Why Middletown District Deserves More Than Woodsboro.

Last week an article appeared in this paper giving a large number of reasons why Middletown District should be given the Republican nomination for Register of Wills for Frederick County in preference to Emmitsburg District. It was proved beyond the slightest shadow of a doubt that Emmitsburg District is strongly Democratic and has been so for the past 17 years. On the other hand, figures were given to show positively that Middletown District is a Republican stronghold in the County and therefore deserves to be given the office by the County voters. In that article it was stated that the next article would deal with Woodsboro District, which also has a candidate in the race in the person of Mr. G. W. Hoffman. True to our promise, we have compiled for your perusal this week statistics dealing with the vote of Woodsboro District. We will start 15 years ago with the year 1900. At that time Woodsboro District had been giving heavy Democratic majorities.

In 1900 Woodsboro rolled up one of their heaviest votes when they gave a majority of 137 to the Democrats. In the same year Middletown District gave 108 Republican majority. In 1901 Woodsboro gave the Democrats 36 while Middletown District rallied to the Republican standard with a majority of 203.

But Woodsboro is one of the Districts which see saw back and forth, first to the Democrats and then to the Republicans, and in 1902 the Democrats failed to hold on to their District, and it gave 25 majority to the Republicans. But this majority faded into insignificance beside the 198 which Middletown District gave them. The Republicans proved to be as incapable of holding Woodsboro as the Democrats, and the next year, in 1903, it again swung around into the Democratic column with a majority of 61. Middletown remained loyal to the Grand Old Party and gave them 204. Likewise, in 1904, Woodsboro gave 20 to the Democrats and Middletown rolled up 198 for the Republicans.

We were unable to obtain the vote for the year 1905, but we shall continue the series, skipping that year. In 1906 the Republicans, by a supreme effort, succeeded in capturing Woodsboro, and it gave them a majority of 38. This was lost again however, in the shadow of Middletown's 197. After this, the Republicans succeeded in holding it for five more years, and in 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911, it gave them majorities of 13, 7, 4, 25, and 12 respectively. Meanwhile Middletown District remained as loyal as ever and during the same years gave Republican majorities of 207, 164, 169, 153, and 163, respectively.

In 1912 the District swung again and gave the Democrats 21 plurality over the other candidates. Middletown this year divided its vote almost equally between the Democrats, Republicans and Progressives. The next two years, 1913 and 1914 Woodsboro again gave the Democrats 65 and 38 respectively, while Middletown remained solidly Republican by 113 and 114 respectively. And so we see that while Woodsboro is a "see-saw" district and cannot be depended upon, Middletown remains ever loyal to the Republican party. Which deserves the nomination for Register of Wills, Mr. Voter, Woodsboro or Middletown?

Moreover, (and this is the strongest point of all) WOODSBORO HAD THE OFFICE ONLY 12 YEARS AGO AND HELD IT UNTIL 1909. IS NOT THIS IN ITSELF MUCH MORE THAN THE DISTRICT DESERVES? And what have you given Middletown, Mr. Voter? Nothing.

So come out to the polls this time determined to give Middletown District a square deal, and vote for Doctor Austin A. Lamar, of Middletown, for Register of Wills.

EMMITSBURG ON LINCOLN HIGHWAY

Change in Original Route Takes In Baltimore, Washington and Frederick.

Emmitsburg may yet "get on the map," if an announcement of a change in the proposed route of the Lincoln Highway be true. The Baltimore Sun of Wednesday contained the following article: "Baltimore and Washington will be placed on the proposed Lincoln Highway, which will span the continent and connect New York and San Francisco with a magnificent road. This announcement was made in Washington yesterday, says a Sun Bureau dispatch, by Henry B. Joy, president of the Lincoln Highway Association, in a letter to Robert N. Harper, chairman of the Washington committee.

"The Lincoln Highway according to Mr. Joy's letter, instead of turning westward at Philadelphia and running to Gettysburg, will be built southward to Baltimore. At Washington it will make a turn westward and follow the Rockville pike to Frederick, Md., and thence to Gettysburg."

Of course, the road from Frederick to Gettysburg would come by way of Thurmont and Emmitsburg over the improved state road—improved as far as Thurmont.

LEE PARTY ENDS TOUR HERE.

Candidate For Governor And Running Mates Speak on the Square.

Senator Blair Lee's campaign in Frederick county closed on Wednesday night at this place. In the morning the Senator and his running mates attended the meeting of the State central committee in Baltimore and motored to Libertytown for the big picnic annually held at that place. At eight o'clock the Emmitt Cornet Band met the Lee party and serenaded them prior to and during the speaking by the aspirants for the places on the Democratic ticket for the primary nominations. After the speaking which was listened to by quite a number of people the party left in autos for Senator Lee's home in Montgomery county.

Lloyd T. McGill, of Frederick, chairman of the Lee campaign in this county expressed himself as very well pleased with the tour.

AUTOMATIC SIGNALS OF W. M. RY.

Contract Let For Block System on Eighty Miles of Main Line.

The Western Maryland Railway company announced in Baltimore that a contract had been let for the immediate construction of 80 miles of automatic block signals on the W. Md. from big Pool to Williamsport and from Hagerstown to Emory Grove. The contract has been awarded to the Union Switch and Signal Co., which recently completed the signals between Cumberland and Big Pool.

When this work is completed the entire main line (single track) between Cumberland and Baltimore will be protected with automatic block signals of the most improved design.

In his report on the recent W. Md. collision, in which six lives were lost, Chief Engineer Phelps of the Public Service Commission recommended the installation of a block signal system.

The signals will be on an average of about one mile apart on the eastern end of the road. It is thought that with their operations anything like a head-on collision on this end of the line will be almost a practical impossibility.

A TRIP ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Series of Interesting Letters from Rev. J. M. Barry, Formerly of Emmitsburg.

This morning, July 14th, we had rain at Bauff with a temperature at 40° but before we had run an hour up the mountain rain turned to snow, and by the time the trolley from the station reached the Chateau, it was a blinding snow-storm obscuring everything. Oh! what a disappointment. Our elegant drive of nine miles to Lake Moraine and the Bow Valley turned out to be a wet, foggy, dismal trip over a road made almost impassible by rain and snow. Now that we have returned the fog has lifted somewhat and the titans that surround the lake are coming in view, but it is turning colder again, and I am certain that we will have more snow.

Vancouver, B. C., Friday, July 16th. You see how blue I was when I wrote the above lines. It was cold enough next morning, but it did not snow. Our train was late, and we were delayed six hours more at Field just beyond, because of a slide down the mountain side. I took advantage of it to get off my third budget, hence rather welcomed it. Now how shall I begin the impossible? Because I deem it utterly impossible to give any adequate idea of the sublimity of this trip. If possible let your imagination loose to contemplate 600 actual miles of the highest, wildest, most changing, rugged, snow-covered mountains from Calgary to the Pacific at Vancouver, without a break.

As I sit at my hotel window here, I look out North and East upon loftier mountains than Maryland can boast of. Well here is what is called the profile of our train running: Calgary, 3,425 ft. up to Bauff, 4,521 ft. to the divide at Field, 6,179 ft. down the hill to Moberly, 2,349 ft. right up to Glacier, 4,302 ft. down as quickly as up to a 1,200 level and the finish a gentle decline to the sea, but even then overshadowed by the water's edge by the giants. We followed the Bow River to the divide, and then such a high hill. We looped the loop through tunnel and doubling under ourselves until we got down to the impossible track that we saw from the top but did not dream that it was our track. And this kind of train dare-deviling was repeated getting down from Glacier. Happy for us night came on and we did not see the operation, but we made up nearly three hours lost during the night's run and landed right side up with care in this city at 1.30 P. M. Friday.

All admitted that that they had not conceived any idea of what was our privilege to see of God's wonders in creation. The whole stretch practically uninhabited except where the hotels draw their help and the few track walkers, etc., because the wrecking crew and repair men live on trains that move here and there. At Field we left Alberta province and entered British Columbia. Thence we followed the Kicking Horse River, which immediately picked up water enough from melting snow to kick and roar down over mighty rocks. Tributaries came foaming down precipice and ravine to add to its volume, silver threads could be seen from snow line trickling down several thousand feet into the stream and water falls large and small were the order of the day. The Beaverfoot River took up the last mentioned which we followed until it lost itself in the Great Columbia River at Golden. This we followed to Beavermouth, thence along the Beaver River to another divide at Glacier, whence we followed the Fraser River and its tributaries to the sea. All the mountain people told us that there is more snow on the mountains than they have ever known. Even from the city here you can look up and see some small drifts in the deep crevices, but the climate here is delightful. I have not seen a thermometer, but I am sitting by a large open window, which I have not been able to do for a week. And the splendid twilight. The sun did not set until eight o'clock, and I continued reading my office until 8.40. It recalled to me what I saw at Killarney. The priest of the Cathedral going out into the garden at nine P. M. to read his office in June.

We are charmed with this young city that had one house in it thirty years ago. Now they claim 160,000. And its newness and elegant up-to-dateness, give it a dash and a swing that's catching. A three hour auto ride with a splendid guide showed it off to the best advantage. The flower display that this drive revealed, how tell you of it. Impossible. Entrances to town and fences, or premises around them running wild with roses, immense poppies of every shade, single and double like our peonies, daisies twice the size of ours and three feet high; both hydrangeas in full bloom, sweet peas eight and ten feet high, etc., etc., until we were dumbfounded. Finally the beach was reached, with crowd of bathers and lookers-on, then into never-to-be-forgotten Stanley Park we rolled. The chief beauty here is the primeval glory of the great Northwest. Mighty trees such as we had never seen, ferns twenty feet high. Our chauffeur broke one leaf off to measure it for us, and could I managed it I would have mailed it to Mr. John McCormick my neighbor friend to prove that this is not a fish tale, because I know he will accuse me of putting it on thick.

In this park as in all the parks I have visited along this slope in the picnic division they have a large store and grill, with a fire kept up by an attendant for the use of the public. Today it was surrounded by a busy crowd as we passed by. Tables, comfort stations, even a Red Cross building near beach, and grounds. A fine zoo, cricket and ball grounds, band stand, and a very pleasing feature is that some true Indian families had their homes here when the city took over these thousand acres, and there they live unmolested lending interest to the visitors. Their yards are bright with flowers, and garden full of vegetables. We found a wonderfully cosmopolitan population here.

Indian, (American and Hindus), Japs, Chinese inhabiting a central section of the city near the City Hall, Greeks, Italians, but only a very few negroes. The original wooden buildings of the infant town are giving way to the more substantial ones of stone and brick. Saturday, 6 A. M. The first street car has just rolled by, but no signs of life on the streets yet, although the sun is two hours shining. They have a wonderful tide here of ten feet normal, but often reaching fourteen feet. We saw it rolling in yesterday like the current of a rapid flowing river.

For some distance up the river where they could get a spot along the river we saw Indian settlements, each with its little cross crowned church and quaint little cemeteries with large wooden crosses. I am going shortly to the Cathedral, down among the hotels in the center of the business section to ask the privilege of holy mass, and our steamer for Victoria and Seattle leaves at 10 this morning. They are now catching salmon, and the canneries opened ten days ago. The most elegant fruit is on display in the most attractive way. That exposed to the air has an electric fan keeping it cool and all dust off it. Vegetables, the freshest, at wonderfully low prices, most attractive pastry windows and meats daintily displayed. Everything appears to predict a very great future for the city and we all like it. We left this attractive city with regrets by a magnificently appointed steamer for Victoria, but the wind was so cold (58°) that you could not remain on deck unless you found a chair in a protected spot, and such spots were scarce as the Shiner's reception night was on deck in Seattle and the boat was crowded. We had great fun watching the customs officers go through that multitude of grips, hand bags, dinner baskets etc. One of our party came near being hung up because the gate-man did not see the chalk mark on a certain suspicious looking bag she gripped very tightly. We are having many good old time laughs daily at quaint sights and experiences.

Victoria charmed the majority, but my heart was left in Vancouver hence do not expect me to dilate as I did on the last city. The Parliament building is a most beautiful building from every aspect. Immensely large, inspiring architecture, elegant stone, everything about it imposes and inspires. The large hotels near-by lend emphasis to the landing, as beautifully kept parks meet you at the landing. Many six and four horse tallyhoes meet you and tempt you to see the city. The steamer gives you two hours for the purpose—hence off we go, after high-stepping six to visit first the oriental town, where the Chinese young and old gave us a glimpse of Pekin or Canton. Then to the Nababs and their charmingly landscaped lawn. Oh! Oh! Oh! were the exclamations that broke from the sightseers, and your head was turning this side and that until you wished that you were bi-cephalus(?) that you might drink in beauty of effect on both sides.

The climate on the Pacific Coast melowed by the sea-breeze at 58°, is the most congenial to plant life, hence they can draw out perfection from God's choicest creations in flower and plant-life in general. Then just imagine all the flowers that you have ever seen in bed or book, in their most perfect form in such abundance and luxuriance as to entrance you and you have some idea of the lawns in Vancouver. Victoria, Seattle Tacoma Terrace, and trellis, fountains and rockeries, hanging baskets and boxes, running over with color and beauty until your mind is lost in contemplating the wonderful works of God, all to attract us to Him, in the most pleasing way. Glory be to His holy name! Seattle was reached after one of the most interesting water trips it has been my lot to enjoy. Paget Sound with its islands, straits, mountain surroundings etc., is an indelible gem of memory.

The hotel Butler took care of us for a day, which we spent automobiling it and surroundings, saw their beautiful fresh water lakes into which they have dug a canal from the harbor to admit the ocean-going steamers, but not Salt Water enough in opening the locks to interfere with the fresh water in cleaning the bottoms of sea weed, barnacles &c.

in a few hours, thus saving time and expense in scraping the bottoms in dry-dock. Then these lakes (now connected) add miles of water front of which I think they claim over one hundred miles. The marine drive like that at Vancouver is never to be forgotten, with the stop at the Cottage Hotel on the beach with its serving with tea and waffles, for those that wished them and, pull your own flowers while others were taking refreshments. But the dearest, quaintest, fairy-like hotel awaited us in Tacoma. It is the property of Mr. Blackwell and a veritable fairyland of flowers and cosiness. It is on a terrace facing the water, with a pavilion in garden the widest of verandahs running a whole city block which it occupies, wide enough to serve meals in the open, with hanging baskets, jardiniere, boxes ornamenting every nook and corner and archway and window and end of step, until finally your charmed and bewildered eyes get into the garden below you, to drink in more wonders of floriculture. At night this scene was made more fairy-like by countless electric lights red, white and blue, in streamers from the top of the building to the pavilion. I neglected to mention the elegant Cathedral in Seattle in which I had the privilege of celebrating the 7 o'clock mass last Sunday, and a million dollar hospital which the black-bonnet Sisters of Charity have built on a commanding sight.

Many other points might be taken up to show that Seattle, being the Northwest gateway into our country, and having such wonderful deep water front with abundance of fuel and raw material, by rail and water, is destined to be a great city, I must say that they are laying it out with an eye to this effect. The depot of the Great Northern R. R. is a thing of magnificence in colored marbles, with most every new and attractive appointment in its line even to splendid views six by eight feet of the leading scenes of beauty and attraction on its line. This road has developed one section of the city after another on the grandest scale, and has helped wonderfully to the making of its future.

Two hours in train brought us to Tacoma. Here it was my very good fortune to fall into the hands of Father Brown, S. J., many years ago one of our Baltimore boys. He has built a large day college here, and is rector of St. Leo's. After Mass and breakfast we had a good old talk of home. He asked after the Carrolls, Lees, Horsey, O'Donovan's, Mrs. Lanahan, St. Charles' new sight, Guilford, Catonsville, where he tells me he has a brother living, Ten Hills, the New Church &c., &c. An auto trip through the residential section which is a high bluff overlooking the Sound, again bewildered us with its beauty, and when the park was reached—first prize was awarded by our party for arrangement, design, combination, and beauty of effect. We left there with regrets just in time to keep from losing our train for Portland.

EMMITSBURG BEATS FAIRFIELD

Final Score 25 to 3.—Annan Pitches Finely.—Splendid Spirit Prevails. Emmitsburg defeated Fairfield last Friday afternoon, 25 to 3. Fairfield's two pitchers were unable to do anything with Emmitsburg's batters, except "let 'em hit it." The locals chalked up 21 hits during the fray.

Whitely Annan fanned 13 of the Pennsylvanians and allowed but four hits, two of them coming in the ninth session. Two of Fairfield's 3 runs were scored on errors.

The game served to boost the batting averages of nearly all local players, and to show the fans how far the boys can knock that old ball.

The contest, though one-sided, was one of the friendliest ever played. The best of feeling prevailed among the players, and fans will be anxious to see these teams cross bats in the near future. The score:

EASTLAND'S DEAD FIXED AT 1,239.

That Number of Lives Lost In Chicago Excursion Steamer Disaster.

The excursion steamer Eastland which rolled over on its dock in Chicago last Saturday morning resulted in the loss of over 12,000 lives. The boat was one of a number chartered to take the employees of an electric company on an outing. The boat which during certain seasons of the year was not allowed to carry many over 450 passengers held on board at the time of the disaster about 2,500. Six separate investigations have been under way and their outcome is expected to throw light on some glaring irregularities that permitted the frightful calamity.

Mixed-Ales Lose.

The Mixed-Ales—a nine composed of former local stars of the diamond—and the regular team played a twilight game on Tuesday evening which was witnessed by a large crowd. The score was 12 to 3 in favor of the regulars. The "has-beens" had one bad inning—the first—after which they played a fine quality of ball. Fans are eager for another game between these nines.

Has Arm Broken While Cranking Car.

While on his way to the funeral of Mrs. Martin L. Baker, of Liberty township, last Friday, Mr. Albert Baker, of near Taneytown, had his arm broken while cranking his car. Mr. Baker stopped over in Emmitsburg for a few minutes before continuing on his way to the home of Mrs. Baker and it was here the accident occurred. The injury did not bother Mr. Baker at first and it was not until after Mrs. Baker's funeral that he went to Fairfield and had Dr. N. C. Trout set the break. The arm was fractured at the wrist.

Goulden Memorial Service.

A memorial service to the late Hon. Joseph A. Goulden, will open the eighteenth Annual exhibition of the Maryland State Grange Association, to be held at Taneytown, August 10-14. Hon. Joseph A. Goulden was born in Mt. Pleasant township, but left Adams county when a young man. He became prominent in political affairs in New York in later years, and at one time was representative in congress from New York City. Mr. Goulden was a frequent visitor to Taneytown. His death occurred in Philadelphia last winter and his body was brought to Taneytown for burial.

East Berlin Railroad Sold.

The East Berlin railroad question was settled last Friday when the citizens of East Berlin and Abbottstown represented by D. E. Brandt, U. L. Gladfelter, Samuel Sowers and Dr. T. C. Miller, purchased the equipment of the railroad, for $8,000. The road will be put into operation in the near future and be run much the same as heretofore. The track between Abbottstown and East Berlin, which has been torn up, will be relaid and work will likely start immediately.

Thieves Busy Again.

After visiting many neighboring towns thieves have been busy during the past week in the vicinity of Fairfield. The chicken farm of Clyde Musselman, at the edge of the town, was visited Wednesday night, but the would be thieves failed to get any of his flock. At the residence of Mrs. John Hoofnagle some canned fruit was stolen and the wood shed of J. Bell Weaver was entered and two pairs of shoes and some other articles were missing.

The British coin known as the guinea was last issued in 1813.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingonore Hills and the Catoclin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

No people are more wide-awake, more knowable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatched; the climate is notably healthful; its water—pure mountain spring water—cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards.

Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary—with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years—is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies—equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid achievement—is also here.

There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liverys, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oiled streets.

There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites available. If you contemplate changing your place of residence—come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md.

THE GRANGE.

Every recurrence of the State Grange Fair near Taneytown should remind the farmers of this district that in the matter of co-operation they are behind the times, they are losing opportunities, or rather letting opportunities pass them by. Time and time again have we suggested a grange for Emmitsburg, time after time have we advocated it, showing the advantages to be gained by the association of men following one like pursuit. As yet nothing definite has come of it. We cannot believe that this apathy will continue and we are encouraged in our view for the reason that several energetic and enterprising farmers have recently expressed a willingness to join with others in forming a local association for the advancement of their interests.

To these men we say the time is at hand. Let them, ten more or less, attend the Grange in Ohler's Grove, Aug. 10-14, meet the officers of that Grange and obtain from them all the information necessary for the purpose of organizing, and then—start. Taneytown Grange will welcome them—it is a common interest—and it will render every assistance for the accomplishment of this excellent purpose.

The CHRONICLE stands ready to help. It will give publicity to all matters pertaining to or in anywise beneficial to the project and it predicts that if a local grange is started it will be a success.

PICNIC TIME.

It is the jolly picnic time when lads and lassies meet, and speak and taste and think of things proverbially sweet. It is the time when orators address both knight and beauty, and talk of chivalry revived and prate of civic duty. It is the time when candidates 'mid shouts and din of bands, endeavor to explain to one exactly where they stand. It is the time when phosphate fiends and various other sellers, talk "business" to the farmers and much else to other fellers. It is the time when gaudy lighting rods with kinks are offered, and folks are in the humor to shell out for most that's proffered. It is the time when swains drive but "the best blood in the state," and show their rivals that no team can come up to their gait. It is the time to overload, to dance, to over eat, and no one—aint it passing strange?—at picnics feels the heat. It is the jolly picnic time, the fever's in the air, and soon—'twill be the same old thing—will come the county fair.

CORPORATE CRIMINALITY.

Corporate criminality is worse than individual criminality and when analyzed, monetary gain is usually found to be at the bottom of it. Some semblance of pity can be elicited for an ignorant degenerate who, unbalanced in mind and perhaps frenzied by passion, opens a switch and causes a wreck, although the horror is none the less appalling. When a steamship company, however, deliberately allows thousands of passengers to over-crowd upon a boat that it knows to be unseaworthy under even normal conditions, condemnation of that act knows no bounds. It is wholesale murder, deliberate murder—and for gain. Excuse for the Eastland disaster, there is none, and it is to be hoped that full punishment will be meted out to those upon whom the responsibility rests.

WE have heard of enterprising farmers who crossed honey bees with fire flies so that the former would work at night, and of truck gardeners who crossed strawberry plants with milk weed in order to get strawberries and cream; but now comes a scientist who advocates arc electric lights in vegetable gardens under the plea that they give off carbonic acid gas, a natural plant food. Why not cross hogs and centipedes and have a hundred hams on every porker? We believe in intensive farming.

WHY doesn't some enterprising magazine employ an artist to draw a picture of one of those balky-horse-power runabout machines (one that has been coaxed to run about a mile and has then stopped) and offer a prize to the subscriber who supplies the words issuing from the mouth of the owner of the car?

THERE is everything in the way one goes about it—goes about work, we mean. Work has to be done; there is no getting away from that. The one who is glad of the opportunity, who makes his work a companion, is a man. One who treats it as a task, as drudgery pure and simple, makes of himself a slave.

"LIFE" has discovered that the first talking-machine factory was established in the Garden of Eden. Real life has proved this to be correct. Maybe the demand for Esperanto had its origin in that Tower of Babel episode.

GET your bait supply ready for next season—"the Bureau of Fisheries has added 4,376,657,963 fish to the piscatorial population of the country."

So bitter is the feeling that 'tis said Germans now refuse to play billiards on account of having to use English on the balls.

"THE Massachusetts cranberry crop will be short this year"—That's all right, just so there will be plenty of turkeys.

"Kaiser's Son Writes Book"—And he didn't ask Col. Watter-son to supply the preface.

"$50,000 Banana Suit"—Some apparel! Back to the woods with the Palm Beach creation.

TRULY this is the season of "battle, murder and sudden death."

Good Reply.

The teacher was drilling the class in mental arithmetic.
"Now, boys," he said, "here is an easy one. A man desiring to go into business borrows $1,000,000 at 15 per cent for four years. What's the result? Quick!"
Fifteen hands shot up and fifteen voices shouted in chorus:
"The man goes broke."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Peter's Version.

On the last day of school prizes were distributed at Peter's school. When the little boy returned home the mother was entertaining callers.
"Well, Peter," asked one of the callers, "did you get a prize?"
"No," replied Peter, "but I got horrible mention."—New York Times.

Bluff.

"Bah!" sneered the blustering man. "Bluff is the thing. A man can bluff his way through life."
"But," said the conservative, "if you couldn't swim and fell in you couldn't bluff the river for a second."—Livingston Lane.

And No Wonder.

"What made that stout woman so furious?"
"Just as she was getting on the subway train the gateman said 'Both gates, lady.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Our Neighbor.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt. It is every one with whom we are brought into contact, whoever it be, whom we have any means of helping.—Dean Stanley.

A Fair Return.

Grocer—Your bill's up to $20, Hank.
Hank Jones—Well, here's a dollar.
Grocer—What! Only a dollar? Hank—Only a dollar! And ain't that 5 per cent on your investment?—Puck.

Mrs. Grant's Retort.

The Grant administration brought a brilliant throng of military officers to the capital, and the young people of the president's family—he had a daughter and several sons—made the White House gay. Mrs. Grant was plain in appearance, unpretentious in manner, but genuinely hospitable and quicker witted than she was generally given credit for being.

Addressed in French by a young diplomat at one of her receptions, she responded in English.

"Ah!" said the blustering foreigner, attempting to be facetious. "Madame does not speak French? How surprising! In Europe all the ladies of the upper class speak French and generally two or three other languages besides."

"I know," said Mrs. Grant dryly, "and can understand why this must be on a continent divided into so many small kingdoms, some of them smaller than our smallest states, each speaking a different language, but in our great, united country, one language only is spoken from end to end of it. We need no other."

The abashed foreigner retired.—Exchange.

The "Dominion" of Canada.

We are accustomed to take the expression of the "Dominion" of Canada for granted, but the original of that somewhat unusual word is known to very few. When at length the great scheme of Sir John Macdonald was realized, and the nine provinces grouped themselves together into one great confederation, a serious difficulty was presented by the choice of a suitable name. For a time almost a deadlock ensued.

At length one old member of parliament rose from his seat and told his colleagues that he had read in his Bible that very morning the words, "His dominion shall be from the one sea to the other." Accordingly he suggested that Canada should be known as the Dominion, or God's Land. The suggestion seized upon the hearts and imaginations of those present, and it was promptly acted upon.—Fall Mall Gazette.

In the Stocks.

In England the punishment of the stocks has been inflicted within the memory of men now living. In the Manchester Guardian of June 14, 1872, there is an account of a man enduring this form of punishment at Newbury. He was a rag and bone dealer of intemperate habits and was fixed in the stocks for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. "Twenty-six years had elapsed since the stocks were last used," states this account, "and their reappearance created no little sensation and amusement, several hundreds of persons being attracted to the spot where they were fixed." The "amusement" does not appear to have been shared by the prisoner, who was released after four hours and "seemed anything but pleased with the laughter and derision of the crowd."

Truth Persists.

The prejudices of one age are condemned even by the prejudices of the succeeding ages. The truth haters of every future generation will call the truth haters of another generation by their true names—for even these the stream of time carries onward. In fine, truth, considered in itself and in the effects natural to it, may be considered as a gentle spring or water course, warm from the genial earth and breathing up into the snowdrift that is piled up and around its outlet. It turns the obstacle into its own form and character and as it makes its way increases its stream. And should it be arrested in its course by a chilling season it suffers delay, not loss, and waits only for a change in the wind to awaken again and roll onward.—Taylor Coleridge.

Painting and Music.

Whereas, while polish, refinement, culture and breeding are in no way arguments for artistic result, it is also no reproach to the most finished scholar or greatest gentleman in the land that he be absolutely without eye for painting or ear for music—that in his heart he prefer the popular print to the scratch of Rembrandt's needle, or the songs of the hall to Beethoven's C minor symphony.—James MacNeill Whistler.

Badly Shrunk.

The loser of an election bet in Baltimore one time had to wheel the winner several miles in a wheelbarrow, with the provision that every time the man stopped to rest five inches were to be cut off the legs of his trousers. He stopped four times.

Yonkers.

Patron Van der Donck, in the years after 1642, lived such a serene and robust life on his Hudson river estate that the Dutch villagers called his manor farm "De jonkheer's land"—the gentleman's land, later compressed by the frugal English into Yonkers.

A Mighty Splash.

When a 12-inch shell strikes the water it throws up a "splash" higher than a battleship's mast. This "splash" weighs about 2,000 tons, enough to drown a small ship.

Professional Jealousy.

"Guess I'll have to get rid of one of my household treasures."
"How so?"
"The parrot is jealous of the phonograph."—Puck.

Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much. Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.—Cowper.

The Vanishing Road.

We are all treading the vanishing road of a song in the air, the vanishing road of the spring flowers and the winter snows, the vanishing roads of the winds and the streams, the vanishing road of beloved faces. But in this great company of vanishing things we feel that there is a reassuring comradeship. We feel that we are the units in a vast ever moving army, the vanguard of which is in eternity. The road still stretches ahead of us. For a little while yet we shall experience all the zest and bustle of marching feet. The swift running seasons, like couriers bound for the front, shall still find us on the road, and shower on us in passing their blossoms and their snows. For a while the murmur of the running stream of time shall be our fellow wayfarer—till, at last, up there against the sky line, we, too, turn and wave our hands, and know for ourselves where the road wends as it goes to meet the stars. And others will stand as we today and watch us as we disappear, and wonder how it seemed to us to turn that radiant corner and vanish with the rest along the vanishing road.—From "Vanishing Roads," by Richard Le Gallienne.

Siberian Signal Men.

It is probable that nowhere save in Siberia are convicts employed in any service pertaining to the operation of railways. In that place of exile there are many "good conduct" men, who spend their lives in little huts along the line of railway, always a verst apart, whose duty it is to signal with green flags that the road is clear. At night they signal with a green lamp.

If the traveler stands between the railway cars at midnight he may tick off the green lights as the train spins along. Away down the black avenue will appear a tiny green speck. As the cars proceed this speck will become larger and larger, and finally the figure of a man holding up the lamp is distinguishable in the darkness. And there are thousands of these men along the line. A signal started today in Moscow runs for eleven days, until it is broken on the banks of Lake Baikal, beyond Irkutsk.—Minneapolis Journal.

Hard Water.

Do you realize how hard water is when a boat sails through it at full speed? Water passing at fifty miles an hour is not the limpid liquid we are accustomed to bathe in. If you put your arm overboard from a hydroplane running fifty miles an hour and strike a wave crest the probability is that you will break your arm or wrist, because at that speed the water has not time to give or even to change shape, and striking it is like striking so much metal.

If a swordsman should enter one of the great hydraulic quarries, where a stream of water under enormous head is used to wash down hillsides, and attempt to cut into one of those streams his sword would fly in pieces without being able to penetrate the water. The stream is like a bar of iron.

Queer Postage Rates.

The city of Christobal, in the canal zone, is separated from the city of Colon, in the republic of Panama, by a street only. One side of the street is in one city, the other side in the other city. A boy or girl living in Christobal can for 2 cents send a letter all the way to New York, or farther yet, to San Francisco. Or if he wants to send it a long, long way a two cent stamp will carry a letter from Christobal to Alaska or Hawaii or Guam or even halfway around the world to the Philippine Islands. But suppose that boy or girl wants to send a letter across the street to some friend in Colon. How much postage must he use? Why, 5 cents, of course! It doesn't seem quite right, does it?—St. Nicholas.

It Certainly Was.

"And you are afraid of the dark, Tommie?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"But there's nothing in the dark to hurt you."
"Well, what's pop limping around for?"
"Oh, he fell over a chair when he came home late last night."

"Well, that was in the dark, wasn't it?"—Yonkers Statesman.

The Grocer's Euphemism.

"Why is it that the berries at the bottom of your boxes are always so much smaller than those at the top?" asked Mrs. Newlywed.

"Ah, madam," said the grocer, "you don't put it quite correctly. You should ask why the berries at the top of the box are so much larger than those at the bottom."—Judge.

The Wasp.

It is said that the male wasp does not sting, but as the male and female wasps wear the same kind of poison and look as much alike as twins the only way to distinguish their sex is to catch one. If it stings it is a female; if not, it is a gentleman wasp.

Cossacks as Riders.

When crossing rivers the Cossacks, to avoid getting wet, throw the left stirrup leather across the saddle and the right stirrup leather in the opposite direction. Then, placing their feet in the reversed stirrups, they stand up right.

Better Stay at Home.

A married man may better stay at home in the evening and agree with his wife's opinions than go uptown and me-too to all the fool theories men advance.—Toledo Blade.

Doing is the great thing, for if resolutely people do what is right in time they come to like doing it.—Ruskin.

Food Value of Cheese.

Cheese is wholesome and a very valuable food. It is rich in proteid and can be used as a substitute for meat. One pound of cheese is equal in proteid to two pounds of beef. Cheese is indigestible if eaten raw. This may be somewhat overcome by cooking it and adding a small amount of bicarbonate of sodium. An admirable way of eating cheese is by combining it with macaroni. It is enjoyable served in the form of Welsh rabbit. To prepare Welsh rabbit use the following ingredients: One tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of cornstarch, half a cupful of thin cream, half a pound of sharp or mild cheese (as may be preferred) cut in small pieces, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard, a few grains of cayenne and toast. Melt the butter, add the cornstarch, stir until well mixed, then add the cream gradually, cook slowly for ten minutes, season and serve poured over toasted bread.

Ancient Diamonds.

The discoverer of diamonds is unknown. From references in Exodus it is apparent that the diamond was a precious stone in Egypt in those early times, and even before that it was known in India, where probably it was first obtained. The name is derived from the Greek word "adamas," meaning "unsubduable."

From Pliny, a writer of the first century, we learn that the diamond was regarded as the most valuable of all things and only a few kings ever could afford to buy them. But as no means of artificial polishing had been discovered the stone depreciated in value, so that the ruby and the emerald became more precious. The discovery by Ludwig van Berquen in 1476 of a mode of polishing and cutting it at once returned this gem to the first place among precious stones.—Chicago Herald.

A Curious Beetle.

The little bombardier beetle because preyed upon by larger beetles of its own family has been armed by nature with what is practically a miniature cannon. When attacked the bombardier beetle turns and makes off, but if overtaken by the larger insect—bang!—and an acid fluid is shot from glands situated in the tip of its tail onto the enemy beetle. The acid when ejected vaporizes upon reaching the air and thus gives the effect of a puff of smoke from a gun, while at the same time a small but distinct report, like a tiny cannon, is heard. The bombardier beetle is a rapid firer, too, for the discharge can be repeated in quick succession, and thus the little insect keeps off his larger foes until he can scurry into a convenient hole in the soil or find shelter under a stone.—Atlanta Journal.

This Happened In New York.

"No spik English," gesticulated Hafiz with rising excitement, looking rather wildly about for an interpreter, down at the Seamen's Church Institute on South street. Arab translators are not frequent about the institute, and the man behind the desk down in the savings department was distinctly mystified, says the Lookout.

"He won't take this money; it's interest on the gold he deposited with us a year ago," he explained at last to a glittering eyed man from Bagdad who finally came to the rescue.

"On, no, he can't; Mohammedans—they can't—any of them. It is against their religion to take interest. Hafiz, he very good, very devout," protested the interpreter. And Hafiz went away, virtuously content.

Antimony.

The use of antimony is to harden the softer metals, such as tin and lead, in the manufacture of shrapnel shells, babbitt for machinery bearings, type metal and castings of all kinds. In its pure state it cannot be employed for any useful purpose, owing to its extreme brittleness. Its value in alloying, however, is great, not only because it hardens metal, but because of its low melting point.

Aroused His Curiosity.

"I'm sorry I told the boss that he couldn't get along without me. I just aroused his curiosity."

"Aroused his curiosity?"
"Yes. He was curious to know if what I said was so and decided to make the experiment."—Detroit Free Press.

To Her Mother.

Dear Dearest Mother.—This is the hotel at which we are stopping, and I have made a cross over the window of our room. Harry is the dearest, sweetest, darlingest, best husband in all the world, as I told you that he would be. Now we are going out for a walk. I am so proud of him.

BELLE.

To Her Maid of Honor

Dearest May.—I am writing this with a pencil, on the beach, a picture of which you see on the other side. Such a beautiful place! Harry is sitting at my feet smoking. O, May, he is such a dear! I cannot hope for anything better for you than that your Joe will be just like my Harry.

BELLE.

To Her Sister

Sissy Darling.—This is a picture of a tree under which we are sitting. Such a beautiful place! Harry has been reading to me, but has fallen asleep on the grass—dear boy! He is such a dear! I am sure that you will all be proud to have him in the family. The hotel is fine. Such delicious ice-cream for luncheon to-day. I am so happy.

BELLE.

To Harry's Mother

Dearest Mother.—Harry says that I must call you mother now, and of course I want to do everything Harry says for me to. I owe you ten million debts of gratitude for rearing him into such a splendid man. This is a picture of an old well from which we have just had a drink of water. Harry has gone off a little ways to find some wild violets for me. He just lives for me Your daughter.

BELLE.

To Aunt Mary

Dearest Auntie.—Just a line to tell you that I have the dearest and best husband in the world. We have been married five whole days, and he is just perfect. We are getting to be old married folks, aren't we? This is a picture of a house said to be more than one hundred years old. Washington stopped here. We are so happy it seems as if it can't last.

BELLE.

To Her Father

Dear Papa.—This is a picture of a lake that we can see from the window of our room. I thought you would be interested in it because you love the water so. Harry is taking a nap, and I am hardly breathing for fear I disturb him. He is such a dear, and I know you will feel proud to have him for a son. The hotel is very good. Had such nice green peas and spring lamb to-day. I thought of you, for I know how you like them.

BELLE.

To One of the Bridesmaids

Dear Helene.—I promised to write you, and you see I am keeping my word. This is a picture of a mountain not far from here. We can see it plainly when it is clear. O, Helene, Harry is just what I knew he would be—the best husband in all the world! When you are married come to this place for your honeymoon. The hotel menu is almost as good as a regular New York hotel. We are perfectly happy.

BELLE.

To Her Uncle Henry

Dear Uncle.—You see I have not forgotten you, even if I am an old married woman and have been away from home a whole week. This is a picture of a famous old horse in this neighborhood. I thought of you as soon as I saw this picture. You are so fond of horses. Harry sends love. He is the dearest of dears. He has just gone for a little walk. It has been raining, and he didn't want me to go with him for fear I got my feet wet. He is so thoughtful about me. What a lucky girl I am!

BELLE.

THE CROWNING TOUCH.

Suddenly, to their no small consternation, the Gods were confronted with that revolution in social ideals whereby mere motherhood ceased to be looked upon with favor.

Naturally, it would be no longer practicable to have a sucker born every minute. How was the deficit to be made up that business in the largest sense might not be caused to suffer too much?

"Let's," remarked the Gods shrewdly, "try the device of rendering each sucker more so!" Such the origin of the get-rich-quick obsession—by its instrumentality the available supply of the suckers was made to go much further.

UNITIES.

The Rhine Maidens ate potatoes and all manner of starchy foods. "In order to preserve the unities!" they explained.

"The unities!" repeated the then world, in great perplexity.

"Yes. Only very stout songstresses will be able to do full justice to the trilogies and things which are destined to be written about us!" declared the Rhine Maidens with prophetic discernment.

A LOST HEIRLOOM.

"There is no gout in Sir Percy's family, is there?"

"Not now; there was formerly. It was introduced into the family by Sir Roland Highliver, but they have been so miserably poor for the last two hundred years that they couldn't keep it up."

All grave digging in Mountain View Cemetery must be done by John Glass, caretaker. No other persons will be permitted to dig graves therein.

Few Visitors at Pen Mar.

Reports from Pen Mar say that so far, this has been the dulllest year this popular mountain resort has known for a long time. There are not the usual people in the boarding houses and the daily excursions do not bring as many persons to the mountain. It is believed that the falling off is due to the depression in manufacturing and business circles in the cities.

In Person or by Mail

Can't you "sense" the atmosphere of a store the moment you enter it?

People tell us they like to shop here because it is a friendly store—because they find not only splendid merchandise and fair prices, but they find also cordiality, courtesy and helpfulness.

In addition to the fact that our stocks are the largest and best selected in Baltimore, that our prices are always reasonable, and usually lowest on similar grades of merchandise, and that every article sold is subject to return if unsatisfactory, there are a number of other very good reasons why you will like to do your shopping here.

Pay this store a visit the next time you come to Baltimore. Or test our Mail Shopping Service to-day.

Whatever It All Means.

A special convocation of that superb society, the Lyres' Club, was called recently, the occasion being one of extraordinary consequence and fraught with formidable significance. A numerous audience thronged the assembly apartment when the entertainment proper began with pantomime paean classics effected in quantitative relations of force issuing from pedal propellers. No parsimony esculents was noticeable, and for this conclave the entire membership was mobilized to a new rendezvous.

Change In Parcel Post Zones.

Postmaster General Burleson has amended the parcel post regulations under which travel distances and not an air line as heretofore will be used in computing parcel post zone rates.

It was found that places that might be within the second zone of a given city by air line, were from 300 to 350 miles away by postal routes. In the future such places will be computed as in the third zone.

Letters To The Editor.

[The Editor would have it understood that he is not responsible for the views expressed in communications addressed to him and published in THE CHRONICLE.]

No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

Mr. Editor:

Pending the awakening of sufficient interest in our community to get the extension of the Electric Railroad into our midst why can't we induce Mr. Sheets to put on a larger bus to Thurmont and to likewise provide freight service to and from Thurmont.

Mr. Sheets now maintains an auto service that is very good and in a great measure is a splendid way for our people to get quicker service to and from Frederick, but it can't take the place of an electric railroad with its frequent service.

The great amount of local freight that comes into our midst seems to have inspired a desire on the part of a very energetic person in Frederick to run a freight bus to our town.

He hauls large loads of freight but the service is not dependable. He only runs when it suits him and has no regular schedule and only runs when he has a load; pending our getting any better service why not get a freight bus service that will be worth something to our people.

We must have the Electric Road, but it seems that it takes some time before our people get ready to act, so in the meantime why not improve and enlarge the auto services?

Anybody to second the motion?
OCCASIONAL.

FARMERS NEED CROP INSURANCE.

Now that the harvest is made and the grain is stored away in the barns waiting for a favorable market, it is of the utmost importance that the farmers of the district take out short term crop insurance policies. The rates are low and the consciousness that one is protected in any event more than compensates for the small outlay. Every farmer in the district—especially at this season of the year—should take out insurance on his crop. Crop insurance is only one of the forms of insurance issued by the Emmitsburg Insurance Agency. For rates and full information apply to the Emmitsburg Savings Bank or at the CHRONICLE Office. Or address Lock Box 181. adv.

Cardinal Gibbons Eighty-One.

Cardinal Gibbons was 81 years old last Friday and he spent the day quietly as a guest of Mr. T. Herbert Shriver at his home near Union Mills, Carroll county.

The Cardinal spent the day as he spends most of his days when at the Shriver home. He said mass in the domestic chapel at 8 o'clock. There was a dinner in his honor at midday. Those present besides the Cardinal and the members of the Shriver family were the Rev. Joseph C. Mallon, of Westminster, and the Rev. John S. Cuddy, of Taneytown.

In the afternoon the Cardinal sat on the porch in front of the Shriver home and read some of the messages of congratulation sent him. He then took an automobile ride and returned later to the house to spend the evening in reading and meditation.

SEEDING TIMOTHY ALONE IS HIGHLY RECOMMENDED.

Improved Quality Of Hay and Higher Yield Result From That Practice.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It has long been the custom in Maryland to sow timothy with wheat in the fall, adding clover in the late winter or early spring. The seed is placed in the grass-seed attachment of the grain drill and allowed to fall either behind or in front of the hoes, usually in front. This method of seeding is cheap and gives fairly good results in Garrett, Alleghany, Washington and Frederick counties. In the other timothy growing counties this method is unsatisfactory, except on fertile soil in a high state of cultivation. The low yields and poor quality thus obtained are not due so much to poor germination and poor stand in the spring after seeding as to the growth of weeds.

Where the old way of seeding timothy does not give satisfactory results the only remedy is sowing the timothy, or timothy and clover, alone in early fall, not with a grain crop. The plan is to seed the wheat without the timothy in the fall and the clover in the spring; then, as soon as possible after harvest, the stubble should be plowed down and very firm, finely pulverized seed bed prepared. This, to be sure, will involve an extra plowing and preparing of the seed bed, but the increased yield and quality of hay more than pays for the extra labor. A full crop will be ready for cutting the next June or July, which will be the same time as if it had been seeded with the wheat, the stubble of which was plowed down. Timothy may also follow such crops as early potatoes, early tomatoes, cow peas cut for hay, etc.

If fertilizer is sown with the grass, then seeding with the grain drill as when sowing with wheat in the fall, is by far the most economical way of seeding. But the chances for getting a perfect stand are greatly increased if the seed is dropped behind the hoes and a light harrow or weeder run over the field for covering. On soils not subject to much washing or baking after heavy rains, the seed may be dropped in front of the hoes and a roller run over the field to assist in covering. This firms the soil around the seed and brings the moisture to the surface, which adds greatly to the chances of getting a good stand.

Where fertilizer is not sown with the grass the seeding can be done more quickly with a wheelbarrow seeder, covering with a spike tooth harrow or weeder, and, wherever conditions permit, following with the roller.

POULTRY PROFITS DEPEND ON PROPER FEEDING.

Do your hens have free range? If they do, are they able to pick up feed on this range? If so what kind of feed do they get? These are a few of the questions you will have to consider before you can feed your hens intelligently. Hens require certain things in their feed. They get some of these things naturally and some have to be supplied from the feed bin. You may think that proper feeding of poultry is merely giving them what they will clean up properly, but this is far from right.

MAKING HEALTHY GROWTH.

We have obtained good results with corn, 250 lbs., wheat bran 100 lbs., middlings 100 lbs., beef scraps 50 lbs., and salt 1 1/4 lbs., as a feed for hens which are confined in a small yard. But suppose these same hens were running out on a large range in the spring time where they could pick up worms and insects all day, do you think they would require the same feed? For example take meat, the most expensive ingredient in the feed. Would it be necessary to give them so much when they are picking up meat all day in the form of insects and worms?

Then supposing you cheapen your ration during the spring time by cutting down on the meat feed, what are you going to do next fall and winter when the natural meat supply cannot be obtained by the birds? Will you keep on feeding nothing but grain feeds, like so many do, or will you put in some of the meat that the birds require for egg production? Hens cannot lay eggs unless they have the raw material out of which to manufacture them. In the spring-time they get meat feed naturally and lay eggs. In the fall and winter they cannot lay eggs unless you give them meat in some form.

Note:—The various forms of milk can be used to supply the animal or meat feeds spoken of above. Nothing is better as a feed for laying hens or growing chicks Roy H. Walte
