NEW MINISTER OF CHINA PROMINENT

Dr. Koo Recently Named Envoy to Mexico, Cuba and Peru.

A GRADUATE OF COLUMBIA.

One of the First Students Sent to America by China Through Boxer Rebellion Indemnity—Has Host of Professional Friends, Also Good Knowledge of International Law.

Washington.—Dr. Vi Kyuin Wellington Koo, who was recently appointed as the Chinese minister to the United States, succeeding Kai Fu Shah, is a graduate of Columbia university, where he received his doctor's degree. He was one of the first students sent to America by the government of China through the Boxer rebellion indemnity, remitted by the United States, and acquitted himself with great credit. He is well known in New York and includes among his friends many leaders in educational, professional and financial circles.

The new envoy attended St. John's college, Shanghai, and was admitted to Columbia in 1904, where he took a prominent part in undergraduate life. He was editor in chief of the Columbia Spectator, the university daily paper, and was a member of the Columbia debating team which defeated Cornell in 1908. The student board of graduates included him as a member. He also took an active part in track athletics.

Dr. Koo was only recently named Chinese minister to Mexico, Peru and Cuba and passed through Washington on his way to London prior to taking up his official position. He was presented to Secretary of State Lansing at that time and discussed the Mexican situation with him.

As an undersecretary at the Chinese foreign office Dr. Koo was a member of the commission which conducted negotiations with the Japanese minister in Peking last spring. It is said that he is a close friend of President Yuan Shih Kai and is in sympathy with the latter's leaning toward a monarchical form of government for China.

The impression was gained here that Minister Koo's appointment came as a surprise to the present minister. It is said that Peking was dissatisfied with his reports of the attitude of the American government and public opinion in the United States during the Chino-Japanese negotiations. The legation repeatedly applied to the state department for aid and counsel at that time, but the United States took no action toward restraining Japan in her demands upon China.

In 1909 Dr. Koo was made master of arts and for three years thereafter studied under Dr. John Bassett Moore. The degree of Ph. D. was conferred upon him, and he acquired a wide reputation for his knowledge of international law.

While a student in New York city Dr. Koo was closely associated with work in Chinese American circles. He was editor of the Chinese Students' Monthly and as president of the Chinese Students' alliance did much to advance the interests of Chinese students in America.

Dr. Koo left America in April, 1912, to take up his duties as diplomatic secretary to President Yuan Shih Kai. The Chinese society gave him a luncheon on the eve of his departure.

While on the Pacific slope, entrusted with a government mission, he received word of his appointment as minister to Mexico.

At the recent Bankers' club luncheon in New York Dr. Koo said, "The Chinese people have a liking for Americans which is as intense as it is justified, and when I say this I do not speak on behalf of only a portion of the people."

Women More Forgetful.
Chicago.—Who is the more forgetful, man or woman? Samuel Kroes, who has been in charge of the La Salle street depot "lost and found" bureau for a number of years, indicts the feminine sex. Thousands of dollars in the trunks and depots of Chicago are represented in the articles forgotten every year, the majority by women. Many of great value are left through absent-mindedness.

DROP POLITE NOTES BETWEEN AIR FIGHTS

Aviators Observe All Courtesies When U. S. Air Man Is Taken.

Paris.—The sequel to the recently reported capture of James Bach, an American belonging to the French flying corps, shows that a certain feeling of brotherhood exists among the rival aviators who daily try to kill one another thousands of feet above the earth.

The day after the capture of Bach and the pilot accompanying him a German plane flew over an aviation camp near the one at which the captured fliers had been stationed and dropped an oriflamme, or banner, to which was attached a note saying in French that Bach and his companion had descended in German territory and that neither was wounded.

The message was picked up and dispatched to the camp with which Bach had been connected. There the note was received by Bert Hall, another American of the same escadrille, who is reported to have distinguished himself on the first day of the Champagne drive. Hall prepared a note of thanks, which the next day was dropped on a German aeroplane camp twenty miles behind the enemy's lines.

A few days afterward a 150 horsepower albatross biplane which had been maneuvering over French territory despite hot firing was forced to descend in a field adjoining the camp of a French escadrille. A bullet had penetrated the gasoline tank, gradually emptying it. The German pilot and observer were immediately captured by several air men, to whom they exclaimed smilingly in good French:

"This doesn't count; we only stopped to borrow a little gasoline."

The prisoners were just in time for dinner, and the officers' mess received them politely and talked aviation with them until the time came to turn them over to other authorities.

HIS EXPERIENCE A HANDICAP.

Sentenced to Help Jail Doctor For One Year—Penalty For Robbing.

Chicago.—George C. Wakeman, twenty years old, son of Edgar L. Wakeman, author and lecturer, will act as assistant to Dr. Irving L. Barnett, county jail physician, for the next year, by order of Judge Brothers in the criminal court.

The sentence was imposed after Wakeman pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing William Haldt of Glencoe, with whom he was out for a "good time."

Attorney Thomas J. Johnson, Wakeman's counsel, told the judge that the defendant had served three years in the medical department of the United States navy and had been honorably discharged.

SERVANTS MUST PASS TESTS.

Examinations Planned by Montclair Women—Wage Put at $25 a Month.

Montclair, N. J.—Work and wages for Montclair household servants are to be standardized. It is proposed by the local Housewives' league to have a central testing station, which will be conducted in co-operation with the board of education. Applicants for positions will be required to present themselves there and undergo tests in cooking, serving and other household accomplishments.

To those who pass the tests certificates will be awarded entitling them to employment at the rate of $25 a month where one servant is employed. The Housewives' league by a canvass of the women of the town has concluded that this is a fair wage. It is asserted that efficient help is available in Montclair, but because a system has not been maintained in the past many residents have gone out of town in search of servants.

NEGRO SALUTES "GHOST."

"Don't Tech Me!" He Says, Thinking Dead Man Walks.

North Wales, Pa.—Mistaken rumor prematurely killed off Hiram P. Hartzell, a business man of North Wales and former proprietor of the Central hotel. So, when he appeared in real life and colored Joe Ben was persuaded it was his ghost, the negro, encountering him at Souderton, appealingly said:

"Lawd, Mars. Hartzell, don't tech me! I never done nothin' to cross you."

Neighbors Fifty Years, Just Meet.

Bedford, Ind.—Although they lived within fifteen miles of each other all their lives, Frank McKnight of Orleans and Wesley McKnight of this city had not seen each other for fifty years until they met by chance. The former is seventy-seven years old and the latter eighty-one. They are cousins, the children of brothers.

MAN GIVES BLOOD VIA GLASS TUBES

Surgeons See Transfusion Without Linking of Arteries.

NEARLY ALWAYS SUCCEEDS.

Called Kempton-Brown Method and Is Said to Be a Cure For Acute Hemorrhages—Patients May Even Sit in Separate Rooms—Invented by Boston Physician.

Boston.—The transfusion of nearly a quart of blood from a man to a woman was among the mysteries revealed in one of the clinics which opened its doors to the clinical congress of surgeons. The new method, known as the Kempton-Brown method, was invented by Dr. A. R. Kempton, a Boston physician, and was demonstrated by Dr. E. P. Richardson and Dr. R. H. Miller at the Robert Brigham hospital.

The Kempton-Brown method of transfusing blood through glass tubes was used in a case of pernicious anemia. Although in this disease the treatment is only palliative, it is declared practically a cure for acute hemorrhages.

Unlike the old method, where the artery of one person was linked directly to the vein of the other, Dr. Kempton's invention permits the two patients to be separated, even to sit in different rooms. Venous instead of arterial blood is then directed into the glass tube, waxed with paraffin and carried, as in a bucket, to the patient.

This method, it is stated, offers three advantages—the arteries of the donor are not injured, the exact amount of blood can be measured, and the method practically always succeeds.

Another method of treating anemic patients was demonstrated at the Massachusetts General hospital by Dr. Roger I. Lee and Dr. Beth Vincent, who showed how the spleen might be removed. The two methods used together produce the best results.

One of the most important papers yet read in connection with the clinical congress was that of Dr. Charles F. Painter of Boston at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital. He explained to several hundred surgeons how that great bugaboo rheumatism was usually the result of poor teeth, of the cold that would not stay cured or of disordered tonsils, ears or other organs. The poison germ, he explained, was carried by the blood through the body until it lodged in the joint.

Dr. David Cheever performed an important cancer operation and explained that the one way to cure cancer was to take the growth out during its early stages.

COUPLE MARRIED 63 YEARS.

They Have Lived in Same California Town Since 1855.

Auburn, Cal.—Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Stevens of this city have celebrated their sixty-third wedding anniversary. They have been residents of Auburn for sixty years, or since 1855, and are the oldest pioneers, excepting Justice B. F. Gwynn.

Stevens, now quite feeble, was postmaster of Auburn under President Lincoln, being the first postmaster of the town. He was for forty years agent for the Western Union Telegraph company here and conducted a drug store for half a century, his son continuing the business after he retired. He has served as a supervisor and as city trustee. Stevens is eighty-seven years old and Mrs. Stevens is seventy-nine.

THRONE 500 YEARS OLD.

Berlin Churches Celebrate Anniversary of Hohenzollern Rule.

Berlin.—All the churches of Berlin recently held services in commemoration of the five hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Hohenzollern rule over Brandenburg. The service in the cathedral was attended by Emperor William, Empress Augusta Victoria, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, many generals and admirals and the diplomatic corps, including the American ambassador.

The streets outside the cathedral were crowded by thousands of persons who could not gain admittance. Emperor William was cheered enthusiastically.

Murder Makes Tree Droop.

Thomasville, Ga.—There is an old pine tree beside a public road in Thomas county whose boughs all bend toward the ground. Legend has it that many years ago a man was murdered under it, and since that time the limbs have all grown downward. The colored folk attach much significance to the story and when passing always drive as far as possible on the opposite side of the road.

BEAR SAVES KEEPER FROM HUNGRY MATE

Driven Away After Attacking Prospective 200 Pound Meal.

New York.—An unscheduled performance of Androcles and the lion was staged recently in the Central park polar bear tank. Jim Coyle, the keeper, was Androcles. His namesake, Jim, the patriarch of the bear colony, played the lion, while his consort, Molly, was the crowd of wild animals of the arena, whose role was to eat the martyr.

At 2:15 o'clock p. m. Androcles, equipped with hip boots and a monkey wrench, went into the tank to repair the drain at the bottom. Jim and Molly retired upstage on the rocks and looked at him. Androcles went ahead with his work, bending over into the water, with his back to the animals. Androcles' 200 pounds caught Molly's eye.

An instant later she jumped, and it would have been all up with Androcles if Jim had remained a spectator. He jumped after Molly and caught her by the throat, while Androcles clambered out of the arena, with only a scratch on the back of his hand to show where the bear's teeth had grazed him.

Bill Snyder, head keeper, and his three assistants heard Androcles using strong language and hurried up with pointed iron bars. After five minutes' persuasion they separated the couple, while the martyr went into the police station to recuperate.

"That bear Jim," said Snyder, "has been here ten years and has never given us any trouble. Molly has been here six and keeps you guessing every minute. Yes, sir, bears are funny. You daren't turn your back on 'em—never."

WOODEN LEG SAVED HIM.

Farmer Escapes Serious Injuries in Fight With Bear.

Sunbury, Pa.—His wooden leg spared him severe injuries in a battle with a bear, according to John Davison, a Catawissa mountain farmer, who lives near the town of that name.

Davison, according to his story, was riding horseback along the Susquehanna river, which skirts dense mountain growths at this point, when he saw a black bear fishing in the Susquehanna. It would dive down and then come up with a fish in its mouth, he said.

Angry at his approach, Bruin dropped a fish and gave chase, but Davison drew his revolver and fired. He missed it, and the animal came on after him and bit and clawed at his wooden leg. He fired again, and then a freight train approached on a railroad near by. This, together with the tooting of the locomotive's whistle, cooled the brute's angry passions, and it dropped to its feet and ambled off, disappearing in the woods.

Trappers declare they have frequently seen bears in this territory, and the farmer exhibited a torn pair of trousers and lacerated wooden leg to gaping inquirers.

LEGLESS MAN A GOOD FARMER.

Does All Kinds of Work on His Place and Is Prospering.

Battle Creek, Mich.—As an example of pluck and energy consider Myron L. Briggs, Mr. Briggs, who has no legs, does practically every kind of farm work and is prospering.

Briggs is about forty-five years old, strong and healthy. He hitches up his three horse team and cuts his own hay, wheat and oats, then goes out and cuts more for neighbors who have no binder.

He can climb up a ladder over the high crossbeam into the hay mow and throw down or mow away hay almost as rapidly and as well as any able-bodied worker. He can hitch up his team and drive out into the field alone and plow or harrow all day, using seats on each implement. He rides a two horse cultivator and cultivates corn and potatoes by a hand stick attachment that operates two cultivator gangs.

Mr. Briggs lost both legs in a street car accident in Grand Rapids about sixteen years ago.

Head of University of Notre Dame Bakery Kept Careful Count.

South Bend, Ind.—Brother William, who estimates that he has baked approximately 20,000,000 breakfast buns, has completed his fifteenth year as the head of the bakery of the University of Notre Dame. He has kept careful count of the various eatables he has prepared since he began. The brother's family is about 1,500 while school is in session.

By Brother William's calculations he has mixed 32,850 barrels of flour and made 642,500 five pound loaves of bread, 16,425,000 cookies and almost 20,000,000 buns for breakfast.

LESS LABOR ON FUTURE FARMS

Dean Galloway Says More Machinery Will Be Used.

EDUCATION IS IN DEMAND.

Head of New York State Agricultural College at Cornell Gives His Conception of Rural Development—Looks Forward to Husbandry Without "Blight of Peasantry."

Albany, N. Y.—Beverly T. Galloway, dean of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell, spoke at the recent convocation of the University of the State of New York on "The School and the Farm of the Future." He outlined his conception of the future farm and its place in the life of the nation, then analyzed the forces which are making for rural development in this country and gave his ideas of the proper organization of these forces to secure a satisfying country life.

The great problem, according to Dean Galloway, was whether the United States would be able to develop a permanent agriculture without "peasantizing" those who must look to the land for a living. He said:

"Wherever is found a permanent and successful agriculture, measured merely by the maintenance of soil fertility and high average crop yields, there is found a peasantized and labor depressed people whose days are full of toil and whose minds have never been given much opportunity for growth.

"Even in this country more than a million farmers live and support their families on a labor income of less than a hundred dollars a year, and very little of this income actually comes to the farmer as money. So, despite all that has been said regarding the delights, the independence, the freedom and the self sufficiency of the farm, people are turning from it.

"While there has been a steady decrease in the percentage of our population engaged in agriculture, the per capita production of our staple crops has been increasing. This is primarily due to the utilization of machinery, making it practicable to more and more utilize horsepower and other power instead of man power.

"Despite the fact that in practically all other countries the intensity of the farming has increased with the density of population, this need not follow here. It would be unfortunate if it did follow, because an intensive agriculture has been practicable only where there is an oversupply of human labor. The bountiful crops from small areas have been made possible only by the toil and sweat of the man who, while he is able to produce these results, must do so at the expense of the mental, and I might almost say the moral, side of his being. This is agricultural peasantry in its worst form.

"The farm of the future will so utilize modern labor saving devices and efficiency methods that human labor will be reduced to a minimum, and the farmer and his children will have time, opportunity and means of living a satisfactory, wholesome life. It will probably mean a farm of average size.

"We may look forward to permanent husbandry, freed from the blight of peasantry, standing squarely for its place in the affairs of the nation, but recognizing its relations and responsibilities to other industries, and recognizing, further, that the fullest and best development of one can be attained only through the fullest and best development of all.

"The demand is for education that will teach the meaning of things and their relation to the present rather than the teaching of words and their relation to the past. I am not so much concerned with making more farmers as I am with making better ones.

"The school must concern itself more and more with the needs of the people and be more of a community center, with the teacher as a community builder. The mere introduction of 'agriculture' into the school will not accomplish the ends desired, and it must be fully realized that the school is not for the preparation of life, but is life itself."

HOPES TO REACH 112TH YEAR

Uncle Abe Saw General Jackson and Talks Like History Book.

Atlanta, Ga.—Uncle Abe Coulter of Lafayette, Ga., is going strong for his one hundred and twelfth year. He was born Jan. 7, 1804, at Jasper, Tenn.

He remembers seeing General Andrew Jackson and his army. He saw the Indians corralled at "Big Spring" at La Fayette in 1837 and tells strange stories of happenings when the section was occupied by Indians. To hear Uncle Abe talk is like turning the leaves of history.

TOWN IS REWARDED FOR ITS HOSPITALITY

Winchester, Va., Will Get $1,500,000 From Outcast.

Washington.—Because it showed hospitality to a stranger from Pennsylvania who was hated at home the city of Winchester, Va., sixty-two miles from Washington and boasting of a population of 7,000, will come into possession of a legacy of $1,500,000. It is the bequest of John Handley, an eccentric millionaire of Scranton, Pa., who died twenty years ago.

Behind the legacy is a story that dates back to the civil war, when the people of Scranton stoned Handley as a Confederate spy, down to the day a few months ago when Handley's executors informed Winchester that it was heir to the Handley fortune.

Handley's will provided that for twenty years his executors should administer the bulk of his estate in such a way that at the end of that period they could hand it over to the Virginia city for the "education of her poor."

In a separate bequest, handed over to Winchester soon after Handley's death, the old man left $250,000 for the erection and equipment of a public library, which is now in use.

The town will use the money to build what it aims to make the model high school of the United States.

BOYS SWARM WITH TREASURE.

Wall Street Meets Few Losses Through Young "Runners."

New York.—The boys who run around Wall and Broad streets every day with $100,000 or so of negotiable securities tied to their waists by steel chains increased in number so rapidly during the rush of trading that the brokerage houses established a fine system of espionage to prevent the loss of negotiable paper.

There are about 600 brokerage houses in the financial district, and probably every one of them took on two new runners, as the boys who carry securities to and from the banks and to the transfer offices are called.

When one of the boys yielded to the enticing voice of a snuffrage orator or the arguments of a prohibition campaign speaker and paused awhile with a fortune in his custody he was very apt to have a special policeman in plain clothes step up to him and tell him to be on his way.

Many brokers expressed amazement that with such large amounts in easily convertible securities floating about the streets no serious losses happened.

HARD WINTERS BEFORE US.

Meteorologist Who Predicted Rain Cycle Makes New Forecast.

Paris.—The world's rain cycle, beginning in 1902, which the French meteorological authority, Abbe Moreau, director of the French observatory, predicted as the result of his study of the sun's face, is now, the abbe says, ended. He forecasts a series, though not perhaps unbroken, of twenty-six hard winters, beginning the present year.

According to the abbe, it is impossible to say where in Europe the winter cold will be excessive, but probabilities are France will have to face many rigorous seasons during this period. He bases his prophecy regarding coming winter temperatures upon the supposition that the temperature curve all over the world can be calculated on the same principles as the world's rain curve.

LED A "DOG'S LIFE."

Saloon Keeper Tells Court He Slept in Room With Fifteen Canines.

St. Louis.—Sleeping in the room and the bed with as many as fifteen dogs is a dog's life, according to Edward Flader, a former saloon keeper, now living in Bellevue, who recently sued for divorce.

The dogs belonged to his wife, Ida; the petition stated. It is said that she also permitted chickens a free runway of the saloon, and when Flader attempted to drive out the dogs he says his wife threatened him with a club.

Old Gas Well Does Duty.

Napoleon, O.—A gas well sealed up in disgust twenty-seven years ago is now being used for lighting, heating and cooking purposes by former Sheriff D. W. Sangler on his farm near here. When his neighbors recently began using the gas from the Napoleon-Wauseon pipe line he recalled the abandoned well and had it cased and pipes laid to the house.

Cuts Third Set of Teeth.

Sandusky.—John Brooks, eighty-two, is getting his third set of teeth. Brooks is a civil war veteran and lives in Cottage M. Ohio Soldiers and Sailors' home. His grandmother, he says, cut her third set of teeth at ninety-four.

COMPLETION OF THE NEXT LEGISLATURE

Many New Faces.—On Joint Ballot It Will Stand Seventy-two Democrats, to Fifty-seven Republicans.

It is interesting to note the complexion of the next Legislature. There will be many new faces at Annapolis, not a few "hold-overs" and a sprinkling of "come-backs."

The newly elected Senators are: Anne Arundel—Frank M. Duvall, (Dem.), a member of the House of Delegates, 1914.

Baltimore City—William I. Norris (Dem.) First district; Peter J. Campbell (Dem.) Second district, one of the Legislative veterans of the State; George Arnold Frick (Dem.) Third district, the Preston leader in the 1914 House.

Baltimore County—Carville D. Benson (Dem.), long the undisputed spokesman of the "regulars" at Annapolis.

Calvert—Joseph E. Joy (Rep.), now a House member.

Carroll—Wade H. D. Warfield (Dem.), a business man of Sykesville, who ran on a platform of lower taxation and State fiscal reform, defeating R. Smith Snader, Republican Senator in 1912 and 1914.

Frederick—George L. Kaufman (Rep.) who succeeds "Uncle John" Mathias.

Howard—Richard A. Johnson (Dem.), brother-in-law of Arthur P. Gorman.

Kent—Henry Brown (Rep.), who defeated Senator William W. Beck for re-election.

Queen Anne's—J. Harry C. Legg (Dem.)

Somerset—George P. Parsons (Rep.)

Washington—Harvey S. Bomberger (Rep.)

Wicomico—L. Atwood Bennett (Dem.), a member of a former House.

Solid Republican delegations come to the House from Allegany, 6; Calvert, 2; Carroll, 4; Frederick, 5; Garrett, 3; Kent, 2; Washington, 5. From seven other counties Republican representation is: Caroline, 2 of 3; Cecil, 1 of 3; Prince George's, 2 of 4; St. Mary's, 1 of 2; Somerset, 2 of 3; Talbot, 2 of 3. The two People's party Delegates from Worcester are counted with the Republican strength of 47 in the House, which also includes five Republicans from the Fourth district of the city.

Solid Democratic delegations appear from Anne Arundel, 4; Baltimore, 6; Dorchester, 4; Howard, 2; Montgomery; Queen Anne's, 2; Wicomico, 3. The 11 Democrats in divided county delegations and the 19 from Baltimore city make up the party strength of 55 in the House.

Delegates who have served in the present or in preceding Assemblies include Campbell, Fisher, Herpieh, Greene, Allegany; Atwell, Hopkins, Anne Arundel; McIntosh, Baltimore; Jackson, Fooks, Caroline; Ely, Wooden, Carroll; Anderson, Dorchester; Kefauver, Frederick; Shartzler, Garrett; Laird, Montgomery; Metzgerott, Blandford, Van Horn, Prince George's; Dudley, Queen Anne's; Dobson, Talbot; Corbett, Stouffer, Washington; Hall, Wilkinson, McDonogh and Griebel, Baltimore city.

Five Republicans and eight Democrats in the Senate will be "hold-overs," having been elected for four-year terms in 1913. These include Zihlman of Allegany, Ogden of Baltimore city, Cooper, of Caroline, Williams of Cecil, Mudd of Charles, Shepherd of Dorchester, Speicher of Garrett, Archer of Harford, Jones of Montgomery, Holmead of Prince George's, Chesley of St. Mary's, Collier of Talbot and Harrison of Worcester. Zihlman, Williams, Mudd, Speicher and Chesley are the Republicans.

INTERESTING SHORT COURSES IN AGRICULTURE.

Maryland Agricultural College Bulletin Gives Programme And Outlines The Work To Be Done.

From January 3rd, to March 11th, 1916 the Maryland Agricultural College will give short courses in the following subjects: Soils and Fertilizers; Farm Crops; Domestic Science; Road Building and Maintenance; Poultry Husbandry; Horticulture; Animal Husbandry; Farm Machinery and Farm Engines; Farm Carpentry and Blacksmithing.

In its bulletin, just published, the College says: Slowly, yet surely the citizens of the rural communities are realizing the inestimable value of instruction in the arts and sciences of agriculture and allied subjects. The tillers of soil, as a class, until a few years ago, felt that their knowledge of soil, crops and animals was sufficient, and they resented the efforts made to secure changes in their system of farming.

A transition has been in progress, and today the farmer is looking to those agencies such as the state agricultural colleges, experiment stations and the Federal Department of Agriculture, for help in making farming more profitable. Such aid deals both with the production and distribution of products.

For those persons who cannot attend the regular four-year and two-year courses, but who can leave the farm for a few weeks during the winter season, the Maryland Agricultural College provides a series of short courses which are held each year during the first ten weeks after January first.

The women of the farm are not being neglected. They are admitted to all of the courses. A course in domestic science has been prepared especially for them, and has proved very popular.

here is no charge for instruction in these courses, and the cost of board and lodging is very reasonable.

The teaching staff of the College will be augmented by specialists from the Experiment Station, U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Extension Service of the College and experts from Maryland and other States who have made pronounced success in their specialties.

Programmes giving detailed information as to dates, subjects and lecturers for these courses will be forwarded upon request.

Letters To The Editor.

No attention will be paid to anonymous communications.

To Editor the Weekly Chronicle:

I would like to ask through the CHRONICLE if there is no relief from the disorder that prevails in Emmitsburg after night. Friday before Halloween drunken negroes made the night hideous with their profanity and vulgarity; on Saturday night (Halloween) while men, (not boys) worked until three o'clock, A. M., making our Square a disgraceful sight for Sunday morning. On last Sunday night, a drunken man kept awake all those living on the Square. Some one is breaking the law when a man can get drunk on Sunday. Can nothing be done?

Hunting Season Opens.

The hunting season in Frederick county, as well as in the rest of the State, opened on Wednesday. It will be lawful to shoot rabbits, partridges and squirrels up to and including December 24, after which time the season will again be closed until November 10 of next year. A fact not generally known is that the season for bass fishing closes on December 1 and will remain closed until June 1, during which time it is a violation of law to take bass from the Monocacy or its tributaries.

For Governor of North Dakota.

It is reported that W. Perry Potterfield who left Frederick City more than 20 years ago, and who has been a resident of Fargo, N. D., for many years, may be a candidate for Governor of the State of North Dakota. At present he is a State Senator of that place.

HOW MANY CARS IN EMMITSBURG

What Are They Worth?—What Makes Are Represented—What Does it Cost to Run Them?—Who Knows The Answers?

It is a safe bet that anyone attempting offhand to estimate the amount of money invested in automobiles by the people of Emmitsburg and the territory within a radius of three miles would hit far below the mark. It is doubtful, too, if anyone, except those who have made the count, knows the actual number of motor cars in this community. To many the following figures, compiled from an accurate list of locally owned automobiles, will prove very interesting. As an index of general prosperity the number of autos is convincing.

Over $50,000 is the amount of money invested in the gasoline-propelled vehicles in this district. This represents the value of 84 cars. The average cost of these cars is about $600. It is interesting to note the variety of "makes" included in this list and the number of each.

The Ford leads with 50, the Overland is next in popularity with 15. The rest in order of number are: Buick, 5; Packard, 3; Chevrolet, 2; and one each, Cadillac, King, Pullman, Norwalk, Reo, Metz, Dodge, Apperson, Cole.

The automobile has created a distinct new industry for Emmitsburg, there being three public garages that enjoy a good business in selling supplies, parts, accessories, oils and gasoline and doing engine repairing and tire vulcanizing. Figures on this end of the trade are not obtainable but it is a safe estimate to put the amount of money spent in one year for these items at several thousand dollars. Say that on an average each car consumes ten gallons of gasoline a week. With the price at 20 cents, the week's bill for "gas" for home cars (many tourists passing through Emmitsburg replenish their fuel tanks at local garages) is $168, and for the year this bill is $8,736. The oil bill is probably not less than $1,000. The tire bill is another big factor in the up-keep of a machine, and the local men sell a large number of new tires in the course of a year.

In addition to the above expenditures, there are always a number of fixed charges. When a person purchases a car for the first time, an operator's license has to be procured. This cost is $2.00. Then the car requires a license tag from the State before it can be used. This clips off $15 a year from the pile. Most people have their cars insured against fire and theft with costs anywhere from $5 to $15. Others insure against accidents and liability to the public.

It will be seen from this brief enumeration that the automobile causes a great deal of money to change hands, and that despite the many costs for maintenance the first low cost that now prevails for standard machines is making the motor car the favorite vehicle for all classes, that it is here to stay and that every one that can afford the pleasure of having a car is going to keep the market a brisk one.

Government Crop Report.

Preliminary estimates of crop production and prices for the State of Maryland are as follows: Corn, 24,200,000, at .68; Wheat, 10,208,000, at $1.07; Oats, 1,530,000, at .52; Potatoes, 4,400,000, at .63; Apples, 800,000 at $1.85.

Why Traveling Men Shun the Dry Town

THE traveling man is the advance guard of better business. He is the good fellow who practices true temperance by drinking healthful, mild beer moderately.

He is the man who, privileged to drink his beer openly never abuses that privilege, and who gets out and gladly boosts a town or quietly knocks it; who brings business to the live town and keeps it away from the place where investment and expansion are discouraged. He shuns the dry and backward town that has nothing to offer but the "blind pig" and the "speak-easy." In so doing, he voices the sentiment of all other progressive business men.

"MARYLAND WEEK" EXHIBITION.

At The Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, From November 16 to November 20.

The annual "Maryland Week" Exhibition, with the various meetings associated with it will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, November 16-20. This is a State-wide proposition and it is by far the most important agricultural event in this state.

The annual meetings of the affiliated organizations will be held in the Assembly Room of the Fifth Regiment Armory, as follows: Maryland State Horticultural Society, Wednesday, November 17th., Maryland Crop Improvement Association, Thursday, November 18th., Maryland State Dairymen's Association, Friday, November 19th., Maryland State Bee Keepers' Association, Saturday, November 20th.

Every farmer of Maryland should embrace the opportunity to attend these meetings, as the program of each association is arranged with the view of affording discussion of timely questions of great importance to those engaged in the respective industries.

Prominent and successful men in all walks of life have consented to attend and address the various meetings during the week. Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, President of Johns Hopkins University, Dr. J. H. Patterson, President of the Maryland Agricultural College, Hon. Robert Crain, Prof. U. P. Hedrick, Horticulturist, New York Experiment Station, Mr. S. W. Bassett, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Mr. Will Forbes, a practical dairyman, of Waterloo Iowa, and many others will address the associations during the week.

"Every man in business needs advertising. If his business is a success he needs advertising to keep it so. If his business is struggling liberal advertising will build it up."

Celebrates Golden Jubilee.

Monsignor Joseph L. Wise, son of the late James Wise, a citizen of Emmitsburg many years ago, celebrated the Golden Jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood, at a solemn high Mass at 9 o'clock on Wednesday, November 17, in St. Mary's Church, of the Assumption, Yazoo City, Miss. Mr. Wise, who is remembered by the older generation of Emmitsburg, has a number of relatives in this locality who will congratulate him on his 50 years as a priest. For the past 37 years he has been pastor of the church of St. Mary's of the Assumption.

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers"— said one of the greatest thinkers this country ever produced.

Here's Sense!

Farmers just use the same good judgment in choosing your tobacco that you do in raising and selling your crops. Chew a mild tobacco.

What's the use of letting a strong, rank tobacco jangle your nerves? PICNIC TWIST tastes better and is milder—lots milder.

You can chew it all day without over-chewing. The specially selected tobacco leaves that go into PICNIC TWIST are the finest, mellowest obtainable and of the best chewing kind.

LEWIS FOR U. S. SENATE

Although just emerging from a gubernatorial campaign, the Maryland Democracy will be called upon next May to select a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Blair Lee, and already that selection is the centre of considerable interest.

By Senator Lee's action in attempting to leave the Senate to become Governor of Maryland, it is generally accepted that he does not like the Senate and has no desire to return. Be that as it may, the Democracy has a statesman in Western Maryland who measures up to every requirement, and the safe bet in the Senatorial contest is the Little Giant from Allegany, David J. Lewis.—Crisfield Times.

Open to Women Students.

Announcement is made by the Baltimore Association for the Promotion of the University Education of Women of its annual offer of a fellowship of $600 for the year 1916-17 available for study at an American or European university. As a rule this fellowship is awarded to candidates who have done one or two years of graduate work, preference being given to women from Maryland and the South. In exceptional instances the fellowship may be held two successive years by the same person.

It is understood that the fellow will devote herself unreservedly to study and research, and that she will send a report of her work, April 1, 1917, to the secretary.

Frederick Bible Class Parade.

One thousand members of men's Bible classes of Frederick and the county paraded through the principal streets of Frederick city last Sunday afternoon and attended a rally in the City Opera House. The demonstration was one of the biggest of its kind ever held in this section. The men marched by classes, accompanied by several bands of music. Practically all the Protestant churches were represented.

R. Paul Smith presided at the opera house. The speakers were Robert L. Hooper, of Baltimore, and E. H. Richards, who has been a missionary to Africa for 30 years. The committee in charge included Major D. John Markey, J. M. Dronenburg and Markwood D. Harp.

For U. S. Senate And House.

Candidates are looming up both for the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives. For the former William Cabell Bruce is already in the field and it is expected that Senator Blair Lee will soon shy his hat in the ring. Now comes forward Hon. David J. Lewis who announces that he has his eye on the toga. For Congress H. Dorsey Etchison, defeated in the last election for State Senator by George L. Kaufmann, has announced his candidacy. On the Republican side, it is expected that Leo Weinberg, of Frederick, and Gist Blair, of Montgomery county, will be aspirants for a place in the House.

Tribute Paid Judge Motter.

Charles W. Prettyman, Robert B. Peter and William H. Talbott, appointed by the Montgomery County Bar Association to prepare resolutions upon the death of Judge John C. Motter, for 15 years associate judge of this circuit, submitted its report Monday afternoon. It was read by Mr. Prettyman, and brief speeches were delivered by Messrs. Prettyman, Robert B. Peter, William H. Talbott, Robert E. L. Smith, Clifford H. Robertson, Albert M. Bouie, Otho H. W. Talbott, William F. Prettyman, Frank Higgins and Thomas L. Dawson and Judge Edward C. Peter. As a further mark of respect the court adjourned for the day.

County Mason Lodge 100 Years Old.

More than 300 visitors from Western Maryland, Baltimore and Washington attended the centennial anniversary of the founding of Columbia Lodge of Masons, of Frederick. The celebration was held in the Masonic Temple, followed by a banquet in the Company A Armory.

The most interesting feature of the program was the presentation of past master jewels to 13 pastmasters of Columbia Lodge. The address was made by Grand Master Thomas J. Shryock, of Baltimore, and the speech of acceptance by Past Master Lewis S. Clingan.

At the celebration addresses were delivered by A. Atlee Radcliffe, General Shryock, Joseph D. Baker, Francis B. Sappington, John T. White and Warren S. Seipp.

Six grand officers—General Shryock, William H. Moore, senior grand warden; G. A. Cook, grand secretary; Warren S. Seipp, grand lecturer; H. A. Remley, grand marshal, all of Baltimore, and Leroy McCardell, grand pursuivant, of Frederick—attended the celebration. The visiting officers were entertained at dinner by Mr. McCardell.

Dr. Radcliffe was presented with a loving cup by the lodge. The presentation address was made by Senior Deacon Guy K. Motter.

Another Large Barn Burned.

Fire late Saturday evening destroyed the large bank barn on the farm of Michael Kriner, along the Hagerstown road, about one mile from Waynesboro, and tenanted by William Minnick, together with all the crops and farming implements. The large barn, 1,300 bushels of wheat, 400 barrels of corn, between 75 and 100 tons of hay and all farming implements were destroyed. The livestock was saved. The loss is placed between $8,000 and $10,000, with small insurance.

Investigation Of Fires In Counties.

Believing that the forest fires that have been raging in Washington and Frederick counties were of incendiary origin a thorough investigation is now under way. From all reports it is confidentially expected that arrests will soon follow. People in the county report new outbreaks in their districts and are much alarmed in consequence.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingular Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

No people are more wide-awake, more knowledgeable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatched; the climate is notably healthful; its water—pure mountain spring water—cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards.

Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary—with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years—is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies—equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid achievement—is also here.

There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liveries, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oiled streets.

There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites available. If you contemplate changing your place of residence—come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md.

DAVID J. LEWIS.

In announcing his candidacy for the United States Senate Hon. David J. Lewis, Congressman from the Sixth district, states his position very clearly. With frankness and forcefulness he tells the people of Maryland why he wants to be Senator and what he will seek to accomplish if he is elected. The people of this State know what Mr. Lewis has done; his work and what he accomplished for them—this is his monument of country-wide beneficence. A continuance of his well-conceived plans, of "effective fellow-service"—this and this alone is his aim.

Go where you will in Maryland, speak of David J. Lewis to anyone, except "special interest" servitors and minions or followers of the "class" element and you will meet with nothing but praise for "Davy" Lewis, the man of and for the people. When it comes to the farmers, "producers, consumers and quasi-merchants, selling their products," as Mr. Lewis puts it; when you come to these men who "represent in a real way the producing, consuming and commercial interests of society," who stand for the right to prosper by their honest work—then do you find David J. Lewis spoken of as friend and benefactor, and rightly so.

For greater elasticity in the parcel post system, for the "direct development of to-kitchen marketing," the working out of a postal telephone service, and an "adequate rural credit system"—all these Mr. Lewis stands for. He further proposes to stand by the President "in his wise purpose regarding the safe-guarding of our country." Surely this is a platform that spells "Our Country's Interests." Beginning with the true producer, the farmer, Mr. Lewis' programme develops, expands, until it includes all the people, except and forever except "special interests," and it is a programme that will grow in importance in the minds of the masses, and, let us hope, that will give him a seat in the Senate—the place to which, by virtue of his service to the people, he is entitled.

HOSPITAL DONATION DAY.

Next Thursday is "Donation Day" at the Frederick City Hospital. This means that people throughout the County will be asked to help in replenishing the larder of this most worthy public institution that, day in and day out, renders such splendid service to those who suffer physically. Emmitsburg is asked to join with the other districts in this donation and it may be taken for granted that the response will be cheerful and liberal. The need of the Hospital, in this instance, is provisions: flour, groceries, salt meats, fruit, pickles, preserves, jellies, eggs, potatoes—everything that may be used in the administrative department of the institution or for the diet of the patients. How and where to send donations will be seen by reference to the notice in another column of THE CHRONICLE.

The Frederick City Hospital, although located at the county seat, is not essentially a Frederick local hospital. Its work extends far beyond city limits. Anyone, everyone in the County—and Emmitsburg has had its full quota of service—has a claim upon its ministrations. There is a free ward for those who cannot afford to pay or who can pay but a small sum, and there is no difference, no distinction in the mode or in the quality of skill exercised or the attention shown the patients. If, then, Emmitsburg has a claim upon this splendid hospital—the affairs of which are so ably and intelligently administered—the reverse is true: This Institution, by right of courtesy, has a claim upon our district. The Board, however, is too gracious to use the word "claim"; it makes an appeal to Emmitsburg's sense of what is proper, an appeal to Emmitsburg's generosity. We feel sure that that appeal is sufficient.

FOREST FIRES.

The damage done by the forest fires that have been raging in the County for days past cannot fail to cause anxiety to those who own woodland property or who dwell in the mountain districts. Forest fires, particularly prevalent in nearby territory, occur with great regularity every year. They invariably start at this time, and in each instance their origin is claimed by some to be incendiary, by others accidental. In either event special diligence on the part of local forest wardens should be exercised—diligence that means not only personal supervision by the wardens themselves but an appeal on their part for cooperation from all persons resident in woodland regions.

The hunting season is open. Hundreds of sportsmen are and for some time will be trudging the hills and making their way over all farming districts where there are trees. Dried leaves are in abundance in these places; a match, pipe ashes or a lighted cigar or cigarette means a fire—perhaps a sweeping fire that will destroy acres of timber and mayhap barns and dwellings. Every precaution, therefore, should be taken by those who hunt, and great care not to inflict hardships on others should be exercised by wanderlusters and nut gatherers who too often build a fire "just for fun." As for incendiarism there are few worse crimes. Any person who sets fire to another's property—whether it be houses, farm buildings or timber—deserves the highest penalty the law, for such a crime, can inflict. Nor should one hesitate for a moment to give to the authorities any bit of evidence one may possess that will lead to the apprehension and conviction of persons who indulge in that kind of "spite work."

"SANG HIS WAY INTO OFFICE."

George Edward Smith of Fredericktown is a man just now of some renown. He sang his way through the first campaign, and up till election he sang again. The more he sang all the better he thrived and he's the only Democrat that survived. No doubt he's humming "I much rejoice that God gave me such a winning voice."

"WHEN ordering your statue you should be sure to see that it is not made of metal capable of being converted into bullets and cartridges," warns the Annapolis capital. Mayor Preston ought to be mindful of this injunction.

THIS is the season when rural folk (contemplating a visit to them) send their city relatives enough rich home produce to cause dyspepsia in the family for at least three months.

"BRYAN'S Bee Buzzing"—Have a care, Bill, or it will sting you right through your galligaskins; and the peace bird looking on, too.

ONE fly in the house at this time of the year causes more annoyance than having to throw the cat out of doors every ten minutes.

In addition to polishing up his oratorical pots and pans Claude Kitchin is getting ready to brandish the rolling pin.

"Do your shopping early" is the slogan that will sound, from now until the very morn of Christmas comes around.

Early Coal Discoveries.

The first mention of coal in the territory which afterward became the United States has heretofore been credited to Father Louis Hennepin, who showed on a map published in 1689 the location of a "cole mine" along Illinois river near the site of the present city of Ottawa. According to S. O. Andres of the Illinois state geological survey, the credit for this first mention of coal does not belong to Hennepin, as the discovery of coal in the United States by Europeans was made by Joliet and Marquette in 1673. However, nearly a century and a half elapsed after the discovery of coal in Illinois before mining began. The Journal of the Franklin Institute for 1836 states that the first mining operations conducted by white men were at the Mount Carbon mines, in Jackson county, Ill. These mines were opened in 1810 and worked to a small extent for many years. The earliest recorded production was in 1833, when 6,000 tons of coal is said to have been mined.—Detroit Free Press.

A Kindly Human Touch.

How rapidly nature repairs and beautifies the torn places! The gash left by the uprooted tree is soon covered with green, and moss and vines are quick to make the old stump into a thing of beauty. Humanity might learn a lesson thereby, to its own great advantage. Sympathy may easily transform the unsightly and give it beauty. If earth's soil responds to the touch of nature in such a way it is reasonable to suppose that human life would not be less responsive. Hundreds of lives at present harsh and repulsive are within reach of every one, and they might be wholly changed by a little sympathetic seeding and kindly culture. After all, what more is needed than the persuasion of the kindly human touch? There is no greater miracle than that which is wrought by love, and there is no man who may not work it if he will.—Christian Register.

Tinted Polygamy.

The old negro had been arrested for "having more than one wife," the last woman being the complainant. He happened to be well known locally and an orderly character.

"How many wives have you had?" demanded the judge.

"Six, yo' honor," was the reply.

"Why couldn't you get along with them?" the judge insisted.

"Well, suh, de fust two sp'iled de white folks' clothes when dey washed 'em, de thud wum'n no cook, de fo'th was des nacherally lazy en' de fif—I'll tell yo', jegde, de fif she—"

"Incompatibility?" the court suggested.

"No, yo' honor," said the old negro slowly, "it wotn't nothin' lik' dat. Yo' jes' couldn't get along wid her unless yo' wuz somewhars else."—Case and Comment.

Grease Spots on Books.

To remove grease spots from the pages of books, gently warm the soiled page of the book, which should have a piece of thick paper under it, by holding a hot iron at a little distance from the paper. Next press upon the spots pieces of clean blotting paper, one after another, so as to absorb as much of the grease as possible. Have ready some clear essential oil of turpentine heated almost to boiling point, warm the soiled leaf again a little, and then with a camel's hair brush apply the heated turpentine to both sides of the spotted part. If this application is repeated the stain will shortly disappear. Finally, take a clean brush, dip it in rectified spirits of wine and paint over the place.

Could Have Got It More Easily.

Mrs. Newlywed—People are saying that you married me for my gold. Mr. Newlywed—What nonsense! If I'd simply wanted gold I could have got it with far less hardship and suffering in South Africa or Alaska.—Scraps.

The Calaveras Skull.

Of interest in connection with tertiary gold bearing river gravels of California is the story of the Calaveras skull. For a time this skull attracted much attention not only from the people in California, but from scientific men the world over. It was reported to have been found in 1866 near the town of Angels, Calaveras county, at a depth of 130 feet, in tertiary gravels underlying tertiary lava. The finding of a human skull embedded in such deposits was for a time believed to indicate that man had been in existence in North America longer than had been supposed. Strange to say, the skull is of a higher type than skulls which, although known to antedate historic times, are known also to be much younger than the tertiary. Although Professor J. D. Whitney, then state geologist, accepted the skull as a bit of genuine scientific evidence, it is generally believed by students of the antiquity of man that the Calaveras skull, while undoubtedly old, probably did not come from the auriferous gravels at all.—Argonaut.

A Grim Cathedral.

Once the capital of the kingdom of Portugal, Coimbra possesses a number of interesting monuments. Its cathedral dates from the early period when it upon the west, Toledo in the center and Saragossa to the east were the Christian outposts against the infidel. Its color, a deep golden brown, is like that of an old warrior tanned by the wars. Squarely seated upon its platform, its walls pierced only by narrow windows that resemble loopholes, its roofs and parapets embattled, it recalls the day when praying and fighting went hand in hand, and its rough hewn stones sheathe it as in a bronze cuirass chased with the delicate tracery of its south door added at a later epoch. Its interior, too, is severely plain, though adorned with the only fine retdos that I saw in Portugal, and with side chapels that contain a notable array of old blue tiles.—Ernest Peixotto in Scribner's.

Hiding Behind Smoke.

The accuracy of modern naval gunnery is so marvelous that the only hope for a ship to escape being sunk when within range of the guns is to hide itself. That is easier said than done, however, and there is only one way in which it can be done, and that is by means of a "smoke screen." It is hard for one ship to hide herself behind her own smoke unless the wind is favorable, but for a number of ships to put a huge fog of black smoke between them and their pursuers is comparatively easy. The smoke is caused by oil fuel, and it can be turned off or on at will by supplying more or less air to the furnaces. It is so dense and black that it is quite impossible to see more than a few yards through it.—Pearson's Magazine.

Hawking in the Old Days.

Falconry, or hawking, was a favorite sport with the nobility and gentry of Europe down to the first half of the seventeenth century. Hawks were trained to mount and pursue game and bring it to their masters and mistresses, coming and going to the call of the latter with marvelous docility. The hawks were tricked out with gay hoods and held until ordered to pursue the quarry, or game, by leathern straps fastened with rings of leather about each leg just above the talons, and with silken cords called "jesses" to each of these leathern straps, or "be-wets," was attached a small bell. In the flight of hawks it was often so arranged that the bells made "a consort of sweet sounds."

Still Has Friends.

Two retired tradesmen residing in the country were discussing matters generally, when one asked:

"How is your son doing in the city?"

"Oh, he doesn't say much about his business," was the reply, "but he writes me that he's got a lot of friends."

"That's very encouraging," remarked the other, "for it shows that he hasn't had to borrow money yet!"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Much Needed Rest.

"Does your boy take kindly to farm life now that he has finished college?"

"Oh, yes!" replied Farmer Cobbles.

"He says that after the strenuous four years he's been through it's a pleasure to loaf around home and watch the hired men at work."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Silver.

The handle of a silver spoon gets hot more quickly than that of a pewter spoon when thrust into a cup of hot coffee. In fact, this is an easy and quick way of detecting imitation silver. Silver itself has been found to be the best conductor of heat known.

His Ambition.

"How would you feel if the end of the world came tomorrow?"

"I'd be glad of it. I always wanted to be present at a great historical event."—Detroit Saturday Night.

Happiness.

Mankind is always happier for having been happy. So that if you make men happy now you make them happy twenty years hence by the memory of it.—Sydney Smith.

Norway's Clear Waters.

In the fjords on the Norway coast the clearness of the water is wonderful. Objects the size of half a dollar may be seen at a depth of twenty-five to thirty fathoms.

We think a happy life consists in tranquility of mind.—Cicero

NOT ALL CAPTAINS.

Some Members of the Small Company Were Really Privates.

An American woman—now safe in the States—writes that while she was in Mexico five soldiers one day rode into her remote mountain camp. They were very decent fellows, and made no threats. Still, in the absence of her husband, it seemed only wise to give them plenty of food and drink, also to yield gracefully to the request of one of the number, who said he was the captain, for the "loan" of a blanket.

Pretty soon a second warrior intimated that he, too, could use a blanket to advantage in his campaigning, adding that he, too, was a captain. When a third made the same request, also announcing his rank as that of captain, their hostess paused in her distribution of blankets.

"Tell me," she inquired politely, "is this entire detachment composed of captains?"

"Oh, no, senora!" replied the one who had first spoken. "I am the Captain Primero, this is the Captain Segundo and that is the Captain Tercero. Those"—indicating the two remaining—"are the private soldiers."

And at this the admiring senora, according to her own account, at once gave a blanket to each of the two "high privates in the rear rank"—moved by "sympathy with them for being captained firstly, secondly and even thirdly, and also by admiration of them as being such rare birds!"—Youth's Companion.

THE FIRST TROUSERS.

They Led to Edicts Against Their Use in Some German States.

The latest instance of a European country enacting laws concerning dress occurred at the time of the French revolution, when some rulers of German states forbade their subjects to wear trousers, these being held to indicate revolutionary opinions. The elector of Hesse-Cassel, besides prohibiting the obnoxious garments, had the convicts employed on road sweeping dressed in trousers so as to inspire disgust for sans-culotte fashions.

The term "sans-culotte" means "without breeches," and during the French revolution the "sans-culottes," who denounced every one who wore breeches, finally went beyond their opponents and wore twice as much cloth around their legs—in a word, adopted the modern trousers and made them the badge of a party.

Napoleon wore trousers on state occasions after he had been crowned emperor. His army was the first that adopted trousers, and they kept progress, step by step, with the march of the French legions. The Duke of Wellington would insist on wearing pantaloons—or trousers, as they are now called—when he attended certain social functions, although he was almost alone in so doing. This was about the year 1814, but by 1830 trousers were worn by almost everybody.—Westminster Gazette.

Golf's Hardest Shots.

"I have heard many debates as to the hardest and the easiest clubs to play," says Jerome D. Travers, the famous golfer, in the American Magazine. "I should say the hardest shot in the game, the one that has fewer masters, is the full iron shot to the green. Running a close second is the masbie pitch. There are fewer golfers by far who can play these two shots well than those who are good drivers or good putters. The easiest shot in golf is the drive, and the simplest is the putt. But as putting is almost purely a mental proposition it probably varies more with all players than any other shot."

"You see very few good sound iron players, especially among the amateurs in America. In England their iron play is much better."

Man's Will Is All His Own.

True education lies in learning to wish things to be as they actually are. It lies in learning to distinguish what is our own from what does not belong to us. But there is only one thing which is fully our own—that is our will or purpose. God, acting as a good king and a true father, has given us a will which cannot be restrained, compelled or thwarted. He has put it wholly in our power. * * * Nothing can ever force us to act against our will. If we are conquered it is because we have willed to be conquered.—Epictetus.

His Reward.

"Willie," called his mother from the head of the stairs, "did you wipe your feet before you came in?"

"Yessum," replied the young hopeful.

"Did you close the door carefully behind you?"

"Yessum."

"Did you hang up your hat?"

"Yessum."

"Very well. Then you may practice your music lesson."—Pittsburgh Press.

A Much Needed Improvement.

"Do you believe that we should have a more elastic currency?" asked the man who always talks national finance.

"Not much!" snorted the man with the shiny clothes. "It's elastic enough now. What they ought to do is make it more adhesive."—Exchange.

Other People's Burdens.

If we could read the secret history of our enemies we should find in each man's life sorrow and suffering enough to disarm all hostility.—Longfellow

New Polished-Steel Burglar-Proof Vault Door.

The above illustration is from a photograph of our new Vault Door, recently installed by the York Safe and Lock Co., York, Pa.

The specifications of the door and new vault equipment are as follows.

Six inch thick steel door which is absolutely drill proof, explosive proof and non-burnable. This door is locked by twenty-two (22) bolts, each 2 1/2-inch diameter, and the bolt work is checked by three movement Sargent and Greenleaf 72-hour time lock, also two bank four tumbler combination locks.

The lining of the vault consists of 1 1/2 inch thick steel, built up of alternating layers of 5-ply Chrome steel and Bessemer, which is drill proof.

The Safe Deposit Boxes are of the best construction, each box is fitted with bronze case high grade safe deposit box lock, supplied with two renters' keys. These locks are master key locks, being necessary to use a guard or preparatory key to operate same. Each box is also supplied with tin bond box on the inside.

This vault is considered absolutely burglar-proof, and has an extra safeguard, is equipped with burglar-proof chest on the inside. The finish of the vault front is natural polished steel.

This equipment is the best security known to modern ingenuity.

MOUNT SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

Terrace Talk

Coach John L. Day went to Westminister on Saturday to officiate at the game between St. John's and Western Maryland.

Prof. Ernest Theroux, who was called away last week on account of the illness of his mother in Troy, N. Y., has returned to the college.

Mr. Robert Donovan, local editor of the Mountaineer, left Emmitsburg on Sunday for New York, his home city. Mr. Donovan will be detained there for a few days on business.

Prof. Clarence Sousley, head of the department of mathematics and astronomy, has taken a cottage near the school. Dr. Sousley is a tireless worker, and the students who follow his courses are doing excellent work and plenty of it.

Prof. John Rauth, head of the department of Chemistry and Physics, entertained the faculty and student body on Thursday evening with some of his choicest films. The moving picture apparatus was installed in the auditorium a year ago, and has proved to be entertaining and instructive.

Students of Spanish, French and German made a good showing in the October examinations. Prof. Emile Samra has directed the work of the department for a year. His unique methods, from the beginning, elicited a wholesome response from the students.

Progress and Precision is the slogan of a certain preparatory class that meets twice a day to do foundation work in Latin. The boys are enthusiastic and earnest. Doubtless they and their teachers will have an easy time of it in the college, when the time comes for them to read the ancient classics.

October was a month of triumph for English composition work. A wealth of themes from the preparatory department and the discovery in examining them that many of the new matriculates had caught the spirit of the work, have made them laudari a laudatis viris. Prof. Samra attributes the boys' success in learning foreign languages to the fact that they know how to study English grammar.

Mr. C. Reubell Goldsborough motored from Baltimore on Saturday to spend Sunday with his brother, Leroy, who is a senior at the college. Mr. Goldsborough has taken up the study of medicine at the University of Maryland, Baltimore. George J. Goldsborough, '14, who has been doing business in Buffalo for his father's firm, will shortly take up the study of the law.

The Spanish-American commercial course, which has been established to meet the demand for stenographers and accountants familiar with Spanish, has attracted a number of earnest students. Prof. John Crumlish, head of the department, will have some good stenographers to recommend to business houses in June. Usually the work of the second year at the college is facilitated when students have turned their knowledge to practical account during the summer vacations. The Spanish classes are taught from 5 to 6 every evening.

Reserves, 7; Waynesboro B. C., 0.
Mount Saint Mary's Reserves defeated Waynesboro, (Pa.) Business College on Wednesday, Nov. 3, by a score of 7 to 0. The teams were evenly matched and the contest was well fought. Throughout the first half the ball was in Waynesboro's territory, but the Mountaineers lacked the final punch to carry it over for a touchdown. Neither team was good at forward passing during the first half, although the visitors made many attempts.

In the second half the visitors resorted to old-style football, and their line plunging soon weakened the Mountaineers' defense, but the latter held strongly when Waynesboro neared their goal.

The Mountain team in the last period secured the ball on a fumble on the 30 yard line, and by a series of line plunging Grimes carried it over for the only touchdown. He also kicked the goal. For the Mountain Reserves, Captain Kelly, Grimes, Allen and Saul played splendid football, while Funk and Diffendaffer excelled for Waynesboro. The line-up was as follows:

M. S. M.	Position.	Waynesboro
Drury	L. E.	Yingling
Saul	L. T.	Bush
Glendon	L. G.	Speilman
Allen	C.	Price
Henderson	R. G.	King

Midgets, 27; Loyola High, 6.

On Thursday, Nov. 4, the "future greats" of Mount Saint Mary's pigskin chasers defeated Loyola High School at Emmitsburg. The score was 27 to 6. The Midgets displayed the same finished football which delighted their supporters in the game with the City College Reserves last week, and had no trouble disposing of their opponents.

The game was a mixture of straight football and forward passes, the latter coming at unexpected times. The visitors relied more on the open game and owed their score to a long heave over the line. The striking feature of the game was a forward pass which was accepted by Friday, the weakest of Coach Cogan's eleven. Friday is 100 pounds of football knowledge and pep, and after being sent into the game in the last quarter he caught a long pass for a gain of 25 yards. He was crest-fallen, however, when the play had to be called back because the pass was not started from five yards behind the scrimmage line.

Gormley was the star for the young Mountaineers. He ran his team with the coolness of a veteran and displayed prowess of a superior order. One touchdown was directly attributable to him. After running back the kick-off for 50 yards, he worked the ball to the three-yard line, where he took it over on a fake end run. Captain Burkhard played a snappy game and Kilgallen was a potent factor.

For Loyola Lind was the shining light, carrying the ball for most of the gains. Considine, who has played a strong game during the season for the Calvert street team, did not make the trip

Concrete in Cold Weather

Concrete work for farm requirements of every kind can be easily done during the coldest weather by following certain very simple and reasonable rules.

During the coming fall and winter, why not turn your spare time to good use by laying sidewalks, constructing buildings, making fence posts, or doing whatever you need done with concrete.

Our booklets "The Use of Cement In Cold Weather" and "Concrete In The Country," show you how easily such work is done. Write to Security Cement and Lime Co., Hagerstown, Md. for them — they're free.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Colliflower, Mrs. S. L. Rowe, Misses Grace Rowe and Helen Shuff and Mr. John Horner, motored to Westminster on Sunday afternoon.

HAS OVER 200 DESCENDENTS.

Mrs. Clara Josephine Lawrence, of McSherrystown Heads Probably Largest Family in U. S.

In the suburbs of McSherrystown resides Mrs. Clara Josephine Lawrence, widow of the late David William Lawrence, the mother-head of probably the largest line of descendants of any woman in the United States, says the Hanover Record, which publishes a list of her lineage nearly two columns long.

Mrs. Lawrence can trace 213 descendants of her family. The progenitress of such a mighty line is a frail little woman weighing scarcely 100 pounds. Although 88 years old, she has enjoyed excellent health until quite recently, when infirmities of age confined her to her room. Her mind is clear and she readily recalls events of her youth. She makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. John W. Klunk.

Mrs. Lawrence is an aunt of Mr. Philip D. Lawrence, of Emmitsburg.

"The public is fickle. The public is forgetful. It needs to be continually reminded where you are and what you are doing. If you don't let it know through the columns of a newspaper it soon will transfer its trade." tf.

TOWN NEWS NOTES

Every reader of THE CHRONICLE is invited to send news to this office. The management of THE CHRONICLE will take it as a particular favor if patrons will telephone or write to this office concerning matters of general interest. By sending personal details of improvements to town or farm property, accounts of accidents and fires, the reports of meetings, particulars of deaths and weddings and mention of all social events, they will make this THEIR paper—truly representative of the community.

Local gunners were out in full force on Wednesday, the opening day of the hunting season.

Mrs. J. Stewart Annan entertained a few friends at Auction Bridge on Wednesday night.

Mr. Robert L. Annan has had the balcony on the side of his residence on the Square, repainted.

The property of Mr. James Arnold on East Main street which is being rebuilt, is progressing rapidly.

Mrs. Clagett gave an Auction Bridge party at her home near the Square on Tuesday night.

Mrs. J. Brooke Boyle entertained at Auction Bridge on Monday night in honor of her guests, Mrs. Stoner and Miss Lillian Keller, of Frederick.

Mr. J. Thomas Gelwicks has had a cement walk laid on the side of his property on East Main street, occupied by Mrs. Mary Mentzer.

Mr. Walter L. Hess purchased a new Overland car last week from the New Hotel Slagle Garage, Mondorff and Bentzel, proprietors.

Mrs. Bernard S. Jenkins, of Irish-town, Pa., formerly of Emmitsburg, was taken to the York Hospital, Monday, where she underwent a surgical operation on Tuesday.

The following pupils of Hayfield school are on the Honor Roll for October: Alice, Catharine, Evelyn, Bernadette, John and James Orndorff, Ethel Brawner, Clarence Lingg, Morris Knipple and William Glacken.

Word has just been received from New Orleans, La., that Louis Lagarde, Esq., is sinking rapidly. For over a year he has been combating valiantly against a dread disease, and his many friends here will be deeply grieved to learn that little hope is entertained of his recovery.

A very unusual potato was sent to this Office this week by Mr. Joseph E. Hoke. It is of last year's growth and is in the form of a huge chestnut bur, in the center of which are a number of small potatoes, each attached in the center of the larger one. This peculiar specimen was raised by Mr. Jacob Hoke, of this place.

Messrs. Laurence Mondorff and Charles Rider were hunting in Pennsylvania last Friday. Mr. Mondorff succeeded in killing thirteen partridges on wing in nine shots. The two gentlemen brought to town nineteen partridges and two rabbits. Mr. Mondorff used his thorough-bred, registered bird dog, which took a prize in a Luray, Va., field contest, last fall.

Two men who motored from a point 120 miles west of Omaha, Neb., were in Emmitsburg, Thursday on their way to Norfolk, Va. They said they had encountered good weather and good roads and anticipated much pleasure motoring over the Maryland roads about which they had heard such favorable reports.

Miss Eleanor Hack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hack, of the Washington apartments, Baltimore, formerly of this place, has left for Memphis, Tenn., where she will be the house guest of Miss Corinne Falls. She will also attend the opening ball of the Chickasaw Club, when the debutantes of the winter will make their formal bows. Miss Falls also will entertain at dinner at the Country Club in honor of Miss Hack.

The time of the year makes little difference to J. D. Caldwell, insofar as plants are concerned. He has had home grown strawberries in December, watermelons in November, and now he is raising cotton. On one plant there are thirty-nine blossoms and from another he has raised enough cotton of fine quality to make bandages for all the sufferers from rheumatism in Emmitsburg district.

COUNTY PLUM TREE SHAKES

Mr. John A. Horner, of Emmitsburg, Gets a Post Under Mr. Patterson.

Following a conference of Republican leaders, the county officials elected last Tuesday decided upon the appointees to serve under them. All the county offices will be filled by Republicans. The court will have to pass upon the appointments of Eli G. Haugh, clerk-elect. He is said to have chosen Isaiah N. Loy, Millard N. Nusz and John Martz, of the present force, and Melvin Shepley, of Myersville, and Horace Staley, of Yellow Springs. Mr. Haugh will himself occupy the desk of law clerk, which he has filled since the death of Adolphus Fearhake. One clerk will thus be eliminated.

Albert M. Patterson, register of wills-elect, will have as his assistants Edward Toms, Middletown; John Horner, Emmitsburg; Reno Crum, Frederick. Sheriff-elect William C. Roderick has decided upon Clarence Phlegger, Braddock, for riding deputy; William O. Wertenbaker, Gracemam, office deputy, and Charles Sponseller, turnkey. For the county treasurer's office Treasurer-elect Roger G. Harley will have as his deputy Dewitt T. Free, of Creagerstown.

Penitentiary For Firing Barn.

Found guilty of firing the barn of James Smith, near Pearl, Frederick county, several months ago, Sherman Oren, 19 years old, was on Tuesday sentenced to serve a term of four years in the Maryland penitentiary by Judge Glenn H. Worthington. The case was tried several weeks ago, but the court reserved sentence pending an investigation.

Engagements Announced.

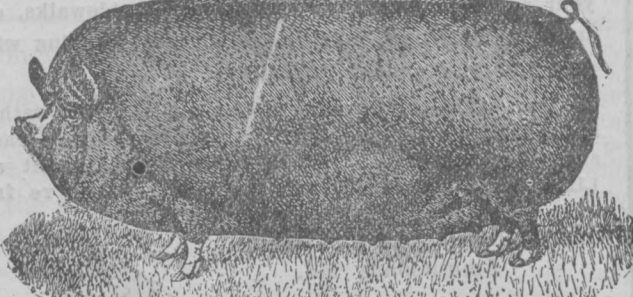

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Althoff, of Taneytown, announce the engagements of their daughters, Miss Edith M. Althoff to Charles W. Randall, of Littlestown, and Miss Mary M. Althoff to James E. Walsh, of Westminster. The weddings will take place in the early winter.

Don't forget Rosensteel & Hopp's famous Mother's Bread. Its popularity is based on its uniformly high quality and the perfect satisfaction it gives. We have anticipated the demand for a greater quantity loaf and are now making a large round loaf that sells for 8c. Try it.—Rosensteel & Hopp's Pan Dandy Bakery. adv. nov. 12-2ts.

CALL AND INSPECT
Q. G. SHOEMAKER
East End Meat Market EMMITSBURG, MD.

Fined Fifteen Dollars And Costs.

A man by the name of Ensor was arrested Wednesday night and put in the lock up on the charge of drunk and disorderly conduct and rioting on the streets of Emmitsburg. Several witnesses testified that the accused "made night hideous," on the Square, used unprintable language, cursed everybody and everything in general and the State of Maryland in particular. They said he also threatened to come back to town and beat up or shoot up the persons who advised him to leave the town. The prisoner pled ignorance of the acts he committed, attributing them to the result of drinking, whereupon he was fined $15 and costs.

It was suggested by several citizens that a few more fines in amounts not less than this would have a very salutary effect on several walking magazines of profanity who have for the past lowered Emmitsburg's erstwhile reputation for maintaining law and order.

MEMORIAL NOTICE.

Recognizing that from the beginning of the corporate existence of the Emmitsburg Electric Company, the late Dr. John McCloskey Foreman, its first and only president, was earnestly devoted to its welfare and untiring in his services and interest in the same, the Board of Directors of the Company hereby seeks to give expression to its high sense of the value of all that the departed president accomplished for the Company's development; to its feeling of personal loss and deep regret at his untimely death; and its sincere sympathy with his family.

And the Board desires to place these expression upon its records, to publish them in the local newspaper, and to convey a copy of them to the family.

BY ORDER OF THE BOARD.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Thursday, November 18, will be Donation Day at the Frederick City Hospital. Mrs. A. A. Annan, resident member of the Hospital Board, will be glad to receive donations for the institution on Wednesday, Nov. 17th.

The Hospital respectfully appeals to the residents of Emmitsburg for donations of Flour, Meal, Groceries, Salt Meats, Jelly, Preserves, Pickles, Eggs, Potatoes, etc.

All donations will be forwarded to the Hospital free of charge. See editorial.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to extend thanks to my many friends who stood so loyally by me in my recent fight for Register of Wills. I am more than pleased with the vote I received after the many combinations formed against me. I bear no ill will to anyone and shall conduct the Office with every courtesy to all patrons and visitors.

The business of the Office shall be conducted in the interest of all and no partiality shown.

Yours most respectfully,
ALBERT M. PATTERSON.

Expert Advice For the Automobile OwnerQueries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

Kindly give all the information possible as to how a six volt storage battery could be tested and charged and tools for doing same. I have a 110 volt direct current line. How many bulbs would have to be burned in connection with it?

About ten lamp sockets are fastened to a board and then connected in parallel. Carbon lamps of 110 volts are placed in the sockets. In series with the line is placed an ammeter, and across the line a voltmeter is connected. A suitable switch is placed anywhere in the circuit. The number of lamps to be operated depends upon the charging rate of the battery. Let us suppose that the initial charging rate is six amperes. Either six 100-watt lamps will approximate this figure or about five 100-watt lamps and three 50-watt lamps. The ammeter will read the number of amperes being drawn by the lamp bank, and, if the charging rate is initially six amperes and the meter reads seven, then too many lamps are in the circuit, and one at a time should be unscrewed until the meter reads six amperes.

Another method of charging at home is by the use of a water rheostat. This rheostat consists of a small barrel containing two lead plates and acidified or salt water. Each plate should be about one foot square and one-fourth inch thick. Such an arrangement may be used in a 110 volt circuit and the charging rate varied by the man in charge by bringing the plates closer together or separating them. In the latter case the resistance is made greater and in the former less. In attaching the battery to the circuit care should be taken to see that the positive of the line is connected to the positive of the battery. In charging by the gravity method you should consider that the specific gravity of the electrolyte varies as the temperature, and, if the gravity at 60 degrees F. is to be one and twenty-eight hundredths, if the temperature is 70 degrees a correction must be made. For every degree rise in temperature deduct .001 from the gravity of the liquid.

Would enlarging the valve openings or the fitting of a new cam shaft be desirable, in addition to lightening the reciprocating parts of my motor, in an effort to secure more power and better acceleration, as well as greater available maximum speed?

The fitting of larger valves will undoubtedly help to increase the power of your motor, and if you fit a new cam shaft the cams should be designed to hold the valves open a little longer than usual. It would be best to try the old cam shaft, and, if the results are not as expected, then a new shaft could be fitted. Lighter reciprocating parts will increase the power, but do not use lighter connecting rods unless you know that the new rods will be strong enough to stand the stresses imposed.

Is the spark of a high tension magneto hotter and considered more reliable than the spark of a storage battery or generator ignition, or should a car be equipped with both when electrically equipped?

Whether a battery spark is hotter than a magneto spark depends entirely upon the systems you wish to compare. A battery system of one make may give a hotter spark under certain conditions than a magneto of given make operating under certain conditions. The single ignition system, using either a magneto alone or a battery in connection with a starting and lighting system, is fast coming into vogue. Quite a number of makers have already discarded magnetos and are using battery ignition, while others have substituted a high tension magneto for the battery system. A good magneto or a good battery system should make the use of a dual system unnecessary, but for safety's sake many use the latter.

Is there an instrument which registers the voltage through a high tension coil?

There are instruments made for recording high voltages such as pass through the high tension winding of a coil, but the meters would not be practical for use in motor car service. Such instruments are expensive and are made rather large. You will find high voltage reading meters in testing laboratories.

My disk clutch slips or lets go entirely whenever it is called upon to undertake a pull after it gets warmed up. Can you suggest any possible remedy?

In cases where a disk clutch has been found to slip in the manner which you describe washing the clutch in kerosene has often been found to remedy this condition, though it is sometimes necessary to run it for miles with nothing but kerosene as a lubricant. After it is washed well put one-half kerosene and a light lubricating oil, making about one and one-half pints in all, in the clutch box. The use of a fiber grease, not too much at a time, but often in the gear set will give much better results. Of course if the plates can be adjusted so that they fit more closely together, this will probably remedy the condition.

The Oldham coupling between my clutch and gear box is very noisy. Could you tell me of a way to eliminate this?

Your coupling is probably made in three pieces, including the sleeve, ring and a square piece fitting over the forward end of the clutch gear. There are therefore two places where wear can occur and cause noise in action—first, at the lugs of the Oldham ring and, second, on the square sides of the coupling. You should look at these points and measure the clearance. If the clearance is sufficiently great to cause vibration and noise new pieces should be secured to fit.

Are reliners a success? Will one get enough mileage to pay for their cost? When is it best to use them, when casings are good or after considerable wear?

Re liners are a success and are used by a great number of motorists. As to the mileage obtained, this will depend upon the conditions under which the tires are operated. Many find that the use of reliners in worn casings gives better results than in new ones.

What are the objections, if any, to the two throw crank shaft?

The great objection to this method of manufacturing the crank shaft is that it would be detrimental to effecting a proper balance of the reciprocating parts. Even the use of a counterpoise would only effect the rotative balance, and by having its weight properly arranged only the rotating parts could be brought into correct balance. The reciprocating parts, however, would be arranged in pairs, with all the parts in the forward two cylinders going upward at the time when the parts in the two rear cylinders were going down. This would set up a longitudinal rocking motion which would entail considerable vibration at high speed, besides which there would be a tremendous strain on the bolts holding the cylinders to the crank case.

What advantage has one type of cooling system over the other?

Pump cooling is, of course, more positive than the thermo-siphon, because the water is forced through the water jackets. In the thermo-siphon system the hot water rises to the top and so makes its way to the radiator to be cooled. The thermo-siphon system is the simpler of the two; it is naturally cheaper and is good practice for small motors. For large motors a pump is essential.

Can you tell me of a good compound that will clean the rust, scum and other foreign matter that accumulate in the radiator and the cooling system?

Dissolve a half pound of lye in about five gallons of water. Strain this solution and pour into the radiator and cooling system. When this is done allow the engine to run about twenty minutes, which is enough time for the solution to do its work. It should then be drained off. The cooling system should then be washed out several times with clean water.

In descending a long hill should one use both the foot and emergency brake or just the foot brake?

In descending a hill the driver usually coasts, controlling the speed of the car by the service brakes. It is good practice to equalize the wear on each brake. The service brake is the one most used. Therefore when opportunity offers it would seem advisable to use the emergency brake. The term emergency does not specifically apply to cases of emergency, but is rather an extra set of brakes for use should the service brake fail to act at any time. The driver must exercise judgment in the use of his brakes and should keep both in equally good condition. The main objection to using the emergency brake in coasting is that when it is set there is no great amount of elasticity to it. In going down a hill with the emergency brakes set one often encounters water ridges, which are apt to snap the brake rods if set too tight. When a car hits these ridges there is more or less elongation, which causes the additional strain.

My car consumes too much oil. Could this be prevented by putting patent rings on top of the piston and drilling one-eighth or one-fourth inch hole through the piston walls? Would graphite help this any? There is an oil feed from the precision oiler leading directly into the lower part of the cylinder.

The use of patent rings will help prevent oil from reaching the combustion chamber, but we suggest that before you install such rings you determine the cause of the trouble. Perhaps the cylinders are worn excessively or the pistons worn too much, under which conditions it would be better to use larger pistons. Perhaps too much oil is being fed to the cylinders. The drilling of holes in the piston skirt also will help. Graphite is a good lubricant for the cylinders and tends to fill in the microscopic holes in the metal, but it would not entirely eliminate your trouble. There should be little fear of clogging provided you use the correct amount of graphite.
