YOU'LL BE SORRY

Saw a driver doing some mighty fancy maneuvering to get his car in and out of that awful hole in the curb in front of Roy Bollinger's meat market—correction—not one car—but hundreds, if we want to get really technical and count 'em . . . Why the State Roads Commission or the Corporation or whoever in thunderation is in charge of these things, doesn't do something about it beats me . . . It's really a hazard not only to automobile drivers but also to pedestrians . . . If someone should accidentally step off the pavement there, fall into that deep gutter and break a leg—well—the town or someone would be liable to a whooper of a suit against them for injuries received . . . And it'll be even worse when the snow covers that big gap with a thick white blanket and deceives both pedestrians and motorists as to its actual depth . . . All right, so maybe no one has fallen all these years . . . There's always a first time . . .

WORD OF PRAISE

One of my reporter friends told me an inspiring little tidbit . . . It's about a very generous merchant from Thurmont who refused to make any profit off the local 'Vets' Club when they bought a whole lot of new furniture for their new lounge room on the second floor . . . The gentleman in question told the representative from the local club that he would be glad to order anything for the club on an absolutely wholesale basis . . . "I don't want any profit from you fellows . . . You deserve anything you can get." . . . That's what I call darned white, and I don't mind saying so . . . There should be many more like this fine man. There are far too many in the world who have forgotten the debt of gratitude and respectfulness due our war vets for a job well done . . .

OLD "FRIENDS" MEET

I understand that there was a most happy (?) reunion at the regular meeting of the Lions Club Monday night . . . There were so many reporters there that any resemblance to a national press conference was purely coincidental . . .

NOTHING NEW IN TOWN

Been to the Book Nook yet? What's the Book Nook, you say? Surely you're not serious . . . But in case you are, here 'tis. Several months ago Prof. Bernard Eckenrode and his wife opened a unique little shop in Mrs. Mae Welty's building and called it the Book Nook. The only business of its kind here in the 'burg, they handle books, souvenirs, popular, classical and hillbilly records, knick-knacks of all descriptions . . . Then they've a lending library, school supplies, fancy dishes and vases and other bric-a-brac. And in Prof.'s own words, "If we don't have it, we'll get it for you." Yes sir, it's a mighty nice little gift shop, and say, with Christmas almost around the corner, you can find countless gifts there that are both lovely and useful.

So you see, my Emmitsburg alumni, I haven't been just fooling when I've been spouting off about improvements being made here in your beloved Emmitsburg. And I'm still not finished yet . . . Just wait . . .

See folks still get a shower time it rains by just walking past the hotel. Every time a fella walks past the barber shop he feels that cold cataract of water beating down on his head and running down his collar, chilling his very spine . . .

WANT DIAL PHONES?

Zowie—How would you like to have dial phones here in our little hamlet? Well, I'm happy to inform you that Emmitsburg is included in the deal when, and if it goes through. Just think . . . No more impatiently tapping your foot to mark time while waiting for that well known "Number Please" . . . No more getting

MOUNTAINEERS LOSE TO ST. VINCENT'S

Take Lacing From
Visitors By One-Sided
Score Of 31-7

Mount St. Mary's College was defeated by St. Vincent's of Latrobe, 31-7 at McCurdy Field, Frederick, Sunday afternoon before nearly 3,000 fans.

The Bearcat line proved too much for the Saints, who were losing ground so fast in the closing minutes that they welcomed the final whistle.

Without the services of Pete Collura, their hard-charging full-back, the visitors found most of their scoring punch in free-running Mickey Puskar, an elusive half-back, who swept the Mountie ends consistently.

The Blue and White lost the services of their star back, Walt Belardinelli, early in the first quarter when he suffered a pulled hip muscle when thrown for a three-yard loss while trying to get around right end. He returned to action later but had to retire to the showers.

Three Mountaineer fumbles were costly as the alert Bearcats recovered three of their four fumbles.

The story of the one-sided battle is reflected in the statistics. The Saints gathered 13 first downs, 11 on the ground and two by aerials. Three of the Mountaineer first downs were by rushing and two resulted from passes. The visitors lost 45 yards by penalties and one of the Mount first downs came by that method. The Mounties suffered no penalties.

Of the 288 yards credited the visitors, 215 were gathered on ground plays and 73 yards from passing. The Mountaineers gained by 95 yards, 64 by rushing and 31 by passing. Each team completed six passes.

Puskar put the visitors in front in the first quarter when he cut through left tackle for 10 yards and a touchdown. His conversion attempt was futile.

His second touchdown sprint was a thriller. He raced 50 yards down the sidelines to score after the Saints had kicked to midfield. Again his placement was in vain.

Mickey made it 19 to 0 at the half by skirting left end and reversing his field to go 28 yards for another touchdown. His third try for an extra point was good.

To add variety, the visitors employed a pass to score in the third period. Troila threw an aerial to Harris in the end zone to cover the last 13 yards. Again Puskar's boot was wide.

The Blue and White's only sustained drive paid off in the third period. Ed Ward was knocked out of bounds on the Saint's one-yard line and Jim Leahy's drive into the center failed to pay off. Marty Green dropped back to pass and when he failed to sight a receiver, he broke through the defense to score standing. Collins' try for the point was no good but a horn gave him a second try, which he made good.

Puskar got back into action for the final Bearcat tally late in the fourth period when he started off left tackle and cut back to go 19 yards for a score. Several Mountaineers got their hands on him but couldn't bring him down. Mickey's fourth try for point was wide.

Jim Delany recovered Michaels' fumble on the Mount 30-yard line in the closing minute. On three plays, the Mounties lost 38 yards.

RABBITS SCARCE BUT HUNTERS ARE NOT DISMAYED

Thousands Take
To Fields For Small Game Season

While the United States is waging a cold war with the Russians it was a red-hot war that was begun Monday for the rabbits in Frederick County. The eager nimrods laid down a barrage that virtually shook rabbitland to its foundation.

One casualty was listed. He was Kenneth Carty, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Carty, near Cactin Furnace, had the calf of one leg shattered and his foot peppered with shot when a new shotgun discharged as he was hunting with companions. His condition was reported favorable at the Frederick Hospital Thursday night.

Both hunters and game wardens stated that rabbits are scarcer than usual and not as many hunters in the field as in former years. Few hunters reported bagging the limit and most of them said what rabbits were to be found "were sitting tight and had to be kicked out."

Regional Game Warden Phebus said a number of foxes were killed. They are presented to collect the bounty offered. Foxes are partially blamed for the shortage of small game, he said.

Scarce in Other Counties Too
The general shortage of rabbits prevails in Carroll, Howard and Montgomery Counties as well as in Frederick County, game wardens said.

No violations of the game laws were reported in Frederick County. Warden Phebus said something happened to the rabbits between last wheat harvesting season and the present. He said farmers reported an abundance of young rabbits last June and July.

State police were busy Monday chasing hunters who were shooting too near property and the town's limits.

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO DRIVING SCHOOL MEETING TONIGHT

Program Of Instructions
To Cost Taxpayers
Estimated $16,500

A public meeting in the interest of driver education and training in the high schools of Frederick County will be held in the Frederick High School auditorium tonight at 7:30.

The fact that the meeting would be held was brought out Monday evening during a discussion of the advantages of driver training at the meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

The advantage of the program, the cost and other pertinent information relating to the subject was given the directors by Osborne I. Price, representing the various civic groups of the county.

This information included the likelihood that the cost of the program, $16,500, would be absorbed by lower rates for liability insurance as driver training reduces accidents on the highways. The initial cost would be just 2.2 cents per $100 on the tax rate, it is said, or around $1 to $2 a year on the average tax bill, which is called the "cheapest insurance" ever offered in the county.

The program met with the general favor of the directors. It was brought out that the expenses of advertising and publicity for the program are being paid through the committee, which includes representatives of service clubs, the Chamber of Commerce, the Automobile Club of Maryland, the Frederick Automobile Dealers Assn.

A moving picture, showing the advantages of driver training, was shown at a meeting of the Thurmont Parent-Teachers Assn. this week.

Miss Ann Marie Boyle, who is attending a business school in Baltimore, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Boyle, over the week end.

TWO COLLEGES COLLABORATE ON PLAY

St. Joseph's and Mt. St. Mary's
Work On Presentation

St. Joseph's College and Mt. St. Mary's have combined their talents and efforts to produce the annual fall play at St. Joseph's this year, and on Sunday night, Nov. 21, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" will come to life.

Dolores Maher, SJC class of '51, will play the role of Elizabeth, and John Gallagher, MSM class of '50, will take the part of Robert in the poetic love story of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning.

The early Victorian period will be the setting for the unfolding of the story which is done in three acts. Supporting members of the cast will be Robert Graham as the stern, sinister father of Elizabeth; Edward Moulton, Barrett; Joseph Culhane as George Barrett; Edwin Bradley as Octavius Barrett. Avita Frick will play Henrietta Barrett and Margaret Paulus will play the role of the spoiled Arabel Barrett.

Aside from those who portray the Barrett family, Beverly Barker will play Miss Mitford; Susan Donaldson will take the role of Wilson; Milly by Cathleen Clifford; John Kenyon will be played by Milton Farley, and Captain Surette Cook by James Bertrand.

All of the townspeople of Emmitsburg are invited to attend the play. The curtains will open at 7:30 Sunday night.

HOUSEWIVES TO BUY PORK CHOPS CHEAPER SOON

Illinois Professor
Says Record Grain Crop
Will Reduce Prices

Housewives can look over these forecasts and almost taste the chops, fried a nice golden brown. Forecast for the near future: Cheaper pork chops, more meat at the butcher shops, and lower costs at the grocers.

These welcome prognostications all came out of the annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association this week. Real experts made the forecasts.

Concerning those pork chops, there'll be more of them and also cheaper. So says L. H. Simerl. He is associate professor of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Simerl said pork will be cheaper because of the record grain crop forecast.

Larger Spring Pig Crop

The record grain crop will bring a larger 1949 spring pig crop—hence cheaper pork prices next fall, Simerl said.

On the other meats, there'll be lots more produced, according to Manager Cecil Musser of the Serum Association, Chicago. He said farmers are making plans to market several billion pounds more meat during the next two years than in 1948. Hogs will account for the biggest increase, Musser said.

Speaking on groceries, Manager J. L. Pidcock of the Illinois Cooperative Locker Association, predicted cheaper food prices through the frozen food locker industry.

Pidcock said locker plants are giving farmers a chance to market nearer their homes, thus cutting the wide spread in price between consumer and producer.

DR. BEEGLE ATTENDS MARYLAND CONFERENCE

Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Beegle and family attended the Maryland Chiropractic Assn. conference held in Baltimore last Saturday and Sunday at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

The conference was concluded with a dinner and dance Saturday night held at the hotel.

On Sunday afternoon the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Chiropractic Assn. held its meeting with the President Mrs. A. M. Golladay presiding. Mrs. Golladay appealed to auxiliary members to help raise funds for research work as they had done last year when they gave several hundred dollars to the research cause.

SERVICE BOOKS READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Contain Interesting
Information On Veterans and Town

Emmitsburgians are in for a pleasant surprise when they see the fine Service Record Books of local veterans which are being published under the sponsorship of the Francis X. Elder Post of the American Legion.

Everett Chrimer, legionnaire in charge of the project, has announced that the books are now complete and will be distributed to those who ordered them as soon as they arrive. A few copies have already arrived here but these are for the local merchants whose contributions made possible publication of the book.

Compiling this record book has been a tremendous feat, one that has taken a lot of time and effort, and after having seen a copy of it your writer cannot express too fully his appreciation. Mr. Chrimer and his fellow committeemen deserve immeasurable credit for a job well done.

By way of describing the book to you let us say that it is a collective service record of each individual local veteran of World Wars I and II. The book does not include all local veterans because there were some who for some reason or other, did not respond to the request of the committee to send in their picture and service record. And to help defray the expense of publishing a book of this kind each person who contributed the desired information was asked for a small nominal fee. At the time the facts were being compiled there were some who were not interested. Others put it off until a later date and finally forgot about it, still others who did not approve of the small charge incurred. Certainly there is no one who can say they never knew the legion was planning to print the book because the project received wide publicity both through newspapers and personal contact.

To get on with the details of the book it has a photo of each veteran accompanied by his or her full service record. The records appear alphabetically. There follows a series of photographs of local places of interest. Pictures of Emmitsburg business houses of many years ago in contrast with those of more recent vintage. Additional photos of the new ambulance purchased by the local VFW Post, local baseball teams of 25 years ago, as compared with the teams of recent years.

These are just a few of the interesting features of the service books. Truly it's a record of which every Emmitsburgian can well be proud.

LIONS TO HONOR LADIES MONDAY NIGHT

The Emmitsburg Lions Club will play host to the ladies on their annual Charter and Ladies Night Monday.

A full evening of enjoyment is being planned, the main feature of which is to be a turkey supper at 6:30 p. m.

Immediately following the turkey banquet which, incidentally is being held in the Lutheran Parish Hall, there will be a program of entertainment that should be highly enjoyable. A magician will perform some difficult and incomprehensible feats after which there will be music by a trio of Spanish ladies from St. Joseph's College.

At the conclusion of the entertainment dancing will commence and continue until the end of the evening.

MOVES RACING STABLE

Mrs. Bertha Flax, of Emmitsburg, has shipped her good jumper, Gay Venture, to Charlottesville, W. Va., for the winter meet starting Nov. 29. Also to be seen in action under Mrs. Flax colors, will be Count On and He'll Try.

Miss Genevieve Rawlings and Mr. Carroll Hardin, of Baltimore, were visitors at the home of Mrs. Mae Welty and Mrs. Euphemia Rotering over the week end.

GLANCING AT THE NATIONAL BUDGET

By making next year's budget the first order of business after his triumphal return to Washington last week, President Truman tacitly recognized that Government spending is the key to inflation. This is something he ignored, perhaps understandably, throughout the campaign.

Mr. Truman has now called for a "hard-boiled budget policy" and has generally approved lower outlays for 16 Government departments in fiscal 1949-50 than were provided in the current budget. This is an excellent start, and we hope it signals a trend that will continue in the months to come.

But we have some doubts. For one thing, the agencies mentioned above, account for only one-tenth of the overall budget, most of whose present costs are fixed. For another, military and foreign relief spending are not yet reckoned.

And in the latter regard, we might as well frankly admit that just what these figures will be is as much up to the Kremlin as it is to the Budget Bureau. We cannot look for any economies on arms spending and grants or loans to Communist-beleaguered nations in the next few years, unless Russia becomes convinced that over the long haul she cannot win a war—cold or hot.

That leaves us only the domestic field for budget savings, and it is precisely on this score that we have our biggest doubts about paring Federal expenditures. For if the commitments made by Mr. Truman during the campaign were fulfilled, Government outlays next year would have to be higher, not checked or reduced.

Thus, farm subsidies are to continue, at an annual cost of billions. In addition, the President has promised a public housing program, health insurance, Federal aid to education, extension of social security, "the most ambitious irrigation development in all our history," the St. Lawrence Seaway and other power projects—to name the more outstanding.

To carry out all or most of these promises would mean that an inflation spiral is going to be with us a long time—and with the spiral a shrinking dollar, higher taxes, a drag on industrial expansion, and the blackening prospect of a catastrophic bust.

These might be avoided if the President applies to his domestic program the same formula he has given his budget director, namely, that "Estimates for existing activities should omit work of low priority and provide for the most efficient performance of necessary work."

LETTER TO EDITOR

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

Just a few words about our school and our appreciation of the fine work Prof. Arvin P. Jones has been doing for our children.

I understand there are many little extra things introduced in the school for the betterment of the education of our children. To list them would be a little difficult, but to see for yourself, just visit the school and talk with the teachers.

Have you heard about the hard work, Miss Mildred Trevett is putting into the Minstrel to be given Nov. 23 and 24? Hours seem to mean nothing to her and you can find her in the school working with the children late at night or even on Sunday. Aren't we proud of our music instructor? She gives so many hours and never complains, but seems to enjoy her work. More power to Miss Trevett and good luck with the Minstrel.

Did you notice the cheering and enthusiasm at the boys' soccer game with Thurmont on Tuesday? Even though they lost the game, I am sure it gave our boys a lot more encouragement to know there was some one there who cared whether or not they scored. I feel sure we have Mr. Jones to thank for this cheering which was given, losing or winning. They were good sports and were good losers. That is important in life, for we can't always win and we must know how to be a good loser. The boys have been trying hard, under the direction of Mr. Linger, and we all know he has worked many hours and has been patient with the boys. Perhaps our boys can still win their next game with the children cheering for them and knowing there was some one watching who was interested.

It is fine to see the parents supporting the school and being interested in our children's activities. Let's all get together and do all we can for our boys and girls, and show Mr. Jones our appreciation.

FOOD EXPERTS FROM UNITED NATIONS WILL VISIT SEVERAL COUNTY FARMS NEXT WEEK

Foreign food and farm experts are going to study three Frederick farms next week.

About 75 delegates from all over the world will inspect facilities of the College of Agriculture, the Extension Service and the agricultural experiment station at the University of Maryland.

The projects are in conjunction with the fourth annual meeting of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization which convenes in Washington Monday.

Tomorrow's tour starts off at College Park and the representatives will go by bus to Frederick after luncheon, as guests of the Extension Service, the Farm Bureau and the Maryland Grange.

On the way they will stop at the Soil Conservation Service watersheds experiment seven miles northwest of the university campus.

The project is collecting scientific data on water runoff with the idea of improving terracing, ditching and other soil conservation practices.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boyle and children, who for several months resided at Dayton, Md., moved on Saturday to an apartment at the rear of the property of Miss Ora Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jacobs, Swissvale, Pa., were visitors over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Seiss.

Will Visit County Farms

The visitors will go then to the farm of Roy Summers, near Jefferson in the famed Middletown Valley of Frederick County. Another stop will be made near Middletown at the farm of Edward F. Holter, master of the Maryland Grange and lecturer of the National Grange.

The last field visit will be at the farm of Mrs. Nellie Thrasher near Jefferson, where 500 neighbors and volunteer workers pitched in last August and in one day installed a complete soil conservation farming system.

For some of the visitors it will be a return visit, for they were among the 25,000 or so spectators who watched the transformation of the widow's farm at the Maryland conservation field day August 18.

Misses Adelaide and Frances Hock, of Washington, D. C., spent several days here visiting their aunts Mrs. Stella Topper and Mrs. Laura Rosensteel.

Mr. and Mrs. George Winters and son, Charles, of Baltimore, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John Eyer, West Main St.

Mrs. William Wivell spent the week-end in Baltimore visiting her daughter and son-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Humerick, Altoona, and Miss Evelyn Humerick, Washington, visited relatives in town last week.

SHORT STORY

Winter Evenings

By RUTH K. KENT

EVY liked winter evenings best because then she had time to do her fancy work. Before she married Bill her days were filled at the office and evenings she had to care for mamma . . . winter and summer. Now she had to sprinkle the lawn on summer evenings, but winter . . . last year she made that green needlepoint cushion she and Bill were so proud of. It was sacred to Evy . . . almost like a child.

This winter she was making seats for the dining room chairs, and they were coming along nicely until the Harpers moved in next door early in January. Kathy Harper was tall but she seemed dainty beside Evy's five feet. Kathy could twist her indulgent husband, Curt, around her finger. And her eyes often wandered across the fence after that first day she came over and gushed, "That gorgeous Wedgwood! You wouldn't sell it?"

Evy wouldn't. But the Italian pottery bowl and the tiny flowered picture frame and the blue pitcher found their way to Kathy's living room. Everything seemed to look better in Kathy's living room.

Kathy raved about the needlepoint cushion. Afterwards Bill said, "I'm surprised she didn't get it, too."

Then Kathy started bringing over Curt. "Let's have some bridge," she suggested.

One evening Kathy said, "Let's play for money."

Evy glanced at Bill, but he didn't move.

"Quarter a corner," Curt said. Bill got that defensive look. "You'll have to work for it."

Bill was an accurate player, but Kathy had a way of taking all the tricks the way she took everything else. Mostly with her chatter. Bill couldn't concentrate. Kathy had a way of pouting when she lost. That made Evy secretly afraid that Bill was letting her win.

So the needlepoint lay rolled in the sewing basket. "I'll work on it next week," Evy would vow.

But next week was always the same. Except that Curt Harper sort of faded out. Sometimes Evy and Bill would want to go to a movie. Kathy invited herself along and sat on the other side of Bill.

Mamma always said to Evy, "If you'd get mad once in a while, people wouldn't push you around." Evy was getting mad.

One evening when she was out making coffee she heard Kathy in the living room coaxing Bill for something. She'd lost her dollar . . . probably trying to coax it back. Kathy's laughter tolled a knell in Evy's heart.

Evy hurried in. Kathy cried, "Don't you dare, Bill . . ." and reached for Evy's needlepoint cushion, ready to plop it on Bill's head.

Kathy started bringing over her indulgent Curt.

"You put that pillow back," Evy shouted. "Don't you dare touch it."

Bill took the pillow gently. "Ah, ah . . . no touch."

Evy slammed down the tray. "Nobody touches that pillow. Least of all you, Kathy Harper. That's one thing to keep your hands off."

They stared at her. Evy realized she'd been screaming.

"I don't want coffee," Kathy said. "I have to go."

"Too bad," Bill said. "Give me my pen."

She threw Bill's fountain pen at him. "Take it, stingy," she said. The door slammed.

Evy crumpled to a chair. "I . . . got so mad . . ."

"You sure did," Bill reached for a cookie. "She won't be back."

Evy started to cry. Maybe Bill'd be calling on Kathy now. "How could I?"

Bill's eyes narrowed. "She was pawing your pillow."

"I don't care for myself," Evy cried. "But now you can't play bridge."

Bill scratched his head. "I thought you couldn't live without her. You mean . . . ye gods . . . I was doing it for you." He fingered his pen. "Well, she didn't get everything from us."

Evy smiled. Kathy didn't get anything, really. She laid her head on Bill's arm. "I'm going to finish that needlepoint now."

AAA PROUD OF NEW-LOW RECORDS OF AUTO DEATHS

Statistics Show Less Deaths To Both Pedestrians and Motorists

Improvement of our national record of traffic safety was likened Thursday to a "powerhouse of fast-growing momentum," according to a report by Leonard E. Kolmer, general manager of the AAA Automobile Club of Maryland. The report was made to the hundreds of motor club executives gathered in San Antonio, Tex., from all over the United States for the forty-sixth annual roundup of the AAA.

The report said that recent decreases in deaths and injuries have come about because of many years of planning and intensive work, and pointed out that the traffic mileage death toll for the first six months of this year was at an all-time low of 7.1 deaths for 100,000,000 miles of travel. In 1947 the death rate for the same number of miles of travel was 8.1 for the whole year.

Mr. Kolmer also told the delegates that the reduction in traffic deaths from 33,700 in 1946 to 23,300 in 1947 was entirely due to a decrease in pedestrian fatalities. This was cited as evidence that programs such as the AAA national pedestrian protection contest and other pedestrian safety projects are paying off handsomely.

In reviewing the many phases of the AAA traffic safety program, the report told of the work being done in co-operation with school authorities in elementary and high schools. This includes the distribution each month during the school year of safety lessons, posters and crayon color-in sheets.

The National Traffic Safety Poster contest for school students, now in its fifth year, was also mentioned. At the last judging 4,119 poster entries were submitted and considered.

The important work of the school patrols, which have a roster of 350,000 boys and girls who help to protect their schoolmates at dangerous traffic corners throughout the country, was featured in the report. As a result of this and other safety educational activities, traffic deaths involving children five to 14 years old, dropped 34% between 1928 and 1947, Mr. Kolmer said. This is all the more remarkable, in that the percentage of traffic deaths for all other age groups remained practically the same during 1928-47 period.

School Training Pays Off

Great stress in the report was laid on the splendid results of driver training in the high schools. In telling the delegates that 238,000 high school students graduated in such training courses during the past year, Mr. Kolmer pointed out that this represented an increase of 200% over the number of graduates in 1947. It was added that AAA clubs to date have been responsible for making available to schools some 2,000 dual control cars for training purposes.

New research studies, made in Delaware, Wisconsin and Arizona show the value of driver training, the report continued, since they confirm the AAA study made some time ago in Cleveland. This revealed that trained high school students have only half as many accidents per month of driving as their untrained classmates.

Training courses for instructors in driver training have been held for classes in which some 6,000 teachers have participated, and in seminars for over 300 college professors, who will, in turn, instruct other teachers, it was also reported.

In summing up the vital importance of this phase of AAA work, Mr. Kolmer said: "Our greatest opportunity for a greatly improved traffic safety record tomorrow, lies in training our youth for sportsmanlike driving now."

Big Hiding Place

A MAN hitched up the family nag and took his daughter for a drive. At a lonely stretch in the road, a masked bandit held them up. The man barely had time to whisper to his daughter, "Hide your diamond bracelet in your mouth."

The bandit took everything they had and drove off in the gig, but he never found the bracelet. When he was out of sight, the father observed, "It's too bad we didn't bring Mamma. We could have saved the horse and buggy."

The barefooted young man stood before the grizzled mountaineer. "Mistah Claghorn," he stammered. "Ah've—Ah've come hyar to ask ya fer yar daughter's hand."

The mountaineer knocked the ashes out of his pipe.

"Cain't allow no sech thing," he drawled. "Either ya takes the whole gal, or nothin'!"

FARMERS URGED TO MAKE USE OF FUNDS

Illinois Professor Says Record Grain Crop Will Reduce Prices

The 1949 Agricultural Conservation Program is open to every farmer in Maryland, according to Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland PMA State Committee. "Farmers who have a conservation problem on their farms are invited to participate in the program," he said as he suggested that farmers go to their County Agricultural Conservation Office for full information.

Mr. Blandford advises that within the limits of funds available, assistance is available to all farmers who participate in the program. Conservation practices carried out must meet the requirements for such practices.

"It should be understood," says the chairman, "that the funds which each county receives for conservation work represent the national interest in conserving soil and water in this state." Each county committee is charged with the responsibility of seeing that the funds are used to get maximum conservation for each dollar spent.

The conservation practices which have been approved for national use in conserving soil and water have been drawn up by the county committees, State PMA committees, state technical committees, and the Agricultural Conservation programs branch in Washington, D. C. County practices have been selected and adapted by community and county committeemen.

"Assistance under the program is intended to encourage additional conservation and not to help farmers with customary operations," Mr. Blandford states.

"Providing enough farm storage to take care of the grain crop is good business—both for the farmer and for the country," says Mr. Blandford.

He said that every farmer who has grain to store should know that price supports depend on getting the grain into suitable storage. Loans cannot be made unless the grain is protected by adequate storage. Purchase agreements also depend for their effectiveness on proper storage because the Commodity Credit Corporation will accept only good grain at price support levels. And since deliveries to CCC cannot be made until next spring that means the grain must be in good storage. It will pay farmers good dividends if this storage can be made rat proof.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. These are spareribs.

Q. Where does the meat come from and how is it identified?

A. Spareribs are cut from the side of the pork carcass. They are the ends of the ribs which have been removed from the bacon strip. The spareribs have a flat, gently-ribbed appearance, with a coating of fat. The ends of the rib bones are visible, as is the lean meat between the ribs.

Q. How should this cut be prepared?

A. Spareribs may be braised or roasted. Complete cooking is important to bring out the fullest flavor of the meat, so they are always cooked to the well-done stage. To braise the meat, first brown it well in hot fat in a heavy utensil. Add a small amount of liquid, and cook slowly, covered, for 1½ hours. To roast, place the "ribs" on a rack in an open roasting pan and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 2½ hours. To barbecue, roast the spareribs, basting frequently with your favorite barbecue sauce. Spareribs are also delicious when stuffed with a bread or fruit stuffing and roasted.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT
ADVISES ON RABBITS

Do Rabbits At Least
Twenty Minutes to Kill Germs

Wild rabbits should be handled with extreme care at every stage between field or forest and the diningroom table. Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, warns hunters and housewives as the rabbit season gets under way. "The rabbits that run wild in Maryland can provide good sport and delicious food without endangering health if the animals are handled with reasonable caution.

"If a rabbit is diseased, careless handling can cause tularemia—or rabbit fever. This communicable disease is transmitted from rabbits to human beings, usually through direct contact with the infected animal or with objects contaminated by the meat or fur. Each year enough cases of tularemia occur in Maryland to indicate that a considerable proportion of our wild rabbits may be infected and capable of giving this serious disease to human beings who handle them without due care.

"The first precaution recommended is to take only apparently healthy rabbits that run away as the hunter approaches, for a cottontail without enough energy to dash for his life is probably sick. For the sake of his own health, and that of his family, the hunter should shoot only frisky rabbits.

"Although all rabbits are not, of course, infected with tularemia, a sensible health precaution is to handle even apparently healthy rabbits as though they were believed to be possible sources of infection. Gloves, preferably rubber ones, should be worn when touching the rabbit, especially if there is even a small cut or scratch on the hands. Hands and gloves that have come into contact with the raw meat or fur should be kept away from the face, mouth and eyes. Gloves should be sterilized, refuse and paper that has touched the rabbit should be burned and the hands should be washed thoroughly as soon as the meat has been prepared.

"Adequate cooking is a final safeguard that should never be neglected. To destroy any disease germs that may be present the meat should be cooked at boiling temperature for at least twenty minutes—regardless of whether the rabbit is to be fried, stewed or made into a pie.

"These precautions should enable Marylanders to enjoy their sport and their rabbit dinners without fear of disease. Any inconvenience that the recommended safety measures may cause is certainly offset by the advantage of being able to hunt and eat wild rabbits free from the fear of tularemia."

NIGHT HUNTERS FINED BY GAME WARDENS

Drastic steps will be taken to break up hunting of rabbits in Frederick County at nighttime by artificial lights, authorities said this week after two men paid fines to Magistrate William J. Storer in Thurmont on charges of this nature this week.

Game Warden Durward Kettells said it is planned to confiscate the guns of hunters who are convicted on such charges. He said there is authority for such action.

Philip Lee Henry, Detour, paid fines totalling $40 and costs Wednesday on charges of hunting rabbits by means of artificial lights and having dead game in his possession during the closed season last week. Ernest Myers, Detour, also paid $10 fine for hunting with artificial lights.

The men were caught by Warden Kettells before the opening of the season Monday, hunting by means of automobile headlights, near Detour. Henry assumed all responsibility at the hearing and Myers claimed he had tried to dissuade his companion from the act. Kettells, who had heard shooting in the neighborhood, found a double-barrelled shotgun in the car of the men and the dead rabbit in the trunk.

L. W. Harbaugh Highfield, and Raymond Harbaugh and Guernon Harbaugh, Cascade, each forfeited $25 and costs on charges of hunting rabbits during a closed season. They were arrested near Sabillasville Sunday morning.

Last Wednesday night, during the closed season, Game Warden Ben Phebus charged Scott Beall, Creagerstown, with having a loaded gun in his car and scheduled a hearing for Thurmont. He said Beall had a sawed-off shotgun and a rifle in his machine when he came upon him near Creagerstown while making a search for night hunters.

LEGION AUXILIARY DONATES FLAG TO LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

An inspiring exercise was held on Tuesday at the Emmitsburg High School auditorium when the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion Post presented a new flag to the school.

The program opened with the singing of our National Hymns under the direction of Mrs. Mary Hoke, a teacher at the school and a member of the Auxiliary.

Following the songs the flag was presented to Prof. Arvin P. Jones, principal of the school, by Mrs. Laura Rosensteel, president of the Auxiliary, who acted in the absence of Miss Virginia Wagaman, who was scheduled to present the flag, but was unable to attend the presentation exercises.

Prof. Jones gave a brief talk pertaining to flag etiquette and the proper care of a flag. He also reminded the students of other worthy projects such as this in which the Ladies' Auxiliary has participated, and urged them to be grateful for the countless good deeds they have performed in the past.

Following Mr. Jones' talk, Mrs. Rosensteel asked the students to always treat the flag with the highest of respect because of the great things for which it stands and the wonderful country it represents.

Several other members of the Ladies' Auxiliary attended the edifying ceremony in addition to all students of the school with the exception of the very low grades.
