

Town May Get Garbage System

Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

Well, the biggest thing that happened to us this week was the official opening of the ball season here in E'burg. . . . Yessir, we came out with a bang—and, I might add—a BUST. . . . Hanover walloped the pants off us. Quite a number of the fans were very disgruntled and dissatisfied with our local team, some of which was justifiable and a bit of which was NOT justifiable. . . . There are many things to be taken into consideration before any of you go spilling off what a "stinking game" it was. First of all, much as it doesn't behoove me to discuss the weather—still I feel that the cold, chilly day was certainly not conducive to playing good baseball. . . .

Then there's the angle that after all, it was the first game of the season for many of the boys and certainly they weren't in top condition yet. . . . Then, too, we didn't have the entire lineup we were supposed to have. . . . For various reasons. . . . Even the manager, Jack Bubrick, couldn't be there, but that couldn't be helped since he was called home to see his mother, who was quite ill. . . . Needless to say, Jack really hated missing the initial game, but then after all, he had no choice in the matter.

I understand one player has not decided if he wants to play with us this year or not. . . . Thinks he'll wait and see if we win a few games first, he says. Hmm. . . . I know what I'd tell that guy. . . .

Then of course the irate fans were disgusted with certain of the players placed at important positions, who frankly were so amateur, that when the ball came their way they didn't know what to do with the thing. Yea, I know, it IS amateur baseball after all, you say, and rightly so, but the term amateur baseball doesn't mean that you shouldn't learn the rudiments of elementary rules of the game. My grievance lies in the fact that the kids mean well—in fact they love the game, but they're just too darned young and inexperienced. . . . AND

What is more, they won't show up for practice during the week. . . . It's like pulling teeth to try and get some of those guys down there to practice. . . . All they want to do is get in the game Sunday for the "real thing." . . . So—in my book they're not real, dyed-in-the-wool ball players because when you are you can't get enough practicing in your own estimation. You love the game so much that you're ready and eager any time to get down there and bat the old horsehide around a bit. Personally, I love the game and were I any one but "Abigail" I'd give anything to go masculine and play the game with the boys. . . .

And here's another tip to you "lukewarm" ballplayers. . . . If you don't intend to get down there on the field and learn the game inside and out, for the love of Pete, will you please not clutter up the field on Sunday and take the little time the regulars have to get some warm-up batting practice before the game starts?

OK, so I'm sticking my neck out, but if you knew the comments of the vast number of fans attending Sunday's pitiful game then you'd know that I'm speaking for them as well as myself and the remarks I've made are simply repetitions of those made by them.

And in parting, may I remind you, that that bunch of men on Hanover's team who faced our team on the battleground Sunday was a trained, (Continued on Page Two)

LIQUOR LICENSE REFUSED TO TWO LOCAL MEN

Applicants Will File
Notice of Appeal
With County Court

Liquor License Commissioner G. Cleveland Trout held Tuesday in an opinion that neither the present population of Emmitsburg District nor the public need for another Class A beer, wine and liquor license justifies the granting of such a license to Richard H. Rosensteel and Louis Cooper, applicants.

The commissioner arrived at his decision after taking testimony at a hearing on April 13, when a local group of people protested the granting of a new license.

The commissioner claimed he could not consider students at the two colleges in Emmitsburg District as residents and despite the population figures, the testimony showed that another such license was not needed for the accommodation of the public.

To Appeal Decision

Messrs. Cooper and Rosensteel, upon hearing of the decision, immediately served notice that an appeal would be made.

Under Rule 35 of the license commissioner of Frederick County, Mr. Trout pointed out, only one Class A off-sale beer, wine and liquor license shall be issued for each 1,500 population of the district concerned. According to the 1940 U. S. Census, the population of Emmitsburg District was 3,343 persons. Accordingly, it is incumbent upon the applicants to show that there has been an increase in population sufficient to show a figure of 4,500 or more before a license could be granted under the rule.

"The various estimates and figures introduced on behalf of the applicants indicate there has been an increase of between three and five hundred since the 1940 census in the population of the district, not counting students at the two colleges. The present student population is almost 1,100, however, under the rules of the Census Bureau, students were not counted in 1940. Evidence was introduced indicating that the bureau was considering changing its method in 1940 but no definite decision had been reached at this date. It does not seem proper for the Commissioner in making estimates in accordance with his rules to depart from the method last used by the largest census organization in existence and include student population in applying Rule 35.

"In view of the above it follows that the application must be denied, but there is a more important reason requiring the same decision to be reached.

License Not Needed

Continuing, the Commissioner said "Licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages are to be issued according to the law of Maryland when necessary for the accommodation of the public. There was considerable testimony indicating that the present facilities for the sale of beer, wine and liquor in Emmitsburg District were entirely adequate to serve the public and that no crowding, waiting or inconvenience was being suffered by the public being served by the present facilities. The only witness on behalf of the applicants who testified on this point, other than the applicants themselves, could not say whether or not there was 'need' for a third license, although he indicated it was 'all right to me if they get one.' He further testified both the other licensed premises were closer to his home than the proposed one.

The granting of the license had been opposed by a petition of 14 Emmitsburg signers. The alleged petitioners were Charles H. Myers, Oldrich A. Tokar, Mrs. Albert Adelsberger, Alice Adelsberger, Janet Tokar, Charles Bushman, Lewis G. Bell, J. A. (Continued on Page Eight)

What's Your Name?

By JULES CHRISTIAN

The following inquiry from Pittsburgh, Pa., addressed to Jules Christian, has been received at the Chronicle office:

Dear Sir: Have been reading your column in the Chronicle. I find it very interesting. Would you please explain the name Wilson? I will look forward to reading it.

Such inquiries are invited and welcome. This question will be answered next week, inasmuch as today's column had already been planned.

STREAM NAMES

Much has already been said relative to the fact that many family names in 'Emmitsburg' came from the place were one lived—called Place Names. In addition to the examples previously given let us take some names derived from the flowing stream by which one lived.

The flowing stream has always been a choice place to live. As our forefathers came to these parts they first founded their homes on streams and named their churches after springs and streams. In the early days one of the determining factors in founding this community now known as Emmitsburg, was this beautiful knoll, shaped like an inverted bowl, with two streams flowing around three sides of the base. In the olden days this fortunate location was naturally chosen because water supply was such an important factor in a community. So it was natural that people should choose to call themselves after the stream on which they lived, from which came many family names.

For example, John at the brook might become John Brooks. John on the beaver brook became John Beaverbrook. John on the brook flowing into the sea became John Seabrook. John on the river became known as John Rivers. John at the brook in the hollow became John Holbrook. John at the waterfall became John Lynn. And John with a mill on the stream became John Mills or Miller.

BURN NAMES

Each country had its own peculiar name for the flowing stream. And numerous people living thereon chose their surnames therefrom. "Brook" among the English, "kill" among the Dutch, and "burn" among the Scotch, were the usual names for the flowing stream, from which numerous surnames have come down to us.

Taking an example from picturesque Scotland where the stream was usually called burn, we have many family names of fame and romance. John on the burn became John Burns, a probably forebearer of Robert Burns, the beloved and honored national poet of Scotland. John on the red burn became John Radburn. John on the sandy burn became John Sanborn. John on the willow burn became John Wilburn. John on the broad burn became John Bradburn. John on the deer burn became John Rayburn. And John by the little burn became John Birnie (often spelled Burney or Berney or Bernie). In the neighboring community of Taneytown the family of Birnie, founder of the Birnie Trust Company, is one held in highest regard and fondest remembrance.

STABBING CASE IS TO BE RETRIED IN AUGUST

An Adams County jury this week began deliberations on the case of aggravated assault and battery brought against Joseph M. Condon, Fairfield, Pa., by William Richardson, also of Fairfield, Pa.

The case was turned over to the jury about two o'clock Monday afternoon after Judge W. C. Sheely completed its charge. The district attorney, Daniel E. Teeter, and Condon's attorney, Edward B. Bulleit, completed their arguments before lunch.

During the morning a succession of witnesses told of an altercation between Condon and a Clyde Musselman in a tavern near Fairfield, Pa. Condon left the tavern and then engaged in what appeared to be an argument with several men and finally grabbed a beer bottle from the hand of Richardson, struck him over the head with the beer bottle and ripped his coat and cut his chest with a knife. Condon claimed Richardson had struck him first and that he was protecting himself when he hit and cut Richardson. Richardson claimed he struck Condon after he was cut in order to protect himself.

Since the jurors were unable to agree, the case will have to be reheard again in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Spalding, of Pikeville, visited friends in Emmitsburg Thursday.

Mrs. Bernadette Spalding is spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Rose Rowe.

Emmitsburg Nine Loses Opener To Hanover, 17-5

The Penn-Maryland Baseball League got its season under way last Sunday afternoon with all ten teams in the circuit in action. Highlighting the opening day program was a no-hit, no-run contest and a sixteen-inning game.

Junior Unger turned in the no hit performance as Taneytown won over Wakefield, 8-0. The marathon game, which established a league record, was won by Thurmont, which defeated Middleburg, 7-6.

Over two hundred baseball fans sat in "football-like" weather watching the local nine lose their initial game to Hanover, 17-5.

Whitey Lefever, stymied the Emmitsburg team by allowing only three hits in the seven innings he worked on the mound.

On the mound for Emmitsburg were Roth, Topper and Joy who gave up 22 hits. Six of these rung off the bat of Dean Rohrbough, who had two triples and a homer. Of the six hits gathered by Emmitsburg, Hollinger collected two.

Although the first game was not a fine exhibition of baseball played here, the team has lots of promise in correcting their errors. The defensive around second base showed marked improvement as Gillelan played the position in the eighth inning.

D. Joy, working only several innings proved a surprise and probably will be selected as a starting pitcher in the near future.

This Sunday Emmitsburg plays Wakefield at Wakefield.

'GOOD POSTURE WEEK' PROCLAIMED BY GOVERNOR

Dr. D. L. Beegle Will Examine School Children
Free of Charge

Maryland state officials, in order to correct many bad cases of improper posture, in school children and also adults, has launched a state-wide drive to correct these conditions. An official proclamation by Gov. Preston Lane this week designated next week as "Correct Posture Week" and the Maryland State Chiropractors' Association is sponsoring a movement whereby all school children will be examined and parents informed if their children are in need of correct posture advice.

Dr. D. L. Beegle, local chiropractor, announced this week that he will examine all school children, accompanied by parent, free of charge, providing an appointment is made at his office during the week of May 9.

Spearheading the drive will be a television show over Station WAAM-TV Sunday, May 1, beginning at 7:20 p. m.

An interesting feature of "Correct Posture Week" will be an essay contest pertaining to good posture. First prize will pay the winner of the essay $100, second prize $50, and third prize $25. Any high school boy or girl is eligible to participate in the contest and all entries must be mailed to Chairman, Maryland Chiropractic Assn., 2321 Eutaw Pl., Baltimore 17.

A free booklet on good posture is available to those writing to the aforementioned address and will render valuable assistance in aiding them to write their story. The Enoch Free Library in Baltimore also has these books and many others on the same subject available to all those wishing them.

The Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore, has postponed his Catholic charities drive a week, so that it would not conflict with the program.

Mayor Thornton W. Rodgers issued a proclamation this week (Continued on Page Eight)

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bernard Boyle, Baltimore, announce the birth of a son on April 19, at Mercy Hospital, Baltimore. The baby was baptized yesterday in the hospital chapel and received the name of Daniel Scott Boyle. Sponsors for the child were James V. Brooks and daughter, Anne. Father Joseph Bradley, a cousin of Mr. Boyle's, administered the Sacrament of Baptism. This is the fourth child of the young couple.

Mr. Boyle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Boyle, Sr., of Emmitsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Gillelan of Baltimore, announce the birth of a daughter on April 27 at Union Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Gillelan is the former Ann Stinson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Oscar H. Stinson, this place.

A son was born at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, Pa., Tuesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. McGill, Mt. St. Mary's College.

the project was contingent with the amount of revenue derived from the parking meters, which they sincerely believe will be adequate to maintain a constabulary and also the garbage collection.

The meters are definitely scheduled to go into operation in two weeks, but as yet the hours for parking have not yet been designated.

The contract for paving Federal Hill Road was accepted by L. R. Waesche and Son, Thurmont, and construction will commence Monday morning. The plan calls for a 14-foot wide, macadam strip beginning at De Paul St. and continuing to the property of Mrs. Mamie Johnson at the foot of the hill.

It was also announced that only two candidates filed for town offices, Thornton W. Rodgers for mayor, and John J. Hollinger for commissioner. Mr. Luther Kugler, incumbent commissioner, declined re-election this year.

Balloting for the Town Election will take place Monday in the Firemen's Hall and the judges of election will be on the job from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m. Write-in voting is permissible under Maryland law.

Emmitsburg's new police chief, Capt. Woodring, will take up his duties starting Monday morning and will commute between here and Waynesboro, Pa., until such time as housing facilities are available. The Chief will have his office in the Town Commissioners' quarters in the Firemen's Hall.

Refurnishing of the local jail is now in progress and prisoners will be detained there until arrangements can be made to transfer them to the county "pen" in Frederick. Under State law, prisoners can not be left unattended in a jail but for a certain number of hours. This is for their protection in case of fire or sickness, so it is intended that the local detention center will be used only to house violators of law temporarily.

In an effort to correct the flooding of lower N. Seton Ave. residences by the run that flows in the rear of their properties, the town solons are asking the owners to co-operate with them in their effort to remedy this condition, by granting them permission to trespass on their property with the necessary equipment for the project and also that it may be necessary to grant a small portion of the land to widen the stream and make it adequate to take care of the entire overflow.

PTA AMATEUR SHOW TONIGHT

After many years of absence, an entertainment, popularly known as "The Amateur Show" will return to Emmitsburg this Friday night (tonight) to be presented at the Emmitsburg High School Auditorium.

When the curtain rises at 8:00 p. m., DST, the audience will be pleased to see a new dark blue curtain, presented by the PTA, as a backdrop, decorated with sparkling letters and designs appropriate for an amateur show.

The show will feature a variety of types of entertainment. Among the numbers will be a Gay Nineties Skit in typical costume, an acrobatic dance, a clown act, a blackface skit, piano solos, guitar and violin numbers and vocal selections.

To add spice to the program, Mr. Samuel C. Hays will act as master of ceremonies.

Don't miss this variety of talent!

SUPERCARRIER BLOCKED

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's order to stop construction of the Navy's 65,000-ton aircraft carrier indicates somebody's wires were crossed badly in the upper reaches of the Pentagon. Surely, the Navy would not have begun laying the keel of the huge flat-top last week without proper authority. And surely the high command must have known before work started whether it wanted the supercarrier.

The Air Force and the Navy have long been wrangling over this question, and we do not doubt that some of the charges on both sides have sprung more from petty jealousies than from hard strategical facts.

Nevertheless, out of the debate we can gather that while the Air Force seems to have by far the stronger case it does not yet have an open and shut case. Its B-36 bomber is just about an intercontinental weapon. The supercarrier, which is designed to accommodate big planes capable of carrying atomic bombs, would make a huge and expensive target for enemy aircraft and submarines. And this country does have, through the Atlantic Pact, the promise of far-flung bases from which an overwhelming American air offensive might easily be mounted.

However, there are still some loopholes in these Air Force arguments which have not been closed. Thus, on very long missions, the fully-loaded B-36 bomber must rely on mid-air refueling, by no means a satisfactory technique. And the supercarrier, though an inviting target, would have mobility, its own or other fighter cover, and the anti-aircraft and anti-submarine protection of an accompanying task force.

The biggest loophole concerns overseas land bases. We cannot assume with prudence that these bases would be secure in case of war. There is the possibility—perhaps, today, the probability—that an enemy nation, especially one whose chief weapon is its land army, could overrun some or all of our European airfields.

Now the B-36, aside from practical limits to its range, is relatively slow. Being powered by reciprocating engines, it might have a hard time under attack by enemy jet fighters. The jet bomber, of course, is much faster, but its range is considerably under that of the B-36. Therefore, this country, faced with a loss of its land bases abroad, might rely heavily on big carriers capable of launching air blows to knock out enemy industry and supply lines or to cover a counter-invasion by our forces.

All this is very speculative, to be sure. But such speculations must be weighed carefully before this country puts all its eggs into a single strategic basket. The facts as known today, we believe, indicate that the supercarrier experiment is one which this country could well afford to make.

THE FISHING FIELDS OF FREDERICK

The rainbow trout are leaping in those mountain rills of mine; Old Fishing Creek is sparkling with the glow of April wine. The lodge is snug and cozy and o'er gray rocks tumbling sweet Old Hunting Creek is babbling, with meadows at its feet. Spring things start to happen on those hillsides of the dream, And rainbow trout are leaping all the length of every stream. The crystal dawn is coming o'er the mountain unto me— Old Fishing Creek, I'm coming, and I know how glad I'll be. How glad I'll be, old Hunting, where those waters dash along, And every trout's a beauty, and the world is full of song! —Bentztown Bard

Fire Extinguishers Have Changed In Young Lady's Lifetime

MORE THAN twenty years have passed since carbon dioxide—the gas that puts the "pop" in soda pop—was first used in fire extinguishers. One of the first successful carbon dioxide extinguishers (right), made by Walter Kidde & Company for telephone switchboard protection, was called a portable even though it weighed 37 pounds. The modern trigger-operated portable (left) weighs only 15 pounds, yet contains nearly as much fire-smothering gas as its ancestor. Newest Kidde portable is the Frye-Freeze, weighing less than 5 pounds and designed for safe, convenient fire-fighting in the home.

Sure I'm for all ages playing ball— But I'm also for letting them play with other teams in their own individual class. It gets kinda tiresome seeing our guys kicked around all the time. No one likes a losing team. Loyalty is a wonderful attribute, but it wears thing mighty soon.

DESERVES RE-ELECTION

Am very glad that our present mayor, Thornton Rodgers will run again for re-election this Monday when the polls open. Personally, I think he's done a marvelous job and I'm quite sure that when the election returns are in, Mr. Rodgers will see that I am not the only one in Emmitsburg who feels that way. . . .

"The way to a man's heart —"

By NANCY COOK

Why do some housewives think of Chop Suey or Chow Mein only as restaurant dishes, instead of serving them at home? Both are simple as ABC to prepare, and it's a wonderful way to use up leftover cooked pork, beef, veal or chicken! The main ingredients—canned bean sprouts, mixed chop suey vegetables and soy sauce—are carried by most super markets and independent stores. The basic recipe:

AMERICAN CHOP SUEY OR CHOW MEIN

Melt ¼ cup butter, margarine or vegetable fat in skillet. Add 1 cup finely chopped onions. Fry for 3 minutes. Add 2 cups of celery, cut fine; 1 teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon pepper; ¾ cup hot water. Cover and cook 5 minutes. Add 1 can of bean sprouts, drained, or 1 can of mixed chop suey vegetables; and 2 cups of meat, cut in thin strips. Bring to a boil. Then combine and add flavoring and thickening*. Cook 5 minutes. Serve with cooked rice for Chop Suey, noodles for Chow Mein. Add soy sauce to taste at table. Yield: 4 big portions.

*Flavoring and Thickening: 1/3 cup of cold water; 2 tablespoons of cornstarch; 1 tablespoon of soy sauce; 1 teaspoon of sugar.

Rosemary, an evergreen of the mint family, is most commonly used to season roasts, stews and soups, or as a flavoring in jellies and sauce. Rosemary, a girl's name, is also the name of a radio program—heard daily on CBS—starring lovely Betty Winkler in the title role.

It's interesting to note that Betty's handsome husband in real life plays the part in "Rosemary" as well. Interesting, too, is the fact that Betty Winkler likes to serve her guests dishes in which Rosemary, the herb, is an essential ingredient. Here's the recipe for one of my favorites:

SCALLOPED EGGPLANT

Peel one large eggplant, cut in cubes. Add 1 cup coarsely crushed soda crackers. Add ½ teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon pepper; ½ teaspoon of rosemary.

Turn into greased baking dish; top with bits of butter or margarine (about 2 tablespoons). Add sufficient milk to cover. Bake about ¾ of an hour in 350° oven. Yield: 4-6.

Gay Party Fare . . . why not plan a shower for your favorite bride-to-be? Suggested festive refreshments: Chocolate Pinwheel Cookies and Ice Cream.

This easy recipe, from the files of the makers of Blue Bonnet Margarine, makes delicious Pinwheels, and rates high in flavor, nutrition and economy.

PINWHEEL COOKIES

Sift 1½ cups sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons cream-of-tartar baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Cream 1/3 cup margarine; add gradually ¾ cup sugar. Add 1 un-beaten egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons milk. Beat well.

Combine with sifted dry ingredients. Mix well. Divide dough in half. To one half, add 1 square melted unsweetened chocolate. Roll each half into thin rectangular sheet. Place one layer on top of other; press firmly, and roll up like a jelly roll.

Chill several hours. Cut in ¼-inch slices. Place on greased baking sheet. Bake in 375° oven about 10 min. Makes 48 cookies.

Roll cream cheese balls in crushed corn flakes . . . use as a topping for fruit salad.

Things to Remember . . . white sugars should be measured with a light touch . . . flour, too . . . but brown sugar should always be packed down tightly in the cup.

How Maryland Solves Its Own Health Problems

Without Waiting for Federal Aid

Starting Sunday, May 1st, in The Washington Post

While other States and communities sit back waiting for aid and guidance from Washington, the State of Maryland and the City of Baltimore have gone ahead boldly with health programs of their own. And the plan works! Doctors like its absence of red tape and its lack of compulsion. Patients like the medical service they are getting. Taxpayers appreciate the low cost. In fact, the pioneering in Maryland may well serve as an example to the Nation.

So reports Agnes E. Meyer, in a series of articles starting on Sunday, May 1, in The Washington Post. Mrs. Meyer, nationally known for her interest in health problems, and a vigorous opponent of compulsory health insurance, made an exhaustive study of the Maryland Plan, both in Baltimore and in the counties. She reports with enthusiasm on this wholly American program, urges that it be studied with care by those who tend to look to other countries for their social ideas.

Everyone interested in medical care—and that means every parent and every taxpayer in particular—will find these Washington Post articles well worth reading. Start them in Sunday's Post.

The Grass Looks Greener In The Next Field

It looks that way a lot of times, when buying a suit, shoes, dress, clothing, or an ice box, etc. But when you come back home you find practically the same thing in your local store. It's natural to go hunting—there is a certain amount of excitement. What hunter wants to shoot a sitting rabbit? Or like a friend near the Pennsylvania line—who spent nearly all day in hunting season hunting deer, then came home dejected only to find one right in his back yard, shooting same nearly scaring his wife to death.

So we shop a lot of times in a strange environment and things don't look so good to us, then come back to Emmitsburg where we can take our time and select. At our place, if not satisfied with the popular price we carry and specials are wanted, we contact our buyers in Baltimore or New York — the largest dress and coat markets in the east. The exact thing you need will be here in a few days. And in this way, it is more apt to be exclusive which is the woman's way—each garment just a little different if possible.

The New York upper crust goes to Paris or Hollywood for fashions. Baltimore upper crust to New York. Small communities to the large city. But generally find the same thing in the smaller up-to-date stores as all the most popular and up-to-date merchandise is distributed over the country to the better stores unless an article is in the very high price range that the smaller communities can't afford to buy. Consequently, we stick to the popular priced items such as:

Men's Suits, gabardine and worsted, three-piece	$38.50	Men's Hats	$2.75 to $6.50
Men's Shoes	$4.50 to $11.50	Men's Dress Pants	$4.75 to $10.95
Men's Sox	25c to 55c	Men's Corduroy Coats	$13.50
Men's Sport Coats	$17.50	Boys' Shirts	$1.25 to $2.00
Boys' Suits	$8.95 to $17.50

DRESSES

200 Dresses in a price range of $3.95-$6.95 up to $10.50. Also House Dresses $2.75 to $3.75—new styles nearly every week. Always two or three hundred 7 to 14 and 1 to 6 year in up-to-date dresses. New numbers and the latest come in our store at least semi-monthly. (Two or three competent lady clerks to take care of this department.)

Ladies' Hats in the popular priced and popular in demand all over the country, mostly all direct from Baltimore and New York. We always try to get them a little different from what we had previously. These are a few of our Nationally-known clothing supplies that we contact in our store:

Endicott Johnson Shoes	Stardust and Loomcraft—Silks and Gowns, etc.
Badorf Shoe Co.—Child's Shoes	Middyshade Co.—Men's Suits

D. S. Weybright Re-elected Mayor Of Thurmont

Only 26 voters went to the polls in Thurmont Monday to elect a president and two members of the Board of Commissioners. There were no contests and none other than the three candidates chosen at a nominating meeting last week received votes.

D. Saylor Weybright, president of the board; E. Elmer Barnhart and George Black, nominated for re-election to the board, each received 26 votes. Ross V. Smith Clinton Waeche have another year of their present terms to serve.

The lack of interest caused Town officials to lament the absence of spirit in the town election. They said it is difficult to get citizens to take the interest they should in the government and to get candidates to enter into competition for the offices in the right spirit.

Several matters of importance to residents of the town have been delayed pending the outcome of the annual election. The board will meet to reorganize on May 9.

YOUR NATIONAL GUARD DIVISIONS CONTINUE THE OLD TRADITIONS

This is the twenty-first of a series on the Infantry and Armored Divisions of the new National Guard. They are presented to acquaint you with the organization which will be an M-Day Force, trained, equipped and available for immediate service with the Regular Army in the event of any emergency.

THE AMERICAL DIVISION—Unique in the army because it used a name instead of a number, the Americal Division was one of the "fightingest" of the 19 National Guard divisions taking part in World War II. About 45 per cent of the Americal's men originally came from Massachusetts, which was represented by its 182d Infantry Regiment and other units. Illinois supplied the 132d Infantry and the 164th came from North Dakota.

The nucleus of this group, then designated Task Force 6814, had gone to New Caledonia to defend the island from invasion early in the war. In October, 1942, its first elements went into action on Guadalcanal, some of them being bombed as they debarked from their ships.

After months of bitter fighting, resistance on "The Canal" ended, and the Americal's men moved to Fiji beginning in March, 1943. From there they went on to Bougainville, breaking a major attack of the 6th Japanese Imperial Division and chasing enemy remnants.

January, 1945, found the division going to Leyte and Samar, where for two months it cleaned out Jap pockets and secured several small islands. Following up a heavy air and naval bombardment, it landed in late March on Cebu Island. Cebu City and Lahug airfield fell, and the following three weeks of hill fighting were costly and bitter.

After resistance near Cebu City was broken, combat teams made landings on Bohol, Negros and Mindanao, where they fought until late June. The Negroes campaign, near end of World War II, was brought to a close in rain forests 4,000 feet above the sea.

Originally, the Army had planned to name its Task Force 6814 the Neel Division. "Neel" being clear code signal for New Caledonia. Then Brigadier General Alexander M. Patch, its commanding general at the time, had wanted to call it the Tush Division. But the name Americal, drawn from the general phrase American Troops in New Caledonia, was chosen from a list submitted by men of the command. It was suggested by a private first class, David Fonesca, of Roxbury, Mass.

Today the 182d Infantry is the nucleus of a separate Regimental Combat Team in the Massachusetts National Guard. The 132d Infantry of Illinois is assigned to the 33d Infantry Division, and the 164th Infantry of North Dakota is assigned to the 47th Infantry Division.

Any tetrachloride cleaning fluid is a good cleaner for diamond and platinum jewelry. A small eye cup to hold the fluid and a mascara brush make it easy to clean rings.

DISASTER!

The continuing scourge of forest fires in the United States is nothing short of disaster. Look what forest fires do EACH YEAR!

Each year they burn 30 million acres of land—an area the size of the State of New York!

They destroy enough trees of saw-timber size to build 86,000 five-room homes!

They burn enough pulp-size trees to make 3 million tons of newsprint, 90 million railroad ties!

They cause soil erosion, tremendous loss of recreational areas, wildlife, electrical power!

Forest fires bring destruction, shortages and higher prices that no one can escape! And do you know what causes most forest fires? It isn't lightning and other natural causes. In truth, 9 out of 10 forest fires are man-caused, and most of them are the result of pure and simple CARELESSNESS!

FOREST FIRES CAN BE PREVENTED IF YOU WILL FOLLOW—FAITHFULLY—THESE FOUR SIMPLE RULES

1. Hold your match 'til it's cold—then pinch it to make sure.
2. Crush out your cigarette, cigar, pipe ashes. Use an ash tray!
3. Drown your campfire, then stir and drown again.
4. Ask about the law before burning grass, brush, fence rows, or trash.

Remember—Only you can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

The men, bless 'em, love any food with chocolate flavoring and it's the thoughtful wife who keeps chocolate cookies on hand in the cookie jar for between-meal nibbling. For Chocolate Meringue Cookies sift together 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, 1 tbsp. flour, ¼ tsp. salt. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff. Add sugar mixture 2 tbsps. at a time until thoroughly blended. Fold in 3 squares unsweetened chocolate (melted and cooled), ¾ cup shredded coconut, and 1 tsp. vanilla. Drop from teaspoon on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate gas oven (375°F.) for 10 mins.

A two or three-burner gas hot plate is inexpensive to operate and a helpful addition in the laundry when starch must be cooked or handkerchiefs boiled.

If your family likes pork chops, try simmering them in pineapple juice over a low flame. Then place in a 400-degree oven for about 20 minutes.

Colored clothes that can be safely washed with white laundry can also be dried with white clothes in your automatic gas dryer. It holds approximately the same amount as the washer so that each load can be dried immediately after washing.

Save the juice from cooked dried fruits to make a flavorful chilled fruit drink.

To peel tomatoes easily and quickly, spear them on a long fork and hold over the gas flame while turning. The heat loosens the skin.

QUALIFIES IN ESTATE

Lula M. Dougherty, of Thurmont, on Monday qualified before the Orphans' Court as administrator d. n. c. t. a. in the estate of Thomas W. Fogle 13, 1921. She will complete administration of the estate under the terms of his will, executed in 1910.

YOU WILL LIKE an Electric Range

because it's FAST

YOU will like the speed of an electric range, the oven that comes to full heat in a matter of minutes, its remarkably fast baking ability and the surface units that glow with controlled heat almost as soon as a switch is turned.

You'll like the completely insulated oven—so perfectly heat sealed that you can comfortably place your hand on it at full temperature. And you will like its smokeless, sootless, sparking, easy-to-keep-clean beauty, complete safety, amazing convenience, and of course its low operating cost.

But perhaps best of all you'll like the automatic controls that assure perfect cooking results every time—controls that make it possible for you to place a meal in the oven and leave the house for as much as a whole day, knowing that, when you return, your dinner will be perfectly cooked, piping hot, and ready to serve.

The fact that the number of electric range users has nearly doubled in the past two years is impressive evidence of electric range popularity. Nearly 30,000 women in this area, many of them friends and neighbors, are right now enjoying the pleasures of this only modern form of cooking. You too will come to it eventually—why not now?

Building Seed Frame Is Minor Chore Nowadays

Anyone at home with a hammer and saw can construct a sturdy seed frame in a few hours. It's made up of four sides and a hinged top which is glazed with Vimlite, a Celanese flexible plastic glazing. The use of this easy-to-handle material simplifies the building work. Unlike glass, it is shatterproof and light weight, requiring no puttying or grooving of the frame. Simply tack it in place like fly screen. And, this versatile glazing forms an excellent insulator since it actually holds in the heat of the sun.

A seed frame such as this is welcome equipment for anyone who enjoys raising flowers and vegetables. It's an ideal way to start tender seedlings on their growth. A seed frame is really only a bottomless box with a Vimlite top hinged on for easy access. To build it, all that's needed is a hammer, saw, screw driver, and perhaps, a brace and bit.

Usually these miniature green-houses measure six feet long by three feet wide. Because this is the most popular size, the instructions concern these measurements. The builder can decide if he wants the hinged top in one or two pieces.

Since this seed frame has no bottom, set it on the ground with the higher side at the north, sloping southwards, and fill the inside with three inches of cinders or gravel. This insulates against cold from the ground, and allows excess water to filter away from roots of seedlings.

As warmth and moisture promote decay in wood, it's a good idea after the lumber is cut to size, to treat it with pentachlorophenol, which acts as a preservative. This chemical as well as Vimlite can be bought at your hardware or lumber store.

Instructions

First, cut five pieces of 1x6 lumber to exact six-foot lengths, squared at the ends.

Cut eight pieces of 1x6 lumber to an exact 33 3/4 inch length, with squared ends.

For sloping ends and partition, draw a line diagonally across two of the 33 3/4 inch pieces and saw. You'll have four pieces, but only three are used.

Cut three pieces of 1x2 lumber to 16 1/2" length. These are strips to hold together the three pieces of 1x6 forming the dead-end of the box. Cut three pieces of 1x2 to 11" length as strips for the tail end.

To make work easier, use brace and bit (1/2") to make screw holes in 1x2 strips, as shown on the drawing. It's better to assemble with wood screws than with nails.

Assemble head-end and tail-end by placing strips flush at bottom, leaving the pieces slightly short of top of the assembly, as shown in the drawings.

To build the two ends and partition, cut three pieces of 1x2 to 12 1/4" and three pieces to 16 1/2". Assemble two square and one diagonal pieces 33 3/4" long, setting the short strip back six inches from the low end so the diagonal board will be fastened to the others without affecting the closing of the sash.

The box is then finished by nailing all the assemblies together, placing the two long assemblies outside.

Making the Sash

Now, the builder decides if he wants one-sash or two. Although 3x6 sash is easier to make and uses less material, it's often the case that two 3x3 sashes serve better.

Cut all 1x2 pieces to exact lengths. To add extra strength and to provide a single plane for the Vimlite covering, use joints end lap and middle lap. These aren't hard to make. Use a scrap of 1x2 as a guide for the width of cuts, mark where they will be, and saw one-half through the board. Then, turn on edge and saw with the grain to complete the lap. Assemble with wood screws, two at each lap.

Place two hinges on one edge of the sash, screwing firmly into place.

Finally, lay the Vimlite on the sash. Tack at the center of one side, and at the center of the opposite side, thus assuring that the Vimlite will lay flat. Tack away from the first two tacks, spacing

MENTAL HAZARD
"Work, work! I'm tired of work. Up at six in the morning working hard all day till six at night," grumbled Pat.
"Really," said Mike, "I didn't know you were working. When did you start?"
"Tomorrow," replied Pat.

They Learn Fast
Young George suddenly had become interested in girls. Almost every day he came home and talked about some youthful charmer, and almost every time it seemed to be a different girl.
"George," mother gently chided, "I believe you've got a very changeable nature."
"Oh, no, mom," the boy replied, "it isn't me that changes; it's the girls when you get to know 'em better."

Useful Present
With a haughty air the elderly woman entered the jeweler's shop and settled herself in a chair. Then she inspected the youthful assistant through her lorgnette and said, coldly: "I want a present for an earl, but it must be inexpensive."
The young man's desire to help went several steps too far as he suggested, briefly: "Well, madam, what about a can of metal polish to clean his coronet with?"

HUNCH WAS RIGHT
"I had a hunch on the races today. I got up at 7 o'clock and found $7 in my pocket. There were seven of us at lunch and there were seven horses in the seventh race. So I picked No. 7."
"And he won?"
"Nope—my hunch was right—he ran seventh."

Playing It Safe
"Tell me what you eat, and I'll tell you what you are," said a lunch counter philosopher. Whereupon a meek little man, sitting a few stools away, called to the waitress: "Cancel my order for shrimp salad, please."

The Best Teacher
There never had been any argument about it: Julius was the wisest and shrewdest man in town. One day a youth of the community questioned him on the subject.
"Julius," he said, "to what would you attribute the fact that you know so much?"
"Good judgment," replied Julius readily. "I'd say it was my good judgment."
"And where did you get your good judgment?"
"That I got from experience."
"Where did you get your experience?"
"From my bad judgment."

BETTER SEE THE BARBER

"Have you a good memory for faces, dear?"
"I have."
"Splendid—I've just dropped your shaving mirror."

A Few Keepsakes

Little Margie had been attending a birthday party, and now her big sister had come to take her home. Crossing the street, the sister took hold of the youngster's hand.
"My goodness, Margie," she exclaimed. "How sticky your hands are!"
"Well," replied Margie, "yours would be too if you had a piece of chiffon pie, a cream puff and a chocolate éclair in your muff."

MODERN CHILD

Elimination Process
"Daddy," said an eight-year-old student of a progressive school, "Ronald said a very naughty word to the teacher today."
"Is that so?" asked the curious parent. "What did he say?"
"Oh, we aren't encouraged to use such language," she answered, "but if you want to say all the bad words you know, I'll tell you when you come to it."

tacks about 4" apart. Use % strips of tar paper or inexpensive roofing paper along the edges. (These strips are not required across the center.)
And, there's your seed frame. When the frame has served its purpose each season, the tops can be removed and stored until time to use the frame again.

MARYLAND HOME FRONT

Farm Program Discussed

"All Maryland citizens should be familiar with the 5-point program recently proposed by Secretary of Agriculture, Charles F. Brannan," says Joseph H. Blandford, Chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee. "Of special interest to farm and city people alike is the fourth point."

Mr. Blandford calls attention to the Secretary's discussion of this point in which he said, "A program that helps maintain farm income helps to maintain agricultural resources. City people, just as much as farm people, concerned with the problem of conservation. Our soil, water and forest resources must support a population that is still growing, and our objective is a higher standard of living for the people as a whole. Yet we are still losing productivity on hundreds of thousands of acres every year. Half of all our cropland is still subject to erosion. Obviously, conservation depends on something more than good farm prices. On the other hand, resources can be conserved and improved only if they are used profitably."

The depression taught us that hard times make poor farmers and poor land. Low prices force farmers to abandon their land conservation practices in an attempt to make up for lower price by increasing acreage to get a volume. For the short pull, they will be able to pile up bigger production with less output. But only a few seasons need pass before even production will be decreased. The low wheat prices of the depression brought increased plantings, at great cost in resources. The dust storms in the Great plains, as well as gullies and floods elsewhere, gave dramatic evidence that surpluses and low prices can lead a nation to ruin.

Price supports can aid conservation in at least two ways: (a) by bringing additional stability into the farm business so that farm people can enjoy a good standard of living without mining their resources and (b) by directly encouraging types of farming which naturally conserve resources.

It is generally believed that for the sake of keeping our resources permanently productive as to meet consumer needs, livestock production should be made a more important part of our agriculture. I agree with this. I also think the shift is not likely to take place as promptly and fully as necessary without the assistance of a well-adapted production and price adjustment program."

Entry Blanks Ready for Contest

Entry blanks for the Greener Pastures Contest have been sent to County Triple-A offices and every farmer with 15 acres or more of pasture is being encouraged to enter his farm in this year's contest. Mr. Blandford reminded Maryland farmers that the deadline for entering the first contest of this type ever sponsored in Maryland is June 1. Assisting with the contest are the State Extension Service, the Soil Conservation Service, and the State Department of Education. Mr. Blandford also reminded producers of the four factors to be considered in judging the pastures. These are (1) seasonal distribution, (2) pasture management (3) quality of production, and (4) quantity of production. A score card is to be furnished giving a specific weighting to these items.

Social Security Bureau Now 13 Years Old

The Hagerstown field office of the Social Security Administration enters upon its thirteenth year of operation Wednesday. One of the first field offices to be opened by the newly created Social Security Board in 1937, the Hagerstown office has remained at 74 W. Washington St. since it was established.

Originally functioning as an information center, the field office later took over from the Post-office department the task of issuing social security account number cards. With the passage of years, the development and adjudication of claims under the Federal old age and survivors insurance program has become the principal operation of the field office although there are still many requests for information and account number cards, both new and duplicates are issued in quantity every week. At the present time the demand for duplicate account cards exceeds the requests for original social security numbers.

The operation of the field office now requires five persons and is administered by William J. Lanahan, who became manager in July, 1948. Mr. Lanahan was the first manager of the Hagerstown office but returned to Baltimore in late 1937 where he served in various capacities in the Baltimore field office before his return to Hagerstown.

Over the 12 years from 1937 to 1949, the field office has been contacted by almost 200,000 persons and has seen the beginning and end of many a wage-earner's participation in the old age and survivors insurance system. The area served by the Hagerstown field office covers Carroll, Frederick and Washington Counties. Field representatives of the Social Security Administration give regular service to residents of the counties, maintaining contact points in Westminster, Frederick, Hancock, Brunswick, Emmitsburg, Taneytown, and Thurmont.

Radio Mer...-o-round

By JOSEPH MARTIN

I HAVE a request to explain FM transmission and reception in "simple words." That's not exactly a request—it's almost a career, but here is my effort—

FM is an improved method of broadcasting which eliminates all interferences, natural and man-made. The old method of broadcast is called AM—or "Amplitude Modulation." FM means "Frequency Modulation." "Modulation" means the impingement of sound such as talk and music on a carrier wave which carries the sound to your receiver in which it is converted back to a sound which you can hear.

First, let's take AM. The way AM is sent to your receiver can be likened to an old, broken down automobile, bouncing along a very narrow, bumpy road, loaded with curves, with stoplights blinking all the way.

Now, let's take FM. Picture it as a new shiny car, purring along a perfectly smooth super-highway 200 times wider than the old bumpy road, with no intersections, no lights, no curves and no hitch-hikers—and then figure the highway as moving along with the car.

When the AM wave—the bumpy car—reaches its destination (your unit), it also brings in the dust, the hitch-hikers, mud and worn modern radio—a half that is even tires. Your set has to clean off what it can.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

It is a grim but inescapable fact that the majority of married women in the United States will some day be widows. That is because the average lifetime of an American woman is a little more than five years longer than a man's. Statistics of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. show that a married woman of 40, with a husband the same age, can expect to be a widow for eight and a half years.

HEALTH COLUMN

Keeping Well After TB

When the doctor tells the tuberculous patient at the sanatorium that he can go home, he is actually telling the patient a number of other important things. The medical discharge means that the patient has successfully battled his tuberculosis, that he can rejoin his family and his friends, and that he can make definite plans about going back to work.

Yet, at this point, the former patient fully realizes that all his plans for the future hinge on one important factor -- his staying well.

Observing common-sense rules that will keep him well is going to be easier if the former patient remembers that his newly-regained health was a long, up-hill fight. He is merely seeing to it that he holds on to his "victory" when he gets sufficient rest at the proper times, the right foods regularly, and keeps a careful check on his own health.

Keeping well need not be an arduous task for the former patient. He has been advised at the hospital of certain things he should not do. But life for him can be pretty much the same as it was before he became ill and went to the sanatorium. There are three main things for him to remember:

(1) He should observe the rules of healthful living which he learned at the sanatorium. Doctors and nurses at the sanatorium have given him sound advice that will make living healthfully easier for him and, with the aid of his doctor, he can map out a home routine that fits into his family's schedule of daily life.

(2) The former patient should keep in touch with his doctor at all times. He should visit him for checkups as often as the doctor advises, even though he may feel perfectly well. And if he notices anything wrong -- such as loss of weight or appetite, unexplained fatigue, coughing and pain in the chest -- he must see his doctor immediately.

(3) The ex-patient must do what his doctor tells him. The doctor knows the patient's condition best and is the one to advise him on all matters concerning his health, including the types of work and recreation which are safe for him.

ROBBERY UNTIMELY

Two men held up the home of Isadore Ludwin, a Philadelphia jeweler the other day, bound and gagged four women and a girl with diapers, and fled with nearly $5,000 in loot. While the robbery was in progress, a 35-car funeral cortege for the jeweler, who had died three days earlier, halted before the house in a gesture of respect.

"IF YOU DON'T LIKE the programs on radio, produce better ones!" It's challenging but exact advice given Irene Wicker which goaded her to develop "The Singing Lady" radio series. Irene went on the air

Irene Wicker

In 1931, narrating beloved fairy stories and changing her voice to suit the characters. Today, her ABC television characters are brought to life with special fairy-land settings and a "cast" of famous Suzari Marionettes. Miss Wicker is a product of Quincy, Ill., and played summer stock while attending the University of Illinois. Apparently she has met her challenge successfully for her name has been in "Who's Who" since 1936 and her program has won 24 of radio's highest awards as the best in its field.

BOBBY-SOXERS NOTE! ... Bare legs, bobby-sox and assorted adornment for gams have been the fashion of teen-agers with an urge to allure. But take it from Paulette Goddard, now working on Columbia Pictures' "ANGEL-CASTA," there's more enticement to long black silk stockings! In one scene Paulette rolls off a pair of the longest, sheerest stockings ever likely to see. "Good, very good," commented director Irving Papper. "But we want the utmost glamour. So this time, do it slowly—provocatively, as though you were, well, rolling your eyes." After the film was shot, the star was greeted with a storm of wolf whistles from the crew—Hollywood's most sincere and rarest applause! Bobby-Soxers please note!

ONE GOOD TURN deserves another! ... Recently when Mutual's Saturday "Take a Number" program lost its jack pot to a contestant who was a cosmetologist, Red Benson, popular emcee, cornered the winner for a little free advice. "Tell me," he asked, "what could you do for my face?" "Absolutely nothing" was the prompt reply, "except to suggest that you keep it covered as much as possible." Sticking your face out can be like sticking your neck out!

JACK BARRY has one of the most amusing as well as amazing radio "properties" on the air today. Namely, fabulous "Juvenile Jury" heard Sundays on MBS. Jack's first radio job in 1934 paid $35 per week — a figure that he has multiplied 20 times since. In 1946 he decided that a program made up of bright, spontaneous youngsters would be a pretty entertaining experience, and within one week a panel was lined-up and "Juvenile Jury" was on the air. This good-looking six foot 180 pounder attributes his love for children to the fact that, as a youth, he spent much time taking care of two small sisters. Strangely enough he has no children of his own — isn't even married.

THAT "TV embarrassment" may change the habits of the entire world (but good) is a serious consideration. For instance: An NBC-TV camera at the UN General Assembly opening came up with a picture of a man — head thrown back, mouth open and ... sound asleep at the switch.

Jack Barry

This Chinese proverb was quoted by Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of the Maryland Extension Service, speaking in praise of the home demonstration program in this state.

"National Home Demonstration Week, May 1 - 7, makes it possible for the whole nation to recognize the contributions our homemakers are making, and to honor their efforts," he continued. "The 14,000 Maryland women who are managing their households and families with the modern methods learned through their local Homemakers' Club and project groups are setting a splendid example of citizenship that is essential to the well-being of the state, the nation, and the world."

"In 1948 these women raised more and larger gardens than ever before and preserved, through freezing, canning, drying, and storing, more farm produce. They reported less food spoilage than in former years. These women learned to make more of their families' clothes, and to prolong the use of many garments through remodeling. Thus the economic and nutritional standards of Maryland farm families increased as they became more self-sufficient. Our homemakers learned how to increase their efficiency in household tasks, and found more time to participate in family recreation and community life," he stated.

Remember to beat the egg whites till stiff but not dry, and use care in folding in the remaining ingredients. A gently, down-up-and-over motion with a mixing spoon or spatula is recommended. When mixed, pour the batter into an ungreased tube cake pan, and cut through it with a knife to remove any large air bubbles. Bake in a slow oven (325°) for about an hour, until done. Invert the pan and let the cake "hang" until cold.

As for the left-over egg yolks—you can poach, scramble, or hard-cook them just as you would whole eggs. You might serve the poached yolks on top of corned beef hash or spinach. Hard-cooked egg yolks may be chopped or sieved and used in sandwich fillings, creamed and scalloped dishes, sauces, sprinkled over vegetables or soups, and in salads. Or you may use the yolks in making custard or sponge cake.

Do be sure to use them, however, one way or another, because egg yolk is a top-notch source for protein, vitamins and minerals.

MARYLAND VETS PAY MORE

The regional office of the Veterans Administration reports that former servicemen in Maryland paid about $700 more than the national average for homes they bought last year under provisions of the GI Bill of Rights. The VA said the average of the loans it processed was $9,000. The national figure was $8,300. The office handled 4,411 loans last year, as compared with 8,859 in 1947, and 8,196 in 1946.

Los Angeles is second only to New York in garment manufacturing.

"These women, the backbone of America, exemplify the traditionally American qualities of which we are all so proud—thrift, industry, independence and democracy," Dr. Symons asserted. "I am proud of the invaluable work they are performing and wish them even greater success and prosperity in 1949."

MARYLAND FEED & GRAIN MARKETS

FEED MARKET

Summary for Maryland

The wholesale feed market in Baltimore for the week ending April 21 followed the national pattern which showed a slight advance. At the retail level the advances were more significant. The gains made in recent weeks on the wholesale level were reflected to a greater degree at the retail level this week. The several slight price declines reflected in the retail average was due chiefly to one or more wholesalers being out of stock rather than an actual decline in price.

The Broiler-Feed Ration for Maryland producers declined sharply for the period April 18 to 21. Broiler prices averaged 27.3 cents per pound, down 2.3 cents over a week ago. The price of 20% broiler mash on the Eastern Shore April 19 averaged 94.60 (94.80 last week). On this basis one pound live weight broiler would buy 5.8 pounds of feed, compared with 6.25 pounds a week ago.

National Summary

Feedstuff markets continued firm and prices of most feeds made further advances during the week ended April 19, reports to the Department of Agriculture indicate. The market strength apparently resulted more from light offerings than from an increased demand. However, inquiry for wheat mill feeds and most other grain by product feeds was rather urgent for immediate shipment. Buyers were not inclined to make important commitments for deferred delivery. Oilseed meals were in plentiful supply and prices were fairly steady except for cottonseed meal, which advanced about $1 per ton.

The market for wheat millfeeds advanced about $1 per ton during the week, influenced by light production which totaled less than 75,000 tons. The principal advance was in bran which is now the highest priced feed compared with prewar relationships. Middlings and shorts, which usually sell higher than bran at this time of year, were relatively cheap and sold at near bran prices at most markets.

GRAIN MARKET

Summary for Maryland

In Baltimore for the week ending April 22, free wheat continues to be scarce and prices paid to farmers have remained steady to slightly higher, depending on quality. Corn offerings were liberal with a wide range in quality. Soybeans are about dried up. Hay showed a weaker undertone.

National Summary

Grain markets strengthened slightly towards the close of the week ended April 21, but price gains, with the exceptions of corn and rye, were not sufficient to offset earlier demands. Winter wheat declined about 2 cents and spring wheat about 6 cents per bushel in the cash markets, despite the strengthening influences of Commodity Credit Corporation's purchases of nearly three million bushels. Favorable crop prospects and a slow milling demand were the principle weakening factors. Rye advanced about 4 cents, principally as a result of a gain of about 7½ cents at Winnipeg. Corn prices strengthened, following the weakness of the previous week. Small market receipts and light current offerings were principally responsible for the gain, which amounted to 3 to 4 cents per bushel. Oat markets were steady, with current offerings sufficient for trade needs.

SHORT STORY

Ben's Not Like That

By GERTRUDE WINDERS

"YOU'RE a wonder, Anne." How ever, Ben Harmon was smiling not at her but at the blue print she'd worked on, far into the night. Ben drew wacky sketches of houses he dreamed up and Anne made the blue prints that sold people his ideas, revised.

Anne said eagerly, "I've cut out some of the windows. You forgot that the Brantons want a lot of wall space for pictures." She waited for more praise. And waited.

Ben scooped up the blue print "I gave a good deal of time to putting those windows exactly where they ought to be," he muttered, "but since you mention it, Mrs. Branton did say something about hanging Branton's latest atrocities. Hanging's too good for them . . . So long, beautiful."

Before Ben went to the Navy they were almost engaged. She was the one who had been uncertain. She was uncertain no longer. The plastic T square in her fingers shook. "Nothing I say or do seems to please him anymore," she whispered. "What is the matter with Ben?" The voice of the new receptionist in the outer office floated to her in mocking answer, "Oh Ben, you're wonderful!"

Anne stiffened, listening for Ben's answer. She could hear only the deep rumble of his voice.

Anne could imagine how Marvella looked as she said it, eyes fluttering, wide silly smile. Anne smoothed her brown page boy bob. Marvella was a synthetic blond. Surely Ben wouldn't—

"Mrs. Branton is on the university board," Ben was saying. "If she likes this house we'll have a good chance at the university's new chapel."

"I'VE another idea about the cottage," He spread a crumpled sketch on her drawing board. We'll build the house in the hill. That gives an old-world broken roof line with the slope for background."

Anne, studying the sketch, felt her heart sink. His notion was impossible.

"It would be beautiful," murmured Anne, "but wouldn't every room be on a different level?" She must be tactful.

"That's part of the charm!"

"It means stepping up and down, and Mrs. Branton is old—"

"Nonsense. She just sits and knits while he paints."

"It'll be wonderful," put in Marvella.

Ben's voice was sharp. "You're all wet on this, Anne."

"The cottage will be wet, you mean, poked under the hill that way." Her temper was rising. "You know we decided last week that the only place for the house was on top of the hill. That cuts out the hill problem and the house gets a breeze. You have a level stretch—"

When she said, "How wonderful, how clever of you to think of that," he beamed at her.

"Okay," shouted Ben, "but I'll wager Branton won't think so."

The door banged on him. She'd lost him. A fog of misery closed over her. She tried to tell herself that if she couldn't have Ben on an honest basis, she didn't want him. That didn't help. It wasn't true. She wished she'd lied and gushed.

He phoned her, "Branton is crazy about my idea."

"Artists are always crazy," she retorted, blinking back tears.

Ben's step behind her was a surprise. She hadn't expected him to come back to the office that night.

"Congratulations," she said, without turning her head, and felt two hands firm on her shoulders.

"For what?" asked Ben softly.

"For being a dope? Anne, what would I do without you?"

"Didn't Branton—"

Anne began, dazed.

Ben turned her around and grinned down at her. "Mrs. Branton picked the house on top of the hill," he explained. "She said, 'My husband hasn't a practical bone in his head.' Will you say that about me some day? We make a swell team, honey. What do you say?"

Anne didn't say anything for Ben's lips, warm and firm, were on hers.

The Inventor and Job Maker Dependent On Gold Coin Standard of Money

by PHILIP M. McKENNA,
President of Kennametal Inc.,
Latrobe, Penna.

How do new jobs come up in your town? Somebody has an idea. Very often it's an invention. Sometimes it's what we may call an innovation, that is, trying out something brand new in your town. If the inventor or innovator has enough money on hand, already saved for such an opportunity, he is able to buy what is needed to try it and to pay people to operate the idea to see if it works out and pays off.

When Henry Bessemer in 1856 believed it practicable to make steel by blowing air through molten pig iron he had already earned and saved considerable sums of money by use of his earlier invention, notably the manufacture of bronze paint. He says in his Autobiography, "Having thought over thoroughly the risks and powerful opposition I had to fight, I came to the conclusion that it was my duty to settle the sum of £10,000 ($50,000) on my wife, under trustees, so that I could not be ruined absolutely in the further pursuit of my invention or by litigation in defense of my patent rights. After this investment I had still £12,000 ($60,000) to spend in perfecting my process if found necessary."

Within 5 years of this decision over 1,000 men were employed making Bessemer steel, and in constructing new furnaces and Bessemer converters and within 12 years over 20,000 persons in various companies in England had jobs that hadn't existed before, and steel was plentiful enough to build railways and bridges of high strength compared to wrought iron or to wood.

Now suppose Bessemer and his partner at the start had not had the £12,000 or that it had been in irredeemable paper money deteriorating so that it was only one third enough in buying power in 1856 compared to its value when saved, ten years previously. Bessemer could not have made the attempt and built his first furnace.

At the risk of being personal I'll tell you my own story as an inventor. In 1937 at the little town of Latrobe, Pennsylvania I had made an invention, of a new tool material, which I called Kennametal. I believed it would solve the problem of providing America with a hard carbide tool material which would cut steel, in lathes, boring mills and milling machines with three times the speed feasible with then known tool steel. I had saved up $71,500 during the many years I had worked as a metallurgist and chemist. I resolved to risk it in trying out my inventions. I rented a storage garage in our small town of 10,000 people and to the amusement of members of the established carbide industry employed 12 men in 1938 and started to make and sell "Kennametal." The first year I did not go "broke" although no profit was made. The second year I had proved the superiority of our steel-cutting metal in so many shops that we had 50 people making tools from it and that year earned enough money to expand operations. By 1940 our sales reached $5,000,000 a year, the cost of cemented hard carbide was reduced to one-third of what it had been when I started and we were employing 300 people who thus had an opportunity to earn and save in our town when they hadn't had these jobs before that.

But if I hadn't had the initial cash to risk, in 1938, or if it had been deteriorating in value as rapidly as money has gone down in buying power recently I shouldn't have been able to make the start. Thus jobs may come from savings in the hands of workers and inventors. A grave danger threatens all who earn and attempt to save today. America is not on the gold standard so far as American citizens within the country are concerned. A thousand dollars saved in 1938 is today worth only about one-third as much in buying power as it was then. Suppose my invention had not been thought of until 1949. Then my $71,500 would have been insufficient to pay the workers to construct my furnaces and equipment. I could not have started with only $18,000 in buying power.

A deteriorating dollar stops the opportunities for new jobs in America. Restoring the gold coin standard of money in the U.S.A. now will stop deterioration of the buying power of the dollar. This will restore the confidence of savers and enable inventors and innovators to lay aside money for their useful projects which in turn spell jobs and opportunities for many.

What can YOU do about it? YOU can convince Congress. Congress will not re-establish the gold standard until Congressmen can be made to realize that the gold standard is what Americans want. YOU can write to your United States Representatives and Senators. YOU can discuss the subject with your friends, your business associates, your civic groups, your labor unions, your Grange associations, your church groups.

Discussion brings enlightenment. Enlightenment will restore security to the savings of every American. Form your own group for discussion of the GOLD STANDARD. For literature and suggestions, write to The Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy, One Madison Avenue, New York 10, N. Y., or Philip M. McKenna, Latrobe, Pa.

High School Drops Opener By 22-7 Score

Opening the Frederick County Interscholastic Baseball League season, Brunswick High School trimmed Emmitsburg, 22-7, on the Railroad diamond Monday afternoon.

Both teams showed early-season lack of polish on fielding but there was nothing lacking in the potency of the Brunswick hitting attack.

In the four innings Phillip of Brunswick pitched, he struck out 11 Emmitsburg batters.

The dress is of Raycrest cotton, available in oxford, blue, brown or green, and sells for about $18. It's one of the new cotton fashions shown in the May issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

TWO AIR FORCE OFFICERS WILL INTERVIEW AIR CADETS AT MT. ST. MARY'S THIS WEEK

Two Air Force officers will arrive May 2 and 3 to interview college men interested in pilot training and a career as an officer in the U. S. Air Force, Major B. M. Campbell told the Chronicle this week.

They also will interview young men and women seeking non-flying careers as officers in administrative and technical fields with the Air Force, he added.

The two officers will headquarter at Mt. St. Mary's College. They will discuss opportunities for Air Force careers with college graduates and other qualified persons as well as college students. Arrangements for an interview may be made through the college officials.

Men accepted as aviation cadets, said Major Campbell, will be given 12 months of thorough pilot training. They then receive the silver wings of a pilot and reserve commissions as second lieutenants in the U. S. Air Force. After a 30-day leave, they are assigned to flying units with the Air Force.

The superstition that finding a horseshoe and nailing it over the door brings good luck appears to be merely a modification of a belief in early times when horseshoes were rare and were believed to have a protective charm.

The two officers will come from Fort Slocum, N. Y.

To be eligible for cadet training, men must be between the ages of 20 and 26½, with at least two years of college or the ability to pass an equivalent examination, and with high physical and moral qualifications.

As for those seeking non-flying careers in aviation, Major Campbell explained that both men and women, with or without prior military service, may apply. To be eligible, they must be between the ages of 20½ and 26½, with at least two years of college or the ability to pass an equivalent examination, and with high physical and moral qualifications.

Successful applicants will be given six month's instruction beginning July 7 at Air Force Officer Candidate School, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Graduates of the school earn reserve commissions as second lieutenants in the U. S. Air Force and are assigned to executive duties in administrative or technical fields within the Air Force.

The first use of glass in windows is believed to have taken place about the beginning of the Christain era.

Because they regarded the custom as heathenish, the Puritans at one time tried to abolish the use of the ring at wedding ceremonies.

LOCAL WOMAN

OF MANSLAUGHTER

Girl Involved In Fatal Accident Is Absolved By Jury

Miss Catherine Keiholtz, Taneytown, was acquitted Wednesday afternoon by an Adams County, Pa., jury of charges of involuntary manslaughter, but the jury directed that she pay the costs in the case. The jury spent two hours and fifteen minutes in its deliberations.

The case went to the jury in the afternoon. Among the witnesses Wednesday morning was Miss Keiholtz and Verle Schmucker, who was a passenger in her car. Miss Keiholtz, whose vehicle smashed into another car, causing a death said she did not see the oncoming vehicle until a few moments before the crash. She claimed she was attempting to pass a truck, and that the truck increased speed as she attempted to go around it in her car, thus preventing her passing. Before starting the attempted pass she did not see any vehicles ahead, she said, and assumed she had sufficient space in which to pass the truck before any cars could approach from the opposite direction.

Character witnesses called to the stand to testify for Miss Keiholtz included Dr. W. R. Cadle, Emmitsburg; Martin Luther Kugler, Sunday school superintendent of Elias Lutheran Church, Emmitsburg; Robert McNair, Emmitsburg, Rt. 2; Rev. Philip Bower, pastor of Elias Lutheran Church, Emmitsburg; Rev. Morris Zumbum, Jefferson, head of the Luther League for Frederick County of which Miss Keiholtz is a member; George L. Wilhide, cashier of Farmers State Bank; Jonas Baker, Emmitsburg, on whose farm Miss Keiholtz' father is tenant and Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary who knew Miss Keiholtz as a secretary at the leadership training camp at Camp Nawakwa.

Members of the Keiholtz jury include the Rev. George H. Berkeimer, Arendtsville; Elmer Cashman, York Springs; Kathryn Cunningham, Gettysburg; Russell Deane, Gettysburg; Elmer Dillman, Gettysburg; Edna Hoffman, York Spring; Denton Huff, Biglerville; Jacob Nitchman, East Berlin; Thomas Oyler, Gettysburg; Carl J. Smith, McSherrystown; Harold M. Steiner, Flora Dale, and F. W. Weigle, Biglerville.

LIQUOR COMMISSIONER STRESSES RULES ON CLOSING HOURS

Many Tavern Operators
Confused by Daylight
Time Closing Hours
License Commissioner G. Cleveland Trout said last week it has again been called to his attention that the advent of daylight saving time leaves some license holders feeling that they are being discriminated against.

He said there is nothing he can do to solve the problem whereby licensees in areas affected by daylight saving time are required to close an hour earlier at night than those located in rural areas where Eastern Standard Time will continue to prevail.

Licensees in incorporated towns have pointed out that they will be closing at 11 o'clock EST while other licensees outside incorporated towns will be able to keep open until midnight EST. The change in time brings a discrimination against licensees in incorporated towns, some of the license holders have complained. Some complained last year.

For instance, a license holder can dispense beer in Emmitsburg to 12 o'clock daylight time but a licensee outside the Town's limits can keep open an hour longer. As a result, it is pointed out, the late drinkers flock to the rural taverns.

Mr. Trout said the Attorney-General has ruled that the Frederick County Commissioner has no authority to set a uniform time schedule.

There are two ways to solve the problem, he pointed out. The licensees themselves could set a uniform schedule or the County Commissioners could establish daylight saving time for the entire county. In either instance, he pointed out, he has no authority to recommend or suggest such action.

Most of the incorporated towns in the County as well as Frederick went on daylight saving time at 2 a. m. last Sunday.

DONALD CRISP, one of Hollywood's best-known character actors, portrays the father of one of America's foremost sculptors in the drama "Heard 'Round the World" on NBC's Monday "Cavalade of America" this May. Judge Henry French of Concord (Donald Crisp), relates the story of the unveiling of the famous historical statue of the Minute Man, which was cast in bronze by the judge's son, Daniel Chester French. The statue of the Minute Man symbolizes the gallant men of Concord, Mass., who fired the shot "Heard 'Round the World" in the first battle of the Revolutionary War. "Heard 'Round the World" is typical of the little-known episodes in American history dramatized regularly on "Cavalade."

CARMEN MASTREN, guitarist-maestro of NBC's thrice weekly "Songs by Morton Downey" is one of America's most widely traveled and finest musicians. He is with Downey on all personal appearances in concerts, supper clubs, theaters, etc.—has played in Hollywood, Las Vegas, Washington, Miami, Kansas City and Detroit with Mort during the past few months. Formerly Mastren played with Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Eddie Condon and the late Glenn Miller. Currently he is guitar in the Wedgewood Room in NY's famous Waldorf-Astoria with Eddy Duchin's orchestra. On Downey's NBC "pause that refreshes" session, Mastren links in the musical backgrounds and it's his guitar you hear behind the tenor's song stylings. The musical combination also includes a piano, organ, celeste, violin and bass.

MILTON BERLE'S 16-hour stint, on NBC-TV in April, resulted in pledges of over one million dollars for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. The "Telethon" was one of more than 350 appearances for charity made by the comedian during the past year. He is honored with a $50 a plate dinner in May at the Waldorf... and the proceeds will go to still another charity—the first Interfaith Center in New York City.

WHEN A BODY MEETS A BODY

Hollywood's beautiful and brainy Rosalind Russell, who has just begun camera work in Columbia Pictures' "Tell It to the Judge," will have a beautiful rival in the person of Marie McDonald (cinematically speaking). Marie, known as "the other woman," key witness in a law suit is the gal Roz suspects to be romantically involved with the lawyer-husband. Handsome and very popular Robert Cummings plays the husband. Incidentally the also very popular and handsome Gig Young plays "the other man." Also gaining rapid popularity on the screen is this type of romantic-drama with sophisticated flair.

IF YOU THINK that the cost of living is high... just be glad you're not a horse. "Black Jack" owned by Republic's western star Allen "Rocky" Lane runs up a grocery bill monthly for: ½ ton of hay, ¾ ton of straw, 60 lbs. of bran, 20 lbs. of barley, 20 lbs. of corn, 10 lbs. of flaxseed, 250 quarts of oats and 2 lbs. of salt. Total? "It ain't hay," at least some isn't!
