WITH THIS COUNTRY AGAINST FOREIGN FOE

Mexico's Great Problems as Diplomats See Them and Commented On at Philadelphia Meeting.

In an address at the Witherspoon Hall, Philadelphia, before the American Academy of Political and Social Science and the Pennsylvania Arbitration and Peace Society, Louis Cabrera, Mexican Minister of Finance, made a statement which startled and at the same time pleased his audience. He said that in the event of war between the United States and any nation outside of the American continent Mexico would stand side by side with the United States, and that she realizes that "her attitude must be one of complete continental solidarity."

The problem for Mexico is to find a way in which foreign money and immigrants can freely come into Mexico and contribute to her progress without becoming a privileged class; so that, instead of becoming a growing menace to the sovereignty of Mexico, they will contribute to the consolidation of her sovereignty and independence as a nation.

Juan B. Rojo, Counselor of the State Department of Mexico said: "Instead of accumulating all the wealth in the grip of a handful, who adopted a dog-in-the-manger policy as regards development, the revolution wishes to help the average man to come into his own, sweeping away the treadmill of hateful privilege."

Alberto J. Pani, Director General of National Railways of Mexico, made this statement: "The true problem of Mexico consists in hygienizing the population physically and morally and to endeavor to find through all means available an improvement in the precarious economical condition of our proletariat."

Daddy's Bedtime

DADDY laughed when Jack and Evelyn said that they wished that animals were all friendly like Shep and Tabby. "My dear children, no doubt the poor animals wish that human folks would be friendly instead of getting after them with guns and traps or trying to shut them up in cages," remarked daddy. "So I'll just tell you the story of the friendly lion. He lived once upon a time in a great big jungle, and he was the biggest and finest lion for miles. "Mr. Big Lion had never been close to the men folk, as the jungle folks called human beings. His jungle was on the edge of a big sandy desert, and sometimes when wandering about Mr. Big Lion had seen a company of men on camels hurrying over the sands. Mr. Big Lion thought this haste was scarcely civil to him. He spoke about it to the monkey in the palm tree. The monkey said it was very rude, and he supposed that the men folk did not know any better. "Well, I know better," said Mr. Big Lion. "I will go and pay a visit to the men folk and tell them that we would like to be friendly with them. Then perhaps they may be more polite." "Maybe," replied the monkey, "but between you and me I wouldn't try it." "But Mr. Big Lion said that it was his duty. He had no doubt they would be glad to see him. So he went off across the desert to visit the men folk. "By and by he came to one of their towns. It was morning, and people were just getting up. When they saw a big lion strolling along the streets the people dived into their houses and shut the doors tight. "Presently he reached the king's palace, and the gate was slammed shut in his face. Then high up in a tower some men began shooting at him. "Stop, stop," roared Mr. Big Lion; "I've come to call on your king! And the king, who heard him roaring, crawled under the throne and wrapped his purple velvet and ermine robe around his head to shut out the noise. "Well, the men went on shooting, and some of them could shoot quite well. One shot carried off a whisker and another a bit of Mr. Big Lion's handsome mane, of which he was very proud. "It's very stupid and rude of them!" the lion growled. "But I don't care. I've done my best to be friendly. I'm going off home again. And to show he bore them no ill will Mr. Big Lion carried off one of their biggest and fattest sheep which was grazing just outside the gate, and it made a very good lunch-noon, indeed. "But he never tried to be friendly with the men folk again, and perhaps the men folk were just as well satisfied that he didn't."

A. V. D. Watterson Esq., paid a tribute to the late Professor Lagarde in which he recounted the beloved teacher's many rare qualities of mind and heart. He referred to splendid career of Prof. Lagarde prior to his association with the Mountain; he recalled the good man's kindly offices soon after the war in reconciling the differences between students from the North and South; with feeling he spoke of the high esteem and the tender affection that surrounded Prof. Lagarde's memory—a memory that will ever be kept alive in the hearts of all Mountaineers. The monument erected to the memory of Professor Lagarde by the members of the Alumni Association was set in place during the past summer. It is in the form of a Celtic cross and is made of Westerly Granite from a design by Joseph J. Stock, ex-'12, of Pittsburgh, the work by C. M. Rider, of Emmitsburg. Under the name and date of his birth and death is the following inscription: "His pupils to generations of whom he was dear, in token of love, raised this monument to his memory." On the left side of the Cross are inscribed these verses by Rev. Patrick L. Duffy, Litt. D., '75:

"What is it?" asked the president. "It is a plan to do away with the last three speakers at every banquet," replied the caller.

PICKLED ALEWIVES.

They Link a Maine Village With the Republic of Haiti. Let a revolution get under way in the Haitian republic and the principal business of Danverscott Mills, Maine, will go to smithereens. And it has occurred several times in the past. Always, however, it comes back, and in the end there is no loss. It cannot be otherwise. The little Maine hamlet is indispensable to Haiti, while the black republic is a valuable asset to the village. One of Haiti's staple articles of food is supplied from the Maine town. It is the pickled alewife, a fish closely allied to the shad family, in that it consists of many bones surrounded by very white and decidedly sweet flesh. Natives of Haiti like it. In fact, they are about the only people in the world who consider salted alewife an epicurean delight. Less than fifty barrels are sold anywhere else on the American continent, while Haiti takes between 5,500 and 6,000 annually.

The alewife fishing season is in May. At that time the fish come into fresh water rivers and lakes to spawn. Da mariscotta Mills, which are at the outlet of a large lake, are a favorite spawning point of the fish. They are arranged in their way into the lake. Traps are arranged, and all fish which go into them land in a pickle barrel. Men armed with dip nets having a capacity of a bushel of fish at a dip take the alewives out of these traps, depositing them into a boxlike bin, from which they are shoveled into a sluice. This sluice leads down to the salting place.—Boston Globe.

OUR FIRST FERRYBOATS.

They Were Catamarans With Paddle Wheels Between the Hulls. The present day ferryboat is very different from the type originally in use. Fulton's first regular voyage of the Clermont began on Aug. 7, 1807. In 1812 a steam ferryboat ran every half hour in daylight across the North river between Cortlandt street and Paulus Hook. This boat was of the catamaran type, the two hulls ten feet apart, and the wheels were between the hulls and operated by steam. The trip took from fifteen minutes to an hour, according to the wind and tide.

Similar catamarans, but operated by eight horses in a treadmill, were in use on the East river as late as 1814. In May, 1814, the first steam ferryboat with outside paddle wheels was put in commission, the Nassau of the Fulton Ferry line. The floating bridges, operated by the tide and balance weights substantially as at present in use, were the invention of Robert Fulton.

The row of yielding piles by which the boats are still guided into their slips was the contribution to ferry navigation of John Stevens. As a marine architect he stands second only to Fulton, and his first steamboat, completed but little later than the Clermont, was sent around by sea to Philadelphia and was the first to ply on the Delaware, Fulton's monopoly excluding it from New York waters.—New York Sun.

In Panama reside the Talamanca, a tribe of Indians who have not changed their habits since the days of Columbus. The Talamanca's hut, which is a masterpiece in the art of thatching, is a huge affair and shelters his entire family and all his worldly possessions, including the domestic animals. As he is a past master in the art of domesticating the wild deer, the peccary, the tapir and even the tiger cat, numbers of these animals are present in every village. His bed consists of the trunk of a certain species of palm cut into strips and supported three or four feet from the ground on a frame. A few earthen pots complete the furnishings of his house.

Was It Spirit Or Illusion?

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is nothing so strong in nature as the chains that draw two persons together, and nothing better typifies it than two vines that originally could have been broken apart by a child's delicate fingers, each becoming after a lapse of, say, half a century as large as an athlete's biceps and much harder to bend.

The most remarkable case of this kind came under my observation. I will relate the story.

Donald Gregory, when he was too young to remember the fact, became a playmate of a little girl about his own age, Ella Marston. Their parents' places were side by side, and the children, neither having brother or sister, were together all day. Then they went to the same kindergarten and afterward to the same school. Their first and only separation was when Donald went to college. They pined for each other, and he neglected his studies to write her long letters, receiving equally long replies. When the first examinations came on, though a bright fellow, he failed. This ended his college career. He returned to his love and was never again separated from her till half a century later, when death claimed her.

They were married when the groom was nineteen, the bride eighteen. A son was born to them and a daughter. The former lived; the latter died in infancy. Till the son came to manhood he remained with his parents. Then he broke away to engage in business at another location.

Even in their youth they had few intimate associates and after coming to middle age dropped away from anything social. Those who knew them wondered at this, for they were both attractive and popular. Efforts to get them into social undertakings always failed.

Mrs. Gregory died at seventy. It was a year after this that I made the acquaintance of her son, now a man of nearly fifty. Strange it is that with his parents' happy married life before him he never married. When his mother died he persuaded his father to come to live with him. I had made George Gregory's acquaintance some time before this, and when his father appeared on the scene George and I, both bachelors, were intimate, I being at his house frequently.

When I was introduced to his father I saw a handsome old gentleman with a florid complexion and white hair and mustache. It struck me that if I were a woman I would fall in love with him no matter what was his age. George told me of the close relationship between his father and his late mother, and when the latter died he feared his father would lose his reason. But his father seemed to settle down to an acceptance of his fate and in a measure apparently ceased to grieve. His son noticed something about him which he communicated to no one. I discovered it for myself.

One day when going to George Gregory's house I saw his father putting his night key into the door. He opened it, stepped back as if waiting for some one to enter, then went in himself. The matter made but little impression on me till later I heard the old gentleman talking to himself in the library. At first, thinking that he was reading aloud, I permitted myself to overhear him. I soon became aware that he was talking to some one whom he called "my dear." The two episodes together set me to wondering, and I narrated them to his son. George sighed and said:

"So you have noticed it. I have known that of which you have seen evidence ever since father came to live with me. He ever has my mother with him—just how I don't know. Whether he sees her spirit, whether he fancies that it is present with him, whether he hears her replies when he talks to her—all this is a puzzle to me. I have often heard him talking to her as you heard him, and he says the same things to her that he was used to saying while she lived, only they are more endearing. He was always during her life as gallant to her as when they were young lovers; and when he fancies she is with him he will not sit while she stands, will not go through a doorway without waiting till she has gone before him. I have seen him come into the house after having been out of an evening and remove her wraps as tenderly as he ever did while she was with him in the flesh. He had a way of sometimes walking with her hand in hand, and since her death I have often seen him swinging his arm through the empty air as I often saw him do it when I was a boy."

"Do you observe," I asked, "whether after apparently being with her he is more or less gloomy?"

"He is never what we call gloomy, though there is a certain sadness always in his eyes. It seems to me that Providence, in whose sight such love-like lives as were his and my mother's must be acceptable, has made some physical change in his brain which causes an illusion to comfort him till the day shall come when he will be reunited to her."

"Did it ever occur to you," I asked, "that the strong affection between him and your mother has enabled him to see and commune with her spirit?"

"It has," was the reply, "but I don't know."

Since then the same door has closed behind Donald Gregory that closed behind his wife.

SEASONABLE LIVE STOCK INTERESTS

Give Young Stock Attention During Cold Weather.

SHOULD BE CAREFULLY FED

Young Stock Must Continue Growth During Winter—Should Start Prime Condition in Spring.

College Park, Nov. 16.—At this season some farmers must be reminded of the fact that young stock demand careful attention during the months they are not on pasture. In this matter Dr. S. S. Buckley, Animal Industry Extension, State College of Agriculture, recommends the following treatment:

Seasonable Live Stock Interests.
After having turned out a selected lot of young stock last spring, grazed and fed them until now, when they represent a well-grown, well-conditioned and promising lot of youngsters, it is unwise and unprofitable to allow them to "go back" or "remain stationary" in growth during the fall and winter months.

All animals are better for having made steady and continuous growth from birth to maturity, and any degree of weight which is lost during this period represents a money loss.

Grow Or Stand Still.

The feeding of exclusively maintenance rations is justifiable under certain circumstances, but there is never justifiable excuse for feeding growing and developing animals a ration merely for maintenance. "Unto all things there is a season, etc." This is fundamentally true for live stock; all animals mature at more or less fixed ages whether or not they have had the advantages of feed and care. After maturity, no system of feeding can overcome the deficiencies of development. The most which can be hoped for is the production of fat on these stunted carcasses, even this is added at doubtful profit.

Take Stock Of Feed and Animals.

It is very important therefore for the farmer to take an accounting at this season of the year. He should make an estimate of the amount and character of the feed stored for the fall, winter and spring months, and the amount which he is prepared and willing to purchase. He should also estimate the quantity required to continue satisfactory and natural growth and development in his animals. These estimates he should compare. If there is likely to be a shortage of food materials, the farmer should select the least desirable individuals for his purposes. These he should sell in the condition in which they came from the pasture. His most desirable animals can then receive closer individual attention, and be developed into high type specimens.

In this way the farmer makes a double selection—first from the very young animals when he turns them out and again after about six months development he has an opportunity to cull them over, if by chance he has become overstocked or if his crops have failed to come up to expectations.

Building The Body Framework.

The animal body grows and develops uniformly and naturally only when conditions are favorable. These conditions can be favorable only when the quality as well as the quantity of feed is proper. A food ration, to be proper, must be more or less perfectly "balanced," that is to say, it should have all classes of food elements present in sufficient amounts, with none in excessive amounts, thereby guarding against feed waste.

Good Pasturage contains all food element in proper proportion; good Silage needs the addition of a strong Protein concentrate like Cottonseed Meal or Alfalfa; good Legume hays, with small amounts of grain and roots, silage or beet pulp furnish desirable and economical feed for growing animals.

Frequently, however, farmers compel their stock to subsist on Straw, Corn Fodder or Hay alone. These support life and serve as maintenance feeds, but for the purposes for which young stock require food, the building and growth of body framework and tissues, such feeds alone are neither satisfactory nor economical.

Checking Up.

The experienced and successful stockman "knows the game" and instinctively "keeps tab" on his animals from day to day. To those less experienced, or in fact "novices," it is necessary that they should "check up" periodically and determine how their industry is progressing. No better way can be found than that of "keeping records" for individuals or groups.

Begin Now.

Cull over the live stock and sell all that do not offer reasonable assurance for future profits. Make an estimate of feed on hand and stand ready to purchase any needed additions when the market is favorable. Make provision for proper shelter before severe weather sets in, bearing in mind that comfort and safety make for profits. Finally when everything appears to be in prime order for wintering the stock make the resolution that this particular lot of stock shall emerge from winter finer and better, and start in prime condition for the favorable conditions of spring.

No Useless Formalities.
Traveling with Sir Arthur Markham on one occasion, the conversation with the present writer turned on the limits of self defense. "I shot a man once," said Sir Arthur. "And what happened?" I inquired. "Was there trouble?" "No," came the reply; "there might have been elsewhere, but it was in the wild part of Russia. The man was trying to enter my bedroom window at night, and I shot him. He fell outside. A small patrol of Cossacks was passing within reach of the sound of the revolver. They came along, secured the wounded man, asked a few questions and disposed of the whole business by hanging my burglar on the nearest tree. I heard no more about the matter." This method of dealing with a very plain business seemed to be thoroughly in accord with Sir Arthur's wish to have things done without any bothering red tape or formalities.—Westminster Gazette.

Two Freaks of Nature.
Two contrasting freaks of nature are the Island of Fire and the Lake of Snow. The Island of Fire is called the Home of Hot Devils. It is situated in the midst of a large lake of boiling mud in the island of Java. The steam and gases which arise from the sticky mud form themselves into bubbles attaining a diameter of five or six feet and sail high up in the air like balloons, carried hither and thither by the wind and finally exploding with a loud crash.

The biggest snow lake is seen from the summit of Hispar pass, in the Karakoram range. It is more than 300 square miles in area. In Switzerland the sea of ice might better be called the sea of snow, as the surface is broken up by solar heat, which makes a minute fissuring in the ice, giving it the appearance of snow.

Berries of the Nightshade.
The berries of the deadly nightshade (Atropa belladonna) are such a tempting fruit for children that both they and their parents ought to know the plant and the terrible danger of eating its berries. These are the source from which the poisons atropine and belladonna are made.

The deadly nightshade grows from three to five feet high on strong branched purple colored stems. Its pointed, oval leaves vary in size and stand in pairs on short foot stalks. The flowers are purple, pendent and bell shaped. These appear in June and July and give place to shining black berries in August and September.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hemorrhage.

In treating hemorrhage the first thing is to find its cause and then try to stop it by local means. What these means are must depend on the state the patient is in and the site of the bleeding. If that is easily reached the hemorrhage can be stopped by packing or by pressure or by binding with ligatures. Sometimes the state of the patient is such that it is best to stop the flow by the pressure of the hand or fingers while other steps are taken to relieve the constitutional symptoms of shock and collapse.

Sometimes only an operation can reach the point from which the blood comes. In that case it must be performed as rapidly as possible while the patient receives constitutional treatment. In many cases only a physician can find the source of a hemorrhage, but intelligent bystanders can do much to relieve the symptoms. Hot water bottles are needed to help in maintaining the bodily heat. Stimulants should be in readiness, and the salt box should be at hand, for saline injections are often given by physicians in dangerous cases of hemorrhage.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

MEETING OF THE ALUMNI.

The members of the Alumni Association of Mt. St. Mary's have the unique distinction of meeting at their college home twice a year, once in the Fall and again at the June commencement.

There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good livery, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations.

IMPORTANCE OF THE RUDIMENTS OF CULTURE.

The general complaint against the superficial culture and deficient intellectual development characteristic of the age tends to awaken educators to the vital necessity of a thorough pedagogical system.

It is alleged that the fundamentals are neglected; that young men said to be well versed in Latin and Greek are restricted to impoverished vocabularies in English conversation; that book-keepers and stenographers are often unable to write grammatical English.

What we need and need sadly are reformatories—not reformatories in the strict interpretation of the word, but schools well regulated and adequately equipped for the efficient supplying of the neglected essentials.

The little things are the things that count, in life, in character, in education. Exactness is the secret of successful achievement; exactness in thought, speech, action.

THE AVERAGE WOMAN WORRIES

The average woman worries more about her complexion than she does about her prospective harp and crown. Why so? It takes only a minute to kalsomine her physiognomy any hue she desires.

FARMING A PROFESSION.

Especially within the last decade the farmers of this country—that is the farmers who are "live wires"—have reached the conclusion that they are really a very important factor in the prosperity of the Nation.

THE LADY AND THE DISHRAG.

When a woman declares that she "feels like a dish rag" she is dragging herself down to the lowest level of still life. We doubt not from the personal appearance of that handy article of domestic utility that if any life existed at all in said rag it could not possibly fall lower or feel meaner.

FURNISHING THE HOME.

When you plan to furnish your new home and have just so much money to spend begin by making two lists, one of the things you want and the other of things you have to have.

SHARP AND POINTED.

"A good advertisement," said an advertising man, "should be as sharp and pointed as the Irishman's answer."

ESKIMO MOURNING CUSTOMS.

All Eskimos are superstitious about death, and, although they hold festivals in memory of departed friends, they will usually carry a dying person to some abandoned hut, there to drag out his remaining days without food, medicine, water or attendance.

OSTRICH DOGS.

Collie dogs are used to herd ostriches in South Africa and perform the work with great sagacity. The birds are savage when breeding and will attack any man or animal that interferes with them, but are strangely cowed in the presence of the dogs.

CYNICAL.

"I'm sure there has never been a breath of scandal about her."

"FIVE people out of every one thousand of the inhabitants of this country are constantly incapacitated for work on account of sickness."—This is a pretty low average, considering the yearly output and sale of patent medicines.

OH the injustice of it! In Washington children with scates are permitted to appear on the streets; men are fined ten dollars.

NEVER mind, Davy, you'll get a good berth; and By Heck you deserve it.

"WATER a stimulant."—Hush, they'll want to prohibit that next.

"ARE we law mad?"—Ye, verily; absolutely "bughouse."

DID Carranza put the "hot male" trust out of business?

AND didn't Maryland come across?

THE LADY AND THE DISHRAG.

When a woman declares that she "feels like a dish rag" she is dragging herself down to the lowest level of still life. We doubt not from the personal appearance of that handy article of domestic utility that if any life existed at all in said rag it could not possibly fall lower or feel meaner.

CYNICAL.

"I'm sure there has never been a breath of scandal about her."

THE LOVE OF TREES.

That one should feel affection for great trees is natural. In the Minnesota forests I met a lumberman who told me he wept bitter tears when he got orders to cut down a fine hemlock.

When I have revisited the "woods" in which as a boy I gathered nuts I have fancied the trees I used to climb recognize me. They looked the same. They hadn't aged. The shellbark hickory trees seemed a trifle more dangerous to climb than of yore, and the walnuts had gained noticeably in girth, so that my lengthened arm had barely kept pace with the expanding bark.

EASY IF YOU KNOW HOW.

Burned out electric lamps can be renewed by this simple method: File off the tip carefully so that the globe does not crack. With a pair of tweezers twist the broken filament together.

THAT THREE MILE LIMIT.

The origin of the "three mile limit," the imaginary line three miles from the shore, which fixes the territorial waters of a sovereign state, is somewhat of a mystery. One explanation and the one usually accepted is that when it was agreed on by the nations three miles was the limit of range of the big guns of that time.

HER GILDED GOWN.

During the reign of King George I. Lord Hervey, a cultured man, gave this description of the fine dress of a distinguished woman: "The Duchess of Queensberry's clothes pleased me most. They were white satin embroidered, the bottom of the petticoat brown hills, covered with all sorts of weeds, and every breadth had an old stump of a tree that ran up almost to the top of the petticoat, broken and ragged and worked with brown chenille, round which twined nasturtiums, ivy, honeysuckles, periwinkles, convolvuluses and all sorts of twining vines, which spread and covered the petticoat. Many of the leaves were finished in gold, and part of the stumps of the trees looked like the gliding of the sun."

TRY IT ON YOUR DOCTOR.

Translating a Greek word into its Latin equivalent will often give you a new or unexpected synonym—or a reversal of the process will do the same. For instance, if you refer to the human body as osseocartilagino-vascular-articular-ligamentous-muscular and want to puzzle the anatomical experts by being still more pedantic, you could transfer that mighty word, section by section, into its Greek equivalent and describe the physical frame as osteo-sarcho-matoplasmanchondroneuro-muscular. And that would hold the doctors for awhile.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HE WAS A FIBBER.

"You're a tattletale," said small Harry to his little sister. "You always run and tell mamma everything that happens."

THE LOBSTER.

The lobster is decidedly pugnacious, engaging in frequent combats with others of its kind, in which contests limbs are often severed, but this loss is soon repaired by the growth of new members, rather smaller, though, than the old ones.

TERRIBLE THREAT.

Aunt—Why didn't you scream when he kissed you? Niece—He threatened me. Aunt—Threatened you? Niece—Yes. He said if I did he'd never kiss me again.—Boston Transcript.

MADE UP.

Mrs. Flatbush—She tells everybody her face is her fortune. Mrs. Bensonhurst—Well, she's made it nearly all herself.—Yonkers Statesman.

BETWEEN FRIENDS.

"What foolish things a fellow will do when he is in love!"

ORIGIN OF FELT.

Many centuries ago a poor monk was compelled to travel upon a long and arduous journey. His road was rocky, his sandals were worn, and he suffered agonies as he trudged grimly upon his holy errand. One day as he sat by the wayside resting a sheep came up to him, bleating in the most friendly fashion. The good monk petted the sheep and was grateful for its dumb friendliness, when suddenly he had an inspiration. He took out his sheath knife, sheared two handfuls of wool from the sheep and placed one in the heel of either sandal. That afternoon as he trudged along his feet seemed light, his step springy. The wool took the jar from his spine, the impact of the stony road from his aching, swollen feet.

HOW SACCHARIN WAS DISCOVERED.

Saccharin is the most valuable substitute for sugar we know. Yet it, like many other present day inventions, had a rather unlikely beginning. It can be taken with impunity by diabetic patients, to whom ordinary sugar is death, and it is many times sweeter than that commodity. And, strangely enough, it has only been known to science since 1887.

MARINES AND THEIR FINGERS.

Men with long, tapering "piano" fingers are apt to desert after short service, while those having stubby digits, denoting stability of character and utter lack of the artistic temperament, usually stand by their oaths and make the best marines, according to finger print experts at headquarters of the United States marine corps. Although desertions from the corps are light at all times, it has been found that actors, sign writers and, strange to say, waiters furnish the largest number of deserters. Records, including finger prints, of all men enlisted in the marine corps are kept at headquarters for purposes of identification, and there are cases on record where bodies with finger tips intact have been positively identified through the finger print medium.

QUITE COMMON.

"It's strange what interest small boys and girls take in boasting about the possessions of themselves and their families. Mollie, aged nine, and Nancy, a year younger, were trying to outmatch each other at this game, and Mollie was several points ahead in the contest. "Oh, you should see my mother's fan!" she boasted, thinking to make her victory complete. "It's lovely—all hand painted!" Nancy tossed a scornful head. "Pooh!" she retorted. "That's nothing. So's our garden fence."

BOLD COURT FOOL.

Ferdinand II. was a man of very uncertain moods and would allow his jester to take liberties with him one hour while resenting any familiarity the next. One day he turned round on Jonas, his favorite fool, and thundered: "Fellow, be silent! I never stoop to talk to a fool!" "Never mind that," answered Jonas. "I do. So please listen to me in your turn."

TO MAKE SURE.

"Won't you please leave the light burning in the hall, mother?" pleaded little Robert as he was being put to bed. "Nonsense, Bobbie," was the reply. "Surely you know there isn't anything to be afraid of in the dark." "Yes, I know, but can't you leave a teeny weeny light so I can see there isn't anything there?"—Exchange.

BOB BURDETTE'S ASIDE.

When Bob Burdette was addressing the graduating class of a large eastern college for women he began his remarks with the usual salutation, "Young ladies of '97." Then in a hurried aside he added, "That's an awful age for a girl!"

ENVELOPES.

Envelopes were practically unknown before 1725. About that time one was seen semi-occasionally. As late as 1850 letters were often sent folded and sealed. Envelopes may be said to have come into use shortly after 1844.—Exchange.

BADLY TIMED.

Nephew—I tried to get a raise today, but the boss refused it. Mrs. Blunderby—Too bad, Dicky! Perhaps you didn't approach him at the zoological moment.—Boston Transcript.

ATLAS REJOICES.

Atlas bore the world on his shoulders. "It is much easier than having it on your conscience," he explained.—New York Sun.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

PEACHES GALORE.

PEACH Imperial.—Soak a tablespoonful of granulated gelatin in a quarter cupful of cold water for a quarter of an hour and dissolve in a third cupful of scalded milk. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla or almond extract and a third cupful of powdered sugar. Allow it to set over cold water, stirring constantly until it begins to jelly slightly; then cut and fold lightly into three cupfuls of cream, well whipped. Serve in long stemmed glasses with quarters of freshly pared peaches arranged point upward around the glass and filled with a dab of stiffly beaten whipped cream and a yellow or deep crimson nasturtium.

Peach Chutney.—Remove the skin and stones from four pounds of peaches, add two and a half cupfuls of vinegar and stew until soft. Mix and pound together four ounces of mustard seed and half a pound each of finely chopped onions, raisins and sugar. Add two teaspoonfuls of salt, a teaspoonful of cinnamon and four cloves of garlic scraped fine. Add ginger and cayenne to taste. If the peaches are sour a little more sugar may be approved. Add another half cupful of vinegar, cook slowly fifteen minutes and put up in small jars. This may be mild or red hot according to the amount of cayenne and ginger used.

Peach Gateau.—Bake a sponge cake in a round cake tin. Cut out the center, leaving a wall about three-quarters of an inch thick on the bottom and sides. Just before serving fill the cake with peaches which have been pared, sliced, sugared and chilled. Pile the top generously with whipped cream, which has been sweetened and flavored. Sprinkle over all some almonds, which have been blanched, chopped and delicately browned in the oven.

Peach Dumplings.—Sift an even quart of flour twice with one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt. Chop into this a tablespoonful of shortening (butter and lard mixed). Mix into a soft dough. Roll the pastry lightly and cut into squares. Take the stones from nice ripe peaches which have been pared, fill the cavity with sugar and wrap each peach neatly in a square piece of the dough. Bake in a moderate oven a nice brown. Eat while fresh, with cream or clear sauce.

DIVINITY CREAM CANDY.—If you would have this have the flavor and coloring of maple sugar substitute soft brown sugar for granulated. The candy is delicious. To make it take a pint and a half of whipped cream, one pint of white candy drip, six cupfuls of sugar, one and a half cupfuls of nuts and vanilla to taste. Cook until it makes a soft ball when tested in water. Then let cool, but not until stiff, cream with hands and add nuts.

Everton Taffy.—To two cupfuls of dark molasses add two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of cold butter and the grated rind of half a lemon. Boil this mixture over a slow fire until it hardens when dropped in cold water. Pour into well buttered tins and mark into squares before it cools.

Puffed Rice Candy.—Make a common molasses candy. Have the puffed rice ready, and when the candy is ready to remove from the fire stir in as much of the puffed rice as possible and either pour the whole into tin trays or dripping pans, well buttered. Press it flat and make into squares when partly cool or form into balls, according to the amount of rice you have put in.

Making Popcorn Balls.—Take a cupful of molasses and one-half cupful of sugar and boil till it will get hard in cold water, not brittle. Just before you take it off add a pinch of soda to make it light. Pour over popped corn and stir till the molasses is well over the corn; then wet your hands in cold water and form the balls.

Hornbound Candy.—Boil two ounces of dry hornbound in one and a half pints of water for half an hour, cooking briskly. Then strain it and add three and a half pounds of brown sugar to the hornbound water. Cook over a hot fire until brittle when tested on tea or in ice water, and pour on well greased pans. While hardening mark off in long sticks, making the impressions deep enough for the candy to break easily along their lines. This candy will keep many weeks if the sticks are wrapped separately in oiled paper and it is recommended for colds and hoarseness.

The Too Good Man

His Kindness Is Always Repelled.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I've figured it up with slate and pencil, and I've chalked it down and added it up and subtracted it and multiplied it on the barn door, but it always comes out the same—the too good man has no place in this world. He is a sort of cross between a burdock and a sunflower—not ornamental enough for wear nor good enough eating for cows.

Coming up from Red Bank the other day, I followed an old man into the passenger coach. I had noticed him on the platform, and I recognized him as belonging to the species I have named.

The train had scarcely begun to move when my too good man, who had a rear seat, rose up and announced: "Don't nobody be skeered, now. This hain't no collision. It's just like they allus move off. I've rid on 'em more'n a dozen times, and I'll tell you when to jump off."

Everybody looked at him, while some deluded him with smiles meant to be encouraging. He stowed away his satchel and removed an old slouch hat he had been wearing.

There was a woman sitting alone a few seats down the aisle. She had an umbrella, a bundle secured with a shawl strap and two or three parcels on the seat, and as Uncle Jerry passed down the aisle he stopped before her and cheerfully observed:

"Face kinder familiar to me, but I can't remember your name. Never been much of a hand at remembering names, anyhow. Husband flew around and helped ye to git ready, I suppose? Leave the children all right? Been lots o' measles around this year. Didn't leave the outside cellar door open, did ye?"

"I don't know ye," she said as she looked up.

"What! Hain't ye Hanner Jones of Jones' Crossroads?"

"No, sir."

"Waal, I swow! I'd bet a two-year-old steer agin a cider barl that ye was."

The next one he accosted was a man fully as old as himself whose crown was bald and who wore spectacles. He was reading a letter, which he had taken from a corn colored envelope, when Uncle Jerry gave him a playful poke in the ribs and called out:

"Lands, you look just like my brother Bill across the back and head. Goin' somewhar, I s'pose."

"Who did that?" testily exclaimed the old man as he looked up.

"I kinder poked ye, but it hain't nuthin' to git mad at," replied Uncle Jerry. "Folks all well at home, I hope. How'd yer taters keep last winter? Hear any demand fur turnips lately?"

"I warn you to stop, I say!" yelled the old man as he waved his arms around.

"Then I will. If ye are so techy as all that I don't want nuthin' to do with ye. Lucky that ye hain't goin' to run fur supervisor in my town. You wouldn't git a blamed vote. Howdy do, naybur?"

This last remark was addressed to a rather savage looking man with a weed on his hat who was reading a magazine.

"I warn you to go on," said the man. "I'm wicked! I'm tuff! I'll hurt ye!"

"By squash, but what a feller ye be! Haul right off and plunk me 'cause I want to be friendly, eh?"

He seemed to be a bit discouraged for a moment, but presently his eye caught the figures of two females at the far end of the car, and he edged along down to see if anything was wanted in his line. The two were mother and daughter, and the latter didn't look well.

"Did she fall down the cellar stairs or pitch off the haymow?" kindly inquired Uncle Jerry as he sat down on the rail of the seat.

"Are ye speakin' of me darter?" demanded the mother.

"Zactly. Doesn't look just right for this time of the year. If I'd only thought I'd brung along a bunch o' mayweed and told ye how to make tea of it. Beats all creation how mayweed takes the kinks out of the system. She ain't in luv, is she?"

"Sir!"

"Naybur o' mine had a gal about her age who began to ravel out and fade away. They put horseradish drafts to her feet, mustard plasters to her neck and dosed her with catnip, mayweed and sage tea, but she continued to fade off and fade in the wash and finally died. When too late they discovered she had all along bin in luv with Bill Hawes, my hired man, who was so gaul durned bashful that he darsn't say a word about it. Better begin to hunt around the grass and see if some thin' of that sort ain't troublin' her."

"You old critter, go away from here with yer blarney or I'll be the death of ye!" shouted the mother, and as he jumped back she pulled the girl out into the aisle beside her and waved her umbrella in a threatening manner.

"If ye don't go I'll call the police!"

"Waal, by gum, if I was to tell this to Lucy when I git home she'd say I fell asleep and had the nightmare. Don't none o' ye seem to want to be sympathized with. I'll go. I'll git right away, and if I had a hull sack of dried catnip and two dozen red peppers here I'd let the whole caboodle of ye suffer. Well, I just won't say an other word, I'm dished if I do."

Fence With Concrete Posts

Use Security Portland Cement

Why build fences of wood—fences that soon rot—that easily burn—and that are constantly getting out of alignment? Concrete fence posts are permanent and indestructible and over a period of years cost less than wooden ones.

They are very easily made. You can make enough during spare time in the winter to fence as much of your farm as you want. Do this work now—don't waste valuable time next spring and summer—constantly repairing wooden fences. Our free bulletin tells how to do the work yourself.

St. Mary's College, has made its first appearance for this session. First Woman in Congress.

Messages of congratulation from suffrage leaders in many parts of the country poured into Missoula last Friday, for Miss Jeannette Rankin, Republican, the first woman to be elected to Congress.

Miss Rankin's campaign managers contend that she has been successfully elected by at least 2000 majority.

"I felt that the women would stand by me," Miss Rankin said. "It is wonderful to me to think of having the opportunity of being the first woman to sit in Congress with 434 men."

Miss Rankin is small and slight. She is a graduate from the University of Montana and the School of Philanthropy of New York.

THE JUNIOR VARSITY WINS GAME WITH MARYLAND SCHOOL

In The Line Alfred, Annin and Sours Did The Best Work For The Mountaineers.—The Score Was 26-7.

Following the Annual Barbecue games the Junior Varsity defeated the Md. School for the Deaf at football, 26-7. The visitors had a very decided advantage in weight but were forced to yield to the superior team-work and individual ability of the sturdy Mountaineers.

Md. School received the kick off but were forced to punt and when the attempt was smothered by the local forwards the ball went to the Juniors on the thirty yard mark. Clever end runs by Friday, Slatter, Cain and a line plunge by Kesenmeier put the ball on the three yard line and Friday pierced center for the first touch-down. Intercepting a forward pass at the beginning of the second period Friday got away for one of his brilliant broken field runs for fifty yards and a touch down. The third touch-down came quickly. Md. School kicked off and Cain punted, the ball rolling seventy yards. The mutes failed to advance the ball and punted to Mid-field. The Juniors began a march to the goal interposing their successful end runs with long forward passes. Cain carried the ball over. Captain Fesenmeier contributed the final score in the third period, plunging thru tackle on the thirty-yard line and eluding the secondary defense for a touch-down.

Downes the visitors speedy full-back scored their lone touch-down on a brilliant end run from a fake kick formation.

The feature of the game was the splendid interference of the Junior backs and ends. Toney Friday the dynamic little quarterback gave a wonderful exhibition in every department of the game. Capt. Fesenmeier was the only back able to gain consistently thru the visitors heavy line, he was a tower of strength on the defense smashing most of the mutes plays before they could get fairly started. Miller, Hollern and Costello did some good work at the end making many hard clean tackles and invariably eluding the visitors interference. Slattery contributed many clever end runs and some splendid interference. In the line Alfred, Annin and Sours did the best work. Line up:

THE END OF A PERFECT DAY.

Two fool jackasses—Say! get this dope—Were tied together with a piece of rope. Said one to the other, "You come my way, While I take a nibble from this new mown hay."

"I won't!" said the other. "You come with me, For I too have some hay, you see."

So they got nowhere, just pawed up dirt, And Oh, by Golly! that rope did hurt.

Then they faced about, these stubborn mules, And said, "We're acting like human fools."

"Let's pull together. I'll go your way, Then come with me and we'll both eat hay."

Well, they ate their hay and liked it too; And swore to be comrades good and true.

As the sun went down they were heard to bray: "Ah! this is the end of a perfect day."

THE CROSS OF MT. ST. MARY'S.

To tell what the Mountain stands for A symbol sufficed, So on its highest turret Was placed the Cross of Christ.

And this to countless students Has been its text, Which fitting Man for this life Prepares him for the next.

TRUSTEES' SALE.

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Frederick County, in Equity, passed on the fourteenth day of November, 1916, in a cause therein pending, known as No. 9520 Equity on the docket of said Court, the undersigned Trustees will offer at public sale at the Elder Hotel in Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Maryland, on

TUESDAY, THE TWELFTH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1916,

AT THE HOUR OF ONE O'CLOCK, P. M., all that real estate which was owned by the late Ephriam S. Sheeley of which he died, seized and possessed, situate and lying in Frederick County, State of Maryland, about two miles east of the town of Emmitsburg, consisting of three separate pieces of real estate containing in all about NINETY (90) ACRES OF LAND, MORE OR LESS, described in the following deeds:

First.—All that real estate described in a deed from Susanna Lupp and John Lupp, her husband, dated April 17, 1899, to the said Ephriam S. Sheeley, containing 22 acres, 2 rods and 10 perches of land, more or less, which deed is recorded in Liber S. T. H. No. 280, folio 551, etc., one of the land records of Frederick County, Maryland.

Second.—All that real estate described in a deed from John A. W. Matthews and Laura J. Matthews, his wife and Charles H. Brown, dated March 1st, 1904, to the said Ephriam S. Sheeley, containing 64 acres of land, more or less, which deed is recorded in Liber S. T. H. No. 280, folio 550, etc., one of the land records of Frederick County, Maryland.

Third.—All that real estate described in a deed from J. Rowe Ohler and Annie R. Ohler, his wife, dated May 5th, 1910, to the said Ephriam S. Sheeley, containing 2 acres and 117 square perches of land, more or less, which deed is recorded in Liber No. 18, folio 353, one of the land records of Frederick County, Maryland. All these three properties are adjacent to each other and constitute but one farm, consisting of ninety acres of land, more or less, as above set forth. The improvements consist of a frame bank barn in first class order and repair, a frame dwelling house two stories high and likewise in good order and repair, other out-buildings incident and necessary to a farm and a peach and apple orchard in their best bearing period. The majority of the land is in a high state of cultivation and yields good crops. This property lies only a couple miles from Emmitsburg and its size, the character of its soil and location render it a most desirable property.

Terms of sale as prescribed by the decree:—One-half of the purchase money to be paid in cash on the day of sale or on the ratification thereof by the Court, and the residue in six months, the purchaser or purchasers giving his, her or their notes, with approved security and bearing interest from the day of sale, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of Two Hundred Dollars will be required of the purchaser or purchasers at the time of sale, to insure compliance with its terms. All conveyancing expenses to be borne by the purchaser.

EARTH MOVEMENTS WILL BE PREVENTED

General Goethals' Report Declares "Calamity Howlers and Know-It-Alls" Spread False Reports.

The prediction that earth movements in the Panama Canal will be overcome "finally and for all time" is reaffirmed by Major General Goethals, Governor of the Canal Zone, in his annual report, made public by the War Department. This will be accomplished, General Goethals says, "notwithstanding the calamity howlers and in spite of the disastrous predictions of the 'know-it-alls.'"

Referring to the slides, the General says he is moved to go into the subject again only because of the many false reports that have been published.

"Such reports are false and there is no foundation for them," he declares, "yet they seem to have gained credence, probably because a pending treaty between the United States and Nicaragua contemplates securing from the latter all rights for building a canal on its territory."

Such reports, General Goethals adds, serve to aid shipping companies to take advantage of present conditions to charter vessels at excessive rates and permit an increase in insurance rates. He protests particularly against a widely published report made by Professor Benjamin Leroy Miller of Lehigh University, on his return to the United States after passing three or four hours looking over the canal. General Goethals says Professor Miller's statements were "erroneous, unwarranted and unfair."

Announcement has been received of the marriage of Miss Maria Cristina Crespie of Costa Rica to Major Dan Tyler Moore, United States Army. The wedding took place on October twenty-eighth at the Hotel Netherland, New York City.

The unwonted delay of the returning Frost King has caused some anxiety among the members of the Tau Sigma Sigma. A sleigh ride over the mountain roads has been planned and all are eagerly awaiting the day when the hills wear again their robe of white.

Mrs. James Kase, Miss Genevieve Kase, Messrs. Paul and James Kase, Jr., Misses Lucia Kline, Josephine McGinn and Clare Wise of Reading, Pa., motored to St. Joseph's last Saturday to spend a day with Miss Frances Kase who is a freshman this semester.

Recent visitors in the Valley were: Rev. P. M. Stief of Columbia, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Stief, Mr. George Stief, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Gable, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. August Schneider, all of Mt. Carmel, Pa.

EVER WATCHFUL.

A Little Care May Save Many Emmitsburg Readers Future Trouble.

Watch the kidney secretions. See that they have the amber hue of health. The discharge not excessive or infrequent; Contain 'no-brick dust like' sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for weak kidneys. Let a Westminster citizen tell you how they work. Jesse Stultz, Pennsylvania Ave. Westminster, Md., says: "For some time, I suffered from disordered kidneys and my back ached. I had pains in my sides and was caused annoyance by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me at once and I continued taking them until I felt better in every way." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Stultz had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. Advertisement.

Enormous Campaign Fund.

It is estimated that the money expenditures in the recent campaign, including the expenditures of the independent committees working for the two candidates and the expenditures in the various state campaigns, amounted to at least $25,000,000.

come and his visits are looked forward to with great delight.

The Seniors are still poetic beings—gathering inspiration indiscriminately, here and there. An authority on this subject coming to the Vale would be impressed by the adaptiveness of St. Joseph's to the development of esthetic qualities.

Misses Rose and Mary Rogers, of Frederick Co., Md., spent Thursday with their sister, Anna, and friends in their "Valley Home." The happy location of Frederick is well known; its proximity to St. Joseph's not being the least of considerations that occasions these frequent visits.

The Senior Pedagogical Class which has been doing some interesting observational work, paid a visit to the cold storage plant recently. The construction and workings of the new machinery were carefully noted as a preparation to the construction of lesson plans in the pedagogical work.

A charming evening was that at which the Sophomores were hostesses. The guests donned costumes appropriate to the season, wearing masks and indulging in the gaieties of Hallowe'en revelry. Dancing was the order of the evening, after which the Bal Masque closed with the serving of dainty refreshments.

Miss Caroline O'Gorman '16, Blackville, South Carolina, is preparing for a trip to Savannah, Ga., where she expects to visit friends for some time. Miss Mary Pepper a former classmate of Miss O'Gorman's lives in Savannah so there will be something of a St. Joseph's reunion.

Miss Catherine Henessy of Albany, New York, held the interest of the students of the college and academy during her recent lecture on Robert Louis Stevenson. Miss Henessy's clear enunciation and unaffected manner added no small part to the enjoyment of the sketch of the "boy-man."

Miss Kathryn Gloninger, '18, took advantage of the recent holiday to make a pleasant little excursion to Baltimore, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Ledia Gloninger. Holidays are most effective stimuli to study, relaxation proves beneficial, at least when demonstrated in our model seniors and juniors.

Miss Rosalie Cofer, of Norfolk, Va., a member of the college preparatory celebrated on last Thursday, in true southern style, the prime event of school life, the traditional sixteenth birthday! The tables were decorated in artistic fashion indicating the ethereal and idealistic trend of the directing mind. The color scheme of pink and green was effectively carried out and the soft glimmer of the shaded lights, the silvery tone of the guests, lent a fairylike influence to the festive scene.

In the Valley we find the French, German, Irish, English and Spanish descent but the Land of the Free also has its representatives. The ideal American Girl, typical of "mens sana in corpore sano" is greatly in evidence. There is no necessity for appending the nationality of the merry eyed girl who resounded in this way to a news seeking Senior: "No, I haven't anything to report yet, but just wait 'till we begin our Basket Ball Series—I'll keep you posted, we'll wake up then!" Such healthy enthusiasm speaks for itself.

ACROSS THE LINE

By the first of January, 1917, a course of military training will be established in Gettysburg College. This is the indication following a meeting in Brum Chapel, addressed by Captain Lewis Morey, of the Tenth United States Cavalry, who was one of the participants of the fight in Mexico when the detachment of troopers made up largely of colored soldiers, was ambushed by Mexicans and a number killed.

Rev. David M. Yule, of Blue Ridge Summit, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Waynesboro, the Episcopal church at Beavertown, and the Church of the Transfiguration, Blue Ridge Summit, has accepted a call from the Episcopal church at Steelton. Rev. Yule preached at Steelton Sunday and the congregation was so impressed with him that they gave him a unanimous call, which he accepted.

Bishop Philip McDevitt, head of the Harrisburg diocese, visited the Catholic parishes in the Eastern end of Adams county last week. Bishop McDevitt was installed as the head of this diocese several weeks ago, and this was his first tour of inspection of the parishes under his jurisdiction.

Speedy and Easy Riding

There's little comfort in most low priced cars. You can't use their speeds. They jostle you—they ride roughly—they don't hold the road.

The $635 Overland is different. It is not only the speediest of low priced cars—

But you can use the full speed of its powerful motor when you need it.

It has long 42-inch, easy riding, shock absorbing cantilever rear springs. In addition the 75 B Overland is a longer car—104-inch wheelbase. And it has 4-inch tires.

Its smoothness and ease of riding at any speed would do justice to a much larger and heavier car.

Come in and let us demonstrate. That's the best kind of proof.

USED BY MARYLAND FARMERS

College Park, Md., November 2.—Valuable suggestions regarding the curing of pork, as published in the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station Bulletin No. 185, are of particular interest to hog raisers at this time. In regard to the curing of pork, the following recipes for the home curing were given by farmers in different sections of the State and include only those that have been used successfully for a number of years:

1. DRY SALT—This is one of the simplest methods of curing in vogue today. The meat is thoroughly rubbed with plain, dry, coarse salt and packed in large barrels. It is allowed to remain in the barrels from four to six weeks, depending on the weather. If the meat is taken from the barrels, the salt is thoroughly brushed off and the hams and shoulders sprinkled with dry borax to keep away skippers. The last process is to hang the meat in the smoke house and smoke well with hickory or other hardwood for several days.

2. COMBINATION MIXTURE — This process is similar to the dry salt except that several other ingredients are added to the salt. For every thousand pounds of meat, the mixture is proportioned as follows:

- 10 quarts fine salt.
- 12 ounces saltpeter (dissolved in a pint of water).
- 8 ounces black pepper.
- 3 pounds brown sugar.

The ingredients are thoroughly mixed together and result in a damp, moist product. This is well rubbed into the flesh side of the meat, which, after treatment, is placed on a board that has previously been salted. The meat is so placed on the board that no two pieces touch. After curing for three or four weeks, the meat is treated with prepared or liquid smoke. It should be painted twice with this preparation, allowing about two days between treatments, and then sprinkled with borax and put in the meat house.

3. SPICED HAM CURE—The following recipe was furnished by a Maryland farmer who has the reputation of producing especially fine hams. The proportions for 100 pounds of meat are as follows:

- 2 pounds brown sugar.
- ¼ pound saltpeter.
- ¼ pound black pepper.
- ½ pound red pepper.
- 2 quarts fine salt.
- 1 tablespoonful cloves.

Mix the ingredients together and then thoroughly rub all parts of the ham with the mixture. Place hams, skin side down, on boards, exercising care to see that they do not touch each other, and after all are in position, the remainder of the mixture is sprinkled on them. In about six weeks they are removed and smoked with hickory wood.

Methods Of Cooking Vegetables

College Park, Md., November 2.—In instructions to her students in home arrangement, Miss K. A. Pritchett, of the Maryland Extension Service, gives valuable advice regarding the cooking of vegetables. She says, "Boiling and steaming are both very good methods of cooking vegetables, for no nutritive value is lost. In cooking in a large amount of water and then draining the water off, the mineral matter and flavors are lost, because they are dissolved in the water. For an economical dietary, this method should not be followed, because it is wasteful. Where the housewife can plan to get the necessary mineral matter from meats or other sources, it may be allowable. It may also be used for old potatoes, beets of rank flavor and strong onions. A better method for fresh vegetables is steaming or cooking in a small amount of water, so that it is almost boiled away by the time the vegetables are cooked.

Points To Remember.

1. When cooking vegetables, the general rule is to allow one teaspoonful of salt to each quart of water.
2. Violent boiling water is no hotter than boiling water, and violent mashes and breaks the vegetables.
3. With some vegetables, like corn, it is more satisfactory to add the salt toward the end of the process, otherwise it hardens the fiber.
4. Drain the vegetables as soon as tender.
5. Cook strongly flavored vegetables, i. e., onions and cabbage, in an uncovered dish.
6. Vegetables that should be cooked with a small amount of water are greens, tomatoes, and tender young peas.
7. The less tender vegetables, such as peas, carrots, and the outer pieces of celery and celery tips, may be cooked and put through a sieve for soups.
8. Left-over vegetables may be reheated or used for soups.
