Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

The other afternoon, while riding around the countryside, I drove past Phil Sharpe's rifle test range out on Tract Rd. I know nothing about guns, but I was curious to see what was going on, so I dropped in for a brief visit. Phil was running velocity tests to determine the speed of bullets, and while it seemed all Greek to me—and I never studied Greek—it became very simple as he explained it.

I always thought that you hung a speedometer or something on the end of a bullet to see how fast it was traveling, but as Phil explained it, the speed is determined by measuring the time it takes for a bullet to travel over a measured distance.

Those funny looking box-like affairs on his range are holders for sensitive photo-electric screens. The box section is filled with some 600 pounds of sand to stop a bullet which may be fired too low, and thus is protection for the expensive instrument. The canvas cover is only to keep the sun off the delicate photo-cell.

There are two of these units exactly 100 feet apart. In the range house where the shooting is done, is another instrument called a chronograph, from the words "chronos" meaning time, and "graph" meaning record. This is actually an electronic counter and electrically measures a time interval to .000001 second. When a shot is fired, it passes over a photo-electric eye in the screen and sends an electric pulse back to the chronograph to start it counting. As it passes the second screen 100 feet away, it sends back another pulse to stop it. The shooter reads the exact time in neon lamps on the panel of the unit, writes it down on his report form, and translates it into speed by means of prepared tables.

It sounded complicated until I watched it, but the operation was so fast and simple that it was fascinating. Phil explained that older methods of measuring velocity were so complicated that it took a five-man crew to operate them, with a staff of electricians to keep the units in service. The chronograph he has is of the type now being used by all factories and laboratories and was developed during the recent war for use in atomic research.

Since the war, Phil told us, the electronic counter has been made in a variety of styles for various jobs, and they are still thinking up new ones. One modification of it is used in banks to count new money. A special electric pencil is dragged down the edge of a stack of bills, and at a glance you get the exact count. It cannot be used on old paper money which has been handled.

Another application of it is in laboratories making expensive units like certain vitamin pills. Many of these are packed 100 in a bottle. The bottles travel on a belt conveyor, stop briefly, and pills pour into a funnel over the bottle. An electric eye counts them to the desired number, then stops the flow, and the filled bottle moves on to be replaced by an empty bottle.

Anything can happen in this modern world, and with the high cost of labor, the large companies are adopting the latest in developments.

A modification of this same electronic counter is now being used by large firms specializing in watch repair. Only a few short years ago, after watches were cleaned and repaired, the adjustment or regulation required several days. The watch man regulated it fast or slow by guess, set it accurately, and laid it aside for a few days.

Fans Await Opening Ball Game Sunday

Baseball officially comes to Emmitsburg Sunday afternoon. The 1950 season opens at two o'clock and brings Littlestown here for the curtain-raiser. Enthusiasm is running high this year. Emmitsburg has joined a new league, the Pen-Mar, and also has secured a new manager.

Coach John Law, head football mentor at Mt. St. Mary's College, has consented to manage the local squad and has been working faithfully with his charges several nights a week. Cold weather has hampered Law's work and the progress of his players' conditions, but despite this handicap, Law reports his outfit in the pink of condition.

It is proposed to have Mayor Thornton W. Rodgers throw the first ball.

Fans are anxious to get a glimpse of Novak, the tall, rangy shortstop, secured from Gettysburg. To date Novak has displayed a world of natural talent and promises to become one of the outstanding stars of the coming campaign. Other new additions to the lineup are McLaughlin, a pitcher. McLaughlin had a very successful season with Fairfield last season. The catching department has been greatly strengthened in the acquisition of McMahon, baseball manager of Mt. St. Mary's College team. Third base has been capably replaced by Lee Shaeffer. Taneytown, Matt Paidakovich, last year's stalwart third sacker, has been ruled ineligible due to the 15-mile limit on players. Shaeffer possesses a powerful arm, can pitch well, fields well, and can give a good account of himself at the plate.

Fans are asked to come early in order to be there for the many drawings that will be held. The Emmitsburg Baseball Assn. will award some 10 prizes to the lucky winners. These prizes, with the exception of a television set, were donated by the following local merchants: Roger Liquor Store, case of canned beer; Sperry's Garage, Ford deluxe vanity mirror; Texaco Service Station, change of oil; Sanders Bros. Garage, 10 gallons of Esso gas; East End Garage, 10 gallons Tydol gas; B. H. Boyle, $5 worth of groceries; Hoke's Hardware, one gallon of paint; Mac's Barber Shop, shampoo, tonic, and hair cut; Emmitsburg Recreation Center, one gallon PenSupreme ice cream, and finally, the valuable television set. Tickets have been available on this set for weeks and there are a few more available. Better get them before Sunday's contest. Fans are requested to have all coupons on them and sellers are asked to have stubs in by one o'clock Sunday.

Manager Law has released this probable lineup for Sunday's game:

- FROCK, lf
- DEARDORFF, 2b
- NOVAK, ss
- SMITH, 1b
- SHAEFFER, 3b
- McMAHON, c
- HOLLINGER, cf
- WARTHEN, rf
- McGLAUGHLIN, p

Candidates Must File Before Midnight

All those desirous of filing for offices in the Town Election in May are hereby warned that their applications must be filed before 12 midnight tonight. Vacancies this year exist for the mayorship and one commissioner. Applications must be presented in writing and can be handed to the Town Clerk, Miss Louise Sebald, or postmarked before midnight tonight. The law requires filing 10 days in advance of the election. Another requirement is that not more than two commissioners can be elected from any one precinct. However, at present, there is one commissioner from each of the two eligible precincts; therefore, any candidate from either Precinct No. 1 or 2 is eligible this year.

Trotting Horses Now Stabling At Rosecroft

Trotters and pacers from all over the South, East, and Midwest are converging on Rosecroft Raceway at Oxon Hill, near Washington, D. C., this week as the million dollar harness track opens its doors for training purposes before the track starts racing on May 22.

The lure for the nation's top drivers and trainers is some $550,000 in purses offered by the "Big Four" of Maryland's harness tracks so that many of them are passing up many other established race tracks to compete on the Maryland circuit.

Col. Cornelius C. Jadwin, Rosecroft general manager, announced that the track kitchen, once again handled by Concessionaire Harry M. Stevens, is open to handle the influx of drivers, trainers and their grooms. Within the next week the stables will be bulging to capacity and the overflow (more than 700 are expected) will be handled by the Marlboro track.

Both the mile and half mile tracks will be used for the training and jogging of the trotters and pacers. 510 of which have been nominated for the rich early closing stake events.

Earl Avery has arrived with a string of 17 horses from the powerful C. T. Black stable. Avery won the driving crown at Bay State Raceway last year after making a terrific hit with fans by his driving finishes.

Fred Egan, the two-time winner of the Hambletonian classic, and Del Miller who handles the stable of Millionaire Tobacco Man W. N. Reynolds, are also expected in sometime shortly with their horses.

Many of the horses which will campaign at Rosecroft are also entered in the 20-night meet at Harrington, Del., which opens April 26. Therefore, Col. Jadwin as well as President William E. Miller of Rosecroft, and President Dick Hutchinson of Laurel Raceway are watching to get a line on what to expect when the horses race at Rosecroft.

Following the Rosecroft meeting, the horses will follow the Maryland circuit to Maryland's pioneer harness track, Laurel Raceway which opens June 17, and then to the new Baltimore Raceway, July 14, and finishing up at Ocean Downs Raceway, Ocean City, on Aug. 10.

Tavern Argument Results In Two Cuttings

Two people were injured and two arrested when a husband and wife engaged in an altercation last Sunday evening at Ancarrow's Cafe, east of Emmitsburg.

Harry Fogle, Lantz, and his wife, Edna, were arrested by Maryland State Policeman Kenneth Bond, and then released on bond to appear for a hearing on disorderly conduct charges before Judge Jacob Baker of Emmitsburg.

Trooper Bond said that Fogle got into an argument with his wife and then struck her in the face with a beer bottle. The bottle broke, cutting Mrs. Fogle about the face, hands, and arms. Raymond Lingg, Emmitsburg Rt. 1, bartender at the cafe, who went to break up the argument, was also hit by the bottle and cut.

Mrs. Gertrude Ludwig, S. Seton Ave., was removed to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kugler Wednesday afternoon in the VFW ambulance, suffering from a heart attack.

Town Council Spends Busy Session Clearing Books Prior to Election

In a four-hour session Wednesday evening, the Town Council cleared its books of most of its current business. Several important matters were held over to be acted on at a special session sometime next week.

Town Treasurer Louise Sebald reported a bank balance of $15,000 and a report on the meter fund showed a total of $2,204.01.

The County Commissioners, in a revision of handling the motor vehicle license dividend, notified the Town Fathers that heretofore they will have to journey to the county seat twice yearly in order to check on the registered car owners in order to obtain the town's portion of the motor fund. July and December were the specified months for compilation.

Contributions were approved for the Emmitsburg Public Library, $35, and to the Vigilant Hose Co. for $100. Mrs. Euphemia Rotering was appointed registering supervisor for the town election last week and Mrs. William Stebinsky was appointed for next Tuesday's registering.

C. D. Gillean was asked to repair a drain pipe on the property tenanted by Thomas Eyer. The drain is located in the rear of the E. Main St. property.

Tackling parking problems, the town solons in the near future will restrict parking on the east side of Broad Alley to four hours and will prohibit any parking on the west side of the alley. Numerous complaints have been filed in recent months pertaining to parking and blocking of garages in the alley to the rear of the VFW Home, Crouse's, Palm Lunch and Houser's Drug Store. No parking signs are to be placed on these buildings and tags issued to those violators. If this system fails, the officials will consider making the alley a one-way affair and restrict all parking.

Action was taken on a rubbish condition in the alley back of St. Euphemia's School. Residents of that section have been using the alley as a dump. The trash was ordered cleaned up by the Corporation and a warning was issued that offenders in the future will be held responsible for the condition of that section.

A permit was granted Lloyd G. Ohler to begin construction of a three-car garage on his property on E. Main St. Another peddler's permit was granted to the Bollinger Ice Cream Co., of Westminster, legalizing the company to solicit trade within the corporate limits. The fee was $20.

A complaint and threatened suit by a local property holder was taken under advisement. The case pertains to the placing of one of the new light poles in front of a W. Main St. property. The Town Fathers served notice that they were not responsible for the spacing of the poles and these complaints should be placed with the power utility doing the installation. To date 24 of these poles have been erected.

A request by the council of the Lutheran Church for permission to relocate the alley adjacent the pastor's residence was studied and granted, with certain specifications. The request asked permission to move the alley beside the old Tokar property over several feet in order to allow sowing of a grass plot on both sides of the street. Also the request asked for consent to widen the alley from its present 10-foot width to a proposed 12 feet.

No Candidates For Town Offices Have As Yet Filed

Consternation is felt by the many friends of the incumbents over the possibilities that they might not run again for office. Many projects, which represent improvements to the town, are under way and it is felt that a change at this time might jeopardize the success of these particular undertakings. Of particular interest to the citizenry is the garbage collection system, which is in its final stages of completion.

Should no applications for the jobs be filed, written votes could elect any qualified candidate. Filings must be completed 10 days prior to the election, which this year comes on May 1. Applications must be in writing and must be postmarked before midnight tonight. They may also be handed to the town clerk, before the deadline.

Rumor has it that a local service organization is considering sponsoring a candidate for the mayorship. Emmitsburg's election picture, to date, produces an air of uneasiness. No candidates have filed with the Town Clerk, Miss Louise Sebald. Deadline for filing expires at 12 midnight tonight. There are two offices to be filled. That of mayor and one commissioner. The present incumbents, Mayor Thornton W. Rodgers and Chairman of the Board of Commissioners James T. Hays have not signified their intentions to run for reelection.

The law requires that not more than two commissioners can be officed from any one precinct. At the present time, Commissioner John J. Hollinger represents Precinct No. 1, and Commissioner Lloyd G. Ohler represents Precinct No. 2. This makes eligible a candidate for either of the two precincts. The mayor is eligible to represent any of the precincts.

Believe This, and I'll Tell You Another

Once when I was a youngster I was hunting in the Hard Crammel Area on Lowbutcher Creek one morning, when I noticed a slight movement immediately in front of me. While waiting to see what it was, a turkey lit on a limb out to my right. Just at that moment a deer stuck his head above the brush. My muzzle loader limited me to one shot. But, after a second's thought, I put my knee to the middle of the barrel and by a hard pull with my hands I bent the barrel in a half circle so as to shoot a curve. I aimed back of me and fired.

Well, sir, that ball curved right around, killed that turkey, came right on around in front of me and knocked the horns off that deer; but it wasn't done yet. That ball kept right on around dodging those trees, with a drop of sweat on it as big as your fist, until it crashed into a tree behind me, having made a complete circle. I looked down to examine the damage to the tree and noticed honey running out of the big hole made by the ball. It was a bee tree. I wanted to stop up the hole so I grabbed a chunk which turned out to be a rabbit. I slammed that rabbit against the ground to kill him and killed 25 partridges huddled up there in the leaves. (L. C. Peeler).

Public Invited To Initial Meeting Tues.

A group of enterprising Emmitsburg business men will assemble Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. in the local Fire Hall for the purpose of organizing Emmitsburg's first Chamber of Commerce. These men have long realized such an organization has been sorely needed for this district.

The session is open to the public and anyone is eligible to come and affiliate himself with the Chamber. You do not necessarily have to be a business man, it is understood. If you are interested in the welfare of your community, you can better conditions by becoming a charter member of the group. Some 40 individuals have already signified their intentions of becoming members.

These enterprising and public-spirited men are cognizant of the fact that neighboring communities have advanced far ahead of Emmitsburg and they intend doing something about the matter. Federal and state funds have been awarded other communities while we, in this section, have been lax in securing these grants. Many improvements are needed in this town. Such things as the removal of the Blinker on the Square and a tax reduction plus an adjustment in fire insurance rates will be some of the first business to be taken up by the new business group. There appears to be an inequitable differential between urban and rural insurance rates for this section. The citizens of the town are aware of the fact that we now have two fire engines available, plus a portable pumper, but the insurance rates continue to rise. With all this protection in town, it is believed that only a five-cent differential exists between the urban and rural insurance rates. According to reports, the Fire Assessors Board still has Emmitsburg listed an old-fashioned handdrawn reel fire company and consequently the rates are unbearably high.

Now is the chance for all red-blooded Emmitsburgians to take up the battle for these much-needed adjustments. Come to the meeting Tuesday night and join the Chamber and become a champion of the people's rights. It is for your own benefit.

Mr. Merwyn Fuss, president of the Taneytown Chamber of Commerce, has been secured as the guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Fuss has had wide experience in dealing with small town business and problems and has graciously consented to give his time in helping Emmitsburg organize a chamber of its own.

Present also will be Mr. Charles F. Bowers and Mr. George Slagle, president and secretary respectively of the Frederick Chamber of Commerce.

Interesting Travelogue Describes Picturesque Shenandoah Valley

By REV. CHARLES S. OWEN

XVI
The Shenandoah Valley, between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghany Ranges, with its crossing mountain gates, has been called the Switzerland of America. In place of the eternal snow, however, is the perennial green. For nearly two centuries this Valley has been known for its livestock, its sheep in countless folds, its cattle on a thousand hills, its dairying industry, water power, lumbering, haunts of wild game, sportsmen's paradise, bubbling mineral springs, artesian hot springs, and healing waters. Along the way are many clusters of tourists' cabins to accommodate the traveler. A double room cabin with all conveniences can be rented for about $5 per night. Along the way also are numerous tourist homes which provide excellent accommodations for about $1.50 per person over night.

ENDLESS CAVERNS
One of the most attractive features to the tourists in this Valley are the subterranean caverns. These underground wonderlands are among the most famous in the world. There a person, like Alice in Wonderland, disappears through a hole in the ground into a mysterious fairyland of sights and scenes too gorgeous to describe. The little girl, you recall, in the popular story, went to sleep, and in a dream, disappeared down a rabbit hole, and awoke in a wonderland of fabulous mystery. Here, you too, without going to sleep, duplicate the story of Alice in Wonderland, by disappearing down through a rabbit hole, into a strange world below. For it is reported that in 1879 two boys first discovered the Endless Caverns by chasing a rabbit through his hole in the ground into that subterranean world. There what you see exceeds all imagination. It surpasses the most fantastic fairy stories. It appears that all the fairies of America have withdrawn into these caverns as their last stand against our disbelief in them. Here the high vaulted chambers exceed the splendor of the most richly adorned temples of the earth. No gifted artist ever painted such glorious sights. It all reminds you of the Poet Dante's visit to the Celestial Regions, or Milton's descriptions of Paradise.

The Valley has many of these underground caverns. People in great numbers from all over the world, come to see the marvels. We stopped to visit the one at New Market. This one is called Endless Caverns because no end has been found. It has been explored and opened up to the public for a distance of two miles. Never anywhere on earth have we looked upon such dazzling splendors as this underworld of nature has fashioned out of the stalactites and stalagmites, the limestone icicles of nature in these vaulted chambers far below the surface of the earth. In these regions of the earth's blackest darkness, electric lights reflect and refract the brilliance of the various formations. The names of these chambers suggest the splendor therein. Here are a few: The Valley of Endless Trouble, a bride and groom marching to the wedding altar; Solomon's Temple; Diamond Lake; The Arctic Circle; Palace of the Fairies; Fountain of Youth; Mount Vesuvius in Eruptions; the Oriental Palace, and many other descriptive names. Equally descriptive names have been coined to describe the majestic formations in the various other underground caverns in the Shenandoah Valley.

WINCHESTER
The little town of Winchester, at the north end of the Valley, so near us, is within itself a rich storehouse of historic renown. This is the place where you usually leave the Valley Pike for points in this vicinity. Even names of the streets preserve the lore of early days—Washington, Braddock, Wolfe, Loudon, etc. It was here that Gen. Braddock began his ill-fated march against Fort Duquesne where he met defeat at the hands of the Indians, and lost his life. It was here that young George Washington, after Braddock's defeat, had his headquarters while defending the frontier against the Indians. From here also Daniel Morgan, the Thunderbolt of the Revolution, rushed to Boston with his Rifle Company to join the Minute Men. In the Civil War, great battles were fought in the area of Winchester. Here indeed, very near us, is one of the most historic little towns in America, and a shrine of democracy.

HARPERS FERRY
On the final lap of our journey we came by Harpers Ferry. Here is another distinguished and historical landmark in the Shenandoah Valley. It is our next door neighbor, just beyond Frederick. The great Valley begins here where the Shenandoah River joins the Potomac to push through the gap of the Blue Ridge. Few places in America are so well remembered. Thomas Jefferson said that Harpers Ferry was a feature of sublimity and wonder. Perhaps it is best known by John Brown and his ill-fated revolution. Many years before the Civil War the Government had an arsenal there. Because of this fact, John Brown, feeling himself called by a vision from Heaven to free the slaves, chose Harpers Ferry to launch his campaign. His raid on the arsenal in 1859 led to his execution, from which came the famous song, "John Brown's Body lies this morning in the grave." Many have said that this little village, with its steep streets and precipitous bluffs, above the two joining rivers, is much more like one of the picturesque towns of the Old World than the New. Both nature and historic lore have favored this little town in American tradition.

JOURNEY'S END
From Harpers Ferry we reached home the evening before the wedding the next day. When the hour of the wedding arrived the next noon, the car refused to start. Having finished the long journey successfully, it stopped completely dead. We had to get a neighbor to take us to Piney Creek for the wedding ceremony and almost failed to get there on time, a distance of two miles. But the couple was married and, so far as I know, have lived happily ever after.

This happy conclusion ends the travelogue. Many thanks go to the numerous people who have expressed their pleasure in reading the story from week to week, and to the Chronicle for making it available to the public. When the story began last fall, there was no thought that it would continue this long. One episode suggested another until these 16 chapters have been written. The undertaking has accomplished its purpose, however, if it has stimulated greater devotion to our Country, and deeper appreciation for its beauties and enabled each one to see the truth expressed by the poet in "America the Beautiful":
"O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
America, America,
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood,
From sea to shining sea."

Charles Orndorff, Altoona, Pa., spent the week-end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Orndorff, Motters Station.

Tennyson took 17 years to write his famous poem, "In Memorium."

Pen-Mar League Officials Hold Meeting

The Pen-Mar Baseball League held its final pre-season meeting Tuesday night in the American Legion Home, Taneytown. President D. L. Beegle, Emmitsburg, presided at the meeting. Team rosters were presented and scrutinized for possible ineligible players. A plan to "grade" the umpires after each game was proposed and put up to the umpires association. Under the set-up, managers would file separate reports on the activities of the assigned ump and grade him on his merits or demerits. These reports would be forwarded to the president of the umpires' association after each contest. It is believed this way that those that are incompetent can be eliminated and raise the standard of refereeing in the league. Emmitsburg was represented at the meeting by Dr. D. L. Beegle, John Law, and C. A. Elder.

Firemen Canvass In Final Stage Of Annual Drive

Canvassing crews of the Vigilant Hose Co. this week began the last stages of the annual financial drive of the company. Return envelopes and coupons were mailed out some weeks ago and those that have not responded thus far are to be personally solicited for their contributions. The membership has been divided into teams and are presently making the rounds. Last week the drive passed the first thousand dollar mark, and it appears certain that with contributions still flowing in, the two thousand mark will be reached. The hose company has had heavy expenditures, mostly for equipment, the past six months. Over $1500 has been expended in modernizing the facilities of the fire fighting organization.

Surplus Potatoes

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture is required by law to support the farm price of potatoes at not less than 60 per cent of the parity price, according to Joseph H. Bland, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee. (The parity price is calculated to give the farmer a "fair" price for his potatoes on the basis of his current production and living costs). In 1949 the parity price for potatoes was $1.83 per bushel, and the support price—set at the lowest possible level under the law—averaged $1.10 per bushel, or less than two cents a pound.

In order to be eligible for price support, a farmer growing potatoes was required by the department to plant within his acreage allotment, a voluntary goal for balancing supply with demand. These individual allotments were set at a level designed to produce a total national production of about 350 million bushels—enough to supply all possible needs.

Early estimates of production (made in September of last year) showed that production was fairly well in line with the goal. These estimates showed a total production of 362 million bushels. However, unusually good growing conditions in the late potato areas brought out a bumper late crop, and the December estimate of production showed that a total of more than 400 million bushels of potatoes had been produced—over 50 million bushels more than the production goal.

In these circumstances, under the present law, there is only one thing the Dept. of Agriculture can do, and that is to buy up at the support price any potatoes offered to it by producers who have complied with the provisions of the price support program. These are the "surplus" potatoes which the normal commercial market won't take at the support price.

Several efforts are being made to change the laws under which the department must operate, so as to minimize the possibility of such huge surpluses in future years. The department's own proposals are two-fold: first, to allow farmers to adjust their production by the use of marketing quotas (such as are available on cotton and tobacco, for instance) and, second, to allow support by direct "production payments" to farmers so that potatoes would move into the market at supply-and-demand prices.

Tenants All
Referring to a recent editorial in Crops and Soils magazine, Mr. Blandford quotes as follows:

"No man ever really owns a piece of land. This simple fact, which should become more and more obvious as generations come and go, is still the very root of our conservation problems. . . . How presumptuous my self-styled 'ownership' really is. . . .
"This acre was here long before our forefathers lived. . . . Dozens of other owners' will follow us, each thinking of the land as his, and his only. But the tenure of each is but a fleeting moment across the fact of time. The land will be here long after our bones have gone to dust. . . .
"As 'owners' the worst that any of us can do is to destroy the productive capacity of the land. . . . we not only damage the land and make it ugly to look upon, but we injure the chances of our children to make a living—and their children after them. . . . The real crime is not against Nature. . . . but against our own kind."
"Soil erosion has been played up for 25 years. It is an important problem in soil management, although no more important than many others that need equal emphasis. Generally, erosion is a symptom, not the cause, of declining soil fertility and bad management. We must get back to these symptoms. When we do, we usually find weak plant cover and declining soil fertility. Then we must discover why these things happen. Often the real causes stem from unstable economic conditions, bad system of land tenure, sharply up-and-down prices, over crowding, poverty, disease and war."

Strawberry Festival

The queen of the spring fruits is the strawberry, and these are the days when baskets of such plump beauties can be had at almost every market. For making strawberry jam, America's favorite spread, be sure to select ripe, juicy fruit. It's fun to hull these luscious strawberries—their fragrance and flavor are good omens of the finished jam that will be yours.

STRAWBERRY JAM.
4 cups prepared fruit
6 1/2 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare the fruit. Crush completely, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries. Measure 4 cups pulp into a large saucepan.
To make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Place saucepan holding fruit over high heat. Add powdered fruit pectin and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim, ladle quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once. Makes about 10 six-ounce glasses.

Mrs. John Payne of Phoenix, Ariz., is spending a month with her husband at their home near Emmitsburg. On May 1, Mr. and Mrs. Payne will return to Arizona where they will make their future home. The change of residence is necessitated by Mrs. Payne's health. William Payne will take over the business formerly operated by his brother, John.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Welty, Emmitsburg, announce the birth of a daughter, Friday, at the Annie M. Warner Hospital, Gettysburg.

Red Cross Thanks Local Workers

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Frailey, chairman and co-chairman of the Emmitsburg Red Cross Fund Campaign, have received letters of personal appreciation from Cross officials for the success of the local drive which exceeded quota by $62.35. County Chairman Daniel J. Thomas pointed out in his communication that the Emmitsburg people had kept pace with the other districts of the county by over-subscribing their quota which he said "was very commendable". An "Award of Merit" will be sent to each worker in recognition of loyal service rendered and a special letter of commendation has been received from Rear Admiral Allen G. Quynn, USN, retired, Campaign Fund Chairman, Frederick County Chapter, which concluded as follows "The results of your efforts will be felt by many thousands, both in Frederick County and the country at large". The engraved Red Cross "Award of Merit" received by the local chairman and co-chairman bears the signatures of General George C. Marshall, President, Alice H. Nallin, Chapter Chairman and Admiral Allen G. Quynn, Fund Chairman.

SHORT STORY

Meat Loaf

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

SHERIFF FELIX BRENDLINGER was just about to sit down to his supper when the telephone rang. He looked at the instrument ruefully. Before him was a heaping plate of meat loaf, fried potatoes and fresh green peas.

Felix sighed, glanced across at Elvira, then moved to the wall phone. "Hello," he said.

"This is Chris Verne out at the Rowland camp," came a low and excited voice. "Someone's just broken into the front room. I'm hiding in the library, but I may need help."

It was five miles to the Rowland camp by way of the river road. Felix made it in eight minutes, despite the ancient vintage of his rattlecar. Chris Verne came down the steps to meet him.

"Too late, Sheriff. He got away. We had quite a tussle, but he whacked me on the melon and I was out like a light for three or four minutes." The tall, rangy caretaker gingerly felt of a bump on his head.

"Get away with anything?" Felix asked.

"Don't know yet. I was looking when you drove up. Come on in and we'll see."

The caretaker went directly to the safe behind the fireplace. "Hell!" he ejaculated. "Well, I can kiss this job goodbye. Rowland will never keep me on when he finds out those bonds are gone."

"Bonds?"

"He was up here over the weekend. He had a lot of negotiable bonds and left them in the safe. Figured this would be the last place anyone would look. Well, he figured wrong."

"Did you get a look at the thief?"

"Not much of one. It was dark. I was in the kitchen getting myself some supper, when I heard a noise in front. I switched on the light and listened. It sounded like someone was trying to pick the front door lock. Thinking of the bonds, I sneaked into the library. It was inky dark. I hastily dialed you, then went groping for the rifle Rowland keeps behind the safe. It was right then something hit me on the head."

"Humm," Felix stood in the center of the floor and looked around the room. The dial telephone was on the desk, with the receiver dangling on its cord.

"Chris, mind callin' Elvira and telling her I'll be home shortly and to keep my supper hot? I left it in a hurry. Meantime I'll take a look around here."

Chris shot a quick, sharp look at the officer, but Felix had already begun to browse around. So the caretaker crossed to the desk, picked up the receiver and began to dial. He had whirled out two numbers, when suddenly the lights went out.

"Hey!" Chris yelled, startled. "Who did that?"

"Keep right on dialing, Chris," Felix said from the doorway. "Fuse musta blown."

"Don't be dumb. I can't dial in the dark."

"Try it," Felix insisted.

"Are you crazy? I can't see a thing."

"Good!" said Felix. He snapped on the lights. In his hand he held the old time long barreled six-shooter that had served him during his many years as law officer. "All right Chris, nemmine dialing any more."

"Say, what is this?" The caretaker replaced the receiver on its hook slowly.

"We'll talk about it later, Chris. An' look around for the bonds. In the meantime, you come with me. You can spend the night in the lock up an', by jinks, without no supper 'oo. That's what you git for makin' me let mine go cold."

Chris blinked. "What the devil are you talking about?"

"Come, come, Chris. Play actin' ain't gonna do you any good. I got a hunch it was you stole them bonds, and busted the lock on the front door, too. At any rate, you didn't hastily dial my number in the dark, like you said. You just settled your own hash by proving it can't be done. An' speakin' of hash, come along."

HEALTH COLUMN

IMMUNIZATION

The average person desires the best of everything for his children. He frequently talks of this in terms of planning for his children "advantages" which he himself did not, or could not, enjoy. Probably, he thinks in terms of providing them with a better education than his own, perhaps more material benefits and luxuries.

The wise parent at the same time bears in mind that his child must have and keep sound health to enjoy these advantages fully.

Safeguarding the child's health can begin even before birth, when his mother places herself under the doctor's care early in her pregnancy. The mother's regulated diet, rest, and exercise give her the best chance of having a healthy baby.

Shortly after the child is born, the doctor will advise that he be immunized, preferably during the first nine months of his life against a number of common diseases to which his little body is vulnerable. These include diphtheria, smallpox, tetanus (lock jaw), and whooping cough. There are vaccines which will give the child immunity to these diseases.

Vaccines are also being developed for other childhood diseases. These, however, have not been sufficiently tested and their specific power is not yet known. However, if an epidemic of one of the diseases breaks out or is threatened in the community, the doctor will probably advise injections with the vaccine designed for the particular disease, even if the vaccine does not always confer complete immunity.

Years ago, with the exception of smallpox vaccination, there were few specific vaccines to protect very young children against the so-called common diseases of infancy and childhood. But with the availability of vaccines today, many diseases to which parents were at one time resigned are no longer necessary or inevitable.

Doctors stress that the older a child is when "babyhood" or "childhood" diseases strike, the better chance he has of recovery and the less chance there is of his suffering harmful after-effects which the diseases sometimes leave.

Immunization is a comparatively modern development which helps parents in their important job of safeguarding the baby's healthy existence. This protection is one which might mean the difference between a sickly babyhood or a healthy, happy start in life.

Double-glazed glass makes possible the use of large windows in homes, reduces heating costs, and minimizes cold drafts of air, says American Builder, magazine of the building industry.

The magazine explains that a double-glazed window consists of two panes of glass separated by a hermetically sealed space. Installations of this kind are used for most picture windows.

"Originally available on a custom-made basis only, these windows are now produced in a number of standard sizes. They offer a practical answer to heating and air-conditioning problems when large windows are desired," American Builder says.

Air Space Insulates

A half-inch air space between the two panes of glass is recommended. This air space has high insulating qualities. The inner pane of glass holds the temperature of the room, while the outer pane stays at the outdoor temperature.

In winter, double-glazed glass greatly reduces the amount of heat that escapes out through the window. In summer, the glass limits the amount of heat that can enter.

American Builder tells home owners and prospective home owners that "double-glazed windows add comfort to a dwelling all during the year."

Plate Glass 'Elegant'

Polished plate glass is normally used for double-glazed windows, but other types of glass or combinations of types can be substituted. The magazine says that plate glass adds "a note of elegance" to homes of modern design.

A special heat-absorbing plate glass also is available to lessen heat transfer. This glass absorbs about 57 percent of the sun's heat, American Builder says. The glass is a fourth of an inch thick and is considered practical for windows on the east, west and south sides of houses, especially in warmer climates.

Seven thousand stars can be seen by a person with average sight.

Lunch Scoops

by Wendy Warren

Not just for lunch — but for a week's visit, I have had the pleasure of extending the hospitality of New York City to one of the most charming and interesting people I've ever met. Mrs. Frances Jarman, of Durham, N. C., who won the Wendy Warren Women's Commentator Contest.

Frances' lovely suite at the Dorset hotel in Manhattan became her headquarters, and from there she breezed forth to the Broadway shows, fittings for her Paul Farnes original suit, her coiffure by Michael of Helena Rubenstein's, and all the other gay activities which had been planned by the CBS "Wendy Warren and The News" program for our contest winner.

"I studied to be a commercial artist at the U. of North Carolina," Frances told me over lunch at Lardue's, "but I never finished college — I got my 'MRS.' degree first!"

A lively, gregarious woman, Frances' blonde good looks are classic in line, but not coldly so, because the sparkle in her eyes, the graceful fluency of her hands when she punctuates her remarks, make her a very warm person and a lively conversationalist. She and her husband, Frank, who came up with her, and who is station manager of WDNC, are the parents of Joan, 10½, and Judy, 8 — and Frances is a firm believer in the creed that no matter how busy a career keeps a woman, the raising of her youngsters should stay in her hands.

The Jarman are a closely knit family, and share everything, including the group hobby of taking home movies in color. . . . They even act out scripts of situations of family importance, and all film is carefully cut and edited for really good, dramatic movies.

"Our vacation to Florida last year," Frances' blue eyes sparkled in remembrance, "yielded some wonderful movies, even if I did nearly perish of fright, perched on the hood of our car, shooting film like mad while Frank drove along at what seemed breakneck speed. We always try," she finished demurely, "to get unusual shots!"

My favorite anecdote about my Southern guest, though, has to do with the friends who saw her and her husband off for New York. . . . They presented Frances with four large bottles of eau de cologne—to sustain her in our water shortage.

BOY, THAT IS CLEAN

And cleanliness is most important in the kitchen.

ELECTRIC COOKING MEANS CLEAN COOKING, that's just one reason why electric ranges are outselling all other types of ranges today.

Only an electric range offers you perfect cooking results without bothersome soot, smoke and ashes. There are no messy liquids with their ever present danger of spilling and leaking.

You'll save hours of kitchen scrubbing drudgery because, with flameless electric cooking, walls, cooking utensils, and curtains remain free from grimy smoke and soot stains.

In addition to the immaculate cleanliness of electric cooking, you'll find—as have thousands of others—that electric cooking has these many other important and desirable features:

- (1) Electric cooking is SAFE—no danger of fire or explosion from leaking fuel.
- (2) With electric cooking you get PERFECT RESULTS every time—guesswork is eliminated with exact time and temperature controls.
- (3) Electric cooking is FAST—heat goes directly to the cooking utensil with no waste in the surrounding air.
- (4) Electric cooking is CHEAP—only an electric range provides completely controlled temperatures, assuring the least possible use of heat.
- (5) Electric cooking is AUTOMATIC—just set the controls, and cooking heat and time are self-regulated, leaving you lots more leisure.

MARYLAND FEED & GRAIN MARKETS

The Baltimore feed market was steady during last week. Only two feeds showed increases of approximately 2% or over: gluten feed, $1.57 per ton higher than a week ago, and 17% dehydrated alfalfa meal, $1.74 per ton higher.

Since broiler prices averaged lower, 27.2 cents per pound, and 20% broiler mash on Lower Eastern Shore averaged higher, $94.22 per ton, the broiler-feed ratio was unfavorable for Maryland producers during last week. One pound liveweight of broilers would buy 5.8 pounds of feed (6 pounds the previous week).

National Feed Market
Feedstuff markets strengthened somewhat during the week, reports to the Dept. of Agriculture indicated. Advances in feed grain prices, continued wintry weather in northern feeding areas, and increased demand for feed from drought sections in the Southwest were the principal strengthening influences. Grain by-product feeds advanced 50c-$1.00 per ton and oilseed meals gained 25c-50c per ton. Alfalfa meal, brewers' dried grains, and animal protein feeds were in plentiful supply and prices were down slightly from the previous week. Commercial mixed feeds were in good request and advanced slightly more than the prices of basic feedstuffs in northern and southwestern markets.

Egg and milk production during March indicated continued heavy feeding by poultrymen and dairymen. Some slackening in poultry feeding, however, resulted from the less favorable egg-feed and chicken-feed ratio. The rate of egg production during March was 16.9 eggs per layer compared with 17.2 in March last year and the average of 15.8 eggs. The Nation's farm flocks of layers in March were 6 per cent larger than in March last year. The decrease from March 1 to April 1 was four per cent compared with five per cent last year and the average of four per cent. Milk production per cow in herds kept by crop correspondents on April 1 averaged 17.50 pounds, which was six per cent above March 1 and three per cent above April 1949. The average amount of grain fed per cow for the country as a whole April 1 was the highest on record and amounted to 6.24 pounds per day compared with 6.22 pounds a year ago. It ranged from four to 14 per cent higher than on any other April 1 in the period from 1944 to date, during which records are available.

Maryland Grain Markets
Baltimore grain markets strengthened during the week ended April 14. Wheat advanced sharply about five cents per bushel. Yellow corn advanced about three cents per bushel on the Baltimore market. Barley rained about two cents per bushel while oats remain unchanged. Yellow soybeans made a sharp advance of about five cents per bushel on the Baltimore market. Black soybeans gained about one cent per bushel.

National Grain Market

Grain markets were unsettled during the past week, with weather conditions an important factor, according to reports to the Dept. of Agriculture. Continued dryness in the southwest and threatened insect damage were strengthening influences in wheat future prices, but remaining large stocks and slow export trade resulted in slight declines in cash grain. Rye declined about four cents per bushel following a sharp drop in the Canadian prices. Corn and oat markets continued firm, influenced by cold, wet weather in the central west which reduced offerings of both corn and oats and retarded seeding of oats and the preparation of the soil for corn planting. Barley and grain sorghums were about unchanged. Soybeans advanced three to five cents bushel, influenced by high oil prices and a more active export inquiry.

Inspect Now For Damage Done to Home

The coming of spring is an annual reminder to home owners to inspect their houses for damage done by winter weather and to make necessary repairs.

All of the exterior parts of a house—roof, sidewalls, foundation, doors and windows—should be checked because all of them are vulnerable to ice, snow, rain or wind. A close, detailed inspection is recommended because structural weaknesses, the most serious damage, are not always apparent at first glance.

Examine the roof from the attic. Look at the underside of the roof deck boards to note any indications that water has leaked through. If there are only one or two holes, repairing the roof might be possible but patching a leaky roof usually is unsatisfactory. Roofing material tends to wear out uniformly. The first leak can be taken as a sign that more will develop soon.

New Material Suggested

Covering the roof with new material, instead of patching it, generally is recommended. Asphalt shingles, a material highly resistant to both weather and fire, can be applied on top of most old roof surfaces, thus eliminating the expense of removing the worn material.

Water stains on interior walls and ceilings sometimes can be traced to a leaky roof, too. Water entering a house through the roof often runs down a rafter, coming out far from the point of entry.

Interior water stains also can be caused by water that has leaked in through cracks at door and window frames. Door and window frames and sills should be inspected to make sure they are watertight. Minor cracks can sometimes be caulked. To correct severe defects, new doors, windows or frames might be needed.

Inspect Sheathing

Note whether exterior siding is loose, rotted or sagging. Before replacing worn-out siding material, inspect the sidewall sheathing underneath. It might need repairs, too.

Inspect the foundation to determine whether it is cracked or whether sections of it are out of alignment. Loose masonry might need to be re cemented. Drainage tile might need to be placed underground to prevent water reaching the basement.

Farm Tour Dates Set

It was announced this week by Herman Stockslager, president of the Farmers' Committee, that the annual Four State Farmers' Tour will be held this year on August 18 on the farms of Dan Folk and John and Marion Welch, located between Martinsburg and Shepherdstown, Berkeley County, W. Virginia.

This year's tour—the fifth of its kind—is expected to draw well over 1,000 farmers from Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. It will feature special demonstrations and discussions of agricultural problems of interest to farmers in this area.

The 1949 Farm Tour was called by farm journals, "the largest, best-managed and most instructive" of the tours ever held, and committeemen in charge of this year's event are planning for an even more extensive demonstration.

Cold Weather Retards Trout Catch

Five trout checking stations were manned by wildlife technicians of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Department of Research and Education. Preliminary statistics as compiled by H. J. Elser, fishery biologist, indicate many interesting facts. Despite the cold weather on the first day, 949 fishermen checked through the stations and 652 on the second day, giving a total of 1,601 trout fishermen. Of the 5,600 stocked trout in the Savage River and its tributaries, 528 were caught on the first two days. Of the stocked fish removed, 556 were rainbows, 818 brook and four browns, giving a total of 88%. Of the native trout removed, rainbows two, brooks 135, browns 13 or 12% of the fish removed.

Conservation officials point out that despite the cold weather and the sluggishness of the fish, 25% of the total stocking was caught in the first two days of fishing.

Non-Essential

The Government has decided that the country could get along without pepper if necessary. This was made known recently by the Munitions Board, which said it has stopped buying pepper for the national stockpile.

Housing & Calculations

Some problems to consider before building a new poultry house are: Cost of the house, size, type (whether one or more stories), ventilating, and most important, the cost per bird. This means the amount of money invested for the maximum number of each houseable bird.

For instance, when a building can safely house 209 birds, and it costs $887, as the one 24x24 feet mentioned in the following table, you invest $4.24 per bird. The prices in the table include everything necessary, and are based on current values, including foundation, drainage, bulldozer work as well as utilities such as water pipes, electric connections, wiring and lights, nests and roosts. The investment for each bird in a 3-story house 30x90 ft., which can house 3,000 S. C. White Leghorns, would be $257. The difference is roughly 40%, and when you choose the most expensive type of house which costs for the 24x24 single story building $6.50 per bird, it is only 3.60 in a 30x90 3-story house, the difference in prices calculated in the percentage is about the same.

Why is the moist problem in poultry houses so difficult? Artificial heating of laying houses, unless in Alaska or similar cold regions, is impracticable. For laying birds, there are three sources of natural heat available. The body heat of the birds, the sun, and the ground. Birds give off very little heat, because their feathers are an excellent insulating material, but birds release by breathing a great amount of moisture. A cement floor with a well-banked foundation conserves as much heat as possible, because ground temperatures keep far above freezing.

The winter sun's heat can be utilized best by southside glass windows. They can be closed at freezing temperatures. Cold air expands when heated and with 16 degrees increase in temperature, cold air is able to double its water-holding capacity. Therefore it is important to install a good ventilating system which should carry in cold air, soak up all the moisture which it can hold, and unload it outside by a good ventilating system. Such a system can be bought from the various specializing establishments. They should be installed with experts' advice, because draft, the poultry enemy, has to be avoided. All figures are based on leg-horns, heavy breed birds need 15 to 20% more space).

Nancy Holmes SUGGESTS

SOUTHERN fried chicken is internationally famous, but there is no general agreement just what chicken "Southern fried" is. One camp views it must be batter-dipped and fried with a crisp crust blanketing each piece. "Tother side says "No", it is only coated with seasoned flour, then fried golden brown, tender to the tooth at the first bite.

Not one to get in an argument, Nancy Holmes of the Best Foods consumer kitchens doesn't take sides. She thinks both are delicious. But in this recipe she recommends chicken prepared the simpler and quicker way and teamed with sauteed almonds. A truly delicious combination!

Sauteed Chicken and Almonds
2 frying chickens, 1/4 teaspoon disjointed pepper
1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup vitaminized margarine
1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup blanched almonds

Combine flour, salt and pepper in a paper bag. Shake a few pieces of chicken at a time in the bag until all are well coated with flour. Melt margarine in heavy saucepan over low heat. Add chicken and brown on both sides. When nicely brown, cover and continue cooking 10 minutes. Remove cover. Add thinly sliced almonds. Turn chicken and continue cooking 15 to 20 minutes longer or until chicken is tender and almonds brown. Serves 4.

This is one way to get to work

In an emergency, telephone workers always seem to find a way to reach their posts. Without call they often volunteer for emergency assignments. During a recent flood, one operator came to work in a rowboat. In a heavy snowstorm, one group arrived on skis and snowshoes, another in a milk wagon. One girl even came in a hearse. This spirit of willingness and determination has become a telephone tradition. We call it "the spirit of service."

Use this fast, low-cost telephone service to locate extra "hands" or repair parts for machinery... to find your best buys and your most profitable markets. Use it also to keep in close touch with faraway relatives and friends.

A word to be respected

When you hear the word "emergency" on your telephone party line, it usually means there's no time to lose. That's why it's important to give up the line quickly when another party explains why he must make an emergency telephone call. The "good neighbor" policy on party lines works both ways. HOMEMAKERS' CORNER

Mothproof With Paper

Even a hungry moth isn't interested in eating paper; so you can protect woolen garments just by wrapping them in air-tight paper bags. This is the advice of Helen Shelby, University of Maryland extension clothing specialist.

It's especially important to have the wrapping airtight, she says, because moths can get through small openings to the wool material. A good way to seal paper bags is to put paper tape or transparent tape over all openings and seams. Then hang the wrapped garments in a cool place if possible; that's good protection against both moths and moisture.

Tips For Television Owners

If you have a new television set, you'll welcome these tips from home furnishing specialists on the proper room lighting to prevent eyestrain:

The first rule is to keep the room evenly and softly lighted. Turn all table and floor lamps to 100 watts or as near it as possible. Make sure, however, that the room light is not reflected back into your eyes from the front of the television receiver. To check this, place a purse-size mirror against the safety glass and down and left to right to of the receiver and move it up discover reflections. If you find them, change the position of lamps or TV set. Then, if reflections still persist, you may have to use heavier silk or opaque shades on floor and table lamps. Some television owners have found it helpful to place a one to two-inch band of dark material around the lower edge of lamp shades to eliminate the bright rim of light on the lining.

"Remember," says the specialist. "It's the contrast of darkness and bright light that causes eye fatigue. So keep the area around and in back of your set sufficiently lighted at all times."

Sheet Savers

When sheets are removed from a bed, loosen the tucked-in edges. You may weaken the fabric and shorten the life of sheets by pulling them.

Never use a sheet for wrapping other soiled clothes when sorting the laundry. This puts a strain on the sheets and may soil them heavily. When hanging sheets up to dry, fold them hem to hem and turn about four inches over the line. Four clothes pins, one at each end and two in the middle, will prevent strain on the corners.

Sheets dried in an automatic drier or outdoors in a brisk breeze usually are quite wrinkle-free and can be folded and put away without ironing. But when sheets are folded, either for ironing or storing, change the style of fold occasionally to prevent wear on the folded areas.

Entries Filing For "Hot Rods" Auto Race

Entries for the first "hot rod" roadster races of the 1950 season on the half-mile Williams Grove Speedway scheduled for Sunday are beginning to pour in with every indication that the field of cars and drivers will go well over the 40 mark, it was announced by Owner Roy Richwine this week.

Among the first entries received were those from Bob Whitback, of Canajoharie, N. Y., Eastern roadster champion in 1948; Shorty Bowers, Hagerstown, a midjet racing star, and George Bearcraft, Washington, D. C., who has appeared here in the past in motorcycle races.

Among the cars to compete in an action-packed program of speed and thrills will be Fords, Chevrolets, Mercuries, Pontiacs and Hudsons.

An unusual treat will be in store for fans with the first "double feature" race ever staged at Williams Grove.

Two feature races will be run, the first with the fastest 20 cars and drivers assembled, starting with the fastest in the front.

The first 16 cars and drivers finishing in this event will start in the second feature race, but with a difference that will mean plenty of stiff competition and daring racing. The fastest cars from the first main event will start in the rear, which means that the winner of the first feature will have to thread his way through the field of cars if he hopes to make it a double victory for the day.

Plenty of action and competition will be offered throughout the program, starting with time trials, after which the drivers assembled will vie for honors in a series of qualifying races in order to be eligible for the two feature races.

Polio Chapters Stress Cooperation At Meeting

If polio strikes anywhere in Maryland this summer, local and state health authorities can count on the entire resources of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and its nation-wide network of chapters, Miss Catherine C. Gaule, National Foundation state representative said today.

"Organizational machinery has been established to insure, at the request of state and local health officers, the quickest possible aid to communities if polio strikes this summer, as it did with record force last year.

"A national Epidemic Aid Coordinator has been appointed."

Representatives of three other national organizations, the American Red Cross, the Joint Orthopedic Nursing Advisory Service, and the American Physical Therapy Association, were present at the conference and outlined the assistance available from their groups in recruiting and training nurses and physical therapists for polio work.

In 1949, when 42,375 polio cases were reported, 3,000 nurses, physicians, physical therapists and other trained persons were recruited for work in stricken localities; $2,000,000 worth of needed equipment was transferred; and more than $11,000,000 was advanced by the Foundation's national office to supplement the dwindling funds of hard-pressed chapters.

During the 1949 outbreak in Maryland, the Foundation sent $48,815.00 to chapters within the state to help pay hospitalization and other costs, in addition to thousands of dollars sent in so far this year to help patients requiring financial assistance for continued care.

Last year, when 301 cases were reported in Maryland, chapters assisted in 98% of the cases.

Chief task of the planning committees is to enlist the co-operation of state and local public and private agencies concerned with the various phases of combating polio.

You May Be Eligible for Benefits From Social Security

Article 11 of "Our County and Social Security" explains why benefits are lost and what action should be taken to prevent such loss.

I will remember the first money I ever lost. It nearly broke my heart. Until a few years later, that was the greatest disaster I had encountered. I was a child then and had the security of a home and all that means but the money I lost could have been used to good advantage by my parents.

You may not feel the loss of your Social Security benefits in the childish way I felt my loss, but the fact remains that, with most of us, such a loss would hurt. I want to help you avoid any loss of Social Security payments.

It is possible for you to lose these payments and quite a number of people in your county have lost them already. It happens all too often that a wage earner himself, who is over 65, may be laid off but fails to come into our office or write us until many months have passed. Sometimes he changes from a job that is covered by Social Security to one that is not. In either event he may lose benefits if he waits more than three months before filing a claim. He may not only suffer a loss himself, but his wife, if she is 65, or his young children, will also lose money by the delay.

Then, there are cases where aged widows, young widows with children, and orphaned children lose these benefits because a claim is not filed promptly or within a reasonable time after the husband's or father's death.

How can these losses be avoided? First, if you are a worker, age 65 or over, let us know at once if you are laid off. Second, if you are the widow of a wage earner, inquire as promptly as possible about your rights. Third, a claim must be filed before any payment can be made. Fourth, the Social Security Act permits back payments for a 3-month period only, so you can readily see that if you delay filing your claim longer than three months you stand to lose one or more monthly benefits.

If it is not convenient for you to call at our office in Hagerstown, write us or have some member of your family do it for you. Then we can protect you from any loss.

A field representative will be in Emmitsburg again on Monday, April 24, at the postoffice at 11:30 a. m.

Maryland Racing, Despite Competition, Is Holding Own

ANNAPOLIS (Special)—Race betting as a pastime in Maryland with resulting revenues to the State is still holding its own according to the State Racing Commission report for 1949 submitted to Gov. Lane.

Some observers at the mile racing tracks, predicting a dark future for Maryland racing, have failed to take into account the increasing popularity of harness racing.

Harness racing enabled the State—despite betting declines of 10 per cent at the mile tracks and 4 1/2 per cent at county fair tracks—to come within seven-tenths of one per cent of equalling the 1948 figure last year.

The total bet at Maryland's four mile tracks in 1949 was $72,453,041. This was $8,100,519 less than in 1948. The county fair tracks had $14,011,432 bet, or $670,687 less than in the preceding year.

Meanwhile, harness racing at three tracks—Laurel, Ocean Downs and Roseroft—had $11,751,941 bet against the $3,707,051 wagered at Laurel Raceway alone in 1948.

State revenue on betting in 1949 totaled $4,396,887 or 3.77 per cent less than the receipts in the preceding year, but if the old rates had been in effect on county tracks, the State would have had an increase of better than one and a half per cent.

In its report, the Racing Commission noted that 1946 was the State's biggest racing year. In that year $108,583,856 was bet with a revenue of $3,874,977 going to the State. For comparison, from that peak year to 1949, there was a decline of 28.67 per cent in betting and 10.24 per cent in revenue.

It remains to be seen how bettors and the State will fare in 1950 when one new track, the Baltimore Trotting Races, will begin operations.

Racing on the mile ovals is now in progress at Havre de Grace where the meet will end April 26. Pimlico will conclude spring racing on the mile ovals May 27. Its meet opens Saturday, April 29.

Penn-Maryland Baseball League Opening Sunday

The Penn-Md. Baseball League will stage its initial game of the 1950 season Sunday afternoon. The local squad will journey to Sabillasville for the opener. Manager Slim Deatherage announced that his charges are well-conditioned and ready for the opener.

Manager Deatherage's choice of opening hurlers will be Allen Davis, blond righthander.

Officials of the local organization, in addition to Manager Deatherage, are Joseph Eyer, assistant manager, and C. F. Newcomer, business manager.

The tentative lineup for Sunday's contest is as follows: D. Saylor, rf; Felix McGlaughlin, c; Allen Davis, p; Thomas Saylor, 2b; Drexel Deatherage, ss; Allen Wastler, 3b; Jack Myers, cf, and Eugene Myers, rf, Wilbur Ridge, 1b.

The Penn-Md. League has so arranged its schedule that Emmitsburg will appear at the Community Field every Sunday that the Pen-Mar Baseball League does not operate.

Game time Sunday will be at 2 p. m.

Gettysburg to Help Local Church

Announcement was made to the congregation of the Presbyterian Church, Gettysburg, last Sunday morning that a special offering will be received at the Sunday morning service, April 23, to be given to the Evangelical and Reformed Church of Emmitsburg, whose place of worship was destroyed by fire Feb. 26.

Mr. Roy Bollinger, local business man, is under observation at the Annie M. Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, Pa., where he was taken this week, suffering from a heart attack.

All-High School Play Tonight

The all high school play of Emmitsburg High School will be presented tonight at eight o'clock in the high school auditorium.

A comedy of youth in three acts, "Doty and Daffy," is considered highly entertaining.

KITCHEN MEMO

The label of "boardinghouse dish" has been tagged to Trifle too long. When, correctly made, it's a fit dessert for the most epicurean company into a shallow serving dish pour 1/2 cup sherry. Then put into dish 1 single layer sponge cake (two or three days old) cut into fairly thin slices, spread with currant jelly, raspberry or strawberry jam. While cake soaks up the wine make a boiled custard: Scald 3 cups milk in top of double boiler. Beat 3 eggs with 1/4 cup sugar and 1/2 tsp. salt. Pour the hot milk over this stirring constantly. Put back into top of double boiler, cook over medium flame. Stir continuously until just barely thick. Remove and stir in 1/4 tsp. vanilla. Let cool with cover on, then pour over cake in wine. Chill well. Decorate with dots of jelly or jam and whipped cream if you wish 4 generous servings.
