Emmitsburg and Middleburg won the opening semi-final games for the playoff championship of the Penn-Maryland Baseball League on Sunday afternoon.

The Hanover Shoe nine edged Harney, 8-7, at Harney after getting off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning. Harney fought back the entire way and pushed over a pair of runs in the last of the seventh inning to almost pull the game from the fire.

Jobs for Ex-patients

Can a tuberculosis patient work and earn a living once he is medically discharged from the hospital? Must he always learn a new occupation? Is his field of work limited?

It is natural for these questions to arise in the mind of the person who has tuberculosis. The answer is that former tuberculosis patients can and do earn a living—at interesting and well-paying jobs in most cases.

Many tuberculosis patients return to their old jobs or professions. But work which might involve excessive physical fatigue or mental strain, or jobs which mean exposure to dust containing free silica, such as sand blasting and quarrying, should be avoided by the former tuberculosis patient.

There are literally hundreds of jobs which the tuberculosis patient can fill after he receives his medical discharge. In addition to many types of professional and office work, jobs which are today being successfully filled by former tuberculosis patients range from semi-skilled labor which is not unduly strenuous to highly skilled machinist work.

Moreover, employers report that the job performance of ex-tuberculosis patients compares favorably with records of workers who have never had the disease. Former patients are usually very reliable because they are more aware of the importance of sound health and thus their rate of absenteeism is lower.

Many tuberculosis hospitals have specialists on their staff to advise the patient on work that will be safe and satisfactory for him and, when necessary, even help him prepare for a suitable job. In addition the various states have vocational rehabilitation bureaus to assist those who need training in new skills or refresher training in old occupations. The doctor and hospital staff members can direct the patient to these agencies and frequently to employers who are aware that ex-patients make valuable, dependable employees.

The wise ex-patient carefully follows the advice of his doctor on seeking and accepting a job after medical discharge, as he did during treatment for his illness. Thereafter, he continues to keep a check on his health by periodic visits to the doctor, as often as his doctor believes is advisable.

Homemakers' Corner

Venetian Blinds

Whether venetian blinds are of steel, wood or aluminum, they should be dusted regularly with a soft cloth, lamb's wool brush or vacuum attachment and given a thorough cleaning at least once a year, according to Home Furnishings Specialist Florence Mason of the Maryland Extension Service.

A synthetic soap or a prepared venetian blind cleaner that contains no oil or wax can be used for a more thorough cleaning, applied with color or soft brush almost wrung dry. Begin work at the top of the blind. Avoid the tapes until last and then work over them with a small stiff brush. Wax should not be used on slats, as it often prevents effective cleaning and re-finishing.

When necessary, blinds can be factory-refinished with new tapes and cords. Incidentally, tilting the slats to a horizontal plane before raising or lowering venetian blinds is advised.

Curtain Care

Sun and dirt are the chief foes of curtains. Sunlight burns delicate fabrics in much the same way as it does the skin.

Lowering the blinds at windows where the sun pours in, when the room is not in use, and frequent changes of curtains from exposed to protected windows is advised.

Dirt also weakens the fibers of curtains. It is recommended that you should launder curtains when they first show signs of soil.

SHORT STORY
Acting On Impulse

By Richard Hill Wilkins

"T'S ABOUT TIME," said Uncle Ralph, "that you, my dear Constance, were married. You're nearly 25, which is the verge of the ineligible age. Don't let popularity turn your head, my dear, it won't last forever."

3-Minute Fiction

One of these days you'll find yourself seeking a man, instead of being sought after. And that," Uncle Ralph added, "often means disaster."

Connie Brigham wrinkled her cute little turned-up nose, closed one eye and stared soberly at Uncle Ralph with the other. Uncle Ralph cleared his throat and began to let his gaze wander about the room. He felt guilty.

"Which," said Connie, with the slightest of twinkles, "is a polite way of suggesting that I accept Bob Merrill, and forget all about Don Baxter. She stood up and ruffled Uncle Ralph's hair, an act which he resented delightedly. And Connie went on: "Uncle Ralph, just why is it that you dislike Don so much? I think he's fascinating."

Uncle Ralph snorted. "Donald Baxter," he said, "is not a fit young man to become the husband of any girl. He's flighty, unreliable, impulsive, and out of a job. You never can tell what he's going to do next."

"He's romantic," said Connie. "He's after your money," said Uncle Ralph.

"And he's so good looking," said Connie.

Uncle Ralph coughed. "On the other hand, Bob Merrill is dependable, honorable, manly, steady. You can count upon him to make you a good husband."

"That's just the trouble," said Connie.

"What's just the trouble?" said Uncle Ralph.

"He's steady and dependable. So easy to read. Life with Bob would be safe, yes, but it would also be monotonous."

Despite his outward jovialness while conversing with Connie, Uncle Ralph was worried.

I wish, thought Uncle Ralph, I only wish something would happen to open her eyes. Drat that Don Baxter, you never could tell what he'd do next.

Two days later Uncle Ralph had come no nearer to solving the problem.

WITH THIS in mind Uncle Ralph rose from the veranda chair in which he was sitting, only to see Connie coming slowly up the walk. He sat down again, and picked up his newspaper. Connie

"I can never marry Bob, Uncle Ralph."

He had considered every possible plan to make Connie see the light, and discarded them all. In the end he reluctantly decided to interview Connie again, offer one final paternal plea.

came on, doleful and sorrowful of expression. She sighted Uncle Ralph, stopped and smiled whimsically.

"I guess you were right," she said.

"About what?" asked Uncle Ralph.

"Don."

"Don? How was I right about Don?"

"About never knowing what he's going to do next."

"What's he done, now?"

"He's married. Decided to last night about 6 o'clock. At 6:30 he was a married man."

"Oh, hum," said Uncle Ralph. He was not one to gloat, hence suppressed his delight with a masterful effort. He merely said mildly, "Well, that's that. Sort of turned out like I said it would. Well, you'll be happier with Bob. He's a man in a million."

Connie shook her head. "I can never marry Bob, Uncle Ralph. That's what makes me feel so bad."

"Tsk, tsk. That's no way to talk. You'll get over Don soon enough. Bet a thousand the girl he married isn't worth one-tenth of 'em."

"Yes," said Connie, "she's worth all of me. I'm the girl Don married."

Mr. Gilbert Hulshart of York, Pa., spent last Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kugler of W. Main St.

MARYLAND HOME FRONT

Soil and water conservation teamed up with price supports are helping to continue the tremendous increases in agricultural production of the past 12 years, in the opinion of Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland PMA State Committee.

He points out that production has increased greatly because of increased yields per acre. Production in 1948 was 40 per cent over the 1935-39 period and 51 per cent over the 1923-32 period.

Land improved through conservation is supporting the increased yields from hybrids, improved varieties, improved insect and disease control methods, and the increased efficiency resulting from improved machinery and cultural methods. Soil and water conservation has checked erosion and waste of water, at the same time building up the productivity of the land.

Also important on the soil building team, according to Mr. Blandford, are the price supports. The financial assistance provided farmers through the Agricultural Conservation Program has stimulated further use of conservation practices and soil building program.

The PMA price support programs, the chairman explains, have given farmers assurance of a fair price which, in turn, has provided them with confidence in using the newer and better methods of farming and the improved varieties of seed. "Assured a fair price," says the Chairman, "farmers have dared to go ahead with changes in their farming methods and new varieties of seed, new chemicals and improved machinery. They have had price protection that has made progress possible."

Growers To Pay Fees
Farmers wishing to put next year's wheat crop under loan will have to pay the cost of storage. This was revealed this week by Mr. Blandford, who said that the deduction will amount to about 22 cents per bushel.

This figure applies to the loan wheat which the government eventually takes over. Growers who put wheat under loan next year and then pay off the loan before the government takes the wheat will pay proportionate storage costs.

Potato Price Support Available
Maryland producers with a late potato crop may take advantage of the government's price support program. That is, those producers outside of the Eastern Shore Area which voted down a marketing agreement, are eligible. The only other requirement is that the producer must have planted within his acreage allotment.

The supported price for the late crop in Maryland is $1.005 per hundred pounds for U. S. No. 2 quality or better, measuring two inches minimum diameter, and $.55 per hundred for U. S. No. 1, size B quality. Potatoes must be delivered to the government on or before Oct. 15. Producers who want more information should get in touch with their county office of the PMA.

Mr. Blandford reports that few potatoes are expected to be purchased from Maryland's 1950 crop. He puts the total at about 8000 bushels and adds that the Dept. of Education is expected to take the entire amount for use in the school lunch program.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Combs, who recently returned from Georgia to their home at 700 W. Main St., have left this week for Phoenix, Arizona.

Lieutenant Charles E. Rowe, of Bolling Field, Va., spent several days last week with his aunts, the Misses Carrie and Elizabeth Rowe, W. Main St.

She was a member of Mt. Tabor Lutheran Church, Rocky Ridge.

Why Worry About Debt?

Wars are won with sacrifices—not only sacrifices of blood and lives but sacrifices felt in the civilian pocketbook and in the kitchen cupboard, sacrifices of comfort and convenience and enjoyment. In the totalitarian nation the dictator and his ruling clique impose and distribute sacrifices as they see fit. In our Republic we establish a military rule over sacrifices in our armed services, but we citizens, as the ruling element in the government, must ourselves fix the form and degree of our civilian sacrifices.

Such self-determined sacrifice is not an easy voluntary achievement. Grave responsibility is therefore placed upon the nation's governmental leadership, in the Congress and in the White House. There is a natural tendency in the political realm to want to water-down the sacrifices, to cater to the human weakness, to push back the hard financial facts of war's demand.

Cost Withheld

Our soldiers and airmen are being maimed and killed in the Korean war theater, our government is voting multi-billion dollar emergency funds to more adequately equip them and to otherwise build up our own and Europe's defenses, but some national policy makers do not wish to reveal the total price, in civilian sacrifices, that must be paid for this effort. They want to continue borrowing money to finance the major portion of the war effort and a sizeable part of the civilian governmental services. They want, in other words, to continue the "good life" while waging what at any time may become the "most terrible" war.

To adopt this "least painful" procedure is very temporary political expediency. But it creates a dangerous situation which can become as devastating as a losing war. The fiscal facts are these: We have entered a state-of-war period in which the Federal Government will spend at least $40 billion a year on military preparation. The present non-military items in the budget require $30 billion. Thus we have at once a $70 billion projected Federal expenditure. Federal tax revenues, including the new $5 billion, will be, as now projected, about $42 billion, which would leave a deficit of $28 billion for this year, if nothing worse happens.

Belt Tightening

Three drastic actions should be taken:

1—The non-military items in the Federal budget should be cut to the bone. Sen. Harry Byrd has offered a proposal that would trim them by $10 billion.

2—A board of tough-minded, experienced business men should be created and given power to cut every iota of waste from military expenditures. Findings of the Hoover Commission and other revelations indicate from 10 to 20 per cent could be added to the purchasing power of appropriations if waste were eliminated and sound purchasing procedure established.

3—The state-of-war budget should be brought as nearly into balance as circumstances will permit—even if it means heavy additional taxation equitably distributed throughout the population. This action would make the full monetary cost of war and the economic sacrifices entailed painfully apparent to all Americans and thus shock them into a more active participation in the affairs of their nation.

Oh, Piffie!

Sen. Byrd's proposal would cut back domestic-civilian expenditures to the 1948 level, thus saving $5.2 billion; cut $2.4 billion from Marshall Plan funds being sent to Europe for peacetime economic projects; cut another $1 billion from such expendable items as public housing and public works; trim administrative and readjustment program expenses of the VA by $1 billion; trim government civilian payrolls and tighten up the general functions of government, thus saving several hundred million.

But the direction of the government's fiscal affairs is toward bigger borrowings and ever bigger debts, continued

Noted for Ads

DETROIT, Sept. 18—The just released "Blue Book" of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., which annually honors outstanding advertising accomplishment picks two newspaper campaigns by the Chevrolet Motor Division as among "the best of 1949."

Passenger car and truck advertising campaigns are named individually for awards a citation virtually without precedent. ANPA judges in their 12th annual advertising review selected only 50 campaigns dealing with all types of merchandise. Campbell-Ewald Co. national advertising agency handles the Chevrolet account.

waste, continued big domestic peacetime spending program, continued expansion of the Federal payrolls. The attitude being created is, "Oh, why worry about $300 or $350? Piffie—why speak of it!" Here's why: We could win the terrible war which seems to be developing—and yet lose our freedom—our nation—in economic collapse caused by this ruinous fiscal policy. History records just such tragedies.

Next week: The Hidden Enemy—Inflation.

Hood College Begins New Year

Twenty-eight per cent of the 500 girls attending Hood College this year will be receiving scholarship aid or be working on jobs at the college which will help finance their education. The total amount of aid, both given and earned will be approximately $40,000, which is somewhat in excess of last year's figure.

A survey of records in the office of Miss Grace N. Brown, registrar, shows that of these 144 girls, 38 will have scholarships; 60 will have self-help work and 46 others will have both scholarship and job. Twenty-one per cent of the student body will be working.

The two large scholarships are valued at $1600, of which $400 is available annually over a four-year period. The alternate scholarship is for $1200 and is similarly distributed. These awards are made to students for excellence in studies, fine leadership and promise of high academic achievement and citizenship.

Of the scholarship money distributed each year, some is appropriated directly by Hood, some has been received under specific agreements from the college's forerunner, the Frederick Female Seminary (and is available only to Frederick County girls) and still another is provided by endowment funds and special gifts from friends of the college.

Blue Comb—Pullet Disease

This disease usually strikes just when young pullets have begun laying. It is not as dangerous as some other sicknesses, but it can cause considerable losses if not identified and taken care of in time.

Comb and wattles turn darkish blue and shanks shrivel up. Since it strikes so quickly, one may not believe by detecting a blue comb at first sight that the bird is sick, because it usually hits the heaviest, best-looking pullet first. Besides the bluish comb and wattles one also can notice a watery discharge through the beak, caused by sour food in the crop which can not digest its contents. Up to date, the cause of blue comb is unknown. Because it happens frequently that it may be another disease than blue comb, and which may call for different kinds of action to overcome, it is advisable to take a couple of sick birds to the nearest poultry laboratory for a diagnosis.

In spite of the fact that it runs frequently through whole areas during hot weather, the writer of this column observed that losses seem to be far less among the better kept birds which were provided with plenty of fresh water. The feeding of new grain, especially new wheat, ought to be avoided.

The best known recommendation to help birds overcome this disease is one level teaspoon of muriate of potash fertilizer mixed in each gallon of water for 5-7 days, followed by 1½% of muriate potash mixed in feed for succeeding 10 to 12 days. Muriate of potash fertilizer is much cheaper than potassium chloride, which one can buy for the same purpose. As it is with any disease outbreak, every trick to keep birds eating should be supplemented to previous recommendations.

Ex-Senator Radcliffe Heads March of Dimes

Former United States Senator George L. Radcliffe has been appointed Maryland State Chairman of the 1951 March of Dimes, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announced this week.

Mr. Radcliffe, who has headed the annual fund-raising appeal in Maryland since establishment of the March of Dimes in 1938, in accepting the appointment, declared:

"When March of Dimes time comes around again in January, we hope to break all records for contributions in our state. The National Foundation is again faced with an undeniably grave financial situation, because the incidence of polio this year has still been mounting, adding to the staggering load from the 1949 epidemics.

"Thousands of patients from last year and previous years must still be taken care of, and we shall have to ask the people of Maryland to help us meet the great and tragic demand for funds. Last year, Maryland gave $390,190.47 to the March of Dimes. This giving was at approximately 18 cents per resident of the state. In per capita giving, Maryland ranked 37th in the nation last year, and we are hoping to push this ranking much higher in 1951."

Mr. Radcliffe, who served two terms in the United States Senate, was formerly Maryland Secretary of State. He is president of the Maryland Historical Society and author of "Governor Hicks of Maryland and the Civil War."

Chairman of the Presidential Birthday Balls which were first begun in 1933, Mr. Radcliffe has been one of the nation's most active workers in behalf of polio victims since the movement to assist them was started. In business life, he is president of the American Bonding Co. and chairman of the executive committee of the Fidelity and Deposit Co. in Baltimore.

Squirrels Likely To Be Scarce Again This Year.

There are many squirrel hunters in Maryland who annually go into the woods in pursuit of the elusive "Bushytail"; these small game animals have been none too plentiful in the Free State for the past few years, and the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission is of the opinion there has been no material increase in the squirrel population since last open season. It held two open meetings during the last year to consider proposed open seasons on squirrels, both for a late opening, which were attended by a large number of squirrel hunters; one was held on the Eastern Shore and one on the Western Shore. The sentiment was clearly for an early open season at a time when the squirrels were young and tender, the leaves on the trees, and the hickory nuts just right for cutting. For these, and other reasons it was deemed wise to continue the open seasons and limits that were in effect last fall.

Therefore the open season on squirrels in Maryland for the year 1950 starts today and ends Sept. 30, with a daily bag limit of six and a possession limit of 12. There is no season limit. The shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset. There is much difference of opinion as to the proper time to hunt squirrels, and it is impossible to suit all those interested. Attention is called to the fact that no one except a landowner, actually residing on the farm, and not relatives or friends, may kill squirrels between Aug. 15 and Sept. 14 on his own land when actually destroying corn. It is in no sense an open season, but merely a right given the farmer to protect his corn.

There are many places in Maryland where squirrels are so plentiful that they have actually become a nuisance, principally around cities and on restricted areas. The Commission, therefore, to relieve those who are being injured by squirrels, and to improve hunting, has instituted a trapping program in and around Baltimore and Washington, under proper supervision, where the unwanted animals are trapped and transported some distance, then liberated in suitable habitat, where they will do the sportsmen some good.

Sheriff Says, "No Tag, No Dog"

Dog owners have been securing the proper county license tags when warned of possible arrest for non-compliance with the law and it has not been necessary to secure any warrants as yet, Sheriff Guy Anders said early this week.

At the same time, County Treasurer James H. Falk, who issues the dog licenses, said approximately 5150 have been sold so far in the new fiscal year which opened July 1. The number is about the same as last year. Special Deputy Sheriff Murray

Smith has been making a systematic check of county districts for dog owners who have not secured licenses. The owners of unlicensed dogs are formally notified that unless they obtain tags within a 10-day period, warrants and prosecution will follow. The Sheriff estimated that more than 200 notifications have been handed dog owners and he said that all have complied with the law thus far.

W. JEROME OFFUTT

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR

For State's Attorney

I have not sent any form letters by mail because what I have to express in this election, I want every voter to consider.

It is impossible to personally contact all the voters in a campaign of less than two months, therefore, I should like to make a brief statement for your consideration of my candidacy to the office of State's Attorney.

Jerome W. Offutt David C. Winebrenner, III. In 1939, I was admitted to the Bar and since then have practiced law in Frederick. In 1942, I was elected to the House of Delegates and after having served one term, did not run for re-election.

At present, I am a secretary of the Frederick County Bar Association and a member of the Maryland and American Bar Associations.

My experience of 11 years as an attorney has been extensive in trial practice and participating in every term of Court. For the past five years, I have served as attorney to the Board of Supervisors of Election.

I reside in Frederick with my wife and three children.

I am a director of the Federated Charities of Frederick; officer and director of the Frederick Chapter of the Maryland Society for Crippled Children and Adults and of the local Chapter for Infantile Paralysis. Being interested in local affairs, I have been active continuously in Church, Fraternal and Civic organizations, and also in sporting events of all kinds. For the past two years, I have been District Deputy of the Knights of Columbus for the Brute and Mt. St.
Mary's College and Seminary Councils; also Past President of the Central Maryland Section of the Holy Name Society.

It is my ambition to serve as State's Attorney of Frederick County and if nominated and elected, will exercise the duties of the office without fear or favor.

I, therefore, most respectfully solicit your vote, support and influence at the Primary Election on September 18.

Sincerely,

W. JEROME OFFUTT
