PREPAREDNESS IN BUSINESS URGED

National Co-operation Campaign Is Now On.

NEED GREATER UNIFORMITY

Colonel Pope, President of the National clares Attacks and Hostility Toward Industrial and Business System Retard Development and Growth.

New York .-- Presidents of five of the most influential manufacturers' associations in the country, representing industries capitalized approximately at $14,000,000,000 and giving employment to about 6,000,000 workmen, were sponsors at a recent baptism in this city of the national business co-operation cam-

These captains of industry gathered to discuss the nation's business, present and future, and chiefly to safeguard present industrial conditions which may be threatened when the war ends. From the same platform in less than three hours the manufacturing industries of the country were dissected and put together again by William H. Barr, president of the National Founders' association; H. H. Rice, president of the National Metal Trades association; Colonel George Pope, president of the National Association of Manufacturers; John P. Wood, president of the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers, and Albert G. Duncan, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. The prosperity the country is enjoying from big crops and the boom in war orders were gone over thoroughly. Both capital and labor were urged to work in the common interest of the nation's welfare.

"Shortly after the war," Barr said, "by the time the foreign governments can reconstruct their manufacturing industries, the United States will face the greatest competitive struggle in its

"We should husband our resources; the people generally should be more thrifty and more economical; we should improve our machinery appliances in our plants.

"Further than that," he continued, point, we might assume that the foreign countries may during the early reconstruction period follow their mobilization plan in industry, as they have in arms, which from a production standpoint would mean the lowest possible cost.'

Colonel Pope talked earnestly to the manufacturers on "industrial preparedness." He said American industry needs greater uniformity and standardization.

Colonel Pope said American industry requires preparedness in its sphere exactly as in their spheres the army and navy require preparedness. The method and means are different, he asserted, but the underlying principles are the same.

Colonel Pope said that from many quarters there constantly arise mis- coming. guided, unfair attack and hostility toward industrial and business sysgrowth seriously, and they should be guarded against.

Referring to the attacks made on business through politics, Pope said: frank discussion as to the best ways by which our commonwealth may be advanced and the welfare of our citizens promoted. Would that this were true! Politics, however, often degenerates into a systematic method of attack, arraignment, indictment, charge and accusation.

FISHING AND TOBACCO.

Pioneer Thinks They Helped Him In Reaching Green Old Age.

Grant, Mich.-Hinson Cole, a pioner of Muskegon and Newaygo counties, who recently passed his one hundred and first milestone, thinks that his green old age is accounted for in part by the fact that for the last eighty years he has used tobacco moderately and always spent a goodly share of his time fishing.

Cole wanted to enlist for the civil war, but was turned down by Uncle Sam, as he was past forty-six years of age and too old for active duty. For eighty years Mr. Cole has enjoyed a local fame as the leading fisherman hereabouts.

FARMER FINDS GOOD BUSINESS IN SKUNKS

Expects to Market 400; May Net $4 Apiece.

Allentown, Pa.—A unique enterprise in Lehigh county is the skunk farm of Solomon Hausman, near Bittner's corner, in Lowhill township. A vigorous man of forty, Mr. Hausman looks more like a successful country doctor than Association of Manufacturers, De- a farmer and in addition to being a successful agriculturist is a prosperous dealer in skins. One of his cherished possessions is a valuable overcoat made of raccoon skins which he himself shot or trapped.

The growing scarcity of furs and their rapid increase in price were Mr. Hausman's motives in making the experiment of a skunk farm, cut out of ten acres of his estate. Last year he killed sixty skunks for market, but this year expects about 400.

He has been successful in bringing them around to the desired color and believes that by another year he will have 90 per cent of them pure black. The blacks are the most valuable, their skins at present commanding $3 each, while those striped or mixed with white are quoted at $1.50 and less.

The skunk farm is not a picturesque place, consisting chiefly of holes in the ground, with boxes here and there for houses. There is but one litter a year, which runs from eight to ten kittens. In December the fur bearers are ready for slaughter. The skunks must be fed once a day, and Mr. Hausman has discovered that the food they like best and on which they thrive best is

TREED BLACK CAT.

Hunters Thought It Possum and Waited All Night.

Saylersville, Ky.—Recently J. S. Adams with his two sons, Carl and Bundy, went opossum hunting. They started about 9 o'clock, and about 12 o'clock his wife began to get uneasy, and still they did not come home. Next morning she went out and got the neighbors to make a search for them, and while she was getting breakfast she looked up the hill and saw them

When his wife asked him what had delayed him he said: "We were on the tems that retard development and hill when the dog made a dive into the underbrush and then treed something. Alligator Asleep In Sewer.

Greensboro, N. C.-It was while a number of the workers on the job were preparing to put a storm sewer on the proper grade that an astonishing discovery was made, a find for which many solutions have been offered, but none accepted. An alligator boasting a growth, or length, of twelve inches, one foot, was found reposing and snoozing in the mud at the bottom of this storm sewer.

LOUIS D. LAGARDE DEAD

One of the Best Known and Most Popular Men in the South. - Son of the Late Prof. Lagarde Who Died Last Fall.

Louis Dimitry Lagarde, scion of one of the oldest families in the country, one of the best known and most popular men in the South, prominent for the past thirty years in business and society, died early last Friday morning, No vember 26, at his home, 1141 Esplanade Avenue, New Orleans, La, after an illness of more than three years.

Mr. Lagarde was born July 5, 1865, in Richmond, Va., and was the son of the late Prof. Ernest Lagarde, of Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., and Mrs. Leonie Laffargue Lagarde. He was educated by his father at the famous seat of learning to which Prof. Lagarde devoted his life, and after reaching manhood went to Alabama, where, with others of his family, he founded the mining and manufacturing town in that state which bears the family name. In the early 80s, when little more than a youth, Mr. Lagarde went to New Orleans to represent and manage in that city the several enterprises which he and his family then controlled, and thenceforth was identified with the city and state which had given birth to so many of his distin-given birth to so many of his distinguished forebears.

In 1894 Mr. Lagarde married Miss Marie Tremoulet, and she and five children, Ernest T., Henry G., Louis D., Jr., Donald E., and Miss Marie Alice Lagarde, survive him. With his mother and other devoted members of the family, they were at his bedside at his death.

Distinguished in appearance and bearing, courtly and polished in manner, affable and approachable by disposition, and extremely sympathetic and kindly by nature and training, perhaps no man in the South knew, was known to, or numbered more men of every walk of life as his friends than Mr. Lagarde. To the time of his illness he had been a member of all the more exclusive clubs member of all the more exclusive clubs and carnival organizations in New Or-leans and elsewhere throughout the leans and elsewhere throughout the country his friendship and companionship, because of his agreeable traits and highly developed social qualities, were sought by the most prominent people. Thrown into politics by his friends, at a time when reform in the matter of poll tax payments was wanted, and mainly through the importunities of those who thought he was the man to effect these reforms, he was able to meet without loss of dignity or sacrifice of principle those conditions sacrifice of principle those conditions imposed upon him by the venture, and during his two terms in the Legislature, as representative from the Seventh ward of New Orleans, and as chairman of the committee on city affairs, he won and held the respect of every faction. His sympathies were particularly arrested and his efforts enlisted by any legislation that tended to improve the condition of those unfortunates confined in state institutions, and much of the betterment of recent years in such places is due to his efforts in their behalf.

About three years ago Mr. Lagarde was taken suddenly ill, and although suffering from a serious malady it was believed his robust constitution, which had been strengthened by thorough athletic training in his younger years could easily throw off the disease. In the early part of 1914 he so far improved as to be able to attend the session of the Legislature and it was while sion of the Legislature and it was while in the very act of discussing with a close friend a bill to reform the adminis-tration of the Department of Agriculture, which Gov. Hall had entrusted to Mr. Lagarde to father in the Legisla ture, that he was attacked with a sudden and more severe return of the illness. Even then hope was held out for his recovery, but time and all the care and attention which his devoted wife and family could lavish and the efforts of his will power which seemed to be indomitable, failed to arrest the progress of the malady, and for the past six months his recovery had been de-

DR. GEORGE W. WELTY.

Dr. George Washington Welty, one of the most widely known physicians of Brooklyn, N. Y. and a native of Emmitsburg, died Wednesday morning at his home, Clinton & Third Place, Brook-

Dr. Welty was born July 4, 1845, a son of Andrew and Rebecca Welty. He left Emmitsburg when a boy, studied pharmacy in Orange, N. J. and New York City and in 1865 engaged in the drug business in New York. Several years later he began the study of medicine and after courses in the Long Island College Hospital and the Bellevue College Hospital, of New York City, received his degree in 1870. The same year he married Miss Sarah Douglas, of Philadelphia and settled in South Brooklyn, where he practiced continuously for

He was particularly prominent in charitable work in Brooklyn, having been long connected with the charity department of the city. He was a director of the Working Boys' Home and a member of many other charitable and medical organizations, among the latter the Medical Society of Kings County, the Medical Association of New York, and the New York State Medical Association. He was for many years medi cal examiner to the Catholic Knights of America and served in the same capacity with the Penn Insurance Co. Dr. Welty is survived by three daughters: Sister Martina Welty of the Sisters of Charity, Mobile, Ala., and the Misses Mary R. and Elizabeth Welty, of Brooklyn-all alumnae of St. Joseph's Academy and well-known in Emmitsburg. Two sisters, Sister Josephine Welty of the Sisters of Charity, St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Annie C. Spindler of Emmitsburg, also survive. The late Frederick A. Welty, of Emmitsburg was a brother.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the produc-tion of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland-the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State-there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

No people are more wide-awake, more knowable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatchable; the climate is notedly healthful; its water-pure mountain spring water-cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards. Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary-with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years-is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies-equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid acheive-ment-is also here. There are excellent Schools-Public and Parochial-in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liveries, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oiled streets. There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites availabe. If you contemplate changing your place of residence-come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, pressive by reason of its contrast, was the ceremony instituted by Justice Crouch of Syracuse who recently administered to eightyone foreigners the oath of allegiance to the United States. His warning reads like a deliberate charge to a jury sitting in an important case; his instructions are full of solemnity and the spirit of true Americanism.

THE OATH OF CITIZENSHIP.

This is what he said:

On your oath and before the everliving God you swear to abjure and renounce allegiance to the sovereign of your native land and to faithfully sup port and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States.

That means that from this day forth you are to be Americans-not British-Americans, not German-Americans, not Italian-Americans, or any other hyphenated kind of Americans. It means that if your native land is at war with another nation, so long as the United States is Boost the man for whom you labor, against the rules of neutrality, give aid or assistance to your native land. It means that if the United States If you'd make your town the better declares war on your native land, no matter for what reason, it will be your duty to fight against those of your own race or blood-and it will be treason, punishable by death, if you give them aid or comfort.

If there be in the mind of any man here a shadow of a doubt as to your willingness to perform the free duties sunshine of the heart and the of citizenship and to bear true faith and allegiance to the stars and stripes, now is the time to heed that doubt.

But if you have no doubt-if you feel that you can go forward with whole heart and with never a backward look, then I wish you all happiness and prosperity as American citizens.

Three Streets.

In the world as known to Baedeker there are only two streets that can compare with Fifth avenue, and these are both on Manhattan Island. From its source in the asphalt bottoms of Washington square to where it loses itself in the coal middens of the Har lem river at One Hundred and Fortythird street the avenue runs a course of almost exactly seven miles. It runs true to the North star, without a turn, with only a single pause, grimly bent on its business in a way calculated to make the dowager metropolises of Europe lift their eyebrows and say, "How American!" Its rivals are Eighth avenue, a half mile to the west, which may be some 900 feet longer, and still farther west Tenth or Amsterdam avenue, the titan of all urban highways, nine miles up hill and down, as determined in the primeval blueprint shaped by the city fathers some time about the year 1800. All three streets have character as well as length, but Fifth avenue alone has significance.-Simeon Strunsky in Harper's Magazine.

China's Majestic Altar.

No altar on earth vies in marble majesty with the Altar of Heaven-Tien T'an-in the south of the Chinese city of Peking, which Emperor Yung Le of the Ming dynasty reared in A. D. 1420 with its triple balustrades, stairs and platforms of pure white marble carved miraculously, its great circle covering a wide area in the midst of a vast inclosure. Standing alone, deserted under the blue Chinese sky, it is a dream of majesty and beauty. As the great setting of a scene of ritual pomp that calls for thousands and thousands of robed celebrants, with music, incense, sacrifice, it is transcendently imposing and impressing. There the emperor knelt once a year and worshiped "the only being in the universe he could look up to"-Shang Ti-the emperor of the world above, whose court was in the sky and the spear tips of whose soldiers were the stars.

Losses From Consumption.

The ecenomic loss due to tubercuosis is stupendous. Some years ago I made a careful estimate and was astonished to find that, counting the earnings lost, the cost of medical atendance and nursing, special foods institutional care and, above all, the capitalized value of the lives cut off in their prime (for tuberculosis kills at thirty or thirty-five), the total annual cost in this country alone from tuberculosis is over a billion of dollars. This is merely the cold cash cost and takes no account, of course, of sentimental or emotional losses from the death of loved ones.-Good Health.

Crabs In Conflict.

The most savage specimen of the crab species is found in Japan. As soon as he spies another of his kind he scrapes his claws together in rage challenging him to combat. Not a moment is wasted in preliminaries. The sand flies as the warriors push each other hither and thither, until at last one of them stretches himself out in the throes of death, still feebly rubbing his claws in defiance of the foe.

Fighters Who See No Battle.

During a sea fight the engine room men tend the great engines of a battleship with all the care that they would bestow upon the same delicate yet mighty mechanism in time of peace roaming listlessly, yet with a definite purpose, around the engine room with oil cans in hand bestowing drops of lubricant here and there as required. Theirs and the stokers' is almost-not quite-the hardest part of the whole grim drama of a naval battle, for they are absolutely cut off from the fight and are only cognizant of it by the quivering of their ship as or as the enemy's shells thud against the armor or when some stray shot finds it's way through the steel wall and the bunkers to the boilers. Such with a crash. 'You used the right word an event blends a whole stokehold in one frenzied orgy of death-death by exploding shell and scattering fragments of steel; death by awful wounds "Nothing, only I'd give a hundred from flying, burning coals or death by scalding, hissing, blinding steam as the water tubes burst all around them. -London Tit-Bits.

Long Sermons.

Perhaps the lengthiest sermons on record were preached by Isaac Barrow. On one occasion when preach ing in Westminster abbey, at a time when visitors were shown around the place after the sermon for a fee, he kept on so long that the authorities "caused the organ to play till they had blown him down." When he preached on charity before the lord mayor and aldermen the sermon lasted three and a half hours, and if the collection came after that it probably suffered. And, again, when he had arranged to preach on the words "He that uttereth a slander is a liar," precautions were taken beforehand, and he was prevailed on to preach only the half relating to slander, leaving out that which had to do with lies. In this way he managed to finish in one hour and a half. Very likely some of his hearers wished that he was not quite so fond of work. -London Standard.

Turkish School Children.

Turkish children recite their lessons all together in the old fashioned schools, and if you could hear them you would think that you had gone into Wonderland with Alice, where "things wouldn't come straight." The little girls go to school in groups, and with them is always an old servant who carries all their books on what looks for all the world like a small clothes tree. The boys go and come in two long lines attended by their teacher. They carry their own books and wear long trousers and fezzes exactly like their fathers. Some of the tiny girls carry their own little tables and drawing boards. In the gipsy village in Scutari the children learn their lessons by songs in the street. They stand in a circle with a big girl in the middle and they get noisier and noisier the more interested they grow.—Lindamira Harbeson in St. Nicholas.

Persian Agriculture.

The great arid wastes of Persia would lead one to believe that the country does not produce sufficient grain to supply the needs of its population. Such, however, is not the case, and considerable quantities of grain are exported each year. The principal grains grown are wheat, barley and rice. Corn is planted in small quantities, but is used only for roasting ears Oats and rye are seldom sown. Except along the Caspian coast, Persian agriculture is dependent almost entirely on irrigation. The agricultural implements used in Persia are of the most primitive kind. Plows are made from forks of small trees, with the addition of an iron share. It is stated to be doubtful, however, whether the yield of grain would be greatly increased by using modern plows, as there is no sod and this crude implement seems to stir the soil fairly well.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fall to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week.
