THE RIGHT TO BE HONORED

Before Flag Day has been observed many more times, Old Glory's design may have been changed. For Hawaii and Alaska are making vigorous bids for admission to the Union. If they succeed, a star for each will have to be added.

The flag has undergone many changes of design since the stars and stripes were first adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, and the 13 stars supplanted the crosses of the Great Union flag. But there hasn't been a change since 1912, when Arizona was admitted to the Union and the last star was added.

There are conflicting stories as to the origin of the basic stars and stripes design. Perhaps the soundest claim historically is that of Francis Hopkinson, a New Jersey signer of the Declaration of Independence and a flag and seal designer of some repute. Records show that he asked compensation of nine pounds for his design of a flag for the Union.

Because of the crass commercialism of that story, we much prefer the pleasant and better-known Betsy Ross version. According to that legend, Betsy designed the first flag from a pencil sketch given to her by George Washington.

While the origin of the flag may be obscure, we may be sure that its design is by now familiar the world over. It is not enough, however, that Old Glory must be widely known. What it is known for is of much greater importance. Woodrow Wilson set a commendable objective at Flag Day exercises in 1914, when he declared:

"It (the flag) is henceforth to stand for self-possession, for dignity, for the assertion of the right of one nation to serve the other nations of the world—an emblem that will not condescend to be used for purposes of aggression and self-aggrandizement; that is too great to be debased by selfishness; that has vindicated its right to be honored by all nations of the world and feared by none who do righteousness."

Reckless Driver Crashes at Zora

A Harrisburg motorist charged by Gettysburg borough police with reckless driving on Center Square and W. Middle St., Gettysburg, Pa., at one o'clock Wednesday morning, a half hour later was involved in an accident with a tractor-trailer truck at the intersection of the Fairfield-Emmitsburg Rd. and the Emmitsburg-Waynesboro highway, according to police reports.

Gettysburg borough police placed the reckless driving charge against Samuel Koplovitz, 27, of 450 Radnor St., Harrisburg, Pa., before Justice of the Peace John H. Baseshore.

Pennsylvania state police reported that at 1:30 Wednesday morning a truck operated by William Clifton Winters, 30, of Springfield, Tenn., "cut" the corner turning from the Emmitsburg-Waynesboro Rd. into the Fairfield Rd., and was struck by Koplovitz' car.

There was no damage to the truck, police said, but damage to Koplovitz' car was estimated at $450. Winters, the driver of the truck, was charged before Justice of the Peace Ellis Stine, Fairfield, with making an improper left turn and was fined $10 and costs.

A child eats approximately one-third of its daily food requirements at noon. This emphasizes the importance of giving thought and planning to school lunches.

Sheriff Will Not Stop Sunday Movies

Sheriff Guy Anders said this week he will take no steps to halt proposed Sunday movies in Brunswick unless ordered to do so by State's Attorney Edwin F. Nikirk.

Jules Girden, proprietor of the Brunswick theater, has announced that he will start Sunday night shows on June 19. The shows would not begin until 9 p. m., or after church hours.

It is understood that one or two complaints have come to the attention of authorities concerning the possibility of Sunday movies in Brunswick, although the reaction, according to the theater proprietor, has been generally favorable.

The sheriff said he felt that if movies could be shown in Frederick on Sundays—as at present—there was no reason why they could not be shown in Brunswick.

A recent Washington County furore over Sunday blue laws which apparently grew out of the showing of Sunday movies, resulted last week in the indictment of 10 persons on blue law violations.

State police of the Gettysburg substation said that Vaughn passed other automobiles going east on

MARYLAND FEED & GRAIN MARKETS

GRAIN MARKET
Maryland Summary
Grain markets in Baltimore were steady to stronger during the week ended June 10. Wheat, following the national trend, regained some of the losses of the previous week. Supply, fair; demand, slow. Corn was about steady with very little ear corn left on the market. Offerings of both new and old crop barley are liberal with practically no demand. Soybean prices were steady on the Baltimore market with demand fair.
The Commodity Credit Corporation has recently announced the 1949 crop of garlicky barley will be eligible for loan. The support price for U. S. No. 1 garlicky barley in either farm or terminal storage is $1.00 per bushel with deductions of 2 to 15 cents for grades to No. 5.
National Summary
Grain markets strengthened materially during the week ended June 9, following the drop of the previous week. Wheat prices regained nearly one-half of the previous week's loss. Most feed grains advanced more than the earlier declines. The market strength in wheat was attributed principally to the announcement by the secretary of agriculture of a new storage plan which would enable wheat growers to obtain "distress loans" equal to 75% of the full support level on wheat stored on the ground where weather conditions permitted, or in temporary storage until permanent facilities could be made. The plan provides also that the Commodity Credit Corporation would undertake to find suitable emergency storage where it is not feasible to store grain in the open or temporary storage. Farmers could also obtain loans for the purpose of construction of farm storage to the extent of 85% of the cost. Lighter offerings of corn and oats were important strengthening factors in the market for these grains. Barley and grain sorghums continued weak. Soybeans advanced 5 cents per bushel and were quoted at $2.21 track Chicago and $2.15 track, County Points.

FEED MARKET
Summary for Maryland
The Baltimore feed market weakened materially during the week ended June 10. Wheat mill-feeds made further sharp declines of over 8% during the past week; standard bran—$5.68 per ton less and standard middlings—$5.41 per ton less. Gluten feed dropped about 8%—$5.50 per ton less than the average price on June 3. Alfalfa meal lost some of the gains made last week with a drop of almost 7%—$4.45 per ton less than last week. Laying mash declined over 5% on the Baltimore market, a drop of $4.73 per ton. 16% dairy feed declined more than 3% — $2.22 per ton less than a week ago.
This week's broiler-feed ratio of 5.7:1 is more favorable for the Maryland producer, although it is still below the probable breakeven point of 6 to 1, broiler prices during the past week averaged 23.8 cents per pound and 20% broiler mash on Lower Eastern Shore was $93.27 per ton.
National Summary
Feedstuff markets continued on a downward trend during the week ended June 7, and prices came more nearly into line with those of feed grains. Good pasture in the important feeding areas and increased offerings of new crop oats reduced the feeding of concentrates and commercial mixed feeds and were weakening market influences. Drops of as much as $9.25 per ton in wheat millfeeds, $2.00 in gluten feed, $4.50 in linseed meal, and $3.00-5.00 in brewers' dried grains were reported. Prices of most grain by-product feeds and oilseed meals, however, were still relatively higher than feed grains, based on prewar relationships. The index of feedstuff prices dropped about 8 1/2 points, to 205.1, while the feedgrain index advanced 7 points to 186.9. A year ago the feedstuff index was 279.9, while the feed grain index was 319.3.

Radio Merry-go-round

By JOSEPH MARTIN

HAVE YOU ever thought how much radio is a part of your life?
You'll get an idea when your set breaks down, or when you take off to some place where there is no radio. Only then do you realize that you've lost a dependable friend and companion.
That is the basis of a campaign going on in this state—a campaign by united dealers, distributors and radio broadcasters, by which it is hoped to persuade many heads of households to supply a radio for every room in the house.
This is an ideal design for living, especially, if the clear, unlimited tones and non-interference qualities of frequency modulation are made as available as old-fashioned AM radio. Picture a home so equipped and note that there is no wrangling or bad temper. Father does not grump because mother wants to listen to recipes while he prefers sports. The kids, who previously had to scramble to get first call on the radio, do not fight about it. Each person simply turns on his or her own radio, secure from interruption, and enjoys life to such an extent in the home, that outside affairs are no longer excuses to escape a family bicker.

Moreover, the children have a radio available for the entertainment of their guests and no incursion on the listening of the elders is necessary. Home seems a much more pleasant place—and despite the multiple listening outlets, it becomes much more quiet—and there is an improved relationship among all members of the family, even when grandma and grandpa are involved.
Some segment of this campaign for a radio in every room of the home will perhaps touch you. When it does, and you decide to buy at least one more radio than you now have, remember to insist that it have an FM unit—or you'll be isolating yourself in a half world. FM is now integral—it provides wonderful listening, and better appreciation of diction and music.

HEALTH COLUMN

CARE OF TEETH

Good teeth are not the only factors in sound health, personal attractiveness and economic success, but they are important to all three.

Our smile and our speech are among the first things noticed in our daily business and social contacts. But only bad impressions can result from ugly, decayed teeth, or gaping spaces where teeth should be. The sad fact is that such unattractive and unhealthful conditions are often due to carelessness and neglect.

The food we eat nourishes our teeth as it does other parts of the body. The same well-balanced diet necessary to general well-being is essential to the preservation, as well as the formation, of sound, healthy teeth.

The major function of the teeth is the grinding and cutting of food, the first step in digestion. When teeth are diseased, broken or missing, this means that it is just that much more difficult for the person to digest his food properly.

Decay of teeth is probably due to a combination of many factors. Dentists believe that decay starts from outside the tooth. When food particles, particularly sugar, become lodged on or between the teeth, bacteria, which are always present in the mouth, act on the particles to produce acids which dissolve a tooth's enamel and permit decay to start.

A tiny cavity becomes larger as the products of bacterial action destroy more enamel. Then, if neglected, the cavity may reach into the center of the tooth where the nerves and blood vessels are located. Disease-producing bacteria, spreading with the cavity, may enter the blood stream from the tooth's center and go to various parts of the body. That is how diseased teeth are sometimes responsible for setting up infection in the heart, the kidneys, joints and other places.

To help ward off tooth decay, the teeth should be kept clean and the dentist visited regularly. The teeth should be cleaned at least twice a day, upon arising and before going to bed.

Recently it has been shown that fluorine may help prevent tooth decay. Some communities are experimenting with adding small amounts of fluorine to the community water supply for this purpose. Some dentists advocate applying a fluorine-containing preparation to the teeth of children.

Your dentist is your best source of information on all phases of dental health. He can advise you properly on the desirability of applying fluorine to the teeth, as well as nutritional needs for the teeth, and proper brushing and cleansing. Never put off visits to the dentist until your teeth 'hurt.' Visit him regularly at least once a year.

Proper diet, habits of cleanliness and regular visits to your dentist will assist in preserving your teeth and your attractive smile, and help you along the road to healthful living.

Luncheon Scoops

by Wendy Warren

Today my luncheon companion was versatile John Griggs, who plays the part of Roger Elliot, the "Mystery Man" on Mutual's "House of Mystery." This time I was actually the guest, since I accepted his invitation to lunch at his home in Englewood, New Jersey. Right after my noon broadcast of "Wendy Warren and the News," I left CBS for the wide-open Jersey spaces across the Hudson... a town full of trees can be mighty refreshing to us city dwellers.

John Griggs lives in a modest comfortable house with his charming wife (the former English actress Mary Newham Davis) and robust 7-year-old son Timmy. The house contains many valuable, attractive antiques... and a small terror of a beagle, named Skipper. The luncheon was, of course, delicious.

This man Griggs is such a mountain of energy that he has piled up a staggering record of accomplishments. Born in Evanston, Illinois, John went to school in nearby Glen Ellyn. At sixteen, he was, as he says, "transported" by a visit to the theater, and acting has been his life ever since. His upstairs study contains many pictures of his long and successful stage experience, which included fifteen Broadway plays and association with many famous thespians.

His first radio job was as a staff announcer and producer in Chicago, and since that time radio has gradually come to take up almost all of his acting time. He has appeared on nearly all the major comedy and dramatic programs for 15 years. He was the principal newscaster for the Voice of America during the war.

John Griggs is vice-president of the United States Rocket Society, an organization expressly formed to study and develop future possibilities of interplanetary travel, long before government scientists reported its actual practicality. But probably the most engrossing of his hobbies is his mania for collecting and showing antique silent films. Immediately after lunch, he led me down to the basement, where he has built a miniature theater ("My answer to television") for the edification of guests and Timmy's small friends.

The film he showed me was one starring John's special hero, the great John Barrymore. Every year he holds his annual "Barrymore Wake" at which a group gathers in a New York hotel to see some rare Barrymore films and reminisce about "The Great Profile". It was a most pleasant visit, and I returned to the busy city greatly refreshed.

HOMEMAKERS' CORNER

This is one of the two seasons—the other is early fall—when fresh greens are most abundant and inexpensive. If you take into consideration their high vitamin and mineral content, too, you'll want to serve them often.

In preparing greens, be sure to clean them thoroughly. Cut off and throw away those sand-gathering roots, tough stems and yellowed leaves. Place the greens in a large amount of warm water, rinse well, lift out, and repeat with at least three changes of water. Are beet greens your fancy? If the tiny beets are attached, leave them on for added flavor. However, if you're partial to dandelion greens, be sure to discard those with bud or blossom to avoid bitterness.

Here's a Pennsylvania Dutch recipe for spinach proving it needn't always be cooked to be good. Fry 4 slices of bacon until crisp and add to three cups of chopped raw spinach. Add three tablespoons of flour to drippings and blend well. Four 1½ cups of hot water into this; cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly. Add two tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon of vinegar, salt and pepper. Pour this over the spinach and stir until wilted. Garnished with slices of hard-cooked eggs, this will serve six.

The expression "a mess of greens" probably came from the appearance greens have when overcooked—dark, soggy, unappetizing. Instead, use only a scant one-quarter cup of water, and cook just until tender-crisp, tossing them occasionally with a fork. Properly cooked greens are bright green and have a definite shape. Drain well, add butter, salt and pepper and behold—"a feast of greens."

Firemen Hold Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of the Vigilant Hose Co. of Emmitsburg was held Tuesday evening at the Firemen's Hall at 8:30 p. m.

President Herbert Roger presided at the caucus and plans were discussed for the holding of the annual carnival and parade to be held next month, July 14, 15 and 16 in Emmitsburg.

Three new members were inducted into the organization and three more applications were referred to the membership committee. Those applying for membership were Kenneth Keilholtz, Brooke J. Damuth.

Communications were read from several carnival outfits wishing to operate concession stands at the annual carnival.

The firemen made plans to attend the following parades: July 4, Gettysburg; June 17, Owings Mills; June 28, Mt. Airy, and June 30, Westminster.

Refreshments were served to the 30 odd members attending.

Unemployment Hits Record High

Unemployment rose to 273,000 in May to a new post-war high of 3,289,000.

The Census Bureau, reporting this, commented that "ordinarily unemployment decreases between April and May and the increase this year was, therefore, contrary to seasonal expectations."

Although unemployment had declined slightly in March and April, the new high is $8,000 above the previous top reached last February.

Despite the increase in unemployment more people had jobs in May than in May of last year, the Bureau said. Also, there was a rise in employment from April to May.

The Bureau said one reason the number of job seekers—outside of farming—rose faster than the number of job opportunities was because school age youths turned out for summer or post graduation work.

Because of the seasonal jump in farming, employment moved up, climbing 875,000 in May to a total of 58,694,000 — slightly above the same point last year.

Farm employment alone increased 1,154,000 in May. Jobs in non-agricultural pursuits dropped 279,000 to a total of 49,720,000.

This left the net increase 875,000 in employment.

The Bureau found a happy note in this fact: There was an increase in the number of full-time jobs, meaning those good for 35 hours work or more weekly.

Approximately two million more persons in May than in April were working full time, it said.

Two out of every three American soldiers who reached France in World War I participated in battle.

The highway system in the United States is estimated to be about $41 billion.

19 PERSONS INVOLVED IN BLUE LAW TRIALS

In Hagerstown today, 19 persons are scheduled to go on trial in Circuit Court on charges of violating an ancient blue law against Sunday amusements. Last week they were indicted on the complaint of the Washington County Ministerial Assn. Officers and employees of the Hi-Way drive-in theater east of Hagerstown, the Conococheague Motor Speedway west of town, and the Colonial and Maryland Theaters are charged with Sabbath breaking. There were indications by State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram that there may be three separate trials, one of the drive-in personnel, one for the speedway group and one for the two Hagerstown theaters. However, no arrangements have been made yet for separation of the cases. The drive-in theater case was tried previously but the jury could not agree.

County Reassessments Seen Rising In Districts Already Surveyed

There has been a rather general increase in property assessments in the districts which the County Board of Assessors has covered thus far this year, it was learned this week. It is the first time since 1944 that these districts have been covered and Assessor Ernest C. Speaks pointed out that values have moved up since that year, with the peak reached around '46 and '47. The assessors recently completed the revaluation of property in the Brunswick District and hearings have been set for June 21 and 22 before the County Commissioners. Residents of the districts are being notified to appear at that time if they have any complaints to register. The assessors are now moving into Middletown District and expect that covering this large district will take much of the summer. Jackson district will be the last to be covered in the revolving assessment this year, after which new property will be valued. Jefferson and Petersville have been re-assessed. The whole county is being covered for the third time under the 5-year revolving assessment plan which went into effect about 1937. This is the third year of the latest 5-year assessment.
