain: "I throw myself down in my chamber, and I call in and invite God and his angels together, and when they are there I neglect God and his angels for the noise of a fly, for the rattling of a coach, for the whining of a dog. I talk on in the same posture of prayer, eyes lifted up, knees bowed down, as though I prayed to God, and if God should ask me when I last thought of God in that prayer I cannot tell. Sometimes I find that I forgot what I was about, but when I began to forget it I cannot tell. A memory of yesterday's pleasures, a fear of tomorrow's dangers, a straw under my knee, a noise in mine ear, a chimera in my brain, troubles me in my prayer."

It is this brain turned inward upon itself and darting out on every side in purely random excursions that was responsible, I cannot doubt, for all the contradictions of a career in which the inner logic is not at first apparent. —Fortnightly Review.

Hospital Efficiency.

A highly developed efficiency system in saving time and trouble for the staff is used in a London hospital. Indicators bearing the names of the officials, house doctors and some of the staff doctors are located in many rooms and hallways, and these indicators show at all times whether or not any one of the officials is in the hospital and available for consultation. When each doctor comes into the building a button is pressed that makes it known on all the indicators that he has arrived; and when he goes out the indicators are made to record that fact. The indicators also show the word "engaged," which means that the official or doctor is not to be disturbed—a push on a button in the official's room accomplishing this. Thus, in any part of the hospital, at any time, each doctor knows and each nurse knows when the various officials and doctors may be asked to give attention to any matter. —Saturday Evening Post.

Gods of Machinery.

The ceremony of propitiating the gods which are supposed to reside in the printing machinery is annually performed by the Hindu members of the Times of Malaya printing staff. The usually prosaic machine and composing rooms are turned into weird caverns of mystery, dimly lit by candles and oil lamps, and odoriferous with the heavy scent of incense and perfumes. Every machine is garlanded, and has placed before it an offering of "makan." Rice and bananas and cakes are the portion of each machine according to its size and importance; even the "stone" comes in for a share of the gifts. At the appointed time braziers, containing smoking camphor and coconut oil, are carried round and held before each machine, while the power engine, whose god presumably is regarded as a particularly aggressive personage, is "smoked" for a special long period. —Times of Malaya.

Von Moltke and His Snuff.

During the Prussian advance in the Franco-Prussian war Von Moltke continually took pinches of snuff. When he was told that MacMahon was marching northward he exclaimed, "He is surely mad!" and forthwith nearly emptied his snuffbox as he retired to his tent to organize the plans that culminated in the tremendous conflict of Sedan. At the end of the war Von Moltke received a bill from the military stores with this item: "For one pound of snuff supplied to General Von Moltke, 1 thaler." The great soldier paid it without a murmur.

Accounting For Patrick Henry.

It is related that Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase on stopping at the birthplace of Patrick Henry in Virginia exclaimed: "What an atmosphere! What a view! What glorious mountains! No wonder Patrick Henry grew here!" Whereupon an honest native dryly remarked that the atmosphere, the view and the mountains had been there for ages, but that only one Patrick Henry had been produced.

Quite a Difference.

When a woman winds a towel around her head and calls for a bucket of water it means the beginning of a big day, but when a man winds a towel around his head and calls for water it means the end of a big night. —Atlanta Constitution.

Comparisons.

"I like athletics for girls. You ought to see how my daughter can run up a rope."

"And you ought to see how mine can run up a bill." —Baltimore American.

Woman's Advantage.

It's easy for a woman to clean up. She can rub a little powder on her nose and cheeks, but a man has to take off his collar and necktie and wash. —Detroit Free Press.

In microscopic work use the left eye rather than the right, says the American Machinist. Astigmatism and other eye troubles occur more frequently in the right eye.

Sea Otter Skins.

Sea otter skins measure 48 by 24 inches. The best color is a dark bluish brown, almost black. A perfect skin in this color is worth $4,000.

Habit, if not resisted, soon becomes necessary.

Alfred Henry Lewis Dead.

Alfred Henry Lewis, newspaper man and writer of books, died at the home of his brother in New York of an intestinal disorder. He was ill only a few days.

Mr. Lewis was born in Cleveland 55 years ago. Though a lawyer, he entered newspaper work in Kansas City in 1890, and subsequently became a writer of political articles by which he established a reputation as one of the foremost political writers of the country. He was well known also as a writer of western stories and of articles on underworld life in this city.

Among his best known books are "Wolfville," "The Sunset Trail," and "The Boss."

Lifted Quarantine on Monday.

Dr. C. J. Marshall, state veterinarian, announced that on Monday the quarantine for hoof and mouth disease was removed from every township in Adams county except the following: Berwick, Conewago, Germany, Hamilton, Mount Pleasant, Oxford, Reading and Union. It will be noticed that these are the districts in the county where the disease has appeared. Regarding the releasing of the townships still under quarantine, Dr. Marshall said that he thought they too would be free inside of a month.

Gettysburg Will Detain Tramps.

According to the Star and Sentinel, vigorous measures will be adopted by the police officers of Gettysburg in the handling of tramps for the next few months, as a result of the several cases of thievery reported to them in the last three days. All suspicious looking hoboes will be detained when found within the borough limits, whether they are caught begging or not, and will be placed in the lockup over night and sent from the town the next day.

Woman State Senator.

Gov. Oswald West announced the appointment of Miss Kathryn Clarke of Glendale to the State Senator to fill a vacancy. The attorney general has ruled that the governor had no constitutional authority to make the senatorial appointment. If seated, Miss Clarke will be the first woman to serve in the Oregon senate. Miss Marion B. Towne was elected last November as representative from Douglas county, and will be the first woman to serve in that branch.

$500 Household Furniture Exempt.

By the provisions of a state-wide law passed at the last Maryland Legislature, which became effective January 1, furniture and household effects valued at $500 are now exempt from taxation. The act will in reality not affect the taxes of the public until the 1915 levy is made.

The new law was enacted for the benefit of the small householder. Expensive furniture, paintings, statuary and other household ornaments are not exempted.

To Connect Fulton County.

Notice is given that an application will be made to the Governor of Pennsylvania January 21, for a charter for The McConnellsburg and Fort Loudon Electric Company, whose purpose—or announced purpose—is to connect the two places with a trolley line is the announcement in the Waynesboro Herald. ## Another Interesting Meteorite.

In a recent issue of the CHRONICLE mention was made of a meteorite found at Bucknell by a local man. Tuesday another specimen, also found by a citizen of Emmitsburg but in this vicinity, was brought to this office. Experts from the Meteorological department of Harney University, after very careful examination, pronounce this one of the rarest meteorites that has ever come to their notice. Their report says: "It is of the cruller type and the presence of innumerable molecules of sulpho-japalacite indicates that in being detached from the larger body there was attached from the upper air to the outer edge of the meteorite a combination of elements forming snitnerite, highly combustible when brought into contact with sweitzer cheese. We estimate that the velocity attained by this specimen in reaching the earth was 172,000 feet per second."

A Very Successful Year.

The Frederick County Agricultural Society held its annual meeting in the Courthouse, Frederick, last Saturday. The report of Treasurer George S. Rodock, was the best from a financial standpoint in the history of the association. The total receipts of the last fair were $29,484.67, and net earnings, not including the State appropriation, $9,081.25.

The indebtedness was reduced to $6,200. In recent years the society has added three acres to the grounds, erected a new grandstand at a cost of about $12,000, and last year built a new concrete main entrance.

The old directors were re-elected, except Martin F. Kefauver, who was defeated by J. D. Walker by two votes, as follows: P. L. Hargett, John D. Macken, John W. Humm, George S. Rodock, Guy K. Motter, Dr. Charles H. Conley, David Cramer, P. M. Hiteshew, Lee Ranneberger, G. A. T. Snouffer and J. Howard Allnutt.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

Although many publishers of weekly papers have raised their subscription rates, the price of the CHRONICLE will remain the same, namely:

$1.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

The increased and increasing cost of print paper and everything entering into the publication of a newspaper makes insistence on prepayment of subscriptions imperative.

Beginning January 1, 1915, therefore, all bills for subscription to the CHRONICLE will be rendered at the beginning of the term. No subscriptions will be discontinued unless the subscriber sends due notice and has paid all arrearages. After three months have elapsed without payment a subscription will be considered "past due," and as such will then be billed at $1.50 per year.

REV. E. S. JOHNSTON, D. D.,
Fifty Five Years in Ministry.

The Somerset County Star, of Elk Lick, Pa., under date of December 31, last, contains a page interview with Rev. E. S. Johnston, D. D., at one time pastor of the Elias Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Emmitsburg. Dr. Johnston, who is nearly 81 years old, has done active work in the Lutheran ministry for nearly 55 years. His memory is keen and he recounted at length the history of the five charges he has held during that time.

Speaking of the time he spent at Emmitsburg, Dr. Johnston said:

"My second pastorate was at Emmitsburg. The charge was an old one, large and well established, composed of two congregations about eight miles apart. The membership then numbered three hundred and ninety. The services consisted of two sermons each Sunday and a lecture every Wednesday evening, with a large catechetical class every Saturday. I entered upon these duties on Nov. 18, 1866, about six years and one-half after my entrance into the ministry, and only with the limited but peculiar experience of the work in Harrisburg, and I felt as much dread and as great reluctance on undertaking the solemn responsibility of so large a pastorate as on my beginning my first charge. My desire to work for Christ in good report and in evil report was the same now as then, but in looking back over the few years just past I was conscious of but one fidelity and that was in intention. By the favor of an indulgent God and a kind people I remained there just twenty-two years preaching my last sermon on Nov. 18, 1888. Of the three hundred and ninety who welcomed me when I came only one hundred and sixty still remained when I left.

"Seven hundred and forty-four had been added to the church; by baptism, sixty-eight, by confirmation, four hundred and eighty-three, and by certificate, one hundred and ninety-three. In the meantime one hundred and sixty-nine died, two hundred and seventy had been dismissed by certificate and one hundred had removed without certificate, or had become unfaithful, leaving a membership of five hundred and ninety-one, a gain over all losses of two hundred and one. All this was done quietly without any attempt at sensationalism. It came about without noise or clamor or observation. It was the result of steady labor in the use of those agencies by which God would incessantly carry forward the work of saving men, but doubtless it would have been greater and more satisfactory in every way if the pastor and officers and members had maintained before the community a more consistent character for piety and goodness, for honesty and truth.

There were also some changes in the outward fortunes of the charge that demand a brief reference. They had no parsonage. The congregation at Emmitsburg had really nothing they could call its own. It was associated with the Reformed Church in the ownership of a church which was not inaptly styled, by some one, "an old barn." I was told that various efforts had been made to remedy this state of things but they had all signally failed. A parsonage was secured. For the purchase and repair, of which the sum of three thousand five hundred dollars was expended, and the congregation at Emmitsburg had, long before I left, a church and grounds around it valued, at a very low estimate, at ten thousand dollars, and which their successors to whom it will descend may well receive with thankfulness. All this was done without fixing upon the congregation one dollar of debt.

In addition to what these congregations spent upon themselves while I was their pastor it gives me pleasure to bear testimony to their growing benevolence for the spread of the knowledge of Christ among those ignorant of him as the Savior. The objects of benevolence then called for by the Synod were mostly the same as those called for at the present time. These awakened their sympathies and to them most of their contributions were given. To these objects, during the time specified, the charge gave eight thousand one hundred and eighty-three dollars. I maintain that this goes to show that the religious enterprises of the day did not appeal to them altogether in vain. Of this I am sure, that not one of them became a penny poorer for anything he gave to the Lord. The Christianity that blessed them was worth infinitely more than they paid for it. Those who will not pay for the blessings of Christianity ought to seek some land unblest by Bibles and Sabbaths and churches and prayers and an offered Savior.

A prize herd of blooded cattle owned by Enos M. Barton, a wealthy manufacturer, of Chicago, and valued at $80,000 have been ordered killed by Government inspectors, it was announced today, because several of the cattle were found to be affected with foot-and-mouth disease. The herd, containing 200 cattle was condemned a month ago, but Dr. S. E. Bennett of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry postponed ordering the animals killed, as he had hoped to eradicate the disease.

ELECTRIC SERVICE SATISFACTORY

Local Modern Lighting and Motive Force More Reliable and Economic Than Old Methods.

The Emmitsburg Electric Company reports that at the end of the year it had on its books 96 customers representing about 1,900 lamps, 24 electric irons and about 22 horse power of motors—all this being at the close of the first year's business.

Out of the entire year of 8,640 hours the electricity has been available when there was a demand for it all but about 20 hours. All-day service was commenced in March, and since that time power has been available over 99 per cent. of the time on week days, while the total hours of interruption during lighting hours have been less than 4.

The company's service for private lighting has proved most satisfactory. All its subscribers are loud in their praise of the modern lighting and the many conveniences afforded them by the introduction of the current into their homes.

Users of the Company's power service seem well pleased with it, both as regards reliability and as regards economy. That electric power is more reliable and also much cheaper than gasoline engine power—at least in the small sized units that are commonly in use—is being shown constantly.

One of the Company's power consumers reports his experience as follows:

The comparison is between electric light and gasoline motor power, both coming from a gasoline motor and your Company's electric light and electric motor service.

Cost of gasoline alone for five years—1909, $110.50; 1910, $133.55; 1911, $92.47; 1912, $112.35, and 1913, $114.59. Average cost of gasoline alone for the five years, $112.69.

The cost of the electric service for the year just closed is as follows: Light, $13.60; power, $43.69; total $57.29.

This shows that compared with 1913 the cost of gasoline alone was just one cent more than twice the cost of the electric light and power that replaced it. The average cost of oil and repairs for the gasoline engine during the five year period is estimated at $12.00 per year. The electric motor was oiled the day it was put in and has never required any since and the repairs on it have cost $0.00.

It should also be noted that the amount of work done in this establishment has been several hundred dollars more this year than ever before—with the cost of power practically cut in half.

Another customer, who runs his motor 10 hours a day reports an increase in the output of his machinery of approximately 20 per cent. due entirely to the substitution of electric for gasoline drive.

Now that a reliable and low cost power service has been demonstrated to be available in Emmitsburg, it is hoped that the coming of more small manufacturing industries will be hastened. There is nothing more needed for the prosperity and well-being of our town than constant employment under proper conditions at good wages for all who are willing to work.

Districters Must Get Md. Licenses.

The constitutionality of the Maryland law, requiring District of Columbia automobile owners to obtain Maryland licenses in order to use the Maryland roads was sustained in the Supreme Court of the United States.

About $50,000 a year was involved in the matter to the State of Maryland, judging by past receipts from Washington licenses, but the amount probably will increase from year to year. Washington automobile owners have been very bitterly opposed to purchasing Maryland licenses, claiming that there should be reciprocity between the State and the District in the use of the road of each by the motorists of each.

A feeling that the adverse effects of the European war on finance and business in this country have passed the maximum and are directly on the decline permeates the expressions of views by leading men of all sections presented herewith. Readjustment the new conditions suddenly created has largely taken place already, and the completion of the process is not far off. Nearly all of those called on by the Times for the results of their experience and observation express confidence in improvement from the start of the new year.

Even the South, which has been by far the greatest sufferer from the derangement of trade due to the war, is getting into better shape, and several protest against the idea that has been spread abroad that its difficulties are almost insurmountable. The cotton planters are said to be realizing that they must accept the fall in the value of their crop and go ahead on the new basis. The growing movement of cotton is reported to have made a great change in the situation. Economy has taken the place of disheartenment, and from several sections come reports of plans actively in hand for diversification of crops this year.

Many of those heard from through the country generally speak of the encouragement drawn from the evidence given by the Interstate Commerce Commission that it is willing to grant needed relief to the railroads from President Wilson's assurance that legislation disturbing to business has been concluded, and from the apparent determination of borrowers to pay up or reduce their obligations.

Where money has been tight the beginning of a relaxation is noted, with confidence that it will continue. This is based in part on the existence of the Federal Reserve Banks, the actual benefits of which are said to have shown themselves but little, inasmuch as they have been open only a few weeks.

More than 1,500 persons were fed with one ostrich at a Y. M. C. A. dinner in Los Angeles, and it is claimed they had meat enough, though the bird weighed only 100 pounds when dressed ready for the cook.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingano Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

No people are more wide-awake, more knowable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatched; the climate is notably healthful; its water—pure mountain spring water—cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards.

Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary—with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years—is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies—equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid achievement—is also here.

There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liverys, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oiled streets.

There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites available. If you contemplate changing your place of residence—come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md.

AN ADJUNCT MILITIA.

The action of Princeton students in petitioning for systematic military training suggests the possibility and advisability of raising an adjunct militia by making military training compulsory at all colleges in the United States.

What a proficient supplementary army could be raised in time of war if every able-bodied student of the required age in every city high school, parochial school, preparatory school, college and university in the land were mustered in.

In considering the question, though most superficially, of course, it would seem that there would at once be available the very best material to work with.

All preliminaries having been gone over there would be at hand an enormous body of magnificently prepared men, physically sound, mentally alert and far above average intelligence. In addition to this there would be special scientific departments from which to draw: engineering, electric, medical, accounting and others.

The working out of the detail by the War Department would be but a simple matter; the consummation of the plan would be a decided help in solving some part of the problem of unpreparedness now confronting the country.

FARM LITERATURE—ORGANIZATION.

Emmitsburg district may not have a grange—that is bound to come later—but the farmers in this community are very wide awake. What was said of their primitive methods in time gone by—just or unjust as the criticism may have been—in no manner applies to them today. They are readers and students as well as workers and producers, and they are good producers because they are readers. The old practice of perpetuating the habits and modes of their grandfathers whose opportunities were necessarily circumscribed, no longer obtains. In these times it is the farm journal that aids, the crop reports that suggest and the government bulletin that advises. The hints and formulas contained in these, the special articles on different phases of farming, dairying and poultry raising, and instructions how to ship and how to market farm products to the best advantage—all these are read and applied, with the result that intelligent farming is decidedly on the increase.

We said that the grange is bound to follow. It surely will and it ought to follow; for only by personal intercourse, by the free exchange of experiences, by the recounting of practical experiments and by hearing lectures and watching the demonstrations of experts who have actually applied what has been advised in the literature referred to—only by these means can farmers serve their own best interests; only by organization can this be accomplished.

THEY FINALLY SEE IT.

He takes it all right and he reads it, too; reads it for twelve long months clean through. He keeps on reading it up until, for what he received, he is sent his bill. And then he determines he'll take a chance, and because he's not paid for it in advance, he'll "write 'em a letter" and tell 'em that he, don't owe for the service a farthing, see? He "stops the paper" with very bad grace, and "cuts off his nose to spite his own face," by borrowing one from a neighbor who pays, and is courteous, just, in a number of ways. At last he discovers,—owns up that he's wrong, and regrets that he's been inconvenienced so long. After while he comes back and is courteously met—might have seen that was just the fair treatment he'd get—and "fixes it up," he feels better and knows, that it's decent to pay the just debts that one owes. Every publisher meets with such cases as this, but they're fewer each year with them all, we wis.

Respectfully referred to Colonel Roosevelt:—

Mrs. George F. Hanscom, of this city (Lynn, Mass.,) claims the distinction of being the youngest grandmother in the United States. She is 32. She was married at the age of 15. So was her daughter, the mother of the grandchild.

"Four kings greeted President Wilson on New Year's day." Couldn't have been a poker game or we would have heard how much the pot amounted to.

HEALTH hints: never sing "The Wearing Of The Green" at a Dutch joy fest; never ask for an orange phosphate on St. Patrick's day.

You may break, you may shatter the glass if you choose, a tin can sufficeth the tramp for his booze.

SPEAKING of records, Cole Blease is in a class by himself as a criminal liberator.

SEASON OF CENTENARIANS.

Curiously enough, this is the season of the centenarian. From all over the country the correspondents are sending in the names and records of these geniuses in longevity. Some of them are old friends—the hale and hearty chaps of 110 to 115 and thereabouts, regular visitors year by year, with now and then a final recounting of the years that come to an end at last despite all systems, diets and rules of conduct. Others, youngsters of a bare hundred, are trooping up to be counted, new patriachs in the land, sometimes dancing a tango with a great-grand daughter, sometimes becoming unduly solemn for so recent a recruit to the ranks of human persistence. At one and the same time we enjoy and sigh for these human calendars with never a red-letter square upon them.

For that, it seems, is what it is to be famed for longevity. To be dull drab in experience and in thought. To travel a level road without a tug up hill or a tumble down. To live regularly, like an animated clock that it stops up regularly, till at length it wound up sheer unimagined weariness. Look at these ready echoes of full-lunged existence. Listen to them. The story is the same. They centered on themselves. What they did they did with one eye always on the graveyard. They never made a misstep because they never ventured one. Rarely are they rich, whom even the mildest pleasures taken exuberantly would have robbed of a lustrum at any rate. Rarely are they poor, who would have had to risk a record by living too hard or trying too strenuously against fate. No, they are the most part human documents from which the ink has faded, saying the same thing year by year—how to eat, how to sleep, how to "keep from worrying," and for what? To "live to be a hundred!"

Think of enduring for that long only to end up a bromide health hint! Think of dying after 115 years spent in careful effort to avoid living at all!

—Columbia State.

TAFT ON PROHIBITION.

"It would revolutionize the national government," said former President Taft at the meeting of the Boston Bar Association. "It would put on the shoulders of the government the duty of sweeping the doorsteps of every home in the land. If national prohibition legislation is pressed, local government would be destroyed. And if you destroy local government, you destroy one of the things which go to make for a healthy condition of the national government."

"National prohibition is nonenforceable; it is a confession on the part of state governments of inability to control and regulate their own special business and duty; if the matter were placed under federal control it would result in creation of a machinery of government officials large enough to nominate any president, and would offer too great an opportunity to persons seeking to perpetuate their power in Washington."

PROPHECIES FOR 1915.

At the winter solstice on December 22, 1914, the sun was in exact conjunction with the fiery war-god, Mars, and they were both opposed by the subtle, crafty and avaricious Saturn, respecting the effects of which, says the writer in the New York World, the authorities write as follows:

A warlike feeling is aroused and the monarch, government or upper classes feel the effects of hostility and opposition directed toward them—troubles affecting the army and navy—a turbulent spirit directed against those in high places; riots, crimes, accidents and outrages increase.

At Washington this threatening configuration is culminating, and threatens the National Administration with a crisis involving serious danger of martial activity and excitement under which the heads of departments are likely to act in an impulsive, arbitrary and dictatorial manner.

The new moon of January 15 transfers the martial element into the halls of Congress, where a number of exciting sessions are likely to result and chaotic conditions are threatened. The irritating influences that are focused at this lunation center in the house, signifying foreign affairs, at Berlin and Central Europe generally.

Two new rulers, or at least two radical changes in the central authority, will be the lot of the German Empire between the early winter of 1914 and the fall of 1915.

The February eclipse occurs shortly before midnight on the 13th at Washington, with Mars and Uranus so placed as to indicate serious danger of excitement and disasters, especially in the eastern parts of the country.

At the new moon of March 15, Mercury, the messenger, interpreter and intermediary, will be directly opposite to the great eclipse of last August, in the humanitarian sign, in that section of the national horoscope which governs our foreign relations, and in most friendly aspect with the ruler of that house, who will be stationed in the house signifying Congress and the friends of our nation.

At the time of the vernal equinox, on March 21, the sun culminates at Washington in the sign of his exaltation, where he adds of his power and luster to the Administration and ushers in a decidedly more propitious period. But Mars will still be active, this time in close conjunction with Jupiter, who signifies religion, science and philosophy, and indicating a wave of religious frenzy, dangers to shipping, and complications connected with foreign trade. Railroad disasters in New England or Eastern Canada and shipwrecks near the coasts of that region are quite probable. A sudden heat wave and heavy storm threatened destructive floods in the Mississippi Valley. In Europe gave dangers of an outbreak of pestilential diseases follow this ingress; also violent assaults upon or affecting matters involving religion and educational affairs.

At the new moon of April 14 Mars in evil aspect to Saturn afflicts our house of foreign relations and also the Administration. This presages tense excitement and warlike talk, if not the actual launching of an aggressive or defensive campaign. But as both Jupiter and Venus are strongly placed in this figure we judge that pacific methods will prevail, though the President will be viciously assailed.

The new moon of June 12 promises increased power to and recognition of reform and democratic movements, but grave probability of very serious disasters between 95 degrees and 105 degrees of west longitude.

The portents of the summer solstice are very generally adverse, indicating the prevalence of a surly, suspicious and apprehensive trend of thought and an increase in fraud, thefts, secret crimes and morbid mental diseases; also very serious troubles connected with prisons, hospitals and other public institutions in this country.

At the new moon on July 12 the culminating Jupiter will improve business conditions generally in this country and promises improved conditions for the National Administration, but the danger of conspiracies, treacheries and secret crimes, especially in connection with public institutions, is emphasized.

The solar eclipse on August 10 fairly sizzles with revolutionary possibilities affecting many different nations. Berlin, Vienna, Rome and Copenhagen all come strongly under the erratic vibrations of Uranus at the time of this eclipse. This eclipse rises in Eastern India and Central and Western China, presaging radical changes and the inauguration of far-reaching reforms.

The aspect at the autumnal equinox on September 23 are exceptionally favorable, especially as affecting our National Administration and business outlook, excepting speculative ventures, which are threatened. Foreign and trade relations will greatly improve throughout Europe during the three months' rule of this ingress.

The new moon for October 8 is rather unfavorable to builders, farmers and miners. Serious accidents and a spell of cold and stormy weather will follow.

The new moon of November 7 promises a distinct accretion of power and success to the National Administration, though not especially conducive to its popularity.

The new moon of December 6 is also most favorable in its aspect to business and finance.

The favorable aspect of the sun, moon and Mercury with Uranus are distinctly propitious for religion, science, philosophy and the higher branches of learning and institutions connected therewith, also for shipping and foreign trade. The announcement of a most important invention or discovery will likely follow this lunation, probably connected with transportation or communication.

The solar ingress of December 22 (winter solstice) points particularly to the first quarter of 1916. Saturn rises with promise of a seriousness of purpose on the part of the people and the preservation of law and order, while the opulent and optimistic Jupiter culminates and assures good fortune to the Government and prosperity and improved trade relations both at home and abroad. A most propitious time for the inauguration of new national enterprises.

THE ORIGINAL OPTIMIST.

Robinson Crusoe was the Original Optimist.

Times looked bad for Robinson—couldn't have looked much worse. But he didn't say "What's the use;" didn't lie down, whimper, kick, and growl at destiny.

No, Crusoe used his head; he thought—then he thought some more—real serious line of thinking. Just what to do was the puzzle Crusoe was solving. Finally it came to him in a flash—"I have it," said Robinson—"I'll advertise."

A thousand miles from nowhere—a possible buyer coming within reading distance of his ad every few years—this was Robinson's outlook. It was hard times—business depression, a stringent money market—also what Sherman said about war.

But Crusoe, as before mentioned, was an Optimist, also a believer in persistent advertising.

He wanted a ship—how would he get it? Answer—"Advertise." And he did—flung a shirt from the top of a pole.

The first advertisement brought no returns.

But Crusoe wasn't discouraged. He changed the "copy"—put up another shirt. Yes, times were hard—awful hard; but Crusoe won out—he got his ship—and he did it by persistent advertising.

YOU HAD BETTER "PULL OFF YOUR SHIRT" AND GO AFTER BUSINESS LIKE YOU MEANT IT.

Because the other fellow is discouraged, can't see "the ship coming in," is why it will pay you to keep your head and "dig" harder than ever—for somebody is going to get your business.

Let that somebody be you.—Trade Outlook.

MACK'S BASEBALL THEORIES.

Don't fight the umpire; confine your efforts in that direction to the other team.

It is possible to be aggressive without resorting to rowdy tactics.

The less you bother the umpire, the better brand of umpiring he gives you in return.

Close decisions are bound to be given against you. On the whole, it will just about even up for the season.

Every time a star player is put out of the game, he weakens the chances of his team to win.

When a player is put out of the game, he gives neither the public nor the club owner a run for his money.

The umpire will always be the alibi on every disputed point, for he is the easiest excuse.

All umpires give the plays just as they see them. The most strenuous protest never resulted in a reversal.

The public goes to the game to see the teams play ball, not argue with themselves and the umpire.

No team ever kicked itself into a championship. Several teams have kicked themselves out of a pennant.

Umpires are human, hence not infallible. The wise umpire listens to a proper protest. The foolish umpire insists he is always right.

When a substitute takes the place of a star in some big production on the stage, the public always has the right to demand its money back at the box office. Some day such conditions will prevail in baseball, when some star, who a majority of the crowd wants to see play, is ejected from the game for some reason or other.

THE WELL WITHIN.

Greet not the year with a sigh for sin, For loss of power or pelf; But draw and drink from the well within—

The well that is thou—thyself! For a sin forsworn may be sin forgiven— Its memory strength and shield; And loss may be cross that shall reach the heaven That never is far a-field.

—HESTER DICKINSON.

HIGH AMBITION.

I am longing for the country; I am longing just to be Where I can let the whiskers grow upon the face o' me;

Where I can let my hair grow in a wild and woolly way, And where father does the farmin' and there ain't no board to pay.

—Houston Post.

THE THING TO DO.

Whether you talk with your neighbor or stranger at home or abroad, riding or walking, always have a good word for your town. Speak of the beautiful homes, the nice streets, the excellency of the surrounding country, and the intelligence and enterprise of your neighbors. Stand by your town through thick and thin as you would stand by your best friend in time of distress and you will find it prosperous and thriving as never before.—The Times, Westminster, Md.

TO GET AHEAD OF OURSELVES.

Our business in life is not to get ahead of other people, but to get ahead of ourselves. To break our own record, to outstrip our yesterdays by todays, to bear our trials more beautifully than we ever dreamed we could, to whip the tempter inside and out as we never whipped him before, to give as we never have given, to do our work with more force and a finer finish than ever; this is the true idea: to get ahead of ourselves.—MALTBIE D. BABCOCK.

IT ISN'T YOUR TOWN, IT'S YOU.

If you want to live in the kind of a town

Like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike.

You'll only find what you left behind, For there's nothing really new.

It isn't your town—it's you. —Exchange.

Made It More Valuable.

At a whist party an unmarried lady won a consolation prize which proved to be a small dressed doll in male attire. Unwrapping the toy, the donor discovered that the head had been broken off. "Never mind," exclaimed the recipient, good-naturedly, "I will prize it all the more on that account. It's the first man that ever lost his head over me in all my life."

Columbus.

From all accounts, Christopher Columbus was an Italian, having been born in Genoa, Italy. His birth year was 1435 or 1436, the exact date being uncertain. The reason why he entered the service of Spain, rather than that of his native country, was owing to the fact that at that time Italy was not much interested in matters of discovery.

On the Road to Intemperance.

Testimony in a Chicago court shows that a husband from whom a divorce is desired drank eight or nine whiskies every morning before breakfast and about thirty more before going to bed. It is drinking of this sort that so often leads a man into intemperance before he realizes it.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Patriotic to the Core.

Even the little children in Ireland, according to Hugh O'Donnell, have the true Irish sense of humor. He was standing before Nelson's statue, he said, when he asked a youngster: "Was Nelson really Irish?" "That he was," replied the child. "That's why he is what he was."

Scotch Economy.

A Glasgow merchant widely known for his stinginess, came into his office one morning and found a young clerk writing a letter in rather a flourishing hand. "My man," he observed, "dinna mak' the tails o' yer g's and y's quite so long. I want the ink to last the quarter oot."

Like Aaron's Staff.

An unusual occurrence has marked the introduction of the electric light to the Devon (England) village of Knowle, where a wooden post, put in the ground to carry the wires, has taken root and is making a vigorous growth of greenery.

Really Not His Fault.

"You sometimes disagree with these scientific experts?" "Not at all," replied the serene egotist. "Notwithstanding the fact that I have thought a matter out to a sound conclusion, they frequently insist on disagreeing with me."

Matrimonial.

A wealthy young California woman says: "The man I would marry doesn't live." This shouldn't mean, however, that she will wed what is known in the vocabulary of the street as a dead one.

Not Frequently Met.

A right measure and manner in getting, saving, spending, giving, taking, lending, borrowing and bequeathing would almost argue a perfect man.—Sir Henry Taylor.

Missed an Opportunity.

Hoax—"Whatever else I may be I am not proud." Joax—"Well, that's something to be proud of."—Philadelphia Record.

But Then She Knows.

EUROPEAN WAR SHATTERS KING COTTON'S THRONE

FLEECY STAPLE MUST PAY RANSOM INTO THE COFFERS OF WAR.

Nation Rings With Cries of Stricken Industry.

By Peter Radford
Lecturer National Farmers' Union.

King Cotton has suffered more from the European war than any other agricultural product on the American continent. The shells of the belligerents have burst over his throne, frightening his subjects and shattering his markets, and, panic-stricken, the nation cries out "God save the king!"

People from every walk of life have contributed their mite toward rescue work. Society has danced before the king; milady has decreed that the family wardrobe shall contain only cotton goods; the press has pleaded with the public to "buy a bale"; bankers have been formulating holding plans; congress and legislative bodies have deliberated over relief measures; statesmen and writers have grown eloquent expounding the inalienable rights of "His Majesty" and presenting schemes for preserving the financial integrity of the stricken staple, but the sword of Europe has proved mightier than the pen of America in fixing value upon this product of the sunny south. Prices have been bayoneted, values riddled and markets decimated by the battling hosts of the eastern hemisphere until the American farmer has suffered a war loss of $400,000,000, and a bale of cotton brave enough to enter a European port must pay a ransom of half its value or go to prison until the war is over.

Hope of the Future Lies in Co-operation.

The Farmers' Union, through the columns of the press, wants to thank the American people for the friendship, sympathy and assistance given the cotton farmers in the hour of distress and to direct attention to co-operative methods necessary to permanently assist the marketing of all farm products.

The present emergency presents as grave a situation as ever confronted the American farmer and from the viewpoint of the producer, would seem to justify extraordinary relief measures, even to the point of bending the constitution and straining business rules in order to lift a portion of the burden off the backs of the farmer, for unless something is done to check the invasion of the war forces upon the cotton fields, the pathway of the European pestilence on this continent will be strewn with mortgaged homes and famine and poverty will stalk over the southland, filling the highways of industry with refugees and the bankruptcy court with prisoners.

All calamities teach us lessons and the present crisis serves to illuminate the frailties of our marketing methods and the weakness of our credit system, and out of the financial anguish and travail of the cotton farmer will come a volume of discussion and a mass of suggestions and finally a solution of this, the biggest problem in the economic life of America, if, indeed, we have not already laid the foundation for at least temporary relief.

More Pharaohs Needed in Agriculture.

Farm products have no credit and perhaps can never have on a permanent and satisfactory basis unless we build warehouses, cold storage plants, elevators, etc., for without storage and credit facilities, the south is compelled to dump its crop on the market at harvest time. The Farmers' Union in the cotton producing states have for the past ten years persistently advocated the construction of storage facilities. We have built during this period 2,000 warehouses with a capacity of approximately 4,000,000 bales and looking backward the results would seem encouraging, but looking forward, we are able to house less than one-third of the crop and warehouses without a credit system lose 90 per cent of their usefulness. The problem is a gigantic one--too great for the farmer to solve unaided. He must have the assistance of the banker, the merchant and the government.

In production we have reached the high water mark of perfection in the world's history, but our marketing methods are most primitive. In the dawn of history we find agriculture plowing with a forked stick but with a system of warehouses under governmental supervision that made the Egyptians the marvel of civilization, for who has not admired the vision of Joseph and applauded the wisdom of Pharaoh for storing the surplus until demanded by the consumer, but in this age we have too many Josephs who dream and not enough Pharaohs who build.

Why the Rooting?

Little Anna's father was a baseball enthusiast and had taken her to several games. One Sunday morning she went with him and her mother to the service in the Methodist church. Anna was not much interested in the sermon until the minister warmed up to his subject and the older men nearer the pulpit began to shout, "Amen," "Hallelujah," etc. On the way home she looked up at her father and exclaimed: "Say, pop, who were the men up front rooting for the preacher?"

START WORK IN YOUR ORCHARD NOW.

Prune Your Trees Carefully and Remove All Dead Or Unnecessary Branches.

S. B. SHAW,
Maryland Agricultural College
Extension Service.

Begin planning now for next season's fruit crop. Every effort put forth at this time means more fruit of better quality next fall. Many of the trees need to be pruned. A sharp, wide-set hand saw and a good hand pruning shear will greatly facilitate this work. In removing branches from the main limbs or body of the tree, make a smooth, clean cut without leaving any stub. If the cut surface is over an inch in diameter, apply a coat of paint to protect the wound until it has become covered with a natural growth of bark. Any color of any brand will do, so long as it accomplishes the purpose for which it is applied.

A WELL-GROWN TREE.

Cut out all cracked, split and broken limbs. Take out all dead or dying branches and remove any dried up fruits that may be still hanging to the twigs. All such wood and fruit should be taken from the orchard and burned. Dead wood and mummied fruit harbor insects and disease spores. The destruction of this source of infection now, will materially aid in the development of clean, sound fruit later in the year. As far as possible, notice the relative position the main limbs will occupy when loaded with fruit and see if any crossing can be eliminated. At the same time consider what excess of leaf producing wood can be removed to prevent too much shading of the fruit during the summer. Fruit will not develop fully in the shade. Take out water sprouts and open up the head sufficiently to allow of a free circulation of air through the tree and the exposure of as much fruit as possible to direct sunlight.

Head back judiciously. Heavy pruning tends to promote new growth. In some instances it may be necessary to stimulate the development of new wood. Trees that seem to be lacking in vigor, that are apparently not making much headway, can often be rejuvenated and brought into thrifty condition by severe cutting. As a rule, however, it is advisable to remove only about one-fourth to one-third of the new wood from young trees making a normal growth. This applies principally to such trees as apple and pear that produce fruit buds on old wood. With the peach, conditions are different. Here the fruit buds are developed on new wood, hence it may be profitable to cut back these trees more severely so as to stimulate a heavier growth of annual wood.

RULES TO OBSERVE IN DEVELOPING A PARCEL POST TRADE.

L. B. FLOHR,
U. S. Office of Markets, before the Maryland State Grange, Dec. 16, 1914.

One of the biggest difficulties in undertaking to develop or build up a market by parcel-post is to find your customer. As the old darkey's recipe for chicken pot-pie ran "First get your chicken," so parcel-post marketing is contingent upon first getting your customer. The impression first made with your customer largely determines the continuance of the business, and right here, I might as well speak of quality. If you hold him, don't try to market anything you would not be willing to use yourself. Study the wants and desires of your customer and supply him with what he wants and is willing to pay for. If after studying this matter over and perhaps after making a trial, you decide that it is too much bother, I would then say to you, "If you are not willing to hustle for a better market than you now enjoy, don't kick about the returns you receive." The only way to secure business is to go after it, and once you have it keep it by all proper means.

The great success of the Week's Short Course in Domestic Science at the Agricultural College last winter was due in a large measure to the charming and effective way in which Mrs. C. M. Foulke, lecturer from the Ohio State University, handled her commonplace, everyday subjects.

Her talks on "The Kitchen" and "The Cuts and Uses of Meat," were filled with practical helpfulness for the farm woman; or, for that matter, any home maker at all who is interested in lessening her drudgery or in adding attractiveness to her home. The same course with added features is being offered again to Maryland women for the week, beginning January 11, 1915.

Friday night the Emmitt Cornet Band gave a concert at the Square. The selections were particularly good and every number was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience.

New Year's night was ushered in by lively bell ringing and the usual "canonade" and display of fireworks.

Quite a number of people from Zora, Fairfield and the surrounding districts visited Emmitsburg Friday evening and welcomed 1915 with glees and choruses.

The Carrick's Knob Fife and Drum Corps livened things up the same night marching through the streets playing "It's a long way to Tipperary," "Don't hit mother with the door mat" and other popular selections.

Elmer Motter, on the Rowe Ohler farm, butchered two hogs Thursday weighing respectively 531 and 358 pounds.

During 1914, Mr. Norman Hoke carried 40,003 pieces of mail.

Mr. John Matthews returned to St. Agnes' Hospital on Monday to continue treatment.

St. Euphemia's parochial school and the Emmitsburg public school resumed their studies on Monday, January 4.

Every creek and stream in this vicinity overflowed its banks during Tuesday night's storm and many adjacent roads were piled high with floating ice.

A great deal of interest has been manifested in the Week of Prayer, which concludes Sunday night in the Lutheran Church, and large congregations have been present at every service.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Emmitsburg Savings Bank on Tuesday no changes were made in the personnel of the directorate of the Bank, all the members of the old board being reelected for the ensuing year.

During the unusual downpour Wednesday night Flat Run was so swollen that a six-horse wagon loaded with ice standing near the willows above the bridge on the Gettysburg road was carried down stream under the bridge, and for a distance of about 300 feet.

In order to begin the knitting of its portion of the large order for woolen stockings for the army the local branch of the Union Manufacturing Company has ordered a special size of needles and will rush the work as soon as the additional machinery arrives.

Rev. James F. McNelis, formerly of Emmitsburg and but recently stationed at Germantown, Pa., was most cordially greeted by his old friends—of whom he has an unlimited number—on the occasion of his visit here this week.

Father McNelis is apparently in the best of health and spirits and seemed very much pleased with the warm reception given him.

The Mite Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church convened on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Basil C. Gilson. A programme was rendered, which was followed by refreshments.

Mr. Francis E. Rowe, Jr., bowled the highest score ever rolled on the Matthews alleys in Duck Pins. Young Rowe spilled the little men continuously until he was credited with 178 for his score. Local experts have been attempting without success to excel this record, but it seems to be exceedingly difficult to surpass, due to its lofty elevation.

Mrs. F. Harry Gross and Dr. J. B. Bawner have been elected members of the National Geographic Society, of North America.

MISS FARR TO SPEAK.

On Tuesday evening next, Jan. 12, at 7:30 Miss Mary P. Farr, traveling secretary of the Maryland Public Library Commission, will give a talk in the Public School House on Library work, with the idea of suggesting to the people of this community how the scope of the local institution may be broadened and its efficiency increased.

Everybody is invited to attend; the meeting will be informal, and those present will have an opportunity to ask any questions bearing on the subject discussed by Miss Farr.

FOUR PER CENT. INTEREST ON CHRISTMAS FUNDS

Emmitsburg Savings Bank Will Pay Regular Interest Rate on Special Club Deposits

The Emmitsburg Savings Bank announces that it will pay 4 per cent. interest on all the cards of its Christmas Savings Club. The cards bear the printed statement that 3 per cent. will be paid. With this the Emmitsburg Savings Bank had nothing to do, as the company which issues the cards print them in advance and all read 3 per cent.

Those who have already started accounts under this plan, and those who will do so, now that the rate of interest is the same as on regular savings accounts, will receive 4 per cent. on their money. Checks for the amounts they deposit plus the interest for the average time will be mailed to every member of the Club not less than two weeks before next Christmas.

The Club is still open. As soon as the present supply of cards is used up no more will be available. Any man, woman or child can join; one person can take out as many cards as one wants, and one person can take out cards for another. The only condition is that the amounts due be paid every week or in advance.

FIVE BID TO BUILD NEW ROAD

From Emmitsburg to Pennsylvania Line.—Contract Not Yet Let.

Five bids were offered the State Roads Commission for the construction of the stretch of road from Emmitsburg to the Mason-Dixon line about one and three-quarters mile north of town. The Commission took the bids under consideration.

This road, when completed, will make a complete system of State highway leading from Baltimore, through Frederick and Emmitsburg to Gettysburg and other points in Pennsylvania. Following the action of Maryland in building her share of the road Pennsylvania will construct the remainder of the link from the line to Gettysburg.

The road is to be of macadam and when completed will furnish a direct line to the Gettysburg battlefield. As soon as the contract is awarded Chairman Weller will notify the Pennsylvania authorities and it is expected they will let their contract for the extension soon after.

MRS. MARY A. HUNTER.

Mrs. Mary A. Hunter, widow of the late John J. Hunter, died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Jennie Horner, Gettysburg, Pa., Jan. 1st, 1915 in her 83rd. year.

She spent her entire life, until during the past year in the vicinity of Emmitsburg. Mrs. Hunter was noted for many excellent traits of character and her gentle and amiable disposition. During the past eight years she was in frail health, owing to infirmities of age and nervousness.

Motion Pictures To-Night.

The motion pictures to be shown at St. Euphemia's Hall to-night embrace History, Comedy and Natural Science in nine reels. There are two parts to "The Retreat From Moscow," to be followed by "Napoleon The Man of Destiny." The comedy reels, two in number, include "Shipping A Clock" and "Zeb's Musical Career." Under Natural Science, there are four reels: "Our Dog Friends," "Army Dogs," "Dog and his various merits" and "A Dog Music Hall." These pictures—they are motion pictures—are said to be particularly fine, and the well balanced programme should afford great pleasure to the large number who will attend.

Although there is no charge for admission, all those who avail themselves of the opportunity of an evening of true enjoyment and real instruction may make their contribution towards defraying the expenses of the entertainment as they enter the Hall.

Letters To The Editor.

To Editor of the Weekly Chronicle:

Dear Sir:—

I have waited patiently for nearly a month, and as yet there have been but two letters, expressive of the needs of Emmitsburg. Now, will the good people of our town sit still in smug complacency, with folded arms and eyes cast upward, and say to themselves—

"We do not need anything. We are absolutely perfect. Our ambitions are crowned with such complete success that supreme indifference is the outcome of our hearts desires." Why we can not even hope for anything, which would add to our comfort. We possess every moral excellence and are without defect or blemish, if the voice of the people be taken as a criterion.

How often have I heard folks say, in the course of conversation, sure, we need this, or we certainly do need that, but the sad misfortune is that they never say it to the right persons, nor say it at the critical moment; nor do they continue saying it to the extent that their purpose or end in view will be effected. Would that the people would get wise and be awakened to the situation and come forth and demand that they get what is truly needed.

How about the High School question in our town? Where is our High School? Did not we take pride in such an asset to any community for nearly twenty years? Why, of course, the answer is yes, we did, and yet my fellow citizens, we allow these matters and many others of equal importance to pass by practically unnoticed. Then when they have passed, and the results are evident, every one is heard to lament on this wise—"I never heard of such an outrage." Why do not the people of Emmitsburg create public opinion, and you say how? Through the columns of this weekly, that is how. If anyone wishes to meet the writer of this letter, let the introduction be a letter in this publication.

(By special request.)

On Christmas Eve, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, which was threatening overhead and treacherous underfoot, Mr. Lawrence Dielman, affectionately known far and wide through out the country by his many friends as "Larry," made his annual pilgrimage to the old Cemetery on the "Hill," to the graves of his parents, where surrounded by the numerous mounds containing the remains of relatives, friends and neighbors, just before midnight played as has been his custom for over thirty years the "Adeste Fideles." The sweet strains resounding through the deep silence of the surrounding country-side, were heard by all those who were traversing the quiet roads leading towards the different churches to assist at the midnight Mass.

The music from Mr. Dielman's flute was heard in different parts of the Valley, below the Mount even as far as St. Joseph's, recalling many bitter-sweet memories to the listeners of happy childhood days, of friends near and dear scattered far and wide through out this fair country of our's, and also of those others who have passed on before us to a fairer and happier land. This and much more were the thoughts of many who listened to Mr. Dielman's playing of the old familiar hymns and who wish Mr. Dielman, A Happy New Year, and hope to have the pleasure of again listening to "Larry," Christmas Eve, 1915.

The United States Agricultural Department places their Tag of Inspection and Approval on every sack of SEED POTATOES Purchased From J. BOLGIANO & SON.

CERTIFICATE OF QUALITY.
This is to certify that I have had charge of all the Seed Potatoes grown for J. Bolgiano & Son, during this growing season. I have been with them since April 15th; looked after the selecting of their seed and the treating of the same, have also had charge of the spraying during the growing season. There was nothing planted but the very best selected seed, and nothing has been left undone to have them right. The crop is now being harvested, and the results of my work are most satisfactory. We are harvesting one of the largest crops ever grown in Annapolis County, Maine, and of the finest quality, free from any disease and true to name. I spent some time in Washington, D. C., with the Horticultural Board before coming here and their ideas of producing FIRST CLASS SEED have been carried out to the letter for J. Bolgiano & Son.

A SAILOR'S YARN

By RYLAND BELL

One bright moonlight night during the fifties of the last century a company of tars were lolling on the fore-castle when one of them, Jim Burns, told the following yarn:

"Mates, I've seen marvels on salt water, but the biggest marvel I ever see was on land. I'd been left in a hospital at Marseilles, and when I got well I shipped in the brigantine Northwell Light, bound for New Orleans. But I wasn't fated to git to that port, for we was driven ashore by a sou'easter and every soul lost except myself. Bein' washed overboard, I hung on to a chicken coop that floated by me, was carried into the breakers and thrown on a sandy beach. Between seas I managed to crawl up beyond 'em, and somehow as soon as I saw they couldn't git me ag'in my strength went out o' me all of a sudden, and I didn't know nothin'. The last I remembered was a lot o' corpses of my mates rollin' around in the breakers, and they seemed to be lookin' at me envious.

"There was a big change from this to what I saw when I got back to myself ag'in. A gal with a pair o' blue eyes was a-lookin' down into mine. She had just poured some grog down my throat from a bottle and was watchin' to see if it would bring me out."

"Bully," said Tom Nye, "I wouldn't give a piece o' hardtack for a yarn without a gal in it."

"There bein' nothin' the matter with me," continued the speaker, "except exhaustion, I rose on my legs and, havin' got my bearin's, axed the gal where I was. She said I was on the coast o' South Carolina, not far from Savannah. She p'inted to a house back on the shore and said she lived there. I could come up there if I liked and git some rest and somepin to eat.

"It was a queer lookin' house and seemed to have been built a long time before, when there was Indians in the neighborhood, cos there was loopholes in it. It had been kind o' elegant onest, but was turrable run down. I concluded to go up there with the gal if only to git rid of the rollin' corpses. I found what they call a poor white family occupyin' the premises—the gal's mother, one or two white children and a few niggers. They give me some grub, and by this time it was growin' dark, and, havin' been two days and nights at the pumps, I told 'em I'd like to turn in. The mother and daughter did a lot o' whisperin' together, and then the daughter went off, come back with a key and told me she'd show me to my room. As soon as she opened the door a shut-up smell come out that almost made me sick.

"The furniture was the old fashionedest I ever see. It was fine stuff, I kin tell you, but the curtains and the canopy to the big bed was all fallen to pieces. There was a fireplace big enough to roast an ox in and arm-chairs that for comfort beat a ham-mock all to pieces. But I was too sleepy to take much notice.

"Well, now, mebbe them covers wasn't musty. If I hadn't been ready to drop off I wouldn't 'a' stayed under 'em no time. As it was, I was asleep almost before I struck the bed.

"In the middle of the night I was dreamin' of my mates rollin' around in the breakers and woke up with a start. What d'ye suppose I saw? A man comin' in at the door. He held a candle to light the way, and it shined right on to his face, and it was the ugliest mug I ever see in any country. Why, a Malay pirate was a holy Joe to it. We'd of all, the feller clutched a knife as long as your arm.

"He wasn't lookin' at the bed at fust. His face was a-workin' as if he was powerful mad. But he come right on and purty soon held up his candle so the light shined right on to my face. At the same moment I jumped. But I hadn't landed on the floor before the light went out, and it was as dark as the black hole o' Calcutta. I expected to git that knife in my ribs, but I didn't. Then I listened to hear the feller move, hopin' he'd go out. The room was as still as a burryin' ground.

"I had no way o' strikin' a light, for when I went to bed I hadn't thort about wakin' up in the night. I wondered if I hadn't been sufferin' from nightmare. Anyway I got back into bed, my heart a-thumpin' and the sweat standin' out on me. I lay awake till day came and I could see all over the room. There was no signs of any one except me havin' been in it durin' the night. So I turned over and went to sleep.

"I waked about noon and went downstairs.

"Where's that piratical chap that come into my room last night?" I asked.

"Law sakes!" said the gal, palin'.

"Did you see him?"

"Reckon I did. Who is he?"

"He's a ghost. When this yere country was first settled a slave dealer built this house and brought a young wife here to live in it. One time when he come home from Africa sudden he found another man here. He killed both the man and the woman in that room. We've never been able to use it. We thort we'd try it last night on you."

The speaker stopped, having finished his yarn.

"Didn't you marry the gal?" asked Tom Nye.

"Marry the gal? No. D'ye suppose I've been spinnin' one o' them cheap yarns that's printed? What I've told you is jist as true as plum duff on Sunday."
